Battison Drugs, which closed Friday, July 7, will be re-opening soon under new management, according to Ms. Maude Clay, owner of the building.

Ms. Clay said a licensed pharmacist is being hired and will serve as the new manager. She emphasized that the new manager will be at the drug store daily to serve the customers in an efficient manner.

There will be renovation and interior remodeling prior to the reopening. Ms. Clay also said, "We're going to have a nice fountain when we open."

Trademore Has First Break-In

Radio Shack in Trademore Shopping Center was broken into sometime after closing hours Friday, state police reported.

Manager Frank Nissida said he wouldn't be sure what had been taken until after inventory next week, but that it apparently was "something small."

Entry was made into the building by way of a bathroom wall. Nissida told the News. Apparently the door to the adjacent vacant store was left unlocked, allowing access to sheetrock walls in the rear of Radio Shack.

Nissida found the outer layer of sheetrock burst and the second layer cut in door-like fashion 3 feet tall by 2 feet wide.

The Trademore night watchman reportedly saw a "suspicious character" near the site of the break-in.

State police are investigating.

News Offices Will Open On Saturday

Beginning this Saturday, the offices of The Morehead News will be open from 9 a. m. until 12 noon in an effort to better serve its customers.

The Saturday hours, which were in effect several months last year, were discontinued during the severe winter weather. Ronald J. Caudill, executive vice president of Kentucky Publishing Company, said, "We have re-established Saturday business hours since so many customers find Saturday a more convenient time for doing business with us."

News releases and telephone calls regarding news also will be accepted on Saturdays, as well as classified and display advertising.

Elam's Market New Grayhound Bus Agent

Herb Elam, owner and operator of Elam's Market, has been contracted as the new Grayhound Bus Service agent in Morehead.

According to the Grayhound district manager Kent Hewitt, Elam's could begin full service operation as early as Thursday (tomorrow).

"I'm particularly pleased with Mr. Elam taking this," Hewitt stated from his Louisville office. "He's going to give Morehead a better bus station arrangement."

Hewitt pointed out that before the express customer (passenger) had to stand while waiting on a bus but indicated they're going to at least have a place to sit.

"It's going to be a little nicer facility," he added.

Hewitt said he would be in Morehead today (Wednesday) to officially begin operations and to give Elam a day's training. The buses will also begin

The hiring of a new county police chief and animal control officer and the appointment of a person to the Gateway Area Development District board of directors provided the main sparks in an otherwise routine Rowan County Fiscal Court meeting last Thursday.

The magistrates met for a half hour in closed session before coming up with Carl Mullen, former dog warden, as the new county police chief and animal control officer.

Sheriff Jim Nickell asked the court if the new title meant that Mullen would be authorized to cite violations besides dog-related ones.

County Judge/Executive W. C. Flannery said that Mullen could give tickets to persons he saw speeding or breaking other highway statutes, at which point Nickell told the court that Mullen would have to be commissioned by either a law enforcement agency or the governor before he could write stopping today.

"Then on Thursday we should be ready with full service," he estimated. "That is selling tickets, package express, tours, charters, just everything Grayhound has to offer."

City Acts On Personnel, Other Issues

In a routine session Monday night, Morehead City Council took care of several personnel and civic questions in orderly fashion.

Tim McBrayer and Gary Gardner were named to serve as acting sergeants on the Morehead Police Department. They were named to replace Ray Stevens and Richard Alderman until the two could return to work. Both are on sick leave.

Council also agreed to hire three persons who had been employed previously under Title VI funds by CEDA before these funds were dropped. The three were Luther Blankenship, William Hone and Burtie Markwell. Each was hired on a part-time basis at $3.50 an hour.

Council learned from City Attorney Buddy Salyer that the Daniel Boone Convalescent Center sale had been held up by an injunction from a bank in Arkansas which holds more than 50 percent of the bonds on the home. The sale is now being negotiated with several nursing home corporations, according to Salyer, and he added that indications are that bond holders will lose no money if the deal goes through.

City Planning Aide Shirley Hamilton advised council that her office currently is checking the feasibility of changing the route of the Morehead Area Transit. She also reported that advertising from local businesses would soon appear on the sides of the bus.

The city voted to name two streets in the Holiday Estates subdivision, owned by Paul Jackson, Skyline Drive and Frolley Drive.

Three persons were named to the Tourism and Recreation Commission on a recommendation from Morehead Chamber of Commerce President Mike Flannery agreed to check the matter over with County Attorney John Cox before Mullen was sworn in. Magistrate Paul Ousley balked at accepting Mullen's hiring at all until the issue of whether he had to be commissioned was resolved. However, the hiring was approved 4-1, with Ousley casting the "no" vote. Mullen's salary was set at $9,600 a year, with $1,357.80 in fringe benefits and $3,642.20 for materials and supplies.

Another controversy arose over the appointment of someone to the Gateway Area Development District board of directors. Paul Ousley recommended John B. (Pete) Hamm to fill the position, and made a motion to the effect.

However, Flannery said that it was his job to make the appointments, and refused to bring it to a vote, saying he wanted time to consider other people for the post in addition to Hamm.

Ousley argued that the court had postponed the naming of the board representative from the last meeting and should vote on the motion he had made to name Hamm to the post.

Flannery ruled Ousley out of order and said he would bring a name to the next meeting, in accordance with a Kentucky Revised Statute that gives the judge/executive of a county the power to nominate as many as 10 people for appointments before appointing someone himself.

In apparent retaliation for the move, the magistrates instructed County

Levee. The three are Reuel Buchanan, Shirley Hamilton and Mary Levee. They join Charles Thompson, Martina Davis, Waverly Jones and Gary Bishop on the 17-member commission.

Council unanimously approved plans to take jurisdiction over a subdivision in Talliver Addition when it is completed. The lowest-cost housing, funded by the Farmers Home Administration, is being built by Frontier Housing, a non-profit builder of such homes. The name of the development is the Mother Jones Subdivision.

Also approved unanimously was a proposal by the Morehead Treatment Center to allow the center to do some work on the public graveyards within the city limits. According to Salyer, a public gravestone is one which does not have a trust fund to manage it and is not active. There are at least two such sites in Morehead, he said.

Several citizens of Forest Hills Subdivision were present at the meeting to discuss two problems: cable television service to the area and the 20 miles per hour speed limit in the neighborhood.

According to Perry Hadden, a resident of the area, cablevision service in the area is "continually worse". He

No Indictment Returned Against Security Officer

Though the grand jury in Rowan Circuit Court Friday elected not to return an indictment against Morehead State University Security Officer Mike Stevens, the case seemingly is far from being over.

A 12-member grand jury, composed of eight women and four men, listened to nearly six hours of testimony from 10 witnesses before reaching a decision. The jury reportedly deliberated in private session for approximately 15 minutes before reaching its decision.

The final vote as well as the proceedings leading up to the decision by the grand jury are entirely conducted behind closed doors as MSU president Morris L. Norfleet issued a prepared, written statement Tuesday morning concerning the shooting and results of the Grand Jury.

Norfleet said, "It is regrettable that a human life has been lost, and as for Morehead State University, we fully accept the decision of the Grand Jury."

The action stems from the June 4 shooting death of Gregory Williams, 24, of Louisville, who was shot by Officer Stevens in a police road block. Williams had earlier escaped from the Bath County Jail where he was being held on first degree rape charges filed May 8 by a Morehead State coed.

Last month a coroner's inquest ruled the shooting a justifiable homicide. But in disagreement was Williams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Jordan, Louisville, represented by attorney Aubrey Williams, also a state representative from Jefferson County. After the coroner's inquest, the Jordans filed a warrant on murder charges against Stevens.

Following the statement of judgments, of which there were three others reached by the grand jury that same day, Commonwealth Prosecutor Truman Dehner reasoned "There was no evidence whatsoever of any wrongdoing on the part of Stevens."

"As far as I'm concerned the matter has been heard as far as it could be heard," Dehner concluded.

However, regardless of the decision rendered by the grand jury, both parties strongly indicated the case was far from being over, hinting the possibility of civil suits.

One interesting turn of events in conjunction with the grand jury hearing was the absence of Aubrey Williams who reportedly was attending a convention in Portland. One Williams was subpoenaed by the grand jury to answer his allegations of conspiracy on the part of local law enforcement agencies in connection with the escape and shooting of Greg Williams.

His legal replacement was Oliver H. Barber Jr. of Littleman, Charney and Barber of Louisville. Though appearing unfamiliar with the case at the outset, Barber seemed to increasingly gain interest in the matter as the proceedings progressed.

Williams was contacted Monday afternoon in his law office in Louisville. He said he'd just gotten back into town a few hours ago and had not received any reports concerning the results of Friday's grand jury. When told, he abruptly stated, "I would have been surprised if they had returned an indictment."

He said the Jordans are "definitely not going to drop it." He imagined his clients would be filing a civil suit against Stevens and the University, charging unspecified damages.

When asked if he received his subpoena to testify, he said "no" that he'd explained to County Attorney John Cox he would be out of town. Asked if he would ever appear before a session of the Rowan County Grand Jury, he said it depended upon the county attorney.

Probably the most important question asked of Williams was if he is still alleging conspiracy on the part of local law enforcement agencies in connection with the death of Greg Williams. He reaffirmed his accusations.

Citizens from various parts of the county came before the court to discuss road conditions in their areas. Mrs. Thelma Skaggs told the magistrates that the county grader had caused $2,000 to $3,000 damage on her road off Rt. 1274, where several new homes are going up.

Crooks told the court that the grader had gone over the road after a heavy rainfall, and had caused mud damage in the area. She showed photographs of the area to the magistrates and asked that the road again be graded and graded.

Magistrate Lemuel Black Jr. said that gravel had been brought to the area before. "Let me see a cable with a padlock across the road and the trucks couldn't get through."

Crooks explained that the cable was necessary to protect building supplies in the development from loss. "If you tell me when the dump trucks will be there with the gravel, we'll have the cable down," she said.

Black promised her help within a week to a week and a half.

Mrs. Erie Nelson requested two bridges and a widening of the road to be built on House Creek "so my daughter can get to school in the fall". Nelson said that buses couldn't travel her road as it is now, and it was too far to walk from her house to the main road.

Flannery suggested that the Board of Education be asked about smaller vehicles, other than buses, to pick up children from schools where school buses couldn't travel. The court promised Nelson some type of action would be taken before school started.

Mrs. Thelma Skaggs of the Sugarloaf Mountain area came representing several of her neighbors in asking for a new bridge over Bratton Branch. According to Skaggs, a truck broke through the existing bridge recently, and Magistrate Paul Ousley added that "We've had to repair that bridge twice in the last two months."

Fiscal Court voted unanimously to advertise for bids for a new 32-foot span across the branch, made of re-stressed concrete. In addition, property owner Carl Peitrey, who was in the audience, agreed verbally to give up right-of-way

Elam seemed elated to be appointed the new Greyhound agent in Morehead. He said the office would be situated in the west end of what is now his store at 224 East Main Street.

The station will be open 30 minutes before and after a bus arrives Monday through Saturday but the office will be closed on Sundays and holidays. The hours for bus service will be:

- Monday thru Saturday — 9:30-10:30 a.m. for eastbound and westbound
- 2-3 p.m. for eastbound
- 4-5 p.m. for westbound
- 7:30-8:30 p.m. for eastbound and westbound

For package delivery service, customers can either come to the station during the bus service hours or, Elam said if needed, they can drop the packages off at the market next door. The hours for the market are from 8 a.m. to midnight Monday through Saturday and Sundays noon to midnight.

For more information about the bus service, call 784-5507.

said that the problem is not with the servicemen, but with the system. "They come out and fix it one day, then a few days later it's back on the blink again."

Several council members also expressed dissatisfaction with the cable service, and discussed the possibility of forcing the company to live up to its end of the ordinance which empowered it to operate in Morehead. Salyer agreed to see what he could do to determine what action to take with the cablevision firm.

On the speed subject, Hadden said that he felt the 20 miles per hour speed limit was too low and asked council if there was a possibility of raising it in parts of Forest Hills Drive. Several other citizens agreed, although Teresa Barker said that she knew of a child who was hit by a car in the spring and felt the current limit was adequate.

Council agreed to take the matter under consideration.

Hiring of a building inspector was delayed, since only two applications had been received, and Mayor Crayton Jackson expressed doubt that the two persons were qualified for the job.

Jackson instructed City Administrator Don Evans to advertise for more applications, to be in by no later than one week before the next regular meeting of council, which is August 14.

Evans announced that no bids for blacktopping had been received within the limit set in the advertising for bids. Jackson and Council instructed him to check with the State Highway Department in Flemingsburg to see if they wished to negotiate a bid.

across his property to move the bridge to a more desirable location than the existing one, which is on an s-curve.

The magistrates agreed to have the county attorney advertise for a public hearing, to be held no sooner than 30 days after the posters are put up, to discuss the opening or closing of Nichols Branch Road. Cox was not present at the meeting, and it is not known when advertising will appear.

Joe Taylor of OVC Telecommunications appeared at the meeting to again ask for a rate hike for cable television service in the area. Taylor requested a $1 a month increase in regular service, with a 50 cent raise in the rate charged for each additional TV in a home. He cited new equipment recently installed and more areas added to coverage as improvements in service.

Vote Against Hike

Magistrate Ousley said that he had discussed the possibility of a rate hike with several people and had heard "no favorable comment. People might be willing to pay more if the service were better."

After a brief discussion, the court voted down the hike unanimously.

Taylor then asked the magistrates if they had any objection to his removing some of his transmitting plants to another area "where they can make some money". Flannery told Taylor to come back and discuss this if he need arose.

In other action, the fiscal court

Approved 4-1, with Ousley casting the lone negative vote, to allot an expense account of $100 a month to each magistrate to help defray the expenses of checking roads in their districts.

New Information About Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The newly discovered riverbeds on Mars may have been formed by rivers such as no human has ever seen, a Caltech scientist has calculated.

The deep channels photographed by the Viking orbiters were not carved by water but by heavy hydrocarbons that formed liquids from gases in the Martian atmosphere, said Dr. Y.I. Yung, an assistant professor of planetary sciences.

The theory that the channels — some deeper than the Grand Canyon — are dry riverbeds, formed by water in the formative eras of Mar's development, was widely discussed during the early months of the Viking probe.

The channels "unquestionably" show some type of liquid once flowed across areas of Mars, he said in an interview. "But what evidence do we have that it was water?" he asked.

"There's quite a bit of water on the planet, but it is too cold and the water is in the form of ice. It is about 100 degrees colder on Mars than on Earth."

Yung, who first proposed his theory in an article for Nature magazine, pointed out the ice could not have flowed in rivers unless Mars was much warmer millions of years ago.

"But if it was that much warmer, there you run into trouble, because if Mars was that much warmer, the Earth (which is closer to the sun) would have been too hot for the evolution that occurred."

"This is the basic problem. There's a conflict. We can't say, 'OK, fine, maybe the sun was warmer in the past,' because the Earth would have been boiling."

The Viking probes showed the Martian atmosphere has 2 percent nitrogen, and nitrogen has two isotopes, one heavy and one light. The nitrogen on Mars is heavier than on Earth, and that, he said, must show the lighter nitrogen escaped into space.

"Therefore," he said, "there is reason to believe that one time the atmosphere of Mars was very much different than it is today and, in particular, there was a lot more hydrogen."

"Now we find a great deal of carbon dioxide. But at a time in the past, with a lot of hydrogen and all the carbon there would have been a lot of methane, an unstable gas that would have been affected by sunlight, he said, turning into "something like propane and ethane and other compounds, essentially the hydrocarbons."

Finally the carbon atoms would have to start sharing the hydrogen and start making the heavy stuff such as hexane and xanthene" liquids.

"And these would account for some of the channels."

Keep Cool Summer Soup

The lazy days of summer are for all to enjoy—even Mom—and with smart planning you can! Now that the kids are home from school, have them pitch in and help with more of the household chores. Barbecue whenever possible. Dad can take over as cook, and outdoor clean-up is usually quick and easy. In general, keep meals simple. Select recipes that take a minimum of preparation and clean-up. Plan for leftovers so you don't have to cook every night.

A cold supper can be the most appetizing kind of meal on a hot summer day and certainly one of the easiest to serve. Changes In Personnel Made By School Board

After discussion in closed session that lasted half an hour, the Rowan County Board of Education voted Monday night to grant leaves of absence for the following certified personnel:

Vesta Martin, Treatment Center; Kerry Evans, high school English teacher; and Patty Brown, high school biology teacher.

Employed were Pearl Patton, as a replacement for Vesta Martin; Janet Melvin as Patty Brown's replacement; Beverly Mayhew as a learning disability teacher; Hildreth Chapman to be placed in an English position not yet determined; Sharon Whitaker as high school librarian; and Dianna Waite as talent development teacher at the high school.

