City Council Approves Purchase Of Land

By JOE LAMB

The Morehead City Council, in two separate meetings this week, has exercised options on two pieces of property in the city limits and learned that bids for building the financially-strapped community facilities building at Divide Hill once again are higher than the amount of money the city has available to build it. The council also hired an assistant city clerk.

Both property transactions were made during a special meeting Monday night. The largest transaction involved the purchase of property on First Street belonging to Ada Bruck. The lot, which is approximately 150 feet by 200 feet will be used to build a city garage and a storage area for city vehicles. In addition, it will be used for off-street parking.

That particular transaction was vigorously opposed by Councilman Carl Sizemore because the one-way cul-de-sac planned for First Street in the Transportation Study for downtown would go right by the property.

He said that he believed the citizens would object to having garbage trucks and maintenance equipment parked along the road. He also said it was not the ideal location for off-street parking and added that the city would have to go against zoning regulations to build the garage. Councilman John Holbrook had argued at a previous meeting that the building would keep the garbage trucks out of sight and that the property could have a fence around it.

The second transaction passed by council Monday night was the purchase of land near the city park as part of a federal Heritage, Conservation and Recreation grant. The cost of the nearly one-acre lot is $25,000. The property is tied in with the city's recreation grant which will also provide lighting for the Little League field.

Trade Discussed

Council also discussed another property transaction during the Monday session. At a meeting on the prior Wednesday, council voted to hire a local and an out-of-town appraiser to assess land that the city is considering in a trade. That action had to be re-done because it was not on the agenda for the emergency meeting as required.

The city is considering an even trade of its 18.7-acre industrial park for two tracts of land owned by William and Pauline Dailey in the city limits. The tracts of land, near Elam's Market on U.S. 60 East, would be used for off-street parking.

Aside from the action to hire the appraisers, the matter has not been discussed in public session by council, but at least one councilman, Carl Sizemore, has indicated his opposition to the trade. In an interview with The Morehead News Wednesday afternoon, Sizemore said, "I just can't see trading 18 acres for one."

He indicated his feelings that the town was gradually expanding in the direction of the industrial park on KY 32 and that the property might someday be more valuable to the city, even if it is not used for industry. The land is located next to the state highway garage.

Sizemore pointed out that the Dailey property is not in the center of town and is not in the best location for parking, although it would "help some." Sizemore said, "I could maybe see it, if it was located right in the middle of town."

Sizemore said that some of the other councilmen had said that it would take a lot of landfill to make the property usefully but added that since someone's interested in trading for it, it must have some value.

The appraisal for the properties is to be completed by the next meeting of

City Council on May 14.

Bids Too High

Council received some disappointing news about the proposed community facility building, for the Divide Hill property where a public housing development is to be built. Earlier in the year, bids for the building exceeded the amount of money available for the project by over $200,000. The project went out for bids again, however, in the hope that with some alternates the price tag would be lower.

The bid for the same building this time came back about $35,000 higher than it was earlier in the year. Two bids Accepted a verbal low bid from Sanford Bradley of Rowan County to supply lumber for bridge repair. His bid was $270 per thousand for 3X6s. The only other bid received was from Ohio for $495 per thousand.

County Rescinds Withdrawal From District Health Department

By JOE LAMB

Prompted by the appearance of about 15 local citizens and the presentations of two physicians and two men involved with local health care, the Rowan County Fiscal Court unanimously voted yesterday morning to rescind its resolution withdrawing from the Gateway District Health Department.

After hearing Harold Belcher, acting director of the Gateway District Health Department detail the numerous technical and funding problems that the county would face if it followed through with its decision to revert back to the county-run health department, Magistrate Paul Ousley formally voted to rescind the resolution passed during the April meeting of Fiscal Court.

A few moments of silence passed after the clerk had read the resolution. Before it was seconded by Calvin Lyle, one by one, each magistrate voted yes and the resolution passed, heralded by the loud applause of the people in the audience.

Post Office Size Standards Change In July

"Use up your small and undersized envelopes and cards before July 15," Postmaster Norman Gross reminds customers. That is the date when the Postal Service's new size standards become effective.

The Morehead Postmaster said that after July 15, envelopes and cards measuring less than three-and-one-half inches high or five inches long will be returned to the sender if mailed.

Postmaster Gross said that because the envelope and greeting card industries have had more than three years to prepare for the new standards, few retailers should still be selling undersized pieces.

"Many consumers, however, are likely to still have smaller envelopes and cards in their supply of stationery," Gross said.

The regulations also prohibit flimsy cards. In the future they must be at least seven-thousandths (.007) of an inch thick. An official postal card, for instance, has a thickness of nine thousandths of an inch.

Undersized pieces and flimsy cards are being banned because they can become trapped in other mail, tear and jam mail processing machinery. As a result, the letters of others can also be damaged.

The standards also affect oversized pieces. First-class mail weighing one ounce or less, there will be a surcharge of seven cents for pieces more than six-and-one-eighth inches high or 1 1/2 inches long.

For more information, the postmaster suggests customers check with a post office window clerk.

Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery who had voted yes when the motion was made last month to withdraw from the district, did not vote when the roll call was taken on the motion. Before the meeting had adjourned, however, Flannery added his yes vote to the others.

In addition to Belcher, the board also heard presentations concerning the situation from Ancil Lewis, School Board Chairman Dr. Warren Proudfoot, and Dr. John Dinsien, a member of the County Health Board and of the executive committee of the Gateway District Health Board.

After Ousley made his motion, Judge Flannery suggested that the magistrates might want to postpone their votes until Joe Miller, deputy commissioner with the Bureau for Public Health, made a scheduled presentation later in the afternoon.

Ousley's motion carried with it the stipulation that the judge/executive should make a quarterly report on the health department to the role as chairman of the County Health Board.

The large citizen turnout was apparently the result of a Monday night meeting of "concerned citizens" who had indicated their opposition in the form of a petition adopted during that session.

The decision yesterday ended a controversy which began when Judge Flannery recommended that the county withdraw from the district last month, amid reports that morale was low among workers at the County Health Department and that the county could do a better job of administering the tax money itself.

Belcher told the magistrates that Rowan County users of the health department would face "a serious decrease in health services, if you choose to pull out."

The magistrates did manage to decide a few other matters during the morning session, besides the health department issue.

Among those matters were:

- Agreeing to replace the motor in a van loaned to the county jailer by the city of Morehead to transport prisoners. The magistrates limited the cost of the used motor to $150.

Accepting to buy new uniforms for Carl Mullen, newly appointed chief of the Rowan County Police Force. Magistrate Ousley voted no on the motion.

Agreeing to let the Rowan County high school rent the manpower and county equipment to haul fill dirt for the baseball diamond.

Discussing the placement of county gravel on church parking lots.

Maxey Flats Plans Presented

Plans for dealing with 1.6 million gallons of radioactive water in various stages at Maxey Flats Nuclear Disposal site were presented Monday to the Special Advisory Committee on Nuclear Waste Disposal during a meeting at Morehead State University.

Eugene Mooney, secretary of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, said "the largest problem relates to the management of water up there on that site." The Natural Resources Department is responsible for management and maintenance of the site.

Mooney described the various stages of waste at the Fleming County site, which has been closed as a nuclear waste dump since May 1978. He said the trenches holding nuclear waste are open and consequently retain much of the 47 inches of rain that falls in the area annually.

A plan is currently under way of casing the hydrology situation and storing existing wastes cannot be properly addressed, Mooney said, under the present contract and with the present evaporator, which has proved too small to handle the vast amount of contaminated water at the site.

Mooney said of the decision not to renew the contract with NECO, "We believed that we needed to restructure the entire management applicable to Maxey Flats and accomplish at least a changing of the licensing arrangement and of the negotiating of a new contract which would clearly give my department sufficient operational control that it could at least supervise and hopefully spark initiation of some techniques and new ideas for coping with the hydrology (waste water) problems."

On July 1, 1979, as it now stands, the Department for Natural Resources will Mooney said where trenches are systematically being pumped out. The trenches are not dry, however.

Approximately 200,000 gallons of radioactive water waste are already stored in steel tanks housed in buildings on the site, Mooney said. He estimated 150,000 gallons of sludge waste are presently stored in tanks waiting for burial.

Also two rubber-lined pools (the largest measuring 100 feet by 300 feet) together contain 150,000 gallons of water.

The state's contract for management and maintenance of the Maxey Flats site with Nuclear Engineering Company (NECO) of Louisville terminates June 31.

Mooney indicated some managerial problems exist among his department, NECO and the Department for Human Resources, the licensing branch for permits at the site. Also, the problems

Rowan Water Learns Of Sewer Project Setbacks

By JOE LAMB

The Board of Directors for Rowan Water, Inc. was informed of two setbacks Wednesday in its attempt to build sewage collector lines to serve homes outside the Morehead City limits.

Though the problems have a major nature, they could effectively delay progress on the application for federal funding for grants for the project.

Director Sherman Arnett told the board members that he had learned shortly before the Wednesday meeting that Rowan Water was not properly set up to go into the sanitary sewerage business according to Farmers Home Administration guidelines.

Arnett said, "Farmers Home is not telling us not to apply for grant money. They're just saying there might be objections on down the road."

Arnett indicated that the problem might be solved by simply changing the name of the corporation to Rowan Water, Inc. and Sanitary Sewer District. Setting up the sewer district would comply with the FHA requirements.

