Library & C
University of
Lexington KY

Announcement was made this week of the Corps of Engineers proposed plan for construction of another beach at Cave Run Lake.

Col. Thomas F. Neck, District Engineer of the Corps, announced that the proposed new beach would be on the west bank of Cave Run Lake, 2.5 miles upstream of the Cave Run Lake Dam, near Salt Lick in Bath County. The site is within the Aldo Leopold Recreation Area.

Plans for the proposed project call for a public beach that would be 110,000 square feet in area, of which 57,000 square feet of sand surface would be above the seasonal pool elevation of 720.0 feet.

The sand would be obtained from a commercial interstate sand distributor, according to the Corps spokesman. In connection with the construction of the proposed public beach, a paved parking area with 133 parking spaces, walks, and a paved access road, approximately 20 feet in width and 450 feet in length would be constructed.

The National Register of Historic Places has been consulted and it has been determined that there are no properties currently listed on the register which would be directly affected by the proposed work.

Site Investigated

Several known prehistoric archeological sites, located in the vicinity of the proposed work area were investigated by test excavations conducted by a qualified Corps Archeologist.

The Corps reported that "by these investigations, it was determined that the sites were not significant."

A report detailing the test excavations is being prepared by Corps personnel, and copies will be furnished to the State Historic Preservation Officer and the Office of State Archeology for review.

Col. Neck stated in his report regarding the proposed new beach, "If we are made aware, as a result of comments received in response to this notice or by other means of specific archeological, scientific, prehistoric, or historical sites or structures, which might be identified by the proposed work, the District Engineer will immediately notify the Secretary of the Interior so that he may accomplish the necessary surveys, investigations and recovery activities pursuant to law."

Assessment Made

An Environmental Assessment of the continued operations and maintenance of Cave Run Lake, which included recreation development associated utilization of important resources.

The Corps spokesman said that the benefits which reasonably may be expected to accrue from the proposal must be balanced against its reasonably foreseeable detriments.

"He continued by saying that all factors which may be relevant to the proposal will be considered; among these are conservation, aesthetics, general environmental concerns, historic values, fish and wildlife values, flood damage prevention, land use, navigation, recreation, water supply, water quality, energy needs, safety, food production, and in general, the needs and welfare of the people."

Assessment Made

An Environmental Assessment of the continued operations and maintenance of Cave Run Lake, which included recreation development associated with the 4, 1975. Based on that assessment, it has been determined that the proposed work will not have a significant adverse effect on the environment, will not destroy or endanger any known critical habitat of a threatened or endangered species as identified under the endangered Species Act of 1973, nor will it have a significant adverse effect on the human environment.

Copies of the assessment are available for review in the office of the Louisville District Engineer's Office, Corps of Engineers.

The Corps Spokesman added, "Our preliminary determination is that an Environmental Impact Statement will not be prepared unless warranted by new or additional data."

Written statements received by the District Engineer's office, regarding the proposed project, received on:

Allegations Of Cancer Prompt On-Site Visits To Maxey Flats

FRANKFORT, Ky. UPI — Allegations of cancer in people and cattle located near the Maxey Flats nuclear waste disposal site sufficiently alarmed members of a legislative subcommittee, which Thursday ordered on-site visits.

The subcommittee on Site Status and Improvement of the Nuclear Waste Advisory Committee took the action after hearing allegations of cancerous lesions on cattle and the reported deaths of two people in the area.

Those allegations were passed on to the subcommittee by member Marjorie Denton of Flemingsburg, the location of the 252-acre site. She said she spoke for John Hay, leader of the Maxey Flats Radiation Protection Association, a local group.

According to Hay, a farmer in the area contends his cattle have developed cancerous skin sores which partially heal once away from the low-level radioactive site.

Further, Hay said over the past two years, several residents have developed cancer — including a Helen McRoberts who claims to have terminal cancer — with two reported deaths.

He suggested fish and wildlife in the area be monitored on a monthly basis.

The action taken by the seven-member subcommittee, sister to another subcommittee examining the long term maintenance costs at the now state-owned site, will have the local farm agent and a representative from the state's Animal Diagnostic Laboratory visit the farm to conduct tests on the cattle.

Subcommittee member Rep. Pete Worthington, D-Ewing, noted the cattle had previously been diagnosed as suffering from a copper deficiency, although Ms. Denton said the sores were in addition to the deficiency symptoms.

Worthington suggested the matter deserved another look. "We'll all feel a lot better," he explained.

Tests are also to be conducted on Mrs. McRoberts, reportedly being treated at the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington.

The major thrust of the subcommittee members' comments concerned the expansion of communications between the state, local authorities and citizens. "I hope," said Rep. D. Winchester, "that such allegations should be examined."

The subcommittee and its sister subcommittee will tentatively meet together Nov. 16 to review each group's progress in their particular areas of examination regarding the site. Officials of the state Finance Department and Department for Human Resources will be invited to attend.

The subject of both subcommittees' efforts was originally licensed in 1962 and leased to the Nuclear Engineering Co. of Louisville the following year for 25 years.

The site was closed indefinitely last December after leakage from an old trench was discovered to have contaminated a new unused trench 200 feet away. About 4.5 million cubic feet of low radioactive waste is buried at the site.

The state purchased the site last May for $1.25 million from NECo, which now operates the site under contract with the state.

Coal Severance Money Will Meet Payment On Martindale Building

Another step in the purchase of Morehead's Martindale Building by the Rowan Fiscal Court was apparently made Thursday night, as the Gateway Development Board of Directors voted to approve a $124,000 expenditure from Area Development Funds so the court can meet a December payment on the property.

The severance money must still come from the Department for Local Government and the Department of Finance in Frankfort in order for Rowan Fiscal Court to obtain the funds.

The Area Development Fund, commonly referred to as ADF monies, is coal severance tax money returned back to the counties from the state treasury through the Area Development Districts.

Rowan Fiscal Court had purchased the Martindale building in order to provide additional office space and also space to house the new district court as well as the circuit court. When the state revised its payment formula for court space, Rowan Fiscal Court came up short on funds to complete payments on the property. Due Dec. 1 is a payment of $91,666.

The GADD Board of Directors also allotted ADF monies for other counties in its district as follows: Morgan County — $80,000 for purchase of a grader and four dump trucks; Menifee County — $20,000 for purchase of an industrial site; West Liberty — $2100 for purchase of office equipment; and Bath County — $85,000 for continued funding of a proposed courthouse annex.

In other action, the Board also put a priority on five eastern Kentucky projects that have been submitted to the Appalachian Regional Commission for funding.

Priority number one was awarded to the West Liberty sewer extension. "The smell in West Liberty from open sewage is so bad," Mayor Scottye

Franklin said, "that you wouldn't quarrel with our priority if you visited some of our residential areas on a warm night."

Priority number two went to the Owingsville sewer plant expansion, third is the Little Mountain Industrial Park Technical Center in Montgomery County; fourth is Sharpshurg sewer plant; and fifth was funds for a regional evaluator/planner for vocational education in Region 9.

The Board of Directors also approved the appointment of a new board member from Rowan County on the recommendation of Judge-Executive Flannery. He is Philip Lewis of Morehead.

Bath, Menifee, Rowan, Morgan, and Montgomery Counties are served by the Gateway Area Development District.

Safety Tips For Spooks Goblins, Witches & Such

1. Ask Mom to make sure your Halloween costume is fire-resistant. (If your outfit caught on fire, you'd have to roll in the grass or roll up in a blanket or coat quick to keep from getting burned.)
2. Have Mom put reflective tape on the back and front of your costume. (It will shine in the dark, be twice as scary, and help keep you safe.)
3. Wear a bright-colored costume.
4. Disguise your face with make-up. (It's fun. And you can see better than with a mask on.)
5. Don't carry candles or lighted pumpkins. (Fire is very dangerous.)
6. Have Mom or Dad or a big brother or sister go along with you when you trick-or-treat.
7. Don't run. (Who wants a skinned-up knee or bumped nose on Halloween?)
8. Don't eat your treats until Mom or Dad take a good look at them. (Sometimes mean people put glass or poison or other bad stuff in treats.)

State Opinion Finds Fault With Administrator Ordinance

An opinion by the departmental attorney of the Department for Local Government in Frankfort says in part that some sections of a proposed ordinance setting the duties of the city administrator may "go beyond the legislative function of carrying out upon the executive function in violation of KRS 86.020."

