Defense Motion For Continuance Is Overruled

Roy Gastineau, 40, went on trial in the Rowan County Court yesterday (Tuesday) charged with slaying William Tackett, operator of the Radium Cafe, on the afternoon of November 2.

This is the quickest a man ever went on trial for murder in Rowan County, only 21 days have elapsed since Tackett fell in a pool of blood, with six bullet wounds in his body, on the floor of the sitting room at his father's home on Radium Street, 21 W. Main.

Gastineau's attorneys—Lester Hogue of Morehead and Hubert Conner, Olive Hill—asked for a continuance Monday but this was overruled by Circuit Judge John J. Winn.

It is almost certain that Gastineau will claim self-defense as he admitted the shooting. About 15 minutes after he unloaded a revolver at the man he termed "my friend" he walked to the door. Policeman Ed Hall and said: "I just shot Bill Tackett. I had to do it."

Just witness in the case may be Tackett's mother who was in the room as her son fell. She said she saw him shoot. Tackett's wife ran from the nearby restaurant they operate and fired one shot at Gastineau. Gastineau has been free under a $10,000 bond. He has been convicted of manslaughter and given a three year term while another murder charge against him was dismissed last month in Rowan County Court.

The jury in the November term of Morgan Circuit Court has recessed until Monday. Their work has been to hear the felonies are up for investigation. Most true bills returned until yesterday when the child desertion or misdemeanors.

Persons who still desire to give may take their books to the county library in the basement of the courthouse.

The list of the bookmobile drive were: Patsy Fugate, Sharon Williams, Irene Sorell, Mrs. Mary Margaret, Mrs. Larry Cassidy, Jerry Eldridge, Larry Riddle, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. G. Williams, Mrs. Clara Williams and Joe M. Chapman.

A STICK OF TOBACCO TO FIGHT POLIO

Farm Bureau Sets Up Districts, Workers To Solicit In Tobacco For Polio Drive

Contribution May Be Left At Rowan Farmers Supply

If you are among the more than 100,000 tobacco growers in the Rowan County, you have a chance to help a fellow farmer, member of the Farm Bureau, who is fighting polio. The tobacco grower can make a contribution to the fight against polio by donating a stick of tobacco to the drive. The tobacco grower can make a contribution to the fight against polio by donating a stick of tobacco to the drive. The tobacco grower can make a contribution to the fight against polio by donating a stick of tobacco to the drive.

Alpha Hutchinson, March of Dimes chairman, said this morning's meeting has been completed in the "Tobacco For Polio" drive and district chairman picked the campaign.

In a statement the committee said: "We don't have to feel any shame about the merits of the polio drive. We do ask you to give a stick of tobacco, or if you can't contribute a stick donate what you can. However, the tobacco should be of good grade because it will be put on display and considerable publicity about Rowan County growers will result in it."

It is important, therefore, to the grower and to all of us that this cooperative drive for polio bring as good a price as possible as this will reflect creditably on our burly presence in our county.

American Legion Week Proclaimed

The week of Nov. 26 was proclaimed by Governor Wetherby as "American Legion Week in Kentucky" in a request that all eligible veterans of the state support the organization and "make the largest of all war veteran's organizations a stronger safeguard of the principles of loyalty, justice, freedom and democracy."

The long summer and fall drought ended Sunday as more than an inch of rainfall fell all over Eastern Kentucky.

It was the first rain since Sept. 1, although the first of the first sprinkles since then. The Sept. 29 rain, however, was only a break of a drought that started in early August.

Immediate effects of the welcome and soaking downpour are: (1) Tobacco market will open Monday (Nov. 30) as scheduled. There had been some discussion of a postponement because tobacco could not go into case.

(2) Alleviated illness and eliminated an allergy that thousands had contacted because of germs, dust and smoke in the air.

(3) Permitted forest ranger's first relaxation in almost two months. Monday was the first time in weeks that fire towers in the Cumberland National Forest and state fire towers were not manned.

(4) Farmers speeded up stripping and getting Kentucky tobacco ready for the market.

(5) There will be no recess in the hunt for the highest county judges has requested the hunting season be delayed because of the fire hazard.