The second setback came in the form of a letter from the board's attorney John Cox, who said that after contacting the state attorney general's office, he was under the opinion that Rowan County Fiscal Court's approval of a franchise for the company to build and operate the sewers was not awarded properly.

Cox said that the county could not lawfully grant the franchise without advertising for competitive bids. The board agreed to offer a nominal amount, saying that it would probably be the only group interested in the project and admitting that it would be willing to turn the project over to someone else, if they could undertake it.

The board agreed to halt proceedings on the project until it got further home on how to proceed.

Arnett announced that he was still waiting on a contract to be presented by Morehead Utility Plant Board Attorney Paul Blair regarding the allocation of plant capacity for the proposed wastewater treatment facility. The board had earlier agreed to share 50 percent of the five million gallon per day capacity of the plant on 30-20 basis with the Bath County Water District. The remaining 50 percent will be allocated to the Plant Board.

Completion of the contract is necessary before the Plant Board can continue with application for funding of the project, proposal which could eventually raise the rates of city customers and possibly county users.

The board members also spent some time discussing Rowan Water's own expansion project. A primary topic of discussion was the section along KY 32, north of Morehead. Arnett said, "We're reaching a critical phase there and we may have to refuse to hook on new customers."

Bill Babington, engineer for the company's expansion project, said that the problem could be solved with an eight or 10 inch line to replace the six inch line now running to that section.

Babington said that the smaller line just did not have the capacity to handle the amount of water that was needed to serve customers in that area. Board member James Wells who lives in that section said that he often runs out of water now and that adding new customers would make the situation worse. He explained, "I've learned to take my showers very early in the mornings."

Williams Is Candidate For State Senate Seat

Voters of the 27th Senatorial District, I am glad "Guy" Williams, a democratic candidate for state senator in the May primary election because I believe it is time this district has a man who has a mind of his own and does not adhere to the Rubber Stamp Policy.

As your state senator, I will attack and fight public enemy No. 1 - inflation. The policy of importing foreign oil, regardless of cost, must be changed or we will become slaves to the sheiks and Arabs. They'll have us running around in rags while they sport diamonds and white robes. It's not good business to buy what we already have. The only thing we have to do is switch from oil to coal.

The people of this nation and state cannot survive the continuing price increases by the OPEC countries. The OPEC countries will increase prices by more than 40% during 1979. This will cost the average household an additional $650.00 more for oil and gasoline during 1979.

These price increases will cause the price of all other products to rise at an alarming rate which will be devastating to the wage-earners and people on a fixed income. I say to you, we can help fight inflation in the nation and Kentucky by saving all of our domestic oil for gasoline and diesel fuel purposes and by forcing all electrical generating plants and industrial boilers in the state of Kentucky to switch over to coal as their primary fuel.

In order to accomplish these goals,

Maxey

(Continued From Front Page) become responsible for the management and operation of the Maxey Flats site. Mooney has received four proposals from companies who are interested in a contract for the site. The companies are Dames and Moore, a consulting firm already conducting surveys at the site; Proctor Davis and Ray, a Lexington engineering firm; Nuclear Utility Service Corp. of Illinois; and NECO. Mooney said that two other firms had expressed an interest but did not submit a bid.

Other problems at the site include proper disposal of 445,000 curies of tritium, a radioactive waste whose long-term effects are unknown, solidifying radioactive sludge and a concrete mixture for burial and the hydrology. Rep. Pete Worthington (D-Ewing), presiding chairman of the committee, asked Mooney if Maxey Flats could be safely reopened as a nuclear waste burial site.

It would not make good common sense to commence with reopening it until the present hydrology problem is solved," Mooney said. Charles Hardin, radioactive control branch, Department for Human Resources, also spoke to the committee concerning transportation of radioactive waste in Kentucky. The special advisory committee will make a recommendation on Maxey Flats this fall for the 1980 General Assembly.

the state of Kentucky must make a commitment to the coal industry and to the coal consumer to insure both that coal will be the fuel of the future for the next ten to twenty years.

"We need to act immediately to free the coal industry from unnecessary government regulations and use restraints on the use of coal. Steps should be taken now to change regulations that cause higher prices to the consumer. One of these regulations is the practice of returning mined areas to the original contour as this will increase the cost of producing a ton of coal. Furthermore, it is my feeling that the land owners should have more input as to how they would like the surface of their land left after the coal has been removed."

"As your state senator, I will strive to find ways to offset the cost of living caused by rising inflation.

- 1) I will recommend the following steps be taken:
 - (1) Stop importing foreign oil.
 - (2) Force all Kentucky electric generating plants and industrial boilers to burn coal.
 - (3) Repeal the Fuel Adjustment Clause.
 - (4) Allow a $300.00 tax credit per year on Kentucky state income tax for each household that heats with wood or coal.
 - (5) Cut Kentucky state income and property taxes by allowing deductions equal to the rate of inflation.
 - (6) Example: If the rate of inflation increases by 10%, the rate of property and state taxes will be cut by 10%.
 - (7) Restore the rights of landowners.
 - (8) Return 50% of coal severance money to the county where the coal is mined to be used as county officials deem necessary.

"You, as a taxpayer and citizen of this state, owe it to your family to go to the polls on Tuesday, May 29, 1979 and vote for Garland "Guy" Williams, The Inflation Fighter. (Paid political advertisement, paid for by the candidate, Garland "Guy" Williams.)

Rescinds

(Continued From Front Page) Attorney John Cox was asked to check into the legality of the matter. In what was predicted to be a lengthy afternoon session, the court was expected to discuss the public defender situation, the recently prepared county budget and numerous other items.

Tuesday's edition of The Morehead News will carry a full report of the afternoon session.

Rowan Water

(Continued From Front Page) area is rapidly expanding with new homes and businesses and the problem is certain to get worse, unless something is done. One of those new businesses was the topic of conversation about the need to cross KY 32 "with a bridge" to drop down into the inside of the pharmacy.

The board was told that Matt Dykes plans to build a new tobacco, warehouse and storage building of the road and would need an eight inch line to comply with fire regulations for a sprinkler system.

The board agreed to look into the matter.

Arrest Made In Holbrook Drug Break-In

An 18-year-old Pikeville man and a 17-year-old Morehead juvenile face third degree burglary charges in the theft of pills from Holbrook Drug Store, 608 E. Main Street, Morehead, April 26. Police said James Randall May was detained by Pikeville police Monday on a warrant and taken into custody by Morehead Police officers in connection with the alleged burglary. He was lodged in Rowan County Jail on a $5,000 cash bond with $1,000 cash deposit.

May appeared in Rowan District Court Wednesday. An examining trial is set for May 7. The juvenile was arrested Saturday in Morehead and released to his parents pending a hearing in juvenile court. Entry was gained to the drug store by cutting a hole through the roof with a screw driver and pry bar and then using a ladder to drop down into the inside of the pharmacy.

Patrolmen Gordon Lambert and John Brown were the investigating officers.

March Unemployment Indicates Decrease

FRANKFORT — Statistics released today by the Department for Human Resources indicate unemployed Kentuckians numbered 82,200 in March, down from the 100,100 without jobs in February.

The state's unemployment rate for March was 5.5 percent, lower than the 6.1 percent national unemployment rate for the same month. The February unemployment rate in Kentucky was 6.7 percent.

"The decrease in unemployment in the state reflects increased hiring in the construction, trade and service industries," said Robert Macdonald, chief labor market analyst for the Human Resources Department.

The total number of Kentuckians working in March was 1,423,900. That number is 12,700 or 0.9 percent more people working than during March 1978.

Compared with March of last year, there were 7,900 fewer persons unemployed in Kentucky this March, and the unemployment rate was 0.5 percent lower.

were received for site preparation and only one was given for the building itself.

"That bid for the complete building, including site preparation, was $692,310. By deleting the stage, outdoor fencing, landscaping, black toping and carpeting, the price could be as low as $644,460. The bid was made by Demoral of Ashland, Ky. The other bid for site preparation was made by D.L. Braugher of Morehead.

Finance Director Phil Tackett said that the city had about $420,000 to apply to the construction of the building and added that "it would be awfully tight" if the city were to pay the additional cost out of its own budget.

Council delayed any action on the bids until the May 14 meeting, noting that it could not go ahead with the building until HUD approval was granted for the bonding because the two projects were tied together. HUD is now reviewing the city's application for funding to build the housing.

During the Monday session, council gave approval to Recreation Director Dan Stewart's pursuit of neighborhood playgrounds in the city. Stewart hopes to get land donated to the city as matching funds to develop the parks. The council spent nearly an hour of the meeting in closed session.

Woodrow Wilson so enjoyed the game of golf he used black golf balls to play in the snow.

