1979 Was a Year Of Change, Controversy

A Two-Part Review

1979 was a year of change, a year of growth for Morehead and Rowan County. Major government projects were completed, new businesses were opened and others were expanded.

For the most part, at least as far as government goes, it was a year of controversy. If any individual influenced news or shaped events during 1979, it was Rowan County Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery.

From the first of the year, when a county Grand Jury criticized the judge for the use of county gravel and equipment, to the end of the year when he stubbornly refused to recognize the formation of an independent board of directors for the Morehead-Rowan County ambulance service, Flannery was in the news.

For city government, it was also a year of controversy as Mayor Crayton Jackson and some members of the City Council differed on several issues. Perhaps the biggest result of those conflicts was the change in faces at City Hall.

Many of the resignations which came throughout the year were unrelated to any government conflicts but some were. During 1979, we saw a new city administrator hired and then resign; a new city clerk hired and then resign; a fire chief resign; a police chief resign; a sergeant resign; a public works director resign; an assistant city clerk resign; and a city councilman resign. In all, 10 people left their posts during the year.

But again, 1979 will be remembered most for the progress. A new shopping center opened downtown; a new sewage system progressed for the city; KY 28 north of Morehead was widened and improved; St. Claire Medical Center moved closer to completion of its expansion; a city water improvement project was initiated; the construction of a new high school was assured by the passage of a utility tax; and many other projects were completed or announced.

As you read through this review, you will find some promises that were made and not kept; projects that were started and forgotten; but you will also find many other promises that were kept and many other projects which were finished.

The review was written just as the events happened during each month without comment about them.

Winter Salt Supplies Adequate For Now

To this point, Morehead and Rowan County have not experienced the extremely cold and snowy weather of the past three winters but if they do, the outlook for salt and materials to remove the snow is pretty good. City Administrator Dave Evans said that city salt supplies were "in pretty good shape."

"We have about 70 tons in storage," he said, "and I think that should be sufficient for the winter." If that supply does run out, Evans said there would be no more because of a nation-wide shortage of salt.

Kentucky Department of Transportation District Engineer James Brown, noting that the state has 100,000 tons of salt, said that supplies were adequate for now but he would not promise any shortages, if an extended spell of bad weather set in.

"I've stood much more heavily than we've ever been," said Brown.

Ponderosa Manager Killed

Luther G. "Luke" Frazier, 26, native of Floyd County and executive manager of Ponderosa Steak House in Morehead, was killed 4 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 27 when the car in which he was riding left KY 68 six miles east of Wilmore and slammed into a tree.

Frazier, a Morehead State University student from Price, was dead on arrival at a Lexington hospital, according to Kentucky State Police.

Also killed was Gordon Caudill, 40, of Lexington. State police said Caudill was driving the car at an apparent high rate of speed.

Funeral services were Sunday at the Little Nancy Regular Baptist Church. Burial was in the Frazier Family Cemetery at Price. Hall Brothers Funeral Home in Martin was in charge of arrangements.

Frazier was born May 26, 1953, a son of John C. and Thea M. Hall Frazier of Lexington. (Continued on page two)

Tax Bills Higher Today

Evans says that she has collected more than $25,000 or about 75 percent of the total due the city. She adds that several people have been paying delinquent tax bills from previous years as a result of a recent newspaper article which said that the city was going to make an effort to collect those bills.

Sheriff Nickell says that he will still accept tax payments with the discount after today, but only if the envelope is postmarked prior to Jan. 1.

County tax bills will be due for the face value until Jan. 31. After that a two percent penalty will be added for one month and then the bills are considered delinquent, and the eight percent interest penalty will be assessed.

A New Signal

Harold Davis, an OVC employee from Mt. Sterling, helps direct part of the new earth station for Morehead Cable TV into place. The installation means that local viewers soon will be able to watch Channel 17 from Atlanta rather than Channel 11 from Cincinnati, which has a poor signal. That switch could occur within the next few days. In addition, the cable company will also add pay television to its system. Peter Tinkham, OVC marketing director, said that Showtime will be available Jan. 21 in Morehead. (Staff photo by Joe Lillib)

Cable Improvements Begin

Sometime this week subscribers to Morehead cable television should have access to another channel with the installation last Thursday of a new earth station on the Morehead State University Campus.

Later in the month, the earth station will also make it possible for viewers to purchase Showtime, a pay television network, which shows first run movies.

Peter Tinkham, marketing director for OVC Telecommunications, said the $35,000 station will allow the company to replace Channel 11 out of Cincinnati with Channel 17 (WTBS) from Atlanta.

Pictorial Review To Be Published

A "Pictorial Review" of the past year in Morehead and Rowan County has been scheduled for publication Friday, Jan. 25 in The Morehead News.

The tabloid supplement will include as many of the pictures that were published during 1979 in The Morehead News as is possible.

Photos will be selected at random by members of the newspaper staff.

The "Pictorial Review" was published for the first time last year. The 68-page tabloid contained more Despise Utility Tax . . .

When they receive their utility bills this month, county residents will notice a three percent increase as the School Board's utility tax takes effect.

But telephone bills will be only two percent higher as the federal excise tax on communications is reduced from three to two percent.

The federal tax is applied to local service, long distance service and WATS lines. The School Board's tax is applied to all utilities sold in the county.

Company spokesmen said that the earth station installation was still in the test stages but as soon as minor electrical problems are corrected and final approval from company headquarters in Richmond is received, Channel 17 should be on the air. Tinkham would not give a firm date for when the station would be turned on, however, chances are good it might be turned on this week.

Last Friday, Tinkham said that Jan. 21 was set as a tentative date for Showtime to be available to subscribers with Channel 17 (WTBS) from Atlanta.

Hundreds of newspaper subscribers kept the special section for reference in future years.

As it was last year, the "Pictorial Review" will be supported with advertising from local merchants and individuals.

As of today, those people who have delayed paying their tax bills to the city and the county will find that they are somewhat higher.

The discount period for paying county tax bills ended yesterday and taxpayers will no longer be entitled to the two percent discount. City tax bills, on the other hand, which were mailed out earlier than the county's, will have an additional eight percent added for each month they are late.

Sheriff Jim Nickell and City Clerk Rella Evans both agree that the collections are going "pretty good."

Sheriff Nickell said that, during the first month the bills were out, he has collected about $650,000 or almost 65 percent of what he expects to take in for the 1979 tax year.

Telephone industry officials estimate the federal tax reduction will save the nation's telephone customers $429 million.

The tax was implemented by Congress in 1971 at a rate of 10 percent, with the provision that the tax gradually be phased out by Jan. 1, 1982.

The tax has been decreased by one percent each year since 1971.

Congress first imposed the excise tax both cases, a woman was forced into a car and later was able to jump out. The first instance involved a man with a knife; the second, a gunman.

Descriptions of the suspects varied. St. Claire Medical Center's fifth floor, which houses a pharmacy and medical/surgical acute-care rooms, opened.

City Council delayed action on selecting a developer for the Divide Hill property housing site.

Bids were being sought for the proposed Carl D. Perkins Community Facility Building. City officials were hopeful that the price for construction would come a little closer to the $421,000 available.

Morehead State University opened an exhibition of sculpture on loan from the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. MSU was one of only six schools in the nation to be selected to display the works, nearly all of which had to undergo major restoration by students and instructors.

February Sheriff Jim Nickell asked the Fiscal Court for enough revenue to hire two more deputies and a dispatcher, which he said were badly needed. Action was delayed as Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery said the new court system had raped the county of funds from fines and forfeitures.

Rowan County Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery felt he was being harassed and told the NEWS he planned to take whatever "legal steps he can to alleviate it." County Attorney John Cox had sent Flannery a letter calling for him to prepare an administrative code for court approval. Cox said, "I suggest that he consider retaining other counsel to represent Fiscal Court if the Fiscal Court feels the same type of harassment from this office."

