

Dog Pound Complaints Continue

By JOE LAMB

The issue of the county dog situation was once again one of the highlights at a meeting of Rowan Fiscal Court yesterday morning.

Magistrate Paul Ousley brought up the matter saying that the city was very upset with the way the dog pound is being maintained. The city has loaned the dog pound to the county, as it is the county's obligation to provide animal control.

Ousley said that Mayor Crayton Jackson had called him to say that the pound was dirty and that there was a dead animal in the cage. Ousley added that members of the city police force bought dog food for the animals at the pound.

Dog Warden Carl Mullen, who has resigned that post, effective July 31, said that the dead animal was not one that he had picked up and indicated that it may have been thrown in the cage by someone.

Mullen said that the animals had been fed and that they did not even eat the food placed in the cages by the policemen. He said that he had dismissed a man he had retained to clean the cages because he was not doing a good job and that he was in the process of hiring a replacement. Mullen said that he personally inspects the pound each morning at 6:30.

Mullen blasted The Morehead News for stirring up the controversy about the dog pound. (The newspaper ran an article pointing out discrepancies in figures Mullen had supplied the Fiscal Court as to the disposition of dogs.) He said that since the articles had been running, the situation with the dog pound had become "more of a problem." He said that his resignation was based on financial considerations and that an investigation of his job by the county attorney, initiated after the articles published, turned up no irregularities.

County Attorney John Cox refused to publicly release the results of the investigation. Mullen said that Cox did this because there was nothing to release.

After Mullen had concluded his remarks, Ousley suggested that the pound be closed until a new dog warden is hired. After Deputy Judge/Executive Terry Anderson said he felt that the county was under an obligation to keep a dog warden whether or not there was a pound, the motion was withdrawn.

No other action was taken on the matter, except for Mullen to agree to check the pound at least twice a day. Some concern was expressed that, if the situation at the pound did not improve, the city might order it closed.

Conflict Resolved

Another source of conflict at a meeting last week was apparently resolved during an hour-long closed session by the magistrates yesterday morning.

The magistrates had drafted a resolution last week which ordered the county road department to undertake work in specific districts. Anderson, acting in the place of Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery, who recently underwent surgery, took exception to the one saying that the magistrates could not direct work to be done in specific districts. He said that the county must be treated as a whole.

The magistrates countered that they were making the move to ensure that county materials did not get on private property.

A compromise reached yesterday gives the county road foreman power to direct work as he sees fit, under the direction of the county judge. In addition, the magistrates will be allowed to submit lists of work to be done on roads to be passed by the courts. The road foreman, however, would work on them at his own discretion.

For his extra work load the county road foreman will be paid a salary of $12,000 per year.

The Bluestone Dump

A small, but vocal delegation of residents of Bluestone came before the magistrates to request that action be taken to correct a problem of trash dumping in their area.

The residents said that all kinds of materials, including used appliances

Natural Resources To Supervise Maxey Flats

A temporary license to possess and dispose of radioactive materials at the Maxey Flats radioactive waste burial facility has been awarded to the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

The department was assigned custodial management of the site in February through an executive order issued by Gov. Julian Carroll. Maxey Flats had previously been under the supervision of the state Department of Finance. With the new license, the Natural Resources Department will retain full responsibility for materials stored at the facility.

For the past several years, maintenance of the Fleming County site was contracted to the Nuclear Engineering Company (NECO) of Louisville. NECO's management contract was terminated June 30 by the department. NECO has been issued a permit from the Department for Human Resources to maintain records on the nuclear waste site.

The world-wide engineering and consulting firm of Dames and Moore received the new contract for management of Maxey Flats and began work at the site July 1.

Dames and Moore, with the assistance of a subsidiary corporation, Dames and Moore Waste Management Inc., has taken on site responsibilities which include studying methods to correct water infiltration, helping the Natural Resources Department formulate a program to gain permanent license for radioactive materials stored there and assisting the state in federal funds for management of the site.

State officials within the department have expressed pleasure with projects proposed by Dames and Moore to clean up and maintain the Maxey Flats site. Total cost for maintenance and design services in 1980 has been set at $667,700. Annual maintenance costs will gradually diminish in the following years.

Secretary of the department, Eugene Mooney, will meet with the contractors at Maxey Flats later this week to discuss plans for site maintenance and short-term water and sludge management plans.

Weather Reduces Holiday Lake Attendance

Incllement weather no doubt kept a lot of people away from Cave Run Lake on the fourth of July. Nevertheless over 350 people paid their way into the Twin Knobs beach Wednesday.

Pat Spradlin, office herb Spradlin reported that 175 of the 200 camp sites at Twin Knobs were used, and that about 1,050 boats used the Twin Knobs Clay Lick ramps on the morning holiday. The figures are "off drastically" according to Spradlin, and he blames the bad weather for the reason instead of the gas situation. He says that Cave Run is running about 20% off from normal use the past week.

The nine boat ramps were all down in the volume of usage, and Spradlin attributes the gas shortage to just 15-20% of the drop off. Usually the ramps are heavily used on the fourth of July, but according to Spradlin there was a marked decrease Wednesday. Exact figures are not yet known.

The 1978 figures were just recently released on Cave Run, attendance. In 1978 about 83,200 people visited the Twin Knobs Camp ground. Some 47,000 visited the beach, 10,900 visited the Twin Knobs picnic area, and 28,800 used the boat ramp.

The Scott Creek boat ramp was used 106,800 times, and the Scott Creek Marina was used 385,800 times. Warrix Run boating was used 69,600 times. Clay Lick boating was used 67,800 times, Bangor Boating 37,000; Poppin Rock boating 40,000; Twenty-Six boating 15,000; Twin Knobs-Alfrey boating 69,400; Long Bow boating 63,800; Long Bow Marine 135,000; and Leatherwood boating 51,000.

That gave Cave Run a total 1978 recreation figure of 1,204,300.

Storms Cause Wind Damage, Local Flooding

Thunderstorms, some of them heavy, and high winds caused property damage and scattered minor flooding in the Rowan, Bath, and Morgan County area Wednesday.

State police said two mobile homes were blown off their foundations by a heavy thunderstorm as it moved through the Cave Run Reservoir area.

A state police spokesman said, "It was apparently just high winds," not a tornado.

Police said the storm blew down several trees and caused flooding of low-lying areas near the Dehart Community in southwest Morgan County.

Although the state police received several reports of wind and flood damage, no injuries were reported. The storm hit the area about 2:30 p.m. uprooted several large trees, produced marble-size hail and knocked out electrical service to areas east of Salt Lick in Bath County and at Farmers in Rowan County.

Herman Brown, a spokesman for the Morehead Utility Plant Board, said the storm at Farmers knocked out power to the Morehead water plant for about three hours.

Brown said the situation did get near the critical stage but, "It never was as bad as we thought it was going to be" and the power was turned back on before there was any interruption in water service to local customers.

Unforgettable Flood

Although it happened 40 years ago yesterday, many Rowan Countians remember the flood of 1939, considered 'Morehead's greatest tragedy.' Several persons recall their experiences in a story on page 12.

Union Organization At Life Care Slow Process, Says Attorney

By BOB CRISWELL
Staff Writer

Buddy Salyer, the attorney representing a group of employees at Morehead Life Care Center, who are in the process of organizing a local union said, "This station is a slow process, it may be two to four weeks before we know exactly how strong we are."

The group began a campaign about a week ago to attract a major interest of employees in the organization of the union for collective bargaining purposes.

Salyer said at this point all he could report was a group of nurses aides was trying to get co-workers to sign a petition to support efforts to organize the union.

Salyer said he received a letter from Life Care Center of Morehead Administrator Lendal Gibson stating he (Gibson) did not believe a substantial number of employees would join the group in an effort to organize a union.

Salyer said a meeting was held last week by management in which the centers' employees were given their vacations back, and they were also tentatively offered a raise, Salyer termed this move an unfair labor practice, he said that after the employees have started to organize it was illegal for management to try and undercut the efforts of this group.

Salyer added, this being the case, he would file a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board.

In an interview with The Morehead News, Gibson said his official position was still "no comment." However he did confirm that a meeting was held last week by vice-president for

Gas Prices Jump Nearly 4 Cents

By MARK PERKINS
Staff Writer

A recent gasoline survey conducted by The Morehead News indicates that most local gas stations are having to shorten their hours and close on Sundays in order to prevent running out of the precious fuel in between deliveries.

The Ashland station on Rt. 60 didn't close last Sunday because the manager wanted to stretch the supply, the station simply ran out of gas Saturday and had to wait until the July allocation arrived last Monday.

Most service station operators agree that because of the stiff allocations, most between 20-25 percent less than they were receiving the same month last year, even the shorter hours aren't helping because just as much gas is being sold.

Gene Brown, who runs the Ashland station on Rt. 32 says, "If I'm out back as much as they say, and with the rate I'm pumping, I'll have to be closed half the time." Brown reports that he is already forced to close on Sunday, and has had to trim three hours off each day because of his 25 percent cut in supply.

Some exceptions to the Sunday closing include stations located near Interstate 64. The manager of Red Hed, Doug Giles reports that his station is open seven days a week and hasn't had to cut back on his operating hours. This is due to the fact that this is an independent station.

As supply dwindles, area gas prices continue to soar. Gas prices at the surveyed stations were up an average of 3.8 cents a gallon. The average price for regular gas last Tuesday was 87.1 cents a gallon, up 3.8 cents from the first of June. Unleaded costs 91.2 cents (up 3.4 cents) and the premium price is 93.7 cents (up 3.9 cents).

The station with the highest increase in the price per gallon was the Chevron

on Rt. 32, its average was 90.9, compared with 83.9 in the beginning of June. Although it should be pointed out, that during that month's survey the station had one of the lowest price increases of just 1.4 cents. The Morehead News has been monitoring 14 local gas stations for three months.

