103-Year-Old Susie Lawhorn Says, 'Smokin's Healthy For Me'

'Pipe smoking is one of the more pleasurable things for Susie Lawhorn who will celebrate her 103rd birthday August 30. She says a doctor prescribed the pipe for her stomach problems, when she was 10 years old. (Staff photo by Joe Lamb)

About 93 years ago a doctor in Olive Hill told 10-year-old Susie Hall that smoking a pipe might help ease her stomach problems.

Today, Susie Hall Lawhorn, who will be 103 next Saturday, says that pipe is one of the things which has helped her live such a long life.

"Smokin's healthy for me," says Susie, checking the pipe to see if there is any tobacco left in it. Her favorite brand is Bugler and the nurses at Life Care Center in Morehead, where she is a resident, permit her to smoke whenever they have time to be in the room with her, usually after meals and a couple times during the day.

Susie has been at the nursing home in Morehead for about eight years, according to her daughter, Stella Bryant, 75, of Olive Hill. Prior to that she was able to get around pretty much on her own, her daughter says.

As you might expect for a 103-year-old woman, things sometimes get a little muddled when she tries to remember dates and numbers, but in a lot of ways, Susie's mind is still clear. She can sing all the words to "On Top Of Old Smokey" and a couple of other songs which probably date back to her childhood days growing up at Smokey Valley in Carter County.

Ask Susie how many children she's had and she'll say, "I've had my number." That number is 11 and five of them are still living. According to her daughter, those children include Jack Lawhorn, Jethro Lawhorn, Amy Lambert and George Lawhorn. The youngest is 32 and the oldest is over 75. Mrs. Bryant isn't quite sure about the ages.

Susie's husband, Jess, died about 30 years ago. She says that he was crippled and that she had to work to help support the family. Neither Susie nor her daughter are

Nine Arrested In Drug Raid

In one of the biggest drug busts ever in Rowan County, state police officers and Rowan County sheriff's officers arrested nine area men Wednesday night on charges of trafficking in controlled substances.

Investigation begun last November when five undercover narcotics officers were called in from Frankfort, Mirus said the officers had worked the area sporadically since then.

Hinton, Haldeman, Roger Pennington, Rt. 1, Olive Hill; Jeff McIntosh, Morehead; James Daniel Dillon, Rt. 4, Morehead; Dwayne Pennington, Rt. 5, Morehead; Mitchell Pennington, Morehead; Versell Boyles, Rt. 3, Morehead; John Waddell, Rt. 3, Morehead; and James Ivan Plank, Morehead.

Mirus said the nine men, who ranged in ages from 20 to 25, were arrested on charges of trafficking in a variety of controlled substances, including hashish, amphetamines, quaaludes and marijuana. There were no charges involving cocaine, Mirus said.

All nine of those arrested were lodged in the Rowan County jail on bonds ranging from $500 to $1,000. All but two of the suspects had been released on bond as of Thursday morning, according to Jailor Roger Thomas.

Two of the men, Pennington and Waddell, were charged on felony warrants — Pennington for trafficking in LSD and Waddell with trafficking in methaqualone and LSD, both felony counts.

The arrests resulted from an investigation begun last November when five undercover narcotics officers were called in from Frankfort, Mirus said the officers had worked the area sporadically since then.

The arrests were made Wednesday night by the narcotics officers, five uniformed officers, Rowan County Sheriff Jim Nickell and a sheriff's deputy. The arrests began about 4:30 p.m. and ended about 8 p.m.

Those arrested included: Ricky

Robert Strosnider, staff recreation specialist with the Daniel Boone National Forest supervisor's office in Winchester, said yesterday that a feasibility study on the site has been completed.

should not be a requirement for the developer of the lodge.

That study, conducted by Midwest Research Institute of Kansas City, Missouri, at a cost of about $10,000, concluded that it would be feasible to construct a 200-room lodge and marina at the Caney site.

That a new access off Interstate 64 be constructed to make access to the Caney site off KY 801 easier.

Under the Forest Service plan, Strosnider said, about 750 acres of the Caney site could be developed. He said 30 acres of that could be leased to the lodge developer for a period of 30 years which additional acreage leased on a yearly basis.

Strosnider said funding of that construction, which he placed a "ballpark" figure on of about $2 million, is still uncertain.

That there be adequate promotion and marketing of the Cave Run region to attract visitors.

A great deal of local interest has been generated about the possibility of developing a state park at Cave Run Lake but Worms told the Tourism Commission that the current economic climate in Frankfort has made "state support for a state park a difficult prospect."

The MRI study concluded that construction of the infra structures would have to be done by a government agency to make the lodge construction by private developers feasible.

Without bar sales, revenues decline dramatically, going to $278,600 the first year and $498,600 within five years.

Worms said a development at Cave Run by private enterprise is feasible but only if the costs for infra structures are borne by one or more public agencies.

Dr. Worms pointed out Wednesday night there is usually no problem with renewing Forest Service contracts on an annual basis.

The report said, "Significant public investment would be required (the 1-64 interchange and the infra structures) and local laws regarding the sales of alcoholic beverages would need to be revised before this investment opportunity would be highly attractive."

Worms said in his view the 1-64 interchange was a critical factor. But Strosnider said that isn't a key to the economic success. He added, however, "Anytime you get direct access, it is important."

Dr. Worms worked with MRI in development of the feasibility study. Worms told the local group there was a "big push" to get the study completed by July 10 in order to make it available for bids as soon as possible.

Strosnider said yesterday that a feasibility study on the site has been completed.

Worms said that such things as energy efficiency, financial capability of the developer, management capability and the actual proposal for utilization of the site, would all be considered in awarding the bid to a developer.

Among the things in the MRI report which were identified as being important to the development of the lodge facility were:

Hot Weather Cuts School Days Short

For probably the first time in the Rowan County school system's history, classes were dismissed early yesterday and today due to heat.