The board accepted the resignation of Richard Stidom who has accepted a teaching position in Fleming County.

Treasurer Kenneth Bland announced that school system's balance for the month of June was $96,485.10. Board Chairman Warren Proutfoot said the system is to be commended since so many schools in surrounding areas are struggling to stay in the black.

Bids for gasoline were read from the only bidder in competition, Williams-Nickell Oil Company. It was decided to study these bids and discuss them at the next meeting.

Bids for services were accepted from Betsy Ross Bakery, Spring Grove Dairy and Conrad Insurance Agency (for bus insurance). Of these, Betsy Ross was the only bidder in competition. Rainbow Bakery was also represented.

In other action the board:

- *Authorized Superintendent John Brock to advertise for 28 new typewriters for the high school to replace those that are said to be 8 1/2 years old.
- *Voted to have work done on the high school cafeteria lighting (where study hall is held) at the cost of $2,443.
- *Approved the extra service salary schedule which is said to be essentially the same as last year.
- *Accepted the resignations of Ed Smith and Billy Moore, custodians and employed as replacements. Avery L. Dalley and Ian Eden.
- *Assigned Jeanette Fannin to the position of Community Education Director for next year.
- *Extended Ruby Vengalis' employment to 11 1/2 months for next year in order to take care of summer, lunchroom activities.
- *Selected to continue with the Pilot Life Insurance Company for student and football insurance.

News Office Burglarized

The business office of The Morehead News was burglarized sometime between 9:30 p.m. Wednesday and 7 a.m. Thursday. The intruders made off with $16 in cash.

Ronald J. Caudill, executive vice president, said of the break-in, "They were lucky to find that much money in the building, because anytime we have more than $150 in cash on hand, a bank deposit is made as a safeguard against thefts of large amounts."

The break-in was discovered about 7:30 a.m. Thursday when Bill Wells, business manager, arrived for work. When he entered his office he saw checks scattered across his desk and doors to a metal cabinet were ajar.

The burglars had used a tool to force open the locked cabinet, where they found a bank bag containing several thousands dollars worth of checks and $136 in cash that had been prepared for deposit. The bag had been opened and the cash removed.

All checks and money orders were left behind by the thieves, probably since they already had been stamped "For Deposit Only."

City Police Det. James Pfeiffer and Sgt. Audrey Eaton were at the scene immediately after being called. Det.

Pfeiffer dusted for fingerprints and various items have been sent to the State Police laboratory in Frankfort for comprehensive analysis.

The officers theorized the burglary was at the hands of a person or persons who knew exactly where any cash might have been, since no desks were opened. Nor was the office of Caudill entered. His is the only office in the building that is locked every night.

Det. Pfeiffer said a person unfamiliar with the facilities would just naturally have gone for Caudill's office, since it was behind locked doors, thus more inviting for burglars.

Entry into the building had to be from one of the only four doors into the facility. All doors were locked, thus the intruders apparently used a key, or an object that fit a door lock, to get into the publishing company.

There was no sign of ransacking in any of the offices. No files, desks or other cabinets in the business office were touched.

Caudill said, "Anyone breaking into this place is really taking a big chance, because we're in and out of the building at all hours, and oftentimes there are employees working in the building late at night and in the very early morning."

An intensive investigation is underway and, in the future, the building will be guarded more thoroughly, according to Caudill.

KET To Film Next Week In Rowan County

A film crew from Kentucky Educational Television (KET) will be in Morehead next Monday and Tuesday, July 17 and 18, to film various points of interest.

Among sites to be filmed are the Farmers Market, Morehead Recreation Park, Cave Run Lake area of Twin Knobs Beach, The Point, Licking and Beaver Rivers, the Fire Tower and Horns Gregory Company.

A spokesman for KET said the visit to Morehead and Rowan County is similar to trips KET crews will be making throughout the state this summer.

Short features from numerous areas of the state will be developed for presentation over educational television in the future.

In case of inclement weather, the local filming will be postponed and rescheduled.

Gasification Plant Idea To Be Explored

Explorations are underway by Morehead and Rowan County officials into the possibilities of constructing a low to medium BTU gasification plant in the Cave Run area, according to a news release delivered to The Morehead News this week.

"I have spent two days in Washington," Rowan Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery said, "looking into this with Rep. Carl Perkins and we both think it would be a boom for this area."

Morehead City Manager Don Evans said he knew nothing about the project. Mayor Crayton Jackson could not be contacted.

Flannery said Perkins told him the idea had been around since the 40s of using low grade coal to convert to gas, which could then supply energy for industry and home use in eastern Kentucky.

The news release said fuel could be piped out for a 50-mile radius from such a plant, and would be of maximum importance in attracting industry to the area.

Flannery said some plants have had to curtail some of their operations in the winter because of a shortage of natural gas. He said a gasification plant in this area would provide an "unlimited" supply of energy.

On July 25, 1:30 p.m. at Morehead State University, Russell Bards, Director of Low BTU Gasification with the Department of Energy in Washington, D.C. will speak to the public on the feasibility of locating such a gasification plant in this area.

Representatives of coal related industries throughout Eastern Kentucky, along with educators, local and state officials, media representatives, and the general public are urged to attend and provide input toward the proposed efforts.

Rowan Man Killed In Auto Collision

A Morehead man was pronounced dead at the scene after a two-car head-on collision Saturday night in Carter County.

Versal Roysse, 40, Rt. 3, was alone in his vehicle on the Porter Creek Road when it collided with a van containing the Ray Henderson family of Crestline, Ohio, investigating State Police officer Martin Elder reported.

Four of the five members of the family were treated and released at St. Claire.

Roysse's body was taken to the Oney Funeral Home in Olive Hill. Details appear elsewhere.

Tips To Help You

You can save money and treat your guests to super tasty hors d'oeuvres if you use leftover canned ham to make sensational tidbits to serve before dinner.

HORS D'OEUVRES CAN BE TASTY AND THRIFTY, TOO!

The meat may be spiked on toothpicks with pineapple or olives, or shredded and combined with mayonnaise for a spread for crackers. Or slice the meat paper-thin and wrap it around bite-size bits of cantaloupe or honeydew.

Another tasty combination is a quarter-inch thick square of ham on a cracker that has been covered with a spicy garlic-and-herb spread.

If you forgot to buy crackers, don't worry. You can make "breadless sandwiches" combining thin-sliced ham, a cheese like gouda or Gruyere, cream cheese thinned with milk, and another slice of ham. Chill the "sandwich" for 20 hours, then use a mini-sized cookie cutter.

Using left-over canned ham for hors d'oeuvres is not only thrifty—it tastes good, too!

Controversy Arises In County

The proceedings and results of Thursday's session of the Rowan County Fiscal Court have kept alive the complex battles within the county's governing body. After meeting for nearly five hours, and passing several items of business, the magistrates and County Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery were later informed their morning's work was seemingly futile. County attorney John Cox in a letter written to "Members of Fiscal Court" pointed out six areas in which the Fiscal Court either acted improperly or without justification. Cox was unable to attend Thursday's session due to a conflict with his function as county prosecutor in the Rowan District Court. According to Cox he has made the necessary arrangements to be present at further meetings of the court.

and therefore, the appointment of Carl Dick Mullen as Rowan County Police Chief and Animal Control Officer is improper. Further, it is extremely important that a liability insurance policy be purchased to protect the county in the event that litigation arises involving false arrest, assault and battery, or other police related incidents that are so common to law enforcement officers. Finally, please note force authorized under KRS Chapter 70.54 as mentioned in the motion of W.C. Flannery and seconded by Roy Plank. There is a precise statutory procedure that must be followed and adopted by the Court before such force can be adopted. The County, prior to your taking office some years ago, established an auxiliary police force which comes under an entirely different heading. I will outline this for you at the next court meeting.

Fiscal Court who must pass on that individual. Any other method of employment is totally illegal and the Fiscal Court cannot delegate this responsibility to any other individual.
*4. That the motion to pay the County Attorney a salary of $5,000.00 per year is improper in that the County Attorney's salary has been set by the outgoing Court, acknowledged by this Court, and cannot be changed during this term of office except upwards upon my application.
*5. The motion authorizing the County Judge Executive to negotiate the lowest bid on corrugated drain pipe is improper. Even though the county does not have to advertise for bids for goods or supplies that will not exceed $5,000.00, it is still required to advertise for bids for those materials for which the county will spend more than $5,000.00 for that item in any given year. Again, I will outline the purchasing procedure for the county at the next meeting.

Board. This obligation passes to the Fiscal Court and does not belong exclusively to the County Judge Executive. I have talked personally with members of the Gateway Board reviewed the applicable law, and corresponded with you directly on this matter. The information you have received from the County Judge Executive in this regard is incorrect.

"I will have definitive information in this regard for you at the next meeting so that Rowan County can be properly represented on this Board.

"Finally, after receiving some correspondence in regard to the latest Federal Revenue Sharing requirements, there have been some hearing procedures in regard to the budget that have not been met and this must be corrected immediately so we may be in compliance before spending any government funds. I will outline this procedure at the next meeting and hope that this can be accomplished immediately.

"If you have any questions in regard to the above, I will be more than happy to discuss them with you prior to the next meeting, so that these matters may be taken up without difficulty. Signed - John R. Cox

Following is the contents of the letter submitted by Cox to members of fiscal court.
*To: Members of Fiscal Court
*Gentlemen:
"I regret not being able to attend the regular July meeting of the Fiscal Court, however, the requirements of District Court on July 6, precluded my attendance in that there were several felony examining trials scheduled that had to be held before the Grand Jury meeting of July 7. I have made arrangements with the Rowan District Court so that I will be in attendance at all future Fiscal Court meetings, either regular or special.
*Upon reviewing the minutes of your regular meeting of July 6, 1978, I must advise you of several matters that require your attention, and action at the next meeting which I will attend and outline for you.
*1. That the County does not have a properly drawn resolution authorizing a county police force or auxiliary police

*2. There are certain criteria that must be met before magistrates can receive compensation above their regular salary, in regard to the expense allowance that was approved by the Court for the magistrates, please note that it can be properly paid.
*3. That the resolution authorizing the Judge to hire a secretary of his choice to assist him to keep records and bills is improper in that until the Administrative Code is approved and adopted by the Fiscal Court, all hiring must be done by the Fiscal Court as a body, upon the recommendation of the County Judge/Executive, and this authority cannot be delegated.
*A candidate for the Judge's secretary must be recommended to the

*6. The motion by Paul Osley and seconded by Pete Hamm to be appointed to the Gateway Board as the Court's representative lay member was not out of order and was totally proper in that the Rowan County Judge has the obligation to appoint a member to the

SAFETY SENSE

A system for monitoring the working condition of automobile headlights and taillights more reliably is available, thanks to a plastic fiber optic light guide, or light piping system, that substitutes for many metal wires in cars.
A recent national vehicle safety check of nearly three million cars and trucks revealed almost one half-million vehicles with lighting defects; many were in rear lights. Most drivers are not aware of these faulty lights and yet one out of every six cars on the road has one or more defective lights.
This monitoring system, based on fiber optic light guides, is now available on several automobile models. It can help alleviate the problem of faulty lights by keeping the driver aware, at all times, of the condition of his headlights and taillights.
Using an acrylic optical fiber called "Crofon", produced by the DuPont Company, light is piped through the thin plastic wire from the headlights and taillights of the car, including lights to small light lenses mounted on both front fenders of the automobile and above the rear window. The driver can observe them by glancing ahead or into his rear view mirror.

The front monitors are segmented into lenses of three colors, one each to indicate that the high beam, low beam and turn signal lights are operating in the back, the three colored lenses light up through the taillights, the turn signal and the license plate lights are working.
The "Crofon" light guide is also used to carry light from one source to many parts of the car, including the instrument panel. In many cars, drivers no longer grope blindly for their door's exterior keyholes at night because "Crofon" carries light to illuminate them.
In future cars, this light guide will be used to activate electronic control equipment at opposite ends of a car. This electronic control equipment will send, receive and decode the pulses of light that travel over "Crofon" light guides. In this way, "Crofon" can be used to control such electrical equipment, as hazard lights, horn, turn signals, door locks, power seats and power windows.

Help your home breathe easier
Just because your home has good air conditioning and plenty of insulation doesn't mean you'll stay cool this summer. That's right. You also have to realize the importance of good ventilation. Attic heat can rise as high as 150 degrees in the summer and penetrate through ceilings into rooms below, putting a big load on your air-conditioner. You should always provide at least two vent openings, so air can flow in one and out the other. A combination of vents at the eaves and at the gable ends of your home is better than gable vents alone. Using eave vents and ridge venting is even better. And, don't forget those crawl spaces. Beating the heat requires a lot of careful planning. Installing ventilation will make you and your home breathe alot easier.

Ann Landers

Copyright - Field Enterprises, Inc.

Dear Ann Landers, I have been married ten years to a man I love and trusted. My husband's sister was my maid of honor at my wedding. She has been a dear friend all these years. Something happened recently and I don't know what to do.

Last week I found someone else's lipstick on my husband's shirt. I confronted him with the evidence in a quiet, calm manner after the children went to sleep. He broke down and confessed that he had been having an affair with a woman at the office for five months. I asked how he managed it since he is home every night. He said he had been seeing her during the afternoon at his sister's apartment. She had a key made for him since she works from 8:00 till 5:00.

My husband says he is glad I found out because the guilt had been eating him and now he is through playing around for good. But what about my sister-in-law? Am I wrong to feel she was no friend to me? What should I do?

— Torn

Dear Ann: She was certainly no friend. By all means have a talk with her and see if you can re-establish your friendship on an honest basis. If you are unable to do so, it is understandable. If you can — you are a super lady!

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 16, blue-eyed, blonde and just happen to measure 40-22-36. I have plenty of boyfriends but the girls at school are very unfriendly. This really bothers me.

I asked a very nice girl in my English class to tell why the girls don't like me. She said, "It's the way you walk."

When I went to summer camp a few years ago we practiced talking with books on our heads. Now I'm in the habit of walking with my head high and shoulders pulled straight back. I won a posture award at camp that summer and am very proud of it.

This nice girl who I'm sure was trying to help me said I walk as if I am trying to advertise myself. She suggested I carry some books in front of me — especially when I wear a sweater or something tight.

What do you think of her advice? — Too Much of A Good Thing Maybe

Dear Too Much: Some girls may not like the way you walk, but I doubt that this is your major problem. People (both girls and boys) respond to the way you treat them — not the way walk. If you make a genuine effort to show girls that you want them as friends, they will warm up to you.

Now that you have already won the posture award maybe you don't need to pull your shoulders back QUITE so much, dear.

Dear Ann: I have been married for 33 years and I'm 58 years old. I have been hit in the face, struck on the head, choked, bruised on every part of my body. Three weeks ago, my husband knocked me over backwards and I struck my head on a table. Then he shook me until I was almost senseless. He finally was going to get a gun and kill us both. I ran outside and came back in the house expecting a gun blast in my face, but do you know what he said? — "Why did you make me do this?"

Why do I stay? Because I have no place to go. Please help me — Frightened And Seeking

Dear F and S: You don't need a place to go. You need the courage to see a lawyer and get a legal separation or a divorce. The man sounds crazy and dangerous. Get moving.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. COUNTY FAIR

Week after next will be the Northeast Gateway Regional Fair sponsored by the Jaycees and held at their park east of Morehead. Gardens are late but you should be able to find some vegetables to exhibit in the garden section this year. Why not bring some entries with you. They have to be in on Monday, July 21, and they will be judged that night. Also you folks who are planning to exhibit livestock will need health papers. There is a short time to get this done in order to get the papers back. You will need to call Dr. Derrickson, local veterinarian, and get this job done. Let's make this the largest fair Rowan County has ever had. The Jaycees are putting a lot of money and time in this event.

JAPANESE BEETLES

Reports are that Japanese Beetles are causing extensive damage to gardens, field crops and orchards. Also involved are shrubs and flowers. If you see damage from these insects spray with Sevin or Malathion. Also, there are traps available at your dealers that will do a good job. This is probably the cheapest way to thin them out. Although, if they are already causing damage you will need to spray.

PEPPER TOUR

Hubert Davis, field manager for the Moody Dunbar Processing Company, was in the county last week and visited several pepper fields. Most of them are looking real good, although the crop is about a week to 10 days late. At a meeting Thursday night he reminded the growers that sprays of Sevin or Orthene, or the use of Furadan as a systemic insecticide, are recommended beginning the first week in August. These materials will control the European Corn borer and can cause extensive damage to peppers. If you have any disease problems or other problems, get in touch with the Extension Office 784-5457 or 784-8416 immediately.

