The Kinneys, in addition, to being musicians are woodcarvers and Charlie is a puppeteer.

State Police Report Light Holiday Weekend

"I'd say it's one of the quietest on record." That was Dwight Clark's assessment of the four-day Thanksgiving holiday weekend. Clark is a dispatcher for the Morehead post of the Kentucky State Police.

Clark said there was an "extremely low" number of accidents in the 11 counties the post covers.

During the four days there were five personal injury traffic accidents involving a total of six persons injured. Only six property damage accidents were reported during the period, he said.

The most recent injury accident happened Saturday evening in Elliott County at the intersection of KY 7 and

Application Filed For Water Project Deletions

The city of Morehead has already begun the application process for federal funding to finance deletions in a water expansion project.

Morehead Utility Plant Board had to leave out certain portions of a $5.23 million water improvement project when bids came in higher than available funding this fall.

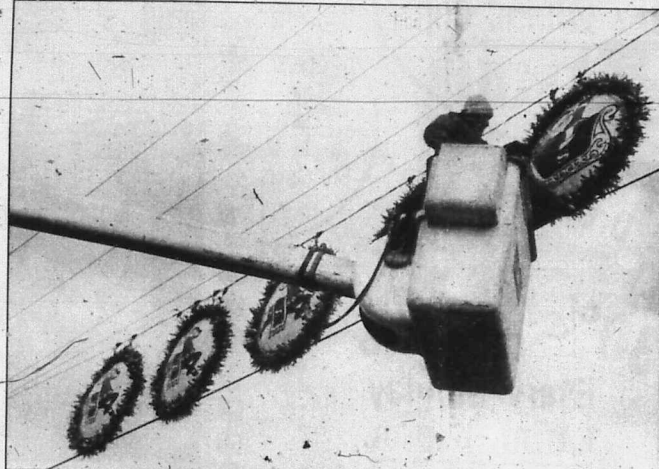

The application, made through Gateway Area Development District, which acts as a clearinghouse, seeks $1.7 million in funding, including $500,000 in federal money, $800,000 in local contributions and $400,000 from other sources.

The most likely source of funding is expected to be Farmers Home Administration. Items that would be constructed, if the money becomes available, include a new raw water intake, a sludge thickener, a six-inch sludge line and a 12-inch water main running from the Kentucky State Police Post to an area under I-64.

The application notes that the project will impact not only Morehead and Rowan County but Salt Lick, Owingsville, Bath County, Frensburg and Mingo County. Both Rowan Water and Bath Water districts are sharing in the expansion. Bath Water also sells to the Frensburg district.

Estimated start of construction for the project is June 1981.

Rowan Man Stable After Suicide Attempt

A 33-year old Rowan County man is in stable condition at St. Claire Medical Center after having apparently shot himself Sunday.

State police say that Jimmy D. Stiles, 33, of Haldeman, shot himself once in the stomach with a 22 caliber weapon. Police are releasing few details of the incident but one early report was that Stiles had been attempting to shoot himself in the head when his wife tried to pull the gun away, causing him to be shot in the stomach.

The incident took place about 2:40 p.m. at Stiles' home near Haldeman. Trooper Roger Fuller of the Morehead post is the investigating officer.

Date Still Not Set For Stephenson Appearance

A date still has not been set for an initial appearance in Rowan District Court by a Morehead State University dean charged with shoplifting.

According to the Rowan Circuit Clerk's office, District Judge James Clay must sign a summons for Larry Wayne Stephenson, MSU's dean of students, before a date for the appearance can be set.

Amidst unusual circumstances, Stephenson was indicted last Monday by a Rowan County grand jury on charges of theft by unlawful taking in connection with an alleged shoplifting incident Nov. 15 at Roses department store in Trademore Shopping Center. Stephenson was indicted by the grand jury, upon the recommendation of Kentucky State Police, after Roses failed to press charges in the matter. County Attorney John Cox has indicated that MSU Vice President for Student Affairs Buford Crager may have attempted to avert Stephenson's prosecution in the matter by influencing Roses not to prosecute.

Morehead State officials, however, have maintained that Crager was acting on his own as a personal friend of Stephenson and that any action he may have taken was in that context.

Stephenson had been taken into custody by Kentucky State Police on Nov. 15, after he allegedly concealed a saw blade, valued at about $5 in his coat.

Leaves Can Be Picked Up

The city of Morehead maintenance department will be collecting leaves from residents through Dec. 15.

City Administrator Don Evans says that residents should have leaves in trash bags and should notify City Hall that they are ready to be picked up.

Evans said crews will collect the leaves as they have time available with a dump truck.

In addition, Evans said the city is now planning to resume collection of larger trash items that are too big or do not meet the requirement for routine garbage pickups.

Though a date has yet to be set for when the service will begin, Evans said it will be for half a day, two days a month. Collections are to be made on Wednesdays and residents must call City Hall in advance of the pickup.

Getting Ready To Ride

Since his retirement Sept. 30, as conservation officer for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife in Rowan County, Marland Crawford has spent most of his leisure time trail riding. Crawford worked 28 years with the department enforcing fish and game laws in this area. Here he adjusts the bridle on his Tennessee Walking horse, which he said he's never named, in the barn behind his home on Christy Creek. (Staff photo by Alice Akin)

After 28 Years ... Marland Crawford Retires As Conservation Officer

By ALICE AKIN
Staff Writer

If you've gigged a frog, hooked a fish or aimed a rifle at a deer or a coon in this area during the last 28 years, chances are you've met up with Marland Crawford.

He's the man in the green uniform with the badge who, since 1952, has been responsible for enforcing fish and game laws.

Crawford retired on Sept. 30, winding up a long tenure of service with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife as a conservation officer, the major part of that time serving Rowan County, although he has also worked in Carter, Bath, Menifee, Fleming, Mason and Lewis counties.

"I've practically worked all over the state but Rowan is my home county," Crawford said, in a recent interview at his home located on 60 acres on Christy Creek.

"I've really never known anything else but law enforcement," Crawford continued. "It gets in your blood. It's something you never forget."

Marland Crawford has been in uniform nearly all his life.

His first uniform was a green of a different color than the conservation officer's attire he hung up a little over two months ago.

Army Sergeant

That's the green the Arkansas native wore those years when he served in the U.S. Army during World War II, emerging as a sergeant.

Crawford served in both the European and Pacific theaters "exactly two years, six months and 28 days."

"You count the days when you're overseas," he recalled.

After his military stint, he worked in Detroit in a tool and die shop and then moved to Kentucky where he managed the IGA store in Sandy Hook before taking the conservation officer's job in September of 1952.

"I've always liked the outdoors and I like being out with the people," Crawford said.

Over the years, Crawford has seen notable changes in his occupation.

"It's not a job that's just busy during one season, like the fishing season any more," he noted. "It's busy all year long now."

One of the most drastic changes in Crawford's work load came when Cave Run Lake opened.

"During the first year the lake was opened, 1,100 citations were issued," he recalled, noting that 75 percent of those citations were for underized bass whereas most citations issued today are for wishing without a license.

"There's really no excuse for not getting a fishing license with all the service stations, groceries, and bait shops selling them now," Crawford added.

Asked if there were any area of game violations that particularly irritated him, Crawford didn't hesitate to point out that "spotting" deer was the most troublesome problem he had to deal with.

"Hard To Catch"

"The situation is getting better than it used to be," Crawford said, "but the deer violators are the hardest to catch."

Crawford explained that de potting took place in isolated areas late at night.

"In order to catch them we would have to hide our cars where the spotters couldn't see us and wait," Crawford said.

"What makes it particularly hard is that these people are professional—they've been doing this for years," he continued.

He has the two-way radio and sometimes operate with three cars within one car carrying the gun and the others

Health Services Commissioner To Talk In Owingsville Thursday

OWINGSVILLE, Ky. — The Commissioner of the State Bureau for Health Services, David T. Allen, will speak at a meeting for the general public to be held in the community room of the Courthouse Annex here on Thursday, Dec. 4, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. It was announced by Roger Russell, health coordinator for the Gateway Area Development District.

The meeting is billed as a "getting acquainted and exchanging views" session between Dr. Allen and those involved in all areas of health services in the Gateway area," Mr. Russell said.

One subject, termed as "almost certain" to come up is a possible year-end $31 million deficit in the Kentucky Medicaid program. Medicaid is a program which provides health services to those who cannot afford proper health care.

Dr. Allen is relatively new to the area and prior to his present position was Commissioner of Health and Administration for the Tennessee Department of Public Health. Dr. Allen holds a Masters in Public Health, is a Doctor of Medicine, graduated with Phi Beta Kappa honors, and is a former Fulbright scholar in Mainz, Germany. He is married, has two children, and lives in Versailles, Ky.