Union 76, which has had the highest prices since the survey was started, was the only station that didn't raise its prices at all. Two stations raised their prices an average of just one cent a gallon, the Gulf on Rt. 60 and the Gulf on Rt. 32. Once again, each of those stations were at or above last month's average increase of four cents a gallon.

The station with the lowest average price this month is the Gulf on Rt. 60. It had the lowest price for each grade of gas, and an average of 88.9. Because it doesn't sell regular, the Union 76 station on Rt. 60 still maintained the highest average price.

The Ashland stations each had the highest price for regular, 88.9 cents. The Ashland on Rt. 32 has this month's highest unleaded price, 92.9, and the Shell on Rt. 32 has the highest premium, 96 cents a gallon.

Some observations after three months of the survey: Gas prices seem to be more competitive—the difference between the highest and lowest average price was cut in half this month, from eight to four cents. The gap apparently is being narrowed by gas prices being raised closer to the top price locally.

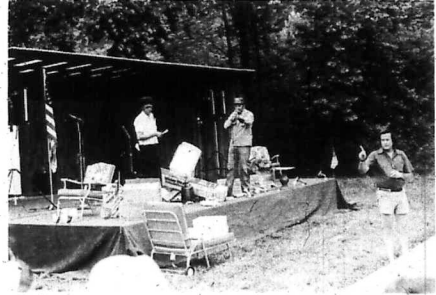

On top of all this, motorists can take heart. Doug Giles claims that he actually lowered the prices at the Red Hed pumps by two cents.

Don Pair, 35, worked for The Greenup News, Grayson Journal-Enquirer and Oliver Hill Times from August 1973 through November 1975 when he left to become the editor of a newspaper in Cottonwood, Arizona.

A reporter who began his journalism career with The Greenup News has been named Director of News Services and Publications for Grand Canyon College in Phoenix, Arizona.

He joined the college staff as print shop manager in 1976 and completed work for a BA degree in English. He is nearing completion of an MA in journalism from the University of Arizona while working for the college.

Bill For Listing Lt. Governor's Duties Is Approved

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — A subcommittee of the Joint State Government Committee has approved for committee legislation providing for statutory listings of the lieutenant governor's duties.

The bill draft also provides for the lieutenant governor's membership on the board of the Kentucky Housing Corporation and various interstate compact commissions and boards.

Under the proposal, other additions to the lieutenant governor's duties would include the chairmanship of the Economic Development Commission and ex-officio chairman of the Kentucky Development Finance Authority.

The duties would give the lieutenant governor some experience throughout state government, assuming he or she might be a gubernatorial candidate, said Rep. Bill Weinberg, D-Hindman.

Weinberg is chairman of the subcommittee on legislative effectiveness and duties of the lieutenant governor.

The subcommittee also approved a bill providing procedures for coping with a gubernatorial disability. The proposal would permit the lieutenant governor and state officials to determine if the governor is disabled and allow for an appeal to the state Supreme Court.

The state Constitution does not prohibit the proposed procedures but it does not specifically mention the process to follow if the governor becomes disabled, Weinberg said.

"The intent is to provide guidelines for what is already constitutional," he added.

Among topics mentioned for future discussion were controlling internal legislative processes, the legislature's role in budget formulation, improvement of the committee system and support services and office space.

Nunn Presents Plan To Curb Oil Usage

LEXINGTON — Former Gov. Louie B. Nunn proposed today an immediate, three-point plan to fight the oil cartel by increased use of coal.

"We can end our dependence on OPEC oil by making use of the resources we have here at home," Nunn said in remarks prepared for a news conference at his law office here. "We have an abundance of coal, and we must have national leadership that is committed to increasing our coal production."

He said the Carter administration has failed even to use its authority under existing law and has adhered to policies damaging to the coal industry.

"Vice President Mondale came to Kentucky last week and paid lip service to coal," Nunn said. "Let's not be fooled by the glowing words. The problems of the coal industry can be traced directly to President Carter's suppression of coal production."

Nunn said he was sending the President a letter proposing a three-point plan to increase domestic coal production and meet the nation's energy needs. He said the steps were:

1. Conversion of power plants from oil and natural gas to coal, saving 300,000 to 400,000 barrels of oil per day and increasing production of coal by 30 to 40 million tons per year.

"Such a goal was envisioned in the Powerplant and Industrial Fuel Use Act of 1978, but little progress has been made," Nunn said, adding that he was urging Carter to use his authority in this area promptly.

Increasing the output of existing coal-fired power plants in the Mid-Atlantic and Midwestern states while reducing output from the remaining oil-fired plants on the East Coast.

"We would thus save 150,000 to 200,000 barrels of oil per day, and burn an additional 20 million tons of coal, or more, each year," he said. "The electricity from coal-fired plants can simply be transmitted, or 'wheeled,' by wire to the East."

Relaxation of restrictions on use of coke in steelmaking.

"Because of restrictions on existing coke ovens and barriers placed in the way of building new coke capacity, coke imported from abroad is actually cheaper than coke produced in the U.S.," Nunn said. "The administration should relax the restrictions on existing coke plants and allow the construction of additional capacity with reasonable environmental safeguards."

Coke is made from high-grade metallurgical coal, which is plentiful in Eastern Kentucky.

Auto Service Tips

Saving money by changing your own oil, adding oil and transmission fluids when needed is a good idea. If it is done properly. For example, there are two distinct types of transmission fluids. Dexron 11 is the most common and most universally used. But, there are exceptions. Ford and Lincoln Mercury lines use "Type F" fluid. There is a crucial difference between Dexron 11 and "Type F" and the two should never be interchanged.

Peanut Blossom Cookies
By LORETTA GEVEDON

- 1-3/4 cup flour
- 1 tsp. soda
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1/2 cup peanut butter
- 2 Tbl. milk
- Approximately 48 milk chocolate candy kisses
- 1/2 cup shortening (melted margarine)

Combine all ingredients except candy kisses in large bowl. Mix by hand or lowest speed. Shape into walnut size round balls. Roll in sugar. Bake 9-10 minutes on ungreased cookie sheet. Top each cookie immediately with a candy kiss pressing down firmly so cookie cracks around edge of candy. Takes 12-24 hours for kisses to cool for storage.

A Scouts' Own ceremony gave special recognition to the adults who assisted the troop throughout the year. Prior to the awards ceremony the scouts presented a rhododendron bush to the members of the First Baptist Church in appreciation of their sponsorship of the troop.

Medicare Policies Will Improve

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) - A subcommittee on banking and insurance has decided to let the state Department of Insurance outline minimum insurance standards to supplement Medicare policies for the elderly.

The subcommittee requested standards be implemented to help prevent over-selling of health insurance to the elderly.

State Insurance Commissioner Harold McGuffey said insurance companies should be bound by two requirements - insurance policies must be outlined in layman terms and a summary of the Medicare program must accompany the policy.

Joe Wright, chairman of a special senior citizens committee formed by the subcommittee, said insurance companies are discriminating against the elderly by terminating insurance policies and denying insurance because of age.

Wright proposed all insurance companies be required by law to state reasons and cause before terminating an insurance policy.

IN MEMORIAM OF RICKY DAILEY

12 weeks and 6 days ago you went away.
 Time has not dulled the pain;
 We live and long for that sweet day,
 When we shall meet again.
 You went so quick there was no time
 To say a last good-bye.
 One fleeting breath and you were gone.
 And we were left to cry.
 All of our lives we will miss you,
 Though the years will come and go,
 But Ricky, in our hearts you will live for ever.
 Because we loved you so.
 Now taken home to God's land
 You've seen God's face
 You've touched God's hand
 You are God's angel, His special light
 For you see no darkness, there is no night.
 I miss you Ricky,
 My moments, precious but few,
 And only God knows the part of me,
 That will forever be with you.
 I love you Ricky - By Brenda Brown p-54F

IN MEMORY OF RICKY DAILEY
 Who's birthday is July 4
 To All Parents
 Edgar A. Guest
 "I'll tend you for a little time,
 A child of Mine," he said,
 For you to love while he lives,
 And mourn for when he's dead.
 It may be six or seven years,
 Or twenty-two or thirty,
 But will you, till I call him back,
 Take care of him for me?
 He'll bring his charms to gladden you,
 And shall his stay be brief,
 You've had his lovely memories,
 As solace for your grief?
 I cannot promise he will stay,
 Since all from earth return,
 But there are lessons taught down there,
 I want this child to learn,
 I've looked the wide world over,
 In my search for teachers true,
 And from the throngs that crowd life's land
 I have selected you.
 Now will you give him all four love,
 Nor think the labor vain,
 Nor hate me when I come to call,
 I've taken him back again?
 I fancied that I heard them say,
 "Dear Lord, Thy will be done,
 For all the joy Thy child shall bring,
 The risk is great we'll run,
 We'll shelter him with tenderness,
 We'll love him while he may,
 And for the happiness we've known,
 Forever faithful stay,
 But shall the angels call for him,
 Much sooner than we've planned,
 We'll brave the bitter grief that comes,
 And try to understand." p-54F

Louisville Police Reject Contract

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) - Louisville police rejected a proposed contract that would grant 8 percent wage increases in each of the next two years, while city firemen reached a tentative settlement after day-long talks Tuesday.

Fraternel Order of Police President David Mullins said Wednesday there is a possibility that policemen will show their discontent when President Carter comes to Louisville this weekend for the start of the National Governors' Conference.

Mullins did not elaborate on what form the demonstrations will take. Meanwhile, United Press International has learned that State Police Commissioner Kenneth Brandenburg has been keeping a steady dialogue with Louisville and Jefferson County police supervisors in case a job action is initiated.

Switch To Coal Will Save Over Two Million Barrells Of Gas

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) - President Carter has been advised in an unreleased report that greater emphasis on coal and away from oil and gasfiring for utilities in the East and South can save the nation 2.3 million barrels of imported oil by 1985.

Stepped-up emphasis on synthetic fuels, combined with the coal push, could replace 4.6 million barrels of oil by 1990. The four-part interim report on ways to hasten the substitution of coal for foreign oil was made available to the White House last week by the President's Commission on Coal. West Virginia Gov. Jay Rockefeller is chairman of the commission. He did not comment on the report.