DISEASES

These hot humid days can cause disease problems in shrubs, lawns, gardens and orchards. If this occurs, call the above number and we'll try to identify the problem. If necessary, we will send a specimen to Lexington. Positive identification is necessary before we can recommend a treatment.

CUCUMBERS

Cucumber growers started marketing cucumbers Wednesday of last week, and also sold on Saturday. As I understand it, the station is located in the Lee Clay Building in Clearfield. The market will be open on Tuesday and Saturdays from 12 noon to 9 p.m. Cucumber prospects look real good.

HOMEMAKERS MEETING

The annual meeting of the Rowan County Homemakers will be held at the Farm Bureau Building Friday, July 14, at 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. This will be a potluck meeting with reports and guest speaker. Also out of town guests are expected. All Homemakers are urged to attend.

FARMERS MARKET

The Rowan County Farmers Market began sales Monday on the lot across from McKenzie Ford Sales. Market hours will be 3 to 6 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and 12 noon to 6 p.m. Saturday for the remainder of the season.

4-H EXCHANGE TRIP

The 4-H special Interest Group is off at last. The group, consisting of nine teens and three adults, left July 9 for a week of fun. Their destination is Oswego, N.Y. The 4-H members will be hosted by New York families for the week. Their agenda for the trip allows for a visit to Niagara Falls, Canada, Cornell University and several local parties. The main purpose of the trip is to experience and learn the different life styles. Last summer the group hosted a group of 4-H members from New York. The members of the club are Sandy Spurlock, Danny Caudill, Donna Totch, Matthew Totch, Laura Totch, Mike Grey, Connie Babe, Mark Baber and Cindy Markwell. Chaperones are Mrs. Frances Totch, Mrs. John Baber and Mrs. Ivan Markwell.

GREAT SCOTLAND
By Jack Hovatt, The District Teacher's Scotch Information Centre
The Oldest Police
Edinburgh, the capital of Scotland, claims to have the oldest police force in continuous existence in the world. It is made up of the High Constables of the Palace of Holyroodhouse, the Queen's official residence when she is in Scotland.

The High Constables, drawn from the leading citizens of Edinburgh, wear plumed hats and an elaborate military uniform and carry batons. They trace their history back to the ancient days of Holyroodhouse.

They are, sometimes mixed up with the Royal Company of Archers, the Queen's Bodyguard in Scotland, but the difference is that the Archers appear only when the Queen is there in person. The Archers wear dark green uniforms and black kilnarnock bonnets with eagles' feathers and each is armed with a bow and arrow. Teacher's Scotch Information Centre suggests that Queen Elizabeth II must be the only monarch defended by bows and arrows.

Secret Of 136 Year Old Man ... Whiskey And Cigarettes

BARTOW, Fla. (UPI) — Charlie Smith celebrated his 136th birthday Tuesday and said he still drinks as much booze as he can get and likes to smoke cigarettes, too. And on special occasions a piece of cake is a nice change of pace for Charlie, who may really be the oldest man in the world as well as the United States.

Getting booze at the Bartow Convalescent Center, Charlie's home since 1972, can be a problem, of course. He solved it by refusing to take his vitamins until the staff agreed to provide a shot of rum to wash them down.

However, Charlie's preferred festive beverage is rye. "I like to drink rye whiskey," said

Smith, perched in his wheelchair. "I drink it neat and I smoke cigarettes. Nothing wrong with that."

At the Fourth of July party marking Charlie's record birthday, other residents of the nursing home sang and presented him with a birthday cake without candles.

Missionia Stephens, the center's activities director, said America's oldest man, who nods off frequently and whose memory fades in and out, "was really sharp" for his birthday.

Dr. Frederick Charatan, a geriatric psychiatrist who interviewed the bald, wizened man every day for a week, said he was astonished by Charlie's condition.

... TO LEARN

Our modern facilities are a far cry from the little red schoolhouse that used to serve our communities. New methods and equipment provide our young people with the best opportunity for education in the world.

More important than how we learn is what we learn. Buildings and equipment cannot instill moral values — these are only received by those youngsters who are properly motivated by their families and their church.

Gateway Housing Now HUD Agency

Gateway Housing Corporation, regional non-profit housing corporation serving the five counties of the Gateway Area, has received official certification as a HUD Counseling Agency. This certification authorizes the Gateway Housing Corporation to provide home owner, tenant, home-making, and financial counseling to local area residents. As the 14th agency to receive certification from HUD, the Gateway Housing Corporation is the first rural multi-county agency to be certified for counseling services. Robert Murphy, director, stated that in the near future, a full-time staff person may be assigned to provide counseling services. Persons desiring counseling will be referred by various social services agencies that have a cooperative agreement with Gateway Housing Corporation.

see if the judges had cut a plug in Farmer Brown's choice watermelon. Suddenly from beneath a table a grimy hand sneaks up and around a corner and before you can decide that should be done, the hand and two pieces of some one's homemade fudge are gone. Gone forever, never to know a judge's critical eye and taste.

Off to one side of the big field youngsters and mothers holding babies are boarding a merry-go-round while college music sets the tempo and it is so impressive to your young ears and eyes that you never forget the music, seeing friends and neighbors walking around and the thrill of having one of the family get the coveted ribbon.

Youths still hang around the horses, mules and ponies, waiting an opportunity to climb on a bare back if just long enough to be told to get off. County leaders and farmers comb and curry the animals and stand back to check the gleam and shine. A baby cries, a cooing couple hold hands as they check out the displays and a good place near a sideshow to steal a kiss and a white haired great-grandmother holds a squirming two-year-old on her lap while a five-year-old great grandchild pulls at her skirt.

A number of counties already have held their fairs. Boyd, Metcalfe, McCracken, Barren, Bullitt and Hart, Woodford, Green and Logan, Boyle, Hardin, Henry, Harlan, Muhlenberg, Wayne and Pendleton to mention a few. But many other county fairs are yet to come. Among them are Adair, Allen, Fleming, Harrison, Jessamine, Lincoln and Callaway - all set July 10-15.

For those of you who remember the atmosphere of a long ago fair, you can relive some of it at the fairs of today. There are the music makers picking Old Joe Clark and Sally Goodin on banjos just like they used to and some lively oldtimes smoothing off a spot for a hoodwink or two.

If the atmosphere has fancied itself up a bit, you won't mind. Youngsters who used to race ponies around a field, or the family mare, still do, only today they might wear a classic riding habit and considerable skill as they put their animals through various classes at the horse show.

Japanese Beetles Fly Commercial

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The large numbers of Japanese beetles living in the neatly maintained turf of Philadelphia International Airport have taken a fancy to life aboard the planes, and that poses a threat to Western states whose crops could be destroyed if infested planes land there.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture, Friday declared the airport "hazardous," and a spokesman said the interiors of aircraft destined for the West were being sprayed with pesticides.

"The preventive treatments are intended to keep the destructive beetle from spreading to uninfested agricultural regions in the West," he said. Stan McNally, area director for plant protection and quarantine, said the beetle "for some reason are attracted to the aircraft."

"We have no idea why," he said, "but during hot, humid days in bright sun they fly readily and end up near the aircraft. They have a tendency to bounce along the fuselage until they find an opening and go right in."

McNally said the beetles, though very destructive to vegetation, are not harmful to people and are not interfering with other airport operations.

"They feed on almost any kind of plant, especially on agricultural crops, everything from apples to corn to soybeans," he said. "Here in the East they are extremely destructive to plants, especially roses. McNally said the outbreak of Japanese beetles is not related to the current situation in Maine where crawling beetles have infested several communities.

He said the Japanese beetles develop in the grass turf surrounding the airport and emerge as adult insects in late June. They feed on foliage and hatch eggs in the neatly maintained grass, he said.

The grass also was being sprayed in an attempt to keep down the development of the beetles.

Philadelphia was hit with a heavy beetle population between 1959 and 1964 but dry weather in the mid-1960s thinned the beetle's numbers.

"But in recent years," McNally said, "summers have been seasonal with plenty of moisture and the population is beginning to develop back."

The USDA spokesman said spraying of the planes would continue for about six to eight weeks or as long as the airport is considered hazardous.

"Measures will be taken to protect food, water, utensils and food preparation areas aboard the planes to be treated," the spokesman said.

Philadelphia is the third airport this summer to be declared hazardous as a result of beetles. The others were the Greater Cincinnati Airport on June 26 and the McGuire Air Force Base airport in New Jersey on June 28.

Mobile Home Fire

FRENCHBURG — The Frenchburg volunteer fire department answered a firecall in Pomeroyton on June 29, 7:00 p.m., but were unable to save a mobile home owned by Orville Rae.

Three volunteer firemen including Fire Chief David Deck and Gary and Jerry Eggleston participated in an effort to extinguish the fire. But, by the time they arrived on the scene, the fire was out of control.

Firemen were unable to determine the cause of the fire, and David Deck reported the damage as a total loss. There were no injuries reported.

Crime Prevention

If crime in the United States is big business, so is trying to catch the crooks. In addition to police departments and other law officers, the protection of life and property by private individuals and organizations has become a big and growing business.

The security industry has become a multi-billion-dollar business. Included in the field are thousands of security agencies (most of them aren't called detective agencies anymore) and a growing list of manufacturers of all types of alarms, locks and other types of security devices.

Protecting people and their possessions against fire, vandalism and theft may be one of the few activities which is recession-proof.

An official of one of the leading security agencies made that claim, pointing out that "plants have to be guarded, especially when they are shut down."

With crime continuing at a high level, the market for the sleuths, guards and security advisers to business management virtually is guaranteed.

When a recession hits the security business, the nation will know it has finally begun to turn the crime picture around.

Record Could Be Better

It was a sobering report on highway safety President Carter has submitted to Congress. The statistics for 1977 contain little to crow about.

Almost 47,000 people lost their lives on American highways last year, millions more were injured and the cost of highway accidents is figured at $43 billion.

Despite that terrible toll, it could have been worse. Highway fatalities were worse before the national 55 mph speed limit was imposed. The White House estimates that factor alone prevented fatalities from soaring to 77,000 in 1977. Traffic accidents are the sixth leading cause of death in the nation — the leading or second cause for the age group 5 through 34.

Considering the millions of vehicles on the road and the trillions of miles traveled, it is too much to expect that highway accidents can be eliminated.

But when half of all fatal accidents involve drivers who had been drinking and when surveys continue to reveal a large number of drivers and passengers don't use seat belts, the record has considerable room for improvement.

Restating The Obvious

Certainly the U.S. Supreme Court in its 1978 session has handed down a number of far-reaching decisions. Some of them will require future interpretations to fine-tune the court's meaning.

One of these rulings, which received little notice at the time, has public officials fretting about the implications to them in carrying out their official duties.

The court ruled, in a closely divided opinion, that public officials can be sued for damages if they knowingly violate the constitutional rights of any citizen.

That decision undoubtedly will require much testing in the courts before reasonable ground rules are established.

Already some officials are worrying aloud that they could find themselves in court every time they make an unpopular decision.

Of course, that is not what the court intended, nor what the majority opinion meant when it said: "Our system of jurisprudence rests on the assumption that all individuals, whatever their position in government, are subject to federal law."

It should not have required a special court ruling to make that point.

Holiday Fever

There would appear to be little in common between the twin observations that: 1. Americans tend to observe national holidays as fun days, rather than observances of major historical events, and 2. Too few citizens who are eligible to vote bother to exercise that important franchise.

But periodically some members of Congress entertain the notion that a common bond should be forged between these two lapses in good citizenship.

Bills have been introduced in both House and Senate promoting the idea of making presidential election day a national holiday.

The object, backers say, is to "solemnize a most important occasion, serving both a practical and symbolic function." One of their immediate objectives usually is to improve the low voter turnout recorded frequently at the polls.

This is not the only proposal offered periodically to improve voter participation. It has been suggested that elections be held on Sunday to attract potential voters who might otherwise be working.

Would voters pay more attention to a national holiday to observe presidential elections than they do observances such as Independence Day or Memorial Day? Or might it work in reverse by attracting large numbers away from home for one last long weekend of the year?

Agree Or Not . . .

FRANKFORT — Time has a way of healing wounds . . . and setting history in perspective.

The re-emergence of Richard M. Nixon into the public spotlight at Hyden, Kentucky, July 3, after the embarrassing Watergate fiasco, may become a significant turning point in how our history is finally written about this period.

Nixon's dedication speech at the recreation center project dedicated in his name in this Eastern Kentucky mountain county seat of 500 population may get the town's name in the history books. An adoring crowd attended the event and there were no hecklers to disturb this historic event for Hyden.

This indicates that some of the bitterness is fading away from Nixon and Watergate. The charge that brought about Nixon's resignation of the office of President of the United States was obstruction of justice, or trying to cover up the third-rate breaking an entering charge at Democrat headquarters.

The sixties was a period of social revolution on the university campuses of this nation and a backwash of political infighting which this nation had never seen before.

The nation had come through World War II victorious, the Korean War which saw a negotiated peace, only to get involved in a no-win situation in Vietnam. The nation was weary of sending its youth to war in foreign lands.

All of these events combined to become the political battlefield between Democrats and Republicans within our nation.

Three prominent Americans, President John F. Kennedy, Civil Rights Leader Martin Luther King and presidential aspirant Robert F. Kennedy were assassinated. Bitterness brewed.

We had come through the depression years with Franklin D. Roosevelt as our leader and the Masses who led us out of the labyrinth of despair and suffering that was lifted with the beginning of World War II in December 1941.

Harry S. Truman became president at the death of FDR. Doubt and criticism, and sharp criticism of Truman was prevalent for a time. Yet, time has proven him to be one of our greatest presidents whose record eclipsed the legend of Roosevelt.

Then we had eight years of war hero Dwight Eisenhower who negotiated the end of the Korean War.

Then came John F. Kennedy's brief 100-day reign in which he was glorified by the press that created Camelot, the nearest we've ever had to royalty in our federal government. This period was the dream of the propagandists, but it lasted too short a time to really evaluate in terms of history as accomplishments or mistakes.

Franklin D. Roosevelt rode into power in a propaganda war stigmatizing Herbert Hoover. Hoover was pictured as the cause of the worldwide depression, but he lived to see his name vindicated.

Harry Truman lived to see his record embellished in our history as one of the greatest.

Lyndon Baines Johnson was driven into not seeking a second term by members of his own Democrat Party. Who knows how many the history books will say about Nixon's record for bringing our young men home from Vietnam or his success in foreign affairs?

I have just finished reading William "Fishbait" Miller's book in which he recalls incidents in Washington during his almost 40 years of service as Doorkeeper in the House of Representatives. He admits he is biased toward the Democrat Party which he so dearly loved, and the headiness of power that prevails in our Capitol.

He labels Kentucky's Alben Barkley, who became vice president under Harry S. Truman as brilliant and "honest" man. People will little remember that Barkley failed to file his federal income taxes over a 10-year period and his estate paid more than a half million dollars in back taxes and penalties.

Congress today is dragging its feet investigating charges against present and former congressmen for accepting cash contributions from Tongson Park, the Vietnam rice merchant who became prominent on the Washington scene.

Congress has an affinity for protecting their brothers, but the majority party always seem to glory in crucifying the opposition.

History seems to glorify the good and tends to forget the bad.

Report From Your State Treasurer

James J. Barker

This is the first of a series of "A Report From Your State Treasurer" and will discuss how the Treasury Department's investment program relates to the Gateway Area Development District as well as the entire Commonwealth.

One of the main functions of the Treasury Department is to invest all state monies not immediately needed by various government departments and agencies. Consequently, sound cash management policies must be followed.

Any excess funds are invested overnight or over the weekend in U.S. Treasury Bills. As of June 30, 1978, overnight and weekend investments have produced for 11 months of this fiscal year $5,477,837.72. This exceeds any fiscal year's earnings on overnight investment deposits.

During my tenure as State Treasurer, we have, by mutual agreement with our state depository bank, eliminated a $20 million compensating balance which was formerly required. The state will earn at least $1 million more per year in additional interest income.

Inactive deposits with 318 banks are invested in 90-day Certificates of Time Deposit at an interest rate of not less than 5 percent. For the current 90-day period, these investments are earning 5.7 percent.

All other surplus funds, totaling at least $85 million, are invested in Treasury Bills and in Certificates of Deposit placed entirely within state banks.

Banks within the Gateway Area Development District which includes Bath, Menifee, Montgomery, Morgan, and Rowan, presently have state investments totaling $5,780,000.00. These funds mean that bankers within your area are able to extend more loans to business enterprises and individuals. Business expansions create jobs for our citizens and increase the output of goods and services. This process also generates additional tax revenue as well.

As State Treasurer, I have a dual objective in managing the state's investment portfolio. While we want to get the highest return possible on our investments, we also want to help stimulate the economic development of Kentucky — and this is done by our current policy.