The general public with any health services questions, as well as representatives of health providers in the Gateway area and anyone else interested, is welcome to attend.

Sloane Tells GADD Members Of Housing Problems In Region

OWINGSVILLE, Ky. — The president of the Kentucky Rural Housing and Development Foundation, Harvey Sloane, addressed the Gateway Area Development District Board of Directors Tuesday night Nov. 25 and told them his organization is trying to "package" new home sites in eastern Kentucky to make them feasible for both builder, financier, and homeowner.

Sloane cited his current project, the 873-acre Frances Farm Site in Pike County, as an example of trying to correct the housing problems in eastern Kentucky that are "not understood in other parts of the country."

"There are four or five main problems with developing home sites in eastern Kentucky," Sloane said. "The first and biggest problem is available land. You must have unencumbered land with no leases on it and out of flood plain and flat enough to build homes on. That literally eliminates about 90 percent of the land in the coal fields."

Sloane said that Pike County is short 3,800 housing units right now, and Floyd County is short 4,000 units.

"To give you an idea of the severity of the problem... consider that there are five local builders in Floyd County and they built seven houses apiece in 1979," Sloane said the other problem were roads to home development areas, water and sewer facilities, builders with the capacity to develop, and financing.

"I was disappointed in the latest bond issue from Kentucky Housing Corporation," Sloane said. "It will apparently go one-third to Louisville, one-third to Lexington, and one-third to rural areas. That is far short of what rural Kentucky needs."

Sloane also complimented the Island

Creek Coal Company for its new housing development at Grundy, Virginia, in Buchanan County.

"They're building 1500 houses there for their miners and executives. They bought the mountain, leveled the top off, built the road, and developed the utilities. Now they're in the process of turning it over to the local authorities."

Sloane said mountain-top removal is an "exciting concept in the coal industry if the legal title situation can be worked out because 'the resulting flat land can be developed for homesites.'"

"What we have to do now is get the people who make up the strip mine laws to understand that we don't want to have to put the mountain back the way it was, when we only have one percent of the land in the coal fields flat enough to build homesites on," Sloane concluded.

In other action, the Gateway Board approved several A-95 applications to the federal government for funds, including an application from the City of Morehead for $1,700,000 to make improvements in its water works program to benefit 12,000 persons in three counties. An application by the City of Mount Sterling to determine their eligibility for a UDAG grant from HUD was also approved. The Board refused to endorse a request from OSHA for federal funding in Kentucky. Several board members said "We need to send a message about OSHA. The original intent was good, but they're way out of line now and anyone who has dealt with OSHA knows that."

The Board also voted to eliminate its regular December meeting date because of the holidays and empowered the GADD Executive Board to make what ever decisions were necessary in the meantime.

Kay Bishop, instructor of business at Morehead State University, took advantage of the special legislative task force public hearing on small business in Morehead last week to explain about the school's small business institute program. The meeting was one of a series being held around the state. (Staff photo by Kathy Partin)

Unlearning Bad Habits Is A Step To Weight Control

If you habitually clean your plate, watch TV while you eat or take two bites before chewing and swallowing, you are probably overeating and you are probably overweight.

Unlearning these bad habits is one of the first steps in controlling weight, registered nurse Diane Carlin told the dinner session of the Total Health Conference for Women, sponsored by the Kentucky Commission on Women.

Carlin, who specializes in fitness and weight control, believes that behavior modification is the key to successful weight loss.

"You won't lose weight until you change your attitude about food," she said. "Once you change your attitude, you have a better chance of changing your behavior."

Carlin listed these tips for weight control:

- Before you begin eating, decide that you will leave part of your food on your plate. Pick which food and how much in advance.
- Eat more slowly. Lay down eating utensils between bites.
- Do not read or watch TV while eating.
- Eat only when you feel hunger

Do not respond to food cues - bakery shop/windows, "the lunch hour," etc.

- Get all snack foods, if you must have them in your home, out of sight. Buy opaque containers to refrigerator leftovers, so you will not be able to see what is in them as clearly.

- Exercise. Aerobic exercises are best because they exercise your heart.

- Even if you cannot bring yourself to establish a regular exercise routine, there are ways to work in exercise so it is almost painless. Take the stairs and walk every time you get a chance. Do no look for a parking space in front of a shopping mall. Park in the back and walk.

- Decrease intake of fatty meats like beef and pork.

- Stop eating refined sugars.

- Try not to talk about food so often.
- Diet sensibly. Be sure to get foods from all four groups in the proper amounts.

There are four known natural arches at Natural Bridge State Resort Park including the Natural Bridge.

 - Add battery water if needed.
 - Don't jump-start unless both batteries are negatively grounded, and the same size.
 - Clamp one jumper cable to positive (+) pole of dead battery; then clamp cable's other end to positive pole of good battery.
 - At booster battery, connect second cable to negative (-) pole, then clamp other end to stalled car's engine block on side away from battery.

Santa's Workshop

Santa's Workshop in the Mini Mall at Trademore Shopping Center was as busy as St. Nick's North Pole headquarters Friday morning as youngsters from all over the area waited in line to tell the popular Christmas character what they wanted under their trees the morning of Dec. 25. (Staff photo by Alice Akin)

The Morehead Art Guild members have been busy these days. Thelma Skaggs has just finished a boat scene in oils.

Mabel Reynolds has completed a flower painting. It is a water color painting of an iris. She can't remember who requested it. If you're the one who asked for it, please get in touch with Mable.

Bunny Stevens is finishing an oil landscape of a pre-Civil War corn crib located in Carter County. The corn crib once belonged to James Johnson, and furnished corn to both the Union and the Confederate troops.

Winter is the perfect time to sketch and practice painting trees, for those of us who have difficulty along that line. In winter, we see the bare form of the tree — learn to draw it that way and then you can put on its spring, summer or autumn dress. Look at each tree for its distinct form.

To give the impression of a coarse, leafy mass, paint with short, choppy, overlapping strokes. Lay your brightest leaves on top, top of your built up forms. Try to think "three-dimensionally," and keep in mind the basic geometric shapes of the entire tree and separate leaf masses. Start by blocking in the darkest shadows. On palette, mix color scale for leaves, from dark to light. Start applying darkest leaves first, then some brighter ones. Build up masses with brighter colors. Add strongest highlights last, and a few branches.

For more help with trees, come to the next art guild meeting, December 7 at the Lloyd Cassity Building. Bill Tufts will be demonstrating tree painting. Don't forget to bring along a sample of your latest work for the exhibit at 10 a. m. It will last until around 1 p. m.

Here's a tip from Prestonsburg artist, Russell May, well known throughout the state for his oil landscapes. He often pre-mixes a large quantity of a color he uses frequently and keeps the paint moist and usable in baby food jars. The paint may be used in several oil paintings. One artist we know keeps her mixture of turpentine, linseed oil, and Damar varnish in a medicine dropper bottle. It is easy for her to squeeze out just the right amount of medium with the dropper.

The lieutenant governor's mansion, built in 1878, is the oldest executive mansion in the United States still in use. Thirty-nine governors lived in this historic house until the new governor's mansion was built in 1914. During this period it was visited by seven U.S. presidents.

Dear Ann Landers:
You Know You Are Getting Older When:

Almost everything hurts. What doesn't hurt doesn't work anymore.

It feels like the morning after the night before, and you haven't been anywhere.

All the names in your little black book end in M.D.

You get winded playing chess. You look forward to a dull evening. You still chase women, but have forgotten why.

You turn out the lights for economic, not romantic reasons. Your knees buckle and your belt won't.

You are 17 around the neck, 42 around the waist and 126 around the golf course.

You sink your teeth into the wrinkles in your socks and find you aren't wearing any.

A little old gray-haired lady tries to help you across the street. She's your wife - L.F. in San Antonio.

Dear L.F.: Thanks for my laugh for the day - and if I get any bees from the Gray Panthers, I'm sending them to you!

Dear Ann Landers: My daughter recently had a beautiful red-headed baby girl. Her husband is blonde. She is a brunette. There are no redheads on either side of the family. What should I say to friends and relatives who are openly shocked and ask?

Please don't say, "Don't explain." I've tried silence and it doesn't work. What now? - New Grandma in New Orleans

Dear Grandma: Intelligent people know that hair color (or eyes) can be a throwback from two or three generations. Tell the clods who ask such ignorant questions to brush up on the genetics.

Dear Ann Landers: I am replying to the letter signed "Waging a Secret War with Cigarette Smokers."

