Young-Holt Unlimited To Appear Thursday

By TIM WALDEN

Down through the history of popular music you can find groups that have come up with the magic formula which results in fame, fortune and success. Generally it takes months and even years of hard conscientious work in the fields of recording and entertainment to bring all the parts of this formula together into a hit record.

The odds against this kind of success ever happening to an unknown group with their first recording, are tremendous, but such is the case with the Young-Holt Unlimited. With the release of their very first single, "Wack Wack," which became an immediate bestseller, The Young-Holt Unlimited found themselves charter members of that select circle of performers whose talents became public knowledge through a so called "overnight-success."

Those of you familiar with the famous "Ramsey Lewis sound" are also familiar with the co-leaders of Young-Holt Unlimited, bassist Eldee Young and drummer Isaac Holt. Together they represented two-thirds of the sound that sold hundreds of thousands of albums and singles under the name of the

Ramsey Lewis Trio, who had such hits as "The In Crowd" and "Hang On Sloopy."

Young-Holt Unlimited, however, is not an extension of the sound they helped make a household word—and for a very good reason. His name is Ken Chaney, a swinging pianist from Alberta, Canada.

Appeared On TV

Since the group was formed, it has appeared on many top television shows such as The Fred Astaire Special, Johnny Carson, Joey Bishop, David Frost, Mike Douglas, Della Reese, The Upbeat Show, Dick Clark and the TV movie special "Trial Run."

As a result of the fantastic success of their single "Soulful Strut," as well as the album by the same name, Young-Holt Unlimited has emerged as one of the brightest and most popular performers on the music scene.

This Thursday night the trio will appear with Roberta Flack on stage in the Laughlin Fieldhouse as part of the Student Government Concert Series. Students will be admitted on their ID. Tickets for nonstudents are $3.50, available in the University Center.

'The Odd Couple' Opens Thursday For Eight-Night Run

"The Odd Couple," Neil Simon's award-winning comedy, opens an eight-night run Thursday.

The play will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday this week and Feb. 22-26 next week, in the MSU Little Theater. Admission is $1.50 for non-students.

Jim Maggard, Ashland junior, and Ron Harris, Louisville freshman, portray the lead roles of Felix and Oscar, two divorced men who try to save money by sharing an apartment.

Suzi Kinnison, Jackson junior, is the student director, and Connie Wells, Wilkesville, Ohio, senior, is the student scene and light designer for the MSU Theater production.

A tour of nine Eastern Kentucky high schools, during which 5,500 students will view the play in five days, is planned for Feb. 28 through March 3. The tour is sponsored by MSU's Upward Bound program.

Following a successful Broadway run, the Neil Simon play was made into a motion picture. The current television series by the same name is based on Simon's play.

The tour schedule includes:

Feb. 28, Bath County High School, 9 a.m.; Rowan County High School, 1:30 p.m.

Feb. 29, Maysville High School, 8:30 a.m.; Fleming County High School, 1 p.m.

March 1, McKell High School, 9:10 a.m.; Greenup High School, 1 p.m.

March 2, Boyd County High School, 8:30 a.m.; Rock Hill High School, Lawrence County, Ohio, 1 p.m.

March 3, Morgan County High School, 9:30 a.m.

Intercession Offers Many Advantages For Students

By MIKE CRUSHAM

For a number of years Morehead State University had a "post-summer" session in which a student could earn up to four hours in a single subject in three weeks time. Last year when the fall and spring schedules were shifted to fall on either side of the Christmas-New Year holiday period, "Intercession" was initiated under the direction of Dr. Edward E. Coates, at the end of the spring semester instead of the end of summer.

Dr. Coates said the new plan, which introduced several innovative courses, was a pronounced success and another has been scheduled this spring for May 22 - June 9.

Its primary purpose is to offer regular courses to students who wish to accelerate their academic program, to relieve academic probation, or to get in that extra course that is needed for graduation.

Intercession will serve both faculty and student interests. It will be a time to study contemporary issues and perform specific research projects. It will provide opportunity to pilot innovations in courses, in instruction techniques, and in administrative procedures which may prove useful during the regular school year.

Courses to be offered will be those regularly listed in the catalog along with some designed particularly for Intercession. Innovative courses will be numbered 399G in whatever field of study it falls. The "G" designation makes the course available to both undergraduates and graduate students, but is not available for freshmen or sophomores.