010 Card of Thanks

We the family of Hay Stevens, would like to try and thank everyone who was so kind and thoughtful during the illness and death of our loved one. Words could never really express how truly thankful we are to everyone, but we will try. We would especially like to thank the Rev. James Peltrey, the Rev. Cecil Isom, and the Rev. Devay Isom for their comforting words, and the singers from the East Church of God for their beautiful songs. We would also especially like to thank the Morehead City Police, the Kentucky State Police, the Rowan County Sheriff's Dept., and the Morehead State University Security Dept. for acting as pall bearers. We would like to thank everyone for the many beautiful flowers, those who gave money, donations, and those who brought food to our home. A special thanks also to Northcutt and Son Home for Funerals for the kindness and understanding shown us. We would also like to thank everyone for their faithful prayers and visits to see Ray during his illness, and also everyone who sent him so many beautiful cards or brought him food. We would like to thank our wonderful neighbors and friends for the many other kind things they did to help us. As Ray would often say "Each one of you will be better paid some day," we truly feel our loss is heaven's gain. Sadly missed by Wife, Son, Mom and Dad. p-36F

011 In Memoriam

In memory of Lou Ann Nickells, who died 5-3-72.
 Death beckoned her with an outstretched hand and whispered softly of an unknown land.
 But I know she was ready to go, although the path she did not know.
 She took death's hand without a fear, for God who safely brought her here told her he would lead the way, into eternity's bright day.
 And so she did not go alone into that valley that's unknown.
 She simply took death by the hand, and journeyed to the Promised Land.
 And there with steps so light and gay she polishes the sun by day and lights the stars that shine at night, and keeps the moonbeams silvery bright.
 I know, Mom, that you really didn't die.
 You're just waiting up there in the sky.
 And in that Heavenly Home above, you're waiting to welcome those who love.
 Loved, missed and remembered by daughter,
 Jewel Nickells Castle p-36F

Plans Finalized For Outdoors Writers Tour

Plans for an outdoor writers tour to be held in Morehead have been finalized and will be held on May 18-19-20, Morehead Tourism Commission Director Huegel Buchanan has announced.

"For several years there has been talk of inviting outdoor writers from newspapers and magazines and television stations outside the area to visit here," Buchanan said. "We just felt if we could expose the attractions we have to these experienced writers, they would be impressed enough to go home and give us some publicity."

Buchanan said at least 15 well-known outdoor writers had promised to attend, including Bob Rankin of the Cincinnati Enquirer, a representative of Outdoor Life magazine, Fish and Facts magazine, St. Louis Globe Democrat, and many more.

The writers will be treated to a steak fry on the Canada Coal Ranch to open the three-day visit on Friday night, May 18. District Judge and veteran outdoorsman, Jimmy Clay, will be the chef, and Gene Hall will furnish country music. Allen Lake will give a short talk on geology, archeology, and wildlife. The All-Kentucky City Award, recently won by Morehead, will also be officially presented that night.

Saturday, May 19, will be the big fishing day at Cave Run Lake, with personal guides furnished for the writer with arrangements made by Jim Tom Caudill and Glenn Terrell.

A tour of the Daniel Boone National Forest will also be arranged, including a demonstration of muzzle-loading rifles by the Kentucky Long Rifle Association. Lunch will be at Morehead State University with a walking tour of the campus, then a visit to the Pioneer Weapons area, the Bangor Indian Mounds, capped by supper and a pleasant evening on the lake aboard a houseboat. Sunday will be an unorganized day for the visiting writers; however, personal guides will be furnished to take them wherever they wish to go.

Postal Service Goes To All-White Jeeps

Those new, all-white mail jeeps you will soon notice on Morehead streets are not only different looking on the outside, they use less gasoline because they have a smaller engine, according to Postmaster Norman Gross. The new white vehicles are powered by a four-cylinder engine instead of the present six-cylinder engine in the older jeeps. The Environmental Protection Agency gives the four-cylinder engine a combined city highway rating of 20 miles per gallon compared to 17 miles per gallon for the six-cylinder engine. The all-white jeeps cost less to buy because they are painted a single color, and the Postal Service expects they will require less upkeep. The blue action of the older jeeps requires repainting as often as once every other year. Because white will stand up to weather conditions better, repainting will generally not be needed more than one time during the average eight year life span of the delivery jeeps. The Postal Service is phasing in about 9,000 of the white jeeps through October of 1979. It will repaint older vehicles in the fleet all-white but only as required.

The Joint Commission acknowledged the difficult task hospitals face in attempting to contain rising health care costs while maintaining high quality care. Alaska Job Ads May be 'False' FRANKFORT - Labor officials have issued a warning that national advertising offering jobs in Alaska is false.

Kentucky Labor Commissioner James Yocum said he has been asked by Alaskan Labor Commissioner Edmund Orbeck to warn Kentuckians about the advertising which is now appearing in newspapers and magazines.

"The offers for an Alaskan Employment Kit in the national advertising imply a positive job outlook for Alaska which is just not the case," Orbeck wrote in a letter to Yocum.

The ads appear as news columns with an Anchorage, Alaska, dateline and headline "How To Get a $1,000 a Week Job in Alaska." The ads offer an employment kit for $9.95, or $1 goodwill deposit on OOD's when writing to a Washington, D.C. address.

"Alaska has the highest unemployment rate in the nation. Welfare rolls in the state have also increased as discouraged workers are no longer seeking employment," Orbeck said.

Alaskan labor officials said similar types of advertising offers have appeared annually, prior to the summer construction season. Job offers of this type also were prevalent during the Alaska Oil Pipeline construction years.

Orbeck said he is sending correct information on jobs in Alaska to Commissioner Yocum in an effort to minimize the inconvenience of job-seekers.

Sam P. Williams finds relaxation in building miniature chairs and out-houses in empty liquor bottles. He says that each miniature would take about eight to nine hours to build but that he only works at his hobby when the notion strikes him. He is a medium truck driver for Columbia Gulf Transmission Company's Morehead maintenance section and lives at 327 Barbour Court, Morehead.

Other tools fashioned from welding rods, car antennas and coat hangers, he has built some 20 chairs and 12 out-houses in bottles.

"He became interested in the unusual handicraft through his son-in-law and, Thomas Calvert, a Rowan County native and now resident of Providence, R.I., while the two were sharing a family vacation in Florida."

Calvert was working on the miniatures and after observing his skills, Williams decided to take up the craft as a hobby.

Patiently, he guides a pin sticking from the end of the dowel rod into its hole on the upright.

Carefully, he removes the tweezers, and, if all goes well, the pieces stay together.

After the pieces are solidly together, Williams uses a long hooked tool to weave a yarn seat onto the chair.

Then, to make the end product more intriguing, he puts a stick down the neck of the bottle, and using thread, draws smaller pegs through the end of it to make the stick unremovable.

less than two years ago.

The out-houses, complete with half-moons, even include pictures of toilet paper rolls.

Williams says he has sold some of his miniatures in bottles but mostly he has given them as gifts to friends and relatives.

"A lot of people give the bottles a good looking over and then ask where they were cut to get the chair in," Williams chuckles.

"They don't believe it was all put together inside," he headed.

Martindale Store Is Broken Into

Martindale Furniture and Hardware Co. was broken into sometime between closing hour Wednesday and Thursday morning but nothing was reported missing.

Morehead-Police Chief Mike Hall said entry was gained by prying the lock off the back door of the building at 169 E. Main Street, Morehead.

The break-in was reported at 10:48 a.m. Thursday by Jack McCarty, store manager.

Patrolman John Brown investigated the incident.

Five Inches High

The chairs stand five inches high and are made of quarter-inch dowel rod and three-eighths-inch sticks. They are walnut stained and varnished and the ends of the dowel rods get a dab of glue before assembly.

Following construction of the hospital the Foundation was active in expansion of St. Claire, and has made monetary and other significant contributions to area health care. The Foundation annually sponsors and finances nursing scholarships at Morehead State University. It has a "tax free" classification by the Internal Revenue Service since all funds are earmarked for accredited health-care services or programs.

Magrane's Arm Tops E. Carter

By Mark Perkins

It was all the Magrane. That's how University Breckridge baseball coach Sam Daugherty accurately described his teams victory over Eastern Carter in the first round of the Eastern Kentucky conference tournament.

Magrane pitched 16 strikeouts, made 10 of 11 and will face Jennifer Pughly today in the semifinals of the tournament. The Wildcats advanced by defeating West Carter 7-6 in the opening game Wednesday.

In addition to the brilliant pitching by Magrane, Daugherty attributed the victory to execution of bunts and heads up base running. "They had a job to do and they came out and did it," Daugherty said. "Catcher John VanHoesen called an excellent game and none of the players missed any signs."

The Eagles didn't get any hits until the fourth inning, when Magrane, helping his own cause, led off with a single. Jon McCabe also singled during that successful five run inning, aided by two Kaidler errors and two wild pitches. Because of mental throwing mistakes by West Carter, the Eagles only needed two hits to chalk up five runs.

Dave Phillips drove in another run in the following inning, scoring Dwayne Allen.

Two more runs were pushed across in the sixth as Cliff Bailey doubled and Jeff McCabe singled.

Magrane walked just four batters and raised his pitching record to 6-3. Menifee Co. Advances

The Wildcats edged West Carter 7-6, scoring the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning with no outs. Menifee County is now 13-9 on the season and the Comets led to 4-3.

Steve Powell led off the deciding final frame with a single. He promptly stole second and advanced to third on the overthrow to second base. Donnie Harper was walked intentionally and he stole second. Anthony Verrel was also given an intentional pass to first, making the bases loaded with no outs.

Ken Amburgey lashed a hit to the shortstop, who bobbed the ball before throwing home, allowing Powell to score the winning run.

Verrel got the pitching victory, he is now 4-3 on the season. Mickey James was the loser, his record falls to 2-2.

Two local teams claimed first place today during the Eastern Kentucky Conference Track Meet held at Morehead State University. The Rowan County girls team finished first and the Breck boys team also won top honors.

Lorie Powers, Lisa Hinton, Lynn Hinton and Kay Rodgers comprised the 880 yard medley team. The 440 yard relay team included Lynn Hinton, Lisa Hinton, Lorie Powers, and Alberta Cornett.

The girls from Rowan County didn't have anyone place second. May finished third in the shot put, Becky Prather, Karen Isom, Irene McKinney, and Kay Rogers placed third in the mile relay.