That person is absolutely right. There is no point in trying to discourage smokers. They will continue to smoke even though they realize smoking is hazardous to their health.

The problem with many smokers is that they are addicted. Also, smoking provides an outlet for their tensions. What would these folks do if they did not have this release? Have a nervous breakdown, maybe.

I say leave them alone. On The Other Side in Michigan

Dear Michigan: Granted, smoking may provide an outlet for tension, but it's a poor trade-off when one considers the physical damage that may result from this filthy and expensive habit.

I do not know of anyone who suffered a nervous breakdown when he stopped smoking, but I do know of some wonderful people who were heavy smokers and died much too young from lung cancer.

You say, "Leave them alone..." as if they are harming only themselves. We now know this is not the case. Tests have proven that a nonsmoker who works in close quarters or lives with a heavy smoker inhales a smoke equivalent to 11 cigarettes a day. Is this fair?

Kentucky Offers Many Gifts For Christmas

By Helen Price Stacy

They're hanging the greens in Kentucky! Garlands of pine entwined with lights are being hung in graceful swags across streets in town and city, and doors and windows are being transformed to entrances to the wonderful world of Christmas.

Utility poles have become giant peppermint sticks, wound round and round with red and white ribbons (maybe even a yellow ribbon this year) and are topped with fantastic and colorful Santas, wreaths, bells and stars.

If you are looking for just the right gift for that special person, why not "shop Kentucky" this year?

Write to the Fulton Chamber of Commerce to see if there is a banana-recipe cookbook available. It could go to someone who not only likes bananas but likes to cook with the fruit.

You might also check for cookbooks from Paintsville, Apple Festival city; or from West Liberty, home of the Sorghum Festival. Every town, county or city that hosts a fair or festival has groups who put together special cookbooks for the events.

"We Be Warm Till Spring Comes" is a new children's book by Lillie Chafin, 365 Ratliffs Creek, Pikeville, Ky. 41501. It would warm the hearts of any child as well as the adult who might have to do the reading. Other Kentucky authors you might contact are James Still in Hindman who has a new book coming out, or Jesse Stuart at W. Hollow-in-Greenvale for information about his new releases of pre-published books.

Most of Stuart's books are available in the gift shop at Jesse Stuart Lodge, Greenbore State Park, Greenup. Many books by Kentucky authors are available in state park gift shops. These books include cookbooks, novels, history and poetry.

Arts and crafts items are also available in park gift shops as well as in stores, shops and galleries throughout the state. Many art offerings include scenes of local countryside, history or flowers. Nellie Meadows of Clay City has painted a special winter scene, perfect for holiday giving either as a print reproduction for framing or several small prints for notepaper. This special painting benefits those who have kidney disorders.

Doug Adams of Morehead State University's Art Department has a series of paintings reproduced to aid a Jesse Stuart School Fund. The two prints released so far show Stuart's W. Hollow home and a floral depicting Stuart's poem, "The Flower Gatherer." His address is Elliottville in Rowan County.

Other Kentucky artists in various parts of the commonwealth have original prints, portraying just something about Kentucky, just as wood carvers, knitters, crocheters, patchwork, metal and leather workers make articles indicative of Kentucky people and their many talents.

Gift-giving and artistry can be multi-dimensional. There are gift tickets to ballet and opera in Kentucky, concert and lecture series, various types of theater including the state's popular indoor theater and musicals performed with spectacular backdrops of nature.

For friends out of state (as well as in), why not give a dinner or a weekend in a state resort park.

A perfect gift to a neighbor or friend would be a trip to Washington in Mason County for the Frontier Christmas celebration Dec. 6 and 7 when the historic town's five museums will be open and decorated in early 1800's holiday style.

Why not make this a Kentucky Christmas and buy in the state those Kentucky-made things that are sure to delight and bring warmth and good feelings to people in other states, other countries, and to friends and family at home.

Kentucky Briefs

FRANKFORD, Ky. (UPI) - Kentucky Personnel Commissioner Dick Robinson has announced an agreement that will give many more state employees the opportunity to participate in an alternative health insurance program. State Asks High Court To Clarify Ruling FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — The state Department of Education will soon file a petition asking the U.S. Supreme Court to clarify a recent ruling on the posting of the Ten Commandments in the public school classroom.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber and state Attorney General Steven Beshear made that announcement Wednesday.

The high court's Nov. 17 decision said Kentucky law which required a copy of the Ten Commandments to be posted in every classroom in the state is unconstitutional.

As a result of that court ruling, Barber asked for an opinion from the State Attorney General's Office as to the effect of the court's decision on the more than 21,000 copies of the Ten Commandments, which have already been posted in the classrooms across the state through voluntary donations.

Barber and Beshear were unavailable for comment. But Barbara Atkinson, a spokeswoman for the education department, said there has been "much confusion" about what to do with those copies of the Ten Commandments which have been voluntarily hung in the classrooms.

"This is one of the big questions we need answered," said Ms. Atkinson. "We have had school districts calling us asking what to do and we don't know what to tell them."

After review of the high court ruling, staff members from the offices of the superintendent and attorney general agreed that the best approach to a final resolution on this question was to seek a clarification from the U.S. Supreme Court, Ms. Atkinson said.

This clarification petition will be filed in the high court within the next two weeks.

Meanwhile, supporters of the classroom posting of the Ten Commandments contend since the copies were hung up through voluntary donations outside of the now-illegal law, the state law has never been implemented.

They said the court decision prevented state involvement in the posting of the Ten Commandments, not the actual posting of the copies by members of the community.

Demand For Wood Could Get Greater Than Supply

A recent assessment of the nation's forest and rangeland resources sounds a clear warning — unless present trends change the demand for wood it may be greater than the supply in 20 years and prices will get higher and higher.

The South will be hit first with softwood demand exceeding supply as early as 1980.

The trends that can bring on the shortages are growing population, increasing spendable income, growing demands for timber-related products and the loss of timber lands each year to other uses.

The assessment was made by the Forest Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, under provisions of the Forest and Rangeland, Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974. That act calls for a periodic look at present and projected demands for goods and services from all forests and rangelands. It also calls for a program based on the information in the assessment.

The projections in the assessment cover the next 50 years. Here are some of the highlights.

Lumber consumption will increase by 60 percent and pulpwood demand will more than double. Pulpwood is used in making the many paper products that Americans use each day.

Total annual demands for timber will increase from 13 billion cubic feet to 28.3 billion cubic feet, enough to build 7.6 million more single family homes each year.

Prices for wood products will rise because demand will exceed supply.

Demands for plywood, particleboard, hardboard and insulation board will increase rapidly.

There will be a shift in major softwood production from the Pacific Coast to the South. Within 50 years, more than half of the softwood production will come from the South.

Growing forests is a long time process requiring 30 years or more to produce a timber crop and federal, state and timber industry officials already are looking for ways to keep the dire predictions from coming true.

A study by the Forest Service and the Forest Industries Council indicates that better management of 160 million acres of commercial timberland could increase net annual timber growth by 11.5 billion cubic feet. Most of this land is owned by private individuals rather than by industry or public agencies.

Forestlands owned by private individuals make up 58 percent of the nation's total commercial forestland and 75 percent of the South's commercial forestland. The greatest effort to increase timber growth will be on these lands because industry already is managing its lands intensively and public lands such as National Forests must be managed for more than just timber.

In the South, the Forest Service, State Foresters and industry leaders have come up with a pine reforestation action plan with a goal of replanting more than one million acres a year by 1990 on private non-industrial forests in the South.

The Forest Service is looking at ways to boost the timber supply from the National Forests, consistent with other resource needs. It also plans to improve utilization of the wood that is now left in the forests after harvest.

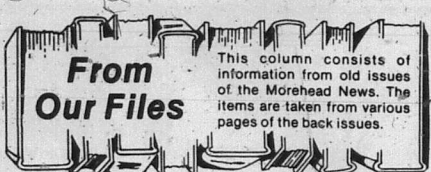

Chief Max Peterson has said the goal is to supply the equivalent of at least a billion board feet more a year by 1984 from forest and mill residues and thinnings.

Forest Service researchers are working also to help find ways to cut wood consumption. The Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wisconsin has developed a truss-frame construction method that saves about 30 percent in framing lumber for a house. This method could save a billion board feet of lumber a year.

A program based on the forest and rangeland assessments has been sent to Congress. The program for 1981-85, has two alternatives, a high level and a low level. The high level would increase production faster than the low level. Congress will decide whether to adopt one of the alternatives or possible a mix of both.

The assessment makes it clear that unless something is done Americans may not be able to afford a home in 2030...even if wood for it is available.