(6) Insured-ample water for towns in central and eastern Kentucky. Owingville and Georgetown were among many that reported their supply exhausted Friday. While Carlisle boasted water rates to $5 a thousand gallons. The pinch was definitely on the severely early water utility in the state.

Recount Fails To Alter Results As Alfrey Wins Rowan County Attorney Post And Jones Sheriff

Vencill, Clay Dismiss Action Before Winn

It's official now Austin Alfrey will be Rowan County Attorney for the next four years and Carl Jones will be the next Sheriff.

The recount of the election in the early hours of Thursday morning, did not change the result, although the majorities of both were cut slightly.

According to the Rowan County News chart of the recount, Alfrey defeated Jimmy Clay by nine votes while Carl Jones bested Kenneth Vencill by 12 votes.

On the original tabulation Alfrey won by 11 and Jones by 10. Shortly before the deadline (or 10 days after the election) Vencill filed for a recount. Clay followed that afternoon with his petition.

After holding there was insufficient evidence to indicate the integrity of the ballots had been violated, Judge John J. Winn started the recount at 1:45 Wednesday afternoon. It was completed about 11 hours later.

Officially the vote will be certified as Jones winning by 19 and Alfrey by 11 inasmuch as the recount was held to disprove the suit when the ballot was counted. This, in substance, means the recount tabulation will be ignored and the certification will remain the same as recorded by the election commissioners and County Clerk B. P. Day.

In all instances, attorneys and the Circuit Judge were agreed the original vote count was honest. However, Winn ruled that ballots not signed (or the back by the voter) were illegal and also that an "X" in the circle opposite the blank (write-in) at that time was illegal. Judge Vencill's name was not counted. He referred to opinions of the county attorneys. The attorneys agreed this was correct.

In the original tabulation the commission tabulated all ballots although there were a few, mostly in scattered precincts, where the "X" in the circle of 10 precincts of the original count was not counted. The "X" in the line under the candidate's name was not counted a good vote for that particular candidate.

It was these two rulings that changed the majority.

Both Jones and Alfrey admitted they had an "anxious moment" during the proceedings. The third precinct where the recount was brought out for the recount was number 21 (west Morehead). At that time Alfrey had a lead of 15 and Jones was 10 ahead. Both Alfrey and Jones had carried this precinct.

Judge Winn had counted only 53 votes when the recount was begun. The precinct was without the signature of an election officer because of a large number of the precinct might be invalidated. However, it later developed that the precinct was not invalidated.

The purchase brings to 233,238,811 pounds the total amount of tobacco purchased by the department since March.

COUNTY ATTORNEY—Austin Alfrey is the only republican to win a major county office in the November election, defeating James E. Clay by the narrowest of margins, resulting in a recount of the vote. He will be the first republican County Attorney in 20 years.

We Count Our Blessings

Each year, by Presidential Proclamation, a Day of Thanksgiving is set aside for the nation. It is not merely a holiday—but a holy day. A day on which we can prayerfully and at our various houses of worship give thanks for the manifold mercies which have been vouchsafed to us during the year.

But to be grateful one day in the year is not enough. Whatever we do, wherever we live, there are daily causes for thanksgiving. The town wherein we dwell, the house in which we live, have been built and made secure not by ourselves alone, but by the help of others. Wherever we go, whatever our work, our way is made easier, and we are protected, by the work of our fellow men. Only the savage living in the midst of dangers, depends on himself alone.

Are you big enough to show gratitude? The little man, however, what is done for him. The big man accepts a favor graciously. He does not feel he has to impress upon others his own self-sufficiency, nor does he feel that all good that comes his way is of his own achieving. Perhaps that is why the big man succeeds where the little man fails.

How may we best express our gratitude? By carrying on where those who preceded us left off. By passing on what has come to us better than we found it. By so loving that very life is a source of gratitude to others. You know men of that kind. They are rare, or are, perhaps, that their mere living is a cause for thankfulness.

As the wandering Ulysses said: "I am but a part of those whose path we have followed. Let us do for them as they have done for us. Let us do for our fellow men as they have done for us. Each generation has an increasing responsibility because it has had greater advantages due to the work and sacrifice of those who came before. Each man has the same responsibility.