Fourth place finishers for the Lady Vikings included May in the long jump, Lynn Hinton in the 110 hurdles, Powers in the 100 yard dash, and Tammy Collins in the 320 hurdles.

Breck Boy's Team Wins

The Eagles won on the strength of Brian Harris, Jon McDowell and Tim Back. Harris placed first in the high jump with a leap of 6'4", and took first in the triple jump with a 36.5 mark.

McDowell took top honors in the long jump (21'), 120 yard hurdles (14.9), and the 320 hurdles (39.8). Back won the mile, 880, and two mile run. All three are expected to reach the state meet to be held at the University of Kentucky campus.

WINDY CARPENTER won the mile run for Breck with a 5:19.02 time. She also finished first in the 800 run (2:37.7).

General Assembly Has Record Downs Workout

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) - General Assembly may have worked five furlongs in a blazing 57.25 Wednesday morning, two-fifths of a second faster than Churchill Downs' track record for the distance, but it didn't change trainer Bud Delp's stand in the least.

"If I were making a line now, I'd put Spectacular Bid at even money, Flying Past at 8.5, Screen King at 6 and indicated it would be more than just a two-horse race between Bid and California star Flying Past."

"I think we have a chance against the two favorites," said Jolley, training for his fifth Kentucky Derby. "I rate them about equal."

"General Assembly sure looked good to me today. Like Secretariat, he seems to run his best when he works his best. He seems to like the track, too."

Because of the suspension of regular jockey Jacinto Vasquez, General Assembly will be ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr. while Don MacBeth will handle Sir Ivor Again. Jolley said he would not give either jockey any instructions prior to the race, and in spite of General Assembly's performance Wednesday, declined to predict where the speed would be.

"I'll just have that up to the jockeys," said Jolley, who trained 1975 winner Foolish Pleasure.

Simms Made First Round Draft Pick

The New York Giants selected Phil Simms of Morehead State University during the first round of yesterday's National League draft. The Giants made Simms the seventh player chosen in the draft. Simms was the Eagles' starting quarterback for three seasons (the 6'2", 215-pound Louisville product accumulated 5,345 passing yards during his college career. In 1977 he was named the Ohio Valley Conference Player of the year. His passing percentage while at MSU was 488.

Yesterday Simms, joined his parents, his agent Mike Merkow and MSU negotiated Kentucky Northfest for a press conference where he reflected on his years as an Eagle.

"My first year at MSU I was red shirted, I wasn't ready mentally or physically to play college football, and while I was red shirted, it helped me, because it gave me time to develop, lift weights. Playing here at Morehead gave me some great experience, and I think it really showed during my junior and senior year. I want to thank everybody who has helped me while I was here. I don't think I could ever repay them."

When asked how he felt about joining the Giants, Simms replied, "I'm happy to go anywhere. I didn't have any special interest in any team, the way I looked at it whichever team took me would please me, and I'm going to make the best I can of it."

His agent was asked how much a first round pick is worth. Merkow, who negotiated Kentucky All-American Art Still's pro contract last spring (Jr) said jokingly, "we'll start at four million and work down."

Merkow didn't get specific, but said he wants to make sure that when Simms is through playing professional football, he will be able to live in the lifestyle that he will be accustomed to.

"Money wise, I've got ideas, and so does Phil and we're just hoping for a fine deal, one that's fair to Phil. He should be paid what he's worth."

McCarthy And Caudill Score In Boone Relays

Morehead State University distance runners Alanna McCarthy and Hope Caudill combined for 20 points in the recent Becky Boone Relays to pace the Lady Eagles to an eighth place finish.

Eastern Kentucky hosted the 23-team meet, the largest and one of the most competitive meets for the Lady Eagles this season.

MSU Coach Mary Shull was pleased with her team's performance against the competition.

"I was happy with the entire team even though Alanna and Hope were the only individuals to score," Shull said. "In a meet this size, it is very difficult to score, so placing in just three events wasn't totally unexpected. I think eighth place was an impressive finish for us and I'm very pleased."

McCarthy, Charlottesville, Va. sophomore, pulled in 16 of MSU's points with a first in the 300-meter run and third in the 1500-meter dash.

"Alanna's 3000-meter race was one of the best she has run all year," Shull added. "She was just a few seconds short of qualifying for nationals. With a little speed work over the next couple of weeks, she should be able to qualify at the Ohio Valley Conference meet."

McCarthy, whose time of 9:59.2 in the 3000-meters broke her own school record, has already qualified for the AIAW National Meet May 24-26 at Michigan State in the 5000-meter run.

Caudill, Mt. Sterling junior, took fourth place in the 10,000-meter run with a time of 39:09.2.

"It wasn't Hope's best time, but it was impressive because she faced a strong wind the entire distance," Shull said.

Shull also had praise for the efforts of middle distance runner and hurdler, Barb Ferris, Columbus, Ohio freshman who has run well despite a hamstring injury.

"Barb has been running consistently in the 59's in the 440-yard dash even though she has been hurt," Shull said.

MSU will be in action again May 14 and 15 in the OVC Championships at Cookeville, Tenn.

With Good Weather Record Derby Expected

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — With a touch of good weather, Saturday's 105th running of the Kentucky Derby figures to be part of a record-setting day at Churchill Downs.

Last year, a crowd of more than 131,000 jammed its way into historic Churchill Downs and a record $44 million was bet at the track on the Derby alone. The 10-race handle for the 1978 Derby topped $10.3 million.

As of today, a nine-horse field is expected for the $200,000-added Derby, with most observers predicting a two-horse race.

The field is topped by Hawksworth Farm's Spectacular Bid and Flying Paster, owned by B.J. Riddler, a retired California newspaper publisher and Knight-Ridder group board member.

What is there about the Derby which creates this single-mindedness among racing fans as thousands converge on Louisville the first week in May?

Part of it is the proximity of the Thoroughbred breeding industry in the bluegrass country, which makes the Derby a showcase for the nation's best 3-year-olds.

Second, there's the annual pageant of Kentucky in the spring: pink and white dogwood, redbud and tulips, and Kentuckians' fabled hospitality.

A couple from India hold the honors for the longest recorded marriage—86 years. Sir Temuji Bhikaiji Narayan and Lady Nariman entered the bonds of matrimony in 1853 when they were both only five years old.

MSU Softball Team Places Third In Tourney

Softball can be a game of bad hops as Morehead State University's women's softball club learned during a recent tournament at the University of Kentucky.

MSU finished third in the five-team tournament as two bad hops made the difference, according to Coach John High.

MSU opened with a 3-2 loss to Dayton then came back to defeat Kentucky 14-4 and Wright State 13-0 before losing a second time to Dayton 9-8.

It was a disappointing loss but High felt his team played well enough to win.

"Two bounces meant the difference in the game," he said. "Two hits that should have been singles ended up as home runs and we failed to lose it that way."

The MSU club is now 10-5 on the season.

Vicky Aflinghaus, Elmore freshman, leads the individual hitting department with 25 hits in 61 times at bat for a .410 average.

Other key hitters include Sue Turner, Buller junior at .400, Kim Cecil, New Haven junior at .352 and Theresa Thompson, Pikeville senior at .328.

LORI POWERS, hands the baton off to Lisa Hinton during the 800 meters Tuesday. The Lady Viking team won the event with a 2:02.1 time.

JOHN McFOWELL won three events in the ERC track meet for Breck. He claimed top honors in the long jump (27'), 120 hurdles (11:51), and the 330 hurdles (29:8).

Shorten Covenant Periods On Homes

FRANKFORT — Many owners of historic property wanting to apply for restoration grants have hesitated because of the lengthy covenant periods — the number of years they must provide access to their property.

The covenant periods have now been considerably shortened, according to William Hearn, grants coordinator for the Kentucky Heritage Commission.

Hearn explained that owners must sign a covenant or agreement that they will maintain and provide public access to historic properties acquired or rehabilitated with federal matching funds.

With Good Weather Record Derby Expected

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — With a touch of good weather, Saturday's 105th running of the Kentucky Derby figures to be part of a record-setting day at Churchill Downs.

Last year, a crowd of more than 131,000 jammed its way into historic Churchill Downs and a record $44 million was bet at the track on the Derby alone. The 10-race handle for the 1978 Derby topped $10.3 million.

As of today, a nine-horse field is expected for the $200,000-added Derby, with most observers predicting a two-horse race.

The field is topped by Hawksworth Farm's Spectacular Bid and Flying Paster, owned by B.J. Riddler, a retired California newspaper publisher and Knight-Ridder group board member.

What is there about the Derby which creates this single-mindedness among racing fans as thousands converge on Louisville the first week in May?

Part of it is the proximity of the Thoroughbred breeding industry in the bluegrass country, which makes the Derby a showcase for the nation's best 3-year-olds.

Second, there's the annual pageant of Kentucky in the spring: pink and white dogwood, redbud and tulips, and Kentuckians' fabled hospitality.

A couple from India hold the honors for the longest recorded marriage—86 years. Sir Temuji Bhikaiji Narayan and Lady Nariman entered the bonds of matrimony in 1853 when they were both only five years old.

MSU Softball Team Places Third In Tourney

Softball can be a game of bad hops as Morehead State University's women's softball club learned during a recent tournament at the University of Kentucky.

MSU finished third in the five-team tournament as two bad hops made the difference, according to Coach John High.

MSU opened with a 3-2 loss to Dayton then came back to defeat Kentucky 14-4 and Wright State 13-0 before losing a second time to Dayton 9-8.