Until 1782, Kentucky was the western part of Virginia, which was the first of the original 13 colonies to import horses. The first horses arrived in 1660, just two years after the landing of settlers at Jamestown. Famine that winter killed both horses and settlers.

Reagan To Start Offering Cabinet Posts

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — President-elect Ronald Reagan has winnowed his list of prospective Cabinet appointees and is expected to start making telephone calls to his choices this weekend to offer them the jobs, aides say.

Aides said Thursday Reagan's list is now down to one name for each position and announcements of appointments may be made late next week or possibly on his return to Washington early the following week.

Each nominee for a top federal post must undergo an FBI check and disclose his or her financial status.

Reagan's talent scouts also are looking for a replacement for Lynn Nofziger, who served as Reagan's press secretary throughout the campaign. Nofziger is giving up his post, having long ago announced he did not want to serve in the new administration in Washington.

It was understood a couple of newsmen and a public relations executive have been sounded out for the job as White House spokesmen, but apparently are not interested.

Joe Holmes, who has been on Reagan's campaign team, will temporarily take over as his spokesman on the West Coast.

But for all those who are showing some hesitancy in taking positions in the Reagan administration, many more are reported to be scrambling for appointments and are bombarding transition headquarters with their resumes. This is especially true of many who held positions in the campaign and have not been told if they will be picked to go to Washington.

The president-elect celebrated the Thanksgiving holiday with members of his family at his mountaintop retreat 30 miles north of Santa Barbara.

He planned to fly back to Los Angeles today and Saturday will travel to Palm Springs to attend a $5,000-a-couple fundraising dinner for the Eisenhower Memorial Hospital.

THE MARKET BASKET

If you think there's no cheap eating to be found at the grocery store any more, take another look around.

A pound package of split peas can be found for around 40 cents. Simmered with or without ham scraps, they make a protein-packed main dish soup to satisfy four to six hungry appetites, say specialists with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service.

For about a dime more, dried navy beans make another robust soup or a pot of baked beans.

Peas, which are plentiful and inexpensive at this time of year, can be made into a thick chowder.

Another penny pincher is the egg. A dozen of them can be the basis of two family-size main dishes. Try baking a soufflé or make crepes or omelets, to fold around any number of vegetables in sauce.

Watch for tuna on special, recommend the specialists, and you can create all kinds of casseroles as well as patties, salads and sandwiches.

Lichtenberg Accepts Offensive Coordinator Job At Notre Dame

By MARK PERKINS Sports Editor

While relaxing in his office last summer, Morehead State head football coach Tom Lichtenberg lifted up his desk blotter and showed a visitor his newly updated three page resume. "No matter what line of work you're in, it's always good to update your resume at least once a year," Lichtenberg explained.

Lichtenberg will soon be taking a major step up the coaching career ladder, and without even having to present his resume.

This week Lichtenberg, 40, will switch from being a head coach at an Ohio Valley Conference school, to offensive coordinator at one of the nations perennial college football powers, Notre Dame.

Lichtenberg met with MSU president Morris Norfleet Monday morning to submit his letter of resignation effective this Friday.

Last week Gerry Faust was named head football coach at Notre Dame, replacing Dan Devine who announced he was resigning before this season started.

Faust, a good friend of Lichtenberg's, was head coach at Moeller High School in Cincinnati up until last week. His teams posted a 173-17-2 record since 1963.

When asked if he anticipated moving to Notre Dame before the season ended, Lichtenberg said, "Gerry has been a good friend of mine since 1962, and last year he told me that the head coaching job at Notre Dame was the only position that could lure him away from Moeller. At the same time he also told me he wouldn't take the job unless I came with him. Gerry isn't the type of guy who would just say that if he didn't mean it."

Faust and Lichtenberg were former coaching colleagues in Cincinnati. While Faust was building a national reputation at Moeller, Lichtenberg was establishing his own college credentials at Purcell High School in Cincinnati, as well as William Mason High School in Mason, Ohio.

Lichtenberg served as an assistant coach to Roy Terry during the 1972 and 1973 seasons at Morehead State, then moved on to assist Earle Bruce at Iowa State for five years.

When Bruce was named to succeed Woody Hayes at Ohio State in 1979, Lichtenberg moved back to Morehead as head coach, succeeding Wayne Chapman.

In his first season as a college head coach, Lichtenberg led the Eagles to a 5-4-1 mark, good enough for third place in the OVC and equalling MSU's highest league finish since the 1966 championship squad.

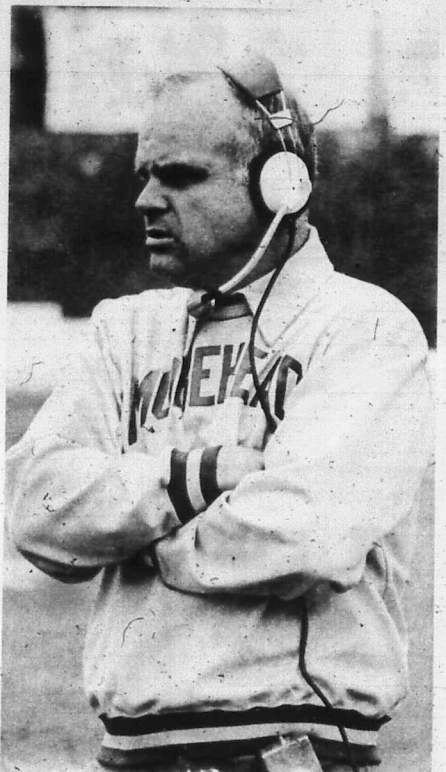

Lichtenberg said he will miss all the friends he has made during his years living in Morehead, and he will particularly miss his players. "I feel bad as far as the kids are concerned. That will be the hardest thing about going to Notre Dame is telling them I'm leaving because I love and respect each one of them," Lichtenberg said.

When asked to assess his performance during his two year tenure as the Eagle head coach, Lichtenberg said, "Our staff has done a good job of recruiting and no matter who takes over the football program it will be in much better shape than it was when I got here."

Lichtenberg said he will recommend Steve Loney, the offensive coordinator for the Eagles, to replace him as head coach.

Loney came to Morehead with Lichtenberg from Iowa State. "I think Steve would do an outstanding job, we both have the same coaching philosophy which is recruit quality kids, be concerned with their education, and that you win with character. Another plus for him is that he's been recruiting in eastern Kentucky," Lichtenberg said.

This will be the fifth such move for the Lichtenberg family, and although it's tough for five his children to leave their friends, Lichtenberg said everyone is excited about his new job.

Tom Lichtenberg, the ninth Eagle head coach, will leave Morehead this week to work as offensive coordinator at Notre Dame. "Gerry told me that if he was ever offered the Notre Dame job he wouldn't accept it unless he could bring me along," Lichtenberg said.

Eaglets Lose In Final Seconds To Elliott Co.

By KURT PICKERING Sports Staff Writer

An intentional foul call with five seconds left in the game spoiled a University Breckinridge comeback bid and allowed Elliott County to hold on to a 57-54 win over the Eaglets Friday in Sandy Hook.

The Eaglets, who led by three heading into the final quarter, slipped as far behind as six points when a Len foul shot made it 56-50 with less than a minute to go. Breck quickly sliced it back to four, however, on a jump shot by Donnie Battson.

Needing the ball Coach Hangel Dennis had his club pressing on the rebound pass. The strategy worked when Joe Magrane tied up Steve Gillum and then out-letaped him on the resulting jump ball. Battson took the tap and swished another jumper to cut it to 56-54.

With only six seconds left, Breck pressed again. Magrane swatted the inbounds pass away, but it sailed out of bounds, giving Elliott County another chance at getting it in with five seconds to go.

The pass came to Guard Jerry Stinson on the right side of Breck's lane. As he dribbled under the Breck hoop, trying to thread the press, Battson reached in an attempt to swipe the ball. Ed Radjunas whistled Battson for reaching in, judging it an intentional foul. That judgment changed what would have been a one-and-one into a two-shot foul.

Stinson magnified the importance of the call by missing the first shot. On a one-and-one, had Breck come down with the rebound, it might have been able to send the game to overtime with a long bucket. Stinson, however, had a second try and iced the game by making it.

Dennis didn't seem angry in discussing the call afterward, but he did say, "That was no more an intentional foul than any other. He was reaching for the ball."

Statistically, the closeness of the numbers on the scoreboard was proven by the numbers in the book. Each club hit 22 field goals, with Breck doing so in 49 attempts for a percentage of 47 and the Lions trying 50 for a percentage of 46. The difference in rebounds was only one, with Breck holding the edge at 26-25. Both clubs played fine floor games, committing only 14 turnovers between them - nine by the Eaglets, five by Elliott County.

