Record Vote Cast; Watts Local Winner

Running strongest in rural and labor precincts Adlai Stevenson carried Rowan County over Dwight Eisenhower Tuesday by 235 votes on the basis of complete but unofficial returns from all 21 precincts. The vote:

Stevenson 2,220
Eisenhower 1,985

The Democrats made it a clean sweep locally, although majorities were small and the final outcome was not decided until the last two precincts were tabulated.

Senator Tom Underwood, Democrat, received 53 more votes in Rowan than did Republican John Sherman Cooper. The vote:

Underwood 2,080
Cooper 2,027

Incumbent 6th district Congressman John C. Watts, Democrat, Nicholasville, carried Rowan by 14 over Republican Lenita Henderson, Olive Hill. The vote:

In the six Morehead precincts Stevenson received 962 and Eisenhower 484. Banner precinct for the Democrat, as usual, was Waverly.

The ballot race for the Legislature was broken as nearly as 4,600 Rowan precincts went to the polls. Candidates running on the minor ticket for President received a certain vote.

Morehead Is Balloting On Fluoridation

Referendum Mailed Monday To All Water Consumers

The Presidential election Tuesday was the only balloting in Morehead this week. They are also voting whether to fluoridate the city's water.

Enclosed with each water bill Monday was a ballot with the name of the fluoridation committee on it, to be returned to the utility plant board by November 18.

The referendum is being asked by the council after some controversy over fluoridation. Proponents of fluoridation are bearing endorsements from most civic clubs and Morehead dentists and physicians.

Under a cooperative agreement they are obtaining the water from the Morehead State College plant. The college has agreed to fluoridate the water at a cost of one cent a hundred gallons.

Eisenhower Is Leading In Kentucky

Stevenson Falls Behind Wednesday Afternoon; Republicans Confident

Returns slowly coming in from the 7th and 8th districts in the mountains put Eisenhower back in the lead for Kentucky's 10 electoral votes.

With 2,214 of Kentucky's 4,135 precincts reporting Wednesday afternoon Eisenhower was ahead 2,275. The vote:

Eisenhower 397,297
Stevenson 384,022

Governor Lawrence Wetherby and democratic campaign headquarters in the Seelbach Hotel, Louisville, still claimed that Stevenson will carry Kentucky. Republican Party leaders say Eisenhower will carry the state and precincts to report will swell his lead.

IN MEMORIAM
 Of James (Uncle Henry) Hall, of Clearfield, who passed away November 3.
 We had a Dad, just yesterday, Not young, it's true, but well and hearty.
 And full of life and love and vim—
 Today but memories live of him. Our Dad was good, his life was clean,
 He never acted small and mean, He was loving, tender, unselfish and strangely fine—
 A prince of a man, that Dad of mine.
 He had not set the world on fire, Great fame was never his desire, But, Oh, his name is much revered,
 By scores of friends whose hearts he cheered.
 His God came first, his family next,
 And "Love Thy Neighbor" was his text,
 His riches he was laying high, In that far land beyond the sky.
 He left no fortune grand behind; But Oh, he left a peace of mind—
 The knowledge that his life was free,
 Of study, but fitness, comforts me.
 Yes, we had a Dad just yesterday; But God has called that Dad away.
 To dwell with Him in lands more fair,
 And some day, Dad, we'll meet you there.
 —The children. c-45

Forest Fire Loss Will Exceed Million

Kentucky's loss to forest fires will exceed the million dollar mark, officials said this week. Harold B. Newland, state forester, said his department figured that each acre of protected land was worth $18 while the unprotected land would run approximately $12 an acre.

A total of 123,457 acres of protected land has burned since Oct. 20. In addition, the unprotected acreage will almost equal that which is protected in the 39 counties.

Newland said the fires had set the growth of timber in Kentucky back 20 to 25 years. "This, of course, can't be placed on a monetary scale at the present time," he added.

The damage reported to the timberland does not include crop and building losses. In several sections tobacco barns with the summer crop in them have been destroyed and approximately $100,000 damage has been done to Kentucky utilities installations, according to Newland.

Commissioner Earl Wallace of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources said little is known as to the amount of loss of the wildlife in the burned areas.