The primary advantage of Intercession for most students is that only one course is taken in a concentrated day-to-day manner, without the usual distractions that go along with taking several courses, and with a stronger feeling of continuity than when a class meets only two or three times a week. Additionally, for the would-be graduate Intercession allows a student to get in "that needed course" before summer graduation, which post session did not.

There will be 15 hours of classroom contact for every semester hour of credit. In most instances this will be accomplished by scheduling three hours a day, 9 a.m. to 12 a.m. Monday through Friday.

One hour courses will meet for the first week only, two hour courses for two weeks, and three hour courses for the entire Intercession. Four hour courses will also meet for three weeks but four hours a day from 8-12. Final exams will be on the last day of class.

Four hours credit is the limit that a student can earn during this period of classes. Most people sign up for a three-hour class during intercession. However, any combination of classes that add up to four hours is permissible, such as a three-hour course and a one-hour activity course combination.

Intercession will cost a Kentucky resident $11 per undergraduate semester hour, $14 a graduate hour. Non residents will be charged $32 and $42 dollars respectively. These are the same costs as those listed in the regular MSU fee schedule. Housing will cost $8.50 a week and there will be a 50 cent post office fee. Meals will be available in the cafeteria. Any extra costs, such as for field trips, will be taken care of by the student.

One of the musts for Intercession is that a minimum number of people must sign up for a course to be offered. Unlike the regular semester classes, Intercession classes must be self-supporting. For each semester-hour a professor teaches, he receives $200 salary. Last year a minimum of 10 students were required for a course to be offered. Arrangements for a

Jim Maggard, Ashland junior, and Ron Harris, Louisville freshman, will hold down the lead parts in "The Odd Couple" which will open Thursday night in the MSU Little Theater.

Senate Discusses Rights

By TIM POLLITT

After two and a half hours discussing one of the 55 points in the proposed Student Bill of Rights, the University Senate continued its consideration of the bill until the next meeting.

The bill was submitted by the Committee on Student Rights, Responsibilities, and Privileges, consisting of Dan Egbers, chairman, Mike Mayhew, Student Council president; Dean Roger Wilson, Mark Altenburger and Alex Conyers, Senate members.

Dr. William Clark opened the discussion saying that "historically" the only time anyone is interested in a bill of rights is when they are unhappy with matters that have arisen from suppression. Clark asked if the students felt they were suppressed, and if they felt they really needed such a bill.

Section 7 was discussed, involving the principle of a faculty member keeping in confidence any information about students unless compelled by law. An argument against this was that it would hamper a faculty member in giving a student a recommendation.

Dr. James Clark proposed an amendment to describe the confidential information as any which would be "prejudicial." Senator Cathy Crusie proposed to amend this by adding, "or with evidence of the student's consent." The meeting ended on a motion for adjournment by Dr. Morris Norfleet.

ZPG Chapter

The national population control group, Zero Population Growth is in the process of forming a chapter in Morehead.

ZPG was founded in December, 1968 by Dr. Paul Ehrlich of Stanford, Charles Remington of Yale, and Richard M. Bowers, an attorney. ZPG's offices were first held in Old Mystic, Conn., but because of its popularity in the West, it moved its offices to Los Altos, Calif. As of January, 1972, ZPG had 35,000 members in 400 chapters spread across the nation.

The main purpose of ZPG is to curb the population, first in the United States, then in the rest of the world. ZPG urges people to reduce the birthrate by having no more than two natural children, and to adopt if they want more than two children. ZPG endorses the education in various available birth control methods.

ZPG is involved in many projects. It has set up lobbying offices in Washington, trying to get legislation favoring population control. Members have taken on individual projects such as last year, most of them signed a pledge promising not to buy a new car, until air-polluting engines were removed.

Anyone interested in joining ZPG should contact Ted Coakley, 11 Normal Hall, MSU or call 784-9615.

Cold Coeds — Even freezing temperatures was not enough to keep these two coeds from enjoying a rest on campus last week.

Club To Visit State Capital

Members of the Political Science Club will visit the Kentucky Capital next Tuesday, Feb. 22, to watch the legislature in session. Non-members may also attend on request.