The opinion, written by Stanley A. Stratford and sent to Morehead Mayor Crayton Jackson, found fault with eight of the 11 duties spelled out in the ordinance.

According to Stratford's opinion, "The Kentucky Revised Statutes specifically empower the mayor to enforce all ordinances and by implication to exercise the executive powers of the city. Executive means the function of executing or carrying out policies adopted by ordinance and the director of the workforce and other administrative and managerial acts in the implementation and control of programs adopted by ordinance."

While the opinion agrees that the council can create the office of city administrator and assign duties to the administrator, the opinion goes on to say, "... if the city administrator is to perform any executive function, it must be subject to the direction of the mayor."

The opinion specifically listed eight areas which "appear to be executive in nature."

A. Supervising the day to day management of all city departments.

B. Assisting the city council in implementing city policy.

E. Supervising all purchases by the city.

F. Implementing personnel policy and payroll and employ benefit matters.

H. Implementing the development of the human resources of the city.

I. Serving as liaison for the city with boards.

J. Executive public relations

United Way Campaign Lagging

With just over a week to go in this year's United Way campaign, local chairman Norman Gross reports that the local campaign is moving rather slowly.

Gross called his troops together last Monday night for a final organizing effort to make sure the last week went smoothly.

At the kickoff banquet a few weeks ago, the local United Way board of directors set a "moderate" goal of $25,000. But Gross pledges from area businesses and door-to-door canvassing has been rather slow, meaning if the local group is going to reach its goal the community is going to have to help with a final surge over the top.

"We're optimistic about reaching our goal," Gross says. "We feel it will pick up in the next few days."

How? Gross points out enthusiasm has been lacking among the contributors.

He wants to remind those businesses in the area that the United Way covers 16 different city departments.

He also wants to remind those businesses and other national groups to local organizations like Meals on Wheels and Morehead Child Care. He said this will be the only opportunity for these businesses to contribute to the operation of these groups "because we only come to their doors once a year nessday night by the Morehead News, said Stratford's opinion "pretty well speaks for itself. The items listed in the letter are what the state said the council could not delegate away."

Jackson added, "Some of the council apparently thought the mayor answers to the city administrator instead of the other way around."

As far as Jackson's concern the

Though the national campaign's closing date for pledges is unofficially Oct. 31, the local United Way drive will not close until Nov. 4.

State Lists Priorities For Snow Removal

Priorities for snow and ice removal on state-maintained roads are outlined for the first time on individual county maps prepared and distributed by the state's Bureau of Highways. Following two unusually harsh winters, Gov. Julian Carr II requested that the transportation department prepare individual county maps showing priorities for snow and ice removal. This information was previously available only on a statewide map.

State Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson explained that with over 25,000 miles of state maintained roads a priority system for clearing those roads is necessary.

"Limited manpower and equipment requires that we clear the most heavily traveled roads first," Grayson said. "The new county map was developed to inform Kentucky residents of which roads are scheduled to be cleared first in their own county," Grayson said.

The system is divided into four categories:

Priority One - Interstate highways, toll roads, and any state-maintained road that carries an equivalent traffic volume.

Priority Two - State primary roads (such as US 60, US 27), expressways, by-passes and other state maintained roads with equivalent traffic volume.

Priority Three - State secondary roads such as KY 580 and other roads of equal importance.

Priority Four - All state-maintained roads not included in one of the first three priorities.

According to Russell Romine, assistant state highway engineer, roads classified priority one, two, and three are to be maintained in a safe and passable condition by plowing, sanding or salting.

Priority four roads are to be plowed and partially salted when all other roads are cleared.

"If the district engineer or county foreman feels that it's necessary to give any road additional attention in times of emergency, they may authorize whatever work is needed to improve the road condition," Romine said.

County roads and city streets not part of the state-maintained system are not included in the snow and ice removal plan.

CHAPTER LXXX

WHAT IS THE HOLY SPIRIT?

BIBLE READING PLAN FOR THIS CHAPTER
PAGES IN THE POCKET BIBLE	CHAPTERS IN KING JAMES
401-407	Acts 1:1-12; 2:1-11; 5:1-11; 6:1-7:60

Luke, author of a biography of the life of Christ, wrote a sequel — a report of the events that followed His death. "The Acts of the Apostles" is a fast moving account of the most tempestuous years in the annals of Christianity.

The crucifixion had frightened the followers of Jesus. Most of them had fled with fear. Reports of His resurrection reassured them. When His apostles saw Him, they inquired as to whether He had returned to "restore again the kingdom to Israel." He did not answer the question directly but told them that they were to spread His gospel "unto the uttermost part of the earth."

After He had been enveloped by a cloud and taken from them, the eleven apostles returned to Jerusalem and selected another "witness," Matthias, to take the place of the betrayer, Judas Iscariot, who had died. A few days later the twelve gathered to observe a religious holiday — the Pentecost — a day upon which the first fruits of the harvest were to be brought to the Temple. In the midst of the celebration, they were suddenly "filled with the Holy Spirit."

Luke's account of what happened is so thoroughly documented that there is ample reason to accept his report of the central fact of that momentous day — after the resurrection, Jesus had given them the blessing of the Holy Spirit, but on this day — on Pentecost — the power of God filled their lives and their active missionary work began.

What is the Holy Spirit? Why did possession of the Spirit transform the outlook of these men, surmount the barriers of nationality and language, and persuade three thousand souls on that one day to believe and be baptized?

Regrettably, the King James Version translates the words "Holy Spirit" as "Holy Ghost", which seems to conjure up an image of a haunting apparition, but the words are only another way of describing an aspect of the personage of God. If you find it difficult to understand the many facets of God's existence, consider a comparison. Water has a three-fold existence — it can be liquid, gas, or solid. It cannot be ice, steam, and liquid all at once, but God can be at the same time the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. You may find it helpful to think of Him as being above you (God), with you (Jesus), and in you (the Holy Spirit). When God acts in and through you, when you are filled with His power and enthusiasm, you have the Holy Spirit within you.

You are most likely to feel God's presence when you meet with others "together in one place." That was the scene at Pentecost when the first church was formed, and the church continues to be the unifying force bringing the Holy Spirit into the lives of others.

After receiving the Holy Spirit, Peter gave a sermon that electrified the crowd. He concluded with an invitation which has been repeated again and again over the centuries: "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins." As the converts to the church increased, the Sadducees and the priests were filled with jealousy. They arrested the apostles and threw them in prison. They intended to kill them and would have, had not Gamaliel, a teacher of the law, stood up and reviewed the cases of other teachers whose followers had disbanded after the death of their leader. "So in the present case," Gamaliel concluded, "keep away from these men and let them alone; for if this plan of this undertaking is of men, it will fail; but if it is of God, you will not be able to overthrow them. You might even be found opposing God!"

The apostles were freed but soon the advice of Gamaliel was forgotten. Arrests and persecutions were renewed. The most bitter of these came after Stephen, a disciple selected by the apostles, had made a brilliant speech in his own defense. After reviewing the history of the Hebrews, Stephen became not the accused, but the accuser. He charged the members of the council with having betrayed and murdered Jesus. They ground their teeth with anger. In their rage they stoned Stephen to death. The persecution was on in earnest. A Roman named Saul "laid waste the church, and entering house after house, he dragged off men and women and committed them to prison."

Many of the followers were scattered to other lands. There they continued to preach "the Word" and thus began the initial spread of Christianity from Jerusalem through Palestine, to Antioch and Asia Minor, and on to Europe and to Rome!

Controversy Arises

A question as to who controls the county employees erupted in Rowan Fiscal Court Thursday once again sparking friction between County Judge/Executive Wilford Flannery and the magistrates.

In last month's Fiscal Court meeting, the magistrates heard their duties and powers defined by Al Howell of the Department of Local Government.

Division of State and Local Government.

Howell told the court that the judge was administrator of the county and the magistrates constituted the legislative branch.

In yesterday's meeting, the magistrates moved to have their power to run the county road department returned to them as was the policy before Howell's appearance.

The motion passed three to two with Paul Ousley, Lemuel Black, Ray Lytle voting affirmatively and Roy Plank and Judge Flannery opposing.

County Attorney John Cox was directed to look into the legality of the motion.

Judge Flannery said it was his statutory duty to run the road department as chief administrator of the county elected by popular vote.