The proposed Divide Hill Housing development project raised two topics of concern: that the housing was being developed by private contractors who would own the land rather than being developed and operated by the city housing authority; and the housing development would consume the majority of flat land that the city owns at Divide Hill, leaving little room for the proposed Carl D. Perkins Community Facility Building.

Later in the month, City Council voted to proceed with the housing development on its Divide Hill property, but decided to specify that the units have to be constructed on the hills and ridges on the property rather than the plateau reserved for the Carl D. Perkins Community Facilities Building.

Directors for Rowan Water Company, Inc. listened to a proposal that it become the sponsoring agent for a county-wide sewage system.

Life Care Centers of America, a Cleveland, Tenn. based firm which manages 13 nursing centers in five states, took over management of the Daniel Boone Convalescent Center Feb. 1.

Thanks to the promised support of about 40 persons, the United Way decided not to end locally. Last year the organization netted $12,863, about half its goal and only 38 percent of what was needed by the national organization.

Joe Lamb is named editor of The Morehead News. Betty Caudill, the previous editor, was named managing editor for Kentucky Publishing Company publications.

Cheerleaders at Tilden Hogge Elementary School took third place honors in national competition at Memphis, Tenn.

By Feb. 20, Rowan County schools had been closed 24 days due to snow.

The newly remodeled Rowan County jail opened Feb. 24 after being closed for nearly three-and-one-half years. Cost of renovation was $147,000. The jail can house seven permanent prisoners.

MARCH Rowan Water Company, Inc. voted to undertake a feasibility study for a county sewer system. The decision came one month after Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery asked the company, which provides water service to rural areas of the county, to take over the project, apparently because of the red tape and long process involved. Later in March, the Board of Directors of Rowan Water Company formally decide to petition Fiscal Court for permission to pursue the project.

Members of the Board of Education decided to start touring county schools, following a request by the Farmers

Resolved!

By MARK PERKINS
Staff Writer

This is traditionally the time when people make resolutions as they look ahead to the new year.

Last year in this space we asked several citizens what their resolutions were and received answers from, "I will try and quit smoking," "no I will try to run the best city government in the county of Morehead during 1979."

Last year Dr. Warren Proudfoot promised to work for further improvements in communications with the schools and community activities during 1979. "I have tried to keep that resolution," Proudfoot said last week. "I think

We have met them to a certain extent. We can improve, especially communicating with the community in a meaningful way. My big goals this year are to see the new high school get started on the right foot and to see better development of facilities for the whole school district in county programs. I feel that will do more for the area than anything else we can do for the future at this time.

Last year County Judge/Executive W. C. Flannery said he would resolve to get the Martindale building under contract for renovation; see that the sewer connector lines throughout the county and subdivision be

So far this winter, the city has not used any salt. Mr. Brown said his workers had to use two or three mornings when water froze on the roads in several counties.

The county road department does not use salt, relying instead upon the state to spread it on county roads under a maintenance agreement. But Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery said that road crews do spread sand in the county. He says that he does not know how plentiful that supply will be this winter. "You never know till you get ready to use it," he said.

Flannery said that county road workers will continue to patrol the roads and attempt to clear them when possible. He added, "We plan to proceed the same way we have previously to allow ingress and egress to the people and keep the school buses running. He said that the city has checked out all its snow-spreading equipment and has serviced its trucks.

In addition, Evans said that the city crews will use a new kind of mix spread on the streets. "It's a sand and salt mix combined," said Evans. "But we can't use it on streets with storm sewers because it might clog them."

Evans said the mix dissolves but is slower than plain salt.

In general, the situation looks good at this point. Morehead, in particular, is better off than many cities in the area, which Brown says were unable to get any salt at all.

But last year, the first big snowfall didn't hit until January and the large number of small snows soon consumed much of the salt supplies of area road departments.

during World War as a "temporary" measure. It was repealed briefly after the war, but was reinstated during the Depression and has continued ever since.

Rates ranged as high as 15 percent on local service and 25 percent on long distance calls. The tax stood at 10 percent from 1954 to 1972.

Cable

But Monday he would say only that it should be available in January. He did say the company would provide the special channel free for two nights so that subscribers can judge whether or not they want to purchase it. The cost of the pay television channel is expected to be $9.95 in addition to the regular monthly charge.

Morehead Police Report

Three parking meters were damaged Saturday about 10 p.m. on First Street, when Stacie Watts, of Pine Hills, lost control of her 1970 Toyota in front of the Big Store, while she was heading west on First Street.

A produce truck, owned by Jeff Winter, 21, was moved from his produce business, "Jeff Winter's Produce, 720 East Main Street, last Friday and then vandalized.

According to Police Chief Fred Barnsdale, the keys were in the truck, which was moved to the Dairy Queen and left, with a window broken.

A strobe light, valued at $105 was taken from the business of Carl Jaynes, 32, of 40 West Main Street, Tuesday, Dec. 25.

Police report that the culprit did not enter the store, but broke out a window and reached in for the strobe light.

Police have charged Clayton Perry, 38, of Archie Walton's Trailer Court, in Morehead, on two counts of public intoxication and theft, which took place at the IGA West, Monday, Dec. 24, at 6:13 p.m.

Police charged that Perry, shoplifted cigarettes valued at $93.13.

Manager Dies

Surviving in addition to his parents are a son, Loren Glenn Frazier of Price, two brothers, John Gregory Frazier of Sulphur, La., and Jeffrey Lynn Frazier of Houston, Tex.; the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Melvina Hall of Lexington, N.C.; the paternal grandmother, Mrs. Bertha Frazier of Price, and several relatives in Morehead.

PTA. Dan Stewart, Frank Skaggs, Charles "Toby" Wallace, Larry Brown, Jack Early and Charlie Stamper set their canoes in Triplett Creek in 29 degree, snowing weather, with Riverfront Stadium at their destination. One canoe had a baseball tied to it, the intended first ball for the Cincinnati Red season. The trip was to promote recreation.

Fiscal Court members, in their role as the County of Rowan Properties, Inc., the holding company for the Martinsburg, reviewed architectural drawings and discussed financing for the renovation of the property. Once completed, the building will house the county judicial facilities and offices of county officials.

A petition with the names of 75 residents of Lakeview Heights and Mountain View, in particular, was submitted to the Attorney General's office in Frankfort as the effort to make the subdivision a sixth class city effective.

City Council received three resignations from city employees in two weeks; Dan Blevins as director of public works, Corene Castle as city clerk and Shirley Hamilton as city planning aid. John David Evans of Prestonsburg was hired as new city administrator.

City Council on the recommendation of the Utility Plant Board took action which would triple water rates by 1981. Starling Gregory, representative from Howard K. Bell Engineers, said there would have to be a "substantial adjustment" if the city were to be able to afford the proposed $5.2 million water expansion project.

City Council approved the plan being planned for construction in Clearfield. Philip Lewis said he was planning to build the homes on land near Mill Branch Road and Rock Wall Hollow. The project was expected to take about four years to complete.

Glenn Boodyry was retained by Fiscal Court to draw up plans for renovating the bottom portion of the other half of the Rowan County jail.

City Council asked the Morehead Housing Authority to take over development of the proposed housing project on its Divide Hill property, thus rejecting two bids for private development and rescinding its stipulation that housing be restricted to ridges, etc.

APRIL. As a response to Sheriff Jim Nickles' plea for more personnel a county police force with one deputy, Carl Mullen, county dog warden, was established April 2 by executive order of W.C. Flannery.

Children of the handbell choir of the First Christian Church received an invitation to make an appearance on the Bob Braun television show on Good Friday.

In its fifth attempt, Morehead succeeded and was named an "All Kentucky City."

Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery, following allegations of neglect, said the Health Department should not be under the direction of Gateway District Health Department. Administrative Director Harold Belcher called the remarks "misconceptions."

State health bureau and Gateway District Health Department representatives said that Rowan's health department could lose some of its present programs and funding if it definitely withdrew its support from the health district. Judge/Executive Flannery refused to work with the county attorney saying, "I must now seek legal counsel outside the county and will be presenting Fiscal Court the bills for this service."

