Dragging To Resume At Cave Run Lake For Body Of Covington Man

Dragging operations were to have resumed again Monday afternoon at Cave Run Lake for the body of a Covington man believed to have drowned in the lake Thursday afternoon. This is second time that rescue units have been called out for a possible drowning victim on the lake this year.

Don Greenhill, assistant director of the Morehead-Rowan County Disaster and Emergency Services, said that Donald Griffith, 33, of 217 W. 33rd Street in Covington, was crossing the lake near the Bath County line when his 14-ft john boat with his four children aboard capsized.

According to the state police report, three of the children who ranged in age from eight to 12 had life jackets on. A fourth child did not have a life jacket but was able to swim until two fishermen nearby were able to reach the party.

Greenhill said that Griffith did not have a life jacket and could not swim. The group was at the lake on a camping trip. The incident occurred about 3 p.m.

and Greenhill said that units from the Rowan County Rescue Squad were on the scene until dark. Dragging continued all day Friday and Saturday but harsh winds and cold temperatures halted operations on Sunday.

In addition to the Rowan County units, Greenhill said that the Bath County Rescue Squad and a group from Floyd County joined the dragging operations on Friday and Saturday. Greenhill said that the surface temperature of the water was about 47 degrees.

The dragging for Dr. Sam Hodges who is believed to have drowned on the lake last month continued for about 12 days, Greenhill said, before the Division of Water Enforcement advised the DES that it could halt the search. He added, however, that Hodges family has hired a professional group out of Knoxville, Tenn., which has been dragging on the lake for the last two weekends.

Greenhill said that the dragging for Griffith would continue at least through the rest of this week.

Perkins Addresses Gathering

By JOE LAMB

Congressman Carl D. Perkins told a gathering of Federal Land Bank Association members and guests in Morehead Friday that Kentucky farmers have won the battle, at least for now, to keep federal price supports on burley tobacco.

Perkins said that, though it may not last, "We'll keep a sound farm program with burley tobacco supports for the foreseeable future."

During Perkins' brief informal remarks before the group, he once again stressed his concern over having coal play an important part in the national energy picture. Perkins said, "We must make ourselves independent of foreign oil."

Perkins suggested a huge federal expenditure for research to develop synthetic fuels and said that Congress should put a limit on the amount American companies can pay overseas for crude oil. He said that there was no other way to be able to do that except to place greater importance on coal.

The keynote speaker for the North East Kentucky Federal Land Bank Association, which was formed Jan. 1 with a merger of the Land Bank of Cattlesburg and Maysville, was James R.

Davidson, executive vice president of the regional Federal Land Bank at Louisville.

Davidson told the group that "no one has accepted change better than the farmer." He said, "The farmer has always been able to adapt relative to the situation and has learned to live with what he has."

One of the things the farmer has had to cope with has been inflation. Davidson pointed out that only 15 years ago the average loan with the Federal Land Bank was $22,000 and an interest rate of only 5 1/2 percent. He said that the amount had climbed to $36,000 by 1978 with an interest rate of 9 1/2 percent.

The cost of financing that loan in 1964 was $9.31 per acre. In 1978 that cost jumped to more than $69 per acre. In contrast to 1964 when the average acre of farmland sold for $709, the average acre in 1978 sold for $1415.

Another indicator of rampant inflation, according to Davidson, is the fact that it took the Land Bank of Louisville 56 years to loan its first billion dollars but only five years to loan the second billion. He predicted that the third billion would be reached in only 2 1/2 years, during 1979.

The Federal Land Bank at Louisville covers four states, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee, while the East

Kentucky Association covers 26 counties and has branch offices in Morehead, Cattlesburg, Maysville and Flemingsburg. Roy Fritz, the general manager of the East Kentucky Association, said that he is anticipating the opening of more field offices.

Fritz said that the association has about 940 loans outstanding with a total value of $31 million. Last year alone, before the groups were merged, the Cattlesburg Federal Land Bank of which Morehead was a branch office closed 71 loans in the amount of $2,572,300. Before the merger it had 476 loans outstanding with unpaid balances of $11,563,929.

Nonetheless, the Cattlesburg Association showed a paper loss of $1,938.88. An adjustment for provision for losses, which is merely a transfer within the association, was made of $2,766. That gives the association a net earnings before adjustment of $417.12.

Also during the lengthy luncheon meeting, the association re-elected three members to three expired terms and elected a new board member to serve a vacant seat. Those members re-elected were: Jerome C. Pritchard of Boyd County; Ronald Hatfield of Boyd County; and Cliff Vice of Nicholas County. The new board member is William Clay Cropper of Mason County.

Regents Adopt Record Budget

In a meeting Friday, the Morehead State University Board of Regents adopted a record operating budget of $25.7 million for the 1979-80 year and increased fees.

The new budget is an increase of about $1.7 million which will be used to finance salaries and operating costs. Most of the budget, 69 percent, comes from state appropriations.

In addition to salaries and operations, the budget increase will also be used to finance additional expenditures in women's Athletics. President Morris Norfleet said that $55,000 will be used for women's intercollegiate athletics as part of the university's effort to comply with federal regulations.

The board approved $10 increases in both in the student housing rates and student activities fees. In addition, monthly rental fees for married student housing and faculty housing were raised $10.

The regents also adopted a policy under which teachers gain tenure, the key provisions of the new policy, which was described by Norfleet as being a "significant improvement" over the present policy, are a reduction in the probationary period for new faculty members from seven years to five years and a clearer policy for appeal of faculty termination for specific reasons.

The policy will also allow teachers to count sabbatical time toward the probationary period of five years.

In other action, the board gave Dr. Norfleet permission to negotiate for leases on surface-mined sites which will be used to study the feasibility of using reclaimed land for fruit orchards. In addition, the regents approved the concept of a "centers for excellence" which will give academic areas additional funding under the new budget. These areas are horticulture, Appalachian art, environmental studies, computer science, folk music and dance, histoplasmosis research and history.

Other action by the board included:

- Formation of the MSU Foundation which will centralize all fund-raising activities. Dr. Ronald Hart was appointed the executive director.
- Approval of women's softball as an intercollegiate sport.
- Approval of three honorary degrees to be awarded at the May 11 commencement. The honorary doctorates will go to Orin Atkins, chairman of the board of Ashland Oil, Russell Williamson, an Inez banker who was the school's first graduate, and George T. Young, who is retiring with 47 years on the faculty.
- Approval of the formation of the department of Allied Health Sciences to replace the department of nursing and allied health.
- Lloyd Cassity of Ashland was selected as chairman of the board of regents and Jerry Howell, of Jackson, was re-elected vice chairman.

Lifesaver Follies Set For Weekend

A caravan of cars containing costumed Lifesaver Follies participants was led through town Saturday by a fire truck upon which the Easter Bunny himself rode, marking the beginning of "Follies Week" in Morehead.

The parade served as a reminder that the third annual show held for the benefit of the hospital expansion program is coming up this weekend.

Friday and Saturday nights the public can witness Las Vegas style entertainment on the stage of Button Auditorium, beginning at 8 p.m.

Advanced tickets are available for $4 by contacting Teresa Barker, Barbara Fossett, Wendy Quammen or Mary Alfrey. General admission is $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children, students with ID's and the elderly with membership cards.

Directed by Peter Thomas of the Cargill Producing Company of New York, over 60 persons have been rehearsing daily for the show. Posters drawn by elementary and high school students that depict their interpretation of the Follies have been on display in merchants' windows.

Two injury accidents occurred almost simultaneously last Saturday evening at different locations in the area.

state and national briefs

FRANKFORT, UPI - State Revenue Commissioner Maurice Carpenter said yesterday state tax returns will be accepted with an April 17 postmark without the taxpayer fearing a penalty. Carpenter said the reason for the one day extension is because many post offices around the state lack procedures for giving an April 16 postmark. The deadline, normally April 15, was extended on the state and federal levels because it fell on a Sunday.

WASHINGTON, UPI - A group of Protestant seminarians wants a halt to all nuclear power plant construction and a phase-out of existing plants. The faculty of Lancaster, Pa., Seminary, located 23 miles from Three Mile Island, also is urging churches to become advocates for those who suffered as a result of the nation's worst nuclear accident.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM, UPI - Palestinian guerrillas tossed a grenade and a bomb into an El Al Israel passenger lounge at Brussels airport yesterday and fought a gun battle with police, the national news agency Belga said. It said 10 persons were wounded. Airline sources in New York said that airport workers captured four terrorists and turned them over to Belgian Authorities. In Tel Aviv, El Al said its security men shot and wounded one attacker and captured a second.

WASHINGTON, UPI - The government is going to start fighting fraud and corruption in the business world by mounting a major drive against "crime in the suites." The Justice Department said Sunday it will set up offices in 27 cities to attack the white collar crimes such as corporate embezzlement, fraud or theft of securities.

CINCINNATI, UPI - A car reportedly traveling 100 miles an hour crashed at the entrance of a tunnel on I-71 yesterday and killed five of the six people in the vehicle. The sixth was critically injured. The accident occurred at 2:30 a.m. on the north-bound lane of Interstate 71, just a few blocks from downtown Cincinnati. A witness estimated the vehicle was traveling 100 miles an hour as it passed his auto shortly before the wreck.

False Arrest Suit Ends In Mistrial

A civil suit in Rowan Circuit Court charging a state police trooper with false arrest and imprisonment ended in a deadlocked jury last week.

The suit was brought by Chennault James who charged Trooper Bobby Gosser of the Morehead Post with false arrest and imprisonment in an incident which occurred on November 15, 1976.

James was reportedly arrested for disorderly conduct and attempting to elude a police officer. He was seeking damages of $10,000.

It is not known if James will refile the suit for another trial. James is represented by attorney Buddy Salyer.

Claims filed in a civil suit state only one side of the case.

Damage Minor In Two Fires

Morehead Fire Department responded to two alarms last Thursday including a fire at the new athletic complex at Morehead State University.

According to Assistant Fire Chief Eddie Holbrook, some wooden forms at the construction site caught fire while workers were welding steel rods for concrete forms.

Three trucks and 18 firefighters stayed on the scene for about an hour. Holbrook said damage was minimal.

The second fire occurred at a trailer at that location. Firemen were called out again to James Trailer Court at the trailer of Adie Plank, where an electrical water heater had shorted out. One truck and 16 men responded to the alarm and were at the scene only 20 minutes.

Damage was confined to the water heater and a small amount of smoke damage to the back bedroom of the trailer. The alarm was called in at 2:19 p.m.

There were no injuries in either fire.

Wichita Falls Residents Now 'Scared'

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (UPI) — The Civil Defense sirens wailed but Opal Smith had heard them too many times before. A few miles away Mary Eds Laing, just home from a shopping fling in Dallas, also had a half-hearted reaction to the tornado warning.

Mrs. Smith was in Faith Village, a low-income neighborhood of spare frame houses, and Mrs. Laing lived in a prestigious development in a roomy three-bedroom house that featured a pool in back and a Lincoln Continental in the driveway.