It was a disappointing loss but High felt his team played well enough to win.

"Two bounces meant the difference in the game," he said. "Two hits that should have been singles ended up as home runs and we failed to lose it that way."

The MSU club is now 10-5 on the season.

Vicky Aflinghaus, Elmore freshman, leads the individual hitting department with 25 hits in 61 times at bat for a .410 average.

Other key hitters include Sue Turner, Buller junior at .400, Kim Cecil, New Haven junior at .352 and Theresa Thompson, Pikeville senior at .328.

LORI POWERS, hands the baton off to Lisa Hinton during the 800 meters Tuesday. The Lady Viking team won the event with a 2:02.1 time.

JON MCPHLOWELL won three events in the ERC track meet for Breck. He claimed top honors in the long jump (21'), 120 hurdles (11:51), and the 330 hurdles (29:8).

Shorten Covenant Periods On Homes

FRANKFORT — Many owners of historic property wanting to apply for restoration grants, have hesitated because of the lengthy covenant periods — the number of years they must provide access to their property.

The covenant periods have now been considerably shortened, according to William Hearn, grants coordinator for the Kentucky Heritage Commission.

Hearn explained that owners must sign a covenant or agreement that they will maintain and provide public access to historic properties acquired or rehabilitated with federal matching funds.

Pure Prairie League

On The Road To Success?

By JOE LAMB

Mike Riley, lead singer for Pure Prairie League, said after a Monday night performance in Morehead State's Weatherly Gymnasium that his band operates on a net deficit each year, waiting for that elusive national recognition which will make the band a "success."

Some people would argue that the band, which has been on the scene since 1971, has achieved success. To Riley, however, it is only regional success and is not what he or the members of the band are striving for. Riley says that he will know that Pure Prairie League is successful when he can spend three to six months in the studio and not be on the road most of the time. The band now spends between 250 and 300 days each year on the road. Riley says that touring is expensive, costing "tons of money." According to him, road work takes about $100,000 each month and, including salaries for the band members, the group probably loses about $15,000 per month.

New Album

Despite the fact that almost everyone is familiar with "Amie," the single only sold about 100,000 copies.

Riley says, however, that the song has become a "cult classic." Another big hit for the group is "Two Lane Highway."

Kentucky Boys

Riley points out that all the band members, who range in age from 29 to 31, except for one member who is 22, are from the Ft. Thomas and Covington areas of Kentucky. For the members like Riley, who have been with the band for 15 years, Pure Prairie is a career and it is that kind of feeling which has kept the band together with nothing," Riley says.

Riley talks about the band as though it were a business, throwing out terms like "break-even point," "net deficit" and says he thinks about the future when the band's life ends and he will be able to get into the business end of music and the recording industry. Riley admits that he would like to give up touring completely, calling it a "necessary evil" if the band is to be a success. He says that there are times "when you feel like you can't take it anymore" but adds firmly that the band has "never missed a gig."

This week's appearance at Morehead marked the fourth time that the band has played here in the last eight years, an indication of the band's long history on the road. From Morehead, it goes on to Pennsylvania for performances in Coatsworth and Scranton, as the band continues its on-the-road quest for national success.

Blue Cross Director Recommends Payment For Surgical Tests Only When Ordered By Physician

Walter Mc Nerney, president of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association, recommended Monday that local Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plans pay for routine hospital-admission tests for surgical admissions, only when the tests are specifically ordered by a physician. It was the third in a series of suggestions made by Mc Nerney regarding the continuing Medical Necessity Program.

The first Medical Necessity Project recommendation, made in 1977, involved elimination of outdated surgical and diagnostic procedures. The second recommendation, made earlier this year, was one suggesting that Plans pay for admission tests given routinely to medical admission patients only if they are specifically ordered by the attending physician.

The Medical Necessity Project is an on-going program designed to assure that the appropriate level of health care is delivered, and that procedures performed are consistent with professional standards "for quality medical care. By assuring that only those tests necessary for a specific case are given, cost savings can be experienced."

In preparation for the project recommendation, the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Associations worked in cooperation with, and on advice from, the American College of Surgeons (ACS).

Specifically, the ACS recommended "the discouragement of the routine use of batteries of tests without specific orders on admission should apply to surgical as well as medical cases. Consistency would appear to demand no less."

Donald W. Giffen, president of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky, said, "Cooperation from hospitals and physicians has been excellent regarding the Medical Necessity Project. Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky has implemented the 1977 recommendation dealing with out-dated surgical and diagnostic procedures. We are in the process of finalizing plans to implement the recommendations relating to routine tests on medical admissions."

"This new recommendation will be incorporated with these plans. It is essential that we work closely with hospital management and physicians regarding the Medical Necessity Project. Nothing will be done to create a situation where quality health care is jeopardized or the cost of a necessary procedure is passed on to our members."

Giffen indicated that it takes considerable time to implement national association recommendations. The recommendations, if implemented, may require some changes in hospital and medical staff administrative policies. Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky will work with the Kentucky Medical Association to implement the project. Additionally, close coordination with the appropriate regulatory bodies will be maintained.

There is a lot more to a really successful Garage Sale than you might think, but doing it right is simply a matter of organization and attention to certain important details.

To give the ingredients of a successful sale, here are a few timely tips.

What to sell
Simply stated, anything that still has usability and some value is a good Garage Sale item. So first you must go through the storage areas of your basement, attic or garage and determine what has sales potential. Make a list as you go. You should find such things as garden tools, old furniture, good clothing, tools, musical instruments, sewing machines and the like. You may be surprised at how many articles you will have.

Double sale
Obviously the best way to advertise your sale is in the Classified Advertising section of your newspaper. These ads are read avidly by people looking for bargains. You can keep your ad fairly short and still be effective by listing the most appealing items separately and then lumping others in categories, such as furniture, clothes, toys, antiques, etc.

Of course you will want to use strategically placed signs in the neighborhood or in supermarkets, laundromats, barber shops and schools. Spread the word by mouth, also, and you will find that news will travel fast.

Pricing
Everything must be priced to save both you and the customer valuable time. Start by listing all items by category on an inventory sheet. Antiques, for example, should be listed separately from other items. Clothing should be priced at approximately one-eighth the original cost. Any clothing 10 to 15 years old may have nostalgic appeal and can be priced slightly higher. It might even be placed in the antiques category. Electrical appliances that work should bring one-fourth the original cost. Most prices on most articles will be influenced by condition of the items. A good looking item can carry a good price. If you are involved in a double sale, which we will discuss next, be sure to color code your own prices.

Advertising
Many people have found it worthwhile to combine their Garage Sale with that of a friend or neighbor. This saves money on costs of advertising and provides a helping hand in arranging items, pricing them, dealing with customers, besides providing welcome companionship. Don't forget to keep separate inventories and different price color coding. Another important advantage is a more impressive array of merchandise.

Length of sale
Most productive sales are those that run just three days. The logical start of a sale would be Friday. This gives you the entire weekend in which to conduct your business. After a day or two the word will get around and supplement your advertising efforts. After the most attractive items are gone, you may wish to reconsider and change prices on those articles which have been slow to move.

One-day sales may be profitable for the experienced Garage Sale specialists but in the beginner's case many things can go wrong, such as a rainy day, and you may have to advertise all over again.

Setting up your sale
The few days before your sale, naturally, will be concerned with selection and pricing, but there are some other important preliminary steps. You will need change, get to the bank and get plenty of small bills and various size coins. Set up a headquarters table conveniently located for your customers and from where you can supervise the operation. Here you will keep your change, your adding machine, your inventory list. Always have someone in attendance. You also may want to install a hat and coat rack and a mirror for the use of those who may wish to try on garments. Arrange sale items in neat rows and allow plenty of walking room between displays.

Flies
Flies can cause a great loss to cattle gain in the summer time. Plan your fly control program now. Make use of dust bags for face flies and back rubbers for other flies. There is a new ear tag that is impregnated with fly control materials that has been tested and proven to do a right good job on face flies. For those who want to obtain information on different control sprays, ointments and parasitoid of livestock call the Extension Office 784-5457.

Wire Cages For Tomatoes
Large vine tomatoes benefit from being grown in wire cages. Cages tomatoes show less cracks and sunburns, ripen more uniformly, show less green shoulders and provide fewer cut fruits than tomatoes which are pruned and tied to stakes or allowed to sprawl on the ground. Cages should be erected soon after the plants have been set in the garden. Breakage often occurs when you attempt to train stems which have grown too long.

Honeysuckle
We have several requests for information on honeysuckle control. 2,4-D sprayed at the recommended amounts will do a good job of control. It may be necessary to spray more than once. But Jim Herron, Extension Specialist in weed control says it will do the job.

Calfes
Do you have trouble with calf scours in your herd? If so, you might want to try this home made remedy: 1 1/2 oz. (1 pkg.) fruit peetin, 1 tsp. Lute Salt, 2 tsp. baking soda, 10 1/2 oz. (1 can) beef consomme and enough water to make 2 quarts of mixture. It is an effective calf scours remedy because the formula replaces lost fluids, restores a normal acid-base balance and furnishes nutrients.

Tobacco Plant Beds
I have looked at some tobacco plant beds and looks like plants are coming along quite well. However, let's be sure to keep plenty of water on them since the drying wind and sun we are having will dry the ground quickly and will cause damage to the young seedlings. Remember it takes 450 gallons of water to put an inch of water on a bed 100 x 12 feet. Also remember that it is much better to give a bed a soaking than it is to give it a shallow wetting.