Fire Chief Glen Terrell resigned due to health reasons. It was the fourth resignation of the year.

MSU's Board of Regents adopted a record operating budget of $35.7 million for the 1979-80 year.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins told a gathering of Federal Land Bank Association members and guests in Morehead that Kentucky farmers have won the battle, at least for now, to keep federal price supports on burley tobacco.

The bodies of a Covington man, believed to have drowned April 12, and a Lexington doctor, missing since May 21, were recovered from rescue units within two days of each other from Cave Run Lake.

Paul Rayburn "Ray" Stevens, 39, local law enforcement officer, died after an extended illness.

MAY Rowan County's Medical Society formally adopted a resolution opposing the move and the health department from the direction of Gateway District Health Department. Assurance can be made that previously provided services would be maintained. Fiscal Court, prompted by the appearance of about 45 local citizens and the presentations of two physicians, rescinded its resolution.

Paul Ousley later clarified his motion to rescind Rowan County's action in withdrawing from the Gateway District Health Department, saying his intent was to agree to stay with the district if a better plan were developed and provided on a local level. Meanwhile, Flannery rebuffed district representatives with questions about the district's fiscal situation and about the initial decision to withdraw from the district.

The State School Board Authority did not include Rowan County in the list of 10 school districts to which it would offer assistance for construction of new schools. Rowan was not included in five more districts announced later in the month but acting board director Arnold Guess later informed Superintendent John Brock that Rowan County had been included among other funded districts. Brock estimated that the assistance to be about $1.5-2 million.

School Board members offered the heirs of Harlan Cooper $80,000 for over two acres of land adjacent to the present high school. The present entrance to the high school is not safe, according to the Department of Transportation.

Earlier in the year, bids for the divide hill building exceeded the amount of money available for the project by over $200,000. The project went out for bids again, in the hope that the price tag, with some alternates, would be lower. This time it came back $35,000 higher than it was earlier in the year.

Plans for dealing with 1.5 million gallons of radioactive water in various stages at Maxey Flats Nuclear Disposal site were presented to the Special Advisory Committee on Nuclear Waste Disposal during a meeting at Morehead State.

The department to build sewage collector lines to serve homes outside the Morehead City limits are called to the attention of the Board of Directors for Rowan Water Company.

Inc.; one, they are not properly set up to go into the sanitary sewage business, according to Farmers Home Administration guidelines and two, the Fiscal Court's approval of a franchise for the company to build and operate the sewers was not awarded properly.

Later this month, board members said they would not go ahead with the proposed sewage project if a private developer in the area was permitted to hook onto the Morehead Utility Plant Board's water-line. Philip Lewis' proposed 200 unit housing development was within Rowan's water franchise area, but because the city water was about one-third as high as Rowan water charges, Lewis preferred hooking onto the city water main.

As one alternative to increase its funding, the Rowan County Air Board is considering a merger with Bath County and Menflee County.

Cancellation of MSU's athletic complex, already hampered by heavy rains last summer, once again runs into problems. Picket signs were up at the entrance to the construction site of U.S. 60 East, but no one knew why.

Fiscal Court approved a $559,492 budget, down from a $815,321 budget for the previous year.

In what resembled more a political rally than a fiscal court meeting, magistrates, interested citizens, a state representative and a state senator met with State Rural Highway Commissioner Otto Ingram at the site of a proposed bridge over Triplett Creek near Browning. He expressed interest in the project. The money has been set aside for the project and that will be built.

Plans to trade the city's 18-acre industrial park for a downtown lot of nearly one acre are abandoned by city council after an appraisal of the properties showed the park to be worth more.

Local deaths this month included Virgil D. "Mike" Flood, 81, one of the original owners of the Eagle's Nest Resort, died on Dec. 24, 1979, at the Rowan County Judge, and Glenn Lane, 81, president of Citizens Bank of Morehead and for years honorary chairman of its board of directors.

Over 1,800 senior citizens from all across Kentucky gathered in Morehead for the third annual Governor's Conference on Aging.

Despite a strong showing by late-comer John V. Brown Jr., Greenup native Terry McBrayer easily outdistanced all opponents in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor in Rowan County.

JUNE The long-running feud between Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery and County Attorney John Cox takes on more serious overtones as the battle moved from the Fiscal Court sessions to a new arena—the judicial system. Flannery requested a grand jury investigation of Cox. Magistrates denounced his action, and in his absence, adopted a controversial county administrative code which sets forth policy procedures for officials and department heads in county government.

When recently-appointed deputy Judge/Executive Terry Anderson called a meeting to present a different county administrative code, the magistrates boycotted the meeting.

Over 1,600 persons participated in the Kentucky State Special Olympics in Morehead.

What was to have been a quiet public hearing required in order to obtain a federal grant for the operation of the MAT system turned out to be more of a demonstration as a group of about 25 senior citizens said they wanted the city-controlled MAT bus to schedule stops at Trademore Shopping Center.

Burglars took over 200 handguns, and cash from Perry's Hardware. Two men were later arrested in a raid at their home outside of Florence in what Police Chief Mike Hall called "the biggest case ever." An estimated $25,000 worth of guns with serial numbers matching those taken from Perry's were recovered.

Rowan County's superintendent's office received written notice from the School Board Authority that funding in the amount of $2.173 million would be available for a new high school.

Gas prices rose 4.3 cents in the past month, averaging 87.2 cents per gallon compared with 82.9 cents the previous month.

About $362,000 had been pledged, with $227,000 of that amount paid, to the State of Kentucky for a new expansion drive. The goal is $500,000.

William Frazer sought a franchise to install cable in the Christy Creek area so then he believed there may be served by cable television.

A lawsuit challenging the billing practices and late payment interest charges of the Morehead Utility Plant Board was filed in the U.S. District Court at Catlettsburg.

The NEWS learned that dog pickup reports to Fiscal Court by Animal Control Warden Carl Mullen may have been falsified, and questioned the disposition of animals. Magistrates ordered an investigation of Mullen.

City Council accepted a low bid of $128,748 from a Mt. Sterling firm (Mountain Landscaping) for the proposed flood abatement plan for the city branch which runs behind First Street.

A Morehead man, Charles Backus, died as a result of what officials term as a heart attack. He had been hospitalized at Flaming nuclear-waste disposal site in Fleming County. The 21-year-old reportedly was taking soundings on a cardiac monitor when he dropped a measuring tape into a 24-inch wide test chamber. He did not return from an attempt to retrieve the instrument.

A Big Perry firemen banded to organize and equip a volunteer fire department. Financial assistance was requested of Fiscal Court.

City Clerk W. B. Jewell State was burglarized with a loss estimated at $150,000.

Widening of Rt. 32 from Trademore Shopping Center to the Rowan-Fleming line.

City Council revealed that the Morehead Post of the Kentucky State Police is understaffed, as are others across the state, and several nights each week no troopers or county deputies are on duty in the county after midnight.

State aids at the Life Care Center began to organize a local union.

About 50 residents of James Trailer Court were evacuated when a nearby gas station had a leak in its underground storage tank.

Morehead's supply of gasoline was adequate, but filling stations began cutting their service hours. Some panic buying was also reported.

City Administrator Dave Evans was given a $2,000 raise by City Council. He in turn asked that $1,000 of it be divided between City Clerk Rella Hayes and Recreation Director Dan Stewart.

City Council member Richard "Dick" Staggs resigned his seat effective July 1, citing "pressing obligations of my business and personal reasons."

Radio station WMOR announced plans for a switch to a new transmitter and tower that would increase the station's power from 1,000 watts to 3,000 watts.

Luther Jayne, 66, first licensed superintendent of the Morehead Water Treatment Plant and founder of The Midland Trail Garage, died May 31.

Woman Falls From Sky Bridge

CAMPTON — State police at Morehead are investigating the death of a Louisville woman who fell to her death from the Sky Bridge at Red River Gorge, Sunday.

State police said that the death was still under investigation Monday morning and had few details about it.