Culturally and socially the Laings and Smiths were from different worlds but the tornado that pulverized Wichita Falls last week equalized them in many ways. Both households will be starting over.

The out-sized twister crashed into the city just before dusk Tuesday, ripping through the south side, leaving the random and bizarre destruction characteristic of nature's most sudden aerial killer.

Forty-four people died and 20,000 — a fifth of the city population — were left homeless in Wichita Falls. Among them were the Laings and the Smiths.

"I never had the sense to be scared of tornadoes before but now I'm scared of 'em," said Mrs. Smith. "I'll run from the next one. It came roaring through here like 10,000 freight-train. I hope to never hear anything like it again. It seemed like it took forever for it to pass but it wasn't maybe five or 10 minutes."

In front of what used to be 2430 Brentwood was a broken door with "Laing's Recreation Center" written in spray paint. Another impromptu sign said "Closed for repairs" and propped against a smashed pinball machine was a sheet of plywood that said "Pinball 25 cents — pay in advance."

"My kids put those up," Mrs. Laing said. "You've got to do something to relieve the tension. But you know, I feel so happy to be alive that I almost feel guilty about it."

Mrs. Laing grew up in Wichita Falls and was accustomed to life in Texas' version of "Tornado Alley." Like Mrs. Smith and her neighbors, she believed a tornado would never hit her side of town.

"People here always said it would never come to the south side, that it would just follow the river," she said, standing in front of the shattered remains of her home. "But now I know that's just an old wives' tale."

Tornado warnings are a way of life in Wichita Falls, especially in early spring, and the locals accept them almost to the point of apathy.

"You just grow up with it. It's like earthquakes in San Francisco," Mrs. Laing said. "Here you have so many tornado warnings that you never pay any attention to them."

Moist air from the Gulf Mexico blows across the area and collides with dry low pressure systems from New Mexico and Colorado, making the Wichita Falls a prime breeding ground for funnels. The tornado that hit Tuesday — called "The storm without pity" in a banner heading — was in the "max" classification, stretching half a mile to 1 1/2 miles at the base and bringing 225 mph winds.

The same violent system blasted Harrold and Vernon, Texas, and Lawton, Okla., killing 14 more people for an overall total of 58 dead.

One week earlier, the Wichita Falls emergency corps had held a disaster drill and it went smoothly. But when the killer twister broke loose, the city's only electrical trunk line was among the first things hit, leaving the command post without power and radios.

Nevertheless, Fred Ostby, deputy director of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, said the warning system could hardly have worked better in Wichita Falls. The first warning — when the funnel cloud was first sighted — was issued by the National Weather Service 45 minutes in advance and sirens were sounding 15 minutes later.

Thirty minutes for a warning is a luxury," Ostby said. "If it hadn't been for the watch and warning and sirens, the death toll would've been much greater — at least a couple of hundred dead."

But despite having heard the advance notice, the Smith and Laing households were relatively indifferent until they realized just how close the tornado was to them.

This is part of an overall problem noted by Ostby. Because so many watches are issued, he said, many people ignore the warnings. "There's a great deal of that," he said. "That's a problem we continually have to fight — the apathy aspect of the thing."

Newer Cars Get Better Mileage

DETROIT (UPI) — Higher wages and more efficient automobiles actually have taken the sting out of higher fuel prices for the average U.S. motorist during the past four years, a Ford Motor Co. study says.

The study, comparing average fuel prices, income levels and mileage ratings of similarly sized 1975- and 1979-model cars, found some motorists may be getting far more travel out of an hour's pay now than they did in 1975.

"While there is no doubt that the cost of fuel has increased and will increase, the gain in wages — and more importantly, the gain in passenger car fuel efficiency — has actually reduced the real fuel cost of each mile you travel," a Ford spokesman said.

"The generally lingering feeling held by many of us that the weekly gasoline bill on our new 1979 models is taking a bigger bite out of our weekly pay than when we were driving our 1975 models just isn't true."

The study cited government figures showing the average hourly wage for industrial workers in 1975 was $4.33 per hour, with unleaded gasoline that year averaging 60.3 cents per gallon.

Using that information, Ford calculated an hour of wages bought 8.01 gallons of fuel four years ago.

In 1979, the estimated hourly wage was $6.71 and the projected unleaded gas price was 83.5 cents per gallon — 8 cents more than the 75.5-cent national average at the time the study was conducted in early April.

Using those figures, Ford determined the average motorist was getting 8.04 gallons of fuel per hour of wages in 1979.

"The hard fact is, that give or take a drop or two, an hour of pay will buy the same number of gallons of gas in 1979 — including an estimated cent increase that hasn't even happened yet — as you could buy in 1975," a Ford spokesman said.

But because cars have become more fuel efficient during the past four years, a motorist who bought a 1975 model and traded it in for a 1979 car should get out of his hourly wage, Ford said.

'Uncle Robin'... A Man In Harmony With God

BY HELEN PRICE STACY

He was so in harmony with God, and despite his eccentricities, also with his fellow man.

That is, he was an excellent neighbor, sacrificing his own time and energy to help others to sit with the sick, comfort the troubled.

There were some exceptions to his harmony among strangers, and who can say how you do it. I would have reacted under similar circumstances. According to prophesy-preaching evangelists, you and I and everyone might find out how we would act.

Robert Kilgore Grech was born 1811 in Virginia. His ancestry goes back through his father, James Green Jr., and his father, Lewis Green Jr., to Lewis Green who made it through a wilderness life, and the Kilgore side all the way to Scotland and Lord Douglas.

Lucey Green White or Mary Ellen Henson of Elliott County or the great ones related to Robert could tell you more, but a few years in the life of the man who was known in his home county of Elliott as Uncle Robin will give you insight to his character.

Uncle Robin and Mirinda Workman were married in Russell County, Va. At that time he was a school teacher. When the couple and their family made the trip across the mountains and through valleys to Elliott County, their new home. Five of their six children accompanied them.

Uncle Robin went about the Little Sandy countryside doing good. He wanted to follow in the footsteps taught by Jesus and felt so to one with the Master that he began to wear a robe and sandals.

As he traveled wagon lanes, backwoods trails and cowpaths to reach neighbors, or even, strangers who were sick, injured or needed help, he carried a long mountain stick with a forked end so he could sweep brush from his path and in winter time to push snow aside.

His hair was allowed to grow to collar length and his beard to his chest.

Wrote A Book

When he was not working or tending to the sick and lost, Uncle Robin labored over a book he was writing.

Early in his life he had begun a serious study of the Scripture, had reached some convictions of his own and was intent on putting his truth in his book, "Primitive Truth."

He needed a publisher. He would take his manuscript to Cincinnati where he would find one. On his trip he did not change his style of dress any more than what happened later would change his heart.

His robe and sandals on and his long staff in his hand, he started walking through the countryside to Greenup where he would board a boat bound for Cincinnati.

How do we know how other passengers reacted to Uncle Robin and his flowing robe, the river breeze whipping it about his sandaled feet?

I would have stared and wondered... maybe, smiled. I don't think I would have been rude or unkind.

In Cincinnati, Uncle Robin made his way along the wharf, maybe so intent on his mission he was oblivious to the picture he made or stares from others. He clutched his manuscript.

"Then a cry, 'arrest that man, arrest that man.'"

Police men reached the man in the flowing white robe, took him by the arms and placed him under arrest. But, as I said, Uncle Robin's arrest made no change in his heart and his spiritual zeal ever deeper, he was steadfast.

Later, he continued on his endeavors to find a publisher and then began his return journey.

He was anxious to get home by the Sabbath for he had never missed being in church on that day but once in his memory.

His son's crop needed to be brought from the fields before an approaching storm or the season's work would be lost. It is likely that had it been his own crop he would have gone on to church, his faith such that he knew everything would be as it should be.

The son would have to go no other way but to pay him for his labors, so Uncle Robin took the money and next day found a needy person who could use it to good purpose.

Boat Was Slow

The return boat was slow. Maybe the Ohio had more current due to the rain, and when Uncle Robin left the boat at Greenup he lifted the hem of his robe from the dampness.

It was the Sabbath and as he walked through the woods, Uncle Robin began to hear the voice of a man. As he got nearer, he could make out words and he knew he was near a church and if he walked quicker might be there in time to hear some of the sermon.

The preacher was admonishing his flock, exhorting them to change their ways and their hearts and was pointing out the consequences.

"How many of you would be ready to meet your Savior should he come right now," he asked. Every hand, it has been said, was raised. Uncle Robin walked through the door. His white robe gleamed. He rested his staff against the wall. The preacher was the first one outside," recalled a kinsman. Others scrambled here and there, some climbing through a window.

Only one woman remained, remembered the relative who had heard the story from her kinfolk.

Who was the woman?

It was several years later, in 1869, that Uncle Robin's book "Primitive Truth" was published. Who has a copy of the book?

Uncle Robin died Sept. 2, 1875, and is buried in Elliott County.

Madisonville Workers Plan Demonstration

MADISONVILLE, Ky. (UPI) - Several hundred workers from Madisonville's major industrial plants plan a peaceful demonstration today to show their dislike for the recently enacted 50 percent increase in the city's occupational tax.

The main targets of the demonstrators and pickets will be city hall and the Hopkins County courthouse.

Montgomery Care Center Will Add 30 More Beds

OWINGSVILLE - The Gateway Subarea Health Council granted approval Thursday night to a request by the Montgomery County Care Center to add 30 intermediate care beds costing in excess of half a million dollars. Gateway Health Planner Roger Russell has announced.

"Approval at three more levels is still needed in order for this project to become a reality," Russell added, "with the next approval necessary at the regional level in Winchester May 15, and 16."

Russell said it will probably take 8 to 12 months for this project to be implemented and will result in the Montgomery County Care Center having a total of 82 intermediate care beds and 8 personal care beds.

The Health Council, meeting in regular bimonthly sessions, also revoked the certificate of need for the Bath County Ambulance Service at the request of the applicant.

"The applicant tried for nearly 18 months to get this project off the ground and was unable to do so for a number of reasons, including financial ones," Russell said, "and decided there was no feasible way to have such a service."

In other action, the Council heard six-month progress reports from Mary Chiles Hospital, St. Clare Medical Center and Morgan Appalachian Regional Hospital and granted six-month certificate of need extensions on their construction and modernization projects.

The Council also recommended approval of three grant applications submitted by the Department for Human Resources.

Following the regular bimonthly meeting, the Gateway Subarea Health Council also held its annual meeting, at which seven board members were re-elected to their positions and three new board members were also elected.

Those re-elected to their positions were: Carrie Clemmons, of Mt. Sterling; Billy James of Rowan County; Raymond Rowlett, of West Liberty; R. Gerald Gevedon, of West Liberty; Joseph "Buddy" Rhodes of Frenchburg; Emil Baker, of Mt. Sterling; Ann Kazrick, of Mt. Sterling.

Elected as new members of the Board were Sister Anne Marie Falloon of Morehead; Patsy Whitson of Morehead; and Roger Barber of Owingsville.