He said that if the motion is allowed to remain he would file a suit against Fiscal Court seeking an injunction.

In another dispute over Fiscal Court's citizen's representative on the board of the Gateway Area District Development, the court instructed John Cox to research the Kentucky Administrative Regulations governing such an appointment.

The court had previously recommended Pete Hamlin to be its representative on the board but Judge Flannery later appointed Phil Lewis.

Ousley moved that the citizen representative be required to attend Fiscal Court meetings and report on any ADD action of interest to the county. The motion passed.

Jailer Will Move Trailer Next To Jail

Rowan Fiscal Court Thursday granted approval for Jailer Roger Thomas to move his trailer next to the jail and hook up on the jail's utility lines.

Thomas requested that the county pay for the utilities but the request was tabled pending further investigation into the county's responsibility regarding the matter.

Pedigreed Dogs Being Stolen Here

There's a run on stealing pedigreed dogs in the city and county.

Rowan County dog warden Carl Mullen told Fiscal Court Thursday that he had received seven calls lately reporting stolen dogs.

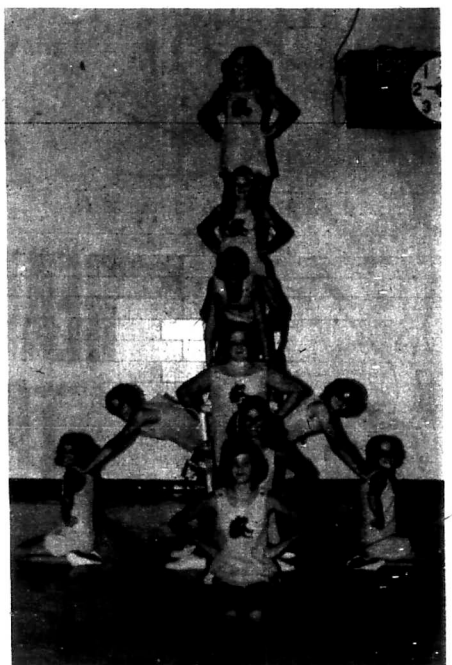

In his first report to the court since he was hired in September, Mullen said that he had impounded 34 dogs.

He said pickups in the city had been heavier than usual accounting for about 40 percent of the strays.

He said at present there were about 20 to 25 dogs in the kennel.

The daffy daffodil—a garden flower of many different names

Daffodils are your favorite heralds of spring you should be aware of two facts:

First, daffodils are some times called jonquils or narcissus, but botanically they are all members of the Narcissus family.

Second, regardless of what you call them, they are not all yellow, with trumpet-shaped cups. A vast number of daffodils have white, pink, lime, orange and even bicolor flowers.

Others, popularly called double daffodils, have row upon row of petals forming flowers that resemble roses in full bloom. Regardless of their shape or color, they are all remarkably easy to grow.

There are close to ten thousand varieties of daffodils. Here is a list of the major categories:

Nine out of ten gardeners grow the trumpet daffodil, characterized by its long cup. Bicolor ones include "Goblet," "Magnet" and "Music Hall," all of which are white with yellow trumpets.

Large-cupped daffodils have shorter cups than the trumpet types, but they are still long in relation to the petals.

A two-toned white variety is a subtle beauty called Ice Follies. Mrs. R.O. Backhouse has white petals setting off an apricot-pink cup.

Small-cupped daffodils have cups less than one-third the length of the petals. "Barrett Browning" is white with an orange-red cup. The colorful "Birma" has yellow petals and a rich red cup.

COLORFUL DAFFODILS come in many sizes and shapes from the familiar yellow trumpets to the small-cupped bicolors.

The double daffodils are among the most spectacular of all, with two or more rows of petals, often in contrasting colors.

Texas, a double delight, features yellow petals with an orange center.

Mary Copeland has cream white petals with a bicolor—

Poor Elementary Teaching Blamed For Disabilities

FRANKFORT, Ky. UPI — Poor teaching in the early elementary school grades is sometimes the cause of learning disabilities in some children diagnosed as "dyslexic," a legislative committee was told Wednesday.

The subcommittee of the Interim Joint Committee on Education was also told that declining interest in learning disability programs is primarily due to a lack of parental interest.

Janet Berkley, a diagnostic prescriptive teacher in the Newport city school system, told the five-member subcommittee inadequate teaching in kindergarten, first, second and third grades is sometimes the cause of learning disabilities.

She suggested, and the committee agreed, that a reduction in class size in those early grades would allow for a more individual approach to children with learning disabilities and perhaps prevent some from being diagnosed dyslexic.

But as serious a problem, education officials explained, was a declining population in learning disability programs aimed at returning these children to regular classrooms.

E.R. Purdon, superintendent of the Danville Independent Schools, said a learning disability program in the district, which once accommodated 23 children, has been cancelled because of poor participation.

However, he added, eight teachers specializing in dyslexia continue their work as part of the district's 18-teacher special education program.

The subcommittee, which met most of the day, is attempting to identify the needs of dyslexic children with the goal of drafting recommendations for assistance to the 1980 General Assembly.

"I think we're stuck in a situation where we expect everybody to do things the same way," said subcommittee member Rep. Carl Neft, D-Louisville. He referred to children placed in special programs because of their methods for completing certain learning tasks.

He suggested teachers who unsuccessfully use methods to teach learning disabled children should change those methods to accomplish their objectives.

But, another view was to consolidate all educational methods in an effort to bring learning disabled children up to par. "Now," said Corby Prahaska, special education coordinator in the Newport system, "we're working with labels."

She said that Newport is meeting the challenge of teaching these children. "It is our major thrust to get into remedial techniques," she noted. "We're basically all united in our efforts to help the child."

However, she said regulations — covering areas such as teacher certification and classification — have hindered attempts to bring learning disabled children back into regular classrooms.

Purdon pointed out that of the 131 children recommended for a remedial program, 83 received assistance of which 35 required continued help. Thirteen of those, he added, were able to return to regular classrooms.

There was general agreement among subcommittee members and education representatives that dyslexia — a form of learning disability — has been present long before children were labeled through that diagnosis.

"Characters must be kept bright as well as clean."

Playoff Chances Look Good For Lady Vikings

By JACK KELLEY
Sports Writer

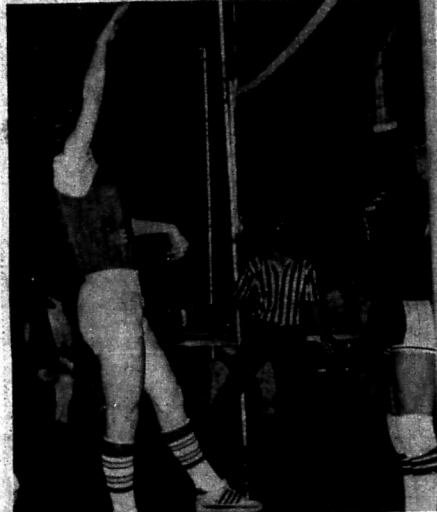

For the second straight year Rowan County's girls volleyball team will be the state high school playoffs. The Lady Vikings are slated to open their state competition Friday night in Eastern Kentucky's Weaver Gym in a 7:30 encounter with Ft. Thomas's Highlands.