I am continually communicating with citizens and banking institutions in order to determine their needs and how the Treasury Department can best satisfy those needs. I invite your comments and suggestions.

In future reports, other functions of the Treasury will be discussed as well as bringing you up-to-date information on Kentucky's investment income.

The Editor:

I feel that I should let you know how the people of Morehead felt about their July 4th Parade.

It wasn't a very big parade, but there was a lot of effort put forth by a great many people to organize and prepare some enjoyment and celebration for the City of Morehead.

As the secretary and a member of the Eastern Kentucky Trail Riders Saddle Club, I can truthfully say that it was a real effort to leave work at 4:30 p.m. prepare yourself, horses, and maybe children, and arrive back in town in time for a 6:00 p.m. parade. But, I am proud of the members in our club and others who did go to this trouble among these were fathers, mothers and children. I'm sure it helped everyone else enjoy Morehead's July 4th Parade just a little more than usual.

Many more people would go to the trouble of building floats, preparing costumes, contacting different groups to march, and etc. if given a little encouragement. One type of encouragement is newspaper coverage. As an adult participant in this parade, this might not seem significant, but to small children and teen-agers this incident is a thrill and an important part of this event.

Does Morehead's small town newspaper feel it is growing too big for our small town parades to be important to its readers. I think many readers and subscribers probably had a member of the family in that parade or at least was watching some close friend; helping to celebrate the 4th of July.

It's still nice to be able to say "that's my child or brother or father, etc. in the paper", and I'm not just talking about parades, this includes school activities, clubs, organizations, and many other events that you as the newspaper should cover.

It seems our small town newspaper is too full of events that happened in Washington, Tennessee, or even Japan. I guess they just don't have room or time for small items like a local July 4th Parade.

Camp Is Keeping 'Em Busy

"If you want your child to have something to do, bring 'em on out". This is the advice of Sam Dunn of the Morehead Recreation Department, who is heading the Summer Day Camp '78 program.

Over two weeks are left of camp activities that are held weekdays from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. for boys and girls ages 5-8.

Camp sites are at Morehead Grade School and Triplett View, and the only charge is $4 for insurance.

Approximately 250 children are registered at the Morehead camp which has an average daily attendance of 130. Twenty counselors, provided by Manpower Services, assist the campers in singing, crafts, hikes and tours.

Parents wanting to send their children won't even have to bother with packing them a lunch — lunch and two snacks are provided free by the USDA Summer Food Program.

Campers go to the City Pool twice a week, see a movie every Thursday, participate in talent shows, have visited the MSU farm and have been visited by the Morehead Fire Department.

"An all day trip is in the planning stages, with several state parks as possible destinations. Parents' night will take place sometime at the end of camp (the last day is July 28) and participants will show their folks what they've learned.

Dunn said about seven physically handicapped or exceptional children are enrolled and are "getting along very well".

"This is our first year, we're learning as we go", Dunn said recently. "It's been a lot of fun, and we plan to do even more next year".

Burley Support Level Increased

Price supports for the new 1978 burley tobacco crop have been increased 6.3 percent over 1977, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced this week.

Support level for 1978 will average $124.7 per hundredweight, up $7.4 over last year, said the USDA in an announcement to the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association, which administers the price support program in Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and Missouri.

The increase is authorized by law in conformity with the parity index on farm prices. Wage rates have jumped more than 11 per cent, including the January 1978 boost in the Federal minimum to $2.65 per hour, up from $2.20. Price rises also are taken into account for tractor fuel, repairs and chemicals.

Stewart Smith, acting administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, noted that as in the past the price supports will be available to eligible producers through grower associations such as the Burley Co-op, under contracts with the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The rule on restricted pesticides is continued in effect, and growers must certify that they have not used DDT, TDE, toxaphene and endrin on their tobacco. Also, producers must certify their planted acreage.

The Burley Association and the Burley Stabilization Association, the latter operating for Tennessee, Virginia and North Carolina growers, are authorized to withhold one cent per pound from the advance to producers, to help defray administration costs.

Cranston Club Gets Recognition

The Cranston No. 377 Community Development Club was among communities placing in the Blue Ribbon Group in the Farm Category at the 16th annual Awards Program of the Northeast Kentucky Rural Community Development Association.

Four communities competed for top honors in the Village category, with David of Floyd County placing first. The Rural Non-Farm category championship was claimed by Weeksbury of Floyd County.

Numerous other awards were presented during the program.

MICROWAVE MENUS

KEEP COOL IN THE KITCHEN THIS SUMMER

This summer when a hot wave blankets the country, keep cool in your kitchen. Impossible? Not when you cook with a microwave oven. The room and the oven itself stay cool during cooking. The microwave energy is absorbed by the food and reflected from the oven walls so the heat in microwave cooking is confined to the food itself.

Casseroles, like Tuna Chinese, that contain evaporated pieces of cooked foods and which require no browning are ideal for microwaving. This hearty dish, made in minutes, provides a hot, satisfying meal after a full day of summertime activities. Celery, green pepper and onion are added in Blue Bonnet Light Tasty Spread until tender. Blue Bonnet Spread adds rich buttery flavor with 25% less fat and calories. The tender vegetables are then combined with an easy mushroom sauce, tuna and crisp chow mein noodles.

This delicious summertime supper can be on the table in less than thirty minutes.

THEN and NOW

THEN: The first electricity from a nuclear reactor was produced by an experimental breeder reactor in 1951. Since then, five other successful breeder plants have been built and operated in the U.S. A several others have been built and operated in Russia, France and England.

NOW: A Liquid Metal Fast Breeder Reactor that can generate electricity and make its own fuel could help to fight inflation, prevent unnecessary unemployment and protect our environment. How soon we get the benefits of this reactor is up to Congress and the Administration. If there is excessive delay in building a demonstration plant, it could take decades before we are able to develop one of commercial size and we can't know when our uranium supplies will become too low to meet our nuclear energy needs.

Klan Says It Has Better Public Image

NICHOLASVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The public has a different image of the Ku Klux Klan these days, say Klan officials, and that is contributing to a rise in Klan membership both in Kentucky and across the nation.

State Klan leaders claim 10,000 members in central Kentucky alone in the white supremacist group, although fewer than 200 people attended a rain-soaked Klan rally Saturday night on a Jessamine County farm. The reason for the large number, they say, is a better public image.

"People think the Klan is the same way it was when it was organized 100 years ago," said John Palmore, Grand Knight Hawk of the Kentucky Klan. "We have been trying to change that image the last couple of years. We're now a fraternal and social order, like the Masons or the Elks."

"We're attracting people from all walks of life," added Robert Shelton, the Klan's Imperial Wizard (national commander). "I think it's on a more solid foundation than it ever has been. Shelton wouldn't disclose membership figures, but he said, "We're big enough to put on our shoes, just not big enough to fit the laces."

"The Klan hasn't changed radically, according to Shelton. He said the group was a victim of smear tactics by the FBI from 1962 through 1974. Those activities, which Shelton said he learned of under the federal Freedom of Information Act, led him to file a $50 million lawsuit against the FBI in a Birmingham federal court eight months ago.

"After I had the opportunity to get into the COINTEL counterintelligence records, I can understand why people thought the way they did," Shelton said.

Some of the things the FBI did, according to Shelton, were forging his signature on documents, telling other Klansmen he had a black ancestor and attempting to link the Klan with the American Nazi Party.

"I have nothing to do with the Nazis," he said. "The Nazis may have had a place in Germany, but not here."

Shelton said the Klan is concerned with the shape of the nation's economy and decisions by the courts and the government. He said he was encouraged by the Supreme Court's ruling in the Bakke case, which decided against reverse discrimination in the matter of an applicant to a California medical school.

"It's a start," Shelton said. "I think you're going to see more and more activity in the courts as a result of federal discrimination."

He said Klan members worked for the passage of the tax-slashing

"Proportion 13" in California, and that members in other states were also helping tax-revolt groups.

"People are tired of paying 40 cents of every dollar to the government in taxes," Shelton said. "And that's what you're paying."

Shelton said the biggest problem facing the Klan in the future is the complacency of the public. "Too many people are content to sit back in their easy chair and sip on a carton of beer," he said.

Kentucky Grand Dragon Sherman Adams, the rally's first speaker, urged Sen. Walter "Dee" Huddleston in the November election. Adams said Huddleston voted in favor of the Panama Canal treaty despite the fact 80 to 90 percent of his constituents opposed it.

Record Convention This Weekend

Morehead will have its first experience hosting a Record Convention July 15 and 16, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Jaycee Clubhouse on US 60 East.

What is a record convention?

"The only way to find out is to go to one," says Larry Stidom of Larry's Rock and-Read shop. "It's not a lot of meetings — it's more like a flea market."

Eleven dealers from five states will be bringing over 50,000 45s, 78s, and LPs from the '50s, '60s and '70s.

"You won't believe the records you'll see at this place," promises Stidom. "All different types!"

And records aren't all. According to Stidom, a variety of music related items will be on sale. Prices will vary from cheap to outrageous and there will be things there he says that people don't realize are in existence.

Special guests are an added feature of the convention. Scheduled at press time were Shad O'Shea, president of Fraternity Records in Cincinnati and recorder of a number of novelty records, including "Collect Call" about

C.B.s, and Mack Owen who was recording at Sun Records at the same time as Johnny Cash. Jerry Lee Lewis and others '50s greats.

There is no admission fee and persons are invited to take music paraphernalia to swap and sell.

County Awarded $1,650 By State

Rowan Fiscal Court has been awarded $1,650 for juvenile emergency shelter care.

Of the total award, $1,485 will come from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) while the remaining $165 will come from local sources.

Announcement of the funding was made by Gov. Julian Carroll. The governor's award came after the project received the recommendation of the Kentucky Crime Commission at its June quarterly meeting held in

Since the Crime Commission meeting, Gov. Carroll has awarded nearly $2½ million in 102 criminal justice projects throughout Kentucky.

PASSERS LOOK OUT for new "No Passing Zone" markers currently being installed by the Department of Transportation. The new yellow pennant-shaped markers are showing up on what seems to be the wrong side of Kentucky highways, but there's no mistake. Officials believe the zone markers are more visible to passing motorists on the left shoulders. The Bureau of Highway is also measuring and remarking all passing zone lines on state roads.

Health Team Working Here For Eight Weeks

For the second year, the Area Health Education System is sponsoring the placement of a team of student health professionals in the Gateway Region.

Based in Morehead, the team is working under the direction of Sister Anne Marie Sallon, administrator of the Home Health Agency. The summer placement program is essentially an interdisciplinary team experience for students from the University of Kentucky.

The team consists of five students, each engaged in the pursuit of some health related degree, and a faculty sponsor. They are: Bob Rowe who is studying medicine, Colleen Jenson, nursing; Anne Lutes, dentistry; Cindy Putschmidt, dietetics; and Robb McGory, pharmacy. Ms. Cheryl Pearson is the group's faculty sponsor.

The purpose of the program is to introduce students to direct clinical experience within their fields and to provide them with a comprehension of the total relationship of their respective disciplines through experiences in the home health program.

The eight-week program consists of two basic aspects — the first, an introduction to the community's health and social service facilities such as the hospital, clinics, the comprehensive care center, department of human resources, the Gateway Development District Program and the health department.

Following the general introduction, each member of the team spends a week working with a professional practitioner in his own field gaining experience and expertise in the delivery of services within his or her field.

The second aspect of the program is a five-week period spent working directly with the Home Health Agency in delivery of services to the disabled or chronically ill patients.

The Area Health Education System expects some spin-off benefit other than the additional service to homebound patients, and heightened experience and skill for the students participating in the program.

By exposing health professionals to the area, its services, and its people, they hope to recruit them as future professionals within the community.

Ten Foot Alligator In Kansas?

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — They're talking about the "one that got away" in Wichita — not a great white shark but a 10-foot alligator reportedly sighted in the murky Little Arkansas River.

Scattered reports of sightings have brought "gatormania" to Wichita as city workers, police helicopters and even a hot-air balloon put a spotlight on a radio station have joined in the search for the elusive reptile.

"Gatorade" is doing a brisk business. One theater arranged a special midnight showing of the movie "Gator" with Burt Reynolds, and a large sign in front of one meat company said "Alligator Steaks Available Soon."

The alligator was first sighted by a parks department employee a week ago near a bridge in the city but random searches Wednesday, Thursday and Friday turned up nothing.

On Friday a veterinarian told police he saw an 18-inch alligator Sunday or Monday in a northeast Wichita creek. Nothing has come of that "sighting" either.

Parks Director Tom Allen has warned parents to keep small children away from possible alligator habitats, but he said the search for the reptile was winding down.

"There's a limit to what you can do when you have no additional sightings," he said.

Indians March To Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reversing the "Longest Walk" when Indians were forced westward by spreading native settlements, a group of modern native Americans are walking from California to a peaceful demonstration in the nation's capital July 15.

Leaders of the Indian march on Washington predicted Tuesday federal and community cooperation and their own spiritual intentions, will prevent a repeat of the destructive occupation of federal offices by the Trail of Broken Treaties Caravan in 1972.

"The nature of the walk is a spiritual one and we hope to be able to continue on that same line of thought," said Jose Barreiro, a spokesman for the group. "We don't anticipate any difficulties."

The earlier caravan began as a journey to Washington for Indian rights. Before it was over, a federal building had been ransacked, and an illegal tepee was built on the lawn in front of the Bureau of Indian Affairs building on Constitution Avenue.

This time a National Park Service permit has been obtained for the erection of 50 teepees near the Washington Monument grounds, and Bill Wahpepah of Oakland, Calif., one of the leaders, says "We are not here to raise hell but to raise heaven."

Barreiro said along the way local officials and community leaders have helped find food and health facilities for the walkers. He said there are "many old people and young people on the walk and we have the support of the Methodist and Catholic churches."

He said the walk from San Francisco eastward reverses the "Longest Walk" — the forced marches Indians made westward as the colonies spread.

The walkers, who have brought a peace pipe with them from California, currently are near Harrisburg, Pa., where they'll be joined by other native American groups from New York and other eastern states.

Any and all teams expecting to participate in the district, men and women's tournaments are required to send a representative to the pairings announcement. If a representative fails to be present they must contact either High or Assistant District 43 commissioner Estill Crisp no later than 8 p.m. the night of the drawings. Failure to have representation at the meeting will result in the forfeiture of the right to participate.

Letter To The Editor

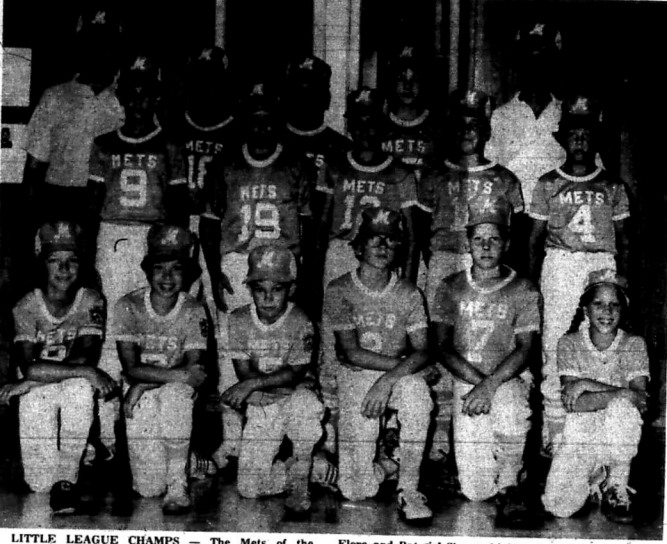

The Editor: I read a story, evidently an editorial, in the Morehead News last week that left me with some concern. The article, entitled "In This Corner," baseball and the Morehead Optimist Club.

While I was impressed with the writer's ability at times to spot problems and suggest solutions, I was also very depressed with the obsession to destructively criticize one of the finest civic organizations in the Morehead area.

Undoubtedly, there are probably problems in the Babe Ruth baseball program. A program the size and scope of Morehead Babe Ruth cannot be run without problems. But, no matter what the problems they do not justify the writer condemning the Morehead Optimist Club with not one, but two deleted oaths.

It was obvious that the writer had experienced some personal difficulty in dealing with the program and had decided to "get out" as the article stated, but it is obvious to any reader that the writer lost objectivity at that point and decided to "get back" at the Optimists through the power of the pen.

An article with constructive suggestions (and there were many in the two column editorial) would have been welcomed, but the heavy criticism of the Optimists was unwarranted. The effect was like criticizing Santa Clause because of the things he DIDN'T do at Christmas. I also found myself wishing that the writer had stayed with the program and helped to correct it from the inside rather than carry obvious anger to the perimeter and condemn so heavily.