He said the Dawson Springs-Penryville forest areas had been "pretty hard" and that some deer may have been killed.

No reports of livestock being destroyed have been received at Frankfort.

He Is The President For All Of Us

Tuesday's election is over and a record number of voters have proclaimed that Dwight Eisenhower shall serve as the leader of this great nation for the next four years.
Regardless of how you personally voted, the majority of the people have spoken and under our democratic form of government, the American people accept the decision. It is now time for all of us to lay aside personal bitterness or animosity. Together, we abide great gratification for the next four years.

In a great measure, the new President is not only the leader of this nation, but of all the free peoples in the world. Both democrats and republicans are agreed that the greatest service is achieved on this globe, the United States must lead the way. The entire world followed Tuesday's election, and today those oppressed souls in Europe, Asia and elsewhere are praying and watching hopefully for us to create a new and better world.
There has never been a president—even during war time—that faced as many problems, domestic and international, than General Eisenhower. He needs the support and the prayers of all Americans for the next four years may show whether this nation is to prosper and whether we have a real chance for the people of the earth to live with themselves. With the atomic bomb, the hydrogen bomb, and many man-made instruments of destruction, we face the certain fact that man can, and may, destroy himself.

Whether we voted for Eisenhower or Stevenson, heads in silent prayer for the new leader, for on his shoulders the majority of Americans have bestowed the leadership that will affect our prosperity . . . and very existence . . . for the next four years.
Somewhere in this issue is printed, in condensed form, the life history and accomplishments of the new President. You should read it for we believe that no President . . . Washington, Lincoln, Wilson or Roosevelt . . . assumed office with more problems, and a more uncertain world than does Dwight D. Eisenhower. May God lend him spiritual understanding, personal health and deep vision for great leadership.

Rise In Wages Has Outrun Rise Of Food Prices

The price of anything you buy and use can only be accurately measured by the amount of time you must work to obtain it. Judged by that yardstick, one hour's labor by industrial workers today actually buys more food than it did in 1948 or 1941—and much more than it did in 1927, or 1917. In other words, the rise in wages has outrun the rise in food prices.
Furthermore, the average American can buy his food with much less work-time than his equivalent in the other major nations. It takes the British one and a half-times as long as the Frenchman three times as long, the Italian almost four times as long, and the Russian—the happy citizen of the workers' paradise—more than five times as long. What is true of foods is true of a great many manufactured articles as well.
This does not mean that inflation has been a good thing for most or even a substantial minority of our people. Many more factors than the cost of commodities enter into the economic picture—such as the fact that family debt is being rising sharply, and the average tax bill is many times what it was in pre-war days. What it does show is how inefficient producers and distributors have wanted to ease the nation of inflation. It can be ruthless. We have been mighty lucky in having so excellent a producing and distributing system to help us fight it.

"There are a billion grams on the average dollar bill," newspaper files. This inflation doesn't frighten us, as a dollar bill passes through our hands so fast a germ would break his neck if he were to jump off it.

Sign noted: "Positively No Smoking! This Means You?—No—It Means You, Even If You're a Female!"

Morehead Has Been Fortunate To Have Such Leaders

When the days and nights get colder—as some already have—and your home or your business is warm and comfortable, you might think back three or four years to the fight that the present leaders of this community made to bring you that comfort.
It is not our intention to mention names, because the list is long, but there were many thinking Moreheadians, in positions of leadership, who fought this natural gas supply question with a boldness and a zeal that and there were many citizens who thought a mistake was being made to change TGT gas gas revamp our distribution system at a high cost. But, there are few now who would go back to the miserable days of the past when there wasn't enough gas coming through the lines to keep the pilot light lit.

Likewise, people with vision at Morehead State College and in the town of Morehead, realized that our water supply was poorly conceived and any dry spell would deplete the supply. Through a cooperative arrangement, the state constructed an impoundment reservoir on Evans branch and both the college and the city have had ample water, throughout the drought. Citizens in most adjoining towns have been rationing water for weeks, and a bath, with running water, has become a luxury.

We recall that establishment of rural free delivery routes over most of Rowan County brought objections because of the discontinuance of small postoffices. Few rural folk would want to go back to the old system. And, you probably remember, the controversy over consolidating schools, which would do away with many one-room rural schools.