Superintendent John Brock said complaints from several teachers led him to postpone the decision to end school at 1:30 p.m. both days. Should Friday's temperature be lower, plans for the early closing will not be changed, Brock said; his parents will have made arrangements.

Brock was given the authority to cancel school in case of heat at the last regularly scheduled meeting of the Board of Education. Afternoons missed will not have to be made up.

Even though Clearfield and Elliottville Grade School have air conditioners provided by P.T.A.s, those schools will not have afternoon classes. Brock explained that the closing of one school means all others are closed too, as there can't be two different bus schedules.

Tilden Hogge Principal Foley Partin said until noon, students "make it pretty well, but after that, it's miserable." The Parents Teachers Organization bought a fan for all the rooms, and shades are being adjusted to let the air in and sunshine out. Even so, the temperature inside the building Wednesday afternoon was 90 degrees, and at least five degrees warmer in the classrooms, Partin said.

Members of the Morehead Tourism Commission reviewed the study Wednesday night with Dr. Allen Worms, a recreation and tourism specialist from the University of Kentucky extension service.

Comments from school officials in the county show that the dismissal was merited. Farmers Grade School Principal James O. Botts described the ### Small Tornado?

High winds, hail and heavy rainfall ripped through a two-mile area along Christy Creek Wednesday between 5 and 6 p.m. Residents in the area basted themselves yesterday cleaning up fallen limbs and other debris. Lawrence Pennington gathered a truck load of branches from yards and alongside KY 32. The strong winds, which some residents compared to a small tornado, uprooted some trees such as the huge oak pictured. The hail and wind also did considerable damage to gardens and tobacco crops such as the field shown here on Marvin Johnson's farm. Johnson's brother, Roger Johnson, said the hail the size of marbles riddled the tobacco, adding that the crop will now have to be cut and put in the barn to salvage it. (Staff photos by Alice Akin)

Wallet With $1,300 Returned

"He was elated." That was how state police dispatcher Dwight Clark described the reaction of a Virginia man when his wallet containing $1,300 was returned to him.

Scott Rigden, a student, apparently dropped the billfold out of his Toyota, Wednesday morning when he stopped at the weigh scales in the west-bound lane of Interstate 64 in Rowan County. When T.H. Pritchard, an officer with the state police's division of security and compliance, drove up to open the scales about 30 minutes later, he found the wallet.

Clark said the man's home in Anadole, Va., was called but police were informed Rigden was on his way to school in Idaho.

Meanwhile, Rigden had made it to Shelbyville, Ky. when he learned the billfold was missing. He drove back to Rowan County to look for it.

Finally, in desperation after an unsuccessful search, Rigden called the state police post in Morehead and was eventually reunited with his wallet about 1:30 p.m.

"When you put yourself in a hot classroom, it's hard to get your mind on

A few children throughout the county reportedly went home sick, but officials were not certain if the illnesses were heat related.

Morehead Police Report

Two Morehead juveniles ages 15 and 17 will make restitution for vandalizing a Morehead City Police traffic control cruiser, Police Chief Fred Barnsdale said. In July, less than a month after the cruiser was freed, it was wrecked, then had a concrete block thrown through its windshield and the blue light damaged while parked in a service lot. Lt. Robert Wright successfully solved the case, the chief said, and the matter, heard by Judge James Clay, is being handled outside the courts. The boys must make restitution, must adhere to a curfew and participate in Morehead Athletic League activities.

Two vehicles were removed from the scene of a collision on Main St. Wednesday morning. Sue L. Christian, 34, Morehead, was coming from Trumbo Ave. onto Main and Larry J. Cassidy, 20, Morehead, was traveling east on Main when the accident occurred in the middle of the intersection. Officer Mickey Reiffitt investigated.

Pennington and Hinton both had their initial appearances on the charges in Rowan District Court Thursday morning.

Hinton pleaded not guilty to a charge of selling a counterfeit substance and was released on his own recognizance. A jury trial on the misdemeanor charge was set for Nov. 6 at 9 a.m.

City Seeking Residents

Census Missed

Residents of the city of Morehead who were not contacted by the Census Bureau are being urged to contact City Hall.

City Engineer Albert McNeely said Wednesday that he has had only one person contact the city about not being counted.

City officials believe as many as 700 people may not have been counted when the census was taken earlier this year.

McNeely said the census counted 7,400 people in Morehead and he hopes to gather enough evidence to substantiate a population of at least 8,100.

McNeely said persons contacting City Hall would not be required to fill out a form. He said the person's name will be forwarded to the census office in Ashland for further processing.

The census is important to city government, officials say, because funding for federal and state programs are often based on the population.

business people involved.

Other things he said were important in getting the state Department of Local Government involved; having the leadership in the area counties talking with the Forest Service supervisor and offering their assistance, and getting the Department of Transportation interested in building the interchange.

As to the benefits to the area, Worms said there have been no specific studies although he concluded that Morehead would likely be the "real service center" for the development. He said that the benefits would also be great for Salt Lick and Farmers.

"The market of consumers would be much larger and the net benefit would be greater," Worms said.

Other things Worms said would be important is that promotion of the area and creating greater day-use activities on the lake. He said the development needs more than just people staying overnight.

Worms said that "right now activities are fairly limited at Cave Run." He said the area can attract people who are looking for things to do at closer destinations.

Employees Trained In Handling Spills Of Hazardous Waste

FRANKFORT - Fifty employees of the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection have spent a week learning about hazardous-waste materials spills and how to respond to them.
Representatives of the divisions of Water, Air Pollution Control and Hazardous Materials Waste Management participated in the National Hazardous Material Training Course conducted by specialists from the federal Environmental Protection Agency, a private industry and Vanderbilt University.
"This is the first exposure to hazardous waste incidents for many of the inspectors," said Charles Collier, emergency response coordinator for the Natural Resources Department. "This program provides a good basis for continued training in this area."
The training session is one of the Natural Resources Department's first steps toward becoming the lead agency in spill response. That responsibility was delegated to the agency by the 1980 General Assembly.
Although the department has no safety and protective equipment yet, training has begun, Collier said. As the emergency response system is formalized, equipment will be purchased, he added.