Radiation Level Appears Safe At Accident Site

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) - A sensitive scanner rushed in to test Three Mile Island area residents for lingering body radioactivity showed the only contamination they'd picked up came right from their own backyards.

Although the people of the Susquehanna Valley went through the nation's worst atomic reactor accident seemingly unscathed, the scanner clearly indicated that they - like all of us - are constantly emitting tiny amounts of radioactivity.

The unseen contaminants - cesium-137 from early atom bomb testing, and potassium-40, present in almost every clump of dirt - are part of what scientists call the background count averaging about 100 millirems a year.

"Potassium-40 has been here for millions of years," said Dr. Reg Gatchy, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's senior radiation biologist.

"It was here before man and it may be here after he's blown himself away."

he said. "It's just another way of saying the whole darn world is radioactive."

Because both natural and man-made radiation may damage living cells as well as the complex genetic material they contain, potential hazards abound. They range from radium watch dials, cathode ray tubes and diagnostic X-rays to cosmic rays and naturally occurring radioactive isotopes in common building material.

Nuclear power plants, when functioning properly, give off less radiation than the average coal-fired generating station because, even if they contain natural radioactivity. And residents of mile-high Denver receive about twice the normal sea-level background count because there's less atmosphere shielding them from radiation from space.

Massive doses of radiation - on the order of 1,000 whole body rems - kill in an instant. But vastly smaller exposures over long periods are also being linked to such horrors as leukemia, spontaneous abortions and birth defects.

The scientific community is divided on how much radiation human beings can safely endure.

A National Academy of Sciences committee in Washington is expected to issue a long-awaited report late this week updating a 1972 report on the health effects expected from various low-level radiation doses.

Because of the uncertainties of the effects of low-level radiation exposure, federal health authorities are laying the groundwork for what may be a major long-term study to look for any delayed health effects from the radiation produced by the Three Mile Island accident.

Lots of Eggs, Bunny's Tail, Found In Hunt

More than 300 children from the WMOR listening area participated in the Annual Easter Egg Hunt at the Jaycees Farm Sunday. Toddlers to 12-year-olds frisked the area of about 3,000 eggs with the aid of a hot-pink Easter bunny and his WMOR helpers. Inside the eggs were coupons from local merchants.

Station Manager Phil Blake said this was the third year he has been associated with the event and he was pleased with the outcome as "It's the first one I've been to where no one cried."

"Through hardships, happiness, toils and tears,
We've been together these last 50 years.

There were times both happy and sad, but when we count our blessings the good times out number the bad.
"God led us forward as man and wife
In search of happiness throughout our life.
And now we're blessed above all others
As a beloved Dad and cherished Mother.
"Now the time is here to thank you, God
"For giving us These Happy Golden Years."

Progressive Club

Members of the Progressive Club met at the home of Jean Burchett in Pleasant Valley April 12.

A lesson on "Emergency and First Aid" was given by Grace Crosthwaite. Game prize winners were Inez Kegley and Lovella Johnson.

Officers were: Extension Agent Martha Huntsman, Grace Crosthwaite, Linda and Nicosis Sloan.

Members present were Nettie Lundon, Maude Johnson, Ola McCrover, Inez Kegley, Edith Utterback, Lovena Richardson, Lovella Johnson and Lila Chadwell.

In Victorian days it was considered unladylike to eat cheese.

It's a good idea to establish a basic budget or money management plan. This involves developing figures on the actual costs of living at the standards many have elected to live. Set aside enough to be sure to have money for essentials and provide a regular savings plan as a cushion for emergencies. Then you will have your family's needs met and credit payments you can afford to make.

The use of credit can seem very easy for the family that has no debts, but it does not afford them all at once. Keep in mind that you can borrow for those things that make a contribution to your family's well-being and if you are currently spending less each month than you make.

Ann Landers

Copyright - Field Enterprises, Inc.

Dear Ann Landers: These days with so many people popping up with bobbed noses, vastly reduced (or enlarged) breasts, fantastic hairpieces (after 20 years of baldness), capped teeth, facelifts and eye-jobs, what should a surprised observer say?

You dealt with this problem several weeks ago, but I didn't get much out of your answer.

So many of my friends are going in for recycling that I'm truly at a loss as to how to deal with the startling transformations.

Do these people want to be told they look better? It seems that after going to so much trouble, not to mention expense, something should be said. On the other hand, I'm told, most women who have had face-lifts prefer to pass themselves off as "well-rested." How about some guidelines? - Ambushed In Arzua

Dear Ann: "You look wonderful" or " terrific!" is always appropriate - assuming she or he does, of course. Unless the individual volunteers more information, stop there.

Dear Ann Landers: I've read many letters in your column from parents whose children have broken their hearts. Very little is said about the reverse situation. It's time someone spoke out.

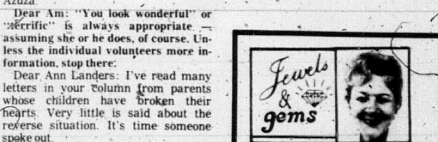

My mother was an alcoholic and my father was a workaholic. She was never sober and he was never home. Miraculously I survived a hellish childhood and I'm still beleaguered by their problems. I get incoherent calls from Mother about Dad. I get calls from Dad begging me to "do something" about Mother. They have begged me to come home and "straighten things out." It's not as if I live next door. Ann - I'm thousands of miles away!

For years I've tried, without success, to help them. It's useless. Yet they continue to cause me untold grief by trying to draw me into their disputes.

Any suggestions? - Anguished Son

Dear Son: If you've urged them to get counseling - suggested AA for her and Al-An for him - you've done as much as any child can do. The rest is up to them. Parents can guilt-trip children in a very subtle manner. Don't let them booby-trap you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a male homosexual in my very late teens who visits everything in the world to be straight. I refuse to have physical relations with members of my own sex although the desire is strong. The thought of it disgusts me and goes against my moral and religious training.

Jewels and Gems

by Deane Iant

For about eighty thousand years the turquoise has survived the buffeting winds of fashion. Sometimes it has been used religiously and sometimes gaudy. In the Edwardian and Georgian periods it was set with diamonds in tiaras and necklaces. In the middle ages it was used as an inlay in thrones and cigarette boxes. In the twenties it was set in coral. And in recent years it has returned to an earlier setting of diamonds or gold.

For the latest look in jewelry we invite you to come to DEANE'S JEWELRY, 212 E. Main St., 784-5504 and browse around our shop. We do our very best to provide you with the finest merchandise at sometimes gaudy prices. If you don't know, we'll answer our staff very anxious to answer all your questions. Customers Expected To Help Pay For Accident At Three Mile Island

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Power company officials say they expect their customers, investors and employees to help pay for the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear facility.

And today, federal authorities were investigating increased levels of radioactive iodine.

Don Beaver, an official of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Radiation Protection, said milk samples taken from the start of the accident March 28 have indicated no threat to the public health.

NRC spokesman Karl Abraham said Sunday an air sample collected Saturday within 100 meters of the reactor showed radioactive iodine levels to be 119 picocuries per cubic meter.

The figure would have been above federal standards if measured in the farmland surrounding the disabled nuclear power plant, but because it was detected near the facility, it was within federal limits.

The highest iodine levels detected because of Three Mile Island were 20 to 30 picocuries per liter, and current samplings show minimum detectable levels, Beaver said.

Abraham speculated the increase in radioactive iodine levels was connected to the weekend switch in charcoal filters in the plant that are designed to trap the release of iodine emissions.

The cause of this increase in radioactivity in certain environmental samples is not known, but is under investigation, said Abraham.

William G. Kuhns, chairman of General Public Utilities Corp., a holding company that operates Three Mile Island, said Sunday it will cost $80,000 a day or $24 million a month to replace the Three Mile Island power supply.

In a statement, Kuhns gave no estimate on how much the cleanup of America's worst nuclear power plant accident would cost.

Kuhns indicated he expected the plant to resume operations someday, but did not say when he believed that could be possible. The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission has said it could take several years to make the facility safe to operate.

"In view of the magnitude and major financial impact of this accident, it is apparent that there will have to be a sharing of this burden among our customers, our investors and our employees," Kuhns said.

General Public has 1.5 million customers. The Three Mile Island facility, owned jointly by Metropolitan Edison Co., Pennsylvania Electric Co. and Jersey Central Power & Light Co., cost $780 million to build.

The Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission starts hearings Tuesday on whether MetEd and Pennsylvania Electric may pass on the outside power purchase costs to their customers.

Temperatures inside the crippled reactor hovered at 250 degrees for the second straight day as authorities proceeded cautiously with a final plan to achieve a safe, cold shutdown, which could come as early as this week.

But, the NRC said, the heat never reached the 5,100 degrees required to melt the uranium itself.

THOUGHT FOR FOOD
By GOLD CROOK

Yankee Pot Roast
4 pounds
boneless brisket, chuck or round
2 peppercorns, crushed
1 bay leaf
1/4 cup thyme
2 tablespoons tomato juice
1/4 cup shortening
2 cups tomatoes, peeled and mashed
2 tablespoons tomato paste
1 cup beef bouillon
1 tomato, sliced
1 clove garlic, crushed

Make a marinade of the wine, lemon juice, peppercorns, bay leaf, garlic and thyme, and let the meat stand in this overnight in the refrigerator. Turn it a time or two.

Next day, sear the meat in a large pot in the hot shortening, turning it to brown both sides. Remove meat from pot and put in the marinade along with tomatoes, which you've mashed, the tomato paste and the bouillon. Mix and bring to a boil. Put the meat back in the pot, add the salt, cover and reduce the heat so the sauce simmers. Cook it for about three hours, adding more liquid if necessary.

This serves six to eight and is a fine dish for company. Accompany this delicious roast with cooked small whole potatoes, carrots and peas.

MSU Professor Publishes Book

"It's easy enough to complain and find fault. I say let's try to find a better way to listen to the people themselves and inform them so that we can conform more to Lincoln's idea of government-government of the people, by the people and for the people.

This, said Kenneth E. Hoffman, associate professor of government and public affairs at Morehead State University, is why he wrote his recently published book, "Rx for U.S. A Revitalized Constitution: Increased Democracy."

The book is basically a revision of the Constitution of the United States with facts, opinion, and other information citing reasons for the added or revised portions.

"If you're going to make changes, you have to look at the Constitution as a whole," says the 62-year-old professor. "People are constantly tearing into bits and pieces of the Constitution, but most don't consider the other areas that might be affected by a change."

Hoffman's past experience with the workings of government qualifies him as a revisionist. As a senior at the University of Vermont he ran for the legislature. Elected in 1941 and 1945 at the ages of 23 and 27 he was the youngest member of the Vermont legislature in two sessions.

At 27 he was the chairman of the Social Security Committee and between the two sessions he was Field Representative of the Vermont Department of Public Welfare.