Police said that Catherine Chaggett, 54, of 1802 Terrivian Way, Louisville, fell from the bridge about 2 p.m.

The incident is being investigated by Trooper Mike Klein.

State Legislature To Be Broadcast

On Tuesday, January 8, KET begins its coverage of the state legislature on "1980 Kentucky General Assembly in Open Session," from the Capitol in Frankfort.

The series of one-hour programs provides highlights of the lawmakers' daily activities. Except for legislative holidays, the coverage airs Mondays through Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. and Fridays at 8 p.m. "1980 General Assembly continues until the end of the session, which by law must adjourn by April 15.

Hosted by KET's Jonas Chaney, the series includes reports on the issues by producers Milli Fazy, Donna Moore and Charles Thompson.

Behind the scenes will be some 20 KET production staffers who will direct the shots and work the five cameras, editing machines, switches, audio boards and other electronic equipment that eventually brings the programs to the home viewer.

"The 1980 coverage will be very similar to that of the 1979 special session," says Kirk Lehtomaa, the series' executive producer. "We want to present the information, not analyze it. We'll let the people of Kentucky draw their own conclusions about the 1980 session."

Dr. Wentz To Address Woman's Club

The education department of the Morehead Woman's Club has invited Dr. Byron E. Wentz, optometrist, to be the guest speaker for the January general meeting.

Dr. Wentz will speak on diseases of the eye — glaucoma. The meeting will begin at the Eagle's Nest on Main Street at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 8.

Regional Contracts Total $29.5 Million

FRANKFORT — The state Department of Transportation has announced the award of six contracts totaling $29.5 million for improvements to roads and bridges in northeastern Kentucky.

The contracts resulted from a bid letting held Nov. 16. Statewide, 27 contracts worth $70.7 million were awarded.

Representing much of the northeastern Kentucky total is a $20.9 million contract for road and bridge improvements on 2 1/2 miles of Pikeville-Prestonsburg Road (U.S. 23) in Pike County. Under the contract Codell Construction Co., Winchester, will build structures, grade, drain and surface U.S. 23 from near the southern corporate limit of Pikeville extending north to near Rabbit Creek, a distance of nine-tenths of a mile. The project will include plugging of Levisa Fork at the south and north ends of the cut-through and construction of a bridge on U.S. 23.

East Kentucky Paving Corp., Grayson, and Hinkle Contracting Corp., Paris, were awarded a $7.9 million contract for repairs to 7.3 miles of Hazard-Watergap Road (KY 80) in Knott and Floyd counties. Incidental construction and surfacing will be done by the two firms from about one-tenth of a mile of the Knott-Floyd County line to about three-tenths of a mile north of Warco.

Two contracts totaling $95,215 were also awarded for Knott-County road improvements.

A $47,971 contract was awarded to Mountain Enterprises Inc., Mid-diesboro, to surface 1 1/4 miles of Cline Creek-Calf Hollow Road from KY 721 extending southeast.

Mountain Enterprises will also surface 1 1/2 miles of Gordis-Ritche Road (KY 721) from Buzzard Den Branch Road northwest to the Clear Creek-Calf Hollow Road under a $47,244 contract.

A $25,310 contract was awarded to D.L. Braugher Co., Morehead, to repair a bridge and its approaches on Louisa-Boltsfork-Cattlettsburg Road (KY 3) in Boyd County. The bridge over the east fork of the Little Sandy River will be surfaced along with its approaches for a total distance of a quarter of a mile as part of the project.

The Lee City-Rose Fork Road (KY 205) in Wolfe County will be improved under a $123,167 contract awarded to Smith Concrete Inc., Grayson. Repairs will include building of structures, grading, draining and surfacing for a distance of about two-tenths of a mile at the Rose Fork Creek culvert and its approaches.

Agents Seek Changes In Workers' Comp Law

Armed with a fact folder and a slogan, some 2,500 independent insurance agents are working to get changes made in Kentucky's workers' compensation law.

The fact folder, prepared with the help of attorneys and other workers' comp experts, outlines what workers' comp is, then lists suggested changes in the law and the reasons for the suggestions. The slogan is "Job Justice — Fair Workers' Comp For Kentucky."

"It is indeed a matter of job justice, since the disarray of our workers' comp system affects every Kentuckian directly or indirectly," said Stirling Holloway, a Madisonville insurance agent and legislative committee chairman for the Independent Insurance Agents of Kentucky.

"Independent insurance agents have never organized their own effort to seek changes in the law before. We are speaking out now because workers' comp has gotten completely out of hand," Holloway said.

Holloway noted that workers' comp benefits incurred for job related injuries have increased more than 2,000 percent since 1974 — from about $4 million in the most recent fiscal year. While premiums paid by employers for workers' comp coverage vary depending on how hazardous an occupation is considered, premiums as a whole are closely tied to the amount of benefits paid.

"Unless we adjust the law, costs will make it impossible for employers to get coverage. It is already difficult. But some simple and effective cost controls will make it possible once again to choose from a number of good workers' comp insurance policies," Holloway said.

Holloway stressed that the independent agents are not attacking the problem by advocating a sweeping cut in workers' comp benefits. For example, the agents favor raising the amount paid to a person totally disabled by a job related injury to up to as much as 100 percent of the state's average weekly wage. The top payment now for total disability is two thirds of the state's average weekly wage.

On the other hand, the agents favor a time limit for payments to those with permanent, but partial, disabilities. The agents want such payments, which now have no time limit, to continue for up to four years.

"A person with a permanent partial disability may be back on the job earning as much or more as he or she did before being injured. But the payments can continue for the person's entire life," Holloway said.

It is possible for a person with a permanent partial disability to be back at work while still receiving as much in benefit payments as the person who is permanently and totally disabled, according to Holloway.

The agents also favor forming a board of 15 full-time judges to evaluate workers' comp claims. These

THE GAS PUMP

Most accessories are fuel-robbers. Not so for the cruise control, which is a gas saver. The reason for that is because it keeps the car at a steady pace. The many manual adjustments you make with the gas pedal to keep your speed at 55 mph use up fuel.

Agents Seek Changes In Workers' Comp Law

Armed with a fact folder and a slogan, some 2,500 independent insurance agents are working to get changes made in Kentucky's workers' compensation law.

The fact folder, prepared with the help of attorneys and other workers' comp experts, outlines what workers' comp is, then lists suggested changes in the law and the reasons for the suggestions. The slogan is "Job Justice — Fair Workers' Comp For Kentucky."

"It is indeed a matter of job justice, since the disarray of our workers' comp system affects every Kentuckian directly or indirectly," said Stirling Holloway, a Madisonville insurance agent and legislative committee chairman for the Independent Insurance Agents of Kentucky.

"Independent insurance agents have never organized their own effort to seek changes in the law before. We are speaking out now because workers' comp has gotten completely out of hand," Holloway said.

Holloway noted that workers' comp benefits incurred for job related injuries have increased more than 2,000 percent since 1974 — from about $4 million in the most recent fiscal year. While premiums paid by employers for workers' comp coverage vary depending on how hazardous an occupation is considered, premiums as a whole are closely tied to the amount of benefits paid.

"Unless we adjust the law, costs will make it impossible for employers to get coverage. It is already difficult. But some simple and effective cost controls will make it possible once again to choose from a number of good workers' comp insurance policies," Holloway said.

Holloway stressed that the independent agents are not attacking the problem by advocating a sweeping cut in workers' comp benefits. For example, the agents favor raising the amount paid to a person totally disabled by a job related injury to up to as much as 100 percent of the state's average weekly wage. The top payment now for total disability is two thirds of the state's average weekly wage.

On the other hand, the agents favor a time limit for payments to those with permanent, but partial, disabilities. The agents want such payments, which now have no time limit, to continue for up to four years.

"A person with a permanent partial disability may be back on the job earning as much or more as he or she did before being injured. But the payments can continue for the person's entire life," Holloway said.

