

Selling For Nothing Failed To Work Out

There was funny business across the nation last week but free enterprise really became free when a businessman waging a price war started giving his wares away.

Former slayer Al Turvo, who last fought in the ring 15 years ago, lost his business bout, however, his profit was zero.

Turvo runs a fruit and vegetable stand on New York's upper Broadway. He tried to meet competition by cutting his prices down so far he was giving some of his produce away. It didn't work.

His competitor kayoted him by giving more away.

Two small businessmen in Illinois, Luther Fagan and Lewis Mann, let their wares solve their problems for them. The solution was easy. Each wife wanted her husband in the other's business. So the husbands swapped businesses.

Fagan now is running the Mann Grocery Supermarket at Effingham, Ill. Mann took over Fagan's auto agency. They even traded homes if the deal. Everything was swapped even.

"A change does a person good," Fagan said. "It puts more pep into him."

Mittie Miller, a guide at the Alabama capital in Montgomery, agreed heartily. Miss Miller won a $50 prize for giving advice to disgruntled state employees in a suggestion contest.

Her entry: "If you don't like your job, quit and get another one."

That was more or less what Randall James, Maj. Gerald Sheehan and John Drew Luchsinger tried to do.

They wanted to leave Carl Place, N. Y., and become spacemen in an Army paratroop corps. They sent their applications to Col. Robert A. Sharr, boss of airborne troops training at Ft. Benning, Ga. He turned them down but said he would consider their offer in a few years.

"I'm not going to give up," said nine-year-old Randy.

The army made other occupational history, however. First Lt. Fae M. Adams, San Jose, Calif., who sworn in as the first woman physician ever to hold a regular army commission—and a group of airman got a woman top kick.

Elizabeth L. Kealy, 22, New York, became first sergeant of the 32nd Air Division's headquarters section at Hancock Field near Syracuse, N. Y. She succeeded a man first sergeant who was sent to a hospital.

Sergeant Kealy's business now is bossing about 450 air force personnel. Most of them are men.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

Bible, False Teeth, Whiskey Among Items Found In Storage Rooms At Court Of Appeals

A handsome family Bible that once belonged to Stephen W. Dunn, a set of false teeth and dentist tools and ugly knife bearing traces of his victim's blood were uncovered last week in an old packing room of the Court of Appeals at Frankfort.

Along with these objects were countless maps and blueprints, several dentures of water, a pint of Sunny Meade bourbon, a label showing it was bottled in 1909, and numerous photographs, some depicting victims of bullets, knives or speeding cars.

The relics were exhibits sent to the commonwealth's highest court in years long ago to be used as evidence in appeals of cases from the circuit courts. The high court is to move all its offices to the second floor of the State Capitol this coming summer. In preparation for that, a cleanup of the first floor storage room was ordered.

Dunn is believed to have lived at Lexington because in the Bible was an order form for photographs bearing a pencil notation, "Mr. Dunn, 162 Upper St."

On the first leaf of the Bible was written, "Presented to Stephen Dunn by a loving wife Sydney Dunn." On pages reserved for births and deaths, it was noted that Stephen W. Dunn was born in 1842 and died in 1923.

(An 1893 Lexington directory lists Stephen W. Dunn, Negro, as a partner in the Blackburn and Dunn furniture business at 162 and 18 East Vine street. A 1902 directory lists Dunn as operating a furniture business at 244 West Vine street. Dunn's home address was listed as 162 North Upper street.)

The Bible, profusely illustrated and bound in leather with silver clasps, is about five inches thick. It bears no date to show when it was printed but the publishing firm showed after its name a list of gold medals it had won for fine printing work. The latest date of an award was 1885. All the exhibits had been carefully wrapped before being filed away, and the Bible is in practically perfect condition.

Acree Austin, clerk of the court, said it probably had been sent to the court as an exhibit to prove birth dates in a suit over insurance or over a will.