After completing his master's degree in political science at the University of Nebraska in 1948, he taught at Oklahoma State University and was research consultant to the Oklahoma legislative council. The following year he was executive secretary to the Oklahoma Children's Code Commission where he drafted and presented bills to the legislature.

Kenneth E. Hoffman

While at the University of Michigan

1949-50, Hoffman studied social welfare policy under Wilbur J. Cohen, later Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and in 1965 studied legislative process under Congressman Sherman Lloyd at the University of Utah. Hoffman has been an associate professor of political science at MSU since 1968.

"In political science it is not only important to study what is but also what ought to be," says Hoffman. He added that he felt the people of the United States would benefit more from our democratic form of government by having greater input into its workings.

"I don't think we have adequate representation as the Constitution now stands," he said. "There needs to be a greater opportunity for the people to take part in picking electors and in giving a vote of confidence."

One major change Hoffman advocates is having a president-elect for two years working with the incumbent president then holding the office of the presidency for six years. "Too much time is taken up by electing a new president in and preparing for the following election with the present system," he says.

Hoffman says that when he returns from teaching, he might go around to all the states and try to interest people in drafting proposals for changing the Constitution.

Carter Signs With LSU

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Howard Carter, the 6-foot-3 all-state forward from Redemptorist High School, Wednesday agreed to play basketball at Louisiana State.

Carter was scheduled officially to sign a grant-in-aid scholarship at the Governor's Mansion, ending a recruiting war that involved Kentucky, Mississippi State, Arkansas and Texas A&M.

Also signing with the Tigers was Tyrone Black of Capitol High in Baton Rouge, a 6-foot-8 all-state forward. Black was a unanimous selection as the most valuable player in Louisiana's Class AAAA.

Carter's teams won 121 games during his three varsity years, including 70 in a

Gunman Escapes After Robbery Attempt At Store

FALSINGTON, Pa. (UPI) — A gunman today shot and killed a security guard in a department store robbery attempt and then eluded a police barricade by climbing through a hole in the wall.

Police said the bandit apparently fled the store, located about five miles from Philadelphia on U.S. Route 1, through the space he had knocked out with a sledge hammer to enter and carry merchandise out.

Police said the guard, Gilbert A. Smith, 68, surprised the gunman about 7 a.m. The holdup man was spotted by cleaning crew members as he carried merchandise in the back of the store.

The gunman pulled a grey cloth over his face and fired at Smith with a handgun, striking him in the chest.

The cleaning crew then called police. Smith, a retired chemical company worker, had been employed by Clover for three weeks, police said.

At least a dozen officers from Falls Township and neighboring communities, armed with rifles and shotguns and accompanied by police dogs, surrounded the store believing the suspect was inside. They did not know he already had escaped.

Bucks County detectives, state and local police began an immediate search of the wooded area around the building and issued an all-points bulletin.

They said the man apparently was alone when he escaped but said it still was not clear whether others were involved in the robbery attempt.

Cruel Fate
According to the National Safety Council, an average of almost 70 persons a day are shot to death with handguns in the United States. Three-fourths of those shootings take place within the inner family circle or among close friends.

row. He averaged 23.6 points per game in his career.

Black averaged 31.5 points and 13.3 rebounds a game during his senior season.

Industry Not Complying With Inflation Guidelines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government says 18 of the nation's largest petroleum and food companies have not made an "unqualified pledge" of cooperation to comply with administration price increase standards.

The government Friday released a report by the Council on Wage and Price Stability nearly six months into President Carter's anti-inflation drive. The report, said 47 of the 500 largest industrial firms "have made an explicit commitment to comply" with Carter's price-increase standard.

The council emphasized that absence of a company from the list "does not constitute or imply non-compliance with the standard."

Of the 53 firms not on the list, the council said, "some have expressed various degrees of support, but have not made an unqualified pledge."

Eighteen of those companies specialize in petroleum or food — sectors of the economy most involved in the soaring inflation rate this year.

Nine are petroleum firms: Mobil Oil, Amerada-Hess, Marathon Oil, Standard Oil of Ohio, Getty Oil, Tesoro Petroleum, Murphy Oil, Commonwealth Oil Refinery, and Texas Gulf.

Nine food firms also were not included on the list of "unqualified" supporters, including Iowa Beef Processors, the nation's largest beef producer. The others: United Brands, Associated Milk Producers, Kellogg, Bluebird, General Host, Pet Inc., Spencer Foods and the Adolph Coors Brewing Co.

Three large steel companies also were missing from the list: Bethlehem, Republic and Lykes.

The administration has asked all U.S. companies to voluntarily hold their 1979 price hikes to at least 0.5 percent below the average increases of 1978-77.

With Three Out Of Four OVC Wins...

MSU Has Successful Weekend On The Diamond

Sundays Hero

Morehead State freshman Jamey Bennett obviously loves Sundays. Last Sunday he set an Ohio Valley Conference record with four home runs in one game. On Friday, Bennett had two round trippers in the first game against Murray State. MSU won 8-5.

Once again, the home-run came into play for Morehead State as the Eagles managed to take three of four Ohio Valley Conference games over the weekend.

And, as it's been all year, the freshman class made a major contribution to MSU's success. Ashland native Dan Allen raised a few eyebrows with his power display, however. Allen belted two home runs in the nightcap of Sunday's doubleheader against Murray State.

John Combs walked ahead of Allen, who took a 1-1 pitch over the Screen Monster in right-center field to make coach Steve Hamilton's dream of three wins over the weekend come true. Morehead State let a two-run lead get away in the seventh as the Racers plated three runs off starter Mike Mattox to go up by one. A walk to Jamey Bennett, a stolen base and subsequent throwing error, and Jody Hamilton's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the inning forced the game into overtime.

The visitors took the early lead when Greg Tooley singled home Doran Perdue in the first. The Eagles jumped in front on Allen's first homer in the fourth with Combs and Danny Kiser aboard.

Joe Martin earned the victory for an inning of relief after Mattox walked Tooley to start the eighth inning. That capped a doubleheader sweep for Morehead State, which defeated Murray 8-5 in Sunday's opener. The Sunday Man Bennett, came through on another Sabbath for the Eagles with two two-run homers, one a shot to one of the deepest parts of Allen Field in left.

The week before, the Frankfort freshman set an Ohio Valley Conference record with four home runs in a game against Tennessee Tech. Bennett's first round-tripper capped a five-run explosion in the second inning; the second scored David Gaunce ahead of him, as Gaunce had reached on an error in the fourth. Dan Kiser added a no-doubter to right-center to lead off the fifth.

Ken Wilfong picked up his second win in that one. He struggled with his control in the third, yielding four of the Racers' five runs, but settled down to go the distance.

Eagles Split With Austin Peay

The Eagles had to settle for a split Saturday against Austin Peay. Ricky Richardson and Doug Downey combined on one of the best pitching performances against Morehead State of the year as MSU dropped the opener, 6-3. Scottie Baker of the Gavs led an eight-hit attack with three home runs, all over that Screen Monster, and four RBI's. John McVanev gave the Eagles some hope with a two-run shot in the seventh, but the home team left two men stranded to end the game. McVanev, Bennett, and Gaunce had two hits each for Morehead state, but McVanev's homer was MSU's only extra-base hit out of eight safeties. Walt Terrell went all the way for the Eagles and was saddled with his third loss against one victory.

Baker's home runs accounted for solo markers in the second and fourth innings, and a two-run seventh. APSU played a run with the help of an error in the fifth, and scored on Mike Riffey's single in the sixth. Kiser singled in Morehead State's other run in the third to tie the game at 1-1.

Coach Hamilton sparked his club to a 16-4 revenge win in Game Two. The Eagles rocketed to a quick lead with a six-run first inning and never looked back. A two-run single from Jody Hamilton, and RBI hit from Gaunce, and a three-run homer by Chris Auer provided the scoring in that frame. Allen singled home a run in the second, and Hamilton's two-run blast capped a three-run third. That circuit clutch tied Hamilton for the all-time OVC and Morehead State career home run record with former Eagle Rick Gunterman, who smashed 31 home runs.

MSU put six runs on the board in the fourth, with the help of control problems by Governor reliever Kevin Dorris, to close his scoring.

Ed Owine got through a two-run second for Austin Peay, and fielded single runs in the third and fourth before shutting the door the rest of the way. Owine completed the game, and became the first Eagle to chalk up his second win. Keith Gilliam of Austin Peay entered the game with a 1.40 earned-run average, and left in the fourth with 12 runs charged to him in three innings.

Hamilton took the starring role with three hits and five RBIs, including his record-setting home run. Bennett had four hits and scored four times.

Record Falls To 3-5

Vikings Lose Two Doubleheaders

The Rowan County Vikings dropped four baseball games last week in doubleheaders with Greenup and Russell.

Greenup jumped on pitcher Joey May early during the first game last Thursday, scoring four runs in the first three innings. The Musketters added two more runs, one in the fifth and another in the sixth, to take a 6-4 decision.

The Musketters scattered six hits against May in six innings, before he was replaced by Wade Littleton. Against Littleton, Greenup had two hits, but the damage had already been done.

Rowan County's runs came in the third and sixth. Rocky Stacey's single drove in Tony McKinney and May. May reached base on a lead off double and McKinney was on via a single. The Vikings managed to push across two more runs in the sixth, with hits by Doug Bradley and May. The Vikings could only manage five hits and committed two errors.

The second game against Greenup was worse for the Vikings, they couldn't manage to score, while only getting three hits.

Greenup scored all the runs they needed in the second inning. Three runs poured in, one because of a scoring error, a walk and two base hits.

The Vikings never got closer to scoring than 90 feet, when Stacey reached third base after hitting a single and after two strike outs, two Vikings received a base on balls, Doug Bradley then popped out.

The powerful Russell Red Devils were just too much for the Vikings to handle as they took two games, 8-1 and 8-6.

Littleton went the distance in the first game last Friday, giving up eight hits, and only one walk. Errors were a big factor; the Vikings committed seven. Only two the Red Devils runs were earned.

The Vikings lone run came in the fourth inning when Bart Braugher scored on a throwing error. Rowan County only got three hits.

The second contest with Russell was as close as the score indicates. Again the Vikings were plagued by errors, four. The visiting Vikings got to the scoreboard first with two runs. Braugher blasted a home run, May had a double and crossed home on a sacrifice.

Coach Larry Hardin and his team knew they were in for another long afternoon when Russell responded with four runs in the bottom of the first. All told, the Red Devils scattered seven hits off their three Viking hurlers, Richard Gambill started, Dwayne Wallace pitched three innings, long enough to get the loss, and May finished the contest.

The Vikings are now 3-5 and have six games scheduled this week. They host Greenup today at 5:00, travel to Fleming County Wednesday, host Morgan County Thursday, East Carter Friday at City Park, 5:00, Miami Trace Saturday at City Park, 6:00, and will host Greenfield Sunday the 22nd at City Park, game starting at 1:00.

Lady Eagles Beat Centre, Lose Tri-Match In Ohio

A loss, but not a total loss. That's what Morehead State University Women's Tennis Coach Beverly Mayhew called her team's weekend performance in Athens, Ohio.