Last season, in the first venture into state volleyball competition by the Kentucky Girls Sports Association, the state meet was a wide open affair with the only prerequisite for entry being to apply before a certain deadline. As it turned out only 17 teams applied, and Rowan County among them — and Notre Dame Academy came out as champs. However, with a mild volleyball explosion this fall in the high schools, the number of teams multiplied tremendously and to get into the state playoffs a team had to win or be a loser, according to KGSA officer Donna Wolfe of Covington. "A team this year had to earn its way to Richmond." And that's exactly what Rowan County did. The Lady Vikings staged a valiant comeback last weekend in regional play to take the championship. RCHS lost to Ashland, for the second time this year, in the opening round of the double elimination meet but the Lady Vikings rallied to down the Lady Kats in the finals. It marked the first win ever over Ashland for Rowan County. Now the stage is set for the Lady Vikings in Richmond. The state tournament is set up in four different "pools" with the 48 entrants divided into four equal sections of four teams each. But in a different twist from most state meets, the teams in this one are seeded. Wolfe explained this is done so that the better regarded teams, as distinguished by records and competition levels, do not knock each other out in the early rounds. She said this presumably makes the final rounds more competitive and better to watch. As it turns out, Rowan County is in the fourth pool along with Ft. Thomas,

Holy Rosary out of Louisville and Campbell County. These four teams will play each other with the best two going to the semifinals on Saturday. "What this means," Wolfe explained, "is that each team will play at least three matches which gives them a better chance." Upon learning her team's pool, Coach Banks feels her Lady Vikings have "an even-chance" to make it to the championship rounds. She admitted to being a little worried about her team's placement in the seeding process but now she's somewhat relieved. "Now we can prepare a lot better for our matches because we know who we're playing," she said. "This season the eighth for volleyball at Rowan County, the Lady Vikings posted an impressive 16-2 mark. Both losses were to Ashland. They go into their bracket with the best winning percentage out of the four with an 88.3 clip. Next in line comes Campbell County with an 18-5 mark (78.2) while the Highlands were 17-6 (73.9) and Holy Rosary 14-6 (70.1). It's quickly pointed out the records of the teams can be quite deceiving as to their strength cause the competition levels are quite different in each region. Northern Kentucky, the area Campbell County and Ft. Thomas are from, is where the state's strongest volleyball teams are. Banks says she has the confidence of teams in northern Kentucky which is why there are 11 representatives to the state to only three for Louisville and two from Morehead. Coach Banks feel confident, though, her Lady Vikings can be competitive. And getting a couple of early wins would really bolster the confidence of her young but talented squad. Leading the Rowan County team into state competition will be junior Kay Rogers, whom the coach calls her best all-around player. "She's my most dependable offensively and defensively," the coach

Rowan County Faces Fleming In Important District Clash

The district race in the second district of Class AA's Region Two is still very much up in the air, but tonight's game at Flemingsburg between the hosting Panthers and the Rowan County Vikings will play a big part in clearing up the picture. Undefeated Lewis County Rowan County's last opponent of the season next week, is on top of the heap with a 4-0 district mark. The Vikings are 2-0, but overall stand at 4-4 after two straight losses. The explosive Panthers stand 1-1 in the district because of a 31-29 loss to Lewis County earlier in the season. The possible outcomes that could tie ahead are staggering. Rowan County loses to both the Panthers and the Lions would, of course, knock the Vikings out of the race on a hand and the Lewis County. By the same token, if Rowan County wins both games, it would win the district as well. The most complicated result would come if the Vikings lose to Fleming County, but beat Lewis County. In that case, the complex Dickinson System would be implemented. It is a points system used to determine the winner, but at this point isn't clear enough to go into detail about. The whole hodgepodge of possibilities points to one fact: the Vikings need to win both the Fleming County game and the Lewis County contest to be assured of the Championship. That begs everything down to one question: Can Rowan County, after two consecutive losses, bounce back and win in spite of its youth? No one can say for sure, but even coach Ken Howarth doesn't have any idea. "I don't know what our kids will do," he admitted, "it's hard to say." The emotional aspect is almost the same of Rowan County's troubles. Injuries to starters Marvin Adkins, Jim Moore, and Mark Prait will hamper the Vikings' effectiveness. In addition, Rowan County's triple-option offense has been stalled of late after some flashy performances earlier in the season. Quarterback Bart Braugher has had his problems getting the timely pitches away cleanly, but Howard pointed out that the fault doesn't lie with the junior signal-caller. Penetration by the defensive line has taken away Braugher's time to determine the best opportunity and

Montgomery-Scott To Decide Mid-State; Lions Face Toughest Opponent In Rams

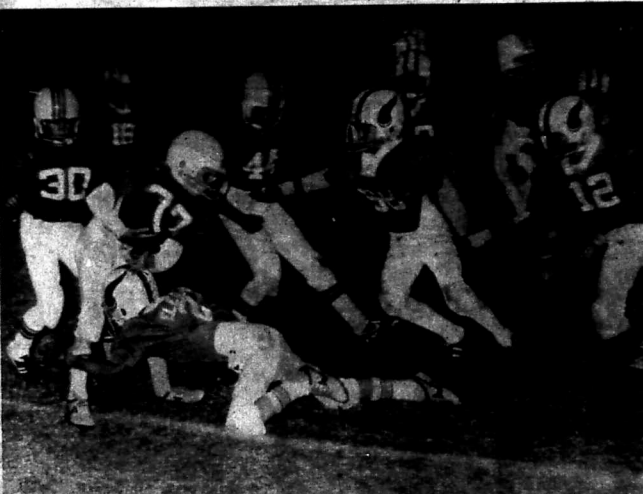

By TED SLOAN
Sports Writer

Except for Rowan County's battle with Fleming County, none of tonight's high school football action involves post-season action, although a conference title is on the line. That conference is the Mid-State Conference, where Montgomery County will go against Scott County in the deciding contest. Other games in the area pit Bath County against East Carter, Lewis County against Raceland, and Morgan County against Betsy Lane. The strong Indians were knocked out of the race in their powerful district last week in a 21-14, triple-overtime loss to Danville. But coach Pat Dale still believes his team will be after Scott County in its bid for a conference championship. "They want to win the conference," Dale said of his players. "They think it's important. I wouldn't say we're sky high we're pretty relaxed after the loss to Danville — but we're in a pretty good frame of mind." Dale describes Scott County as a big, young, ballclub with "breakaway threats" in its backfield. He adds that tonight's opponents have great size up front, but is lacking in quickness. "The Indians have been plagued all season by injuries and illnesses, and while those factors continue to hold Dale's team back, he expects all of his front-liners to be able to play. Logically, Dale thinks the Indians' poor health has been a big factor in knocking Montgomery County out of what might have been a big year. "It has definitely hampered us," he said. "We can't get anything going if we can't get everyone together." On the other hand, Lewis County looks to be very healthy entering its game with a tough Raceland team. Joe Gilliam's hand injury was not as serious as previously suspected, and no one else is hurt as the Lions bid for their ninth victory of the season without a loss. Lewis County got out of Grayson last week by the skin of its teeth, slipping by East Carter 10-8, in another of a long list of exciting Lions games on the road. Only one of Lewis County's away games has been won by more than six points, but Lions coach Bill Robinson looks on the good side. "I think it helps us," he said. "It makes us learn to play under pressure. It kills me, but maybe it helps them." Senior running back Aaron Polston headed the list of players on top of Robinson's football mountain. Polston picked up 107 yards rushing for the sixth game in a row last week, making a major contribution to a Lewis County offense that was badly outgained by the Raiders. Robinson is hoping Polston has more football days ahead of him after he graduates from Lewis County. "He has the heart for it," Robinson praised. "He really gives an all-out effort, has for four years. He's a good receiver, and he was a good quarterback before Ernie Robinson, the coach's son and signal-caller, took over, and before he got hurt last year. He's a top-notch runner. He runs awful hard, and he's hard to bring down." Ernie Robinson and his helpers on the Lions' place-kicking team also drew laurels from the coach. The younger Robinson kicked for four points last week, and his 30-yard field goal lifted Lewis County to an 8-7 deficit. "This has been a tremendous asset to our offense," Robinson emphasized. "We've won three ballgames directly because of our kicking game." Robinson added words of praise to special-team center Steve Richmond and holder Randy Patton. "They've made only two bad snaps out of about 25 times we've tried to kick the ball this year, and that to me is remarkable." The sophomore Robinson, who is also one of the top passers in the area, has fallen into a slump of late. Rainy weather held him back in the two games previous to the East Carter contest, but coach Robinson said of last week's game, "We just never seemed to get into a situation to throw the ball. When you're ahead, you have to gamble." The Lions may have to open things up this week. They take on a Raceland Ram team that sports an impressive 6-3 record, and Robinson expects a tough game from his guests. "We've never beat 'em," Robinson pointed out. "We always have a tough time with 'em." Both County coach Gary Ramey can expect a tough time, too. His 2-7 Wildcats must face a strong team from East Carter that has run upon hard times lately with three straight losses. Q: Spile of that surprising statistic, Ramey is still aware of the Raiders' strength. "They were supposed to be one of the best clubs in the area," Ramey recalled. "I think they still are. They're run up against some bad luck, but they have one of the best programs among all the teams we've played against. They're big and physical and like to run straight at you."