Candidate's Corner

News From Kentucky Politics

Vernon Says Coal Industry Needs New Image

Jim Vernon, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor, has called for Kentucky's coal associations to join together to change the image of coal in Kentucky.

Vernon said that "coal has had a negative image, that it doesn't deserve, for too long." He called the coal industry one of Kentucky's most valuable economic resources and its advertising program with a charitable foundation. The proposed foundation would be supported by private contributions from the coal industry and would undertake public service projects in Kentucky's coal counties.

"When Rockefeller oil companies were at their lowest ebb in the eyes of the public," said Vernon, he formed the Rockefeller Foundation which eventually became the largest and most highly acclaimed beneficent organization in this nation. It turned around the entire image problem of the Rockefeller Corporation, with tangible results for the betterment of mankind."

Vernon said the building of a park for children, a research lab for black lung, development of the arts and sciences, or environmental improvements would do more to improve the coal industry's image than any public relations campaign that could be conceived.

"This is the way to improve the industry's image and show coal in the light of benefactor, not ravager, of our beloved state," added Vernon.

The Corbin Democrat also commended Department for Natural Resources Secretary Eugene Mooney for his recent action that placed more control over strip mine permit applications in district offices where they will be more accessible to the people.

"This has been a major part of my platform and I'm glad to see it being implemented," Vernon said.

conference outside his headquarters here, said most taxpayers with gross incomes ranging from $15,000 to $25,000 paid a slightly higher percentage of their 1977 income in Kentucky tax than persons with gross income above $50,000.

"I'm positive that this proposal will take the burden of those least able to pay who have a chance to survive under these times of high inflation," Brown said.

"Basically, what this means is we'll have a progressive tax system in Kentucky, and we'll get away from the tremendously regressive tax that we've had," Brown said.

The increased burden for families earning over $35,000 would be substantially offset by reduced federal income taxes, resulting from using any increase in Kentucky tax as an itemized deduction on their federal return.

Under the piggybacking system, he added, the federal government will do all the audits, all the collections and all the prosecutions of collection, amounting to an eventual savings to the state of approximately $5,000,000 annually.

Brown also called for tax relief for small businesses earning less than $100,000 with the burden shifted to large corporations.

"Small businesses need and deserve tax relief and this would provide them with a meaningful tax savings," he said.

Brown said he would also recommend changing Kentucky's corporate tax law to provide for recognition of Sub-Chapter S corporations and to allow deductions and carry forward of net operating losses by such qualifying corporations.

several times to hear their case in full. "This," Sloane said "is government at its worst."

Bullitt County has grown by over 15,000 people in the last few years. Sloane said "it is absurd that the commission had refused to respond to the new needs of their community."

In some areas of Bullitt County if children get sick while in school they can't even call their parents without placing a long distance call. Some people can't call their doctors, lawyers, courthouse or fire department without long distance charges.

Sloane said the Utility Regulatory Commission has no guidelines for determining who is eligible for an extended area service and who isn't. An example can call Lexington in Fayette County free of a long distance charge, but south Bullitt county can't call north Bullitt county without paying a toll.

Air Board Meets Today

The Rowan County Air Board is scheduled to meet today at 2 p.m. at the office of its chairman Terry Anderson. Anderson's office is located at Farmers on U.S. 60.

McBrayer Releases Agriculture Stand

Calling agriculture "vitally important to Kentucky," Democratic gubernatorial candidate Terry McBrayer Monday released a detailed agriculture platform. Speaking at a news conference in Henderson, McBrayer said "The Office of Governor Brereton has a responsibility to the people of Kentucky — to the farmers of Kentucky — an obligation to act in every way possible to not only continue Kentucky's agriculture heritage, but to protect a way of life and to find new markets — new users — for Kentucky products, while at the same time protecting our consumers."

Noting that Kentucky agriculture is currently producing almost 2 billion dollars worth of food and fiber each year, McBrayer said two of the biggest problems facing farmers was finding markets and available transport for products to markets. He pledged promotion/salespeople to find new markets and while admitting that transportation problems could only be solved at the federal level, promised to make Kentucky's needs known in Washington.

The detailed platform addressed a host of agricultural topics including marketing, transportation, energy, tobacco, dairy, livestock and consumer protection.

Sloane Complains About Utility Commission

Harvey Sloane, a democratic candidate for Governor, today lashed out at the former Public Service Commission and the newly formed Utility Regulatory Commission for "failing to meet the needs of Kentucky citizens." Sloane took time out from his mini-tour across the state to talk with the people in Bullitt County about their grievances against the commissions.

"These people have been trying for five years to get government to listen to them," Sloane said. Bullitt County residents are trying to obtain toll-free telephone service within their own county and to Louisville. In 1974 the Public Service Commission heard their case and denied their application. Since then the commission has refused

MOREHEAD VISITORS — Seven employees of the Egyptian government are studying at MSU with plans to return to Egypt with new and better methods of developing their country's rural areas. The visitors include Ismail Abdel-Nour Farag, Mahmud Hassan, Fikery Abuzaid, Waguih Kamel, Ahmed Mourad and Amin Mansour. The MSU program will end May 31. Dr. Joe Copeland, associate professor of economics, is the program coordinator at MSU.

Egyptians' Learning Rural Development

Morehead State University is currently playing a role in the future development of rural areas in Egypt.

Seven employees of the Egyptian government, working for the Organization for the Reconstruction and Development of Egyptian Villages (ORDEV), have been at MSU since March studying accounting, finance, economic development and enterprise development to learn new and better methods of developing the rural areas of their country.

"Our State Department, through the Agency for International Development, is helping ORDEV set up a loan fund that the villages can borrow from to set up money making enterprises and farming projects," says Dr. Joe Copeland, associate professor of economics and program coordinator. "What we're doing here is helping the representatives learn the best financial methods of making their proposals and projects work to the best advantage."

The MSU program will end May 31. The group will then receive on-the-job training at the Bluegrass Area Development District in Lexington.

"We are the first of several groups to come here under this program," said ORDEV representative Amin Mansour. "We want to learn development from the bottom up, including planning, development, results, success and reward."

Ahmed Mourad added that each of them comes from a different province and four are directly responsible for local development in their provinces.

"Egypt's rural areas have long been underdeveloped and their people economically disadvantaged," Mourad said. "We want to try to change this situation."

All remarked that they would like to extend their stay at MSU.

"Dr. Copeland has been very helpful and has arranged every comfort for us," says Waguih Kamel. "The spirit of the people is wonderful and the students have been very friendly and eager to help us in any way. We would like to have more time to see more of the American way of life."

The visitors have also been impressed with the American highway systems, the ability to get out of season fruits and vegetables in the stores, and the openness of boy-girl relationships.

"This has been a tremendous learning experience for all of us in the program," says Dr. Copeland. "I think both countries have benefited greatly by the relationship."

Brown Calls For Tax Cut

LOUISVILLE: John Y. Brown, Jr. has called for a $40-million tax cut for families earning less than $35,000 per year with the cut absorbed by shifting the burden on families earning above that figure. The plan would mean no reduction in state tax revenue, he said. The tax savings for those affected would approximate 15 percent.

Brown's plan included a simplification of the filing procedures and a "piggybacking" of the state tax upon the federal tax system.

Educator Attends Conference

FRANKFORT, Ky. (April 26, 1979) — Clyde Mays, Jr. of the Rowan County school system, joined some 24 other alternative education project directors from across the state at an all-day "sharing conference" in Frankfort last week.

Sponsored by the Division of Alternative Education in the Kentucky Department of Education, the meeting "offered us an opportunity to share our successes and problems," said David Jackson, "division director. "It also helped develop closer working relations among persons."

The Division of Alternative Education gives technical assistance to local school districts in designing, developing and implementing programs that address the needs of students with behavior problems, explained Jackson.

Terry Andrews and staff of the Department of Justice were on hand to discuss general requirements for receiving funds from the Kentucky Crime Commission.

Linda Harlow, Unit Director of the Curriculum Lab with the Division of Program Development, discussed the new alcohol and drug education curriculum guide for grades K-12.

Alternative education consultants taking part in the sessions, along with director Jackson, were Rita Lindsey, Del Crabtree and Robert Ruff. "We hope many of the ideas we discussed prove helpful to district project directors," noted Jackson. "Getting all directors together helps us because we can now plan our services to better meet the needs of the districts."

An Even Swap?

On the surface at least, it looks as though some of our city fathers may be trying to "pull a fast one" on the citizens of Morehead.

Without so much as a whimper in public sessions during the last few months, council has suddenly decided that there is a desperate need for a city garage and more off-street parking in downtown Morehead and after several lengthy, closed, executive sessions, the purchase of one lot has been completed and plans to trade the city's 18-acre industrial park for another already are well under way.

A lot on First Street was purchased this week for $50,000 for a proposed city garage and off-street parking. The purchase was made despite the facts that a plan is being considered to turn First Street into a one-way couplet in the next few years; that the city's plans for the property apparently violate its own zoning ordinances; and that the lot is away from the mainstream of downtown businesses.

Another lot on Main Street is to be appraised in part of a plan to trade the city's 18-acre industrial park for it. Again, the purpose is to provide off-street parking. And again, the move is being made despite the fact that the property is away from the center of town.

The purchase was made and the trade is being contemplated without even so much as a public mention about the extent of the parking problem downtown recently, or the number of cars either of the lots would be able to accommodate or how the location of the lots would be beneficial to either shoppers downtown or employees of downtown businesses.