The Lady Eagles dropped both games of a tri-match at Bowling Green and 7-2 to Ohio University. "It wasn't a total loss," Mayhew said. "Jennie Circle won three of four matches she played, and Miriam Hard played very well. For the rest of the team, it was good experience to play in this type of match."

Playing in a tri-match where three teams compete in the same match was a first for a Lady Eagle tennis squad.

Jennie Circle of Springfield, Ohio and Miriam Hard of Westerville, Ohio, scored all three of MSU's points. Circle won in straight sets 6-2, 6-4 at the No. 1 singles spot and Hard won 5-7, 6-1, 6-3 at No. 2. The two then teamed for MSU's only doubles win.

Circle also won in straight sets 6-1, 6-3 against Ohio University. MSU's other point was in doubles play with senior Kelli Muterspap and junior Kathy Hamilton winning 6-4, 5-7, 7-5.

Defeated Centre

Morehead State University's Lady Eagle Tennis Team dominated singles play earlier last week to defeat Centre College 6-3.

The Centre match was the first of three matches Coach Beverly Mayhew has scheduled in preparing her squad for the Ohio Valley Conference Tournament April 20-21.

for the Ohio Valley Conference Tournament April 20-21. The Lady Eagles play the bulk of the season during the fall.

The loss dropped Centre's record to 0-1 but Coach Mayhew was impressed with her opponents.

"They gave us a good match," she said. "It wasn't an easy victory."

Both teams were hampered by wind conditions, but MSU's five singles victories came rather easily.

Freshmen Jennie Circle, Miriam Hard and Sheda Sabie, sophomore Susan Whittington and senior Kelli Muterspap all won in straight sets.

Circle and Hard teamed for MSU's only doubles win.

Cesar Salada? Until the time of the Caesars, all Romans were vegetarians!

Freshman Jennie Circle won all of her matches last week. She won in straight sets against Centre, Bowling Green and Ohio University. Circle is the number one seed on the MSU Lady Eagle tennis team.

Lady Eagle Track Team Plagued With Injuries

With five Kentucky teams competing, the Murray Invitational Women's Track Meet may have been a preview of the April 20 Kentucky Women's Intercollegiate Conference Meet.

The injury plagued Lady Eagles were not competing at full strength and according to Shall, next week's state meet should be a different story.

Xenia, Ohio was third in the discus and fifth in the shot put. Freshman Patty Hill of Ironton, Ohio was third in the shot put at 38.2 and junior Beth Hershner of Dayton, Ohio was sixth in the javelin.

The Lady Eagles a lot compete in the KWIC Meet Friday at Murray.

High Jump - Diane Villeneuve, 5-3 Shot Put - Patty Hill, 38.2 800-yard Medley Relay - 1:56.4 220-yard Dash - Beth Boyd, 28.8 Two-mile Run - Alanna McCarthy, 10:51.5 Mile Relay - 4:25.6 Long Jump - Tina Guerin, 17-4 1/2 Javelin - Beth Hershner, 104.3 200 Meters - Tina Guerin, 29.4 400 Meter Hurdles - Carly Martin, 1:09.4 500 Meters - Alanna McCarthy, 17:07.3 800 Meters - Alanna McCarthy, 2:27.4 3000 Meters - Alanna McCarthy, 10:15.4 10,000 Meters - Hopey Caudill, 37:18

Overall, MSU was sixth in the team field. Murray won the meet with 147 points followed by Memphis State 117, Illinois State 101, Eastern Kentucky 96, Western Kentucky 72, MSU 48, Southeast Missouri 25, Middle Tennessee 10, Austin Peay 8, Louisville 1 and Vanderbilt failed to score.

Sophomore Alanna McCarthy of Charlottesville, Va., won the 5000-meter run at 17:16, and 3000-meter run at 10:52.2.

Junior Hopey Caudill of Mt. Sterling was fourth in the 3000-meter and 3000-meter runs and sophomore D.J. Ross of

MSU Baseball

State in the driver's seat in the OVC with a 7-1 league record. The Eagles ended Sunday's action with a 12-14 overall mark, 11-3 since MSU's spring break trip through the South. Morehead State captured all three victories without the services of outfielder Glenn Jones, who is nursing a pulled leg muscle and catcher Jeff White, who spent the weekend in a Lexington hospital with pneumonia. Third baseman Roy Wright sat out Sunday's first game with back problems.

OVC action continues with a doubleheader at Middle Tennessee Wednesday.

Newhart Doesn't Regret Folding Show

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Bob Newhart had one more year to go — his seventh — on his situation comedy last year when he balked at yet another season, walking away without a backward glance.

The soft-sell comedian had good reason for folding "The Bob Newhart Show" and has no regrets.

"I could see what was coming in situation comedy and I didn't want to be a part of it," he said.

"If we'd gone another year, they'd have had a guy and two girls living in the apartment above us, a Martian living on the same floor next door to three girl detectives. The floor below us would have been occupied by a fraternity and a sorority.

"That way we'd have had all the elements of what passes for a hit sitcom this year.

"But I wouldn't know how to write or play for the kind of audience that is attracted by these shows. Actually, I tried to leave the series a year earlier.

"I saw a slight slackening in the writing which scared me a little bit. I didn't want to limp off the air with a show that didn't measure up to what it had been three or four years earlier.

"Television series are like the stock market. There's room for bears and bulls but no room for pigs. If we'd tried to milk another year out of the series, we'd have wound up with a pig."

Newhart, who expected to rest during the past year, spent some 20 weeks making personal appearances around the country and a six-week stint in Las Vegas. During his travels, he was stopped frequently by persons asking him to bring his series back to the air.

Most of them were adults who lamented the fact that only "Barney Miller" among comedy shows made a pretense of appealing to adult viewers. The rest were clearly aimed at children.

The Newhart series, which wasn't all that subtle and sophisticated, was lost on "Lawrence & Shirley" viewers and single show addicts.

Newhart thinks writers and producers have been instructed by the networks to aim at the lowest possible intelligence quotient in the land to reach the mass audience and capture the highest ratings.

"Like other quality performers, Newhart is victimized by the ratings. Network revenue depends almost solely on the Nielsen numbers game. Quantity, not quality, is the name of the game.

"I suspect producers have got the word to go for unsophisticated comedy with a laugh track," he said. "I have nothing to base that on, except it's more than coincidence that there are so many mindless, poorly done situation comedies on the air."

"I don't think viewers can be blamed. The public doesn't know what it wants until it sees a show on the air. Producers are like guys thronging out meal at the walls — whatever sticks stays on.

"A show like 'Laugh-In' came out of nowhere to become a hit. But until it was seen, nobody at the networks had any idea it would succeed.

"There's room on the air for understated, sophisticated comedy but the people who write it will have gone on to feature films or take executive jobs.

"The other day a producer friend of mine saw a writer's work on a show he admired and called his agent. My pal was told the writer had become a story editor with a three-year development deal at ABC."

When Newhart left the air, "CBS didn't let go easily." The network insisted on three variety specials and a pilot to go on the air in three years.

The comedian is preparing the first special for October. But he hasn't the slightest idea of a format or character for another situation comedy.

"I really haven't given it a thought," he said. "Maybe if one of these comedy-variety specials turns out well, I might return to a regular show using that format instead of a sitcom."

"Odds are astronomically high against coming up with two hit sitcoms. It's a matter of putting together the time slot, cast and writers. It's no secret, that's the combination that works."

"One thing is my favor is that it helps to have an identifiable star, unknown performers, no matter how good, have an uphill battle. Today you put a show on the air and in four weeks it's gone.

"In the old days a show was given a full season, 36 weeks or 24 weeks to establish itself and find an audience. Not any more.

Newhart, who hadn't made a movie since "Catch 22," is currently starring with Walter Matthau and Julie Andrews in Universal Pictures' remake of "Little Miss Marker."

With movie assignments and personal appearances, Newhart doesn't need another series but CBS is insisting.

MSU Tennis Team Doing Well

The Morehead State tennis team has never flown so high. The squads last outing was a nine to zero win over Eastern Kentucky. MSU has never so convincingly defeated the Colonels.

After the loss of Robert Vigar last year, who according to coach George Sadler was the best tennis player the Eagles ever had, there was some doubt as to who could hold down the No. 1 position.

Rich Leslie, '25 from South Harrow, England is doing well holding down that position. The Eagles record is 8-4 and Leslie has lost only twice and both of those losses went to the third set.

Dhan Shapurji holds down the No. 2 spot and teams with Leslie for the No. 1 doubles and has an 8-3 record. Other newcomers to the squad include Philip King (10-7) and Martin Watts (10-1) playing 4 and 5 positions respectively. Nick Lee has a 6-5 record and No. 3 Erick Nyberg is 5-5 at the No. six position.

Sadler feels this is the strongest team he has had in the 11 years he has coached tennis at MSU. If any position looses, the next position can come right back with a win. In the past, if the Eagles didn't win in the 1 through 4 positions they usually lost the match.

The Eagles next match is Thursday with Wright State.

Copley News Service

Dear Mr. McCollam: Enclosed is a picture of a Regulator clock it is in perfect running condition but has no identification anywhere. All joints are put together with square wooden pegs. It strikes the hour and half hour. What would the value of it be? — D.A.F., North Tonawanda, N.Y.

Dear D.A.F.: This is very similar to clocks made by Ansonia in the late 19th century and would probably sell in the same price range — $100-$200.

carving was also done by machine. The value would be in the $200 to $300 range.

If you have any questions concerning the identification and evaluation of antique furniture, send a detailed description and one or more pictures of a single item with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to James G. McCollam, P.O. box 87, Dunsen, Fla. 33528. (Published pictures cannot be returned.) Since the opinions stated here are based on superficial information, no responsibility is assumed. Questions of universal interest will be published, but all letters will be answered.

1870's chest...factory-made

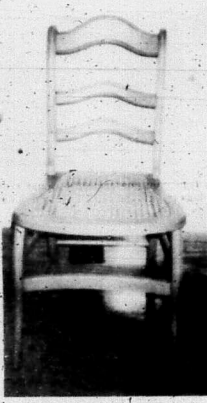

Dear Mr. McCollam: Enclosed is a picture of one of four chairs made of tiger maple with cane seats. On the bottom is printed, "Made by R.E. Seymoud, Sept. 23, 1858. They are pegged together and are in fine condition. What would be the value of this set of four chairs? Your column is most interesting and I always enjoy reading it. — H.B., New York, N.Y.

Dear H.B.: You have said all there is to say about your chairs except for the value, which is about $500 for the set.

I find no record of R.E. Seymoud, but that means little because many cabinetmaker names have not been preserved for posterity.

Dear Mr. McCollam: Can you please give me some idea as to the period of this chest? The front is hand-carved and the top is a reddish brown marble. The drawers are assembled with dowels through the sides into the front. No nails are used in the entire construction as far as I can determine. Is it valuable? — G.S., Clearwater, Fla.