If you owe anything to God, pay it to him," so runs the proverb. That should be our motto for this Thanksgiving Day. If we have received aid of good in the past year, let us show our gratitude by passing on that good to another. We have met kindness, so let us be kind. We have known happiness. Let us give happiness to others.

Gratitude is a way of giving. It is the true Thanksgiving.

Beloved Aunt Kate Fulks, 89, Beams As She Gets First Hair-do

ALL DRESSED UP—Aunt Kate Fulks carries her Bible as she leaves the beauty parlor after getting her hair fixed for the first time. Aunt Kate, 89, spends much of her time praying for her friends and was never known to say anything except something nice about everybody she knew or came in contact with.

By Lena Stephens
"I'm on my way to Heaven and I want my hair washed," beamed Aunt Kate Fulks the other day when she walked into a beauty shop for the first time in her 89 years.

After the beautician had finished Aunt Kate, who is just about the best known person around Salt Lick (and also in Rowan County) commented: "I really didn't have this done for pride or beauty but for comfort and cleanliness."

Aunt Kate, who quotes the scriptures freely and fluently and has lived her entire life on the knowledge that everything is God's will, lives at Slade, Ky., having moved from Salt Lick two years ago.

But, she remains in many conversations, particularly when people start talking about the Bible or praying.

A Greyhound Bus driver recently told me that Aunt Kate always prayed for the safety of all passengers when she entered the bus. The driver said her prayers were emphasized when the roads were slippery and that her faith always rode with him when the highway was hazardous.

A local resident took her on a few miles journey to visit relatives. As the car passed each house Aunt Kate mentioned who lived there and told how good people they were. She offered a prayer for each family.

In her home Aunt Kate keeps a book listing hundreds of acquaintances and she goes through this daily praying for their health and happiness. You, who read this might be amazed at her devotion and love for people and her great faith in God, but if you are only a slight acquaintance the chances are your name is in this book and she has prayed for you many times. If illness strikes she prays many times during the day for your recovery and return to good health.

Rev. H. G. Cooper, pastor of the Salt Lick Church of God, where Aunt Kate attended when she lived in that community, and Mrs. Cooper, are particularly fond and close to Aunt Kate.

Coon Dogs Will Run In Trial Saturday

Coon dogs from all Central and Eastern Kentucky are expected to be entered in the big coon dog trial in Mt. Sterling at 10 o'clock Saturday morning when Tobacco Day will be observed in Mt. Sterling.

This event, sponsored by the Montgomery National Bank, will open the day's festivities which include open house at the new Clay tobacco redrying plant and a tobacco show at the redryer. A total of $50 in prizes will be offered to the dogs. Second place, three in the dog with $25 going to the winner, $15 to second place and $10 to third place.

Robert Wills, conservation officer of Montgomery county, is in charge of arrangements for the dog trial and a real live coon will be waiting for the dogs at the end of the trail. Some time the morning.

ing of the hunt Wills will drag a coon's "nest" from the center of town in the general direction of the Clay Tobacco Company and at 10 o'clock the dogs will be set free at the starting point. Coon hunting is an old tradition in Kentucky and there are many people who believe there is no greater sport than running coon dogs on moonlit nights.

The tobacco show is offering around $50 in cash premiums and entries are expected from a dozen counties. Separate classes have been set up for Bath, Carter, Clark, Estill, Monfroe, Morgan, Montgomery, Powell and all other counties grouped together and champion exhibits from each county will be for the grand championship. Three hands of flyings, high or bright light will constitute an exhibit and each hand must contain at least 35 leaves. Entries will be received at the Clay Tobacco Company from 10 a. m. Friday, Nov. 27, to 10 a. m. Saturday, Nov. 28.

Clayton Attends Postmaster Meet

Morehead Postmaster Claude Clayton attended a general Postmaster's meeting of Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana, Tuesday at Taft Auditorium in Cincinnati. Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield was the principal speaker.

Most of the discussion concerned the decentralization of the department which is first being tried in this district.

Changes In Jury System Are Recommended By State Council

Far-reaching changes in Kentucky's jury system have been advocated by the State Judicial Council.