The immediate questions that come to mind about both land arrangements are: Why such hasty action by council to obtain more off-street parking downtown and how will two lots located away from the center of the city help the problem? Why give up on the idea of a city industrial park now? And why is there a need to complete the transactions without proper information or public input?

The answers to the first two questions may be easy ones and they may just reflect that council has made a wise and proper decision. But the last question is the one most troublesome to us and the other citizens of Morehead.

Both decisions have been made entirely in closed sessions by City Council, something that is becoming the rule rather than the exception at council meetings. Such private sessions may be legal because Kentucky law gives public agencies the right to go behind closed doors for discussions of land acquisition, when such discussion would be likely to adversely affect the purchase price if it were made public, but they are not proper when public input is made impossible by making the final decision away from sight and sound of the citizens.

We don't mean to imply that council's decisions on the land are anything other than honest. But it certainly would help to eliminate any potential for doubt if the public had a better chance to know what its government is doing.

Preventable Problem

Too many of us believe rising health care costs are just like the weather — something everybody talks about, but nobody can do much about.

But we can do something about rising health care costs if we recognize that we're not just helpless victims of the phenomenon. What we can do can also benefit us personally.

We can all start by taking better care of ourselves. Illness costs money and hospital care is the most expensive care available. For example, it has been estimated that 24 million persons in the U.S. suffer from hypertension, which is a contributing factor in one-third of premature heart attacks and strokes. Estimated medical care costs for those problems during 1975 were $15.9 billion. That's quite a price tag for a problem that can be controlled with proper diet, exercise and not smoking.

Another illustration of the cost of illness is alcoholism. Statistics suggest that alcohol abuse is the single most expensive health problem in the U.S. today, with an estimated price tag of $33.6 billion in medical costs in 1975.

Who pays the price? We all do, through insurance premiums and higher hospital costs. It makes sense, in dollars and for health's sake, for us to take better care of ourselves.

Sunday begins National Hospital Week, an excellent time to take a look at your lifestyle and choose healthier habits. As part of the nation-wide observance of this week, hospitals across the country including St. Claire are encouraging participation in the Voluntary Effort, a national coalition of hospitals, physicians, health insurers, business and consumer groups, joined together to slow the rate of increase in health care costs. We applaud their efforts.

But the fact remains, whatever is done nationally, that each of us still has the personal responsibility to maintain our own health. Start taking care of yourself today and we'll all share the benefits tomorrow.

Trading at Arms Length

Western businessmen who have the idea that trade with China opens unlimited possibilities might want to cushion their enthusiasm a bit. From Hong Kong comes the word that Chinese officials are worried their authority could be undermined if contacts by the people with the West go too far afield.

A self-imprisoned society is more easily controlled by the wares. In the last several years China has made what for it are revolutionary contacts with the West. But when those new relations show signs of creating a demand for greater freedom at home is precisely when an authoritarian regime begins to close the door.

S. C. Van Curen

Agree Or Not . . .

By S. C. VAN CUREN

FRANKFORT — The state Personnel Board has unofficially served notice on career state employees that the primary election is only four weeks away.

The notice came in the form of an announcement that traditional longevity steps have been added in all job classifications under the merit system.

Administration critics have labeled the plan as an effort by the Carroll administration to buy the votes of career employees, who have gone several years without a pay increase, for Terry McBrayer, Carroll's choice to succeed him.

For example, a person in a job with 10 steps in the longevity with 12 or more years of service hasn't been eligible for a pay increase, not even one to keep up with inflation.

The longevity plan provides for a five percent wage increase every year for the first seven years in a 10-step job position. After he gets his eighth year increase, he had to wait two years to go to step nine and another two years to go to step ten, then there were no more pay increases in his future unless he got reclassified to a higher paying position.

Under the new plan about 9,000 employees in steps 8, 9, 10, and 11 will get an annual increment May 1. State employees are paid twice monthly, near the first of each month and about the middle of the month. This means they'll receive two paychecks with the five per cent increase before the May 29 election. The 1976 legislature appropriated $28 million to improve pay for state employees. This was in addition to the regular annual increments.

Personnel Commissioner Addie Stokley said this money was appropriate for positions where the state had recruitment and retention problems.

This didn't include the "paper pushers" who handle the daily routine of state business. All they got was the five percent automatic increment, that is, if they were not in the final step of their longevity in their positions. Inflation has been increasing every year by about seven percent for the past three years and many state employees haven't gotten a raise in that period.

The Personnel Board added three more steps to the longevity plan, now known as steps A, B and C. However, this change does not mean that all employees with sufficient years of service will automatically qualify for a five percent pay increase. The catch is that the employee must be recommended by his supervisor for the pay increase, and the money must come out of the agency budget. No additional money is being funneled from the general fund to the agencies for these increases.

Mrs. Stokley said there are about 2,000 career state employees that are eligible for the last three steps.

After the 1976 appropriation, commissioners received as much as $5,000 annual increase in pay and some of the cabinet secretaries received a $7,500 annual pay increase. This is more than the beginning state employee in the lowest paid staffing position receives. The lowest beginning pay is $4,980 a year and could make as much as $7,716 when he reaches the end of his longevity. With the announced changes this same job category can reach the limit of $8,940.

The 1978 legislature appropriated an additional $35.6 million for pay increases, but this also was in the field where there were problems of recruitment and retention.

The "paper pushers" are the ones who have been feeling the pinch of inflation. The annual five percent increment, for those who were eligible, hasn't kept up with 7 percent or better inflation.

They are the ones who really need the pay increases and not those in the $20,000 and above annual pay range. Most of these jobs are not under the merit system and it is up to the discretion of the administration in power who gets these jobs. They also get the pay increases, and handsome ones at that.

A brochure went out in the month-end pay envelope, along with the check, explaining the increases to the employees.

Is it coincidental that it happened just before the May primary?

Effort Being Made To Combat Color Copier Fraud Attempts

Color copiers are currently causing a stir in the business community because of the ease with which amateur forgers can reproduce anything from payroll checks and stock certificates to gift certificates.

The copiers have been on the market for about two years, but recently law enforcement officials have become concerned that, once the machines are available in a majority of businesses, rampant office forgery could become a significant problem.

The National Crime Preventional Institute, located at the University of Louisville, Ky., is offering a consulting source for businesses which are considering the purchase of a color copier, or firms who already have the machine and want to prevent counterfeiting.

As a national law enforcement educational center, NCPI is more concerned with preventing color copier fraud than with attempting to deal with a threatening situation after it has already happened," according to Harry Kenney, physical security specialist at NCPI.

NCPI provides a nationwide clearinghouse of crime prevention data, not only for police and other criminal justice agencies, but also for private concerns. It houses the most complete collection of crime prevention data and literature in a majority of businesses.

To aid in preventing counterfeiting, NCPI is now working in conjunction with Burroughs Corporation, which has recently developed three means of preventing color copier fraud. The techniques require use of specially treated paper for the printing of checks, money orders and other negotiable forms and could result in a cost increase to individual businesses.

"In the long run, however, any additional cost that might result will prove well worth the investment by businesses," said Howard Webb, Louisville branch manager of Burroughs Business Forms Division. He added that, although businesses report over $1 billion lost each year due to fraud, the figure is actually much higher.

"Much fraud goes unreported by firms who are fearful of exposing weaknesses in their own systems," he said. NCPI is urging businesses to take advantage of the precautionary measures now available and has advertised their service nationally.

"NCPI feels merchants that work hard to earn their income should work hard to protect it," Kenney said. He added that response to the service has been enthusiastic.

Locally, the color copier machines were not sold until January, 1979, but Webb says that one firm currently has four orders for its machine. He predicts that, because of the practical advantages, most major companies will buy a color copier in the near future.

Further information on the protective check service is available from the Information Center, National Crime Prevention Institute, University of Louisville, Shelby Campus, Louisville, Ky. 40222.

Caution Should Be Used In Operating Equipment

FRANKFORT — It's time to put away the snow shovels and man the lawn mowers and hedge trimmers. The season for outdoor lawn and garden work has arrived.

Last year, the Department for Human Resources estimates there were as many as 8,500 outdoor power equipment-related injuries serious enough to require medical treatment.

Most of those injuries were caused by carelessness, said Robert Slaton, commissioner of the department's bureau for health services. "People sometimes try to take short cuts while using such equipment. They create great hazards for themselves and others around them."

Edsel Moore, manager of the department's consumer product safety branch, calls outdoor power tools, such as lawn mowers, hedge trimmers and edgers "dangerous by nature."

Moore listed these suggestions to make working with power tools safer:

- Inspect lawns before mowing.
- When mowing a hill, mow from side to side, rather than up and down.
- Never let children watch you mow the lawn. The mower blade can propel rocks and other debris at very high speeds, with the potential to injure someone quite a distance away.
- Never refuel any gasoline-powered equipment indoors. Gas vapors are easily ignited by a spark or a pilot light of a nearby water heater or furnace.
- When operating riding lawn mowers, equipment, be sure you have good footing. Never work with such equipment when the ground is wet or slippery.

Do not modify outdoor equipment. Modifications may cause the machine to function improperly and may make the machine more hazardous to operate. Never remove safety features.

Never leave running power equipment unattended. Turn equipment off while not in use.

Never allow children to operate power equipment. This is an open invitation for injuries.

Wear long pants, long-sleeved shirts, gloves, safety goggles and sturdy shoes while operating outdoor power equipment, especially the bladeless trimmers which use rapidly spinning nylon lines to cut grass and weeds.