Dr. Jack Bissell, head of the Political Science Department, and Gary S. Cox, assistant professor, arranged details of the trip on a visit to Frankfort Feb. 4.

Dr. Bissell said students would sit in on committee meetings and would meet with the state representative for Rowan County.

As many as 45 students may travel on the University bus and additional transportation is being planned if necessary. Cost of the trip is $1 per member and $2 for non-members. Interested students may see Dr. Bissell in Radar 205 or any member of the Political Science Club.

Debate Team Yields After Six Rounds

Winning all of their debates in the six preliminary rounds, an accomplishment enjoyed by no other college or university, a MSU varsity team composed of Kathy Crusie and Ron Mather, qualified for the quarter finals at the University of Iowa Invitational Tournament on Feb. 4 and 5.

This particular team, then, was eliminated in the quarter finals by the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, a team that Morehead had previously defeated in the preliminaries.

Among the teams that Morehead conquered in the preliminaries were Northwestern, MacMurray, Eastern Illinois University, Coe College of Cedar Rapids, South Eastern Missouri University, and Milwaukee.

"This latest accomplishment" according to coach Mrs. G.C. Webb, "is outstanding for two reasons:

"First, the team achieved the status of the top team emerging from the eliminations. According to the Iowa Director of Debate, Morehead was first until the semi-finals.

"Second, this group engaged in a very professional contest at a 'Big Ten University' against formidable opponents from the Northwest."

In addition to these debaters who qualified for quarters, another varsity team, Susan Washburn and Pete Marcum and a junior group, Joe Fowler and Dan Grison participated with distinction in the Iowa City Tournament. Fighting such foes as Northwestern, Macalester, Morningside College, University of Nebraska, University of Northern Iowa, and the University of South Dakota, some members in this group placed in the top ten speakers.

Accompanying the group and judging the two-day event were Marvin Philips and Mrs. Webb.

Emergency Council Idealistic, Impractical

During the last week of 1971, a meeting was held of some 70 individuals from 19 countries to announce the formation of an Emergency Council of World Trustees (ECWT). The goals set forth for this organization were to "rescue Planet Earth and its inhabitants from destruction."

The Emergency Council issued a First Decree for the Protection of Life on Dec. 29. This decree was signed by 229 persons from 54 countries, and would go into effect as soon as it is ratified by groups of students and professors at 20 universities or by the signatures of at least 10 million individuals in 20 countries.

The Decree outlaws the production, installation and use of nuclear weapons and all weapons of mass destruction, and it specifies that "officials in government, the military forces, industry, scientific work, education or labor who may be responsible for violations of the decree after its effective ratification shall be guilty of war crimes and crimes against humanity."

The call for the first convening of a world parliament would be not later than January 10, 1974, a mere two years to obtain the proposed support needed. The Parliament would be directed by the call "to prepare world legislation dealing with the urgent problems confronting the people of Earth," which in the words of the Decree, "threaten humanity with the breakdown of society, misery and death in multiple ways before the end of the century."

Another duty of the Parliament would be to adopt a constitution for a democratical federal world government, "with a legislature elected by the people of Earth which can put human priorities first."

The basic purposes are to outlaw war and war preparation, to convene a

Peoples World Parliament for continuous work, to prepare a Constitution for Federal World Government for submission to the Parliament, to appoint global legislative commissions to prepare legislation on urgent world problems for submission to the Parliament, and to take other appropriate action leading to the establishment of a Provisional World Government under democratic popular control.

Have these people never heard of the United Nations? Everything they have set aside to do, the U.N. has already undertaken. However, the main difference is the way its purposes are stated. The United Nations was formed to keep world peace, while the Emergency Council of World Trustees has been formed to outlaw war. Isn't this saying basically the same thing?

As of the end of January, only 229 people had signed this decree. These people were from 54 countries, but 36 of these were the countries of Africa, Asia, and Latin America; 120 of the 229 signees were students.

These statistics form a pitifully poor challenge to the established United Nations. As proved by the failure of the League of Nations, no world organization can succeed without the endorsement by the great world powers, and so far this has not been given. Perhaps a combined effort of the UN and the ECWT would provide a more workable solution.