As for the false teeth and dentist tools, Austin speculated they were exhibits taken from a dentist bill, the bottle of liquor probably was concerned with some suit over trade rights and the dentures of water possibly were sent as evidence in some suit over polioing a well.

He said the whiskey had partly evaporated and bore almost no resemblance to liquor in smell.

Exhibits of various kinds come to the court along with records and briefs in appeals from the lower courts. Austin explained that after the case had been decided, exhibits are preserved carefully until called for. Many exhibits are taken back by the litigants or their attorneys. Once a case has been finally ruled on the exhibits have no legal value but clerks have hesitated to destroy them because some might be of value to the original owners.

"The members of the court inspected the exhibits taken from the old storeroom," Austin said. "Papers that would have any value to the lower courts were directed sent to them. The court directed that the Bible be kept in the hope that some relatives of Mr. Dunn would identify it and claim it."

"The other things were destroyed since there was no reason for retaining them."

The average age of Judges now on the Kentucky Court of Appeals is 61 years. Twenty years ago the average age of the seven judges was 65.

Dream Kitchens Becoming A Reality To Rowan Women

In the back of every woman's mind is a picture of a kitchen she would someday love to own. This dream has come true for many women in Rowan County. This year the homemakers have emphasized this of their major homemakers lesson. Many hours of planning have been spent in order to have a step-saving arrangement.

127 Crippled Children From Rowan Treated

Examinations have been given 127 crippled children from Rowan County since the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children was organized 30 years ago. Most of this number have received definite corrective treatment.

This was announced today by Mr. A. B. Bowne, local chairman of the Easter Seal Campaign, which opened March 5 and will continue through April 5.

The examination and treatments were given, the chairman explained, by the medical staff of the Kentucky Crippled Children Commission, official State agency.

The Commission was established by the Legislature in 1924, largely through influence of the Society, at this time only one year old itself.

The initial State appropriation of $10,000 for this purpose has been increasing steadily, as a result of continued efforts by the Society; and State appropriations now are matched by Federal appropriations.

Still, a considerable portion of the cost must be borne by the Society, which has raised the funds largely through the Easter Seal Campaign.

Every year when State and Federal appropriations run out—as they always do, the Commission must come to the Society for supplementary funds.

Last year, the Society approved 48 grants-in-aid totaling more than $48,000 to enable the Commission to carry out its program.

This was the largest item in the Society's $193,677 program of treatment, education and rehabilitation of crippled children throughout the state.

In addition to its aid to the Commission, the Society operates facilities of its own, best-known of which is Cardinal Hill Convalescent Hospital, Lexington.

It is not at all important to have the kitchen streamlined as many believe. The height at which you can keep a good posture and work in comfort differs with the different height of women. Sometimes it is important to have different heights according to need.

The Moore home was destroyed by fire several years ago. A beautiful five room frame was built on the same location. It has been the dream for several years for Geneva to own a beautiful kitchen. Mr. and Mrs. Moore have two daughters, Joyce, 14 and a freshman at Breck High School and Marlene, four, at home.

The Moores live on a 221 acre farm located in the Licking River section. They are members of the Rowan County Farm and Home Development Program and have completed the plan for a five year farm and home improvement program.

They are active in community

ALBEN KEEPS 'EM GUESSING

Will Barkley Run For Governor Or Senator Is Question

(By Dick Kirkpatrick, in Cincinnati Enquirer) From all indications the annual big affair of Kentucky Democrats—the Jefferson-Jackson dinner—will be held next month at the convenience of a man who holds no political office. Alben W. Barkley, No. 476 has as yet been set, the Democrats apparently awaiting the pleasure of Mr. Barkley.

President of the United States and Senate majority leader, Barkley, it is said positively to the fact that the Veep wants to do what he has had the key to party unity and harmony plans of others could be messed up by Mr. Barkley. Does he want to run for the six-year term for the Senate next year when he will be 76 years old? Or does he want to run for the four-year term of governor in 1955 when he will be 77? Or is he content not to seek political office again?

to regain for Kentucky the seat last November to a Republican, Sen. John Sherman Cooper.