Then, there are those who criticized the establishment of the Cumberland National Forest in Rowan County. During the past month, forest fires have been destroying valuable timber in the eastern Kentucky, except in Rowan County where the loss has been negligible.

We take these good things for granted today, but we should not forget that Morehead has been blessed with many leaders who have saved the county from destruction by minority groups with the attitude of doing everything as our fathers did.

It is generally conceded that Morehead has made more progress in the past 10 years than any town or city in eastern Kentucky. We attribute this mainly to such leadership and to a populace that has generally offered the cooperation necessary to get things done.

U. S. Firm Purchases Same Jet Planes

Pan-American World Airways recently became the first U. S. commercial airline to buy jet passenger airliners. The airline also became the first American air carrier to go outside the United States to buy airliners for regular service.
The U. S. airline announced it had purchased three British Comets, which are to be delivered late in 1956. This will be five years before any of the commercial jet transports will be put into service by the U. S. airline.

The history-making announcement by the U. S. company means that the technical lead now enjoyed by the British aircraft builders over U. S. builders in the jet field. Contrary to what many think, this lead is not a post-war lead but one which prevailed since the beginning of jet development. During World War II, both the Canadian and British aircraft industries were ahead of the U. S. industry in this field, and, apparently, the British have never lost their considerable lead. U. S. companies attribute the British advances in commercial jet transport to their own preoccupation with demands made by the Korean war, but this is not altogether the answer.

The serious threat which now faces the U. S. aircraft industry, which has, in recent years, designed and built most of the planes used by the various airlines over the world, is that British companies will replace the American companies as the foremost builders of transport aircraft as the jet age comes into being. U. S. companies are not expected to let this challenge pass unaverted. Thus, the next few years should see a bit of scrambling in the jet field by the motor U. S. aircraft builders.

Color TV Sets In United States Seen By 1954

At least one of the television set manufacturers has announced it will place on the market, by 1954, new color television receivers. This promise, of course, depends upon permission from the Federal Communications Commission.

It is interesting to note that the company which manufactures color sets, rather than a mechanical one—the latter type set having been approved by the FCC. A company official admitted that his company was gambling that the Commission would approve other color television by 1954.

It is believed the color sets will be capable of receiving television transmissions from a transmitter that the purchaser will not have to bear the cost of such adaptation. If this company's expectations in television are fulfilled, the American public will have electronic color television in another two years, which will mark a major forward step in the continuing perfection of television.

TEMPORARY LULL IN FOREST FIRES
IN THIS AREA
As this column is being written (Nov. 4) there appears to be a temporary lull in new fire outbreaks. Maybe this is due to everyone being in or in the vicinity of polling booths. However, what is the weather containing the danger remains extreme.
As District Ranger of the Cumberland National Forest in Rowan County, many people who would like to take this opportunity to thank the many groups and people who have helped in the fight against forest fires. The fire wardens and their crews, the Breckridge Fire Crew, the Morehead Fire Department, and the various fire departments in the county, have done a hard and dirty job of actually fighting the fires; also the Conservation Soil Conservation Service, the County Agents, and the various fire departments that have helped in the fight against forest fires that could not be seen by the general public. The county judges, and many who have helped; last but not least, the fire wardens, and many who have helped, are especially appreciated for their services during this period.

By Lee Stewart
The first act of the Kentucky legislature passed on January 26, 1810. It was to pay for wolf scalps only.

The first appropriation was at Washington, Mason County, January, 1811.

The first state appropriation to pay for "digging stumps out of the State House yard," and probably for the same purpose, was on Feb. 6, 1812.

The first Brigadier General's commission given to a Kentuckian was that of Col. George Rogers Clark to Thomas Jefferson of Virginia (of which State Kentucky was then a part), Oct. 21, 1781.

The first Major General's commission conferred by the state of Kentucky on one of its citizens was by Gov. Charles Scott in June, 1812 to William Henry Harrison. His military record was most worthily bestowed, and the honor as worthy won. He died May 4, 1812, the day the war was won.

The first fire burned Nov. 23, 1812; the second on Nov. 4, 1824.