LITTLE LEAGUE CHAMPS - The Mets of the Morehead Little League won the regular season championship this season with a 16-1 record. Middle row: Ty Fannin, Jim Livingood, Byron Boody, Mike Serey and Roy Roberson. Back row: Coach Roy Roberson, Randy Thompson, Tom Serey, Robbie Barker and Coach Larry Fannin. Bear Bryant Doesn't Believe In Hanging Out Tides' Wash

ATLANTA (UPI) - Bear Bryant has mellowed considerably over the years, but the Alabama football coach still gets riled whenever anyone contends that the public is entitled to a carte blanche behind-the-scenes peek at the Crimson Tide.

Bryant, who will be 65 years old and in his 23rd season as head college coach this fall, doesn't believe in hanging the family wash out on the line.

He feels his players are entitled to privacy in their personal problems and he's ready to take on anyone he feels is invading that privacy.

"Anything said between me and my staff or my squad is private, confidential," said Bryant who has won more football games (273) than any other living college coach. "It's not the public's business."

Bryant and Nebraska Athletic Director Bob Devaney were in Atlanta this week to talk to the nation's college sports information directors about how to handle possibly unfavorable publicity.

It is coincidental that Alabama and Nebraska meet in Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 2 in the first nationally televised game of the 1978 college season.

Even after nearly 15 years Bryant refused to go into the details surrounding his suspension of Joe Namath at the tailend of the 1963 season.

"You'll never hear anything from me about Joe Namath. That isn't favorable," said Bryant. "I'll tell you this, though. What Joe was suspended for in 1963, we now have just about every week."

"Times have changed. Then, I felt that if we didn't do something pretty drastic, our team would go down. Joe took it very well. You'll recall he came back the following season and led us to the national championship."

Devaney said that coaches better be on solid ground these days when they suspend a player, "especially a star because he might get a lawyer and bring suit contending his chances for a professional career is being jeopardized."

Bryant and Devaney agreed college athletic officials should not attempt to deceive the public, but they said they saw nothing wrong in concealing pregame information about their teams, especially information which, in their opinion, might help their opponents.

"Don't publicize things like injuries to key players that aren't asked about," said Devaney. "But when such things are found out, don't lie about them."

Bryant says he doesn't want his assistants or his players giving out any pregame information. "I don't want anyone talking about any of our people except me."

Some coaches indicate they are afraid that opponents might use controversial pregame statements to fire up their teams but neither Bryant nor Devaney, who retired from coaching five years ago, could recall any such incidents which they felt were responsible for their losing a football game.

"I think maybe I've said things that hurt us more than what players said," said Bryant.

The sports information directors wanted advice from Bryant and Devaney on what they should do when incidents occur which are likely to cause unfavorable publicity.

"First find out the real facts," said Bryant. "Then decide what you can do to put your best foot forward. The team comes first - then try to help the people involved. I talk it over with my staff and we decide what we would like to keep out of the newspapers."

"I may not answer questions, but I'm not going to lie to anybody."

Devaney said schools should not attempt to cover up situations which involve disciplinary action because "the press is going to dig in."

CORNETT COMING THROUGH - In what little baseball action there was last week, Morehead Post 126's Ronnie Cornett does his job in breaking up a potential double play. Cornett forces the South Lexington shortstop into the air making it impossible, or better yet improbable, for a throw to first. The action took place in the first game against the reigning Connie Mack champions. (Staff Photo)

Kentucky Fishing Report

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

Department of Fish and Wildlife

FRANKFORT, KY. — July 10 — While recent hot weather has cooled the fishing in Kentucky, good angling for black bass, bluegill and trout can be found in some locations. The lake-by-lake rundown, as compiled by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources:

Cumberland: Bluegill good on the upper lake off shallow banks; black bass fair at night on the lower lake on artificial nightcrawlers off points and over drop-offs; white bass fair on plunker and fly combination, spinners and spoons in jumps with some black bass being taken; in tailwaters, trout good with some limits, crappie, sauger and white bass fair to good; clear to murky to muddy, stable, 12 feet below the timberline and 8³.

Barren: White bass fair early and late on plunker and fly combination, spinners and spoons in the jumps and on the upper lake, slow to fair at night on minnow off deep banks; black bass fair at night on the lower lake on artificial nightcrawlers off points and over drop-offs; bluegill fair on the upper lake off shallow banks; in tailwaters, trout good; clear to murky, stable, one foot above pool and 8³.

Nolin: Black bass good at night on artificial nightcrawlers off points and over drop-offs; white bass fair early and late on plunker and fly combination, spinners and spoons in the jumps; in tailwaters, trout good; clear, stable; six inches below pool and 8².

Kentucky: Catfish fair to good drifting minnows over river channels and still fishing worms and shrimp off rip rap; white bass fair at night around piers; in tailwaters, catfish good, white bass fair; clear to murky, stable at pool and 8⁵.

Barkley: Black bass fair on artificial nightcrawlers and crank baits off rocky points; bluegill fair along buck brush in inlets and bays; in tailwaters, catfish good, white bass slow; clear, stable at pool and 8⁵.

Dale Hollow: White bass fair at night off deep banks and early and late on plunker and fly combination in the jumps; black bass slow at night on artificial nightcrawlers off points and deep banks; clear, stable, one foot below pool and 7¹.

Rough River: Bluegill fair on toe south fork off deep banks; black bass slow early and late on artificial nightcrawlers off points and over drop-offs; in tailwaters, trout slow; clear, stable at pool and 8⁵.

Fishtrap: Crappie fair early and late around stick ups; in tailwaters, catfish slow; clear, stable at pool and 8⁴.

Dewey: Crappie fair early and late over submerged cover and around stick ups; clear, stable at pool and 8².

Grayson: Black bass slow on artificial nightcrawlers and crank baits in inlets and bays; bluegill slow in inlets and bays; in tailwaters, trout fair to good; clear, stable at pool and 8⁰.

Herrington: Black bass slow casting artificial nightcrawlers at night and still fishing soft crawfish during the day off points; bluegill slow still and drift fishing crickets off deep banks; clear, stable at pool and 8⁴.

Buckhorn: Bluegill fair on flyrod poppers and by still fishing worms and crickets in inlets and bays; catfish slow at night still fishing cut bait off shallow points; in tailwaters, catfish and trout slow; clear, stable at pool and 8².

I'd imagine that if someone asked Kentucky's fishermen the question, "what's the first fish you ever caught?" the overwhelming answer would be bluegill. Equally at home in the smallest farm pond or the largest man-made lake, this scrappy little fighter is usually willing to oblige any youngster with a cane pole and a can of worms.

But like its close relative, the largemouth bass, the bluegill can at times be a temperamental cuss. This is particularly true of the larger bluegill — a species this low on the food chain doesn't make it to bragging size by being stupid.

So don't dismiss this fish as fit game only for kids and beginners. Catching "bull" bluegill can be a real challenge, requiring considerable angling skill and knowledge of the fish's habits.

This is especially true for the fisherman who uses artificial lures on light tackle. Fly fishing is a popular method of taking bluegill, but some fishermen make the mistake of limiting their selection of lures to surface poppers only. Most of the time, large bluegill will be in deeper water where a sinking fly fished slowly near the bottom is required. On light spinning tackle, small do-jigs are also effective.

Bluegill fishermen around Kentucky bushes develop specialized techniques for taking bluegill. At Dale Hollow, knowledgeable bluegill fishermen concentrate their efforts around weed beds, either drifting over them or still fishing near the edge of the weeds.

At lakes with steep banks, such as Cumberland and Herrington, a favorite technique is drift fishing along the rock walls, using either crickets, horsed worm, or catapa worms. Once the fisherman locate a school of bluegill, they fish the area thoroughly. But if the first few fish caught are small ones, experienced fishermen will move on to another location, since they know that similar-sized bluegill congregate together and that the larger fish are somewhere else.

In Western Kentucky, particularly at Kentucky Lake, bluegill fishermen watch for mayfly hatches. As these insects hatch, they land on trees and bushes, using either crickets, bluegill (and several other species as well) gather under this overhanging shrubbery waiting for an easy meal to drop into the water.

Sometimes fishermen encourage this to happen by casting a practice plug or a lure with the hooks removed into the bushes, then giving it a hearty shake to dislodge the mayflies. They then quickly cast (usually with a fly rod) into the feeding spree that results.

Several tailwater areas can also be productive bluegill fishing areas. There are some fine fish caught every year below Barkley dam, and the Barren and Rough River tailwaters are also good spots.

Company Counts
Every town has that one special girl - she doesn't care for a man's company unless he owns it.

Ashland Oil To Sell Canada Co.

VANCOUVER, B.C. UPI - Ashland Oil, Inc. of Kentucky will sell its 83 percent interest in Ashland Oil Canada, Ltd. to Kaiser Resources Ltd. of Vancouver, for about $470 million.
In a joint statement, the companies said Thursday the U.S. firm would transfer its 11 million shares in Ashland Oil Canada to Kaiser for $32.50 Canadian per share.
Kaiser also moved to make an offer to purchase the remaining common shares of Ashland Canada at an equivalent price.
Edgar F. Kaiser, Jr., president and chief executive officer of Kaiser Resources, said Ashland Canada would be operated by its current management headquartered in Calgary, Alta.

The deal is subject to Canadian government approval under the Foreign Investment Review Act and approval of both firms' boards of directors.

Ashland Canada is primarily involved in oil and natural gas exploration and production, and claims proven reserves of 97 million barrels of oil and 495 billion cubic feet of gas, as well as extensive land holdings in British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Kaiser Resources operates Canada's largest coal mine at Sparwood, B.C., and a bulkloading port facility at Roberts Bank, near Vancouver.

PUBLISHER'S OPINION...

The comments in this column are those of the Publisher and not those of either the officers or the members of the Board of Directors of Morehead News, Inc. Responses should be made directly to the Publisher.

THE FIRST four-lane highway in Kentucky was between Lexington and Versailles, built in the mid-50's during the first administration of Gov. A.B. (Happy) Chandler.

Happy's critics said the Governor built the concrete four-lane so he could communicate between his home and Lexington, particularly to witness UK athletic contests. They dubbed it "Chandler's Channel".

Now, 40 years later, there are few places in the Commonwealth that are more than 30 miles distant from a four-lane. Offhand, we would say that Maysville is one of the furthest, being about 40 miles from Interstate 64 at Morehead.

We hear from a usually reliable source that Kentucky's first four-lane road (U.S. 60 from Lexington to Versailles) has more wrecks than any other travel artery in the state. It will be almost completely rebuilt with little of the present road being used as a base. . . and the Keeneland race track will relinquish some of its beautiful and historic land so that the ever-growing Lexington airport can extend its runways.

Writing of the continuing improvements and expansion of the Lexington airport which serves our area, we walked the entire length of the airport at Dallas. It must have been two miles and we'll never attempt that again.

Airports keep getting farther and farther out. Pretty soon we won't need airplanes. We can carry our bags down the corridors between cities.

THE MAJOR circulation problem for large daily newspapers is that just about all the major news stories are bad. People are depressed about mounting crime, devaluation of the dollar, debts, mounting trade deficits, the energy crisis, taxes, welfare. . . oh, we could go on and on. Never has there been so much unrest and uncertainty in the United States and no one can come up with a plan or solution.

One billion seconds ago, the first atomic bomb had not yet been exploded. One billion minutes ago, Christ was still on earth. One billion hours ago, men were still living in caves. Yet one billion dollars ago, in terms of government spending, was yesterday.

The above computations appeared in the FDIC News which is published by employees of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. People have lost sight of how much a billion really is.

"YOU SAY this woman shot her husband with this pistol and at close range?" asked the coroner of the eye witness to the tragedy.

"Yes sir."

"Are there any powder marks on his body?"

"That's why she shot him."

THERE MAY be some fact sprinkled among the fiction of the werewolves of folklore.

The tales tell of werewolves on rampages during the full moon. Humans are supposed to grow excess hair and canine teeth and suck blood from the necks of the victims. Scientists discount this. But more recent and factual surveys prove that . . .

A person's enzymes and many of his hormones are more active during the full moon.

The heart rate may be at its peak. People are generally in a more excited state when the moon is full. The effects the moon has on the Earth's gravitational and electromagnetic fields are responsible for the physiological changes.

The murder rate increases as much as 50 percent when the moon is full; and it is conclusive that arson increases 100 percent in New York City.

A full moon affects a variety of medical conditions and disease states, including angina pectoris and chest pains related to artery disease.

Over 80 percent of all hemorrhages reach a crisis point during a full moon.

Cardiovascular crises - strokes - occur more frequently at full moon.

Birth records show that more children are born when the moon is full, according to weather bureau records.

The worst time to hold an important conference, or make a policy decision, is in February during the full moon.

Many physicians, knowing the full moon is the time of crisis, can have patients take a placebo. An ulcer patient, for example, can watch his lifestyle more carefully and have medication available.

hormones were more active; and our heart beat was at its peak and we were in an excited state.

It is suggested that if a man seeking the love of a girlfriend, or a girl with her sights set on a certain man, that they turn on all their charms when the moon is full. Our calendar shows the moon will be full on August 18.

MOREHEAD State University has around 7,500 students for the fall and spring semesters. . . and most own an automobile.

We conjecture what the air pollution scale is in our community around eight o'clock in the morning and 10:00 in the evening from the traffic from the University, and also among town-people, is heaven's.

It is noted that residents along the Ohio River are facing a major air quality crisis because of the many coal-fired electric generating plants. But in most fast-growth places, like Morehead, the primary environmental problem is exhaust from auto oils and trucks.

IN OUR thinking everybody was the "dumper" in the creation 10 years ago of the Moxey Flat at Morehead as a "joking site for nuclear contaminated waste, with the exception of the Nuclear Engineering Company.

Nuclear engineering made money from the federal government. . . then when the 250 acre site was closed the Commonwealth of Kentucky paid them (in May) $1.25 million dollars for the property. "permanently closes the site. No more wastes will be buried at Moxey Flats. . . and the state will hereafter fully monitor any danger."

Last week James N. Neel, Jr., President of Nuclear Engineering Company, said the closure of Moxey Flats by the state resulted more from adverse public opinion rather than scientific evidence. He added that Nuclear Engineering hopes to convince the state and the public that Moxey Flats is safe and should again be placed in operation by his company. (He didn't mention returning the $1.25 million the Commonwealth paid his company.)

We do know that 4.5 million cubic of nuclear wastes have been buried (cover over trenches) at Moxey Flats; and if there is ever an attempt to reopen the site the folks who live along Ky. 32 in north Rowan County and south Fleming County will bring out their guns, in protest.

It is also conclusive that the nuclear wastes already buried at Moxey Flats will remain radioactive for hundreds of years.

What we don't understand is why the State paid $1.25 million in order to monitor Moxey Flats. . . and in the sales agreement granted NECO first-refusal rights to operate the site again if it is determined safe to do so.

FOUR carpenters who played Sousaphones formed a musical group. After a few successful appearances, they decided they needed a catchy name. They called themselves: "The TuBe4's."

THE YOUNG couple were canoeing in the middle of the lake when a sudden squall hit.

Terrified at the integrity of the wind and rain the boy started to pray. "Oh Lord, save me and I'll give up smoking. . . I'll give up drinking. . . I'll give up . . ."

At this moment the young lady yelled: "Don't give up anything else. I think the storm's over."

A POLICEMAN coming home late undressed in the dark and prepared to slip into bed. His wife said: "John, would you mind going down to the drug store and getting me a headache powder? My head's splitting."

John fumbled on his clothes in the dark and went to the drug store. The drugstore clerk said to him and said: "Aren't you Officer Jones?"

Jones nodded.

"Well, then," asked the druggist, "what are you doing in that fireman's uniform?"

THE B.A. DEGREE indicates that the student has mastered the first two letters of the alphabet - backwards.

WE THOUGHT the national and states movement was toward bird-dogging political contributions until reading that the Kentucky Registry of Elections is exploring the possibility of Kentuckians making political contributions with credit cards.

A HUSBAND and wife were dining out. Seated across the room from them was a glamorous looking woman they both knew. The husband, casting adoring glances in her direction, turned to his wife and said: "Isn't it remarkable how Helen keeps her age?"

"It is," replied the wife. "She hasn't changed it 10 years."

WHEN the Publisher was a lad, riddles were in vogue.

We remember this one: "First it is white; then green; then red; and finally black all over. What is it?"

Most of you senior citizen readers know the answer: blackberries - from the bloom until picking time.

It is noted that some of the berries in Rowan County are in the red stage this week; and in about two weeks they'll be ready for harvest.

Our parents made all the children pick blackberries. Mother canned most of what we picked for eating in the winter. We hated to pick blackberries because it took all day to fill our eight quart bucket.

And, those darn chiggers. Once we were in this column that the chigger, based on weight, was the strongest animal on earth. . . it would take a trillion chiggers to weigh a pound. . . and if man was as strong, per pound, he could knock over a mountain with a flick of his little finger.