It is possible for a person with a permanent partial disability to be back at work while still receiving as much in benefit payments as the person who is permanently and totally disabled, according to Holloway.

The agents also favor forming a board of 15 full-time judges to evaluate workers' comp claims. These

Stow it or blow it

Getting a tax refund? In a savings account, it'll be safe, increasing at a good interest rate... and still yours tomorrow, when you'll be happy you saved it today. Or else you can spend your refund today... and be right back where you were yesterday, no better off despite that refund. It's true—today's decisions shape tomorrow's living. Why not choose a brighter future for yourself and your family? While you have the chance, put something safely aside and let it get bigger for a better tomorrow.
Stow it and grow it!

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Deward Bayless surprised them with an open house in their honor Sunday, Dec. 23. Mr. and Mrs. Bayless celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary Dec. 24. About 40 persons attended the open house.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Waddell

Couple Married 60 Years

Charles and Dovie (Burton) Waddell celebrated their 60th anniversary Dec. 27.

According to Mr. Waddell, on that day in 1919, he rode horseback from Elliott County to Sandy Hook to purchase from Deputy Clerk John Gray a marriage license for $2 plus 50 cents tax rate.

Rev. John VanSant married the couple. Mr. Waddell was a school teacher for 31.4 years, beginning on Dec. 31, 1917. He was also principal of the Prison School at LaGrange for almost eight years. He says he was the last one-room school teacher in Rowan County, and presently is a Kentucky Colonel.

Mr. and Mrs. Waddell have 4 children, 12 grandchildren and 8 great-grandchildren.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I have just finished reading the letter saying no woman is "just a housewife." She described herself as a cook, nursemaid, chauffeur and laundress - the list went on and on. It also said if she were paid an hourly wage, she would be worth about $18,000 a year.

If a plain housewife is worth $18,000, then a work-a-hole woman and mother must be worth at least $100,000.

I read recently that housewives are trying to get Social Security benefits because their husbands work. I'm sick and tired of people leeching off my paycheck. I am supporting enough welfare people now without adding a group of women who can work but prefer to sit at home. Staying at home is their privilege, but they should not expect the same benefits as a working person.

Face it, "Housewife" - you ARE "just a housewife." You are not a nurse, lawyer, secretary, factory worker, doctor, vet, street cleaner, postal worker or anyone who works. What you do all day is what the women listed above have to do when they get home from work. I am a Full-Time Secretary and Housewife from Bowling Green, Ky.

Dear Full-Time: Because I am a career woman who doesn't have to do a darned thing at home, I am not qualified to respond to your letter. I welcome responses, however, from the millions of women out there who are on both sides of the fence.

If there ever was a letter for which there are pros and cons, you've written it, sister.

Dear Ann Landers: This is the most difficult letter I have ever written, but I need to express what I feel.

Our two-year-old son drowned recently. He was in a coma for three days before he passed away. It was especially heartbreaking because he didn't have to die. The person who was supposed to watch him simply didn't. I am writing to you because people need to know what to say at a funeral when a child dies in an accident. The worst thing (and we heard it dozens of times as we stood in the church) is, "It was God's will."

No parent wants to believe God could be so cruel. In our case, we know our little boy died because someone was careless. We don't want to kid ourselves. It is important that we be realistic. Please let us.

You wouldn't believe the stupid things people say to mourning parents, Ann. Please tell them they don't need to say anything. But they DO need to listen. It is the best therapy for grief.

Florida Heartache

Dear Florida: Thank you for a letter that will teach millions of readers something they need to know. It was worth the effort, Dear.

Dear Ann Landers: You once printed a definition of success. I carried it so long it fell apart. Will you please run it again? - Petuluma Fan

Dear Pet: With pleasure. The author is Harry Emerson Fosdick.

To laugh often and much; to win respect of intelligent people and the affection of children; to earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends; to appreciate beauty; to find the best in others; to leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch or a redeemed social condition; to know even one life has breathed easier because you lived. This is to have succeeded.

Butter Dips
By PAULINE ELLINGTON

1/2 cup butter
2-1/4 cup self-rising flour

1 cup milk
1 Tbl. sugar

Garlic

Melt butter in 13 x 9 inch pan. Set aside. Stir together flour, sugar, Add milk. Mix and knead. Roll out on floured board to 12 x 8 inches. Cut into 32 pieces (sticks). Sprinkle garlic over melted butter. Dip dough sticks into butter on both sides and lay in pan side by side, touching. Bake at 450 degrees 15-20 minutes.

The American And His Gun: A Part Of History

IN 1807 the percussion rifle was invented which replaced the earlier flintlock guns. Some of the big bore percussion rifles were used in taming the West.

With each election year from the president on down to the city council, east Kentuckians are looking more and more to where these candidates stand in relation to gun ownership. A gun, whether it be a .22 rifle, single barrel shot-gun or a large caliber handgun, plays an important role in the lives of folks from the hills.

can handle responsibility. Fortunate husbands are given expensive shotguns and big game rifles by adoring wives for special holiday occasions. With violence, the gifts and other related crimes on the rampage even in the rural areas, guns for self and home defense seem to be as important today as ever before.

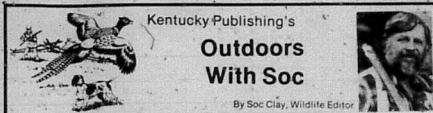

But gun ownership is in serious trouble. Many urban dwellers are dead-set against people owning firearms. Police forces all across the nation are in favor of strict gun controls — controls that would virtually eliminate hand guns and place severe restrictions on ownership and usage of any so-called sporting firearm.

SERIOUS BUSINESS — The American frontiersman needed a weapon that was efficient, easy to repair, load and carry. The famed "Kentucky Rifle" was developed to handle this need.

GUNS AND HUNTING are now a tradition in the U.S. Many nationally known celebrities such as pro-gaffer Tom Weiskopf are avid supporters of gun ownership in the U.S.

consumption of more than 400 million shot shells.

History Of Guns In America

Every school child knows the story of Captain Smith and how he was saved by the Indian princess Pocahontas. But not many know that the story ended happily because of a gun — just as Pocahontas' father, Chief Powhatan, was about to execute the pilgrim princess, interested and begged for Smith's life. Powhatan relented, but he probably was moved to clemency less by his daughter's tears than by Smith's promise of "two guns and a grindstone."

The guns pledged to Powhatan were probably matchlock muskets. These primitive firearms were little more than metal tubes crammed with gunpowder and a ball. The gun was fired by placing a burning wick into a flashpan at the back end of the barrel. Frequently, powder in the pan flared up and failed to fire, giving rise to the expression, "a flash in the pan."

Matchlocks were made obsolete in the early 1700's by European-developed flintlocks, which replaced the burning wick with a hammer or wheel and a piece of flint. When struck by the hammer or spinning wheel, the flint showered sparks into the pan to discharge the gun.

European flintlocks, however, were designed primarily for sporting use and were bulky and hard to carry. The American frontiersman had no taste or time for sport. To him, shooting was a serious business. He needed a weapon that was efficient, easy to repair, load and carry, and completely reliable under all circumstances and in all types of weather. To meet these specifications, a group of gunsmiths in Lancaster, Pa., developed what became known as the Kentucky rifle.

The frontiersman's proficiency with this unique American-made rifle is legendary. Considerable credit is given to this gun for winning both the Revolutionary War and War of 1812. In the battle of New Orleans, for example, General Andrew Jackson commanded a force of 4,000 militiamen equipped with Kentucky rifles against a British force of 10,000 disciplined regulars. The score: 3,000 British dead; 8 Americans dead.

Percussion Cap Invented

Another American legend — the cowboy and his six shooter — owes its origins to another Americanization of a European development. This time the credit goes to a Scottish minister and the inventor of the steam engine.

In 1807, Reverend Alexander Forsyth, of Aberdeenshire, discovered that striking fulminate of mercury and other sensitive compounds caused them to explode. Aided by inventor James Watt, Reverend Forsyth developed a number of guns that fired by per-ussion, rather than flint sparks. The next step was the invention of cartridges. Although guns have changed considerably since the days of Wyatt Earp and Bat Masterson, the basic percussion system of firing is still the same.