The ultimate goal of the ECWT is to get to million people from 20 countries to sign their decree. Roughly, this amounts to .002 per cent of the world population and a small fraction of the countries of the world. While idealistically the ECWT is good, it is neither practical, nor will it ever succeed.

Campaign Reform: Mock Capital Not Answer

With the cost of campaigning rising, especially for the presidential race, campaign reform is constantly needed. Since awareness of the problem is growing, many suggested solutions have come to the forefront. One of the most unique was put forth by a national magazine.

The magazine suggests both incumbent and challenging candidates cease campaigning. The president would then be free to devote full attention to the affairs of state and the opponent could set up a mock government, preferably in another city (as far from Washington as possible) to demonstrate his ability to administer the government.

The opposition candidate could even appoint cabinet members to advise him. Daily press conferences would be held to brief the press on what the mock government would be doing. As a crisis arises, the action of the real government could be compared to that of the mock government.

Not only would costs be lessened, because of traveling and national advertising spending cuts, the new administration would be established and ready to take over if the opposition candidate wins. This novel idea is good on paper, but unfortunately would not work in practice.

It would be hard to persuade the men who would serve in a real cabinet to take a position in a mock cabinet. If a man were of the calibre necessary to hold a cabinet office, he would probably hold a high government office before his appointment. Persuading a man to give up a good job to "play government," especially since there is no guarantee the candidate would be elected, would be a tremendously difficult task.

Another problem would be a staff. A private candidate, or even a party, would be hard pressed to employ enough people to give the mock government parity with the real thing.

Accurate decisions in crisis situations would be impossible. At his command, the president has two large investigatory agencies to give him a nearly complete picture of the situation. An opposition candidate wouldn't have access to as much information. Even if the decision could be made, there would be no way to test its effectiveness, since the decision couldn't actually be implemented.

Election reform is needed, but the mock government system would be just what its name implies, a fake way of judging a candidate's worthiness for an office.

Problems Of Bangladesh Lessened By CARE

The troubles of Bangladesh are not over. Although, with India's help, it has won its much desired independence, its problems are many.

In March of 1971, the people of East Pakistan demanded a larger share in the government of their country. Since West Pakistan would not relinquish control, a civil war broke out. The Bengalis of East Pakistan were being badly beaten when India stepped in. On December 16, 1971, after only two weeks of fighting, the Pakistani forces in Dacca, the capital of East Pakistan, surrendered. East Pakistan became Bangladesh, and an independent nation.

It has now been almost two months since the end of the war, and Bangladesh is beginning to receive aid to repair the ravages of war.

One of the agencies with a program of aid is CARE, the international relief agency. It has begun a program to build 7,500 houses in Bangladesh to replace some of those destroyed by the war. The estimated cost of the project is $2 million.

A concert was given in New York some months ago called "George Harrison and Friends." Among the "friends" present were Ringo Starr and Bob Dylan. The proceeds of this concert went to the aid of Bangladesh. An album entitled "Bangladesh" was recorded at this concert and is now for sale. The proceeds from the album will also go to Bangladesh.

Many other agencies and private individuals are also giving aid to Bangladesh.

We support the work of these organizations and individuals who are trying to do what they can to make the world a little bit better.

Cheap Night At The Auction

By AL SALVATO

I have often heard auction buffs talk about the great deals they procured at country auctions, but I have also heard of so-called fly-by-night auctioneers who pass off second-grade merchandise at top quality prices.

Nevertheless, I admit to a feeling of eagerness when my wife pointed to several large posters nailed to fence posts, barns and sundry other places for miles along the highways and by-ways alerting those with bargain-hunting instincts to the forthcoming auction Saturday at 8 p.m.

Without realizing the popularity of country auctions, my wife and I arrived a few minutes past 8 p.m., consequently standing in the corner behind two slightly intoxicated fellows, the smallest standing about six foot four inches tall. For about ten minutes we stood behind this oscillating wall of Wrangler overalls until I spotted a stool. You know, one of those small round piano stools you used when mom and dad were forcing you to take lessons?

"That stool would be perfect," I thought, "one of us could sit for a spell, then the other."

After consulting with the wife about how we were going to get by these fellows, we decided to just tap one of them on the shoulder and ask him to move and let us by. I wasn't too worried about the other fellow because he had had just enough to drink and would sway right along with his friend.