It recommended: - Reconverting former coalburning utility facilities in the East. It makes a very strong point there ought to be steppedup conversion in the short run that largely the utilities in the Northeast that burned coal, then went to oil, ought to switch back to coal. - Accelerated replacement of oil-and-gas-firing boilers, especially in the state police are keeping advised of the latest decontract negotiations. Mullins declined to give the vote totals but said the policemen "soundly rejected" the city's latest offer Tuesday. He also said no job action was contemplated at this time and efforts were being made to resume negotiations soon.

Meanwhile, leaders of Louisville Professional Firefighters Local 345 said meetings will be held Thursday and Friday to explain the proposal to the membership. A vote on the proposal was set for July 13-14.

Workers who repair the city's traffic signals started calling in sick around midnight Monday in an apparent job action. The 30 workers, represented by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 369, are assigned to the city's traffic engineering department. Circuit Judge Richard Oldham granted the city Law Department a temporary restraining order Tuesday to force the workers back to their jobs.

One source said "the commission has deliberately cast the report in a very tough way. We think the world is full of exemptions. It's very important to be as tough as possible," the source said.

- A strong push for synthetic fuels. Synthetic fuels, the report said, will not yield a major displacement of foreign oil before the 1980s or 1990s.

Utilities Voice Problems With Lifeline Rate Law

FRANKFORT — Officials from several Kentucky utility companies testified before the Energy Regulatory Commission today concerning implementation problems with the proposed "lifeline" utility rate schedules.

The hearing was prompted by legislative discontent and lawsuits filed in Franklin County Circuit Court challenging the "lifeline" rate concept, according to ERC chairman Perry R.

White Jr. The lifeline concept calls for a basic discount rate for a pre-determined minimum amount of energy needed for space and water heating, lighting, cooking and food refrigeration. The concept calls for a five-month "winter-rate" and a seven-month "summer-rate" which would cover the residential energy needs for a family of four living in a properly insulated 1100-square foot dwelling.

White told the utility company representatives the new rate schedules are "worthy of responsible consideration," and they "should remain imaginative and flexible concerning the concept."

Main implementation problems brought up by the companies included: definition of terms contained in the new schedule such as "fixed cost" and "properly insulated," revenue deficiencies caused by the new rates and the inability of some companies to prepare and formulate the correct rates because they could not get the necessary demographic information.

J.W. Bradley of Kentucky Utilities, in his testimony, warned the commission to use caution before implementation of the new system. "California in one state that has 'lifeline' and they have experienced serious consequences because they didn't do extensive research," he said.

Bradley said New York was one state that has "lifeline" and found "lifeline" would be ineffective, so they did not implement it.

He agreed with several other representatives the problem was too broad and complex to be solved by block discounts, as outlined by the new schedules.

The main concept of "lifeline" came under attack from the utility companies also. Frank J. Kemeny of Equitable Gas Company of Pittsburgh, which serves part of eastern Kentucky, said under the system "the low income group is not always the one that used the least amount of gas."

"As a matter of fact," he added, "in many instances they use more than the

Two Local Teams Will Play In Ashland Tourney

By MARK PERKINS
Sports Editor

Morehead's Babe Ruth Baseball League will field two All-Star teams this weekend in Ashland. The 13 year olds will play Boyd County tomorrow morning at 10, and the 14/15 year olds will also play Boyd County at 3 p.m. If the older All-Stars should win they will play South Shore Sunday at 3:30.

Because Morehead will play host to the state Babe Ruth tournament, they will have an automatic entry, which means that the team representing Morehead isn't exactly the best players, but they aren't the worst either. If they should win the Ashland tournament, Morehead will have two teams in the state tournament, to be held later this month.

Jim Ragland, who coached the Reds during the regular season will coach the 13/14 year old All-Stars and says he is most concerned about pitching. "Our team that is designated to play in the state tournament is definitely a better team on the mound," Ragland said.

The coach went on to say that the kids seem to be excited, and that they have been worked out three hard times. "They seem to have a lot of enthusiasm and we are looking forward to the trip."

The squad traveling to Ashland will be one man short. Wes Hardin is still recovering from oral surgery and won't make the trip. According to Ragland, alternates were not chosen. Here's a look at the players who will go to Ashland:

Bobby Jones, 15 year old, an All-Star last year, he will either catch, or play in the infield.

Tracy Ragland, the coaches son, is 15 and will play second or third. Both Jones and Ragland played on the Reds this season.

Rick Keller, 15, from the Cubs will play the outfield and might see some relief action on the mound.

Glen Stevens, 15 from the Expos, will probably be the starting pitcher for Ragland. He will play the infield when not on the mound. Ragland describes Stevens as, "a real fine athlete."

Jim Bendixen, also from the Expos, will play shortstop and probably see some pitching action.

Mike Wilson, 14 from the Suns, plays second base. Ragland says he may not start, but Wilson should see a lot of action.

Terry White, also from the Suns, is the finest outfielder in the league according to Ragland. When asked if it is the case why isn't White on the team waiting for the state tournament? "Good question," Ragland replied, "it could be because of his hitting." White may also do some spot pitching.

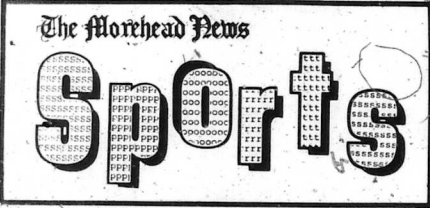

Other members of the squad include Pat Murry, Marlon Muse, an outfielder, Tim Rye, a pitcher, first baseman or outfielder, Kevin Stevens, thirdbase or the outfield, Lee Jackson, and Jeff Warren.

opportunity to play."

Hit pitching staff includes Ty Fannin, Robbie Barker, Brian Riddle, and Andy Thompson. The probable line up includes Riddle catching, Donnie Fultz will play first base, Cameron Kenny will play second base, Ty Fannin will be at shortstop, while not pitching, Andy Thompson will hold down third base, and Danny May and Don Laferty will be in the outfield.

The two double elimination tournaments will feature teams from Boyd, Russell, Greenup Co., Nicholas County and Flatwoods.

Post 126 Sweeps Through Tournament

By TED SLOAN
Staff Writer

An exciting 42 Morehead victory over Hillsboro, Ohio Monday night was an appropriate climax to this year's Morehead Invitational Tournament at the City Park.

Last weekend's round-robin tournament saw Post 126 the winner with a 4-0 record. Hillsboro came in second, along with Pikeville, at 3-1. Williamson won 2 and lost 3. Kenova was 1-4, and Shelbyville drew a blank in the six-team field with one 4-4 mark.

Joe May went the distance against Hillsboro and capped his fifth in the tournament to solidify his position as one of the top players of the event. The 18-year-old right-hander scattered seven hits, walked three and struck out seven en route to his second victory of the year and his first complete game.

Dave Gaunce put Morehead on top to stay in the first inning when right-centerfielder Bryan Moon tried to shoestring his line drive, came up short, and saw it roll to the fence for an inside-the-park home run. Post 126 had two runs in the third when Ronnie Cornett walked, and was forced out by Jeff Dixon. Gaunce walked, May singled to score Dixon, and one out later, John Warner crashed a double to dead center to bring Gaunce to the plate.

Morehead's last run came in the seventh, as Cornett again drew a base on balls and Gaunce hit a shot to center that handcuffed Moon and got by him, scoring Cornett.

Hillsboro tightened things up with single runs in the fourth and fifth innings. A bases-loaded sacrifice fly by reliever pitcher Tom Warner put Post 129 on the scoreboard, and a rock shot catcher Tim Berry pounded out to left-center narrowed it to a 3-2 margin. After Morehead scored its last run in the seventh, John Attinger led off the bottom of the frame with a single, but two outs later, May took Berry to a full count before he caught the cleanup hitter looking on a curve.

It was the last year. Morehead made the most of a few hits, as Post 126 was limited to just five safeties in the game. Four came off starter and loser Mike Morgan in his 3 and two-thirds inning stint, but Warner came up with two out in the third and slammed the door. He was the unfortunate victim of Moon's misplay in the seventh. Gaunce's single on that play was Morehead's only hit off him.

Morehead needed a hard-fought 7-5 triumph over Kenova Monday afternoon to put itself in a position to win the tourney. A sterling bases-loaded relief performance by Gene Ferguson finally shut down the stubborn Post-93 team with the tying run at second and one out in the seventh.

Bullpen ace Ted Carter was called on to protect a three-run lead, but one-out singles by Terry Adkins and Warren Canterbury combined with walks to Scott Dawson and Jack Staten to push a run home and bring on the call for Ferguson. In only his second relief appearance of the year, the veteran rightly retired both batters he faced to earn the save for Mike McCann.

Morehead had just broken a 4-4 tie in the top of the seventh. Joe Magrane rapped a pinch-hit sacrifice fly to put the Morehead post ahead. Jeff Dixon followed with a double to drive across another run, and May lashed his third hit of the game to score Dixon.

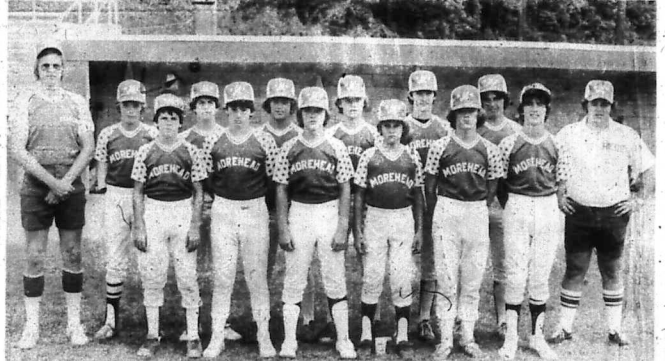

Mays' first hit, along with two errors, resulted in the first run for Don Hardin's team in the first inning, but Kenova came back with a pair off McCann in the bottom of the frame. Morehead tied it on Doug Bradley's RBI double in the second, and took the lead when Warner slammed a two-bagger to bring Tony McKinney around in the third. A line double by Ronnie Cornett, his first of two hits on the day, scored Donnie Harper from first in the fourth before David Mahon punched a pinch-hit, two-run single in the sixth for Kenova to tie the game at 4-4.