Growth Of Hunting As A Sport

Once the West was won and guns were no longer needed for protection, hunting began to develop in this country as a sport rather than a necessity. Its popularity has grown ever since. Today, for example, there are 20 million hunters — more than in any country in the world. And the number continues to grow.

Contrary to popular opinion, the increase in the number of hunters has not caused a decrease in the amount of game animals. There is more game available today than ever before. The reason is simple: Hunters are conservationists.

This year, hunters will shell out $250 million to protect wildlife ecology in the United States. This money to support our federal, state and local conservation and wildlife management efforts comes from hunting licenses and taxes and sporting firearms and ammunition.

The hunter's role as a conservationist is not a new one. President Theodore Roosevelt, considered the father of our conservation movement, was an avid hunter. Dr. George Bird Grinnell, one of the founders of the Audubon Society, also was a hunter. And so were Senators Hawes, Pittman and Robertson, who wrote some of the basic wildlife protection laws now on the books.

Support from the hunters goes

CRAFTSMANSHIP — Many of today's firearms are masterpieces of fine gunsmiths. This intricate design with gold inlaid hunting scene is typical of what is available to discriminating sportsmen.

beyond payment of taxes and fees. In fact, hunters are one of the only groups to lobby for an increase in their own taxes. To support wildlife research and conservation programs, hunters and the shooting industry successfully campaigned for an 11 percent excise tax on the sale of sporting firearms and ammunition. The tax has raised more than $325 million for purchasing wildlife preserves and protecting endangered species.

Guns And National Defense

Guns and the knowledgeable sportsman owner play a role long recognized by Congress and our nation's leaders as an important element in our national defense. In accepting a leadership role in the "National Rifle Association, the late President John F. Kennedy said: "Through competitive matches and sports in coordination with the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, the Association fills an important role in our national defense effort."

With this long list of facts and continued dedication to gun ownership by the American people, anti-gun forces will discover a tremendous opposition in their efforts to eliminate firearms from American society.

AFTER the West was won, hunting began to develop in this country. Today there are some 20 million hunters in the U.S. — more than any other country in the world.

MUZZLELOADERS was the term applied to early shotguns used in the U.S. Many old "cap 'n ball" guns are still found in eastern Kentucky homes. (Photos by Soc Clay)

Guns Still Popular

But the saga of the American and his gun is far from over. There are approximately 50 million gun owners and 130 million guns in the United States today, according to James F. Thompson, general manager of The Leisure Group's shooting sports product lines.

Last year, approximately 20 million people participated in hunting, target shooting and weekend "plinking," says Thompson, whose company markets High Standard sporting firearms, Lyman gun sights, reloading equipment and Sierra bullets.

Last year, Americans spent approximately $2 billion on shooting sports equipment, clothing, trips and ammunition. Sportsmen fired a total of about $ billion rounds in 1978. Skeet and trap shooting, alone, accounted for the

A Glance Back At Some Sports Highlights Of 1979

A lot of progress took place in sports during 1979. The following review is intended to help reflect back over the last year of the 70's with some highlights in sports.

Morehead State began the year by hiring a new football coach who didn't make any promises about the coming season, but when his first campaign was over Tom Lichtenberg had lifted the Eagles from the doldrums of the OVC and produced a winner for MSU for the first time since 1973. Over the past five years the Eagles averaged just over two and a half victories a season. Lichtenberg built a 5-4-1 team in less than a year.

Herbie Stamper became the Eagles' all-time leading scorer last January. The senior went on to score 2,072 points for the Eagles.

Wayne Martin another first year Eagle head coach transferred a 4-19 team with no conference victories into a 14-13 squad which qualified for the conference tournament limited to the top four teams in the league.

Here is a sampling of some 1979's sports highlights.

February
The Lady Eagles capture the OVC Basketball championship by defeating Austin Peay 67-54, Eastern Kentucky, 97-72 and Western Kentucky, 77-72 in a tourney held in Eastern.

Morehead State University football coach Tom Lichtenberg has announced the signing of four high school seniors to the Ohio Valley Conference letter of intent. B. J. Ward, running back; Mike Brugh, tackle; Tim Waltermie, linebacker; and punter John Christopher.

Senior guard Herbie Stamper scored 32 points to help Morehead State defeat Eastern Kentucky 98-91 to gain a spot in the Ohio Valley Conference tournament. The Eagles lost four early conference games by a total of seven points but rebounded to win five of their last six OVC contests to qualify for the post season tourney.

March
Menifee County ends the Vikings basketball season with a 67-78 victory in the first round of the first district tournament. Morehead's dream of a berth in the NCAA tournament ended with a loss to Western Kentucky, 98-85 in the first round of the OVC tournament held in Richmond.

The Lady Eagles won the state basketball tournament and advanced to the regional tournament by defeating Louisville, 69-66 and Northern Kentucky, 73-65.

Vikings Lose Two In Mississippi; Trip Called A Valuable Experience

Ted Trent, the Rowan County Vikings basketball coach knew his team was in for a long contest even before it started when the tournament director told him he would be facing the toughest team in the tournament.

Rowan County traveled to Gulfport, Mississippi last week to participate in a 32 team double elimination tournament.

The Vikings lost to Jackson, 77-49 last Thursday morning and later in the afternoon lost to West Marion, 59-39.

Vicksburg, who went on to win the tournament was very intimidating according to Trent. "We got in too late and we just weren't ready mentally or physically to play at 10:30 in the morning," the coach said.

The team didn't leave until Christmas night because the players wanted to spend the holidays with their families.

"If I had it to do over again we would have gotten there earlier and at least had a working practice before the game," Trent said. The team didn't touch a basketball from the time they left Morehead until the start on the game.

Vicksburg had a 6-5 player which is an All-American, who scored 29 points, grabbed 12 rebounds and blocked seven shots. "This was just one super basketball team, probably the best I've seen," said Jerry Ravenscraft, a former Viking, who was one of the 20 fans who made the trip.

Trent said Kevin Layne played well under the circumstances. The sophomore had 16 points and 16 rebounds. Randy Eldridge and Bryan White helped us out coming off the bench," Trent said. Eldridge and White each scored seven points in the first game.

"It was quite an experience to travel over 1,000 miles, not touch a basketball for over 24 hours and then play two games in one day," Trent said. The coach said that Vicksburg went on to win the tournament and that West Marion reached the semi-finals.

In the second contest, Bart Braugher scored nine points, Allen Ravenscraft had eight points, and Eldridge and John Stamper each scored eight.

"We are still getting a high percentage shot, but they are not falling, which is due to a lack of concentration," Trent said. He went on to say, "There is only so much I can do as a coach, we can teach them how to work inside for a good shot, but I can't take the shot for them. Somehow we have to correct that."

The outcome of the contests notwithstanding, everyone agreed that the trip was worthwhile. A total of 32 people made the trip, 24 Rowan students and 20 players, all of which got to play in the second game.

"You would think that a 2,061 mile trip with a bunch of high school students would create a lot of problems, but I didn't have any," Trent said. "I've never been with a more class bunch of kids."

Sports Brief

Alabama center Dwight Stevenson, a second team Associated Press All-American selection, has been awarded the 1979 Jacobs Blocking Trophy for the Southeastern Conference.

The selection of Stevenson, a 6-3, 242-pound senior from Hampton, Va., as the league's top blocker was announced Sunday by brothers William and Hugh Jacobs of Chinton, S.C.

Second place in the balloting was Georgia center Ray Donaldson and third was Alabama tackle Jim Bunch. The voting is by coaches at each conference school.

Greenbo, Carter Caves Offer Skiing Package

Beginning in January, overnight guests at two state resort parks in Eastern Kentucky will be able to ski at the new Lakewood Village Ski Resort near Catterburg.