The first great treaty of peace between the foreign government in which a Kentuckian (Henry Clay) was a conspicuous commission was concluded on Feb. 4, 1814, with Great Britain at Ghent. It was legally in effect in 1812, but it was not known in the United States until the news of its ratification was sought nearly a month later, Jan. 8, 1815.

MEET THE WINNERS

Eisenhower and Nixon:
The New High Command

Few men in American history have stepped from one of the highest military posts to the White House. Dwight D. Eisenhower was a temporary major general and was serving as chief of the Division of War Plans in Washington.
Two months later, General Marshall was the chief of the staff, asked Eisenhower to command the new European theater of operations.

Eisenhower suddenly appeared on the stage as one of the central characters when his name was mentioned in the program. He had been elected to the office of Eisenhower was a little more than a year before the start of World War II as Eisenhower saw it has been told by many people already, including the late General George C. Marshall. The whole story already has been written in the North American Review, the magazine of the hour, the battle for France, the St. Lo break-through and the Battle of the Bulge, the capture of the Rhine, the final campaign in Germany and the final capitulation of the German forces.

Eisenhower handled what was probably the biggest job any military officer has ever had. In 35 months he changed from an almost unknown general to an international leader.

Following the war, Eisenhower became chief of staff for a short while and then left to become president of Columbia University.

When the 1948 election came along, the "Eisenhower" movement sprang up all over the country. But the general said he would not be a candidate. The Organization forces came into being and needed a commander-in-chief. The general was asked to take the post and accepted.

Hardly had he started in this new job when the 1948 election results came out and again there was talk of drafting him for president. Eisenhower said he could not take nomination in the absence of a "clear-cut call to duty." When the election results came out, he had clear-cut call to duty from the Republican nomination.

New the election is over and he has been elected the 34th president of his career—the presidency of the United States.

General Eisenhower was born in York, Pa. His father was a farmer. His mother was a school teacher. He was graduated from Whittier college and won a scholarship to Dartmouth University. Upon receiving his law degree, he returned to Whittier to practice. It was shortly after this that he met his wife-to-be, Patricia Ryan, when they were both acting in a play given by a community theater. They have had several daughters.

During the war he served with the Navy, spending the better part of four years in the South Pacific. At the end of the war he left the Navy as a lieutenant commander and was assigned to the United States military academy.

At West Point, in his previous school work, he was less interested in academic work than in sports. Following his graduation from West Point, he was put in the top third of his class. He also had the makings of a star football player until a knee injury disqualified him for football forever.

On June 12, 1915, he was graduated and commissioned as second lieutenant.

Eisenhower's first assignment was in San Antonio, Texas, where, the following October, he met Mamie Geneva Doud. They were married the following July 1, 1916.

The Eisenhower's first son, Dwight, died when he was three; but a second son, John Doud, was born in 1917. He was in the army when he took his entrance examination for West Point, John Doud was rejected for service by a Kansas applicant.

Although he very much wanted to get overseas during World War I, Eisenhower never got outside the United States. Instead, he was put in the army in the United States school—an unusual assignment since the school had no tanks.

Eisenhower was assigned down to the monotony of peacetime army life.

Eisenhower had many varied tours of duty but none of them colorful, at least from his viewpoint. He spent two years at Fort Belknap, in the Panama Canal zone with Brig. Gen. "Foss" Conner. He met such men as General George S. Patton. The thing that was to lift him out of monotony was the assignment to the staff of the 1st Cavalry Division, as assistant to the chief of staff, Gen. Douglas MacArthur. When MacArthur was sent to the Philippines as special adviser, Eisenhower went along.

When World War II broke for the first time, Eisenhower was in the Philippines. He was the only American general who was not in the United States when the war started.

Urge Farmers To Disk Their Corn Stalks

By John D. Alexander
Farmers can cut down soil erosion a surprising amount by disk- ing down cornstalks in the fall. Specialists of the Soil Conservation Service report that where cornstalks were returned, soil losses were about 16 times larger than on land where the stalks were broken down. These experiments show that with a stover mulch soil loss was only 205 pounds an acre compared with 3,225 pounds of soil washed off the non-mulched plot. Water losses were 14 and 82 per cent respectively. These combined losses resulted from a rain of 1 1/2 inches lasting for one hour. I have found that an increasing number of farmers in Rowan County are leaving their crop residue from corn, soybeans and small grain on the land to assist in controlling erosion and add to the organic content of the soil. We, in the Soil Conservation Service, are still spending the larger per cent of our time assisting farmers in developing stock water ponds. The following farmers have recently completed ponds: Sam Linton Jr., Harve McBrayer, Everett Gastline, Rex Robinson, Burtrum Holbrook and Billie Stewart.