McCann picked up his sixth victory in as many decisions for six innings of work. He was touched up for six hits, four in the sixth inning, while walking four and striking out the same number.

May's three hits led a nine-hit Morehead attack as Post 126 was one of few teams to show some offense in the pitching-dominated tournament.

The four wins in tourney play extended Morehead's winning streak to six, and improved its record to 26-6. The Corbie Ellington post plays Columbus, Indiana in an 8 p.m. single game this evening, and meets Frankfort in doubleheaders Saturday night and Sunday afternoon. The Saturday twin-bill is the rescheduled date for Little League Night at Hardin Field, and Little League players will be admitted to that doubleheader free of charge.

14-1 Tigers Have Best League Record

The Little League season is winding down, and as the post season tournament draws near, the team to beat appears to be the Tigers, who are 14-1 and haven't lost a league game since their opening contest. The Cubs defeated the Tigers 2-1 opening day, because the Tigers could manage only four hits.

Craig Morris, the coach of the leagues top team gave his squad some experience outside Morehead Wednesday when they played a tournament in Winchester. Even though they lost 10-4 Morris feels it was good for his team. "Hopefully this loss will put us more on our toes and prepare us for our own league tournament next week."

The tournament in Winchester consisted of the best teams from Berea, Richmond, Fleming, Bath and Winchester.

The Tigers have three players on this year's All-Star team, Dave Keeton, Joe Taylor and Jeff Stevens. Both Keeton and Taylor were All-Star starters last year at shortstop and leftfield.

Here is a look at the lineup which has been so successful for Morris. Ray Stevens leads off and plays catcher. Stevens is 11 years old and according to Morris has become a fine hitter.

Danny Fulton is the fastest runner on the squad and plays third base.

Dave Keeton pitches and plays shortstop. Keeton leads the league in home runs.

Jeff Stevens plays first base and is the most improved player.

Joe Taylor pitches and plays shortstop, he has four home runs.

Will Whitaker bats sixth and plays either center or left field.

Johnny Holloway plays either second base or pitcher and is an excellent batter.

Ronnie Stevens plays center field and has done some light pitching. He is no relation to Jeff and Ray.

Chris North, 11 years old, plays right field.

The rest of the Tigers include Robbie Whitaker, 10, Mark Taylor, Joe's brother who is 10. Morris describes Mark as a fine competitor in the outfield or infield. Jason Craig plays third or second. Daron Turner, and Keith Bowling who is 9 and is just beginning to come around with his hitting and timing.

"They have worked hard all season and I'm proud of the way they have performed," Morris said during an interview this week. Morris also said, "I want to extend my appreciation to all the parents for all of their cooperation."

Morris is a teacher at George Rodgers Clark High School in Winchester, and coaches freshmen basketball and served as an assistant varsity baseball coach.

With a look of serious determination, Jippy Bowman burls a pitch last week during a Little League contest between the Cubs and the Yankees. Bowman was making his first pitching start of the season. The Yankees won, 6-2.

Ali Is First Black Boxer To Retire As Winner

CHICAGO (UPI) - Retired heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali said Wednesday he is the first black boxer to exit from the ring as a winner.

"I'm the first black to get out on top," Ali said Thursday, repeating his intention to retire from the ring.

But his retirement apparently does not exclude exhibition matches.

All, who joined Chicago dignitaries in the city's Fourth of July parade down Michigan Avenue, planned to fight a one-round exhibition bout with Floyd "Junior" Cummings, who recently was released from the Stateville Correctional Center near Joliet.

Teresa Robinson, who takes care of the third base position for Wards grounds out last Thursday night against Martins.

Utilities Voice Problems With Lifeline Rate Law

FRANKFORT — Officials from several Kentucky utility companies testified before the Energy Regulatory Commission today concerning implementation problems with the proposed "lifeline" utility rate schedules.

The hearing was prompted by legislature disapproval and lawsuits filed in Franklin County Circuit Court challenging the "lifeline" rate concept, according to ERC chairman Perry R. White Jr.

The "lifeline" concept calls for a basic discount rate for a pre-determined minimum amount of energy needed for space and water heating, lighting, cooking and food refrigeration. The concept calls for a five-month "winter-rate" and a seven-month "summer-rate" which would cover the residential energy needs for a family of four living in a properly insulated 1100-square foot dwelling.

White told the utility company representatives the new rate schedules are "worthy of responsible consideration" and they "should remain imaginative and flexible concerning the concept."

Main implementation problems brought up by the companies included: definition of terms contained in the new schedule such as "fixed cost" and "properly insulated," revenue deficiencies caused by the new rates and the inability of some companies to prepare and formulate the correct rates because they could not get the necessary demographic information.

J.W. Bradley of Kentucky Utilities, in his testimony, warned the commission to use caution before implementation of the new system.

Bradley said New York was one state that had research done and found "lifeline" would be ineffective, so they did not implement it.

He agreed with several other representatives the problem was too broad and complex to be solved by block discounts, as outlined by the new schedules.

The main concept of "lifeline" came under attack from the utility companies also. Frank J. Kemeny of Equitable Gas Company of Pittsburgh, which serves part of eastern Kentucky, said under the system "the low income group is not always the one that used the least amount of energy."

"As a matter of fact," he added, "in many instances they use more than the

Memories Of The '39 Flood Are Clearly Recalled

By KATHY PARTIN
Staff Writer

Old timers in Rowan County may have felt a bit uneasy Wednesday.

Instead of having typical Independence Day weather, there was rain and the chance of thunderstorms.

Forty years ago, late on the night of July 4, the same type of weather preceded a sudden and violent storm that was vividly described in the lead story of the July 6, 1939 issue of The Morehead Independent:

"Death and destruction came to Rowan County early Wednesday morning when a smashing, irresistible wall of water snuffed out the lives of 25 persons, made hundreds homeless and destroyed 2 million dollars worth of property . . .

"Many were caught in their crumbling houses like rats in a trap, others took to the trees. A few were able to swim to safety. Families were separated . . .

"The roar of the torrent, the screams of the doomed and the terror stricken victims from the darkness will be forever remembered by those who witnessed the scene."

"Water on Railroad Street, Morehead's main thoroughfare, varied in depth from four to ten feet at the peak of the flood. Bill McClain, fireman at the State Teachers College, estimated the water rose 10 to 15 feet in less than 30 minutes."

"It was a terrible, horrible time," remembers Mabel Alfrey, who was then supervisor of schools for Rowan County.

Her family, who lived on South Wilson Avenue, then called Fairbanks, was up late that night, as a carnival was in town.

"At about 10:30-11 p.m. it began raining and never stopped all night — there was thunder and lightning."

The Alfreys were used to the streets flooding from heavy rainfall. When a customary phone call to relatives who lived across the railroad tracks (in the flood plain) resulted in no answer, "We knew something was wrong."

In the excitement of hurrying out the doors, Mrs. Alfrey put down her little boy . . . in water that came to her knees! She remembers the water having

"I grabbed my wife and we ran to the door. The force of the water swept us into the torrent and we were sucked into the street. A few seconds later our house swept by and we were unable to do anything for our children. We could hear their cries as they were swept away."

"I was in the water for about 15 minutes," says Mrs. Alfrey, who admits she still gets nervous when it rains heavily.

"That's common for the ones who were in it. The ones who only read about it laugh at you."

Mrs. Alfrey said during the course of events she wrote to her sister giving full details.

Her sister surprised her by presenting her with all the telegrams and letters she had sent.

Another history of sorts in the form of a scrapbook of newspaper clippings kept by Dorothy Holbrook, wife of John Will Holbrook Sr., the owners then and now of Imperial Cleaners.

Located further down Railroad or First Street than it is today, flood waters destroyed everything in the building with the exception of the machinery.

A picture of Mrs. Holbrook staying on watch at the site is reprinted in many newspapers and in Grit magazine.

"We had to guard it night and day. The town was filled with people . . . they said it looked worse than cities devastated by war."

Mrs. Holbrook said that for about six weeks they cleaned the shop, then moved to quarters on Snyder Ave. before moving to their present location.

"We were both born here and young then, so we were not too discouraged. John Will put it back together again."

The calamity left the Holbrooks penniless. As aid went first to persons who were poor (according to the late W.H. Rice, as reported in the Courier-Journal, July 5, 1939, 694 persons received aid and 624 received assistance) the Holbrooks say they made it only with the help of Glenn Lane and Drew Evans, the Methodist Church and the Order of the Eastern Star.

Mrs. Holbrook says that only since 1939 has there been the threat of flood to their business.

"I was frightened when they called us and told us the water was getting up. I had the feeling I couldn't go through it again."

She remembers that on July 4, 1939, her family did not attend the carnival, as there had been a shooting that afternoon. Instead, they went for ice cream with their children, and on their return, it began raining "big drops like a summer shower."

When they were warned that there would be high water, they picked up items from the floor and placed them on the mantle before going upstairs.

"In front of Bishop's drug store, Billie Caudill, wearing only a pair of shorts, dripping blood from his mouth and thigh, cried, 'I've been washed to Kentucky, so you want some news, eh? Well, look at this, I just swim two miles from Clearfield to get here. And I'm going back to help.'" — Stanley K. Iverson, Morehead Independent reporter in an eye witness account.

Among the items were Mr. Holbrook's new shoes.

The flood came all at once, racing the last person up the steps.

The Holbrooks watched from their second floor window as houses floated by. Once a member of the family pointed and said, "I think that's a b-o-d-y," causing little John Holbrook (now a city councilman) to ask, "What's a body?"

Mrs. Holbrook says she didn't think of the security of the home she was in. "We were so excited and it all happened in a flash. We didn't have time to think."