What started out as a search for salt has become a $200 million business in Kentucky.
A salt well two miles south of Monticello was abandoned in 1815 because, according to a newspaper report of the time, "petroleum was found in such quantities as to ruin it as a salt well." Salt was a money-making mineral then, bringing about $12 a barrel, while oil brought much less.
Three years later, Martin Beatty, Marcus Huling and Andrew Simmerman were drilling for salt brine in which is now McCrery County. They, too, had their hopes dashed when oil began flooding the well.
In an effort to gain some profits for their efforts they hauled barrels out over rough trails, selling the crude oil to the makers of Mustang Liniment, Seneca Oil, British Oil and other "wonder drugs" of the day.
They were also sued over the well. The heavy, black oil flowed into the South Fork of the Cumberland River, spreading from bank to bank. It also clung to the feathers of the cranes in the area. Since they made money by selling goose feathers, they sued for damages. Before the case went to court a flood drowned out the well.
"I'll get salt or strike hell trying," a driller said as he tried to sink a salt well on Little Renox Creek near Burkesville in the spring of 1829. On March 11, believing they were near salt, the men drilled well into the night, working by torchlight. Suddenly the crude drill pierced through rock. Natural gas rushed up the hole and was ignited by the torches.

"I've struck hell, my God, have mercy," the terrified driller cried as he fled the scene. He was never seen in Cumberland County again.
Oil was in this well, too. It also spilled in the Cumberland River, but instead of tarring geese it caught fire. The well was eventually brought under control and the oil, bottled in Burkesville, was marketed as "American Medicinal Oil, Burkesville, Ky." It sold at 50 cents for a half-pint bottle.
It was touted as a cure for "Cholic, Rheumatism, Pthisis, Chronic Diseases, Burns, Scalds, Fresh Cuts, Old Sores, Scald Head and Sprains in the human body - and Bots, Sore Backs, Scratches, Splint, Fresh Wounds and Strains in Horses." Dosage was a teaspoon to a tablespoon for a human, half or a whole bottle for a horse.
Crude oil was sometimes used in a lamp, but it produced heavy smoke and an offensive odor. In 1853 a physician suggested oil might be used as a lubricant and the rest is history.

More than $10 billion in credit has been extended to armed forces veterans for home buying since 1944 under the Veterans Administration GI Bill loan guaranty program.
Veterans Administration tuition assistance has gone to some 400,000 children, widows or wives of, permanently and totally disabled service-connected veterans or those whose deaths were service connected.

County Judge/Executive Must Initiate Board Removals, Attorney General Says

A county-appointed board member must be removed by the county judge/executive with the approval of fiscal court if showing "misconduct" as a board member or upon conviction of a felony," according to a recent state attorney general's opinion for Rowan County.

Although two statutes were in conflict over who removes a board member, the later enactment prevails and the county judge/executive must initiate the removal, according to the opinion written by Assistant Attorney General Thomas R. Emerson.

The opinion was requested by Rowan Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery.

Also in opinions requested from

Rowan County, road and bridge construction and maintenance and priorities for road and bridge programs and a matter for the fiscal court, according to an opinion by Assistant Attorney General Charles W. Runyan.

Runyan wrote the opinion in response to a letter from County Attorney John Cox who had several questions relating to county government.

Runyan also advised Cox the overall administration of the road and bridge program is the responsibility of the county judge/executive. The road supervisor reports to the judge/executive. If the fiscal court wants a report from the road supervisor, it should request that report through the judge/executive.

In answer to a third question, Runyan wrote that the county judge/executive alone has no authority to recess the fiscal court. That action can be taken only by the fiscal court as a body.

Flannery has often recessed fiscal court meetings in the belief that magistrates could not call a special meeting while the court is in recess.

In another recent opinion, the attorney general said a person may hold two state offices, or a state office and state employment at the same time.

The opinion, written by Deputy Attorney General Robert Chenoweth, stated that as long as the two positions are compatible, which "depends on the character and relation of the offices," they are legal under the state constitution and statutory laws.

The opinion was requested by John M. Keith Jr., a Cynthia attorney.

Opinions issued by the state attorney general's office interpret state statutes, but do not carry the force of law.

Letter To The Editor

The Editor:

I think there should be a law against killing animals.

My family and I live on Sharkey Road and we had a Collie, but a person driving a car hit her and killed her. It was during the day and there was not another car on the road, she didn't even attempt to stop, to slow down and beep her horn, or to pull into the other lane and miss her.

Our dog never went on the road. That day she went with my uncle across the road and he was with her. There were many ways the person could have avoided hitting her.

The person did not stop. She hit our neck and threw her checker 25 ft. away from the body. My uncle witnessed the accident; the dog was his friend and his guard.

Has he identified the car and driver? This person didn't have the courtesy to stop and apologize or say, "Can I help?"

There should be a law to protect innocent animals. If this person doesn't come to my family and apologize we will be obligated to call the Humane Society, and they will take the case from there.

Thank You
Laura Tutich

THOUGHT FOR FOOD

Holiday Egglog
For 12 cups you'll need 6 egg yolks, 1/4 cup sugar, 6 egg whites, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 quarts milk, 1/2 cup rum or 2 tablespoons rum flavor, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Beat egg yolks and 1/4 cup sugar until thick and lemon colored. In a separate bowl beat egg whites to soft peak stage. Gently fold egg yolks into egg whites. Blend in milk, rum, vanilla and salt. Chill thoroughly. Serve with mounds of whipped cream and grated nutmeg.

This makes 12 generous cups, so depending on the size of yours will determine the number of servings.

Generic Foods
Several food chains are adjusting to rising prices by introducing "generic foods" that contain no brand names. They are labeled simply "beans," "peas" or whatever. Generic foods are less carefully packed and may vary in size from name brands. But tests reveal variations in quality are slight and that generics are just as nutritious as the deluxe brands. In some cases, generics sell for as much as 30 per cent less than the advertised brands. Amsco's items sold as generics are peanut butter, vegetable oil, canned corn and canned peas.