After the column appeared in print, the late Dr. Everett Blair called. He told us that chiggers don't bite human beings. . . what they do is crawl or burrow in the pores of the skin and this is what caused all the itching and soresness.

No dessert is tastier than blackberry cobbler. But even today it is one of our neighbors brings the Publisher a helping of their home-made and delicious blackberry cobbler we can't help but think of them darn chiggers we suffered with as a boy all during blackberry picking season.

HOME GROWN tomato time is almost here. We're not exactly on welfare, but you kin considerate beautiful folks who bring the author of this column vine ripened tomatoes each summer will surely go to Heaven.

No fruit or vegetable was ever grown, in our estimation, that equals a red ripe, freshly picked from the garden tomato.

FARMERS in this area have, and are harvesting probably the biggest corn crop in history.

Extension Agent Adrian Razor told us last year that the practice of baling hay has almost ceased because labor costs are only a fraction when it is gathered by machinery into those big round rolls.

Hay is so plentiful we're concerned that the government will find some way to put a tax on it.

REMEMBER Waite Hoyt, the baseball hall of famer who won 237 major league games and broadcast the Cincinnati Reds games on radio for 30 years.

Waite, at age 78, is in critical condition suffering from angina pectoris. His condition is so bad that doctors don't even want him watching a baseball game on TV because the slightest excitement gives him chest pains.

Waite has written a "farewell letter" to all Reds fans. Reading it in Cincinnati newspapers we couldn't halt some tear drops.

THE PUBLISHER has discovered the most popular players at the bridge club and the Morehead Duplicate Bridge Club are the ones who always lose.

FORMER President Richard M. Nixon made his first public appearance since advocating at Hyden, Ky. in Leslie County Sunday, July 2, to dedicate a recreation complex erected by federal funds and named for him. The event had been highly publicized. Reporters estimated the crowd at 6,000.

The next day (Monday, July 3) was food stamp day. Reporters estimated the crowd at Hyden, the county seat, that day at almost 6,000 as long lines formed at the post office to receive their free food bounty.

A Morehead merchant told us that he did much business the first week of each month, as in the other more than three weeks. Food stamps and government checks, including welfare, social security and pensions are delivered around the first of the month. . . and talk about a depression if all of these were cut off!

RUSSELL McCURE, long a Morehead resident, resigned last week as Kentucky Commissioner of Finance, a powerful position, to become a Special Assistant to Gov. Julian Carroll.

Several folks have asked us what Russ will do in his designated role of bird-dogging for the Governor.

We told them: "It means that when Russell McCure speaks, or makes a statement, it is the same thing as Gov. Carroll saying or doing the same thing." We appended that McCure wouldn't take any stand until he had personally cleared it with Julian.

Clure and the Governor.

IN HIS speech at Hyden, Richard Nixon said, "the silent majority holds the future."

He's right about that. . . and the oppressed and depressed majority show some semblance of awakening. They, and only they, can save this great nation.

RALPH MUSSMAN, former Moreheadian and now City Manager of Newport, is raising holy-hell over the theft of 3,000 feet of fire hose. Catching and prosecuting the thieves is his number one priority. Crime is really spreading out because who would want over a half-mile of big fire hose? Maybe the thieves plan on "fencing" it to some other municipality.

ORCHIDS to every motorist and State Police in this area. Rowan and surrounding counties didn't have a highway fatality over the long Fourth of July holiday.

LOOK for class action law suits demanding that one out of every three coal miners be a female. Equal rights groups have already employed attorneys to file the suits in federal courts.

IN MAY, 1928 Adron Doran enrolled as a Freshman at Freed-Hardeman College in Henderson, Tenn.

In May, 1978, after 50 years almost to the day, Dr. Doran, who retired in 1976 after serving as President of Morehead State University for over 22 years, was elected President of the Freed-Hardeman College Alumni Association.

Dr. Doran, active in good health, and full of energy has already started a Heritage and Horizons Campaign at the Tennessee College. . . and a program to actively engage every Freed-Hardeman graduate in the alumni association.

THE FIRST name in the 1976 Morehead telephone directory is AA-AA-A. The last name in the directory is Jane Zopf.

We can remember when the first listing was John Adams, long Chief of Police; and the last name was Robert Yount, who operated a hardware store on Main Street.

The new directory does not have a listing under X.

YOU'RE a real old timer if you can remember when the only street lights in Morehead were on Main and Railroad (now First) streets. They were fueled with kerosene, and the late Noah Kennard was employed by the City for $8 a month as lamp-lighter and lamp putter-outer. Mr. Kennard was selected by Council over about 25 other applicants for the job.

A YOUNG woman who was thinking of becoming a Catholic, asked a recent convert, "How being a Catholic cut down on your sinning?"

"No," was the reply, "but it makes it more exciting."

LITTLE girl's essay on parents. "The trouble with parents is that they are so old when we get them, it's hard to change their habits."

HE who ignores the collection plate shouldn't complain when the church gets hot.

Appalachian Development Center Has First Project

Morehead State University's newest regional service is the employability skills project, designed to help Kentuckians choose, find, get and keep a job of their choice.

This is the first program of MSU's Appalachian Development Center.

"Our students like using the material because of its diversity and practical application to everyday situations," said instructor Jay Freedland.

"For example, they learn how to fill out a job application and best prepare themselves for a job interview," she added.

Video-taped sessions are also used to show students the progress they've made and how to prepare for a job interview or correctly fill out an application.

The program involves a teaching process that begins with "who am I and where do I go," and continues through "keeping my job-habits that help."

The classes are composed of 10-25 persons and meet twice weekly. The total instruction requires about 120 hours, but each unit can be offered separately as needed by a special group.

"Our goal is to make our people more competitive in today's job market," said Gary Wilson, project coordinator and one of three instructors.

Essentially, the program teaches individuals to use various sources of job information, plan personal and vocational goals, effectively present themselves to prospective employers and develop good work habits. Since its beginning last fall under a grant from the U.S. Office of Education, the employability skills project has enrolled more than 170 students at 10 locations including Morehead, Mt. Sterling, Ashland, Lexington, Louisville and Beattyville.

"Our preliminary findings indicate that 97 percent of the persons enrolled feel they benefited from the instruction and that they would recommend the program to others," said Mrs. Freedland.

The ancient Peruvians believed they could catch the sun by stretching a net between two towers.

New Moon Discovered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Naval observatory astronomers Friday reported the discovery of a moon around the planet Pluto, indicating the most distant planet from the sun is much smaller and lighter than previously believed.

James Christy, who first saw the satellite as a blurry knob on a picture of Pluto, has tentatively named it Charon after the ferryman of Greek mythology who transported souls of the dead across the river Styx to Hades, which was governed by the god Pluto.

The find, confirmed by observations from Chile, follows radiation studies two years ago suggesting Pluto is at least blanketed by frozen methane and is smaller than believed.

"Pluto has always been a very weird and sort of enigmatic planet and it's nice to be able to pin it down a little bit," said Dr. Robert Harrington of the Naval Observatory.

Christy realized on June 22 he might be seeing the first known moon of Pluto while examining photographic plates of the planet taken in April and May with the observatory's 61-inch telescope at Flagstaff, Ariz. He noted a blurred elongation that could be explained by a satellite close to the planet.

He then examined plates of Pluto taken in 1965 and 1970 and saw the same phenomenon, with the elongation in different areas. If it was a satellite, Harrington calculated it was circling Pluto every six days.

"The real clincher was the next morning when some of the plates of 1970 showed it appearing on opposite edges of Pluto, north and south again, in a period of three days which indicated a real period of revolution of six days," Christy said in an interview.

Pluto, the ninth planet out from the sun, is 2.8 billion miles from the Earth and 59 times farther from the sun than Earth. Pluto itself is so faint it was not detected until 1930.

The satellite is 12,000 miles from Pluto — 20 times closer than our moon is to Earth. The new satellite cannot be seen with the naked eye, but with the largest telescopes, it is detectable only with photographic observations.

THE NEW HECK'S BUILDING is on the right and the new Thompson's IGA is on the left on North Mayville Road. Mr. Sterling, at the I-64 interchange. "We expect to be finished sometime during early September," Bill Leake, Construction Manager for the developer, E.M. Singer said. Leake said since the parking lot will have entrances on both U.S. 60 and the new bypass, the stores can open whether or not the bypass is finished.

Bad Winters Delay Road Repair

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Successive bad winters the last two years are causing delays by state highway officials in their attempts to complete repairing damage from the inclement weather.

Kentucky highway officials indicated Friday they are not sure when repairs will be completed on roads damaged by last winter's severe weather.

The record snowfalls that dumped up to 50 inches on parts of Kentucky last winter caused numerous potholes and weakened stretches of pavement on many state roads.

That damage — and the effects of similar weather a year ago — has made it hard for the highway department to catch up with repairs, according to A.R. Romine, assistant state highway engineer for operations, and assistant maintenance director Max Cook.

"I can't give you a date when the work will be finished," Romine said in an interview Friday. "There's not enough time or money to completely repair damage from the last two winters. But we try to get the major roads completed."

Cook indicated the state has done most of the major repair work on state maintained highways and roads, including the bothersome potholes that plague motorists each spring. "We have more or less caught up with the worst of it," Cook added. "Our winter potholes are all just about done."

But there's still a lot of strip patching operations going on."

Much of the work on state roads is done by county road crews, according to Cook.

"Most of the winter potholes were filled by county maintenance crews," he explained. "They use state funds for the state-maintained roads, and they report their work to the county highway districts."

Road damage caused by the winter of 1976-77 cost the state more than $30 million to repair. Neither of the two highway officials could give an approximate cost for this year's repairs, but with the cost of labor and materials going up, it is estimated the total bill will be higher.

"That hasn't been calculated yet," Cook said.

The state will be receiving some federal assistance to help pay for the cost of repairing the roads from the winter's damage as part of a government program adopted during the height of last winter's problems.

Asbury said he was not sure when repair on the worst damage would be completed, although he noted a $10 million resurfacing project wasn't due to be bid until July 25.

Last year, due to some construction delays and the problems with repairing so many roads, many projects were not completed until mid to late summer and some had to be delayed until the fall, according to officials.

Community Education Classes Have Vacancies

Several classes have already started through the Morehead State-Rowan County Community Education Program for the summer. The following courses and activities still need interested participants:

• Square Dance — being taught in the air conditioned cafeteria at Rowan County High School on Thursday at 7 p.m.

• Beginning Typing — instruction will be available for the next five consecutive Monday from 5:30 - 7:30 p.m. This course could improve employability skills.

• Essentials of Chemical Dependencies — offering valuable information to both adults and teens dealing with drug and alcohol education and will meet in the Kentucky Utilities conference room each Monday from 6 to 8 p.m.

• Macrame — instruction is available on Wednesdays from 7:30 - 9 p.m. at Rowan County High School. This class is full at this time, but if there is enough people who are interested another class will be started.

• Wilderness Survival — offers important and enjoyable instruction for those who are interested in learning how to cope in natural surroundings without modern day conveniences. The course meets each Monday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Women's Volleyball — available at Clearfield Elementary School each Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m., and at the Elliottville Elementary School from 8 to 8 p.m.

Those who have signed up for courses that have not yet started and have enough interested participants will be notified by telephone concerning time and date. To register for any of the summer courses or for additional information, call 784-8522.

Correction

In last week's issue, the names of two persons were inadvertently transposed in an automobile accident story. Ralphie Swin, 17, Rt. 1, was backing from a parking area on Daniels Avenue and Michael R. Williams, West Sun Street, was driving toward US 60 on the Avenue at the time of their collision.

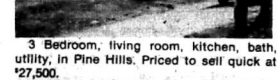

In the same story, Gladys Ferrel, 27, Rt. 4, reportedly had been treated and released at St. Claire after an accident. After she was treated at St. Claire, she was transferred to UK Medical Center where her condition is listed as stable.

The News regrets the errors.

Artifacts Discovered In Virginia

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A treasure house of almost perfectly preserved artifacts in the ruins of a Virginia settlement are giving archeologists a vivid picture of a successful Trojan-fort-style town of Indian attack 356 years ago.

Ivor Noel Hume, resident archeologist at Colonial Williamsburg, said in a report released Tuesday, archeologists digging on a plantation a few miles away have found the skeleton of a man apparently struck from behind during the raid on Good Friday, 1622.

The victim, his skull smashed by a blow from the rear, was found in mid-June in a hastily dug grave outside a fort protecting the lost town, Wolfstenholme Towne.

"Unlike Jamestown, we're seeing a settlement that has been undisturbed since earliest colonial times," Hume said.

Tom Ginter, Lorene Lewis, Jennie Gilmore, Mary Henley, Teresa Conway, Edna Molton, Dorothy Goodman and baby, Stephanie Caudill.

July 8 - Robert Whisman, Tennessee Greene, Pearl McClain, Russell Gulley, Vincent Wyatt, Arlie Suttles, Elmer Fultz, Ronnie Stewart, Gregory Wagh, Ollie Hogge, Mark White, April Hagerman, Edna Crouch, Brenda Winkleman, Ozella Roberts, Grace Skaggs, Phyllis Davenport.

July 9 - Vicky Binion, Diane Dailey, Charlene Derrickson, Phillip Roar, Joyce Crouch and baby.

"The Indians wiped it out and nobody really resettled the site, so in effect it's been preserved as if in a time capsule."

"The artifacts we're finding, the layout of the fort, all these things are giving us an extraordinary view of those people who settled Virginia almost at the very beginning."

Flecks of wind-blown ash and possibly shrapnel of burned clay from daub walls found at the site support the theory that settlers held out as long as possible on that March 22, and then fled to the fort with Indians burning and looting the houses, the statement said.

Hume said in a telephone interview that the discovery is "a big breakthrough for us." He said it began when a corner of the fort was found three years ago, and "is very important to Virginia history."

All the evidence indicates the attack was part of one of the best planned and coordinated Indian attacks ever carried out in the colonies.

"So confident were the colonists at Wolfstenholme Towne that they had invited several Indians to join them, and all were eating and socializing inside the enclosures and dwellings when the guests struck," said the National Geographic Society, which supported the research.

"All through Virginia, at communities and houses from present-day Richmond through the Tidewater area, the same ruse worked on the grisly morning."

The geographic society said the plan was "masterminded by Chief Opechancanough."

Digging in the fort area has produced a number of surprising artifacts, including a full helmet from a suit of armor complete with cheek pieces and visor. Beneath it was an entire back-plate, probably from cavalry armor.

Other military hardware unearthed in the fort included five firing mechanisms from matchlock muskets, several pewter lids from the powder containers for a musketeer's bandolier, and 140 bullets.

Hume said fragments of glass bottles, cooking pots and dishes and an elaborate iron firebrake used to protect a fireplace hearth left the impression that a "man of consequence" lived within the fort.

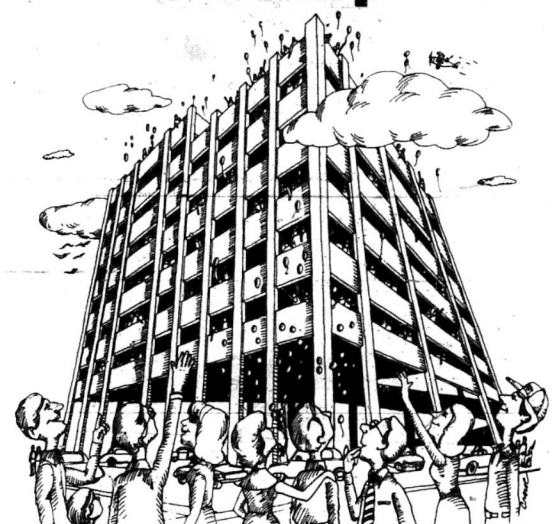

Hume believes that man was William Harwood, who governed a 31-square mile tract of land known as Martin's Hundred.

KY. 519 Collision Takes Morgan Life

WEST LIBERTY — A 20-year-old Morgan County resident was killed Thursday when the car he was driving collided head-on with a truck. The accident occurred around 3:15 p.m., 9.3 miles north of West Liberty on KY 519.

Pronounced dead on arrival at the Morgan County Appalachian Regional Hospital was Larry Clay Collins of Blaze.

According to reports, the Collins vehicle, a 1977 Oldsmobile, and a 1974 GMC pickup truck, owned by Kenmore Stone Company, struck head-on around a sharp curve along KY 519 near Patrick's Grocery. No charges have been filed in connection with the incident.

The driver of the second vehicle, Terry Reynolds, 33, of 127 West Main Street, Morehead, was taken to St. Claire Medical Center where he was treated and released.

Seventeen-year-old Ricky Whitt of West Liberty was a passenger in the Collins' car but was reportedly uninjured.