With each club hitting an identical number of floor shots, the difference had to come at the foul line. Even there, it was close. Each club missed three tries, the difference was that Elliott had more attempts, hitting 11 of 13 to Breck's eight of 10.

Individually, Joe Magrane and Sam Holbrook led the way for the Eaglets. Each pulled down seven rebounds, while Magrane had 25 points - tops on the floor and his fifth straight game with 20 or more - and Holbrook had 14. Phillip Fannin scored 22 for the winners, aided by 15 from Gillum. Lion Center Milton Stamper figured little in the scoring but led all rebounders with 10, an important statistic in such a tight game.

The game was both an Eastern Kentucky Conference and Footfalls Championship matchup. The loss leaves Breck with a 3-6 overall record, 0-3 in the EKC and 1-2 in the FHC. The winning Lions improved their marks in those respective categories to 4-2, 1-0 and 1-1. The Eaglets travel to Vanceburg tomorrow for the first round action in the EKC tournament against Lewis County, meeting the Lions at approximately 8 p.m., following the 6:30 Ladies' EKC tourney game between the same schools.

A win for either team would advance it to second-round action Thursday against either West Carter County or Rowan County in Olive Hill, where the rest of the action will be staged. The championship is Saturday.

Kentucky Afield. By JOHN WILSON. Squirrel season opened way back in August and a lot of hunters went out then, couldn't find many squirrels, decided populations were low and gave up for the year. But early-season hunting is the hardest and least productive of any. A trip now through the same woods that seemed barren last summer could well be an eye-opening experience and enough to convert you to late-season hunting. The trees, whose heavy foliage provided good hiding places for squirrels last summer, are bare now, so the flicker of a gray, bushy tail will be more obvious. And food has become harder for the squirrels to find, forcing them to concentrate near what is available. This is the time of year the hunter who prefers to take his squirrels with a 22 rifle waits for. He can scout out a good stand of nut-producing hardwoods with plenty of squirrel sign, arrive quietly just before dawn and often take his limit from that one spot. The soft bark of a 22 doesn't scare squirrels nearly as much as the boom of a shotgun, so if the hunter sits quietly after shooting, the squirrels will soon resume their activity and afford the hunter additional shots. If you do hunt with a 22, remember to be careful of those little bullets can carry over a mile and will ricochet off hard surfaces or even off water. If there's any question about safety, leave the 22 at home and go with a shotgun. Another productive squirrel hunting technique is to hunt from a tree stand - perhaps the same one you built for deer hunting. Squirrels don't seem to pay much attention to humans off the ground and will often almost run over a hunter sitting in a tree. Hunting from a tree stand is a good technique for taking squirrels with a bow and arrow. Special small game arrows are available with blunt points and fletching designed for short flights. So if you've already taken your deer but still want to bow hunt, consider giving squirrels a try. Another good technique is to hunt by water, either by wading or from a canoe or light john boat. If duck season is open, a combined float-hunt for squirrels and ducks is possible - and could possibly be combined with some fishing. But be extra careful around or on the water in cold weather. A dunking in winter can be more than uncomfortable - it can kill you. Always wear a personal flotation device and know the symptoms of and treatment for hypothermia, the dangerous lowering of the body's internal temperature which can cause death if not checked. The last part of the squirrel season (Continued on next page)

Bracket For Morehead Lions Club Junior High-School Basketball Tournament

Sports Briefs

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Veteran guard Don Buse has passed a physical examination and declared himself ready to play for the Indiana Pacers of the National Basketball Association. However, Buse was not activated to the Indiana roster immediately because the Pacers were at the 11-player league limit. Buse was obtained from the Phoenix Suns in a deal involving future draft choices.

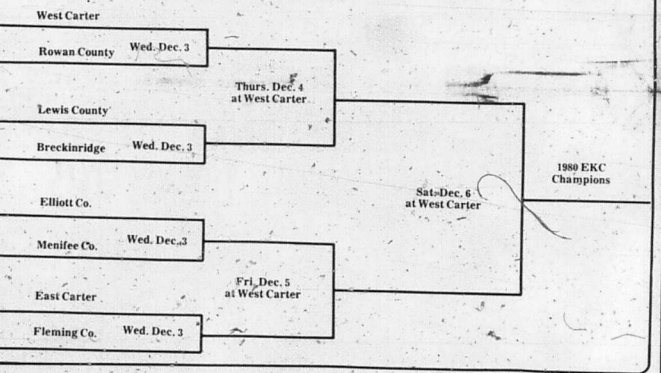

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Bengals removed tight end M.L. Harris and defensive lineman Rod Horn from the injured reserve list Friday, making them eligible for Sunday's game at Kansas City against the Chiefs. To make room on the roster for Harris and Horn, the Bengals waived safety Jim Browner and placed defensive lineman Gary Burley on the injured reserve list.

MANCHESTER, Conn. (UPI) — Charles Duggan, 27, a Tampa, Fla., physical education teacher, won Manchester's annual 5-mile Thanksgiving Day road race, finishing in 22:30 in a pack of 4,000 runners. Duggan, a Hartford native and graduate of Springfield College, has competed in the race 13 times. In the past five years he had finished in either second or third place.

Gen Tel Can Issue Bonds

FRANKFORT, Ky. — General Telephone Co. has been authorized to issue and sell $25 million in first mortgage bonds at a rate not to exceed 13.75 percent.

The authority was given under an order of the state Utility Regulatory Commission.

Upon request from General Telephone, authority to issue $25 million in bonds granted earlier this year was withdrawn. In its request, the company stated that due to worsening market conditions it had refrained from proceeding with bond sales under the original order.

General Telephone serves customers in 33 counties.

Safety Is Important For Those Who Want To Cut Their Firewood

FRANKFORT — The same characteristics that make chainsaws so useful for many purposes — cutting firewood, clearing land or trimming trees — also can make them dangerous.

Last year an estimated 1,000 Kentuckians were injured while using chainsaws, according to Department for Human Resources statistics. About three of every four of these injuries were the result of chainsaw kickback, which happens when the saw is violently thrown back toward the operator. Kickback most often occurs when the wood being cut closes in and pinches the saw chain or when the saw strikes an object other than the wood being cut.

With more and more people cutting and burning wood in an effort to save on energy bills, chainsaw injuries have dramatically increased, said Edsel Moore, manager of the department's consumer product safety branch. Due to the increase, the federal Consumer Product Safety Commission now is developing a mandatory product standard of identity for chainsaws.

Many chainsaw manufacturers in the U.S. already have modified and added safety equipment to their saws to help prevent injuries, Moore said. Those features include chain brakes and hand guards. Some manufacturers are currently developing a combination of low-kick bar and chain, and low-profile cutting chains designed to reduce the chance and severity of kickback.

"There are domestic manufacturers in this country exporting saws to Sweden and Europe that meet mandatory safety standard not yet required by the U.S.," Moore said. These modifications add only about $10 to the price of the saws, he added.

"When a federal product standard of identity is put into effect, all chainsaws sold in the U.S. would be required to include a number of safety features," Moore said. "Most of the safety features are designed to reduce the chance and severity of chainsaw kickback."

Moore said chainsaw kickback, while being the greatest single hazard related to chainsaws can be prevented most of the time through proper safety features and with proper use of the saw.

"It is important that the operator be familiar with the dos and don'ts of chainsaw operation," Moore said. "A person who plans to use a chainsaw must thoroughly study the saw's owner-operator manual," he said. "Be sure you understand these instructions before you attempt to operate the saw. Don't be afraid to ask your dealer or rental agent to show you how to use the equipment properly."

Moore emphasized the importance of matching the saw to the type of task it will be used to do most often. "Select a saw no larger or smaller than you need," he said.

There are three basic sizes of chainsaws — mini or lightweight, midweight and heavyweight.

The mini or lightweight saw has a guide bar eight to 12 inches long. It should be used only for light or occasional limbing, cutting small logs and felling small trees, Moore said.

The midweight saw's guide bar is 14 to 20 inches long. This is the most popular saw size and is used for frequent log cutting and felling small trees, he said.

The heavyweight saws have guide bars 20 inches and longer; however, Moore does not recommend these saws for consumers because they are designed primarily for professional use.

If the guide bar is substantially longer than the thickness of the wood to be cut, the tip of the guide bar could accidentally contact a nearby branch, the ground or another nearby object and result in a serious kickback injury,

Moore explained.