Just Like My Dad Taught Me

If there's one good way to prove Dad's a good football coach it's doing as he teaches. Here, young Ty Howard, son of Rowan County Coach Ken Howarth, put a hit on Ewing's Greg Harmon, stopping long enough until he got some help from his teammates. The action took place in the first annual Pee Wee Bowl sponsored by the Morehead Recreation Department. (Staff Photo) take advantage of it. At no time was that more evident than in last week's 40-16 loss to Johnson Central, a strong team on the lines that broke through the Rowan County wall often and on several occasions collared Braugher and freshman running back Bill Brock before a play could develop. Fleming County hasn't had such problems on execution though most of the season. The Panthers have blown away most of their opponents this year with a high-scoring offense that made its presence felt in a 46-0 shellacking of arch-rival Maysville last week. Once this season Rogers served a perfect game, serving 11 consecutive points which is a rare feat in volleyball competition. Banks says she has the ability to set the ball up with the bump pass or she can set up for the spike. "She doesn't quite have the height to spike it," Banks said, "but she can do everything else." The coach feels the height of Tammy Collins and Debbie Dehart has played a major role in the Lady Vikings march into the state playoffs. Both are well over five-foot in height and it's a big asset having them on the front line. Collins, a junior, is the tallest on the team. Dehart can spike her as a good spiker and a strong blocker. Dehart turned in a good performance during the regional, says her coach. "If she Dehart can spike the way she normally does and score points like she did in the regional it's going to be great," Banks commented. Round out the starting lineup is Tammy Pettit, Joyce Young and Deanna Lipps. Pettit has the height like Dehart and Collins and gives the Lady Vikings a strong front line. "All three are efficient spikers," she said. "In high school competition, being able to spike is a good asset to the team. Young teams up with Rogers to make a solid back line along with Lipps. Young is the only senior among the starters making the state tournament something extra special for her. Lipps is a recent transfer from Miami, Ohio which is a strong volleyball area. Banks calls Lipps "a very welcome addition to the team." She brought quite a bit of experience with her which blends in with the rest," Banks said. The coach again points out her lineup is relatively young — one senior, two juniors and three sophomores — if they can get a couple early wins it's going to mean a lot. If the Lady Vikings can come out of the fourth pool, they will advance to the single elimination playoffs which begin at 2:30 on Saturday. The teams from the fourth pool, the winner and runner-up, play at 3:45. Semi-finals are slated for 5 p.m. with finals in the Weaver Gym at seven.

Morehead St. Gets TV Share; Cage Team Looks Good In First Scrimmage

The seven Ohio Valley Conference football teams are faring very well in the NCAA statistic department along with the 12 other Division I-AA schools.

sharp edged aluminum seats have torn clothing. So plans have been in the works to put plastic covers on the seats.

Probably the biggest boost the Ohio Valley Conference has had in recent years came last weekend when ABC televised the age-old rivalry between Eastern Kentucky and Western Kentucky.

He gives Phil a 54 percent completion ratio on the season (61 of 112) and a total of 841 yards through the air.

The pot will be split up into 11 equal shares with the participating schools taking double shares apiece while the conference and the remaining five schools get one each.

He's the only OVC quarterback and also the only OVC quarterback and also the only OVC quarterback.

A lot of people may not be aware of this, but there's a big pile of loot that comes with TV appearances.

They both trail Frank Hawkins of Nevada-Reno.

President Morris L. Norfleet said in a Monday press conference, which concerned several matters, he wasn't going to spend the money before he got it.

For the first time Morehead State's got a runningback among the nation's top dozen.

With the money presumably on the way, a question has been raised as to what budget will be supplemented.

While Lewis, one of the state's top yard-gainers and scorers, is clearly the big threat on the Panther offense.

He pointed out that in his budget submitted last year, the state did not approve money for the resurfacing of the stadium in Jayne Stadium.

Howard knows he is not the only capable performer on that unit. The Rowan County coach expressed concern with quarterback Tim Williams' abilities, both on the ground and through the air.

First Foothill Roadrace Signups Available Now

The first Foothills Roadrace will be held Saturday, Nov. 18 at the Trademore Shopping Center, according to Tom Back, coordinator of the event.

except for the one in Maystick and Ashland. It's being sponsored by the Harrier's Track Club of Morehead.

Back says all runners entering by Nov. 4 will be awarded a medal for their participation. In addition, 35 trophies will be at stake and over 100 gift certificates will be given away.

The race will feature a coach-player duel which will prove to be interesting in itself.

The roadrace is the only one of its kind held in northeastern Kentucky.

Back feels running is one of the fastest growing sports in the world, and he feels the sport has taken hold in Morehead.

In the team department, Eastern Kentucky is fourth in total offense and rushing and first in net punting. Austin Peay ranks at the top against defending the passes, is second in punt returns and fifth in net punting.

If you want to see some good basketball, Coach Wayne Martin has opened the doors for spectators who want to get a sneak preview of the 1978-79 basketball Eagles.

For what we understand there's been quite a bit of excitement and a lot of people are looking forward to this season.

However, the Eagles' first appearance in public as a team will be on the road when Coach Martin takes his club to Hazard on Nov. 8 for a Blue-Gold game. He'll do it again on the 14th, traveling to Pikeville.

Rowan Faces

coach Howard put it, "Everyone knows what to do against them" - stop national sophomore Bubby Lewis, or at least try to. One of Fleming County's ten opponents have had any luck doing that, as the 5-10, 180-pounder has rattled for 150 yards this season, and with a typical Lewis game tonight, could crack the 2,000-yard barrier.

While Lewis, one of the state's top yard-gainers and scorers, is clearly the big threat on the Panther offense.

Sports Brief

LEXINGTON - The University of Kentucky's steadily improving defensive unit, which held LSU's Heisman Trophy candidate Charles Alexander to 64 yards rushing in 23 carries in a losing effort for the Wildcats Saturday night in Commonwealth Stadium, will face another offensive powerhouse when the Georgia Bulldogs come to town this weekend.

Kickoff for the Southeastern Conference game between the Bulldogs (5-1) and the Wildcats (2-3-1) is 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Leading a Bulldog offense that has outscored its opponents, 135-71, to date is Willie McClendon, who gained 155 yards in a 31-10 victory over Vanderbilt Saturday at Athens, and now leads conference rushers with 676 yards to Alexander's 631.

for a Blue-Gold game in Wetherby Gym before the regular season starts but a date hasn't been set.

The team had its first scrimmage last Sunday night. Though there was some first-scrimmageitis and some loose play, overall it was exciting to watch.

Another player who didn't look bad at all was freshman guard Norris Beckley. The Shelby County product had over 30 points during the 40 minute scrimmage, most of them coming from baseline jumpers.

Morehead State's already over one-third, closer to halfway through its preseason practice schedule before opening the season Nov. 27 at Marshall.

That is all conjecture, depending a great deal on the result of tonight's Fleming County-Rowan County clash. The bottom line is that, at this point, the future is now for the Rowan County Vikings.

CINCINNATI UPI - The Cincinnati Reds Wednesday began their final road trip of 1978 - to Japan.

Three top Reds management officials, manager Sparky Anderson and Steve Rose, left for the first tour of Japan by a baseball team since 1974.

Alexander scored the only touchdown of the UK-LSU tilt on an 11-yard run pass play, giving him a conference record of scoring at least one touchdown at least nine games in a row.

Red's Fishing Report

Since our last report, there have been several musky checked.

David Criswell of Ashland landed a 37 1/2-inch, 13.10 pounder. He and his wife, Zena, were fishing the Licking River section. David was casting a jointed reel.

Joe Allen, Vanceburg, placed second with a 40-inch weighing in at 15.13 pounds taken from Beaver Creek. This was also taken on a helibender.

Steve Madden of Morehead nailed a double below the dam last Sunday. Steve, casting a homemade plug landed a 36 1/2-inch, 12.64 pounder and a 37-inch musky weighing in at 12.12 pounds.

Shearer's Guide Service in Lexington, boated two nice musky Sunday. Casting the new "bass shaker by Taylor" Jim Tom boated a 38" at 14.01 pounds and a 17.13 pound measuring 42 inches. They also were reportedly taken from the "Sturgeon Hole."

Bass Still Bitten Johnny Caudill, Owingsville, landed a nice five-pounder largemouth on Saturday (Sunday) the first to purchase the new bass shaker, was casting in Beaver Creek.