One does not need to climb a tall tree to see evidence of the start of such a build-up for Mr. Barkley—at least in areas where his friends are strong. If for other reasons, those who have been influential as a result of their close friendship with Mr. Barkley face the loss of their influence.

Conflicting with this possible development however, is the sentiment, especially strong in Frankfort, for Governor Wetherby for senator.

Close associates of Mr. Wetherby have been noncommittal in talking about what interest the governor may or may not have in the senate race, but several months ago there was a report that the party "high command" and the governor to make himself ready for the race.

However, since that time there has been some signs that Governor Wetherby would not be interested in making the Senate race. In fact there was a hint that the administration leadership of Governor Wetherby and Senator Clement would favor Mr. Barkley for the Senate race.

Nevertheless, Governor Wetherby's name still is mentioned strongly by his friends, who foresee the possibility that the falling farm prices in the nation may be blamed on the Republican national administration and make Senator Cooper's race hard one in rural Kentucky next year.

There is the additional factor that keeps Mr. Wetherby as a senatorial prospect? He will have served four years in the senate (by virtue of serving the last year Senatorial term) on his own terms when Mr. Wetherby moved up from lieutenant governor by November next year and there will be nothing in sight for the governor in 1955 through the first 6 months of 1955 are likely to be higher than a year earlier.

Number Of Cattle In Kentucky Is On The Increase

A statement from the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics shows that cattle numbers in Kentucky increased from 1,722,000 in Jan. 1, 1952 to 1,843,000 this year. Figures are taken from the crop reporting board of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The average value now is put at $17.7 a head, compared to $15.7 a year ago and a 10-year average is $20. Cows and heifers kept for milk numbered 681,000 head the first of this year, compared to 685,000 a year ago and a 10-year average of 640,000 head. The average value was estimated at $152, compared to $190 on Jan. 1, 1952, and a 10-year average of $107.

Hogs and pigs on Kentucky farms on Jan. 1 numbered 1,100,000 head, 250,000 less than in 1952. Their average value was $20.90, against $21 a head in 1952 and an average of $22.20 over the past 10 years. Sheep numbers are now estimated at 668,000 head, about the same as in 1952. Kentucky farmers had 10,519,000 chickens the first of this year, exclusive of commercial broilers. This is a slight decrease from over 11 million in 1952.

'FARMER' OR 'FARMERS' DEPOT IS NO MORE

Farmers, Stop in Old Confederate Cross Roads, No Longer Has A Railroad Station

At 4 o'clock Thursday Edward Evans, agent at the former railroad station in Rowan County, turned the door keys and handed them over to a representative of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad.

This ended the existence of what was once one of the more important transportation links in Eastern Kentucky.

Writing about the '61 rebellion (Civil War) Moody said: "Farmers is a key point in the Confederate Cross Roads." The Cross Roads he referred to, is known better in history as the Henry Clay Main Road, extending from Mayville eastward to Ashland and from Mayville south to Farmers and West Liberty, Mail was carried by horseback and freight by oxen. It arrived at Mayville by Ohio River steamer and barge.

Located one mile east of the river in Rowan County was the postoffice that supplied all residents for miles around. This was known as Farmers, Ky.

Later came the Elizabethtown, Lexington and Big Sandy Railroad and this company wanted to buy the land where the postoffice stood. The owner, John Ingram, according to history demanded an "outrageous" price and the railroad purchased from Bob McIntyre, a site half-a-mile away. The railroad was incited at Ingram's high price demand for his land and in retaliation dropped the 'r' from the name of the town and called their station Farmer, Ky.

Ingram suffered another blow when the government moved its postoffice near the new railroad station, but from available records the official postoffice retained the name, "Farmers."

Therefore, the town on the Western edge of Rowan County, which boomed in those days, and was larger than Morehead, has two names, "Farmer" and "Farmers."