ROWAN REPORT

New Teachers Join Staff

The Rowan Report, a publication from the Rowan County Board of Education, is presently being distributed throughout the county and to other school districts. Karen Sloan, high school teacher and former annual staff advisor, was in charge of this first effort, which is expected to be continued on a quarterly basis. Copies will be delivered to post offices, waiting rooms and other frequented areas.

ACT Information At Guidance Office

Many universities throughout the United States require seniors to take the American College Test. These applications are available in the guidance office of Rowan County High School. Seniors may sign up for the tests to be given at the following dates: Oct. 18 and Dec. 13, 1980; Feb. 14, March 29 and June 13, 1981. All students should see Lloyd Dean, counselor at Rowan County High School, for the information.

Scout Night Set For Sept.

School Night for Scouting, a special program to enroll new Cubs, Scouts and their parents, will be conducted throughout the central and eastern Kentucky area in late August and September.

The School Nights are sponsored by the Blue Grass Council, Boy Scouts of America and will occur in every elementary school on designated evenings during this time period. Almost 500 schools in 50 counties will open their doors to allow new Cubs and Scouts to join.

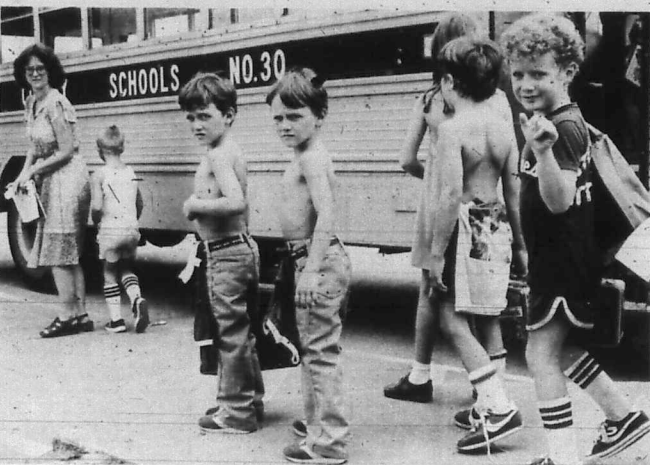

This is the third year for this coordinated effort and over 3,100 youth joined last year. 3,500 new members are expected to join Scouting this year during School Nights, according to Scout officials.

Raymond Barber, Superintendent of Public Instruction for the Commonwealth of Kentucky, is serving as chairman of the School Night program. Mr. Barber heads a group of 1,000 adult volunteer leaders who will conduct the School Night meetings.

Preparation for this comprehensive joining effort has been underway for several months and local school superintendents and principals have given their support.

During each School Night program volunteer leaders will explain the Cub and Scout programs and enroll new members. Parents are asked to attend with their son in order to be informed concerning their son's Scouting activities.

Boys 8, 9 or 10 years old or in the third, fourth or fifth grades may join Cub Scouting and those 11 years old or older or in the sixth grade may join Scouting. There is an annual $2.00 registration fee.

Afternoon classes were dismissed Thursday and today in the Rowan school system due to heat. Wednesday afternoon no one scolded when these Morehead Grade boys removed their shirts on the way to the bus. (Staff photo by Kathy Partin)

How Many Days Until Fall?

Kentucky students exceed national performance standards in 35 out of 36 areas in a test of basic skills given this spring, according to information released by Raymond Barber, superintendent of Public Instruction. Scores by students in Rowan County taking the test are an improvement over last year's results. Lois Carter, elementary counselor, said: "In 44 tests areas, results in six were below national norms, and three of those were below by only one percent. The Kentucky Department of Education recently compiled the data which reflects the combined performance of 200,000 students in grades three, five, seven and ten. Form S of the Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills (CTBS) was used in all 181 local school districts. We carry out the testing mandated by the Educational Improvement Act of 1974. The test makes it possible for districts to compare their students performance to state performance statewide and nationwide performance to national norms. In Rowan, a public hearing for scores comparison will be held in the spring. The Education Improvement Plan is followed in this county as special instruction within the classroom is provided to students falling below national norms.

Third grade Kentucky students exceeded the 77 percent national benchmark in all nine subject areas measured. The strongest performances were in language mechanics, language expression, math computation and reference skills. Spelling, which fell below the national norm last year, exceeded the national norm by 2 percent this year.

Locally, third graders exceeded the benchmark in all but spelling, and were far above the norm in arithmetic computation and reference. In grade five, Kentucky students far exceeded the nation's performance in all of the nine subject areas tested. Relative strengths were language mechanics, language expression and mathematics computation. Rowan fifth graders followed suit and exceeded the nation's average performance in all areas tested. Their highest score was in language mechanics.

In grade seven, the state's students exceeded their counterparts nationwide in all of the nine areas tested. The strongest performances were in language mechanics, language expression, mathematics computation and reference skills. Math, more specifically computation and application, was the only area where seventh graders fell below national norms, and by only one percent in both instances. High score was in social studies.

In grade 10, Kentucky students met the norm in all subject areas tested, with the exception of reading vocabulary. Seventy-six percent of Kentucky students were in the average and above average range of performance compared to 77 percent nationally. The strongest areas in grade 10 were language mechanics, mathematics computation and reference skills.

For tenth graders in Rowan, math was the only area where scores were below national norms. That group was low in concepts and applications, with computation only one percent below the norm.

Local Boys Attend Ky. Sheriffs' Ranch

Tony Trent, Paul Daley and Robert Daley were Rowan Counties attending the Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch in Gilbertsville along with other youngsters ages 9 through 13 from across the state. The primary purpose of the Ranch is to provide recreational activities for the needy and underprivileged. Ranch Director Ray Stoes stated each child receives love, discipline, understanding and religious training to help prepare them for a secure future. He stated the Ranch also gives the children a basic knowledge of how our law enforcement system works.

The Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch is a completely tax deductible organization and is financed by voluntary gifts only. Donations can be mailed to the Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch, Box 57, Gilbertsville, KY 42026 or phone (502) 362-8666, for more information.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

AUGUST 25-31, 1980

Beat the heat with a hasty retreat.

Oysters in season now. Brigham Young died Aug. 29, 1877... Full moon Aug. 25 (a partial eclipse of the moon on Aug. 25 will be visible from most of the country)... Average length of days for the week, 13 hours, 17 minutes... First combination gas-electric auto delivered Aug. 30, 1929... First desecrated, then desecrated.

Ask the Old Farmer: Folks in Maine would threaten to give a child a "tin ear" if he didn't behave. What's the origin of the expression? K.L. Kennebec, Maine. There is more or less reason for supposing that the word was originally "tinge" relating to color and maybe a burning sensation.

Home Hints: A handful of flour bound on a cut stops bleeding. OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS New England: Thundershowers, heavy south, and cool most of week; weekend brings rain. Greater New York-New Jersey: Beginning of week brings thundershowers, cooling temperatures; then rain coast and south, seasonal, by weekend. Middle Atlantic Coastal: Heavy rain, cool temperatures all week; weekend is clear and hot. Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Rain central and west, showers east, and hot through midweek; then heavy thundershowers, seasonal temperatures. Florida: Rain all week; by weekend, rain heavier north, clear central, and showers south. Update New York-Toronto & Montreal: Hot east to start, then cloudy and cool; clearing and warm towards week's end, except for rain east. Greater Ohio Valley: Showers, cloudy skies, cooling temperatures through midweek; then clearing, wet, showers east by week's end. Deep South: Rainy and mild, showers north throughout week and weekend. Chicago & Southern Great Lakes: Gradual clearing and mild begins the week; then sunny, hot, and muggy middle through end of week. Northern Great Plains-Great Lakes: Sunny and very hot most of week, followed by weekend showers. Central Great Plains: Sunny and hot throughout the week, with showers developing for weekend. Texas-Oklahoma: Rain and cool temperatures changing to clear skies and warm midweek; showers southeast by weekend. Rocky Mountain: Showers, cool at week's beginning; then clear and hot middle of week through week's end. ## Little Things Mean A Lot In Reducing Energy Bills

Are energy bills getting you down? The Kentucky Department of Energy has some energy-saving tips that can help.

The biggest single item in the home energy bill just — up to 70 percent of it — is heating and cooling. It is possible to reduce the load on heating and air conditioning equipment by as much as 20 to 30 percent by installing insulation, if the house is not already insulated.

In many instances, this can be a do-it-yourself undertaking. Homeowners should consult with their county agent, a representative of insulation or building supplies dealer, or a local building inspector.

Draft-prying windows and doors by caulking and weatherstripping can also be done by the homeowner, and will keep the warm or cool air inside.

Closing off unoccupied rooms and shutting their heat or air conditioning vents are other ways to cut energy costs. However, closing vents does not apply to heat pump systems, which can be damaged if their vents are shut.

Furnace and air conditioner filters should be cleaned or replaced at least once a month. Dirty filters make the unit work harder. Also, properly serviced and adjusted equipment works more efficiently than improperly tuned units. Make sure that vents are not blocked by furniture, drapes or other objects.

Some cooling energy-saving ideas are:

- Keep out the daytime sun. Exterior awnings or louvers are the best way to do this, but drawing drapes and shades also help. The heat gain from the sun can be reduced as much as 80 percent.
- Keep lights low or, if possible, off. Electric lights generate heat.
- If you have air conditioning, open windows instead of using it on cooler days and during cooler hours.
- Turn off window air conditioners when you will be out of a room for several hours. You'll use less energy cooling the room later, than if you had left it running.
- If you don't have air conditioning, install a ventilating fan in the attic or an upstairs window and use it to cool the house. When the windows are open, the fan draws cool air into the house and exhausts warm air through the attic.

- Keep the windows closed during the hottest part of the day.

About 20 percent of home energy expenses is spent on heating water. Repair leaky faucets or constantly running toilets promptly. Just one drop of hot or cold water in a week can waste as much as 60 gallons of water for the family. Water heaters should be insulated, especially if the heater is located in an unheated area of the house. Check the temperature on the heater. Most are set for 140 degrees or higher, but unless you have a dishwasher, you may find that a setting of 120 degrees will provide enough hot water for the family. Most dishwashers require the 140 degree setting.

Don't let the hot water run while washing dishes, shaving and so on. Taking showers instead of baths also conserves water — it takes about 30 gallons to fill the tub, but a shower with a flow of four gallons of water a minute requires only 20 gallons for five minutes.

Don't do partial loads in dishwashers, washing machines or dryers. Don't overload them either. Remove the lint from a dryer after each load. Lint impedes the flow of air in the machine.

Wash clothes in warm or cold water, and rinse in cold water. Use hot water only when necessary. Don't use too much detergent. Oversudsing makes the washer work harder, use more energy and requires extra rinses.

Ten percent of the energy budget goes to lighting, cooking and running small appliances. By using natural light, whenever possible, turning off lights not in use, and using low-wattage fluorescent lamps when possible, this portion of the energy bill can be reduced.

Other ways to cut energy use include defrosting a refrigerator before the frost gets more than one-fourth of an inch thick, and using a timer when cooking in order to lessen the number of times the cook opens the oven door. When the oven is on, make the most of it by cooking as many foods as possible in the oven. Or cook a double portion of a dish, in order to store or freeze half for later use.

Electric burners and all ovens can be turned off several minutes before the allotted cooking times; they'll stay warm enough to finish the cooking without using more electricity or gas.

Use small electric pans or ovens for small meals, since they use less energy than the kitchen range or oven. Use pressure cookers and microwave ovens if you have them; they save energy by reducing cooking time.