Harve McBrayer, of the Popular Grove Community, completed a pond last week that is the largest constructed in the county this year. It will be used for both stock water and fish. The fill is 200 feet long, 16 feet high and 90 feet through at the base. The pond has a surface area of six-tenths acres with the water averaging 11 feet deep. It will hold between five and six acre feet of water. Harve put a pipe through the fill that will feed a stack tank, and the pond will be fenced off to prevent stock from getting in to the water. This pond will supply ample water for stock and still furnish water to irrigate the row crops that will be grown on the farm, should Harve decide to install an irrigation system.

Addie Barker Announces For Rowan Sheriff

To the voters of Rowan County: I take this opportunity to announce myself as a candidate for Sheriff in Rowan County on the Democratic ticket at the August 1933 primary.

Many of my friends have asked me to run again for this office, and I was defeated by a small margin by Mr. Carl Jones. I want to thank my friends again for their support in the 1949 primary election. I will appreciate any support or influence that anyone can give in this coming election. I am making this announcement so the people of Rowan County can have time to inquire about my reputation as a citizen.

I stand on the same promises I did in 1949. I am a dry man and I believe in good law enforcement. In a later announcement I will go into more details regarding my qualifications.

Slayer Of Officer Captured In Lewis

A Glen Springs man charged with killing one officer and wounding another Friday to escape arrest on a lunsy warrant, was captured at gunpoint Saturday in the wild hill country of Lewis County.

Forty-seven-year-old Hubert Arthur surrendered to Deputy Sheriff Newell Rudder of Tollymore without firing a shot, although he was carrying a .12-gauge shotgun loaded with buckshot.

Deputy Rudder said he was in a posse of 29 deputies combing the woods about two miles outside of Glen Springs when he surprised Arthur and got the drop on him.

The officer said the posse had orders to shoot Arthur on sight. Deputy Sheriff Creed Johnson, 43, was killed by a shotgun blast in the chest late Friday while trying to arrest Arthur on a lunsy warrant signed by Arthur's brother, Earl Arthur.

Sheriff Ray E. Cooper, 42, was shot in the right hand at the same time. Arthur fled his home in Glen Springs three hours after shooting the officers, when tear gas was shot into the house.

He was being held at the Lewis County jail in Vanceburg pending a lunsy hearing, probably Friday. Rudder said 14 deputies were posted at the jail after rumors of mob violence spread throughout the city.

A veteran of World War II who was captured by the Germans during the Battle of the Bulge, the sheriff caught 19 shotgun pellets in his hand when Arthur fired through the wall of the home.

Using experience gained as a soldier, Cooper said he had cautioned Johnson three times not to expose himself to fire from the barricaded house.

Johnson had a tear-gas bomb attached to a .12-gauge shotgun and waited to "let Arthur have it." About the time Johnson fired, Arthur shot him, Johnson told the sheriff. "I'm done for."

The sheriff said he then went after the deputy's car parked out the door about 100 yards down the road, and called an ambulance. When the ambulance arrived, the sheriff approached the house again in an effort to recover the body of the deputy, who had died in his absence.

"I'll kill you, too," Arthur called out.

The sheriff said he again tried to reason with the man—as he had when they first arrived at the farm. They knew each other well—called one another by their first names.

Finally, said Cooper, he began firing his .38 calibre revolver through the door. He aimed at "Arthur's voice" and emptied the six-shooter. The shot which hit the sheriff was fired through the door from the front.

When he and the deputy first arrived, Cooper said, Arthur called out:

"I'm gonna die in this house. You can't get me out of here. You'll have to kill me."

Cooper said Mrs. Arthur was forced to stay inside by her husband. After Johnson was killed, he said Mrs. Arthur fled to the home of a sister.