On the other hand, if the guide bar is too short, it could be necessary to bury the tip of the guide bar in the cut, making a bore cut, when sawing large logs, he said. However, Moore said that bore cutting should be left to professionals because of the extreme danger of kickback and equipment overstress.

"Just reading the operator's instructions and having the right chainsaw doesn't mean a person is ready to start sawing," said Moore. "Just as important as knowing how to operate the saw is wearing protective clothing." Protective clothing is probably the most overlooked precaution, he said.

Moore recommends that chainsaw users dress as professionals do by wearing a hard hat, safety goggles, safety shoes, sure-grip gloves, trim-fitting clothes and hearing protection.

The consumer product safety branch collected information to develop a better understanding of chainsaw-related accidents. Such information was submitted to the federal Consumer Product Safety Commission in late October and will be used by the commission to develop a new product standard of identity.

To compile his report, Moore depended on consumer reports of chainsaw-related accidents and hazards.

Brown Announces UK Expansion Projects

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. announced Wednesday that three campus construction projects have been freed from the current state construction freeze — including expansion of a $12.5 million Primary Care Center and outpatient clinic at the UK Medical Center.

"This has been on the drawing board since 1976 and approved by the General Assembly. I must have asked 100 questions about it. If any project is justified it is the Primary Care Center," the governor told a crowd of 300 people.

The expansion will provide an additional 133,000 square feet of floor space for family-oriented care, as well as the out-patient clinic for ambulatory patients.

Construction on the Primary Care Center is scheduled to begin sometime in 1981 and the expansion should be completed in 1983, according to a UK Medical School spokesman.

The new building will allow outpatient services to increase and will help alleviate some of the present overcrowding at the Medical Center.

Also freed from the construction embargo, ordered to help reduce state capital spending to a minimum, was $1.4 million for completion of the fourth floor of the existing Sanders-Brown Research Center on Aging, which is named for Brown's father, John Y. Brown Sr., Lexington, and Cob Harland

Sanders, 90, Shelbyville, Kentucky Fried Chicken Corp. founder.

The second floor will be added to allow the university to apply for additional research grants that require certain types of research space.

Sanders and Brown both contributed financially to the construction of the original building.

The third project is the $4.1 million UK Student Center, which Brown said got the green light because no state money was involved. The bonds issued for its construction will be retired by student fees over the next 20 years.

The $10 million increased fees first were charged UK students at the beginning of the current school year.

Kentucky Brief

PADUCAH, Ky. (UPI) — Two developers say they have abandoned plans to build competing shopping malls and instead will combine efforts to develop a single major suburban mall at the edge of Paducah. The decision was announced Friday in a letter by David Hocker and Associates, Inc. of Owensboro and the Capital Co. of Youngstown, Ohio. In a related move, both developers also said they were considering becoming involved in commercial developments in downtown Paducah, a move which could overcome legal challenges to the suburban mall by downtown interests.

Parents Taught Ways To Rear Children

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Parents having trouble coping with their children can now go to a school of sorts and learn how to deal with their offspring.

For nearly two years, the Kentucky Department of Human Resources has been offering the popular courses, dubbed "positive parenting training," in several Louisville neighborhoods.

The department uses 29 University of Louisville-trained family service workers who conduct several-week seminars, and the idea has been so successful programs geared toward children in particular age groups are being formed.

"Before positive parenting began," says Helen McMahan who runs the program, "traditional door-to-door social work was all we had available. We could refer parents with problems to comprehensive care centers or mental health clinics."

"But there were few parenting classes in Jefferson County that didn't cost money," she said, DHR offers the course free to parents referred by family service workers.

The advantages of group meetings are that parents feel more comfortable with others facing the same problems, and parents are more willing to try ideas offered by other parents instead of social workers.

Ms. McMahan said even after the formal training ends, parents tend to form informal support groups in the neighborhoods.

The idea has spawned a support group for single parents, as well. They're taught how to budget, seek jobs, deal with loneliness and meet people.

A 28-year-old woman identified as Helen, who has three young children and lives in a Louisville low-income housing project, was reluctant at first to take part.

"I didn't want to go," said Helen. "But the kids were in school so I couldn't use them as an excuse."

After completing the six-week course, Helen realized all problems aren't the fault of the children.

"The praise and reward idea worked best at my house," she said. "I had been buying him rewards, but I found that a hug is the best reward, besides telling him that I love him."

Another woman, identified as Vickie, said she learned how to handle her little boy who "talked back and wouldn't mind. I was tired of hollering and whipping on him."

Now, Vickie uses a "time out" technique instead of arguing with her son, she tells him to sit quietly and say nothing for five or 10 minutes. The method has worked for her.

Parents in another group are learning to treat their young as people with thoughts and feelings that must be heeded. One parent in that group says she has learned to help her children solve problems — but not help her must solve them for them.

Jefferson County parents interested in positive parenting should contact their local Bureau for Social Services.

Kentucky Briefs

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — The state Department of Transportation 73,000 tons of salt for use in clearing Kentucky's 25,000 miles of state-maintained roads this winter, according to transportation officials.

That's almost twice the amount the state had on hand during the winter of 1978. Almost 28,000 tons of the state's salt supply is stored in salt domes where it will keep for a long period of time, according to assistant state highway engineer Russell Romine. He said the salt in the domes will only be used in an emergency. Snow plows, graders and trucks are part of the additional equipment brought by the state in preparation for winter, said Romine.

adding that the department has enough personnel to clear the roads without any problems.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Ruth M. Ruggles, Anderson County extension agent for home economics, was named Friday to succeed Marsha Herndon as the women's programs director for the Kentucky Farm Bureau. Ms. Herndon has resigned effective Dec. 15 to become director of women's programs for the American Farm Bureau in Park Ridge, Ill. She is a native of Livermore in McLean County. Ms. Ruggles, a 31-year-old native of Owensboro, has been the extension agent in Lawrenceburg for 10 years.

Plastics Seminar Set

A seminar on the fundamentals of plastics technology for scientists and engineers will be offered Dec. 8-11 in Louisville by the University of Kentucky.

Subjects will include the latest plastics manufacturing technology, including plastic part design, choosing the correct plastic and the appropriate manufacturing method.

The seminar, sponsored by the UK College of Engineering and the Capital Co. of Youngstown, Ohio. For additional information, call (606) 257-3971.

Gas Supplies Plentiful, Study Finds

LEXINGTON — Natural gas supplies will be excellent this winter, according to a study by the Kentucky Department of Energy.

The optimistic forecast is predicated on normal temperatures occurring during the heating season, which runs from Nov. 1 to March 31. The study indicates that the overall supply situation is better this year than in 1979-80.

The report is based on data collected from interstate pipeline companies and the major natural gas distributors in the commonwealth. There are 98 natural gas companies operating in the state, although more than 95 percent of the gas sold in Kentucky comes from five firms — Columbia Gas Transmission, Kentucky-West Virginia Gas, Tennessee Gas Pipeline, Texas Eastern Gas Transmission and Texas Gas Transmission.

Area Shops To Offer Senior Citizen Discounts

OWINGSVILLE - Under a new and voluntary program authorized by the legislature, senior citizens will soon be able to get a ten percent discount on goods and services at participating merchants in Montgomery, Bath, and Rowan Counties, Charles Jones, Gateway aging planner, has announced.

"Senate Bill 39, which was signed by Gov. Brown on April 9, mandates that a senior citizens discount program be implemented by the state Department for Human Resources," Jones said. "We are starting this program in Montgomery, Bath, and Rowan Counties, with Morgan and Menifee to come later."

"The system by which this works is quite simple: Any senior citizen in the five-county Gateway area who wants to get the discount at participating merchants should go to his senior citizen center. There he can get an information sheet to fill out that is sent in to Frankfort. After being processed, a special discount I.D. card will be sent to the senior citizen. We expect this to be sometime in Jan. 1981. Then all the senior citizen has to do is produce the card at merchants that are participating in the program."

"We want to emphasize that not all merchants are participating in this program," Jones added, "and that it is strictly a voluntary program as far as the merchants are concerned. Jones explained that the law leaves the program "very wide-open" as far as what the merchants want to do. He can give ten percent, or five percent, or whatever he wants to."

"We hope the area businesses will use this program as a tool to create more store traffic for themselves and offer the discount at the same time."

"Only those persons 65 years of age or older are eligible for the program, and they must show the discount card as proof of their age when making the purchase at participating stores.

Merchants who have signed up for the discount in Montgomery County are: Begley Drug - on prescription medications; Galico and Whitt Drug Store - prescriptions; Ross Drug - prescriptions and other items; Rite Aid - prescriptions; Keatings Shoe Store; Newberry's Department Store; T G and Y Store - (give discount to Senior Citizens Center); Maloney's Department Store; Shirley's Shop and Sew; Evelyn's Flowers; Flower Bowl; Forget Me Not Florist; Creative Candles; Williamson's Furniture Company; Conn Furniture.