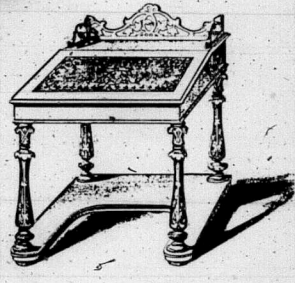

Dear G.S.: This chest was factory made in the 1870s the dovetail construction indicates it was not hand-made (the drawers would be dovetailed, unevenly spaced). The Desks for the ladies like this were found in many ante-bellum homes. Made of walnut, mahogany or rosewood, they were tangible evidence of the literacy of the pre-Civil War matron. They were not expensive then or now, in some areas a desk like this would cost us to $1,000.

Fire Leaves 160 Homeless

CHICAGO (UPI) — Fire raced through a North Side apartment building today, forcing tenants to jump from windows. One man was killed, 22 tenants — including five blind persons — were injured and 160 tenants were left homeless.

Four alarms were rung for the four-story brownstone building and five snorkel trucks were used to pour water on the fire, which burned for more than three hours.

Officials at the scene initially requested units from the Cook County Medical Examiner's Office, saying they expected "a lot of fatalities." Fire Commissioner Richard Albrecht, called to the scene, later said all residents had been evacuated from the building.

Albrecht said a number of people jumped from windows of the four-story structure.

"The fire started in a stairwell and shot up like a tornado," he said. "I'd say we were very lucky to have had this few injuries."

One victim, whose name was not released immediately, died at St. Mary's of Nazareth Hospital, which treated six other people, including one fireman. Another 12 victims, one injured seriously, were treated at St. Elizabeth's Hospital and three were taken to St. Anne's. Most of the other injuries appeared to be minor.

Al Wood, spokesman for St. Elizabeth Hospital, said five of the injured were elderly blind people and one was an amputee. Red Cross and city Department of Human Services personnel were called in to find temporary housing for the displaced tenants.

The fire broke out about 2:30 a.m. and was raised from two to four alarms by 3 a.m. JCSF Fire fighters still were pouring water on the upper floors of the building by 3 a.m.

Officials instructed firefighters to bring gas masks to the scene of the blaze.

Committee Will Raise Compensation For Schools

FRANKFORT — The Interim Joint Committee on Education today voted to prefile a bill which would permit school districts to have average attendance compensation on seven and one-quarter months, rather than the full nine and one-quarter month school year.

Under the bill, school districts would declare only seven and one-half months of average daily attendance as the basis for compensation from the state minimum foundation grant program. The two lowest months of attendance would not affect compensation under the grant program.

Rep. Buel Guy, D-Scottsville, chairman of the committee Subcommittee on Education and the Arts, said the bill is designed to reduce the use of extended school days and cancellation of classes on "marginal" snow days by school officials.

Guy said the measure would cost about $1.4 million annually in additional minimum foundation funds.

The subcommittee drafted the measure following a resolution by the 1978 General Assembly.

Your... Social Security

By: David Bryan — Ashland District Mgr. For Social Security Information write: District Social Security Offices 1816 Carter Avenue — Ashland, Ky. Phone 325-7686.

A record of the earnings reported for every person who has worked in employment or self-employment covered by social security is maintained at social security headquarters, David Bryan, social security district manager in Ashland, said recently.

The accuracy of these records depends in a large part on the accuracy of the reports made by employers. Starting with 1978 wages, reports are made just once a year, using Form W-2 (Wage and Tax Statement). Before 1978, wages were reported four times a year.

Employees can check their copy of the W-2 Form to make sure their employer completed the form correctly and showed all earnings covered by social security. The entry in the space for FICA wages should show the amount of their earnings covered by social security if that figure is different than their total earnings.

If the employee has any questions about whether the form is properly completed he or she should check with his or her employer.

People can also check their own social security earnings record to make sure that past earnings have been properly reported. All they have to do is ask for a copy of the postcard form 7004 at any social security office, fill it in, and mail it.

In return they will receive a form showing their earnings for recent years, along with total earnings reported since they started working under social security. If the information does not correspond with their own records, they should contact social security right away. They should furnish all the information available about their earnings.

People can get a Form 7004 at the Ashland social security office, located at 1816 Carter Avenue.

Guards Murdered; $1 Million Stolen

WATERBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Three security company guards were found shot to death and at least $1 million stolen from a bullet-riddled brick garage of Parulor Security Inc. today, police said.

One body was found inside a white armored car parked inside the small, one-story garage by workers reporting for the 7 a.m. morning shift after the Easter weekend. The other two guards also were shot inside the building. None were immediately identified.

An FBI spokesman said more than a million dollars was taken but would not speculate on the amount. He called it a "massive loss."

They're still trying to figure out how much was taken. But I think it's going to be big," said the spokesman. "It's a major, major amount."

Nearly a dozen bullet holes were visible in the garage's outer doors. Six shots had been fired through two large blue wooden garage doors at the front of the squat building and four other holes were visible in two separate window panes above the wooden panels. A bullet hole also was visible in the windshield of one of the company security vans inside the garage.

The garage, which has only a small sign above the doors to identify it as Parulor facility, is located on a side street across from a shopping plaza.

Two Injured

The other accident occurred one mile east of Preston in Bath County on the Blevins Valley Road. According to State Trooper Roger Ditterline, Lila Shroat, of Rt. 3, Owingsville and J.C. Manley of Sharpburg were stopped along the road, apparently engaged in a conversation when a third car, driven by Arnold Whitt, of Rt. 3, Owingsville, struck the Shroat vehicle, knocking it into the Manley auto.

Whitt and Manley were not injured, but Shroat was taken to St. Claire Medical Center in Morehead where she was treated and released.

According to the state police report, both accidents occurred about 6:15 p.m.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate, Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall made a short campaign stop last Thursday at the Trademore Shopping Center in Morehead. Stovall arrived in town Wednesday afternoon and remained until Thursday. (Staff Photo)

U.S., Moscow To Negotiate On Weapons Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Washington and Moscow are going back to the bargaining table April 23 in Vienna to negotiate a ban on satellitekilling weapons that could spark a space war, the U.S. Arms Control Agency announced Saturday.

The U.S. objective in the talks is to work out an agreement to ban satellite killers that could track and destroy orbiting vehicles such as communications and spy satellites.

The negotiations come just as the United States and the Soviet Union are completing the second stage of a strategic arms limitations pact to curb the nuclear arms race.

Although the United States wants a ban on the satellite killers, the State Department has stressed that SALT II is not contingent on an agreement on anti-satellite weapons.

"If we and the Soviets are able to achieve an equitable and verifiable anti-satellite agreement prior to a SALT summit, then certainly the summit would be an appropriate setting for finalizing such a treaty," department spokesman Tom Reston said.

"However, the United States will not in any way sacrifice its anti-satellite objectives in order to complete a treaty by any specific deadline," said Reston, noting that anti-satellite provisions already are included in SALT I.

"From the U.S. viewpoint, perhaps the most portentous Soviet activity in space is the resumption of their anti-satellite development program, after a hiatus of more than four years. The USSR is seizing a new initiative and creating the prospect of a new dimension of military conflict — war in space," the Defense Department said in its 1978 yearly report on weapons research and development.

"Our lead in space technology is a strong one, but we have deliberately restrained the development of an anti-satellite capability."

This will be the third round of Soviet-American anti-satellite talks since last summer. The negotiations began in Helsinki in June 1978 and were followed by talks held in Bern, Switzerland, in January and February.

$300,000 Flood Warning System Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Appalachian Regional Commission has approved a $300,000 grant that will be used to establish a flash flood warning pilot program to serve eastern Kentucky and West Virginia. Kentuckyans Wendell Ford and Walter (Dee) Huddleston announced Wednesday.

The senators said that initially five Kentucky counties — Pike, Magoffin, Martin, Johnson and Floyd — will be served by the new warning system. The West Virginia counties of McDowell, Wyoming, Logan and Mingo also will be covered.

Eventually, the Virginia counties of Buchanan, Wise and Dickenson are expected to be part of the program.

The warning system, which will use radar, computers and automated rain gauges, as well as conventional equipment and volunteer observers to give advance warning of floods, will be the first of its type in the nation.

Operation of the system, which will begin on a limited basis later this year, will be the responsibility of state offices of emergency services and of the county governments, with input from the National Weather Service.

The system will be used as a model for programs in other flood-prone areas of Appalachia and the nation.

Engineers Discuss Soil Erosion

Kentucky's agricultural engineers will study soil erosion at strip mine sites when they gather for the spring meeting of the Kentucky Section, American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

The meeting is scheduled March 30 and 31 at Jentry Wiley State Park near Prestonsburg. The meeting will include a tour of a surface mining site in Eastern Kentucky and a visit to Addington Brothers Mining headquarters in Paintsville.

Featured speaker for the meeting will be William E. Splinter, president of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers and head of the University of Nebraska, Department of Agricultural Engineering.

In that capacity, he has been a leader in exploring the applications of solar energy to agricultural systems. Splinter has served in southern Rhodesia and India as a consultant, and in Colombia, South America as coordinator of Nebraska Mission's Agricultural Engineering Program. The Kentucky Section of the agricultural engineering society has about 100 members throughout the state.

More information on the spring meeting is available from Larry Wells, Agricultural Engineering Building, University of Kentucky, Lexington, 40546.

Sloane Addresses Education

Calling for a "coalition of strong support for education between parents, teachers and administrators," Harvey Sloane Friday announced his program for kindergarten, primary and secondary education. Sloane, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, announced his education platform at press conferences in Lexington and Louisville.

Sloane noted that 32 percent of Kentucky's high school students do not receive their diploma. Sloane said that there was "no excuse, with the resources we have available, that we can't educate our children to read, write, and learn what is fundamentally necessary for them to live and work as self-sufficient adults."

Sloane named three areas of public education that would receive special attention in his administration:

Funding
"The state government must provide the basic resources in order for Kentucky to have a successful education program," Sloane said. "Kentucky should reach and maintain the average per pupil expenditure of our seven neighboring states. Currently, Kentucky has risen in per pupil expenditures to 38th nationally. Sloane said that the state should "maintain the momentum we have achieved in funding of education."

Sloane said that the state should "abandon the use of the classroom unit method of state funding and return to the use of the weighted pupil formula. Under the classroom unit funds are all allotted for mechanisms of teaching. The weighted pupil formula, which was recommended by the Education Finance Study and the State Advisory Committee, would provide a more reasonable and equitable method of distributing state funds. It focuses on the needs of the students and after all, that's the most important thing of all," Sloane said "with constant monitoring and clear definition of student needs, this will be the best way to fund our school system."

Sloane also called for a lowering of the pupil/teacher ratio for kindergarten classes from 50/1 to 40/1. He also said the state should provide transportation for kindergarten children.

Sloane said he would support the School Building Authority and pledged that "it would be used to aid poorer school districts with crucial building needs."