Spinnerbait and white bombers were the rumored "best producers."

Cave Run Making National News

We have this week learned from Dave Ellwood, editor of Southern Outdoors Magazine out of Birmingham, Alabama, that a feature article of musky fishing on Cave Run will appear in the January 79 issue.

Hicks's 22-Pound Monster

Jim Tom Caudill of Morehead, a rising, middle-aged musky angler not to be outdone by his professional angler-partner, Ron Shearer of "Sturgeon Hole" and was casting a lunken lure.

Florida State won the meet followed by Tennessee and Kentucky.

"I consider it the best meet we've run as a team. Nearly everyone improved their times," said Coach Mary Shull. "A lot of it had to do with our mental preparation and running in a meet with such prominent teams as Tennessee and Florida State."

MSU's Alanna McCarthy took second in the 5,000-meter race, losing only to nationally-ranked Brenda Webb, of Tennessee.

McCarthy's time of 17:36 was by far her best this year.

"The course was extremely fast, so it's hard to judge just how good my time was," said the Charlottesville, Va. sophomore. "Actually, I think it was comparable to my other times this season."

Other MSU finishers were Hopey Caudill at 20th, Barbara Ferris at 30th, Susan Brutscher at 35th and Cassandra Delay at 40th.

Despite Troubled Life, Linnie Stinson Grateful

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Feel worried, depressed, at the point of despair. Try prayer and seek someone about Elliott County's Linnie Stinson in that order.

"I helped raise nine children," she once said. "Seven of my own and two stepchildren." Her first husband died in 1925 of typhoid; a second marriage ended in divorce. She became ill. Arthritis began its crippling process.

She is also Morgan County's Linnie

Stinson, for she was born in Morgan and grew up on Elk Fork Creek - and this piece about her should be saved for Thanksgiving or maybe CHRISTMAS, but what day is Thanksgiving and what reason is CHRISTMAS?"

"I have so much to be thankful for. I can't praise my Lord and Savior too much. Praise His Holy Name!"

In flashbacks she once, without a touch of complaint in her voice, went through her "Job's" life. Two of her first children were crippled. She lost her first husband at 25, her second at 32. "I had to use a slang expression, jack of all trades. I could do any kind of farm work on a plug farm, harness horses, hitch to sled or wagon as good as any man."

She could cook. "I have had people tell me if they could cook like I can - or could - they would own the biggest restaurant in the U.S.A. I know how to raise a garden, and to can. I wish you

Senior Recital

Marie Kalb of Maysville will present her senior recital on Sunday, Nov. 12, in Morehead State University's Duncan Recital Hall.

The 3 p.m. soprano program will feature works by Mozart, Schubert, Bernstein, Britten, Debussy and Herbert. Earl Apel will serve as accompanist.

Ms. Kalb is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Kalb of Maysville. She is a graduate of Mason County High School.

The program is free and open to the public.

could have seen my cellar. I once canned between 2,500-2,700 quarts besides dried beans, fruit and so on. I loved to crochet, knit and piece quilts. Since I was 11 and till I was 60, I pieced 125 quilts.

She is the daughter of Ellen Ward Hutchinson, granddaughter of Ellen and Linnie Frazier Ward and Frank and Polly Day Hutchinson. "I love to trace my family. I find my great-great-grandfather Peter Day and two brothers came into Kentucky with Daniel Boone and Peter later settled at Leotox. Eli Day settled in Rowan County and the other brother Joseph in Wolfe County near Hazel Green."

How Linnie Stinson loved to write! She sent cards to shutting letters to friends. When arthritis really decided to stay with her it was more than 30 years ago. But she could write her cards and letters, her dozens of poems and songs, her more than 15 stories.

But arthritis can't read, so the disease settled in her right hand after she became bedfast 18 years ago. She began pushing her pen instead of pulling it smoothly on the page. She struggled to write her songs and words of praise. The right hand finally was so twisted and tight she gave up on it and began training her left hand to write. "You would laugh to see how I managed," she wrote me in 1968. "It was a miracle I kept right on with my left hand."

The letters and cards continued to come, with their legible but childish mixture of print and script. A friend told others about her love of correspondence, and she began hearing from people in far-away places. She received about 60 letters from children in a West Virginia school.

"My cup runneth over," she wrote. "I answered every letter. I told those children now they have to come visit me to kiss the tears of joy away and if they don't come I'll just hand them to dry in my memory as long as I live."

She has a good home with a son Edward and daughter-in-law Mabel. Her life is her bed in the small but comfortable room. On a dresser - or in the drawers now - are her scrapbooks with her writings and mementoes.

The letters stopped.

The left hand now was being affected. "I had to train myself to push the pen with my left hand instead of pull it," she wrote, the handwriting a bit difficult to read. Even the hands now are at rest. But the spirit!

"I have a certificate of being one of the biggest and best canners in state of Kentucky, but with my lame hand and lame brain - ha! No one can expect much, but it was all pastime to me. I was born again unto salvation of my soul the Word of God in year of 1917. It was seventeen. I've lived a clean life. I'm not ashamed of and am willing and satisfied to die. I lay my long life to obedience. Faith the door to heaven, but prayer is the key that unlocks the door."

He gets letters from his customers, as well as from congressmen, State agriculture officials, magazine editors and tourists from everywhere. They thank him for his hospitality, or want to know more about his unusual crop. Tant's farm has been featured in regional publications, newspapers and TV news spots.

"Probably what he enjoys the most, he says, is showing his business of visiting children around his farm. (He's a "regular" farmer the rest of the year.)

Alligator or Crocodile? Reptiles Look Alike But Have Different Snouts, Teeth, Tastes

Floating quietly at the river's edge, eyes and nostrils barely visible above water, the reptile zeroes in on the unsuspecting muskrat. Suddenly what appeared to be a harmless log comes to life and the muskrat is dragged into deep water by smashing jaws and thrashing tail.

Was that an alligator or a crocodile?

American Alligator
Photo: U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service

Both reptiles are "crocodilians" and they do look very much alike, according to the current (November) issue of Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine, the children's monthly published by the National Wildlife Federation. But there are ways to tell crocs from gators.

An alligator's snout is wide and rounded, while a crocodile's is longer, thinner, and more pointed. Those sharp teeth also are a clue - with its mouth closed, a crocodile has a big tooth protruding on each side, fitting into grooves on the outside of its upper jaw. But in alligators, those two lower teeth slip into a pocket inside his upper jaw, hidden from view.

An alligator's snout is wide and rounded, while a crocodile's is longer, thinner, and more pointed. Those sharp teeth also are a clue - with its mouth closed, a crocodile has a big tooth protruding on each side, fitting into grooves on the outside of its upper jaw. But in alligators, those two lower teeth slip into a pocket inside his upper jaw, hidden from view.

Crocodilians live in very warm, wet parts of North and South America, Africa, Asia and Australia, in swamps, marshes, lakes, rivers, or bays.

In prehistoric times some crocodiles were as much as fifty feet long.

Baby crocs and gators have many enemies - raccoons, otters, wading birds, and other larger animals. But adult crocodilians have no enemies other than man. Great numbers of baby alligators have been captured and sold as pets, although this is now illegal. And of course, millions of larger gators have been killed for their leathery skins, which are used to make shoes, handbags, luggage, and belts.

As a result, the American alligator was once nearly wiped out and was put on the U.S. endangered species list. They've made a great comeback in many areas, and in 1977 about 75 percent of U.S. alligators were reclassified from "endangered" to "threatened." Today the U.S. alligator population is estimated to total about 800,000. In contrast, the American crocodile is still in very grave danger. They exist in the U.S. only in Florida where there are about a dozen breeding farms.

With care, these mighty reptiles may escape the fate of the dinosaurs with whom they once shared the earth.

Erno Tant: Pumpkin King

PILOT, N.C. - The phone rang, and the sprightly grey-haired man checked his notebook like a presidential appointment secretary.

"Yes, I can take your group that day, but it will have to be late in the afternoon. I have a Scout troop and a school class coming earlier," he explained to the garden club director.

Beside him was a large jar of pumpkin butter, in the container over the refrigerator were some pumpkin pies, in the breadbox was some pumpkin bread, and outside in a festive autumn setting were 2,000 kingsize pumpkins.

Erno Tant is something of a legend around this eastern North Carolina community, especially in September and October. His pumpkin farm, located in every one of the eight miles north of Zebulon in Wake County, is the scene of intense activity during these months.