Also Fraters Furniture; Smith's Furniture and Appliance Center; Frodge TV; Carrington's Furniture and Appliances; Goodyear Tire Center; Bramblet's Gifts; Gilley Florist and Greenhouses, Inc.; West's Studio and Gallery; Jo Ann's Cards and Gifts; Cowden Factory Outlet; Baker's Pharmacy; Risner's Beauty Salon - shampoos and sets; Nu-tek Beauty Academy; Hair Designers, Inc. and Hair Performance.

Merchants in Rowan County are: Maloney's, Trademore Center; Batts-son's Drug Store; Burger Queen; Trademore Center; Burger Queen; Flemingsburg Road; Dairy Cheer; Revco - Prescription Department; Roses, Trademore Center; Morehead Clinic Pharmacy and Cave Run Pharmacy.

Merchants in Bath County are: Razor Restaurant; Miller Furniture and Appliance; Boyd's Restaurant; Will's TV and Appliances; Knick Knack Corner and Davis Department Store; 5 percent discount on everything in store; if that falls on Sunday, it will be the following day.

Marland Crawford and his wife, Juanita, appeared on the front cover of the May 1977 Happening Hunting Ground, magazine published by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Crawford retired Sept. 30 after 28 years with the department as a conservation officer in Rowan and surrounding counties.

Marland Crawford Retires As Conservation Officer

Crawford remarked, "I always tried to be courteous to people," Crawford continued. "After all, when you're caught doing something wrong, you're naturally nervous, so I would at first try to put the people at ease."

Reflecting on his years as a law enforcement officer, Crawford said he had particularly enjoyed working with young people.

"I taught conservation education in the schools up until the time Cave Run opened and there wasn't time anymore," Crawford said, adding that he also enjoyed spending the time at Camp Robert C. Webb in Carter County.

At age 56, Crawford admits that he is now restless since retirement and isn't ready to just sit around the house.

Trail Rides.

"The only thing I've ever known is law enforcement and I'd be silly to say I didn't miss it," said Crawford, who is used to being on the go to the extent of an average of 50,000 miles a year.

He does admit that retirement has given him more time to pursue his favorite means of relaxation - riding his jet black Tennessee Walking horse.

"I love to trail ride out in the county," Crawford smiles. "I've owned a horse all my life, even when I lived in Detroit."

Crawford also likes to hunt and fish and for the first time this year took the time to tend a garden, assisted by his wife, Juanita Carter Crawford, a teacher at Elliottville Elementary School.

But the father of two - Sharon Justice, Mt. Sterling, and "Bo-Bo" Crawford, of Rowan County - is not satisfied with staying put.

"I didn't retire because I had to," Crawford said. "I retired because I had something else in mind."

Soft Contact Lenses For Astigmatism

Most people who have astigmatism have a pretty good idea of what it is. For those who aren't quite sure, a simple explanation would be "a vision condition in which images at all distances may be distorted or blurred." It is not a disease.

We are now fitting soft contact lenses for patients with a higher degree of astigmatism than was correctable before with the use of conventional soft lenses. These "toric" soft lenses require the same care as regular soft contacts.

If you are interested in these NEW lenses, feel free to call our office for more information.

Morgan Countians Will Vote On Friday To Decide Wet-Dry Issue

By ALICE AKIN
Staff Writer

WEST LIBERTY — One of the hottest, most emotional issues ever to face the residents of Morgan County will be decided Friday when voters go to the polls to determine whether their county will become "wet" or remain "dry."

The controversy has split the county right down the middle, in some instances dividing families, and in other cases causing people to be purposefully "light lipped" and reluctant to be quoted.

In any event, the local-option election two days away is expected to attract one of the largest voting crowds in Morgan County's history.

The voter turnout is predicted to be bigger than that of any general elections held in the county, which has approximately 7,000 registered voters.

And the election will culminate months of efforts and large expenditures in advertising conducted by the opposing groups — the United Dry Forces, organized against legal sales of alcohol in the county, and Morgan County's Progress who are in favor of the county going wet.

Both factions have presented convincing arguments for their views and in recent weeks have made strenuous last-ditch efforts to pull those voters who are undecided over to their sides.

The controversy began bubbling last summer when 1,435 persons signed petitions to put the local-option issue on the ballot.

The "wets" said there was little trouble in obtaining the signatures, more than doubling the 750 names required by law.

The "drys" argue that some people were unclear as to what they were signing and that the petitions were worded in a manner that implied the drive was only to get rid of Morgan County's growing number of bootleggers, that the wording was "hazy" and that the people were unaware of what they were signing.

"The wets" flatly deny this, saying, that the people of the county are tired of the "rampant" bootlegging, and prefer that if alcohol is to be sold it should be sold legally and they say, the petition clearly stated that the issue concerned was a wet-dry option vote.

The "wets" further contend that legalized sales would prohibit minors from purchasing alcohol, whereas the "drys" imply that alcohol would be more available to youth in that juveniles could always get someone of age to make the purchase.

Both pro and con sentiments have found their way into practically every conversation spot in the county from

According to officials at the Morehead Tobacco Warehouse, bailed tobacco is coming arriving in much larger amounts this season and bringing the same price.

Burley Sales Figures

Burley tobacco prices held generally firm in Kentucky Friday as the first week of auctions came to a close. Companies continued paying $166 per hundred for virtually all marketings. Even tobacco designated as non-descript averaged from $163 to $166 per hundredweight.

Volume ranged from light to heavy at the various markets and sales were passed in Huntington due to light deliveries.

Gross sales for the burley area Wednesday amounted to 70,738.795 pounds and averaged $165.97 per 100, down only 15 cents from the previous sale. The season figure reached 94,179.856 pounds averaging $165.78 per 100.

Only 2.110 pounds have been placed under loan so far this season.

Sloans Valley Cave: Adventure Below Ground

THIS WAY — Sam Waltz of Sirem Fishing Lines, holds the light as outdoor writer, Ed Spitske of Somerset, makes his way over a breakdown inside Sloans Valley Cave. Kerosene lanterns are used to light up the insides of this huge system of underground passageways in southeastern Kentucky.

LOW CLEARANCE — Bill Nichols, a Somerset caver, peers out from under a massive piece of flow stone deep inside Sloans Valley Cave. Such "duck under" are found throughout the massive cavern which is reputed to be one of the largest in the world.

NOW JUST WHERE ARE WE? Ed Spitske (with map), outdoor editor for Commonwealth Journal, traces path of cavers as Jim McGuire of Dayton, looks on.

"Got my foot trapped when a slab of rock broke off the low ceiling fell on it and pushed it down into the muck of the cave's bottom. I couldn't move and I couldn't budge the heavy rock. If there hadn't been others with me, I might still be here." Bill Nichols commented as we made our way through a tangle of breakdowns (rocks that have fallen from the roof of the cave) deep inside one of the world's 10 largest cave systems.

Memories of the famed Floyd Collins incident flashed across my mind as I remembered a similar incident that happened to one of Kentucky's early cave explorers when he was probing the maze of passageways in the now internationally-famed Mammoth Cave system.

Nervously, I glanced at the ceiling, trying to estimate its safety or predict when another few ton of rocks might tumble down. I could, no neither, of course, as we continued through the huge passageway, leading deeper and deeper into the system.

Bill, an avid caver with some 10 years of experience, and Ed Spitske, outdoor editor for the Commonwealth Journal in Somerset, were our guides as a half dozen outdoor writers from Kentucky and Ohio made our way through the slightly illuminated darkness of the underground cave system, located only a short distance south of Somerset on U.S. 27.

Already more than 24 miles of underground passages have been mapped by the long-time efforts of members from the Blue Grass and Central Ohio Grottos who have been working in the cave since 1969.

Kentucky Publishing's

Outdoors With Soc

By Soc Clay, Wildlife Editor

Currently, Sloans Valley system is the second largest cave in Kentucky and one of the 10 largest in the world. Local spelunkers, familiar with many of the cave systems throughout the U.S., feel that Sloans Valley may turn out to be larger than Mammoth Caves when it has been thoroughly explored. So far, they feel they have only scratched the surface of the maze of corridors than run in every direction at a number of different elevations inside the cave network.

I almost swallowed a bat! Someone in front had accidentally brushed one of the many small brown bats off the low roof of the cave and it hit me in the mouth! I believe that experience was more frightening than if the roof had fallen in.