Collins, a 1977 graduate of Morgan County High School, was a member of the varsity basketball and baseball teams at Morgan County. He was the son of Roger Collins of Collins and May Mining Company, and Oleta McKenzie Collins. He is also survived by two brothers.

According to the Kentucky State Police it's the 11th fatality in the Post 8 area this year, the second on KY 519 in the same proximity.

Stolen Truck Found, Convicts Still Missing

FLEMINGSBURG — State police have found a 1978 pick-up truck that is reportedly one of several items stolen by two escaped convicts who were thought to be hiding in this area.

Dispatcher Bill Boyd of the KSP said the four-wheel drive vehicle was recovered Tuesday, July 4 in Wolfe County near Campton, possibly indicating the two have left the Fleming area.

Suspected in the thefts are Elwood White, 32, and Clarence Tester, in his 20's, who allegedly escaped in March from Carlisle facilities where they were held on burglary charges.

Both were nearly captured June 23 when sources said Deputy Jerel Purecell spotted the 1968 white Pontiac station wagon that was associated with them.

A road block was set, but the car broke through nearby hitting Sheriff G.W. White. After a chase, police found the vehicle minus its occupants.

"We're still looking for them," said Sheriff White last week-end.

William C. Croy, Jr.

CHAPTER LXIX

PREPARATION

In high school I was five feet two, one hundred ten pounds, too small to make the first team in any sport. I went out for a speech contest; I lost. In college I was waiting on tables; a cup of cream toppled from the saucer of a cup of coffee and rolled down a customer's back. During a vacation, while working at a bank, I turned a corner too quickly with a ledger tray; the sheets scattered all over the floor. In an early business enterprise, the operation of a miniature golf course, I lost my investment. During my first year in the practice of law I grossed about six hundred dollars and paid my secretary more than that. At a Rotary Club luncheon, after giving the speaker a flowery introduction, I forgot his name. I lost over one thousand dollars on the first prefabricated house that I built for sale. I lost countless lawsuits that I should have won. The list in incomplete. If I should include all of my failures, you would be convinced that I am neither a happy nor a successful man, but that is not necessarily so. You see, there is no greater guide to success than the lessons taught by our own mistakes.

After two years in our high school, during which I was a candidate for the debating team, I transferred to Sewanee Military Academy. When I came home for Christmas, a former teacher asked me whether or not I had gone out for the debating team at Sewanee. I responded, "No; they don't have a team there." "Why not start one?" he asked. "Me? After my flubbing it here, I could only be a failure there." "You never fail," he replied, "as long as the experience that you have teaches you something." I returned to Sewanee, persuaded the headmaster to organize a debating team, and succeeded in being one of its regulars. My freshman year in college taught me a lot of what I needed to know about myself. Many of my classmates had had a year of preparatory school. Compared to them, I was not ready for college. I had to make up by effort what I lacked in training and in ability. I did! By the sweat of my brow I graduated with honors in my chosen subject.

After many disappointing experiences in early jobs, I learned to take it easy — not to spill the cream — to be careful, to proceed slowly, to avoid anxiety. I discovered the importance of analyzing the market and of estimating the cost of production before undertaking any new business enterprise. I applied hindsight to discover why I had lost each lawsuit so that the same thing might not happen again.

What have I learned from these bitter experiences? First, never be discouraged. Disaster can strengthen you if you will not let it defeat you. The only thing that you cannot afford to fail is the very last time that you try. An inventor may fail nine hundred ninety-nine times, but if he succeeds on his thousandth effort, he wins.

Are these some things true of everyone? I rather think so. Frank Woolworth opened his Great Five Cent Store in 1878. In Yaleda, but Woolworth was certain that his idea was sound. He explored the possible causes for his failure and came up with the answer that it might be the location. He tried again in Lancaster, Pennsylvania. Today, almost anywhere in the country, you can walk into a Woolworth five and ten cent store.

Marion Anderson gave her first concert at Town Hall. She was panned by the critics and for over a year wallowed in self-pity. Her mother said, "Grace must come before greatness." Perhaps that advice explains her eventual overwhelming success.

A newspaper clipping deals with Lincoln's life:

- Failed in business '31.
- Defeated for Legislature '32
- Again failed in business '33.
- Elected to Legislature '34.
- Sweetheart died '35
- Had nervous breakdown '36.
- Defeated for Speaker '38.
- Defeated for Elector '40'
- Defeated for Congress '43
- Defeated for Congress '46.
- Defeated for Congress '48
- Defeated for Senate '55
- Defeated for Vice-President '60
- Defeated for Senate '58.
- Elected President '60.

Quite often failures lead to greatness. In 1954, with a deformed arm, Ed Furgol became the national open golf champion. Glen Cunningham, when a child, burned his eyes severely, but by determination became the world's greatest miler. Tenley Albright, after suffering polio, became the Olympic figure skating champion. Ben Hogan, in spite of an automobile wreck that almost claimed his life, returned to fame as a golfer. Peter Gray, in 1945, played seventy-seven games in the outfield for the Saint Louis Browns. He had one arm.

What is the secret of success? Primarily, it is opportunity plus preparation. You never have to worry about the opportunities. God provides them. But the preparation... well, that is your baby.

In the Orient, weddings are celebrated at night. Bridesmaids, carrying a lamp aloft, gather to meet the bridegroom and to escort him to the home of his bride. A huge banquet awaits them — a memorable party with every opportunity for each bridesmaid to meet the man of her dreams. On one occasion, as Jesus tells us, ten virgins went forth to meet the bridegroom. Five of them were foolish and five were wise. For the foolish "took their lamps, and took no oil with them; but the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps." As chance would have it, the bridegroom was late. But when at midnight a cry came "Behold the bridegroom!" all the virgins arose and trimmed their lamps. Unfortunately, the lamps of the foolish began to go out, and they asked the wise to give them of their oil.

But the wise answered, saying, "Not so; lest there be not enough for us and you; but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves." And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came, and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage, and the door shut. Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, "Lord, Lord, open to us." But he answered and said, "Verily I say unto you, I know you not." Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour.

The conclusion of the story may seem cruel, but look at it this way. If you are caught in the depths of a deep sorrow, can you borrow a friend's faith for your troubles? No, you must be prepared to meet your own adversities. The five-foolish bridesmaids were not; they cried and gave up.

Never cry. Never quit. Let your failures teach you the way to success. Preparation is never an inheritance. It is a product of experience, and experience is largely an intelligent utilization of failures.

Horse Show Rated "Best"

Ebony's Mountain Man, ridden by Sammie Day, owned by Joe Tillet and Judy Day of Shelbyville, Tennessee, was the Grand Champion Walking Horse in the Owingsville Lion's Club 34th Annual Horse Show. Ebony's Mountain Man is considered a top contender for the World Championship held later this year in Shelbyville, Tennessee.

"It was quite an honor to have such a horse in our show," said Judge Ray Bailey, a former Horse Show Manager. Owingville upheld its excellent reputation for the best show in the state and this year's show was considered excellent because there were no complaints and many compliments from exhibitors after the show.

Total gate receipts were over $10,000, but attendance was down slightly this year because of rain and threat of snow.

Over 400 horses showed and exhibitors came from as far as West Palm Beach, Florida. All stalls were reserved for over two weeks before the show.

Owingsville Lions Club members voted to improve the ring for next year's show. They plan to install storm sewers and make other improvements to the park. Over $2,000 worth of lighting work has just been completed this year.

Lions Club Officers for the coming year were also installed Thursday night. President will be Wendell Moore. First Vice — Arnold Stacey, Second Vice — Jimmy Davis. Third Vice — Joe Swafford, Secretary-Treasurer — Dick Hillis, Lion Tamer — Ken Aiken and George Kirk, Tail Twister. Two year Directors — Russ Metz and Kenneth Hainline. One year Directors — Earl Rogers and Dr. David Kinleyside.

Plans for the Fair to be held September 6 through 9 are being made by this group of Lions Officers. Money from this year's Horse Show will be used to benefit the community in a number of projects and to improve the Lions Club Park, a fine facility which is enjoyed by all Bath Countians.

Big Brushy Has Revival

A special weekend revival service will be held on the Big Brushy Road, just off the Flemingsburg-Morehead road, in Rowan County, July 13-14-15, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Services will start at 7:30 p.m. nightly in the old Big Brushy Schoolhouse. Two ministers will alternate — Rev. Viola Rascoe of Cincinnati and Rev. George Stiles, pastor of the Kentucky Christian Church of Flemingsburg. Rev. Rascoe is the former Viola Fryman, originally from Big Brushy and the daughter of the late J.C. and Georgianna Fryman. She has been heard on WFTM, Maysville for 21 years at 12:30 p.m. on Sunday.

Man Hospitalized After Van Flips

MT. STERLING — A Jeffersonville man is listed in satisfactory condition at Central Baptist Hospital in Lexington after the vehicle he was driving Friday night turned over eight miles south of Mt. Sterling.

Montgomery County Sheriff Ray Burns said Virgil Haddix, 33, was at the intersection of US 480 and Ky. 213 when his van skidded 90 feet and flipped. No other vehicles were involved in the accident, Burns said.

Lightning Destroys Bath County Barn

OWINGSVILLE — Lightning struck a Mt. Pleasant Road barn Monday, July 3, and resulting flames razed the building firemen here said. Contents of the building owned by Noah Smith were destroyed.

Seven men reportedly went to the fire and found the barn beyond saving at their arrival.

Bath Treasurer Says County In Good Shape

Bath County Treasurer, Mike Shields, told the Fiscal Court that the county is in good financial position to begin the new fiscal year.

At the regular monthly meeting held July 5, Shields said that $137,155 was estimated in tax revenue and of that amount, all but $222,000 has been collected. "This is the best record for our estimate and the best we have done in the five years that I've been keeping the books", Shields said. "We begin the year with a $30,000 surplus and $10,000 was the biggest surplus we've ever had before."

Miscellaneous sales, interest on Certificates of Deposit, were two reasons given for the good position of the court. The Fiscal Court has been keeping an eye to the future with their plans for a new Courthouse Annex and therefore watching their local budget very carefully. Increases in all areas of the budget for the coming year and inflation make it necessary.

USDA Announces Untied Burley Sales

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A marketing experiment for untied burley tobacco which would reduce farmers' costs in preparing the tobacco for market has been proposed by the Agriculture Department.

In announcing the experiment, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland noted Thursday that the burley industry has been looking for a less costly way to market the tobacco than tying it in small bundles.

Presently, untied burley tobacco is not graded, which makes the tobacco ineligible for price supports. The proposals stemmed from experiments conducted by the universities responsibility for about 160 miles more of county and rural roads. This work has previously been done by the State but paid for out of the county fund. The County feels they can do a more efficient job and make better use of the money available by doing the job themselves.

A Resolution was passed at Wednesday's meeting concerning culverts and approaches on the county roads. The County agreed to follow the guidelines of the State's policy. Existing culverts and approaches on rural and county roads can be replaced as needed. For a new culvert a landowner must get a permit, at no charge, from County Superintendent of roads Junior Clark. Mr. Clark can then advise the landowner as to size and placement of the approach. The county will provide gravel and labor for installation, thus splitting the cost evenly with landowners. The cost of pipe and cost of labor being about equal.

Sealed bids will be opened at 1:30 July 24 for the Courthouse Annex.

in Kentucky and Tennessee, the two major burley producing states.

Bergland proposed an experiment for the 1978-79 season during which untied, baled burley tobacco would be graded on five sales dates at each warehouse.

Bales accepted for grading would be one by two by three feet and the leaves of the bales untied and packed straight. Farmers interested in participating in the experiment would apply in September to their county offices. Bergland sought comments until Aug. 7 on whether the grade loan rates for baled tobacco should be the same as for tobacco tied in traditional small bundles.

Billy Carter, "President Jimmy's brother," held a press conference (above left) while in Olive Hill Tuesday and helped to dedicate the Tom T. Hall Exhibit with Tom T. and Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall (far right). On Saturday, July 1, Mrs. Nora Barker (above right) won the grand marshal's trophy riding her brightly decorated bicycle in the homecoming parade.

CELEBRITIES Tom T. Hall, Thelma Stovall and Billy Carter (from left) participated in the dedication ceremonies for the Tom T. Hall Exhibit located in the Little Red Caboose on U.S. 60 near the east end of Olive Hill. The exhibit contains memorabilia from the career of Hall, a native of Olive Hill. Mrs. Stovall is lieutenant governor of Kentucky. Carter, of course, is "President Jimmy's brother." (Staff photo)

Home Again!

Olive Hill's Storyteller, President Jimmy's Brother 'Wow 'em' At 12th Annual Eastern Ky. Homecoming

By ANN EGGERT

Murmurs of "Here he comes!", "That's him" and "There's Tom!" announced the July 4 arrival of Olive Hill's native son, Tom T. Hall, who had returned home to dedicate a Tom T. Hall exhibit as part of the 12th Eastern Kentucky Homecoming.

Approximately 1500 people, crowded onto the knob across from James Drive Inc., watched as Hall's long, black Cadillac limousine glided up the hill. The doors of the limo, bearing a Tennessee license plate which proclaimed it was a TOY-BOX, opened, and Hall, along with his wife, Miss Dixie, and special guests Billy Carter and Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall, climbed out.

Two car loads of Kentucky State Police then escorted Hall and his guests to the stage set up in front of the exhibit building — a bright red railroad caboose located at the top of the knob. It was the 10th homecoming Hall has attended since the week-long celebration, sponsored by the Olive Hill Chamber of Commerce, became an annual event in July 1966.

Following introductory remarks by chamber president Andy Rabourn and Olive Hill's Mayor, Leonard Logan Jr., Hall addressed the crowd, which included many relatives and old friends. "I see a lot of familiar faces here today," Hall said, his black string tie fluttering in the breeze, "faces from all over the state. And I'm glad to see them all. Great people live here," he said with a gesture of his hand, "and I'm proud to have Olive Hill for my home town."

"I was a little disappointed through when I noticed you had put the exhibit on wheels," he added with a grin, "cause I don't know where it's gonna go from here!"

Hall then extended sincere thanks to the Olive Hill Chamber of Commerce for putting the exhibit together and making him such an honored homecoming guest every year.

"Oh yes," Hall said, just before he few people ask me how to make watermelon wine. Well, I can't give you the entire recipe, but the first step is to steal a watermelon!"

"Say something, Billy!" the crowd urged after Hall left the speaker's platform. "We want to hear Billy talk, say something!"

After claiming he wasn't much of a speaker America's first brother approached the microphone, the pointed toes of his beige alligator cowboy boots peeking out from under his blue jeans.

"I'm glad to be here today," he began, "and glad to see such a big turnout in Tom's hometown. I couldn't raise a crowd of three in Plains." He then looked toward Ms. Stovall and added, "I've always said I wouldn't read a book written by a woman, write, but," Carter said, alluding to the lieutenant governor's candidacy for governor in the 1979 elections, "I would vote for one for governor."

Others attending the dedication ceremonies included Carter's wife, Sybil; Carlotta Gail, an Olive Hill High School graduate who now performs on the Illinois country Opry; Barry Sadler, author of "Ballad of the Green Berets"; Don Harron, alias Charlie Farquharson of "Hee Haw"; and Martha Layne Collins, Clerk of the Kentucky Supreme Court.

Following a premier tour of his exhibit, the Storyteller held a press reception at the People's Bank in Olive Hill. The reception began with praise for his hometown.

HERE TO BOLSTER TOURISM

"I'm here today on behalf of my hometown. I'm very proud of it. All of my friends and I are here to bolster tourism," Hall said, "and we hope the exhibit will help get tourists into the area and make it known that there is an Olive Hill, Kentucky."

Tourism, Hall explained, was the reason the homecoming was started in the first place. "The original chamber (of 12 years ago) wanted to name the festival after me. But I talked them into making it an Eastern Kentucky celebration. Show business is a precarious business," Hall said, "There will always be an Eastern Kentucky, but there may not always be a Tom T. Hall. I didn't want the success of the festival to rest on the rise and fall of my career — and whether or not I had a hit record that year."

"Besides," he like the idea of a homecoming, I think everybody should come back to his hometown," he said.

Hall added that he made it back home, to Olive Hill, four or five times a year although most people don't know it.

"A lot of my family is still here and my roots are here," he said, "And I come from a close family, as in the tradition of large Kentucky families. I'm glad it's that way."

According to Hall, his fame since he wrote "Hello Vietnam" in 1965 has given his kin who still live in Olive Hill some problems.

"Although I'm sure they'd say the enjoyment of my success is worth a few problems, I'm sure they end up too often buying the beer," he said.

LITTLE THINGS MAKE HIM HAPPY

Hall added that for him "success is one day at a time and that's how I try to live my life. And like in the song I wrote, "I Love," "I really meant the fact that little things — green onions, a cup of coffee, old pick up trucks, burbon in a glass — make me happy."