Can these measures really help the energy crunch? According to the U.S. Department of Energy, if every dishwasher user in the country cut out just one load a week, we'd save almost 15 million kilowatt-hours of electricity every day, or the equivalent of about 9,000 barrels of oil a day. Little things can mean a lot... when there are a lot of them.

Robert Hawkins' Career In Music Began With Circus, Included 'Pops'

From a 16-year-old clarinet player in the Cole Bros.-Clyde Beatty Circus to conducting Arthur Fiedler's Boston Pops orchestra, and currently conducting the orchestra for musical theatre at Cave Run Lake, life has been fruitful, interesting, and rewarding to Dr. Robert Hawkins, professor of music at Morehead State University.

"Hawk," as he is affectionately known, has been guest conductor for many outstanding bands and orchestras, including the Boston Pops. He is not a composer but an arranger. One of his many notable arrangements was the music of Cecil B. DeMille's "Ben Hur" and recordings for the Boston Pops. He began his music career in Sullivan, Indiana, his birthplace; his college work was at Indiana

State University; and he received his doctorate at Columbia University. He was conductor and head of the music department at Manhasset College, Long Island.

When you sit under the heavens on the shore of Cave Run Lake and listen to "Hawk's" orchestra playing scores from "Finian's Rainbow," "Shenandoah," and "Fiddler on the Roof," you sometimes get the feeling you could be in Kennedy Center or Carnegie Hall.

Hawkins met his wife Kathryn in college at Indiana State where she played trombone, also a circus band instrument. They have five children and one grandchild. The circus seems to have played a great part in Hawkins' life, as he has conducted many circus marches and was a good friend of Merle Evans who, for so many years, was conductor of Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey Circus band. Evans was born in Kentucky and spent his early years just north of London in Laurel County.

Hawkins does not know the number of pieces of music he has arranged or the number of records he has published. He just knows he has, not produced his greatest work. Leading into the last week of Drama on the Lake, he commented that his greatest work is still in the future.

His recordings are available at the Morehead State University Bookstore in Morehead.

Waterfowl hunting in shirtsleeves and shorts? Most duck hunting takes place in the middle of winter, when (according to duck hunters) the colder, cloudier and more miserable it is, the better the hunting.

But there is a short season in early September in Kentucky which should appeal to the hunter who doesn't particularly care for cold feet. This season is for teal only and lasts just nine days (from Sept. 6 through Sept. 14). But for duck hunters suffering from the long layoff since last January, it represents a welcome preview of things to come.

The reason for this September teal season is that the blue-winged teal (the most common teal in Kentucky) is an extremely early migrant. After spending most of the summer in the prairie regions of the northern United States and southern Canada, these birds begin migrating southward in August.

By the time the winter waterfowl seasons open in November, these teal are already settled in at their wintering grounds south of the border.

In addition to blue-winged teal, Kentucky hunters will encounter an occasional green-winged teal. The third member of this family, the cinnamon teal, is a Western species and is extremely rare east of the Rocky Mountains. All teal species may be seen during the September season.

Teal are puddle ducks. Like Mallards and pintails, they inhabit small bodies of water rather than the large lakes and rivers which attract diving ducks like canvasbacks or redheads.

Most teal hunting takes place in Western Kentucky, which is a part of the Mississippi Flyway, a major waterfowl migration route. But teal can also be found on farm ponds and small streams in the west-central and central portions of the state, according to Joe Bruna, director of the Wildlife Division of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Bruna says that several wildlife management areas in West Kentucky usually have some good early teal hunting. These public hunting areas are Ballard (Ballard County), Sloughs (Henderson County) and West Kentucky (McCracken County).

A little pre-season scouting of the neighborhood farm ponds will also very likely turn up some teal. Then it's just a matter of obtaining permission to hunt from the pond owner and waiting for opening day.

But while you're waiting, you'd better make a trip down to the post office and purchase your 1980-81 Migratory Bird Hunting and Conservation Stamp (which everybody calls a "duck stamp"). This federal stamp is required in addition to a valid Kentucky hunting license.

The daily limit during this early season is four teal, and eight may be in possession after two or more days of hunting. Shooting hours are from sunrise until sunset, local prevailing time.

Mark Ledford, a 1980 graduate of Montgomery County High School in Mt. Sterling, hopes to continue as a wide receiver for the MSU Eagle football team.

Ledford Is Enjoying Transition From High School To College

By MARK PERKINS Staff Writer

It's a big jump from high school to college football. Mark Ledford, a wide receiver from Mt. Sterling, seems to be adjusting fine and he's comfortable with his decision to attend Morehead State University.

Like most high school players, Ledford always dreamed that he would earn an athletic scholarship and play college football. But according to the 6'2", 170-pound Montgomery County High School graduate, he really didn't realize his dream would become a reality until he was a senior.

"I have always wanted to make a college team and it was my senior year when I started having some pretty good games and then I realized I would be getting some good offers," Ledford said.

In addition to playing wide receiver, Ledford also played safety on defense for Pat Dale's team which finished last season one game short of reaching the state championship with a 9-4 record.

Ledford must have been doing something right during his junior year, because Eagle offensive coordinator Steve Long first contacted the Indian product during the spring of his junior year.

"Morehead was the first to contact me," Ledford said. Other schools which expressed serious interest in Ledford were, Austin Peay, Murray, Western, Army and Center.

When asked why he chose Morehead State to pursue a college career, Ledford said, "I was really impressed with the coaches and the program, plus it is close to home. Here they stressed that we are students first and football players second."

Ledford said he wasn't really surprised at the amount of work required during practice and said he expects it and looks forward to the workouts. "They are really rough, but the coaches are just getting us in the right shape. They understand what it takes to perform well in the Ohio Valley Conference."

"I hope this year's team turns out like I think it will and we do well in the OVC," Ledford said. When asked if he had set any personal goals for the upcoming season, he replied, "I'd like to see some action."

As a starter on offense and defense in high school, Ledford has experienced a lot of action. Last week Ledford reflected back on his high school career and picked out his most memorable game.