Perhaps my hand was too high on the fellow's shoulder or no one else in the audience had made a bid on what was up for auction, but we were soon to be the new owners of a three legged, unfinished, slightly scratched and Magic-Marked, used table for $20.

I knew I had done something wrong the moment I heard that jabbering auctioneer chant "20 bucks to the dude in the corner." From that moment on, all I could think was "maybe someone will outbid me."

Fat chance.

Everyone including the auctioneer probably thought I wanted the table pretty badly, so within two minutes the auctioneer pounded a broken handled hammer against an already cracked wooden wall making the sale final. I paid my bill half-smiling, half-crying and was completely embarrassed.

For about an hour afterwards, I stared at our table now standing in a corner almost out of sight of the audience.

"Maybe my bid was an unwitting one," I thought, "but we needed a table just that size for my side of the bed." With a little sanding and refinishing and a new leg, it

AGAHHHHHH!

The president of Frostburg State College in Frostburg, Maryland, is trying to keep his campus from being torn up by a strip mine.

The proposed strip mine would be located on a portion of the campus for which the State Highway Commission acquired land many years ago, neglecting to acquire the mineral rights to the land as well, the Washington Post reported in May.

Frostburg President, Dr. Nelson R. Guild, has urged the state to acquire the mineral rights before the Georges Creek Big Vein Coal Co. and the Winner Brothers Coal Co. start mining operations. He warned the state that the mine might provoke "an ugly and unavoidable confrontation" between persons who want to preserve our environment intact and those who wish to exploit it. Guild added that he felt "that the price to be paid in terms of human reaction and of the orderly development . . . would ultimately be much higher than any economic gain to be realized by the state."

Inscape Poetry Reading Creates Mellow Atmosphere

By ELAINE BAGFORD

From Shelly to Jolly, from the whimsical to the melancholy, sensitive poets and musicians expressed their crafts Thursday night in the mellow atmosphere of the art building's student lounge.

The capacity audience responded intensively to the dynamic readings and performances of Dr. Ruth Barnes, Katie Clark, Doris Ludwick, and Roberta Webster.

The audience was also presented with some very exciting Danish poetry by Karen Morton, who read and translated the poetry in both English and Danish. Another outstanding presentation was given by a girl called Bear. Her original and unusual poetic style was one of the best of the evening.

Other equally enjoyable and exciting performers at the reading were: Mike Greene, Al Jouett, Sharon Sandifer, Barbara Shackelford and Paul Jolly.

The entire evening moved right along under the direction of Inscape editor, Ruth Rundell.

AASCU Helps Institutions, Like MSU, To Grow

By JOYCE CROUCH

What is the future of Morehead State University and other college institutions of this country? Will they grow and satisfy the needs of students? And what is the AASCU?

With the dawn of the 70's state colleges and universities began taking a long, careful look at themselves. It was the beginning of new development, and colleges and universities had a distinctive role to play in higher education. Now, America's state colleges and universities are the fastest-growing degree-granting institutions in higher education today and educate one out of every four students.

The AASCU is the American Association of State Colleges and Universities. The members of this National Commission were chosen to reflect a wide variety of backgrounds and interests, ranging from students and educators to concerned citizens.

Morehead State University has Dr. Morris L. Norfleet of Research and Development as a member of this committee. Being part of the Campus Action Teams, Dr. Norfleet is seeking the strong and weak points of this University and institutions throughout.

With such a program the future of Morehead and other college institutions will continue to grow, not just for the students of today but for the students of tomorrow.

'Fifty Print' Show Is Dynamic Collection

By ELAINE BAGFORD

The movement of sensitive line and the varying directness of detail in combination with many exciting and unusual subject studies make the exhibit, "Fifty Prints by Fifty Printmakers" one of the most dynamic collections of art work ever on display in the Claypool-Young Gallery.

In the gallery one may find a wide variety of printmaking techniques, including a large serigraph entitled "The Philosopher" by Ben Shahn, a lithograph in the traditionally exciting style of Honore Damier entitled "Theatre Loge" and a particularly sensitive etching entitled "Artist and Apprentice" by Pablo Picasso.

Many other equally noted artists such as Rodin, Groz and Renoir display techniques in engraving, color etching, and drypoint.