Of course, the water came over the mantle, and Mr. Holbrook's shoes were lost. One was found in the backyard. And the other?

One of the houses that floated by the Holbrooks' belonged to his sister. Originally located across the street from the present location of Ashland Oil station, the house ended its journey on the railroad track and lodged against a water tank.

Holbrook's shoe was found inside. Talk on the streets the next day, says Mrs. Holbrook, was of the number of the dead (headlines varied from 25-50) and of the J. Sparks carnival party — 18 1/2 feet long, that was reported missing. (It was later found on a farm where it had eaten 14 chickens!)

While the town was in a state of shock, some folks had to continue their regular work.

George Jamison, a service man for Kentucky Power and Light, set out immediately after the flood to repair fallen wires.

He worked for two days and nights as "it had to be done, we couldn't take the chance of somebody getting ahold of hot wires."

Jamison says that sightseers cars made for so much dust that he had trouble breathing.

"I made it a point of never going to a disaster area after that."

Robert Anglin, telegraph operator for the railroad, was in Carter County at the time of the flood. As the bridge into Morehead at Gates had washed out, he parked his car and walked across the railroad tracks.

This was no safe matter as the rains had washed away dirt from under the tracks, and the tracks, held up only by t-rails, were actually swinging as he crossed.

Arriving in Morehead, Anglin stopped by the depot. There he found that rain had ruined the telegraph.

The operators had borrowed a "bug" from a local doctor whose hobby was telegraphy.

"When I got there, everybody's hands were worn out from sending telegrams. They asked me to help, so I sent and sent and sent."

He was finally relieved at 11 p.m. "That day over 500 telegrams were sent from the 'mountain town of 2,500.'"

Anglin's sister, Margie Cullet, lived across the railroad and was saved by a leaking roof.

Awakened in the night by water hitting her enamel table top, she went outside to get her dishpan to catch the drip.

There, she saw the water had almost reached their porch. Alerting her husband, they quickly gathered their small children, awakened their neighbor and left in their car, barely making it to high ground in time.

"Do you know Eleanor Queen?" asked Anglin. "She was one of those little children."

Anglin says that vandals had removed the copper plaque that marked the high water line on the freight depot.

The plaque was located on the outside wall that faces Union Grocery.

According to W.E. Crutcher, Morehead Postmaster in 1939 who would later buy The Morehead Independent and the Rowan County News, there was a government survey made following the flood to find out its cause.

While some have said that the high water was the result of three rain clouds merging over the town, the survey concluded that at the present site of the tobacco warehouse, "several fallen trees, homes and outbuildings had formed a dam that broke loose all at one time, bringing a tidal wave of water."

Crutcher says he made the last phone call out of Morehead before the lines went dead.

Operator Goldie Hays, knowing that he had worked for the Associated Press, notified Crutcher.

She connected him with the Louisville office and "as I told them what was happening, the line went dead," Crutcher said.

"It was a case of everybody for themselves," recollects Crutcher, who watched the storm while standing on Bridge Street.

He remembers the rain "coming down as if there coming out of fire hoses or fountains. It was the hardest rain I ever saw."

Many people were saved, he said, by lodging in trees. But many dead bodies were also removed from branches.

The current was so strong that it wrapped an iron rail in a semi-circle about a tree. It also swept families apart, the parents screaming to help-less by-standers. "Please save my children!"

"It was a terrible day," Crutcher said as he recalled a woman standing on the roof of her home, screaming and praying.

Cars were placed at the waters edge, the headlights shining over the never forgotten sights.

As quickly as the waters rose, they receded.

Then rescue work, all volunteer, began.

Governor Keen Johnson declared a state of emergency, the National Guard was on stand-by and airplanes were often seen overhead assessing the situation.

The Kentucky Highway Patrol blocked off the city and water was transported into town in large containers.

Morehead State Normal School opened its facilities to the needy, the health department began giving variety of inoculations and the Red Cross moved in.

"It was a fine hour as far as the residents were concerned," notes Crutcher. "Neighbors opened their homes. Everybody cooperated . . . there was no looting . . . everybody was a policeman."

Two months later a Courier-Journal article would state that much of life in Morehead was back to normal.

MUCH COVERAGE — George Bailey, Courier-Journal photographer, snapped this picture of Mrs. John Will Holbrook as she guarded the remains of the Imperial Cleaners building. A photograph similar to this one appeared in numerous newspapers and Grit magazine.

Food Service Workshop To Be Held In Morehead

By the end of the summer, approximately 1,500 staff members from local school district food service programs will have attended three-day workshops conducted by the Kentucky Department of Education, one of which is set for Morehead.

Redwood Taylor, director of the department's Division of School Food Services, says the local food service directors participate as instructors for the workshops. Other local personnel attending the sessions are cafeteria managers, cooks and bookkeepers.

Topics covered in the workshops include nutrition education, food merchandising, menu planning, school breakfast programs, energy conservation, safety practices and sanitation. Special programs on cost-based accounting and pre-costing of purchases are scheduled for bookkeepers. Management-directed sessions deal with the psychology of management, youth involvement and management, and time and motion studies.

Workshops have already been held in Jefferson, Calloway, Warren and Laurel counties. Upcoming sessions are scheduled at Northern Kentucky State Vocational-Technical School, Covington, July 9-11, and Morehead University, Morehead, July 16-18.

Fire Station Work Delayed

Construction of the Fire Station on the Ky. 32 Interchange has been delayed.

Fire Chief Bill Hankinson said the contractor has been unable to obtain a certain type of gravel that is used on the roof.

Until that portion of the building is finished, interior work cannot begin. Hankinson said he doesn't know when the material will arrive, but estimated that the station could be completed three weeks after the roof is finished.

Career Opportunities For Women To Be Aired

Career opportunities for women who work in state government will be aired this fall when the Department of Personnel hosts five regional meetings around Kentucky.

"These conferences are not about 'liberation,'" said Judith Marlowe of Lexington, special coordinator for the project. "They are about employment opportunities for women who have already chosen to work."

She made the comment in acknowledging that some women may hold reservations toward special women's conferences, identifying them with some of the more controversial issues of the women's movement.

"Both the state and the employee stand to benefit when every employee is encouraged to strive and to receive guidance, recognition and reward for good performance," she said.

The women will receive release time from work to attend the one-day sessions in their region during September and October with the first meeting being held in Frankfort.

A 10-women steering committee, appointed to plan the five meetings, will prepare an evaluation after each session. The data will appraise the effectiveness of the meetings and also be useful in pursuing full equal employment opportunities for women in Kentucky state government.

Women hold 43 percent of the full-time jobs in Kentucky's executive branch, but they receive only 38 percent of the payroll. In addition, women hold only 21 percent of the professional level positions in state government.

Because these statistics indicate women in state government are not being utilized to their fullest capacity, the objectives of the five meetings will be to identify career ladders, problem areas and means of corrective action; develop data for short- and long-term career goals; stress the relationship between productive work and self-esteem; and increase awareness of existing career ladders by analyzing the employment structure of Kentucky state government.

State Personnel Commissioner Addie Stokley said Gov. Julian Carroll has pledged his support to the principles guiding the project.

"His leadership, through his affirmative action plan for state government, has brought about real progress for minorities and women who seek, or who presently hold, jobs with the state," Mrs. Stokley said.

One Injured In Maysville Wreck

MAYSVILLE - A Bracken County man was injured near here in a one vehicle accident, Tuesday evening about 8:20 p.m.
The driver and only occupant of the vehicle, Milton G. Hedges, 17, of Dover, Ky., was taken to Haywood Hospital, suffering from what police termed "multiple injuries."
State police said Hedges was traveling west on Slack Pike when he apparently lost control of his vehicle and struck a tree.
The accident occurred about three-and-one-half miles west of Maysville, in Mason County.
The accident was investigated by state police Trooper Tom Hughes.

Apprenticeship Program Will Aim Toward Women

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) - The Kentucky State Apprenticeship Training Council has adopted a modified state plan for equal employment opportunity in apprenticeship programs aimed at channeling women into traditionally, maledominated trades and crafts.
The action apparently averts the council's possible loss of federal recognition as the sole registration body for participating contractors in the state.
State Labor Department representative Jerry Hammond, who presented the revised plan, said the group has previously opposed it because federal regulations required goals or quotas for admitting women to the program.
"Our objection is not to equal opportunity, but rather to the method (quotas by which equal opportunity is to be insured)," he said.
Hammond said the council members

ASHLAND, Ky. (UPI) - Police investigated Wednesday a strike-related outburst that left six persons injured in the Ashland area when towboat workers and striking employees at Allied Chemical's Smet Solvay plant on the Ohio River clashed. While details of the violence remained sketchy, police were also probing another incident in which two of the plant guards were forced at gunpoint into a boat, after one of the guards had been shot and wounded. The guards were later taken to Lawrence County, Ohio, and the wounded man was transported to St. Mary's Hospital in Huntington, W. Va.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (UPI) - The legal doors have been opened for General Motors to join in the Copvete assembly line in Bowling Green. A lengthy court battle between the Chrysler Corp. and the Fedders Corp. cleared the way for the large building GM wanted to occupy in limbo ended when Chrysler dismissed its appeal in a suit Tuesday. GM plans to hire about 1,600 workers at the new facility that will generate millions of dollars into Kentucky's economy. GM still has to clear a few environmental obstacles before it can officially announce a move from St. Louis to Bowling Green.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) - Robert P. Clark, 57, chief news executive of The Courier-Journal and Louisville Times resigned Tuesday in a dispute with the publisher over a new assignment. Clark resigned as executive editor rather than take the new post of associate editor of the dailies. Bingham said he hopes to name a replacement in early August. He said Clark's successor may or may not come from within the present news staff.

feared that under the quota system entrance into the programs might not be under the same scrutiny as that now being used. However, the revised plan was being presented because to delay its implementation would adversely affect the apprenticeship program.
According to Hammond, the plan is essentially the same as the state presently has. Females will not be added to the language of the plan along with minorities, and a committee will be established to review programs for women's equal opportunities.