The council proposed that the 1934 legislature pass laws to:

1. Make more people subject to jury service.

2. Give grand juries greater time for investigations.

3. Take prospective jurors' names from voter-registration lists as well as property tax lists.

These changes were endorsed by the judicial conference, composed of appellate judges and commissioners and circuit judges at its annual meeting in Frankfort.

They constituted the main features of several recommendations made by the council, which is composed of judges and lawyers.

The conference has until Dec. 1 to make written suggestions to the council on its other proposals.

The council will prepare legislation for submission to the General Assembly convening Jan. 5.

Passage of legislation to provide a retirement plan for circuit judges also was approved by the conference on the council's recommendation.

The proposal on jury service would exempt only physicians, surgeons, dentists and lawyers actually engaged in their professions, regularly employed full-time policemen and firemen, and school teachers during regular terms of school.

All other present exemptions, including one for women, would be eliminated. In practice, many women have waived exemption and served on juries.

The grand jury proposal would give these juries as many as 15 days to hold sessions in all counties except Jefferson, where as many as 60 days would be allowed.

It suggested that in Jefferson county a regular grand jury be allowed to remain in session a month with a 30-day extension if needed. It recommended a regular six-day grand jury session with a nine-day extension in all other counties.

The Court of Appeals held last year that all regular grand juries were limited to six-day sessions, with extensions not to exceed three days on special court order.

The council's proposals would give jury commissioners access to voters' registration and tax records and make failure of a prospective juror's name to appear on either a cause for challenge.

Among other changes recommended by the council upon which the conference did not act, were proposals to:

1. Retire same qualifications for grand and petit jurors—be citizens, at least 21 years old, with one year's residence in their counties. Present laws specify no period of residence.

2. Bar the calling of bystanders for grand jury service.

3. Bar attorneys and parties in a case before a jury from talking with its members.

4. Require the sheriff to summon jurors at least seven days before their service and require jurors to attend on the day specified.

STA-NU

Practically all fibers used in the manufacture of textiles require the addition of oils to provide the finish and softness characteristic of new garments. One can notice by the 'feel' and good draping qualities of new clothing the presence of these textile oils, known as finishing agents.

o o o

In dry or wet clothing some of these textile oils and some of the natural oils in the fibers are extracted or dissolved. This causes the garments to become dull and lifeless and less able to resist wrinkling. It has been found that the original character of the fibers and the appearance and feel of the garment can be restored if textile oils extracted from the garment during use and during the cleaning operation are replaced by the STA-NU process. This process is now in use at the Model Laundry and Dry Cleaners.

Rowan Future Farmers Club Emphasizes Need And Benefits Of Proper Reforestation

Trees Should Be Planted On Burned Acres

The 70 members of Rowan County's chapter of Future Farmers of America, under the leadership of Carl Sinclair, agricultural teacher at Morehead High, are stressing reforestation as their current project, particularly of land burned over during the just-ended long summer and fall drought.

Tree planting has always been one of the foremost projects of the FFA, which is composed of both town and rural teen-age boys at Morehead High. But, particular importance is being placed on it this year because of burned over acres.

State Forester Bernie Mauer is directing the group in reforestation training. They not only read about the benefits of woodland and timber from books, but gain first-hand knowledge, as in the picture accompanying this article which shows some of the boys planting trees after fire burned over a plot near the Morehead city limits.

The Rowan County FFA is also currently engaged in a fund raising campaign to finance the $400,000 leadership training center at Hardinsburg. This is a state FFA project. Robert Bishop has agreed to serve as fund chairman. State chairman is Bob Henley, Louisville.

Groups of the Rowan FFA make annual trips to the Hardinsburg center.

When the former coach, Ellis Johnson, resigned from Morehead in September, Coach Laughlin found himself holding the reins of the basketball coaching position. Luckily last year's squad lost only one man by graduation and this year's squad consists of 13 men of which eight are returning lettermen.

The totals for the individual categories were: $1,942,290 for old age assistance as compared to $1,940,536 in September; $1,139,361 in aid to dependent children, a slight drop from the $1,240,390 total the previous month; and $84,235 for aid to the needy blind, almost unchanged from the $84,162 spent in September.

The average check for needy old persons last month was $34.93, Paul said. An average of $61.62 for such family was spent for dependent children, while the average needy blind recipient's check amounted to $36.80.