The prints are from the collection of William C. Estler, and the exhibition was organized by the Huntington Galleries of Huntington, W.Va. The works will be on display through Feb. 27.

would look nearly new and we could call it our first antique." Not once since the bid did I look down at the stool to see the expression on my wife's face. I felt bad enough already, so why make it worse.

Free For The Taking

A few minutes later the auctioneer was holding up a vase with brown and gold swirls through it. I kept thinking "it would look really pretty sitting on our newly acquired table," when the auctioneer announced he was giving the vase to the people who bought the little table for $20. I couldn't figure out if that was an insult or the man felt sorry for us. The moment the helper put the vase on the table, the whole thing collapsed, breaking off another leg. Thank goodness the man saved the vase.

We left shortly afterwards with the remains of the table in a burlap bag. All the way home my wife and I were hysterical — with laughter, that is.

I managed to fix the broken leg with some wood cement but never got around to putting a fourth leg on. That doesn't worry me because it stands up really well on three legs and we have been especially careful not to put anything on our first antique.

Little Eagles Now 10-4 Johnson Leading Scorer

By VERNON STAPLETON

The MSU Little Eagles have progressed to a 10-4 record this season. They have not played since they defeated Prestonsburg Community College on February 5.

The Frosh are led in scoring by their outstanding forward, Arch Johnson, who is averaging almost 26 points per game. Mark Hudson is scoring at a 24.4 average, Glen Turner, 13.5, James Washington, 11.9 and Eugene Frye rounds out the Frosh with a 10.5 per game average. Leading reserve scorer has been Larry Brown throwing in about 5 points per game.

Mark Hudson holds down the most points in a single game this season with 39, and Arch Johnson had a 37 point outing.

The top safety grabber for the Little Eagles have been Mark Hudson averaging 12.6, Eugene Frye, 11.2 and Arch Johnson pulling down 9.5.

Team wise the Little Eagle squad have out gunned their opponents on offensive scoring average at a 91.4 clip, while holding the opponents to 78.8 points per game on defense.

The Frosh will try to extend a happy Valentine to fans Monday night against Sue Bennett Junior College on their own floor.

MSU Downs Austin Peay Still Tied For OVC Lead Down ISU Lose To Toledo

By DAVID MALLOY

The Eagles upped their record to 11-8 with an 100-97 victory over Austin Peay Saturday night. The Eagles are still tied for the lead in the Ohio Valley Conference with a 5-3 mark.

Both teams were red hot from the floor in the first half as Austin Peay hit for 53.5 per cent and MSU hit on 24 of 48 for 50 per cent. The difference came in the rebounding department as the Eagles had the edge 28-18.

Austin Peay was sparked in the first half by John Reid as he came off the bench to score 14 points. Howard Wallen led all scorers at halftime with 16. The game was virtually free of fouls as the bonus was not in effect in either half.

For the game MSU hit on 44 of 84 shots for a fine 52.4 per cent. Austin Peay was even better hitting 45 of 81 for 55.6 per cent. The Eagles really shinned from the free throw line as they hit 12 of 14 charity tosses.

All five of the MSU starters hit in double figures as Howard Wallen led all scorers with 30 points. He was followed by Leonard Coulter with 24, Eugene Lyons with 16, Bill Dotson with 12 and Ron Nicholson with 11. Four APSU players hit in double figures led by Eddie Childress with 29; he was followed by Howard Jackson with 21, Greg Kinman with 20 and John Reid with 16.

Ron Nicholson led all rebounders with 16. He was followed by Leonard Coulter with 15. Howard Jackson was high for Austin Peay with 11.

Morehead State's next game is Monday night with Murray State. The Eagles defeated Murray on their home court Jan. 15 by a score of 81-65, but things should prove more interesting Monday night.

The Eagles split a pair last week as they defeated Indiana State 87-79, then lost to Toledo 105-88. The loss stopped MSU's three game winning streak. Neither of these games were in conference play however.

In the Indiana State game the Eagles were behind at halftime 39-38. The Eagles came alive in the second half outscoring ISU 49-40 to win the game. The game was much closer than the final score indicated.

Leonard Coulter led all scorers with 26 points followed closely by Howard Wallen with 23. For Indiana State Dan Bush and Larry Sample were high with 18 apiece.