The two parks Carter Caves in Olive Hill and Greenbo in Greenup, will be open at off-season rates for the skiing program. Officials of the state Parks Department noted that Lakewood Village is a private resort which is open to the public only through the parks program.

Carter Caves State Resort Park will reopen for the skiing activities Jan. 4 and Greenbo Lake is scheduled to reopen Jan. 7.

The ski resort has facilities to create 12 inches of snow on its runs every 12 hours. In the event there is no natural snow, runs are available for four skill levels, from beginners to advanced skiers.

The resort, which can be reached from the Cannonsburg exit off Interstate 64, also offers group and individual rental equipment and ice skating. Daily lift tickets for guests at the two parks will be $8 for adults and $7 for children on weekends or $6 for adults and $5 for children on weekdays.

The equipment rental fee, which includes skis, boots and poles, is $9. The ski area is approximately 25 miles from both parks, which will also be offering recreation programs, hiking and other activities. Dining facilities will be open at the parks.

Reservations can be made by contacting Carter Caves State Resort Park, Olive Hill, Ky. 41164, telephone (606) 286-4111, or Greenbo Lake State Resort Park, Greenup, Ky. 41144, telephone (606) 473-7324.

Kentucky residents can also call a toll-free reservation number 1-800-372-2761. For residents of surrounding states, the toll-free number is 1-800-626-2911.

Voting Begins For Basketball Classic

All-Americans Mike Gminski of Duke, Mike O'Koren of North Carolina and Darrell Griffith of Louisville head the list of 62 college seniors whose names appear as East squad candidates for participation in the ninth annual Pizza Hut Basketball Classic.

The charity game, which has raised more than $500,000 for various non-profit organizations, will be played March 29 at the Las Vegas Convention Center and again will be televised nationally on CBS Sports Spectacular.

The nation's top 124 seniors, as selected by an 11-member media panel, are listed on the ballot. Nationwide balloting at participating Pizza Hut restaurants begins January 21 and concludes March 5.

The top eight vote recipients for each squad automatically receive invitations to play in the game. Two players on each squad are added as at-large selections.

The 6-11 Gminski is considered by many to be the premier center in the nation and is the backbone of the nationally-ranked Blue Devils, a team which went to the NCAA finals in Gminski's sophomore year.

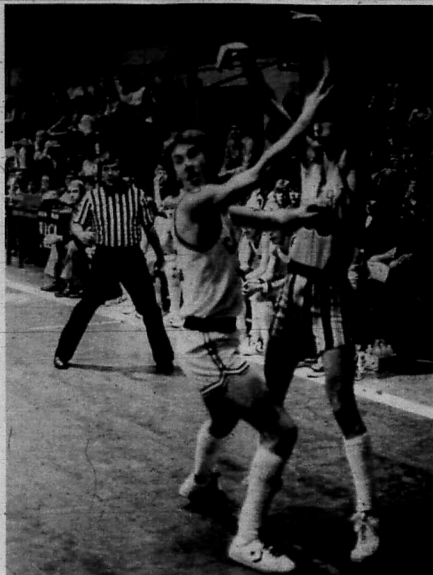

He is not the only outstanding center on the East side of the ballot, however. Others include Purdue's Joe Barry Carroll, Syracuse's Roosevelt Bouie, George Washington's Mike Zagardo and small college stars Ricky Mahorn of Hampton Institute and Mike Harper of North Park College. Harper has led North Park to the NCAA Division III title and was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player each of the past two years.

In addition to being named All-American, O'Koren was a member of the U.S. team which captured the gold medal at last summer's Pan American Games. Other East squad candidates who were members of that team are LaSalle forward Michael Brooks, Indiana forward Mike Woodson, Kentucky guard Kyle Macy, and Georgetown guard John Duren.

Other outstanding candidates include Eastern Kentucky's James Tillman, Mississippi's John Stroud, Holy Cross's Ron Perry, Furman's Jonathan Moore, Florida State's Murray Brown, Maine's Rufus Harris, Ohio State's Kelvin Ransey, Tennessee's Reggie Johnson, Old Dominion's Ronnie Valentine, North Carolina's Charlotte's Chad Kinch and Duquesne's B.B. Flenory, all of whom were among the nation's leading scorers with more than 20-point-per-game averages last season.

The 62 seniors on the East ballot are: Wayne Abrams, Southern Illinois; Jim Abromatis, Connecticut; Clyde Austin, North Carolina State; Otis Boddie, North Alabama; Roosevelt Bouie, Syracuse; Neil Bresnahan, Illinois; Michael Brooks, LaSalle; Murray Brown, Florida State; Ricky Brown, Mississippi State; Joe Barry Carroll, Purdue; Reggie Carter, St. John's; Bo Clark, Central Florida; Earl Cureton, Detroit; Charles Davis, Vanderbilt; John Duren, Georgetown; Ken Evans, Norfolk State; Dirk Ewing, Stetson; B.B. Flenory, Duquesne; Reggie Gaines, Winston-Salem State; Mike Gminski, Duke; Darrell Griffith, Louisville; Greg Guy, Stetson; Bill Hanzlik, Notre Dame; Mike Harper, North Park (Illinois); Rufus Harris, Maine; Delmar Harrod, St. Bonaventure; Kevin Hicks, New York Tech; Cedric Hodges, South Carolina; James Jackson, Florida State; Frank Johnson, Wake Forest; Reggie Johnson, Tennessee; Ron Jones, Illinois State; Chad Kinch, UNC-Charlotte; Lonnie Lewis, Wisconsin Parkside; Kyle Macy, Kentucky; Ricky Mahorn, Hampton Institute; Lavon Meecer, Georgia; Jonathan Moore, Furman; Loves Moore, West Virginia; Carl Nicks, Indiana State; John Nolan, Providence; Mike O'Koren, North Carolina; Louis Orr, Syracuse; Ron Perry, Holy Cross; Bubba Price, Auburn; Kelvin Ransey, Ohio State; James Ray, Jacksonville; Wayne Robinson, Virginia Tech; Robert Scott, Alabama; Craig Shelton, Georgetown; Larry Smith, Akron State; Lanny Spicer, Alabama at Birmingham; John Stroud, Mississippi; Jim Swaney, Toledo; James Tillman, Eastern Kentucky; Ron Valentine, Old Dominion; Glen Vickers, Iona; Charles Whitney, North Carolina State; Billy Williams, Clemson; Mike Woodson, Indiana; Sam Worthen, Marquette; Mike Zagardo, George Washington.

Tim McKenzie, one of five seniors on the Vikings makes a pull during a recent contest against West Carter. Rowan County traveled to Gallup, Mississippi last week for a 32-team tournament. The Vikings lost their first two games but everyone felt the trip was a valuable experience.

Spotlighting Deer Illegal Even Without A Firearm

FRANKFORT — Spotlighting deer, even when not in possession of a firearm, is a violation of state statutes, according to an attorney general's opinion.

However, according to Assistant Attorney General David K. Martin, "to cite a person or violation... may cause some difficulties of proof at trial. It may be necessary to produce competent testimony concerning the effect of the spotlight on deer in order to prove that a deer was molested."

The opinion was requested by a state conservation officer who said he had witnessed persons spotlighting deer in a field at night causing one or more deer to bolt and run. The officer said deer do not quickly recover from the temporary blindness caused by spotlighting and are likely to injure themselves.

The attorney general's opinion said spotlighting could be considered an attempt to molest a deer, which would make it a prohibited action under state statute.

Martin, however, said in his opinion that to prevent any problems in enforcing this prohibition, it would be preferable for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources to enact a regulation which identifies some of the conduct that constitutes the molesting of a deer.

In another attorney general's opinion, Assistant Deputy Attorney General Walter Herdman said he could foresee no conflict of interest or incompatibility to either the secretary of the Development Cabinet or one of his employees serving on the board of directors of a land bank.

A state official serving on the board of a land bank to assist private organizations acquire land for development purposes would not in itself obligate the commonwealth in any manner, nor would it cause a conflict of interest, said the opinion requested by Ralph Coldiron, executive director of community and regional development in the Development Cabinet.