Other ideas for songs come from things the Storyteller has experienced, many in the area of his hometown. "Week In A Country Jail" was written after Hall spent some time in the jail at Paintsville.

"That's still one of my favorite jails," Hall told reporters with a laugh. "And they really do serve hot bologna-eggs, biscuits and gravy. That's something that's native to this area."

"Ten years ago when I'd try to get biscuits and white flour gravy in restaurants, I couldn't. Now every major truck stop in America has biscuits and gravy. So this is one thing Kentucky has exported," he said.

It has also "exported" Tom T. Hall, who spends most of his time at his ranch in Franklin, Tenn. when not on the road.

"I'm home more than the average person," Hall said, "because show business is mostly a weekend — Friday, Saturday, Sunday business. When I'm not on the golf course, which is most of the time," according to Miss Dixie, I work in my vegetable garden, raise Bassett hounds in our kennel or spend time on my lake stocked with fish. I try to leave music for my working hours."

When he gets to working, though, Hall said he tries to do some of everything. "Although some people would like me to keep on doing what I do best, storytelling. But I've done a children's album of old country standards. I've had to fight for my artistic endeavors, but I've been happy with them even when they only sold one album."

NEW RECORD, BOOK COMING SOON

Hall added that he will soon have out a record which he and Sybil Carter, Billy's wife, cut together in his own recording studios. "We'd sung together for years at picnics and family gatherings and such," Hall explained. Also soon to be released, he said, is a book. To be published by Doubleday & Co., the book is about Hall's climb up the Nashville ladder of success.

"It's a good book," Hall said with a big grin. "It's got punctuation and spelling and everything. My second grade teacher, Thelma Rose, who flunked me, will be glad to hear that!"

"Doubleday is editing the book now and taking out some of the cussing — but not all of it — and it should be out in the fall," he said.

According to Hall his book tells the circumstances of his career and leaves interpretation up to the audience.

Holmes Thinks Spinks A Poor Champ

NEW YORK (UPI) — Larry Holmes, the WBC heavyweight champ, keeps seeing all the problems that befall his WBA counterpart, Leon Spinks, and he laughs at him.

"Holmes doesn't have a whole lot of respect for Spinks, either as a fighter or a citizen of the community."

"I think he's a jackass for getting in all that trouble," Holmes says, talking about Spinks' repeated brushes with the law. "He certainly isn't setting himself up as a good example of a black man. He says he wants to be a model for the kids in this country. Some model, isn't he?"

Holmes simply is sitting back waiting now to see what happens in the Sept. 15 return between Spinks and Muhammad Ali at New Orleans. He's convinced it's only a matter of time until all the controversy over who is really the world heavyweight champion will be settled and is equally sure that when it is, he'll come out on top.

Unlike a great many others, Holmes does not believe Ali merely "loaned" Spinks his title so that he could beat him in their return and thereby become the first man ever to win the heavyweight crown three times.

"I think Ali gave it everything he had in their first fight," says the 28-year old, Easton, Pa., battler who won the WBC championship by outpointing Ken Norton in Las Vegas last month. "I don't believe he 'loaned' Spinks his title."

Holmes says he'd like to see Ali beat Spinks in September and then retire, but whatever happens in that fight, he feels he's better than either man.

"I can beat anybody in the world," he says. "Ain't nobody can whip me."

So far, he has the record on his side. He has won all of his 27 professional bouts, including 19 by knockouts. So elated was he over beating Norton last June that he immediately fastened his new WBC title belt around his waist after the fight, took off like a shot out of his dressing room and dove into a nearby pool at Caesar's Palace where the contest was held.

Holmes has one thing in common with Spinks. He is a grade school dropout and it bothers him enough so that he's now taking courses with a view toward getting his equivalency diploma.

"I think you need an education," he says. "You need it to be able to read newspapers and contracts. I'm not the best reader in the world. It takes me time to read, but I'm not the dumbest, either. I'm not afraid to admit I was a dropout, that I need help. Seventh grade was as far as I got."

"My Daddy couldn't read or write, but you couldn't cheat him out of a dime. He could count money. So can I."

Holmes earned $500,000 for his fight with Norton, who was paid $2 million for his end. Getting the smaller share doesn't bother him that much because he feels that will all change now that he holds a title of his own.

"I couldn't make this kind of money shining shoes or working in car wash," says Holmes, who has done both.

"I made $30 a week washing cars. Before that, I used to walk all the way from Easton to Philadelphia, New Jersey, shining shoes. I'd walk into bars and say, 'Mister, mister, shoe shine?'"

Among some primitive tribes, a person who dreamt of falling in the water would send a wizard with a net to fish-out his soul the next day.

A very tricky whale
Little Shamu can do about 25 different tricks.
He responds to a special machine that makes sounds. Each tone tells him what to do.
He can jump, dive or do a back flip.
He can even jump and kiss a pretty girl.

Killer whales are smart and can be trained to jump on command.

What to do:

- Gently clean the outside of your fish with soap and water. Don't wash off any scales. Pat the fish dry.
- Put the fish on newspaper. Spread out the fins and anchor them with pins.
- Brush on a thin coat of ink. If you wish, leave the eye blank and fill it in on the finished print.
- Place a piece of rice paper or paper towel carefully over the inked fish. (Don't slide it around.)
- Press down gently with your fingers, making sure to cover all the fish body.
- Remove the paper and see what you have. You can also do this with shells, rocks or flowers!

Some Japanese fishermen use fish printing as a way to keep a record of their catches. They have been doing this for over 100 years.

Use fresh fish, such as perch, pike, bass, trout, flounder. Flatfish make good prints.

You'll need: • pins • newspaper • water-base ink • a stiff brush • rice paper, paper towels or newsprint

Dolphin or Porpoise?

Dolphins are bigger than porpoises. Porpoises are about 5 feet long and weigh up to 165 pounds. Dolphins can be 14 feet long and weigh as much as 500 pounds.

Dolphins are the animals you see in shows.

You can also tell by looking at the fins on the animals' backs. A porpoise has a fin shaped like a triangle. A dolphin has a fin that is curved.

Dolphins have pointed noses.

Porpoises' noses are blunt.

Finds Stolen Goods In Garage

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Joseph Lassiter was planning to cut the grass but found more than a lawnmower in his garage. Lassiter, 38, said he found more than $2,000 worth of stolen office machines, tape recorders and radios stacked on his workbench.

"I wasn't surprised, I was shocked! All I could see was jail," the machinist said.

Lassiter is week called the FBI, which canvassed his neighborhood two weeks ago seeking information about the theft of office machines from a National Guard Armory.

Police said they are not considering Lassiter a suspect. The 6-foot-3, 300-pounder professed his innocence in the theft and said he would be stupid to do something like that.

"I'd be too noticeable," he said.

Few Bother With Left Turn On Red

FRANKFORT, KY. (UPI) — The new left turn on red light law in Kentucky isn't causing many problems for law enforcement officials, but they say there is a simple reason why.

"The reason for the lack of problems with the law is that it went into effect June 17 is that few motorists in the state are bothering to take advantage of the left turn on a red light onto a one way street.

To partially combat the problem, the state had launched a limited media campaign to inform Kentuckians of the new law approved by the 1976 Kentucky General Assembly and to urge people to take advantage of it.

Lt. Ernest Bivens of the state police said officials are not surprised that many people have decided not to use the left turn on red provision.

"A lot of people are just not sure about what they can do and as a result, they are steering clear of using it," Bivens said in an interview. "We hope through an education program people will start becoming more familiar with it and use it."

Before the law was approved, Kentucky motorists could make right turns on red lights on most streets and highways in the state unless a specific prohibition sign was posted.

Proponents of the law claimed equal gasoline and time savings could be made by allowing motorists to make a left turn on a red light onto a one way street and the bill passed with little opposition.

"It's still a good law and it's going to take some time for people to get used to it," Bivens said.

Once people start making the left turns on red lights onto one way streets, Bivens said he foresees few problems with enforcement by local or state authorities.

"What people have got to remember is that they cannot make a left turn on any street on a red light," Bivens said. "For obvious reasons, you can only go on red onto a one way street so you can mesh with the traffic."

In states that have adopted both the right and left turns on red lights, Bivens reported that traffic congestion, particularly during the morning and evening rush hours, has been eased. He said that is the major goal of the law in Kentucky.

"We don't have a lot of people doing it now and fortunately or unfortunately, there aren't a lot of people blowing their corns at those who aren't making the turns because people just aren't aware of the law," he said. "I think it is natural that people don't want to take a chance of getting a ticket or breaking a law on some traffic turn that could cost them."

Bivens predicted by the end of the year more people would be exposed to the media advertising and pick up the lead from other motorists and start making the left turns.

He noted a similar problem existed when the right turn on red went into effect.

"Maybe people are trained to stop at the red lights and this will take some getting used to," he said. "I think you will find that there are still several motorists who won't venture out on the right turn on red light and that's been in effect for some time."

Miss Nude Appears In Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Miss Nude International, Leigh Sharon, has made her second public bid in recent weeks in support of nudity with a nude appearance in downtown Louisville.

On Friday amid temperatures in the low 80s, Miss Sharon took a brief dip in the fountain of the Belvedere riverfront park and came up without her bikini as a luncheon crowd of businessmen cheered.

Mayor William B. Stansbury, who hosts a weekly bring-your-lunch outdoor picnic each Friday, didn't appear at the Belvedere at midday as he usually does.

When Miss Sharon arrived at the Belvedere she refused initial cries of "take it off" and strolled into the park area, dancing to the music of a German band and frolicking in the water.

Moments later she doffed her bikini and police immediately motioned for her to leave the fountain. She initially refused but then put her bikini back on and surrendered at the edge of the pool.

It was Miss Sharon's second appearance in two weeks in Louisville. She walked nude along the busy River City Mall last month but put her clothes back on before police arrived at the scene.

The World Of Miniatures

By Betty Marshall
Staff Writer

The world of miniatures—it's one of the fastest growing hobbies in the United States. But . . . it is not one for those without patience and endurance.

"The construction of miniature houses made to scale and many times exact replicas of existing houses, along with decorating and furnishing them with exact duplications of real furniture is all about.

Helen and E.C. Hinton of Flemingsburg have been into that world for 12 years. Mrs. Hinton builds the houses and decorates them; Mr. Hinton constructs the furniture for the most part, models of furnishings they or their relatives have in their own homes.

How did the Hintons become involved in such a hobby? Helen Hinton explained. "After my three children grew up and left home, I experienced a sense of loss—a feeling of emptiness. I found myself with little to do, and I am by nature an active person.

"I've always been a collector of miniatures," she added. "Even as a child, I had a special affection for small things that were replicas of actual things from the real world. For most of my life, I had collected and saved them.

Room Grew

"I decided to build myself a room to display my miniature collections in. The room grew into a miniature house."

The first house which Mrs. Hinton built is a two-story colonial with a total of 2,016 square inches of floor space. Since the house is built to a scale of one inch per foot, it is a replica of a 2,016 square foot home, totally decorated and furnished in the style of the period.

In addition to the two complete houses which the Hintons have constructed and furnished, they have built a number of individual display rooms constructed of three regular walls with one sliding plexiglass wall to allow a full view of their interiors.

Mr. Hinton became involved in the hobby after his wife completed the first house and ran into difficulty furnishing it completely.

"At the time I first became involved in miniatures, it was almost impossible to locate miniatures of any kind in our area," Mrs. Hinton explained.

As a result, Mr. Hinton decided to create replicas of family pieces of furniture, scaled to size for the house, and made in every detail exactly like the originals. For example, he constructed a grandfather clock which actually works and "keeps perfect time," Mrs. Hinton says.

The Hintons now find it easier to locate materials they need for their work. Since the world of miniatures has become a rapidly expanding hobby in the United States, there have come into existence a number of magazines and journals which supply them with information and sources of materials.

One publication, Nutshell News, has even furnished them with a group of long distance friends who are also involved in miniatures. They communicate by telephone and mail, and, although they have never personally met, feel like well established friends.

"The only difference in these friends and the ones we have right here in Flemingsburg is," Mrs. Hinton said, laughing, "we wouldn't recognize them if we met them on the street."

Other world of miniature publications which the Hintons rely on for information and supplies are The Scale Cabinetmaker, Miniature Makers Journal, Miniature Reflections, Miniature Collector, and Creating in Miniature.

An Occupation

Creating miniatures has become more than just a hobby with the Hintons. It has become a passion and an absorbing occupation which keeps the two of them working in their basement workshop many nights until 12 o'clock.

"We become so involved with our work that we don't even notice the time," Mrs. Hinton remarked.

The next project which the Hintons have planned is to build an exact replica of the house in which Mrs. Hinton grew up and to furnish and decorate it just as it was when she was a child.

The number and size of the Hinton miniature collections and creations has dictated the necessity for a special room for displaying them. To answer that need, they built their front porch into a show room.

The Hintons say they are pleased when people drop by to view their world of miniatures.

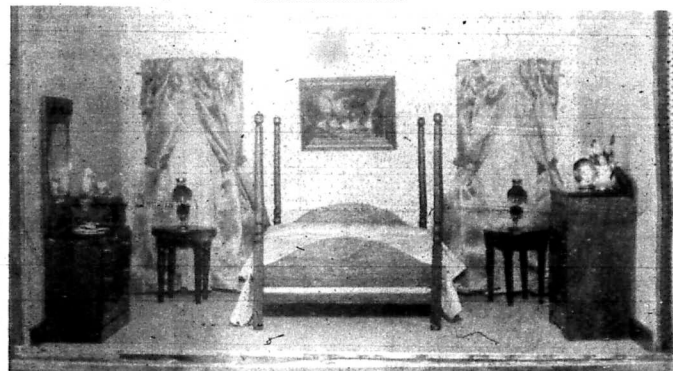

MRS. HELEN HINTON, Flemingsburg, in her basement workshop where she constructs miniature houses.

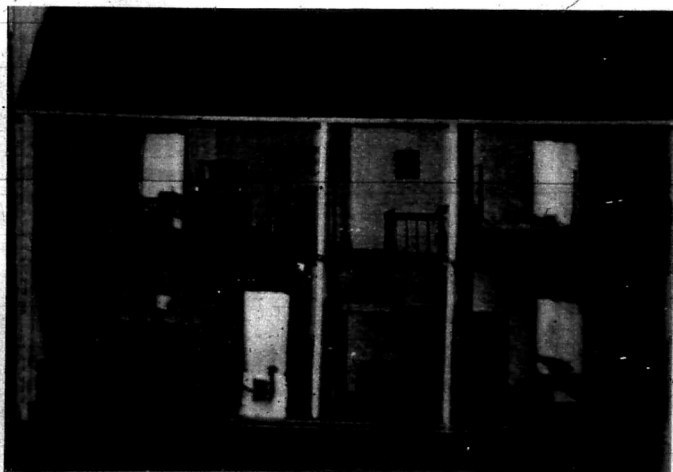

A BIRD'S EYE VIEW, with the roof removed, of a bedroom in the second house which the Hinton's have completed. This house will be given to the Hinton's 17 month old grandchild when she is eight or nine years old.

IT LOOKS LIKE A PLEASANT PLACE TO DINE, but you could never do it unless you're an elf or a fairy. This is the world of miniature — the dining room in a miniature house constructed and furnished by Helen and E.C. Hinton, Flemingsburg.

ONE OF THE BEDROOMS in the colonial house — furnished and decorated to the extent of a tiny miniature picture of the Hinton's grandchild, placed on the chest.

CUT-AWAY VIEW of the first house Helen Hinton constructed, decorated, and furnished with miniatures which her husband built to scale specifically for the house she had collected throughout her life, and with furniture.

EPA Proposes Rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency, developing a cradle-to-grave system for hazardous chemical wastes, Monday proposed rules setting up an inventory of businesses, cities and others handling dangerous substances.

Under the proposed rules, firms generating, transporting, storing or treating chemical wastes will have three months to notify the EPA of the chemicals they handle.

Operations, an EPA spokesman said. EPA officials estimate more than 30 million tons of hazardous wastes are generated each year. They have become concerned about disposal problems in the wake of several incidents across the nation involving "midnight dumpers."

In New Jersey, a policeman spotted a truck in an alley and later found his shoes rotting from illegally dumped chemicals, EPA officials said. In Louisville, they said, chemicals illegally dumped into a sewer last March knocked out the city's sewage plant for 45 days at a cost of $5 million.

"It's hard to tell how many chemical wastes are handled this way because we cannot trace it, but enough has turned up in odd places for us to know this is a major problem," said an EPA spokeswoman.

The regulations to be issued will establish national standards for treatment, storage and disposal of chemical wastes and a permit system for waste disposal operators, officials said.