The Elizabethtown, Lexington and Big Sandy Railroad Company constructed in 1862 a one-mile depot building for handling passenger ticket sales and a thriving freight business.

In 1890 they sold to the Chesapeake and Ohio, one of the expanding and growing rail companies of the nation.

The depot burned in 1911 and for two or three years it served this purpose.

In 1913 the town of Farmers was destroyed and Dr. T. A. Evans and the late Dr. Howard VanAntwerp were members of the town council. One of the acts of the new and aggressive town council was to build a public subscription, to build a new railroad station.

It was they worked out that Dr. VanAntwerp furnished stone for his extensive quarries in this community. The town council put $500 for other materials and the Chesapeake and Ohio furnished the labor.

This arrangement proved a nestegg for the railroad 37 years later when they attempted to discontinue the station. Residents of Farmers, including Dr. Evans, contended the materials were furnished with the understanding that Chesapeake and Ohio would always keep the station open. But, recently, the opposition died because everyone knows there just isn't any business left and the Railroad Company granted the request to do away with the station, which they did at 4 o'clock Thursday

First agent at the depot was F. J. Friel. In 1919 B. F. Penix (now agent at Morehead) was appointed agent at Farmers. In 1922 the agent's place went to Edward Evans and he served until Thursday, when he was transferred to Haldeman.

From Civil War Days until the early part of this century the depot did a thriving business, the impetus coming principally from large saw-mill and stove plants and rock quarries. Logs were floated from Morgan and Magoffin counties down the meandering River and sawed at Farmers.

THE LAST MESSAGE—Edward Evans is shown sending the last message that went out of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Station at Farmer, Chesapeake and Ohio discontinued the depot, since an important stop on the Confederate Cross Roads, Thursday at 4 p. m. Near the turn of the century the amount of business handled at Farmer was three or four times as that at Morehead but in recent years passenger and freight transactions haven't been adequate to keep the fire burning.

We hear a lot of interesting things, too. Things we like to pass along to all of you because we know you'd enjoy hearing about them. So from now on, we're going to appear in this newspaper every week. Don't fret, we're not going to be political analysts or news commentators. In fact, we're going to make a point of staying away from such topics.

During the coming weeks this column will attempt to touch with calm understanding on a thought, a belief or a credo which will help us all to gain a better insight and a truer perspective of mankind.

We believe that mankind in his progress—sometimes faltering, sometimes stumbling, but never quite falling—has gained an expectation but unsure foothold on the threshold of absolute maturity. To better understand our future we must first better understand our motives and our beliefs. Engineers To Start Survey At Paragon

Morgan And Rowan Counties Will Be Mapped This Fall

Field operations in connection with the mapping program in Rowan and Morgan counties will be undertaken when the cooperative team of engineers begins ground survey work near Paragon, according to Phil M. Miles, chief of the Maps and Minerals Division of the State Agricultural and Industrial Development Board.

The operations are part of a statewide topographic mapping program initiated in 1949 by the Development Board through an agreement with the U. S. Department of Interior's Geological Survey, with the state defraying one half the cost of the $7,000,000 program.

The engineering party will be under the direction of J. A. Mathias of the U. S. Geological Survey staff. The work to be undertaken is known as the southwest section of the Morehead quadrangle.

Made from aerial photographs, the new map will be about the size of a newspaper and at a scale such that 2,000 feet on the ground will be exactly one inch on the map. The map will cover an area eight miles long and seven miles wide. Showing roads, streets, ponds, the slope of the land, schools, churches, and houses, the new map will be useful to farmers, engineers, teachers, and civic leaders.

The world's industrial production last year increased more than ten per cent over the 1951 figure, to a point one-third higher than the 1948 level, according to a report to the United Nations.

Breck Student Wins Regional Safety Title

Breckinridge Training School didn't win the basketball championship, but a Breck student, Fred White, is the best driver in the eight counties comprising the 16th high school region.