"It had to be the state playoff game against Franklin Simpson. We were in the semi-finals of the AAA tournament and I was the MVP. We would have gone to the state finals. I had nine catches in the game for 120 yards, but we lost, 12-8," Ledford said.

"When asked to select a particular play that stands out in his memory, Ledford referred to the Scott County contest in his senior year. "They were supposed to be the toughest team in our conference, and we beat them 21-3. I returned a punt for a touchdown, which really took the air out of them, but I had a lot of good blocking," Ledford said.

Graham To Present Season Preview Monday Night

New Rowan County football coach Ray Graham will present the program Monday August 25 of the Rowan County football boosters meeting.

Graham will present a season preview and will discuss the Viking opponents as well as individual performances of his players.

The meeting will be held in the Rowan County High School cafeteria from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m.

All interested persons are invited to attend this meeting and to join the boosters club in their trip to Greencup County next Friday where Rowan County will open their season against 4-A power Greencup County.

Snow Or Ice
Scientists estimate that 99 percent of all the fresh water on the surface of the earth is in solid form, as snow or ice.

In trying to recall the worst contest in his high school career, Ledford picked the Harrison County contest his senior year. "It was really raining hard Friday and so they put the game off until Saturday. We were really up to play Friday night in the mud. On Saturday everybody on our team played bad. I didn't catch a pass and we lost 19-8," Ledford said.

The worst play Ledford can remember, or the one he would just as soon forget, happened while he was a junior against Harrison County. "I was playing safety and the ball was coming right towards me, it should have been an easy interception, but I dropped the ball," Ledford said.

In addition to playing football, Ledford was an outstanding guard on the Indian basketball team. He won the 110% award his junior year, was named MVP his senior year and was also All-Conference his final season.

His football awards include, MVP his senior season, All-Mid State and All-State honorable mention.

Ledford carried a 3.2 grade point average during high school and plans to major in business while at MSU.

Legion Team Suffers First Playoff Defeat

Morehead's American Legion baseball playoff streak came to an end Wednesday in the first round of the Great Lakes Regional as Post 126 lost to Ashley, Ohio, 5-3.

The loss put Morehead in the losers' bracket of the double-elimination tournament. They were to have played again last night after prestime.

Don Hardin's ace lefthander, Joe Magrane, had control problems throughout the six innings he pitched. The University of Breckinridge student issued four straight walks to Ashley's leadoff hitter and their fastest runner.

The Post 126 defense came to Magrane's rescue in the first two innings. In each frame the Ohio state champions had a runner in scoring position with less than two outs.

Magrane walked Thomas, the Ashley leadoff hitter in the third inning, he stole second base and later scored the game's first run on a wild pitch. Morehead tied the game in the fourth inning as Magrane reached first on an error by the Ashley third baseman. The 16 year old then advanced to second on a wild pitch and later scored on the second Ashley error of the inning.

Ashley's Thomas reached base on a walk in the fifth inning, stole second and third and later scored to put the Ohio club up 2-1.

Dean Hardin lined a double for the second Post 126 hit in the afternoon to lead off the bottom of the fifth. Jeff Dixon hit a RBI single, scoring Hardin for the tying run.

Magrane allowed a triple, a double, two walks and two runs in the top of the sixth inning, his last of the day. He finished with six strikeouts and seven walks.

Ohio scored another run in the eighth inning on three straight singles off relief pitcher Ted Carter. Ashley racked up eight hits, while Morehead had six hits.

Morehead Foresters Help Instruct Youths

CARLISLE, Ky. — Burning the woods doesn't kill snakes. That was one of the chips of information 56 teen-agers from 34 Kentucky counties picked up this week during the annual Forestry and Environmental Youth Camp.

While many of their contemporaries were sitting behind desks at city schools, the teens at North Central 4-H Center near Carlisle were taking classes like forest silvics, wood utilization and forest management.

In silvics class, the students learned about the history, characteristics and ecology of forests from Steve Coleman of the state Division of Conservation. He showed them the four soil layers found in the Central Kentucky hillsides and talked about how soil is made.

Ann Trofatek, a forester for the state Division of Forestry in Morehead, dispelled the "burn the woods to kill the snakes" myth. She and Doug Hendrickson of Meade Paper Co. also talked about using airplanes to reduce damage done by forest fires.

Rather than sighting a fire from a tower and driving around until it could be found, foresters now use planes to pinpoint fires and select the best route to get to them, she said.

"Fires out West are spectacular in that they burn lots of acreage and get lots of publicity," Hendrickson said. But fires in Kentucky are just as catastrophic in a forest that burned 40 or 50 years ago, every tree may be hollow and worthless, he emphasized.

Demonstrating fire-fighting equipment, Division of Forestry education specialist Richard Green asked the students, "What's the first thing you do after analyzing the bulldozer from its truck?" The answer: plow a circle around the truck.

Lon Wells, who has many years' experience driving the bulldozer as district mechanic for the Morehead Division of Forestry office, told about a friend who plowed a circle around his car before leaving it to fight the fire. The forest fire raged around the car, he said. But when his friend returned to the vehicle, the only damage was that its headlights had melted away.

Wells helped to design the bulldozer-plow combination he drives. He also added some protective screening to the rollers already attached to the earth-mover. The machine makes a line about four feet wide and is usually followed by a forester setting a "backfire," he said.

That combination of fire-fighting techniques should produce a path that is too wide for a fire to jump, the foresters explained. However, it doesn't always work, they added.

"Forestry is a science and a profession," said Steve Pedigo, a forester for the Daniel Boone National Forest. "It's not like what you see on TV, and it's not just hunting and fishing and camping either."

One of the 10 most desirable jobs in the country is that of a forester, according to a national polling service. But that survey is of people who are not foresters, Pedigo added.

"There's more to a forest than trees," he emphasized. He reviewed job possibilities in the field of forestry, potential employers and salaries for the youths.