Plan A Quick And Easy Summer Grill Party

Give an outdoor grill party this summer. It's a fine way to entertain with a little. Serve Bacardi Roast Pork, followed by a refreshing Orange Rum Sherbet. Sonora Cocktails will get the party off to a roaring start.

BACARDI ROAST LOIN OF PORK

- 1 cup orange juice
- 1/2 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
- 1/4 cup Bacardi dark rum (80 proof)
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 medium clove garlic, minced
- 2 teaspoons ground ginger
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 pork loin (about 4 1/2 pounds)
- Hot cooked rice
- Halved green grapes

In saucepan, combine all ingredients, except pork. Cook, stirring until thickened and smooth.
Score fat on pork at 1-inch intervals. Place on grill or fasten to spit. Place drip pan under pork. Grill about 2 1/2 hours, basting with sauce during last 45 minutes of roasting. Serve with rice decorated with grape clusters. Makes about 6 servings.

ORANGE RUM SHERBET

- 1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
- 3/4 cup water
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1 cup orange juice
- 1 1/2 tablespoons lime juice
- 1/2 cup Bacardi dark rum (80 proof)
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- Dash salt
- 1 cup orange sections, cut-up
- Mint sprigs

Sprinkle gelatin over 1/4 cup water to soften. In saucepan, combine remaining 1/2 cup water and gelatin. Stir well. In shaker, combine all remaining ingredients. Shake 1 minute. Add gelatin and shake 2 minutes.

Just A Dash
If your gravy came out too salty, just add a dash of brown sugar. It won't sweeten the gravy or spoil the flavor, but it will diminish the salty taste.

Curried Soup
Try this Indian Chilled Curried Potato Soup: Make it from mashed potatoes and season with onion powder, curry powder, black pepper, celery salt and freeze dried chives. Chill and stir in a light cream.

Swiss Snack
Swiss "Tecklerli" are spiced honey bars which smell of cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves. They're extra crunchy with sliced almonds.

Good Try
After trying everything else, the creator sent a letter with a picture of his little daughter enclosed. The caption read, "The reason I need the money."
The next week a photo of a beautiful girl in a bathing suit appeared on the man's desk, also with a caption: "The reason I can't pay!"

State Highway Death Up 20 From Last Year

Fourth of July holiday traffic accidents in Perry, Trigg, and Meade counties of Kentucky claimed three lives, including an infant, State Police said Wednesday.

The deaths pushed the state toll for the year to 408 fatalities, 10 more than recorded for a corresponding period last year.

The fatalities:
Two-month-old Cara Woodruff of Princeton died Tuesday night in a two-car collision on Kentucky 128 in Trigg County, 10 miles east of Cadiz.
A Perry County boy, Timmy Combs, 12, of Tribes was killed Tuesday night in a two-car accident on Kentucky 1002 in Powell County, four miles west of Clay City.
Daniel Martin Lucas, 25, of Fort Knox, was killed Tuesday night in a two-car mishap on U.S. 31W in the Meade County city of Muldraugh.
Last year, 17 people died and 396 were injured in the 1,668 accidents reported on Kentucky roads during the long Fourth of July weekend.

This year the holiday officially began at 6 p.m. EDT Tuesday and ends midnight Wednesday.

The shortness of this year's holiday coupled with the gasoline availability, keeping many motorists off the roads, helped hold the toll down.
Also last year, holiday celebrations turned to tragedy for scores of Kentuckians as defective fireworks exploded prematurely, resulting in the loss of fingers, hands and eyes.
State officials, saying last year's misfortunes need not be repeated Wednesday, had been working with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission to ensure legal fireworks were used properly.

Kentucky law permits only the sale and use of fireworks that contain less than one-fourth grain of explosive mixture. This limited category includes sparklers, "snakes," smoke bombs and similar devices.
The Department for Human Resources' consumer protection branch was prepared to follow up on complaints about defective fireworks.

The only woman who was with one of another was Abigail Smith Adams.

IT'S A FACT!

It's a fact that the United States is now importing 9,400,000 barrels of oil per day at an annual cost of more than $50,000,000,000.

It's a fact that in an effort to help remedy that, J. Hugh Ledtke, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Pennaoli has pledged that his company will use any additional net income it receives from oil decontrol to look for more domestic oil and gas.

Kentucky Livestock Report

Hog Inventory

The number of hogs and pigs on Kentucky farms on June 1 numbered 1,270,000 head, an increase of 27 percent from a year earlier according to the Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. This is the largest June 1 inventory since the 1,300,000 hogs and pigs on farms in 1974. The current estimate is up 7 percent from the revised March 1 inventory of 1,190,000 head and continues the steady increase in inventory that started in the latter half of 1978. The June 1 breeding inventory for Kentucky was 245,000 and the market inventory was 1,025,000 head. Breeding stock was up 29 percent from a year earlier and market hogs were up 27 percent. June 1 breeding stock is the largest for June 1st since 1971 and the June 1 market inventory is the largest number since 1974.

Hog and pig inventory for the Nation totaled 64.9 million head compared with 55.1 million last year and 54.5 million in 1977. Breeding inventory, at 10.4 million, was up 17 percent from a year earlier. Market hogs at 54.5 million were up 18 percent.

Pig Crop

An estimated 88,000 sows and gilts farrowed on Kentucky farms during the March-May quarter, up 23,000 from a year earlier. This is the largest aged 6.96, up .10 from a year earlier. The pig crop for March-May totaled 607,000 pigs, up 37 percent from the same quarter last year. The December-May pig crop for Kentucky totaled 1,034,000 pigs, up 32 percent from 1978. This is the largest December-May pig crop since the 1,080,000 pigs produced in 1973-1974.

December 1978-May 31, 1979 farrowings for the Nation totaled 7.2 million, an increase of 1.183,000 head from the same period a year earlier.

Pigs saved per litter averaged 7.05 compared with 7.04 last year. The U.S. pig crop totaled 50.6 million, 19 percent more than for the same 6-month period last year.

Farrowing Intentions

Kentucky farmers indicated June-August farrowings would total 90,000 sows and gilts compared with 75,000 a year earlier. Intentions for September-November are also 90,000, up 27,000 sows and gilts from 1978. For the 6-month period, June-November, farrowings are expected to be up 30 percent from last year.

U.S. producers intend to farrow 7.4 million sows during the June-November period, an increase of 16 percent from last year.

Local Crops Good Despite Excess Rain

By BOB CRISWELL
Staff Writer

Despite unusually heavy June rainfall, area crops and gardens are beginning to look good, according to County Extension Agent Adrian Razor.

Razor said that Rowan County received between seven and nine inches of rainfall during a four-day period (June 25 and June 29). This compares with an annual average rainfall of about 45 inches in the county, Razor added.

On a recent inspection tour of local gardens, Razor said he found some beans and vegetables turning yellow from too much moisture but, as a whole, most gardens seem to be doing well.

He added that tobacco had been affected by the excess rainfall too, with some of it turning yellow. But Razor said the incidents of yellow tobacco were scattered and that it did not affect a major percentage of the crop.

Corn crops in the county are also suffering from the excess moisture. Razor said he found some examples of yellow corn but that most of the corn failure came in the early spring when farmers had trouble with the corn seed rotting in the ground before it had a chance to germinate and grow.

Razor termed the general county-wide crop picture good because there had been so few incidents of disease and insect damage.

As to specific crops, pepper looks good, Razor said, and hay should be a real good crop. He added the high volume of rainfall had stimulated hay growth with the only problem being getting the hay in the barn without it being rained on.

Problems with insect damage have been few but Razor said that he has seen some damage from Japanese Beetles in the Dry Ridge and Christy Creek areas. He did advise area gardeners to be on the look out for the insects and to begin setting their traps for the beetles.

As the crops will soon be ready for sale, Razor said that the Farmers Market is expected to open about the middle of July. It will be located in the same place as last year, in the lot adjacent to Cowden's Factory on West Main Street, Morehead.

Also for gardeners, the annual garden contest being sponsored by the Extension Service is in full swing with over 75 area gardens now being judged. Razor said that the popularity of the contest has doubled over the past three years. With a first prize of $60, the contest was started in order to increase the interest in growing a home food supply.

And, in spite of the fact that Rowan County does not have as many cattle as it once did, Razor says that cattle are showing good gains. The heavy rainfall has stimulated the growth of grass in area pasture land, allowing the grass-fed cattle to do well.

AGRICULTURAL NEWS: Soil moisture is generally adequate across the Commonwealth with only a few counties in Western Kentucky and northern areas of Central Kentucky reporting shortages. Statewide county agents and farmers said soil moisture was 12 percent short, 83 percent adequate and 5 percent surplus. Summer showers have been variable, and localities exist with excessive moisture as well as localities with very dry fields. It was a good week for harvesting wheat and planting double-crop soybeans in the West, and hay harvest in Central and Eastern areas. Farmers averaged 4.5 days in the field. Diesel fuel and gasoline supplies tightened at the end of June. 3rd and 4th of the month nearly half the reporters indicated gasoline for farm work in tight supply. About 4 in 10 reports indicated diesel fuel in tight supply. Several reports indicated a deficit but hoping supplies would improve with the coming of the July allocation.

Corn averaged 33 inches in height on July 1 with about 5 percent beginning to tassel. By this date in 1978, 12 percent of the acreage was tasseling; and the 5-year average is 16 percent. Condition of corn is mostly good; nearly half of the corn acreage has been side-dressed or top-dressed with nitrogen fertilizer.

Emerald soybeans averaged 9 inches in height. Spotty stands are a problem in dry localities and chemical damage is apparent on some beans. Planting of double-crop beans was in full swing and will continue for at least another week. A general rain would be welcome in most areas of the West, especially after wheat harvest is finished and soybeans are in the ground.