New York Giants quarterback Phil Simms says he may need surgery to repair his injured right thumb on his throwing hand.

Simms hit his thumb on the helmet of an Atlanta player in the Giants 24-7 victory over the Falcons Nov. 11. Although it was not made known until after the season finale, the thumb impaired Simms throwing over the final six weeks of the season.

"I may have to have an operation in January on the thumb," Simms said in East Rutherford, N.J. "If I need surgery, they want to do it as soon as they can."

If surgery is necessary, it would thwart Giants Coach Ray Perkins plan to have Simms work out with receivers Earnest Gray and Johnny Perkins in the off-season.

Plans are being completed this week for the first annual Thanksgiving Classic Basketball Tournament to be held in Middle Area at Western Kentucky Campus University Nov. 28-29, 1980.

The classic, sponsored by the Wendy's restaurants of Bowling Green, will feature the University of South Carolina, Vanderbilt, Iona, and host Western Kentucky.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

Department of Fish and Wildlife

A special commercial fishing season opened Nov. 1 on Kentucky and Barkley lakes, a season which allows holders of a $500 permit to use gill and trammel nets through March 31.

Results from the first month's fishing are now in and it looks like most of the 19 fishermen who bought these special permits are doing quite well. The average monthly earning per permit was $2,983, according to Charlie Bowers, director of Fish and Wildlife's fisheries division. One fisherman reported sales of $12,242 for the month.

Although the money from commercial fishing can be good it certainly doesn't come easy, Bowers points out. This special commercial season, open only during the winter months to separate it from summer recreational use of the lakes, means that these fishermen have to brave long hours on cold, rough water where nets freeze as soon as they are pulled aboard and where ice slickened boats and winter storms can create downright dangerous conditions.

The total catch for November was 29,412 fish weighing 405,773 pounds, Bowers says. These fish sold for $56,876, according to reports the fishermen are required to submit to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

More than half the fish taken, both in number (17,967) and weight (132,212 lbs.), were buffalo. Reducing the number of these and other rough fish was one of the primary reasons why the use of gill and trammel nets was authorized on these lakes.

"We'd hoped that these commercial fishermen would remove around a million pounds of buffalo by the end of March," Bowers says, explaining that reducing the number of buffalo, carp and other rough fish creates additional living space in the lakes, space that can be partially filled by game fish.

In addition, Bowers says, these fish represent a potential source of both food and income that can only be effectively tapped by commercial netting. If the first month's catch rate is projected through the end of the season, these fishermen will take more than one million pounds of fish and will sell them for more than $283,000.

And Bowers says that it's possible that both the price and the catch rate could well increase in the months to come.

These fishermen are required by law to report any game fish caught in their nets and to release these fish back into the lake. During the first month, only 221 game fish were reported caught. Sauger and crappie led the list with 94 each. Twenty-one black bass were caught and released, as were five white bass, four yellow bass, two rockfish and one walleye.

"Fears that commercial netting will harm game fish populations are completely groundless," Bowers says. "While a few fish might not survive being netted and released, most can be returned to the water without harm. And even in the unlikely case that none of them survived, the number would still be insignificantly small."

Nor is there much danger of commercial fishermen, at the rate they are going now, depleting rough fish populations. "These lakes could easily sustain a 25 percent catch rate year after year," Bowers says.

Bad Roads Raise Driving Costs, New Study Finds

FRANKFORT — Badly worn roads cost the average Kentucky motorist an extra $84 a year in wasted fuel, excessive tire wear and extra vehicle repairs, said a study released Friday.

The typical Kentucky driver travels some 2,500 miles a year on bumpy, broken pavement, inflating annual statewide vehicle operating costs by $167.5 million, according to The Road Information Program (TRIP) of Washington, D.C.

Wasted fuel accounts for the largest percentage of the overall loss. TRIP said the average Kentucky driver wastes some 60 gallons of gas per year, amounting to $118.9 million statewide. Drivers also spend for two-thirds more fuel when stopping or slowing to pass safely over rough, rutted pavement before resuming normal speed, the study said.

TRIP reported that the state's drivers logged roughly 5.1 billion vehicle miles on worn roads at a cost of $637.9 million. Had these roads been up to standard, this travel would have cost only $470.4 million, or an average savings of $84 for each of the state's 1.99 million drivers, the agency estimated.

"Because of tightening gas supplies and skyrocketing prices, the state, counties and municipalities need to concentrate immediately on upgrading substandard roads that waste fuel and inflate vehicle operating costs," said William J. Crowe, who released the report.

Crowe is a member of the Kentucky Association of Highway Contractors, which requested the TRIP study. TRIP is a research and information industry sponsored by the highway industry.

Nearly 30 percent of all paved primary roads in Kentucky are deficient by a national engineering standards. An estimated 6,067 miles are rated "fair" and 602 miles are rated "poor." Both are substandard categories.

If all Kentucky drivers an average of 3.3 cents more per mile to drive on "fair" and "poor" roads than to drive on "very good" roads. The direct operating cost of driving on one mile of "good" or "very good" road is 9.2 cents, while the cost is 12.5 cents for "fair" and "poor" roads.

If all Kentucky roads were up to standard, the state's drivers could save $167.5 million in driving costs.

"We're not talking about unpaved back roads," said Crowe, "but about Kentucky's primary and secondary roads used for commerce, agriculture and commuting."

"We desperately need additional revenue for highway improvements to cut driving costs and reduce the number of accidents where poor road conditions are a factor," he said.

Driving costs are further increased by traffic congestion, narrow lanes, antiquated bridges and accidents — all related to deficient roads. However, these additional costs were not part of the TRIP study.

According to the study, the problem would be much worse were it not for the present efforts of the state Department of Transportation and county and local road agencies. They have managed to achieve the best road maintenance possible within extremely limited budgets, TRIP said.

TRIP recommended a 10-year, $24.6 million annual road renewal program to bring Kentucky's roads up to standard, including $7.6 million a year to rebuild 602 miles and $17 million to resurface 6,067 miles. The study said that because of inflation, it would be considerably cheaper to catch up on road improvements now, rather than later.

TRIP's findings were based on scientific field tests that measured fuel consumption and tire and vehicle wear relating to the physical condition of the road surface. Other sources of data included the Kentucky Department of Transportation, the Federal Highway Administration and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Council Will Be Sworn In

The new Morehead City Council members will be sworn into office in formal ceremonies tomorrow (Wednesday) at City Hall.

The activities will take place at 9 a.m. Normally, the new council is sworn in by the mayor, but because Mayor Crayton Jackson is on vacation, the duty will be conducted by Rowan County Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery.

Resolved —

updated to the construction point; and to strive to do a better job for the people of the county and city in communications.

When asked last week if he felt he met those resolutions, Flannery said, "Maybe I went a little strong last year, so I'd rather not make any resolutions this year due to the fact that times are shaky."

Dan Stewart, recreation director for the city, said he would try to "quit smoking last year." When contacted this year Stewart said, "My resolution is to catch a Muskie, and photograph it so I can show the picture to Tim Hicks."

Morehead Police Chief Fred Bardsdale said, "I haven't given it much thought (making a resolution), most people who make resolutions just break them. I will say that I'll try to do a better job."

A year ago, John Brock, Rowan County school superintendent said, "I will try to listen to people a bit more carefully to make sure I understand what they have to say, and secondly to go on a diet."

Reflecting back on those resolutions last week Brock said, "Other people will have to decide if I kept the first one. I went on several diets during the year, but didn't lose any weight."

Most people contacted in a random survey of county residents had no resolutions. When asked if they had committed themselves to anything, these people said:

Robert Adams, Triplett, "No, I don't go into making resolutions much."

Mrs. John Atkins, Haldeman, "No I don't have any that I would want in the paper."

Sharon Adkins, Fleming Ave., "I want to be more satisfied with what I'm doing."

Pete Armstrong, Morgan Fork, "No, I'm just letting it drift through."