Out in the woods, forester Green demonstrated how to measure trees. Many measurement techniques are standardized by agreement among foresters, he explained. The youths paced a road to learn that in forester's terminology a "chain" is 66 feet. Then they dispersed into the woods to determine how many 16-foot logs were in various trees.

This year's attendance was cut because many high schools opened this week, said Towley Bergmann, chief of forestry education for the state Division of Forestry. However, some students got permission to miss the first few school days for the educational camp, he said.

The classes are a bit more interesting

Anniversary classes will receive special recognition during a traditional banquet Saturday night. The plans were announced by Ethel Winburn Casey, president of the International Alumnae Association.

All former students who attended more than 50 years ago also will receive special recognition.

Other activities planned for Homecoming weekend, Mrs. Casey said, include the annual business meeting, a flea market and silent auction, mini-Olympics and a music program.

The symbolic Night of Lights ceremony will be observed and students, faculty and staff will display their works at an arts and craft fair.

than the usual high-school fare, campers said. In addition to spending most of the day outdoors, they are competing for prizes.

The student with the highest cumulative score on five tests will receive a $50 bond, Bergmann said. Second prize is a fishing reel and third is a knife, he said. In addition the top 10 scorers will receive forestry-camp caps. The group with the highest cumulative score will get caps also. All campers will be presented with forestry camp T-shirts, he said.

Participants were selected and sponsored by local conservation districts and private industries, he said. Other costs of the camp are borne by the Kentucky Forestry Council.

Instructors are provided by the divisions of Forestry and Conservation in the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, the U.S. Forest Service, the University of Kentucky department of forestry and private industry.

Bergmann, who is chairman of the Youth Forestry Camp Committee, said the camp is in its 10th year in its present form. The camp is held at various locations across the state. This is its first year at the Carlisle site, he said.

Blast, Fire Destroy Home

MT. STERLING — State and federal officials are still checking the cause of an explosion and fire that destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Miller on Levee Road last week.

The explosion occurred about 3:20 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 14. Samples from the debris have been sent to a laboratory by Frank Eddy and John Simms of the Lexington office of the federal Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Fire Arms (ATF) and Don McBryer, arson inspector with the state police, also is working on the case.

All three were at the scene of the fire Thursday morning and sifted through the debris seeking the cause of the explosion that sent pieces of the house flying into a stream in front of the home, which sat on a bluff above Levee Road and a trailer nearer the highway. Eddy said he did not believe there was a federal violation in connection with the blast, but the samples were sent to a laboratory to see if the substance that caused the explosion could be determined.

Their investigation showed there were a couple of cans of Coleman fuel in the basement, but there was no gas in the building, which is heated by electricity.

There was some question whether the fire or explosion came first and Eddy said it is believed they were pretty close to the same time. There were some parts of the building that were not burned and this led Fire Chief Wayne Welch to believe that the fire followed the explosion.

Eugene Spencer, who lives southwest of the Miller home, told firemen he was awakened by a blast, looked out the window and saw the house engulfed in flames. The neighbor on the other side, however, told firemen they did not know of the explosion and fire until they heard the fire trucks.

Three fire trucks and 11 firemen responded to the call, but all they could do was extinguish the fire. They were there until 8:30 a.m. and three firemen and a truck returned from 8:50 to 10:50 a.m. to try and cool the debris so the investigators could check for a cause of the blast.

It appeared, firemen said, that the explosion blew out the sides of the house and the roof fell in. The burning debris eventually fell into the basement of the brick and frame home.

Force of the explosion blew furniture into the yard including a couch and television and scattered insulation throughout the area.

No One Home

There was no one home when the explosion and fire occurred. Mrs. Miller was in Portsmouth, Ohio, visiting her parents and her husband had gone there to pick her up. The two children

Bus Laws Explained

The state's 7,117 school buses, rolled into action in August for the start of another school year.

In addition to transporting students of all ages to and from school, these vehicles affect all drivers on Kentucky's roads as special regulations go into effect when buses are loading and unloading. Bennie Maffet, state transportation safety coordinator, said traffic moving with the bus is always required to stop behind the bus whenever children are getting on or off.

He said, however, there may be some confusion about cars traveling in the oncoming lane. "Where there is a marked median — either raised or depressed — between traffic lanes, drivers moving in the opposite direction in regard to the bus are not required to stop," he said.

"On roads without medians — even where there is a fifth lane in the center for turning — all traffic must stop while students are loading or unloading," Maffet explained.

Of the accidents last year involving bus riding students, none occurred while the children were on the bus, Maffet said. "Most accidents happen while the student is crossing or waiting for the bus."

Drivers should consider that "School Bus Stop Ahead" signs have been posted throughout the state in locations where drivers may not have a clear view in front of them.

Maffet said parents can play a big part in safety by teaching their children to act responsibly while riding the bus.

"There is a great potential for accidents when children are goofing off," he said. "It is not up to the bus drivers to be disciplinarians. They really have their hands full just driving the bus safely."

"All bus riders are pedestrians, too," Maffet said. "They should be aware of safety precautions while meeting the bus and while walking from the bus to the school."

Students who must board or alight the bus when it is dark should wear light clothing or use reflector tape," he said. Hours of daylight decrease as the year moves on, especially when standard time resumes in October.

Residents Can Charge Copies Of State Records

FRANKFORT — Persons ordering copies of birth or death certificates from the state through the Western Union may now charge the order their VISA or MasterCard, a Department for Human Resources spokesman said today.

Under a new arrangement with Western Union, charge-card holders may call the Human Resources Department to order certificates, then call Western Union, toll-free, to charge the copies. Western Union charges a fee in addition to the state charge of $4 per certificate copy, said Omar Greenman, registrar of the department's vital records office. The toll-free Western Union number is 1-800-546-4920.

Previously all applicants had to visit a Western Union telegraph office, buy a money order and send the certificate request by wire, or they had to visit Human Resources personally.

The Service costs Human Resources nothing because all costs are covered by the Western Union fees. The Western Union charge to applicants is $6 regardless of the number of copies ordered. The vital records office number is (502) 564-4212.