As a way of providing a more stable system of funding he said that funding should be provided to districts based on the average daily attendance of the two months with the highest attendance. Currently funds are distributed on the basis of the year's average daily attendance.

Sloane said he would encourage all local school districts to participate in the state Power Equalization Program and proposed adding an additional tier to the program in the next biennium. Sloane said the Power Equalization Program is a means to "equalize the revenue produced by the same level of property tax effort in every school district," citing figures that before the Power Equalization Program began the difference in per pupil ranged from a high in one district of $105.85 to a low of $9,262 in another.

Sloane also said he would establish a commission made up of the members of the education community to study the effects of House Bill 44 which put a limit on property tax increases, the prime method of funding for school systems. He said the commission could be ready to report by the beginning of the 1980 General Assembly.

"The state's education system must be made accountable for our education dollars," Sloane said. Sloane said that he would study and streamline the state Department of Education. He also said he would remove it from the Cabinet of Education and Arts.

The Superintendent of Education who is an elected official," Sloane said, "should not have to report to an appointee of the Governor."

Sloane said he would favor granting local school boards greater autonomy. "There should be certain minimum standards for the boards which would allow them the flexibility to decide what is in the best interest of their own community. Frankfort should not try to dictate the details of curriculum to local communities," Sloane said.

Sloane said that he would not favor new legislation which would mandate programs but provide no additional funding for local school districts. "I will veto any legislation which does not meet this standard," Sloane said.

Sloane also said he supported the competency testing program and that the state should provide remedial assistance to those students shown by the tests to need additional help with their education.

Sloane said he will seek the input of all members of the education profession, especially the teachers since they are "certified professionals who possess the first hand knowledge and training that comes from every-day experience."

Teachers

"We must provide for those who serve and those who have served our schools," Sloane said. He said that teachers' salaries "must remain competitive with those in the seven states which border Kentucky." Kentucky currently ranks thirtieth nationally in average teacher salaries.

Sloane also said that the Teachers' Retirement Fund "must be adequately funded and maintained on a sound basis."

Brown Endorses Jobs For Elderly

LOUISVILLE — John Y. Brown Jr. said last week that as governor he will set up a service within the Department of Human Resources to help find jobs for the elderly.

Brown, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, spoke at a Senior Citizens East reception for the candidates at Harvey Brown Memorial Church here.

"Senior citizens are the forgotten people in state government. There is so much we can do to make them more productive and involved in our society," Brown said. "We don't want them to come to a point in life where they just exist sitting in a rocking chair. All of us have to have a purpose for living."

Brown told the group that five years ago he and five friends with state government to build the $2 million Sanders-Brown Institute on Aging at the University of Kentucky. The institute will open next month, Brown said.

"I hope the institute can find the answers that will allow our senior citizens to live with pride and live an active life until their last day," he said.

As governor, Brown said that he would work to establish Senior Citizens Centers throughout the state.

"We need to set up a place where the elderly can go for recreation, for information and for involvement in community affairs," he said.

Brown said he will obtain maximum federal funding for the state through the Older Americans Act and other federal programs to assist in setting up Centers.

"We've got to provide services for those who can't take care of themselves. We've got to provide work for those who can't work. We owe an obligation to look after our senior citizens with the same responsibility they looked after us."

My father, who is 79, and Colonel Harlan Sanders, who is 88, are both very vibrant, alert, very active and productive people. We wrap up on earth to utilize our talents, to reach out and to be involved. I promise as governor to help senior citizens find an active role for themselves."

Teaching Music Subject Of Workshop

FRANKFORT — Teaching music to special education students will be the subject of two workshops to be held in Kentucky during April.

Sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Education and the host universities, the meetings will cover new techniques for teaching music and musical instruments to special education students.

Arthur Harvey from Eastern Kentucky University and Sherry Simms from Ursuline School in Louisville will make presentations at each workshop.

The workshops have been scheduled as follows:

April 20-21, Eastern Kentucky University, beginning at 7 p.m. on Friday, April 20, the workshop will feature Lois Birkenshaw from Toronto, Canada, who has been successful in adapting the Orff-Schulwerk music-teaching method to the needs of special education students.

April 27-28, Murray State University, beginning at 7 p.m. Friday, April 27, the workshop will feature Richard Weber from Trenton, N.J., who will be explaining techniques for teaching instruments to special education students.

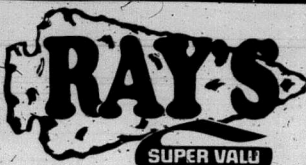

Music educators and special education teachers may register for the workshops by contacting Robert Elkins, music consultant, Department of Education, Room 1828, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

MSU Senior Elected President Sigma Tau Epsilon

David Piatt, Portsmouth senior at Morehead State University has been elected president of Sigma Tau Epsilon, national professional industrial education fraternity.

Piatt, the third consecutive MSU student to hold the office, was selected at the eighth annual national convention recently at East Texas State University.

MSU's Mu Chapter won the "Industrial Visitation Award," first place in scrapbook and the "Man-a-Mile" trophy for travelling 1,029 miles to the convention.

Sloane also said he supported the competency testing program and that the state should provide remedial assistance to those students shown by the tests to need additional help with their education.

Sloane said he will seek the input of all members of the education profession, especially the teachers since they are "certified professionals who possess the first hand knowledge and training that comes from every-day experience."

Teachers

"We must provide for those who serve and those who have served our schools," Sloane said. He said that teachers' salaries "must remain competitive with those in the seven states which border Kentucky." Kentucky currently ranks thirtieth nationally in average teacher salaries.

Sloane also said that the Teachers' Retirement Fund "must be adequately funded and maintained on a sound basis."

Brown Endorses Jobs For Elderly

LOUISVILLE — John Y. Brown Jr. said last week that as governor he will set up a service within the Department of Human Resources to help find jobs for the elderly.

Brown, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, spoke at a Senior Citizens East reception for the candidates at Harvey Brown Memorial Church here.

"Senior citizens are the forgotten people in state government. There is so much we can do to make them more productive and involved in our society," Brown said.

"We don't want them to come to a point in life where they just exist sitting in a rocking chair. All of us have to have a purpose for living."

Brown told the group that five years ago he and five friends with state government to build the $2 million Sanders-Brown Institute on Aging at the University of Kentucky. The institute will open next month, Brown said.

"I hope the institute can find the answers that will allow our senior citizens to live with pride and live an active life until their last day," he said.

As governor, Brown said that he would work to establish Senior Citizens Centers throughout the state.

"We need to set up a place where the elderly can go for recreation, for information and for involvement in community affairs," he said.

Brown said he will obtain maximum federal funding for the state through the Older Americans Act and other federal programs to assist in setting up Centers.

"We've got to provide services for those who can't take care of themselves. We've got to provide work for those who can work. We owe an obligation to look after our senior citizens with the same responsibility they looked after us."

My father, who is 79, and Colonel Harlan Sanders, who is 88, are both very vibrant, alert, very active and productive people. We wrap up on earth to utilize our talents, to reach out and to be involved. I promise as governor to help senior citizens find an active role for themselves."

Teaching Music Subject Of Workshop

FRANKFORT — Teaching music to special education students will be the subject of two workshops to be held in Kentucky during April.

Sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Education and the host universities, the meetings will cover new techniques for teaching music and musical instruments to special education students.

Arthur Harvey from Eastern Kentucky University and Sherry Simms from Ursuline School in Louisville will make presentations at each workshop.

The workshops have been scheduled as follows:

April 20-21: Eastern Kentucky University, beginning at 7 p.m. on Friday, April 20, the workshop will feature Lois Birkenshaw from Toronto, Canada, who has been successful in adapting the Orff-Schulwerk music-teaching method to the needs of special education students.

April 27-28: Murray State University, beginning at 7 p.m. Friday, April 27, the workshop will feature Richard Weber from Trenton, N.J., who will be explaining techniques for teaching instruments to special education students.

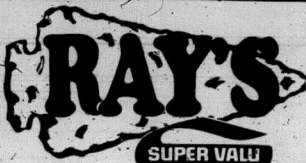

Music educators and special education teachers may register for the workshops by contacting Robert Elkins, music consultant, Department of Education, Room 1828, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky., 40601.

MSU Senior Elected President Sigma Tau Epsilon

David Piatt, Portsmouth senior at Morehead State University has been elected president of Sigma Tau Epsilon, national professional industrial education fraternity.

Piatt, the third consecutive MSU student to hold the office, was selected at the eighth annual national convention recently at East Texas State University.

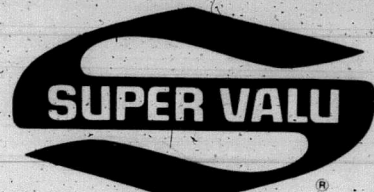

MSU's Mu Chapter won the "Industrial Visitation Award," first place in scrapbook and the "Man-a-Mile" trophy for travelling 1,029 miles to the convention.

Three Morehead State University students entertained senior citizens Wednesday afternoon at Heritage Place. Pam Evans, Virginia Johnson and Shawn Crump, pictured above, all are in a social recreation class taught by Gaye Osborne. The program which included word games and singing is in conjunction with the Morehead Department of Recreation.

Outdoor Dramas Scheduled

Scenes of comedy, history and tragedy will be reenacted under the stars of Kentucky's summer evenings after the curtains open on the outdoor drama season in June.

Kentucky is a veteran in outdoor drama (since 1959), offering theater buffs everything from historical plays and Shakespearean drama to Broadway musicals.

"The Stephen Foster Story" opens its 21st season June 9 at J. Dan Talbott Amphitheater in My-Old Kentucky Home State Park, Bardonia. Written by Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Paul Green, the musical is performed within a stone's throw of Federal Hill, which inspired the oster ballad "My Old Kentucky Home."

Other productions scheduled are "Robber Bridegroom," "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" and "Pippin." Curtain time for all production is "at dark." For specific information, write Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, P. O. Box 22, Prestonsburg, KY 41653, or phone (606) 886-9274.

"The Stephen Foster Story" opens its 21st season June 9 at J. Dan Talbott Amphitheater in My-Old Kentucky Home State Park, Bardonia. Written by Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Paul Green, the musical is performed within a stone's throw of Federal Hill, which inspired the oster ballad "My Old Kentucky Home."

"Foster" runs through Sept. 2 nightly at 8:30, except Mondays. Ticket information is obtainable from "The Stephen Foster Story," P.O. Box D, Bardonia, KY 40004, phone (502) 348-5971.

Broadway musicals will be performed at the Summer Music Theatre in Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, Prestonsburg. The season begins June 20 with "Starting Here, Starting Now."

"Ephraim McDowell" will open the season at Pioneer Playhouse, Danville, on June 11.

Hop to it.

Don't put it off any longer. Get into a regular exercise program now. It'll not only make you feel better, you'll look better and live longer.

Of course, you should consult your doctor first. Then start jumping rope, walking, bicycling or jogging.

How you take care of yourself directly affects the cost of health care for all of us. In the long run, good health habits are the best form of health care... and the least expensive.