White, 17 years old, put on what state police said was a "marvelous" exhibition of skill as he drove a truck in the safety contests at Winchester last week.

Under a cooperative arrangement, started this year, the Kentucky Fair Board sponsors the safety contests of the other 15 regions in Kentucky at the State Fair.

Unusual about White's victory, State Police said, was that he drove a truck while most of the other entries operated an automobile. One phase of the elimination contest involves driving through a maze of zig-zag barriers, more difficult for a truck than a regular passenger automobile.

Compromise On Tax Plan Is Urged By Many

Republican Leaders Hope To Avert Bitter, Tumultuous Debate

Some influential Republicans are working up a compromise plan to try to avert a tumultuous floor fight over taxes that could tie up the House for weeks.

Such a prospect has been posed by the avowed plans of Chairman Reed (R-NY) of the ways and means committee to force his bill to cut individual income taxes to the House floor. Under House rules, if Reed goes through with his plan the bill would be wide open to amendments.

The House usually avoids an "open" tax bill like the plague, on the theory that the House would be swamped by amendments—most of them granting tax reductions. Almost every House member has his own pet tax idea.

Veteran House parliamentary experts said today they could recall only one occasion—in 1922—when a major tax bill was open to amendments on the floor from any one of the 485 members.

On that occasion 21 years ago the same process by ways and means Chairman Clegg (D-Ga.) Some 150 to 200 amendments were

Hope Held That Eastern Kentucky Coal Might Be Best Source For Germanium

Certain coal veins in Eastern Kentucky contain nearly eight times as much Germanium—the $500-a-pound mineral needed by the electronics industry—as any previously discovered deposits of the rare mineral, Henry Brown, engineer for the Fairmont Coal & Coke Company of Fairmont, Va., says.

Brown is the engineer who reported in New York January 11 that richer deposits of the mineral than any yet found had been discovered in Eastern Kentucky coal seams. Mr. Brown and his company have prospected for coal in the Appalachian region for two years.

Hansford May, secretary of the Prestonsburg Chamber of Commerce, who has been working with Brown several weeks, said the mineral was in coal seams in the general region of Floyd county. Brown, however, has declined to reveal the exact location of his discovery.

In an address to the Prestonsburg group, Brown held out hopes for Eastern Kentucky to realize something industrially from this newly discovered resource, but admitted there is a lot to be done yet—"a mighty lot."

Still declining to reveal location of the germanium-rich coal seam, Brown however told the Floyd group that it has germanium content of 7.7 thousandths of 1 per cent as compared to an average of 1 thousandths of 1 per cent.

The U. S. Bureau of Mines has estimated that from the average coal vein with its one-thousandths of one per cent germanium content the recoverable germanium would be worth about $7 to the ton of coal. The Eastern Kentucky vein reported by Brown would, on that basis yield more than $50 worth of the precious mineral per ton of coal. Germanium sells for approximately $350 a pound.

Asked in a question-and-answer period at the conclusion of his talk what specific benefits may be realized for this section, Mr. Brown said, "If the right people talk to the right people, a pilot plant for this section might be possible."

He mentioned the interest of the Signal Corps in germanium and in the deposits found near here. He also pointed out that one firm may be contacted about such a plant, but declined to Miss Lida Lou Clayton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Clayton of 504 College Boulevard, Morehead, and a sophomore at Smith College, is a member of the orchestra which accompanies the original dance-drama adaptation of Gabriel D'Annunzio's "Daughter of Jorio." The production will feature the cooperation of the Smith College departments of theater and music. Miss Edith Burnett, associate professor of dance, is directing the production and has created the chorography of the bill say it would help the tobacco grower by expanding his market for cheaper grades of leaf. And they say, it would enable small independent manufacturers to compete with the big tobacco companies.

But the growers of Kentucky, Tennessee and other states are convinced the bill would hurt rather than help them. It would, they say, put a premium on low and medium grades of leaf at the expense of high-grade tobacco. And it is the top quality leaf that the grower makes their money.