Burley tobacco growth is a little ahead of last year but slightly behind the 5-year average. Half the fields are 6-12 inches in height with only about one fourth of the fields over 12 inches. Most early reports indicate burley is off to a satisfactory start with only the usual disease and insect problems. Stands are spotty in certain counties but generally there has been little resetting.

Winter wheat harvest is nearly finished in some counties and about two-thirds complete statewide. Harvesting progress is slightly ahead of last year but a little later than normal. Yield reports are mostly good with several farmers reporting output a little better than earlier anticipated. Second cutting of alfalfa hay is 40 percent complete and this past week was one of the better of the haying season. Frank Street from Henderson says peach harvest on his farm will start July 16.

Weather Week Ending P.M. Sunday, July 1, 1979 Last week the weather over Kentucky was 5 degrees cooler than normal for late June. Precipitation amounts varied greatly, with none in extreme West, to up to 2 inches elsewhere.

If your birthday's in July...

The ruby—gem of glowing contentment and rosy peace

July's birthstone, the ruby, signifies contentment—and if you own one of these rare and beautiful stones, you have good reason to be content.

Since the dawn of history, the ruby has symbolized value and wealth. "Who can find a virtuous woman," the Bible asks, "for her price is far above rubies?"

In ancient China, according to the Jewelry Industry Council, only the highest ranking officials were permitted to wear these precious gems.

In India, the ruby was prized so highly that it was called Leader of Gems and King of Precious Stones. It was said that anyone who offered rubies to the Hindu god Krishna would be reincarnated as an emperor.

The ruby is a particularly appropriate birthstone for salty July, because its red fire has always symbolized the sun's warmth. This connection with the sun may have been one reason why the ancients called the ruby "the stone of life," and endowed it with all kinds of healing powers.

For thousands of years, the blood-red gem was believed to preserve life and health. People thought that rubies could cure every ill from hemorrhages and skin disorders to melancholy and bad dreams.

Some soldiers swore that a ruby necklace could protect its wearer from sword, spear or gunshot wounds. According to a Hindu tradition, the owner of a ruby could live fearlessly in the midst of his enemies. He could also rest easy in the midst of any storm, for the ruby would protect his house from damage. No wonder rubies were said to bring peace-of-mind to their lucky owners!

This lovely gem is one of Nature's most durable creations, secondly only to the diamond in hardness. Chemically, rubies and sapphires are almost identical; both are crystallized corundum, differing only in color. For some reason, red corundum—the ruby—is much scarcer than blue.

Lake sapphires, rubies occasionally occur in star form. When a starred gem is cut in pieces, each piece has a six-rayed star. The rays symbolize Faith, Hope, Charity, Health, Wealth, and Happiness. Orientals say the star ruby is particularly lucky because a good spirit dwells within the stone.

Rubies come in a range of red hues, from pinkish to deep crimson. The lightest stones are generally found in Sri Lanka (Ceylon), the darkest in Thailand. Most coveted and costly of all are the scarce "pigeon blood" rubies from Burma.

Truly a unique gem, rubies are prized by both men and women for their rich red glow. Many men like the rugged look of a dome-shaped star ruby in a massive gold or platinum ring, say Council experts.

An old superstition states that rubies will lose their luster if ignored. But this theory has rarely, if ever, been tested, for who could possibly ignore these radiant gems?

Morgan County Has Had Woman's Club Since 1919

BY HELEN PRICE STACY

WEST LIBERTY — The West Liberty Kiwanis Club, the Lions Club and other men's organizations have done truly outstanding work in West Liberty, particularly in the area of other recreation programs. It would take more than a page of story and pictures to tell their contributions to town and county.

So, in less space but with equal importance, it must be said that Morgan County has had a woman's club since (at least) 1919.

It would not be out of line to recognize the part clubwomen have had in proposing good things for the area, including a rest room for county women who had come to West Liberty to shop, attend court or to visit.

To speak of women as being liberated has been overdone to the point that it's almost a trite expression, but as far back as 1919 West Liberty women had no fear to step in where angels feared to tread.

Miss Josephine McGuire was elected secretary-treasurer of the club in 1919. She never married, and had to answer only to herself — or perhaps her sister Florence, the lawyer. Both answered to, or consulted frequently, their lawyer-father, W. W. McGuire.

These sisters were afraid of no one and no thing, and both were about as tall as an ant. They were well weighed about as much. They were and have remained "precious" in the eyes of townspeople and the congregation at First Christian Church where they were members.

The club first met in October at the home of Mrs. L. V. Redwine. "It was voted" began the minutes, "that each member pay the sum of 75 cents at once to Miss J. McGuire." It also was voted to publish an outline in the local paper, calling attention to the public that "we should have better protection in the way of fire drills."

It was outlined that "each household be provided with a bucket of water placed in a convenient place, each to carry a bucket of water to the fire and help extinguish it."

Women firemen! Yes. Each member at the time spoke her willingness to keep a bucket of water and help fight the fire.

Mrs. John Rebel (Amelia Seitz) Kendall applied herself a considerable time to visit the local school and interview Prof. Wilson about fire drills in the school and fire escapes.

Kendall remembered as a school, jolly and proud woman, was club president and to round out the fire-preparedness project of the club named a committee to visit the Town Board at their next meeting and ask that they provide a suitable ladder to use in the fire fighting.

What exasperated the women about as much as the lack of proper fire-fighting equipment was the lack of a restroom in town for females.

"Several of the women spoke of the wonderful good it would have done if it had been possible to establish a restroom before court, so many women from the county came to court and rely suffered, there being no place for them to go."

Why didn't the women who had to go to store or to court stop at the home of a friend? The minutes explained why. "The stores were crowded with men... and they did not feel like sponging on their friends in town."

But the restroom project went down in defeat. According to later minutes, there were plenty of supplies like paper, but no one would volunteer a room. "The committee in charge was dismissed."

Membership in that enterprising group included names still familiar in West Liberty. There was Mrs. J.P. (Fish) Orney whose daughter Clara was a town belle. There was Miss Jennie Phillips, red-haired to the end and always a popular "old maid" whose presence added not only culture but also a guarantee of fun.

There was Mrs. Mattie Oakley who in later years sat in her yard 'nother Potter (Funeral Home), brushed and combed her chestnut color, waist-length hair. There was "Miss Nancy," called that due to her school teaching; she, Nancy P. Turner was a skilled poet and writer as well as Mrs. Henry Cole (Mag Cole) was a gracious, hospitable woman who helped the fame of the old Cole Hotel.

Each member is a story in herself. Others who paid their 75 cents were Mrs. Redwine, Mrs. J.H. Sebastian, Mrs. Albert Hales, Mrs. C.C. Maxey, Mrs. A.P. Gullet, Miss M. Johnson, Miss McGuire, Mrs. W.W. McGuire, Mrs. Kendall and her sister Sarah Seitz, Mrs. Hacker, Miss Combs (an outstanding photographer), Miss Whittinghill, Miss Mot Walsh, Miss Lulu Walsh, Addie Walsh, Mrs. T.H. Caskey, Mrs. Charles Franklin, Mrs. D.R. Keeton, Mrs. J.B. Phipps, Mrs. Nettie N. Carter, Mrs. A.O. Allison, Mrs. Genoa Archibald.

The group held meeting at the Christian Church, prepared a reading room there and provided for a community Christmas tree at the Methodist Church lot.

"One meeting was held without a program. Meeting postponed due to the inclemency of weather, but refreshments of carrot pudding were served as part of the program on home economics that would not keep over till the next meeting."

All members were in their prime, seeing needs in their community and acting on them. All are gone now, but their efforts, their lives and their contributions remains memories. As does the project of a rest room. Some time later, a room was found for one, supplies were delivered and every one was happy.

The Way To Nashville Is A Good Way To Beat Soaring Costs Of Gasoline

By JOHN HOWERTON

Once the late country music star, Lester Flatt, was driving through Kentucky and picked up a young hitchhiker carrying a battered flat-top guitar. The boy got into the car and asked nervously, "How do you get to Nashville?" Lester smiled, "You gotta practice son; it takes a lotta practice."

In late June of this year, about 80 country music fans enjoyed themselves finding another way to get to Nashville. My wife and I were among them. We went with Zeke and Doris Mullins of Portsmouth, guides for Greyhound World Tours, Inc.

Zeke and Doris have been conducting these tours for more than five years, and the tours are gaining rapidly in popularity. Zeke is a well-known — and probably the best-loved disc jockey in the area. He has been the anchor man for Radio Station WPAJ-AM-FM for about 22 years.

"Howdy, folks" Zeke always starts the day with, "Howdy, folks, this is your ole corn bread-eatin', buttermilk-drinkin' buddy way down in the country, where the corn cobs tall and every body sez, 'You Ah!', where the taters grow big, the little girls pretty, the little boys strong, and the mud is over your shoetops when you go out to slop the hogs and feed the dogs."

Zeke has made a career out of sending the best of country music into homes and automobiles of many people on both sides of the Ohio River. Ask anyone within a 60-mile radius of Portsmouth and the chances are they have heard Zeke Mullins on radio.

Trips Carefully Planned

Zeke and Doris carefully plan the trips to Nashville. Yet, aboard the tour bus the atmosphere is always relaxed. Getting from South Shore, to Portsmouth was the most complicated part of our trip. We rode a pickup truck to the Kentucky side of the river, caught the 4:30 a.m. trip of the Gateway Clipper passenger ferry to the Ohio side, then took an auto to the bus station in Portsmouth. At this point we handed our worries to Don Brooks and Omar Gast, our courteous bus drivers.

By 6 a.m. the buses were loaded and we were off to Nashville. We toured the Ohio side of the river, crossed the Maysville bridge and headed for Lexington. Zeke presented a running account of points of interest along the way.

Bluegrass country lies between Maysville, Ky., and Elizabethtown,

Ky., and is absolutely beautiful in the spring. We lunched at Cave City, Ky., and headed south on Interstate Route 65 toward Tennessee. At Henderson, Tenn., we stopped and looked at the Johnny and June Cash home and the museum they've established there!