At Blue Cross and Blue Shield and Delta Dental of Kentucky we're concerned about rising health care costs. That's why we're working with consumers, dentists, physicians and hospitals to find ways to help control costs down.

Write us for information on enrolling in quality health care prepayment plans. For a free booklet on fitness (limit one) write c/o "Food & Fitness Booklet" at the following address: Blue Cross and Blue Shield and Delta Dental of Kentucky, 9901 Tinn Station Road, Louisville, KY 40223.

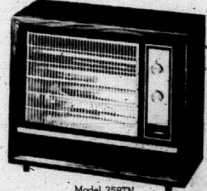

We want you to stay healthy.

Notice

Have you purchased one of these Markel portable electric heaters since September 10, 1978?

The manufacturer has determined that some of these portable electric heaters may contain a potential shock hazard.

If the first four numbers on the stamp on the bottom of the heater are between 37-78 and 48-78, follow these instructions:

1. Disconnect heater and take out of service.
2. Return heater to the dealer you purchased the heater from and exchange it for a corrected heater.

Although most of these model 3587N heaters have been recovered, our records indicate there are still some heaters unaccounted for in this area.

Bronzeback Time On The Kinniconick

Look closely on an official highway map of Kentucky and you won't even see it. But in Lewis County, between Garrison and the State Route 344-377 split, you will find one of the finest fishing streams in the Commonwealth. The Kinniconick rises out of the rugged terrain of the Knobs of the Bluegrass and falls away sharply to the Ohio for a total of about 50 miles.

Along its route is a series of pools and riffles that flow over rock and gravel bottom. It is sometimes crowded with stream-side fishing camps, and other times remote — seemingly of another place where people have not yet intruded on the solitude of the stream.

It is known far and wide as a prime muskie stream. Perhaps its past reputation is responsible for its notoriety. It was once considered the best of all muskie streams in the state. Colorful characters like 93-year-old Muskie Joe Stamper, the Lost Creek Muskie Clan, and Ken and Boyd Rathiff, the Muskie Twins, have added much to the angling history of the Kinniconick — perhaps the cleanest of Kentucky's mountain streams.

Kinny is a smallmouth stream in late April and May. Oxygen-charged water fed from heavily forested areas, sparkles across the riffles and pushes around rocks and fallen logs on its way to the Ohio. These prime water conditions make the stream a natural for hard-fighting bronzeback in spring.

Commencing about the middle of April, smallmouth can be found on the long riffle stretches or in the eddy water immediately above and below a piece of swift water

Best Of Season

Fogging white water must be worked carefully, every hole and piece of cover probed intensely in search of this stream bass. This is the time for the best of the season's smallmouth fishing and all the skills of the stream fisherman must come into play during this period. If success is to be tasted, Smallmouth anglers are not common

Max fished the stream for years before the employment picture locally forced him to move on. But during the years that he fished Kinny on a regular basis, he was considered the best bronzeback fisherman to ever hit Lewis County.

Max fished Kinniconick from a boat most of the time. But he fished the stream a bit differently than others. Max fished upstream all the time. I don't remember ever seeing him fish a tached to spring in Kentucky. Wood ducks are nesting and the quiet sounds of the chattering stream are sometimes disrupted with the mighty splash of a feeding muskie which sets the blood of a stream fisherman on fire with the hope, and often dread, of a coming battle.

If you are a new-comer to fishing the Kinniconick, you can find it by looking at your highway map. From Morehead, take State Route 377 for about 15 miles until you reach the intersection of on the Kinniconick, because this wary sport fish is a difficult challenge in its natural stream environment.

Successful fishermen have discovered it is twice as hard to catch a two pound bronzeback from the Kinny lake. But it can be done and often trophy-size fish up to five pounds are taken.

Max Ervin of Dayton, Ohio is a Kinniconick smallmouth fisherman.

lure downstream

Had Preference

Over the years, he fished the entire stream from beginning to end, but he liked the Mill Pond and Red Brush on lower Kinny best. He pushed his little eight-foot wooden gram down the steep banks and eased his way through the long eddies, casting a spinning-size black sputterbug to occasional spots along shore. He always kept an eye out for evidence of small brooks or springs leading into the larger stream. Often a three pound smallmouth lurked nearby.

Mostly, though, he passed through the still water of the larger pools quickly. Only when he came within 100 feet of the foot of a riffle did he slow his pace and begin to methodically work the surface of the stream with his surface bait.

Often he would cast the lure right into the swiftest part of the riffle, giving it hard pumps to make as much commotion on the water as possible. Frequently, a lunker would rise to meet the intruder with a shattering strike.

After the foot or lower end of the riffle had been completely covered with short, accurate casts, Max would beach his boat and slip on a pair of hip boots. Then he would work his way through the riffle. Sometimes he'd vary his lure selection and tie on a Mepps spinner to entice plump rockbass into biting. Max liked a mess of fresh goggle-eye or punkens as well as he did prime walleye filets fresh from cold water lakes in Canada.

Ready For Strike

Going up the riffle, Max paid complete attention to where he stepped. His boot soles were felt-covered to prevent slipping on the moss covered rocks. He made as little noise as possible. Long before he reached the upstream end of the riffle he would have already made long casts into the shallow water just where it breaks from the deeper pool onto the riffle. Here he was constantly ready for a tackle-bustin' strike from a really big mossback.

Only after he had fished the top end of the swift water, and surrounding edges of the deeper pool, did he go back for his boat and pull it across into the eddie above.

Max's way of fishing is the most effective method for taking Kinniconick smallmouth. But in my case, I'm too lazy to fish this way. I prefer the downstream approach, because I fish from a canoe. Not only can I forget the padding for most of the way, I also have time to settle back and watch the events of spring taking place along shore. Dazzling displays of blossoming wildflowers line the banks. Birds and small animals dart about with the vigor at-

Route 344. The bridge here crosses the Kinniconick. Turn north or downstream and continue following the stream.

Soon, you will pass long pools and stretches of fast water. Smallmouth can be found in any of these areas. A stop in the small community of Kinniconick will get you directions on how to follow the stream. All the way to its mouth you'll find a grocery there. From the downstream end, go to Garrison on State Route 10 and turn south on Route 1306. The road parallels the stream for several miles.

Equipment needed for a spring boat with Kinniconick bronzeback include spinning tackle equipped with six to eight pound test line, good quality snag swivels, and an assortment of spinners and surface-type lures. Single hook spinners are most effective in the riffle areas since they don't get hung on rocks as easily.

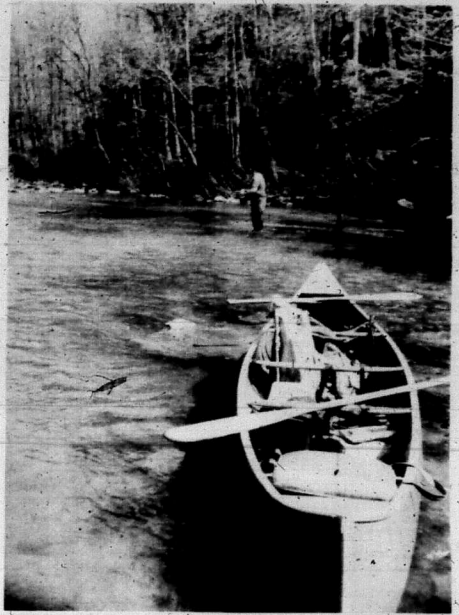

Need Waders

A pair of chest-high waders or hip boots is almost a must, unless you can stand the chill of the spring run off. A canoe is an ideal boat to fish the Kinniconick, but any light weight boat will do. A trolling motor is useful if you don't like rowing, but a larger motor is almost useless.

Live bait anglers will discover that mud eels, soft craws, and creek minnow, in the two to three inch size, are most effective for spring feeding bronzebacks on this Northeast Kentucky stream.

Access along the stream is still fairly open, but regard the "no trespassing" signs, and seek permission to launch a boat or fish the riffles in the area that is posted. Often land owners will be pleased that you considered his private property.

Yep, the old Kinniconick has a reputation for being a class muskie stream, but to old stream anglers such as Max Ervin, April and May is Bronzeback Time on the Kinniconick.

We're unveiling the first Chevy of the '80s on April 19TH

Citation. It's a whole new kind of car. The first Chevy with front-wheel drive and transverse-mounted engine. Contemporary styling in a sporty package that takes up less than 3/4 of a parking space, yet carries five adults in comfort. It's the most thoroughly tested new car in Chevy history. And it'll be here for you to see and test drive April 19th.

Kentucky A Major Cheese Producer
Did you know that Kentucky ranks 12th in the nation in cheese production. Cheese is produced in plants located at Elizabethtown, Letchfield, Harrodsburg, Russell Springs, Tompkinsville, Glasgow, Albany, Gettysburg, Owenton, Lawrenceburg and Horse Cave.

Watch Those Tobacco Plant Beds
Many of you have sown your tobacco plant beds by now and some are still planning to sow them. Even though there seems to be plenty of moisture in the soil, tobacco beds need to be watered this spring in order to get the plants up and started.

Only a few days of sunny weather and little wind will dry out the surface and form a crust on the seed bed under a canvas cover. Watering is needed then to help seedlings emerge and to keep them alive.

Tobacco seeds are very small and the seedlings start with shallow root systems—that can't reach moisture down in the soil when the top dries out.

Keep the surface soil wet in tobacco plant beds until plants are up and develop roots that go down about 1 1/2" deep. After that stage, water according to how fast you want plants to come along.

During dry periods thorough watering every 4-5 days is better than a light watering every day or two. It takes 560 gallons of water to put on an inch of water on a bed 9 x 100 feet. 750 gallons of water for a bed 12 x 100 feet.

It is best to water beds in the afternoon or evening since this reduces loss from evaporation and allows water to soak into the soil over night.

Plant Disease Lab Works For You
The plant diagnostic lab located at the College of Agriculture University of Kentucky is staffed with specialists in their fields who identify plant disease that are sent in throughout the state.

More than 2,500 samples a year are sent to this lab for diagnosis. After they are diagnosed; recommendations for control are sent to them. Samples sent in are roughly divided into 3 categories: about 1/3 are tobacco, 1/3 are other farm crops and the other 1/3 are horticulture and ornamental crops.

If you have a plant disease problem bring your sample of the diseased plant to the Extension Office and we will send the plant in to the lab for you. Keep in mind the following details:

The sample should show characteristic symptoms of the early stages of the disease development.

Provide enough of the plant to give as complete a picture as possible.

When sending in whole plants a plastic bag or paper wrapping on the roots keep soil from getting on the foliage.

Mail samples early in the week. This prevents them from having to lay in the post office over a weekend and deteriorating before it gets to the laboratory.

Fruit Crops

It looks like with the weather we are having that the chances for a fruit crop is not good. However, I talked to two or three folks who have checked their trees and they have said so far the trees have gotten by without kill. Let's hope that we have more fruit this year than last.

CORRECTION

Clyde C. and Carrie L. Estep through error was left in the Delinquent Tax List. We regret this mistake.