MSU did not fare as well away from home as they dropped one to Toledo, co-leaders of the Mid-American Conference. The Eagles led only briefly 7-2 but from then on it was all Toledo as they led at halftime 52-33. MSU did outscore Toledo 55-53 in the second half but to no avail.

Kozelko of Toledo led all rebounders with 22, 16 of them were in the first half. Coulter and Nicholson tied for the rebounding lead for the Eagles with 10 each. Wallen was high for MSU in scoring with 24 points and Kozelko was high for Toledo with 33.

By VERNON STAPLETON

Favored West Virginia University sneaked in a close verdict over the MSU matmen here Saturday afternoon 21-15. The Eagles were all tied up with the Mountaineers after the first eight bouts, 15-15, but a forfeit by MSU in the 167 pound weight class cost them the match.

Incidental Fee Charged For Extra Expenses

By MARY RUTH FAULKNER

Do you wonder what the $30 incidental fee goes for, which you pay at registration?

According to Russell R. McClure, vice president for Fiscal Affairs and assistant professor of business, all fees for state supported institutions are set by the Council on Public Higher Education, in accordance with Kentucky Revised Statutes (K.R.S.) 164.090.

In the case of Morehead, this council sets resident tuition, non-resident tuition, and incidental fees.

The incidental fee is charged to cover expenses incidental to instruction.

This $30 fee is not specifically allocated to the incidental cost, but it does go to cover the costs connected with the Raconteur, health services, ID card, student activity privileges and The Trail Blazer. (The Trail Blazer is also financed in part by advertising.)

Some other regional universities charge a student union fee instead of an incidental fee.

The approximate sum of this semester's incidental fees is $148,500. This is all put into one general fund to cover incidental costs. The incidental costs and the amount for the incidental fees are budgeted to balance.

ZES Begins Plans

Morehead General Telephone is working on a project to provide better service to all customers within the Morehead exchange. The project, Zone Exchange Service, is referred to as ZES.

According to district manager, Earl Goode, it will take approximately five years for ZES to be completed. Presently new equipment and outside cable wires are being added to hasten the completion.

The new exchange will eliminate party lines and offer only private or two-party service.

Customers in the surrounding area now pay mileage charge for a private line. Upon completion of ZES, areas will be arranged into zones and customers will pay approximately one dollar per zone, according to their distance from town. In greatly distanced areas, where the cost for a private line is presently $20 - $30, it will be lowered to approximately $6 - $10.

Is Peace Corps a way to Consciousness III?

as suggested by Charles Reich
in "The Greening of America"

Empathetic, individually expressive.
One-to-one. Non-organizational.

These are some of the characteristics of Consciousness III which Mr. Reich ascribes to a growing number of today's younger generation. Joining the Peace Corps according to him, is one of the ways of breaking out of the mold of the more conventional Consciousness I and Consciousness II.

It will no doubt remain for history to judge the validity of Mr. Reich's thesis. In our view, the Peace Corps potential for personal development necessarily depends on the individual. We can make no promises about the ways to Consciousness III.

But what we can promise to every Peace Corps Volunteer is a demanding, fully absorbing, two-year job of helping people help themselves in one of the developing countries of the world. We can also promise an unusual opportunity for personal involvement and a unique chance to reach beyond yourself.

The rest is up to you. Send in the coupon.

Did you know that an Army ROTC two-year program is available? Is it really a good deal? Ask Ron and Beth Bennett --

Ron Bennett accidentally discovered the Army ROTC two-year program last spring, and is now working toward his master's degree and a second lieutenant's commission, instead of serving as a private. As a result of Ron's graduate assistantship and a $100 per month subsistence allowance from ROTC, Beth is now enrolled as a full-time MSU student instead of a full-time secretary. After completing his master's degree and receiving his commission, Ron can look forward to a challenging career as an Army officer. Ron said, "We are both thankful for the opportunity for me to pursue my master's degree, and we are looking forward to being together during my Army tour. This two-year program has filled our needs."

You can also enjoy the benefits of the Army ROTC two-year program.

Who Can Apply? The program is primarily designed for junior college graduates and college students preparing to pursue a graduate program.

Where? Office of the Professor of Military Science, Room 308, Button Auditorium, Phone 784-9221.

When? Now! February 28th, 1972, is the deadline for applying.