We arrived in Nashville early enough to visit an exact reproduction of the famous Greek Parthenon, complete with replicas of classic Greek sculptures and art treasures.

Afterwards we went to the Country Music Hall of Fame where we had plenty of time to learn about the great country music stars of the past and present. Finally, we went to our first class motel which was reserved and included in the price of the tour.

Visit "Opryland"

Early Saturday morning we went to Opryland U.S.A., a 400-acre complex designed to be "The Home of American Music." The park is divided into entertainment areas, combined with live musical shows, natural animal habitats, restaurants, gift shops, and sensational thrill rides. At Opryland we enjoyed some of the best entertainers in the business, mostly young people, many of whom will be the country music star of tomorrow.

Grand Ole Opry

Naturally, we went to the Grand Old Opry on Saturday night with about 4,000 other country music fans and enjoyed a good show. We got back to the motel after midnight and a short sleep later it was Sunday morning, time for breakfast and a visit to "The Upper Room" for devotional services. We next toured downtown Nashville and visited the old Ryman Auditorium, home of the Grand Ole Opry from 1943 to 1974. We also toured the elegant suburbs of Nashville and saw the homes of such stars as the late Tex Ritter, and Minnie Pearl.

We left Nashville around noon Sunday and returned to Portsmouth by the reverse route, arriving about 9 p.m. Finding our way back to South Shore was enjoyable because we had something to talk about.

Gasoline Stations Closed

Along the highways between Nashville and Portsmouth I noticed that every gasoline station was closed. I felt secure in the big bus with 40 other people and 80 gallons of fuel. It doesn't take a genius to realize that Americans will solve their energy crisis one way or the other, and one way to help is to vacation by bus whenever possible.

About a century ago, it was not uncommon to see a flock of passenger pigeons 200 miles long, which included an estimated two billion of the birds. The breed is now totally extinct.

Facing SALT Failure

If President Carter did not know it before he went to Vienna to sign the SALT II treaty, he now knows both the treaty and his administration's prestige are in jeopardy because of that agreement. If a vote were taken in the Senate today, not only would the treaty not pass by the required two-thirds, it is doubtful it would garner even a simple majority.

The fate of the treaty was uncertain at best at the time it was signed. But the repeated threats by the Russians to scuttle the bilateral agreement if the Senate did not accept it as written, leading to the outright opposition of Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, dooms the treaty.

As if the situation were not serious enough, from the administration's point of view, the Senate has yet to take testimony from the members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. While none of the top military leaders is expected to oppose his commander in chief before the Senate, all are known to have reservations about the treaty's provisions. Their lack of enthusiasm should become apparent during the hearings.

What brought the administration to this low point in foreign policy initiatives were two factors, both born of inexperience: A soft negotiating attitude, which led to an all-or-nothing attitude on the part of the Russians, and failure to invite participation by key senators and thus create goodwill within that body.

If the Russians remain adamant about not considering amendments, Jimmy Carter faces an almost impossible task in pulling this chestnut out of the fire.

Conservative Assessment

President Carter once said the world faced the "moral equivalent of war" in its energy problems. The continuing actions of the OPEC oil cartel have transformed that ignored warning into the economic equivalency of war.

Make no mistake. The 50 percent inflation in oil prices by OPEC in the last six months is going to have a serious economic impact on both the industrial and developing nations. That it already is having a serious impact in the United States is obvious to anyone who drives a car.

The White House may be very conservative in its estimate that OPEC's latest price hikes will add two percent to the U.S. inflation rate and subtract two percent from the nation's rate of growth.

System of Incentive

Studies of the American system show that the basic factor in its success is free competition. Competition in this country is not entirely free. The struggle against bureaucracy and monopoly is never-ending.

But competition in the United States is freer than in other parts of the world. People, corporations, industries and geographic areas compete, subject only to an assortment of government controls, most of which were imposed in the last 30 years.

Other countries have never known anything resembling the American system. While America was protecting competition and restricting monopoly, many other nations legalized monopoly and restricted competition.

In nations that have turned to socialism the trend is to give the state a monopoly in every field. Where socialism does not prevail, many countries regulate trade by associations or cartels which have government sanction. That, in effect, is monopoly.

People work and earn according to government rules. Freedom is suppressed, not as buoyant as in America. The effect upon the human spirit is crushing.

That must be the explanation, since many other countries have vast resources but have not developed them. The incentive of individual reward was not there to spur people on. A government controlled operation is notoriously bungling and inept. Only those free to do and dare for personal reward have the high incentive to accomplish things.

That is the essence of the American system.

Food Leverage

Opponents of the idea of using food as a weapon against the world oil monopolists like to argue that such a plan might backfire. Not necessarily.

The Soviet Union, among others, once again is buying high stocks of grain from the West. Poor weather conditions here given as the reason. The major and sudden Russian grain purchases are depleting world surpluses and driving up the price of grains and other foods.

Russia is one of the world's major oil producers, although until now it has exported little. With four nations — the United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina — accounting for 90 percent of the world's grain exports, even a mediocre trade negotiator ought to be able to tap into the Russian oil pipeline. Food, after all, still is more basic than oil.

S. C. Van Curon

Agree Or Not . . .

By S.C. VAN CURON

FRANKFORT — The Appropriations and Revenue Committee took another important step toward legislative independence last week when chairman Joe Clark announced it will present a state budget during the 1980 legislative session.

While the state Constitution requires that the governor present an executive budget, there is no reason why the legislature cannot submit one as a guideline for the membership.

The legislature has the power to amend the budget presented by the governor. The new governor takes office in December and must present his budget to the legislature that convenes the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January. The budget under a new governor is usually presented in February. Thus, there is less than two months for the new governor to prepare a budget.

True, departments of state government are now beginning to compile their budget requests to present to the governor, and the Revenue Department is continually preparing income estimates. But this does not give the legislature sufficient time to study and evaluate the executive budget when it is presented to them.

The legislature has an interim committee studying income and expenditures, and is trying to get a better understanding of fiscal affairs.

The one problem the A & R committee faces is that there is no law requiring the various departments of government to submit their requests to the legislative committee.

One of the first orders of business of the 1980 legislative session should be introduction of a bill requiring the various departments of state government to submit the same information to the legislature that they submit to the governor in their budget requests. Then, the A & R committee will be in a position to explain the budget to other legislative members.

Another facet Clarke and his committee are investigating is the vast amount of money spent by the Carroll administration on personal service contracts, more than $40 million, enumerated.

Clarke thinks this figure is too high and that some of this work at least should be done by staff members of the various departments.

Lawyers, architects and engineers and other services are procured under personal service contracts. Some legislators have been critical of the Carroll administration on this score.

At the end of the 1976 session of the General Assembly, Senator Mike Moloney, D-Lexington, said from the Senate floor in criticizing personal service contracts that it was used as a device "to fill up the barrel for Julian Carroll." Moloney believes the system has been abused as a device for political patronage.

A & R is also taking a serious look at the capital construction fund. Clarke said there should be more control over this fund. Under present procedures a lump sum is usually appropriated in the governor's executive budget. The governor then, with the consent of the buildings commission, can allocate the funds for specific projects, some which are not approved by the legislature.

Clarke's thinking is that the legislature should have more control over this money.

The legislature just doesn't have sufficient time to study the budget after the governor presents it. In the past few sessions, efforts have been made to get a better understanding, and some minor changes have been made. However, on the whole, the governor's budget breezes through the process with little discussion.

If the A & R presents a budget in the 1980 session, there should be more understanding of it by the legislature as well as the public.

Sheltowe Trace Opens

By JOD NEACE

Daniel Boone enthusiasts can now hike a trail that passes through some of the Kentucky land Boone explored in the late 1700s. Sheltowe Trace, a national recreation trail, was recently dedicated and named in Boone's honor.

Sheltowe was Boone's Indian name. Meaning "Big Turtle," the name was given to Boone by Shawnee Chief Blackfish, who adopted Boone into the tribe after capturing him near the Licking River.

The Sheltowe Trace is the 100th national recreation trail in the national forest system. It is approximately 254 miles long, running from north to south through 11 eastern Kentucky counties. It passes through deep canyons, along narrow ridgetops, rivers and lakes, and through areas of strikingly beautiful rimrock cliff country where rock arches or natural bridges abound and where a great variety of flowers, shrubs and trees are to be found.

ches or natural bridges abound and where a great variety of flowers, shrubs and trees are to be found.

The Jenny Wiley Trail in the northern part of Kentucky connects with the trace near Morehead, Ky. Going south, the trace extends a short distance into Tennessee, where it connects with the John Muir Trail in Pickett State Park.

Verne Orndorff, the forest ranger who mapped it, said the trail is constructed so that the hiker can have occasional contact with the outside world . . . and so that any part of it can be hiked. A hiker does not have to walk the whole trail; he can hike short distances." Orndorff said some of the sections will at first be detoured over country roads. "However, the trail will eventually be moved from the road."

Although the trail is open, "there is lots of work that needs to be done on it," said Orndorff. "We would welcome volunteer groups . . . It is just as much fun to work on the trail as it is to hike it."

Camping is permitted on government land except as signed otherwise, Orndorff said. Only hiking is permitted where the trail goes across private property, and, it is recommended that hikers do not build fires on private property.

The Sheltowe Trace is expected to be used for a wide variety of purposes, including day hikes, picnicking and camping, excursions, horseback riding, and driving off-road vehicles where such use is appropriate on certain sections of the trail. Users of the trail will find many recreation facilities near, such as campgrounds, picnic areas, boating facilities, historical sites and a swimming beach.

MOREHEAD LANDMARK to be torn down. This house located at 234 East Main Street is being torn down. Mr. Earl S. Young who used to live in the house said members of his family lived in the house from 1828 until the death of his late father in 1972. Young added the house is at least a hundred years old and it is rumored that it almost never stayed a night in the house in the late 1800's when it was used as a waystation by people passing through Morehead on horseback. The house is owned by Earl Young.