Lately, added Moore, there have been a lot of safety refinements in outdoor power tools. "Consumers should consider the safety aspects of an outdoor power tool when they are deciding what to buy, rather than price. Watch for features such as the UL symbol of endorsement and do not accept lot of electrically-operated equipment and protective shields."

Additional information about outdoor power tool safety may be obtained from the Department for Human Resources' Consumer Product Safety Branch, 275 E. Main Street, Frankfort, Ky., 40621. The telephone number is 779-2647.

S. C. Van Curen Agree Or Not...

By S. C. VAN CUREN

FRANKFORT — The state Personnel Board has unofficially served notice on career state employees that the primary election is only four weeks away.

The notice came in the form of an announcement that traditional longevity steps have been added in all job classifications under the merit system.

Administration critics have labeled the plan as an effort by the Carroll administration to buy the votes of career employees, who have gone several years without a pay increase, for Terry McBrayer, Carroll's choice to succeed him.

For example, a person in a job with 10 steps in the longevity with 12 or more years of service has been eligible for a pay increase, not even one to keep up with inflation.

The longevity plan provides for a five percent wage increase every year for the first seven years in a 10-step job position. After he gets his eighth year increase, he had to wait two years to go to step nine and another two years to go to step ten, then there were no more pay increases in his future unless he got reclassified to a higher paying position.

Under the new plan about 9,000 employees in steps 8, 9, 10, and 11 will get an annual increment May 1. State employees are paid twice monthly, near the first of each month and about the middle of the month. This means they'll receive two paychecks with the five per cent increase before the May 29 election. The 1976 legislature appropriated $28 million to improve pay for state employees. This was in addition to the regular annual increments.

Personnel Commissioner Addie Stokley said this money was appropriate for positions where the state had recruitment and retention problems.

This didn't include the "paper pushers" who handle the daily routine of state business. All they got was the five percent automatic increment, that is, if they were not in the final step of their longevity in their positions.

Inflation has been increasing every year by about seven percent for the past three years and many state employees haven't gotten a raise in that period.

The Personnel Board added three more steps to the longevity plan, now known as steps A, B and C. However, this change does not mean that all employees with sufficient years of service will automatically qualify for a five percent pay increase. The catch is that the employee must be recommended by his supervisor for the pay increase, and the money must come out of the agency budget. No additional money is being funneled from the general fund to the agencies for these increases.

Mrs. Stokley said there are about 2,000 career state employees that are eligible for the last three steps.

After the 1976 appropriation, commissioners received as much as $5,000 annual increase in pay and some of the cabinet secretaries received a $7,500 annual pay increase. This is more than the beginning state employee in the lowest paid staffing position receives. The lowest beginning pay is $4,980 a year and could make as much as $7,716 when he reaches the end of his longevity. With the announced changes this same job category can reach the limit of $8,940.

The 1978 legislature appropriated an additional $35.6 million for pay increases, but this also was in the field where there were problems of recruitment and retention.

The "paper pushers" are the ones who have been feeling the pinch of inflation. The annual five percent increment, for those who were eligible, hasn't kept up with 7 percent or better inflation.

They are the ones who really need the pay increases and not those in the $20,000 and above annual pay range. Most of these jobs are not under the merit system and it is up to the discretion of the administration in power who gets these jobs. They also get the pay increases, and handsome ones at that.

A brochure went out in the month-end pay envelope, along with the check, explaining the increases to the employees.

Is it coincidental that it happened just before the May primary?

Effort Being Made To Combat Color Copier Fraud Attempts

Color copiers are currently causing a stir in the business community because of the ease with which amateur forgers can reproduce anything from payroll checks and stock certificates to gift certificates.

The copiers have been on the market for about two years, but recently law enforcement officials have become concerned that, once the machines are available in a majority of businesses, rampant office forgery could become a significant problem.

The National Crime Preventional Institute, located at the University of Louisville, Ky., is offering a consulting source for businesses which are considering the purchase of a color copier, or firms who already have the machine and want to prevent counterfeiting.

As a national law enforcement educational center, NCPI is more concerned with preventing color copier fraud than with attempting to deal with a threatening situation after it has already happened," according to Harry Kenney, physical security specialist at NCPI.

NCPI provides a nationwide clearinghouse of crime prevention data, not only for police and other criminal justice agencies, but also for private concerns. It houses the most complete collection of crime prevention data and literature in a majority of businesses.

To aid in preventing counterfeiting, NCPI is now working in conjunction with Burroughs Corporation, which has recently developed three means of preventing color copier fraud. The techniques require use of specially treated paper for the printing of checks, money orders and other negotiable forms and could result in a cost increase to individual businesses.

"In the long run, however, any additional cost that might result will prove well worth the investment by businesses," said Howard Webb, Louisville branch manager of Burroughs Business Forms Division. He added that, although businesses report over $1 billion lost each year due to fraud, the figure is actually much higher.

"Much fraud goes unreported by firms who are fearful of exposing weaknesses in their own systems," he said. NCPI is urging businesses to take advantage of the precautionary measures now available and has advertised their service nationally.

"NCPI feels merchants that work hard to earn their income should work as hard to protect it," Kenney said. He added that response to the service has been enthusiastic.

Locally, the color copier machines were not sold until January, 1979, but Webb says that one firm currently has four orders for its machine. He predicts that, because of the practical advantages, most major companies will buy a color copier in the near future.

Further information on the protective check service is available from the Information Center, National Crime Prevention Institute, University of Louisville, Shelby Campus, Louisville, Ky. 40222.

Caution Should Be Used In Operating Equipment

FRANKFORT — It's time to put away the snow shovels and man the lawn mowers and hedge trimmers. The season for outdoor lawn and garden work has arrived.

Last year, the Department for Human Resources estimates there were as many as 8,500 outdoor power equipment-related injuries serious enough to require medical treatment.

Most of those injuries were caused by carelessness, said Robert Slaton, commissioner of the department's bureau for health services. "People sometimes try to take short cuts while using such equipment. They create great hazards for themselves and others around them."

Edsel Moore, manager of the department's consumer product safety branch, calls outdoor power tools, such as lawn mowers, hedge trimmers and edgers "dangerous by nature."

Moore listed these suggestions to make working with power tools safer:

- Inspect lawns before mowing.
- When mowing a hill, mow from side to side, rather than up and down.
- Never let children watch you mow the lawn. The mower blade can propel rocks and other debris at very high speeds, with the potential to injure someone quite a distance away.
- Never refuel any gasoline-powered equipment indoors. Gas vapors are easily ignited by a spark or a pilot light of a nearby water heater or furnace.
- When operating run, never equipment, be sure you have good footing. Never work with such equipment when the ground is wet or slippery.

Do not modify outdoor equipment. Modifications may cause the machine to function improperly and may make the machine more hazardous to operate. Never remove safety features.

- Never leave running power equipment unattended. Turn equipment off while not in use.
- Never allow children to operate power equipment. This is an open invitation for injuries.
- Wear long pants, long-sleeved shirts, gloves, safety goggles and sturdy shoes while operating outdoor power equipment, especially the bladeless trimmers which use rapidly spinning nylon lines to cut grass and weeds.

Lately, added Moore, there have been a lot of safety refinements in outdoor power tools. "Consumers should consider the safety aspects of an outdoor power tool when they are deciding what to buy, rather than price. Watch for features such as the UL symbol of endorsement and do not accept lot of electrically-operated equipment and protective shields."

Additional information about outdoor power tool safety may be obtained from the Department for Human Resources' Consumer Product Safety Branch, 275 E. Main Street, Frankfort, Ky., 40621. The telephone number is 779-2647.

Buglaries Keep Police Occupied

A series of burglaries and break-ins kept Morehead City Police hopping last weekend.
Police said that Rowan County Water Inc., 110 Hargis Avenue, entered sometime Saturday or Sunday by burglars using a screw driver and pry-bar to force open the back door.

Reported stolen were a Royal electric typewriter valued at $250; two adding machines worth a total of $590; a $39.95 Mister Coffee coffeemaker; a $7 trash can and $30 in cash.
The theft was reported Monday morning and is still under investigation by Patrolman Gordon Lambert.

In another burglary, an 18-year-old Clearfield man, James Kiser, was arrested by warrant and charged with first degree burglary in connection with a Sunday break-in at the residence of Jeffery R. Kissick, 212 Clearfield Street.
Police said a $150 stereo was taken in that alleged burglary. Entry was gained through an upstairs window, police said, by the intruder using an old washing machine on the back porch to climb on the roof.
Kiser was lodged in Rowan County Jail on a $5,000 bond with a $500 cash deposit.

He appeared in Rowan District Court Wednesday where his cash deposit was reduced from $500 to $250 and a suppression hearing was set for 10 a.m. today.
Patrolman Ronald Farley was the investigative officer.
Two other attempted burglaries occurred over the weekend but nothing was missing in either break-in.
Police said someone threw rocks through the west windows of Larry Fannin's Chevrolet, 329 E. Main Street, and one of the rocks broke a rear window on a 1978 Chevrolet causing $200 damage. The incident occurred sometime between Saturday closing hour at 5 p.m. and the garage's opening Monday morning.
Jesse Salyer, of 109 Dairy Street, reported to police that someone entered his residence between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday by breaking a small window pane in the front door.
Det. James Pelfrey and Patrolman Gordon Lambert investigated both break-ins.
State police at Morehead have also had their share of burglaries and break-ins to contend with. The most recent of