"Just how did Tant get into pumpkins?"

"Well, a few years back, in 1967, my wife bought four pumpkins from a roadside stand that some kids were running. We planted the seeds and the next year we had ourselves some pretty nice pumpkins. We tried to sell them on consignment to the local grocery stores but they wouldn't buy them," said Tant.

So they took their wares and made ad attractive display in their front yard. People commented on this, and a few even bought pumpkins.

The next year the couple grew a few more pumpkins, got an old wagon, some corn cobs, and added gourds and squash to their arrangement.

The October Pumpkin Festival held in Spring Hope each year puts Tant in the spotlight. He's the Pumpkin King, of course.

"They crowned me that a few years back, you know," said Tant. "I supply a large

New Liter Bottles Deceiving Public

WASHINGTON UPI - If you've argued with your liquor dealer that liter bottles of booze seem to cost more per ounce or centimeter - than the old quart or gallon jugs, you now have a government agency on your side.

A General Accounting Office study Wednesday showed wine and beer bottled in new metric containers can cost consumers up to 10.5 percent more than the old bottles.

The GAO found the Bureau of Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms approved switchover resulted in a "largely detrimental" impact on consumer prices, and said the agency should inform buyers of the change.

The switch to metric bottling will be completed for wines at the beginning of 1979 and for liquors a year later.

The GAO found wines increased in price by 10.5 percent when changed from a four-fifths quart bottle to a 750-milliliter container.

The increase was even more - 10.5 percent - for the conversion of one-half gallon to 1.8-liter change cost consumers a 6.7 percent price hike.

For distilled spirits, the price went up 6.1 percent in the change from one-half gallon to 1.75 liters; 0.7 percent in the conversion of four-fifths quart to 750 milliliters; and 11.4 percent when then the half-pint was converted to a 200-milliliter container.

VANCEBURG — A 22-year-old Dayton, Ohio, woman told State Police she was kidnapped at gunpoint Tuesday and jumped out of the car here to escape.
Evelyn Erwin advised Kentucky State Police that she was leaving a Dayton grocery store when a man jumped in her car with a knife.
She reportedly was able to escape Wednesday by jumping from the car and running to the home of Merrill Osborne, of Ky. 1149, eight miles south of Vanceburg.
Osborne then called state police who are investigating.
Ms. Erwin said the suspect was medium in build with brown eyes and long straight hair.
He is traveling in an unknown direction in Ms. Erwin's car which is a '65 white Chevrolet with the left side window broken out.

Education Industry

Since World War II the American educational system has developed until it has become an industry. Unlike other industries, however, its product is an intangible and its dividend hard to assess.

One point is obvious: It is an expensive industry and includes waste, not only of money but of human material.

In past generations, education was something for which the individual, if he wanted it, had to work. It was not arrayed for him like a banquet table from which he could pick and choose, or reject altogether.

In its free abundance our educational system has overlooked a basic fact of human nature. The over-generous man forfeits respect by his gifts and in the end wins only contempt. And it is so with everything that is given too freely.

The error lies in the belief that all children, whatever their latent abilities, will benefit greatly if exposed to teaching long enough.

To expose all to the same fare under the mistaken idea that it is "equal opportunity for all" is foolish. It should be recognized that there are children who cannot learn certain subjects.

Not everyone can become a doctor, a scientist, a lawyer or a teacher. Full, happy and useful lives can be lived outside the strict limits of intellectual accomplishment. Too many competent teachers waste their hours trying to force knowledge into minds that do not want to receive it.

Our education system has become an industry too often more concerned with quantity than quality, and so it is self-defeating. This is a simple fact, and the price we pay for overlooking it is high in wasted time, human material and money.

Puzzling Turnaround

Reminding us how little we sometimes know about what is happening around us, after years of steadily climbing U.S. crime rates are on the decline. And no one knows why.

According to FBI records, serious crime dropped four percent between 1976 and 1977. The trend continued for the first quarter of this year and there are indications it also carried over into the second quarter.

One possible explanation offered for a dropping crime rate is that youths comprise a smaller percentage of the population because of a declining birth rate. But the U.S. Census Bureau says the 14-to-29 age group — usually a high crime group — actually increased in the last two years.

At least this is one puzzle which seems heading in the right direction.

Bonanza Beckons Again

Prospectors of old who spent a large part of their lives panning for traces of yellow dust in creeks and rivers all over the West collectively took a fortune from the earth. What they left behind may be worth far more, thanks to modern mining techniques and the soaring price of gold.

With gold now listed at more than $225 an ounce, mining consortiums are taking a new look at some of the prospectors' favorite haunts.

A Canadian mining company has returned to the source of the gold rush of 1848, California's Mother Lode country, with hopes of melting its first gold in November.

Except for the Homestake Gold Mine in Lead, S.D., and a few smaller operations, gold mining hasn't amounted to much in the United States for many years. But that is because for most of that time the price of gold was fixed by law at $35 an ounce.

Now that the free market prevails and the dollar's devaluation is pushing up the price of gold on world markets, the situation is radically different.

Many of the old gold mines quit operations, not because they ran out of gold ore, but because mining was unprofitable either because of the low price of the mineral or obstacles such as underground water.

The present price of gold has changed all that. Week-end panners still looking for that trace could find crowded creeks once again, with major mining companies vying for long abandoned diggings. A new gold rush could be underway.

Protecting Goblins

Halloween is an event looked forward to with great anticipation by youngsters. With a little help from parents and older brothers and sisters, the evening devoted to witches, ghosts and an eerie array of costumed merry-makers can fulfill those expectations.

While the costume is an essential part of Halloween festivities, it deserves special attention from a safety standpoint. Loose-fitting garments and face masks are not the easiest garments to wear while making the rounds.

Costumes should be short enough that an unsuspecting youngster will not trip over his feet or an unseen object. Masks ought to hide identities, but not sight.

Halloweening in small groups can be less terrifying and more enjoyable than doing a solo goblin act, and is safer, especially if at least one member of the party carries a flashlight. Parents ought not forget the motorist, who may or may not be on the lookout for unexpected dark objects flying across his path. Brightly colored costumes help.

A few simple precautions will assure a safe and happy Halloween. Is that not what the occasion is all about?

Agree Or Not . . .

FRANKFORT — Lack of information supplied to participants probably is the chief cause for recommendations to cancel a personal service contract.

The Personal Service Contract Review Subcommittee recommended cancellation of the contract The Public Employees Benefit Service Corp. has with the Deferred Compensation Board.

Robert Doris, administrator for the subcommittee said the cancellation recommendation is being mailed to David Edwards, director of the Deferred Compensation Board.

Doris said the subcommittee has received many complaints that PEBSO has furnished inaccurate statements in the past and there is too much lag between the time state employee money is deposited before it goes to earning for him.

PEBSO has an office in Frankfort but is controlled by the parent firm of Davenport and Dillard in Oklahoma City, Okla. The contract has a ceiling of $50,000 per year, but Edwards says his board pays the firm only $1,800 per month or $21,000 per year. PEBSO also gets $3 for each new participant, a one-time charge for getting his name set up in the program.

Employees of the state, the university system and public schools are eligible to participate in the program of depositing part of their salaries in the deferred compensation plan. Edwards says about a half million dollars comes in each month.

The employee can choose one of several plans for investment of his money with several insurance companies. The companies make a six percent charge on each paycheck for handling the investment. Since this deduction is made, Edwards says it takes about 18 months to gain back to the original amount invested.

However, the advantage to the participant that is not paying state or federal income tax on the money he invests, hence the name of deferred compensation. The participant has the advantage of using the money he otherwise would have paid out in taxes. He isn't taxed for the money until he withdraws it and its earnings. He has two ways to withdraw it. Wait until he retires, or can prove a hardship.

After retirement he will be having less earned income, and his taxes theoretically will be lower because he will be in a lower tax bracket. He also reduces his tax bracket by the amount he is paying in while he is working.

Edwards said PEBSO first started issuing a quarterly statements to participants. However, only the year end statements showed the earnings since the insurance companies credit the earnings as of December 31 each year. Also, while there are two state pay days per month, the insurance companies invest the money only once a month. This provides a time lag.

There is no limit on what a participant may invest each month. The more he invests, the more federal and state taxes he defers and earns interest on the dollars that would have gone to government in taxes.