Miss Clayton Member Of Smith College Orchestra

Thus, the federal tax on regular and king sized cigarettes of 20 compared to eight cents on a package of regularly priced cigarettes to sell them to retail at five cents less a package than standard cigarettes.

This differential would be maintained after April 1, 1954, when the tax on standard-priced cigarettes would drop to $3.50 a thousand and the levy on the cheaper smokes would fall to $2.45 a thousand.

Simpson, Associated Tobacco Manufacturers and other advocates of the bill say it would help the tobacco grower by expanding his market for cheaper grades of leaf. And they say, it would enable small independent manufacturers to compete with the big tobacco companies.

KENTUCKY TOBACCO MEN WORRIED

Burley Growers Contend Cheap Fags Will Endanger Farmers

Tobacco men and members of Congress from Kentucky, Tennessee and other tobacco growing states are marshaling forces against a bill to reduce taxes on low-priced cigarettes.

The tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee will open its hearing March 25 on the measure, introduced by Rep. Simpson (Pa.). The hearing is expected to continue for several days and many Kentuckians and Tennesseans probably will testify against the bill.

The bill would reduce the tax on cigarettes manufactured to retail at not more than 13 cents, exclusive of state and local taxes, from $4 a thousand to $2.90 a thousand. The $4 a thousand tax on standard and high priced cigarettes would not be changed.

Thus, the federal tax on regular and king size cigarettes of the so-called economy brands would be 5.8 cents a package of 20 compared to eight cents on a package of regularly priced smokes. This, proponents of the bill claim, would allow the manufacturers of cheap brands of cigarettes to sell them to retail at five cents less a package than standard cigarettes.

Thus, the federal tax on regular and king sized cigarettes of 20 compared to eight cents on a package of regularly priced cigarettes to sell them to retail at five cents less a package than standard cigarettes.

They contend that the Congressmen from tobacco states, almost without exception, are ready to stand behind the growers in their fight against the graduated tax.

A similar bill was before the House and means committee in 1950 and reportedly was turned down in committee by a single vote. At that time, Rep. Dougherty (D-N.C.), chairman of the committee, opposed the graduated tax plan.

The new Republican chairman of the committee, Rep. Reed (N.Y.) is expected to favor the tax proposal and a case committee vote is forecast on Simpson's bill.

Rep. Cooper (D-Tenn.) is perhaps in the best spot to oppose the measure. As ranking Democrat on the committee, he is in position to rally the opposition forces who will attempt to defeat the measure in committee.

But Cooper would make no prediction regarding the probable committee vote. There are six new members on the committee, he told a reporter, "and I do not know how they are likely to vote."

One of the new committee members in Rep. Baker (R-Tenn.) Baker declined to commit himself in advance regarding his stand on the bill, but his district grows a lot of tobacco and he is expected to oppose the bill when the showdown comes.

Rep. Gregory (D-Ky.) is the only other member of the 25-man committee from Kentucky or Tennessee. A strong foe of the legislation in 1950, he told a newsman he is prepared to fight it again this year. But he would make no prediction of the outcome, saying it depends almost entirely on the new members of the group.

Opponents of the tax bill have not yet fully outlined their plans and strategy, but a number of men from Kentucky and Tennessee, in addition to the congressmen, are expected to testify against it.

These include John M. Berry, Newcastle, Ky., representing the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association; Clyde Austin, Greenville, Tenn., tobacco dealer; R. H. Proctor, representing the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation; and William C. Clay, Mt. Sterling, Ky., representing the Burley Auction Warehouse Association.

It was Clay who three years ago told the committee:

"Cheap cigarettes mean cheap tobacco—invariably and always." He told the committee then and is expected to repeat that it's a joke to suggest that the graduated tax is designed to benefit the tobacco growers.

Owner Lester Huster said $3,790 in checks also were burned.

All propaganda is not obvious or whole untruths.