Edwards said PEBSO had changed to a larger computer system and had many errors in the first statements issued with the new computer. He also said PEBSO now furnishes only an annual statement since the quarterly statements would show no gain.

About 5,000 employees are now participating in the program. Doris said as he views it, lack of public relations and keeping the participants informed is probably the cause of much of the discontent. Edwards agreed in principle with this.

The next step is for Edwards and his board to agree to the cancellation or disagree. If Edwards wants to retain PEBSO, his board can do so. The subcommittee does not have the authority to cancel a contract. The subcommittee is recommending the matter to the Appropriation and Revenue committee for action by the 1980 legislature.

I would like to know what the Magistrate Mr. Lemuel Black means when he says the county employees are sitting around at the garage.

I do not think Mr. Black really knows what is going on over the entire county. The county roads are in the best shape that they have been in for the past eight years.

The employees of the county are some of the finest and hard working workers. For Mr. Black to say such obvious statements as he said last week in the paper only discredits his ability as an elected official.

Whoever is in charge of the county road system is doing a great job and we need less of such statements as Mr. Lemuel Black is making.

Lets get ready for this bad winter that's coming.

TOOTH Facts & Fancies

While many people struggle tooth and nail to maintain the health of their teeth because they know they can grow new ones there actually have been a few cases of people late in life growing a third set of teeth. There was even a report in 1896 of someone growing a fourth set.

According to superstition if you drink from a dirty pail your teeth will fall out. Not true, but anyone finding your teeth will be able to control your every action.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

Some people say . . .

In many areas of the country, local tax programs are inequitable because the home owner, through property taxes, supports a disproportionate share of total government budgets. The home owner "pays" for services that he does not use, or pays tax on services he needs and must have because these services are specially taxed for general purposes.

The above viewpoint does not necessarily represent the opinion of this newspaper or its staff. It does represent one side of a current topic of American conversation. The editor invites your comments.

Letters Welcome

Our "Letters to the Editor" column has, in the past, occasionally carried letters of a "thank you" nature. This type letter no longer will be used in the column inasmuch as we are of the opinion that "thank you notes" do not have general reader interest and only provide an easy way out for what should be a more personalized, sincere note of appreciation by organizations to those who help in their projects.

The Morehead News "Letters to the Editor" column will be reserved for those wishing to express opinions on subjects about which they feel strongly and have no other means of disseminating their thoughts.

We welcome your letters for publication in the column. They should be addressed to The Editor, The Morehead News, 722-730 West First Street, Morehead, Ky. 40351. They should be typewritten if possible and signed include your address and telephone number for verification.

Teen Loses Fingers

NEW YORK UPR — A 16-year-old high school student blew off his fingertips in an explosion Wednesday night that he apparently touched off while playing with a chemistry set in his parent's exclusive Manhattan apartment, police said.

Nicholas Karp was taken from his home to Lenox Hill Hospital. Hospital officials would not release details of his condition because his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Karp, were out of town.
A maid answering the phone at the apartment, located a few blocks from Mayor Edward Koch's Gracie Mansion residence, said the Karp's were due to return to New York today.
The youth attended the Collegiate School, a Manhattan preparatory school.

Your... Social Security

By: David Bryan — Ashland District Mgr. For Social Security Information write: District Social Security Offices 1816 Carter Avenue — Ashland, Ky.; Phone 325-7666.

A new provision of the social security law may have an important effect on the retirement plans of working couples if one of them works in public employment not covered by social security. David Bryan social security district manager in Ashland said recently.

Under the old law, the spouse of a person whose work was covered by social security could get a benefit as a husband or wife regardless of his or her pension income from sources other than social security.

Under the new law, the person's social security benefit as a dependent or survivor will be reduced by the amount of any pension he or she receives based on his or her own work in public employment not covered by social security. This work could be for the Federal government or any State or local government.

Under an exception in the law, a governmental pension will not affect a social security dependent or survivor benefit if the person becomes eligible for the pension before December 1982, and at the time the person applies for or becomes entitled to a social security benefit as a dependent or survivor, the person could have qualified for that benefit under the law as it was in January 1977.

In January 1977 men had to prove they were actually dependent on their wives to be eligible for benefits as a husband or widower, Bryan said.

A governmental pension will have no effect on a person's social security benefit based on his or her own work covered by social security.

More information about the effect of governmental pensions on social security benefits can be obtained at the Ashland social security office, located at 1816 Carter Avenue.

Sheriff's Office Open Saturday

The Rowan County Sheriff's Office will be open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. tomorrow for the collection of taxes. This will be the last Saturday before the two percent tax deduction is lost.

Opinion—

matter is now over. "I want to get on with the business of the city. I wish to state emphatically that I don't intend to allow any of the responsibilities of the elected office of mayor to be delegated to a non-elected office such as city administrator. I was elected to serve the people of Morehead, and I intend to do so."

Jackson said that one factor that has led to the recent disputes between the mayor and the council is that "Morehead has never had a full-time mayor before. When I ran for this office, I ran on the platform that I would be a full-time mayor, and I intend to live up to that."

The song "Greenies" is believed to have been composed by King Henry VIII.

Lagging—

called a 'Media-thon'. Dr. Ben Flora, a member of the board of directors, is in charge of the event which will be televised over the campus TV station. The Media-thon will be telecast on TV 2 from 1 to 9 p.m. and will feature entertainment from local talent.

"The purpose of the Media-thon is to entertain as well as educate the listener as to what United Way is all about," Dr. Flora said.

He said there will be a chance for people to call in pledges and each one will be read over the air. "Just the names and not the contribution," he points out. Gross and his group hopes the community will come through in the last days to put Rowan County's contribution well beyond the $25,000 goal.

"I think they will," he said with confidence. "But it's going to take a lot more work from us."

Those wanting to contribute may contact Gross or Dr. Flora at 785-3107.

Steam heat has been around since 1845 when it was first installed in Boston's Eastern Hotel.

Cable TV Rate Increase Approved

Rowan Fiscal Court yesterday approved a 50-cent rate increase for cable TV in the county thus ending a six-month controversy.

In a ping-pong negotiating session between County Judge Executive Willard Flannery and Joe Taylor, representing the TV cable company, the court agreed to modify the existing franchise to increase the rates 50 cents per month for basic service and 50 cents per month for each additional connector.

Fiscal Court also voted to accept three percent of the gross revenue for cable TV retroactive to Jan. 1, 1978. The rate increase brings the monthly rate to $7.

Taylor, representing the Morehead-Olive Hill Cable TV and its parent company, OVC Telecommunications based in Lexington, asked that an additional 50 cent increase be made as soon as the system added more channels.

The court, however, requested he report back in six months on progress and service in the county.

Mrs. Jean Buckner, who presented a petition requesting the rate increase at last month's court session, appeared again yesterday on behalf of more than 100 residents on US 32 East who desired the service and were willing to pay the rate to get it.

"I'll even volunteer to handle any complaints should they come up concerning cable TV in my area," she said.

Morehead City Council granted the company a 50 cent increase in May to make its monthly rates $6.50. The cable company in turn gives back five percent of its gross revenue to the city.

In other business, the court voted to lay off seven county road employees from Nov. 3 to Dec. 1 in order to cut back on spending. The employees can be called back if an emergency or need arises.

Two budgetary amendments were adopted giving $2,892 to the Boone Regional Emergency Medical Service to match a fund for new communications equipment and $495 from the state for the Rowan County Emergency Shelter.

In other action the court voted to: Purchase two speed limit signs for Pleasant Valley Subdivision and five no dumping signs to be distributed in the county.

Increase the salary of Jesse Anderson, road foreman, to $4.22 per hour. Purchase 500 feet of bridge timber for emergency repairs.

Insure county voting machines valued at $30,000 against damage, theft or vandalism.

Retain Lonas Perry to drive the Senior Citizens bus at $2.65 per hour until the position goes back on the CETA program.

Assign the new road truck to Ted Moore and the old truck to Ray Bowman.

County Receives $48,000

Rowan County Treasurer Pruda Shay told Fiscal Court yesterday that $48,000 has been received from the federal government in lieu of taxes on federal lands.

Mrs. Shay also reported that $11,000 is the balance due on Road and Bridge Refunding Bonds purchased in 1942 for $56,000. The balance is due between now and April 1, 1982, the date they mature.