Spitske said they'd discovered the bats deep into the cave, miles from known entrances, of which there are 16 in the Sloans Valley system.

There is little evidence of human use inside the vast cave other than a hard-packed dirt floor where spelunkers must travel to reach more distant and remote sections of the system. One thing that has kept the huge cave out of the public eye is the lack of decorative formations such as stalagmites and stalactites, indicating there are few limestone deposits in the immediate cave area.

One section of the cave, called Crystal Caves, was opened to the public on a commercial basis back in the 1920's, but the operation never really got off the ground. When Lake Cumberland was formed, that part of the cave system was flooded.

While there may be larger caves in other parts of the state, Pulaski County holds the reputation of having more caves than anywhere else. In fact, the town square in the middle of Somerset, rests on top of a huge cavern that was once reputed to be headquarters for a lively and productive moonshine operation.

Many of these caves were flooded when Lake Cumberland was backed up, and no one's sure if all the caves in the county have even been discovered yet.

Evidence that Sloans Valley Cave was also used for the manufacture of illicit spirits was indicated when one of our exploring group kicked over an old wash tub. The light from two Coleman Lanterns showed other rusted pieces of hardware that was probably used in a corn whisky operation.

One thing sure, no one wants to go into this huge system without the aid of an experienced caver and a good map. Even with our maps, we found that we were always somewhat confused and often had to backtrack after we'd followed dead-end passages, thinking we were on the right track.

Cavers in the Somerset area, though, are not too difficult to find. Not only are there several locals who enjoy regular exploring of the underground systems, there is even a clubhouse near the Minton Hollow entrance where members of the two Grottos mentioned earlier can be found on just about any weekend.

We were trying to reach the main section of the cave where Spitske said there were huge rooms up to 600 feet in length with ceiling's as high as 80 feet. This is also part of the "Grande Spaghetto," a part of the cave where a maze of passageways lead off in a confusing array of directions and levels.

To reach the main section of the cave requires a belly crawl of some 150 yards. As we stuck lanterns and battery lights into the small "duck under," leading to the crawl, it was soon discovered that some of us, er, larger members of the exploring team would never be able to negotiate the tight-fitting passageway.

In fact we'd no sooner started the crawl when the tightening fear of claustrophobia engulfed several of the members of our party. We retreated to the more roomy passageway, quickly.

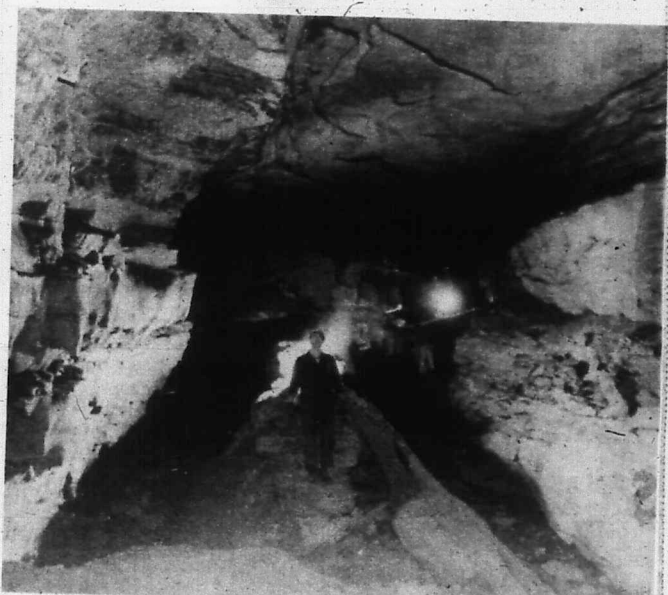

While there are few limestone deposit formations in the Sloans Valley system, other caves in the Pulaski County area are worth the exploration just to see the interesting sights. Cave Creek Cave, for example, is another huge system with more than 15 miles of passageways already mapped. This cave system was recently recommended for an "Underground Wilderness Area." The idea has been tabled for the time being due to terrific opposition of land owners who own the surface above the cave system. They feared wilderness status of the cave would result in the federal government owning and controlling top-side lands as well.

Currently, there's a controversy raging between a landfill operation and cavers about the possibility of creating a landfill area immediately above the passageways of the Sloans Valley Cave.

Cave explorers fear the landfill will create pollution problems inside the cave via water run-off, seepage, etc. Hearings are now being conducted to try and resolve the dispute.

For additional information about the many caves of Pulaski County, contact Jess Turpin, Somerset-Pulaski County Tourist Comm., Box 622, Somerset, KY 42501. Phone (606) 679-6394.

Tips On Toys

You don't have to spend a lot of money buying toys that are both enjoyable and educational for the children on your shopping list. You do, however, have to invest a little time and thought in what's appropriate. Here are some suggestions from the Toy Manufacturers of America that will help you to select toys that will offer children receiving them the most fun and education for your dollars.

Babies under 18 months like brightly colored, lightweight toys of varied textures that will stimulate their senses of sight and feel. These toys should be washable, too, but to swallow and free of sharp corners or rough edges. Stuffed animals are welcome companions for children of all ages.

Toddlers between 18 months and three years appreciate action toys. They like things to ride and climb on, balls, a pool, a sandbox. They also like play furniture and appliances, blocks, clay, and large crayons, a blackboard with chalk, and simple musical instruments.

Preschool children, ages three to six, like to set out grown-up roles and create make-believe situations. Costumes, puppets, play stores, doll houses and similar imitative toys are popular. So are trains, cars, planes, boats and construction toys. The simpler electronic games, suited to this age group, are also appreciated.

Children six to nine like board games, table top sports, and such classic items as marbles, jacks, tops and kites, which help to develop social and physical skills. Fashion dolls and action figures also appeal. This is a good time for printing sets, science and craft kits, electric trains, construction sets and hobby equipment. Bicycles, skates, sleds and other sports equipment are other possibilities. So are books, especially those specially written for children of this age.

Between nine and twelve, children begin to develop specific skills. Give considerable attention to various hobbies and crafts. Sports equipment aids physical ability, while social skills are enhanced with board and electronic games of all kinds.

Toys carefully selected to suit a child's age level can contribute to healthy development.

To Grandmother's House We Go

Over the river and through the woods go nifty little pocket cameras that can shoot all the holiday pictures you could want. They take full size 35mm film, have fabulous lenses for crisper, sharper pictures, yet are small enough to fit into your pocket and tuck into your shirt pocket unobtrusively.

From holiday trips to party, a fold-out 35mm pocket size camera like this "Rich" adds the fun that a regular camera offers, but in a smaller, more portable package.

Whether it's holiday dinner at Grandma's, a week-end end-of-the-year party, or all the December parties that come and go, it's a versatile camera for filming the fun indoors or outdoors as easy as pumpkin pie to use, too. Simply set the lens, opening, and the camera sets the right shutter speed. Get bright, colorful, sharp pictures of the excitement, just by pointing and shooting.

One reminder from Ricoh—which has one of the smallest pocket cameras, the FF-14—to use fast film indoors, and flash for low light pictures. On gloomy winter days, or to catch action, use fast film (400) outdoors as well.

From Grandmother's house to New Year's Eve, easy picture taking keeps long memories.

LEGAL NOTICE

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
 FEDERAL ENERGY REGULATORY COMMISSION
 Saranac Energy Corporation
 Project No. 3538-000
 NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR PRELIMINARY PERMIT (November 21, 1980)

Take notice that Saranac Energy Corporation has filed an application on October 8, 1980, for a preliminary permit pursuant to the Federal Power Act, 16 U.S.C. §5379(a) - (e)(5) for the proposed "Cave Run Project, FERC Project No. 3538, located at the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' Cave Run Lake Dam on the Licking River, in Bath and Rowan Counties near Salt Lick and Farmers, Kentucky. The application is on file with the Commission and is available for public inspection. Correspondence with the Applicant should be directed to: Mr. Charles Mierek, P.E., Cortland Assoc., Inc., 888 Arlington Drive, Tucker, Georgia 30084. Any person who wishes to file a response to this notice should read the entire notice and must comply with the requirements specified for the particular kind of response that person wishes to file.

Project Description - The proposed project would utilize an existing U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' dam and reservoir. Project No. 3538 would consist of: (1) a proposed powerhouse located on the eastern bank of the river; (2) proposed transmission lines; and (3) appurtenant facilities. Applicant estimates the capacity of the proposed project to be 8.2 MW, and the annual energy output to be 43 GWh.

Purpose of Project - Energy produced at Project No. 3538 would most probably be sold to the utility companies Lexington, Kentucky.

Proposed Scope and Cost of Studies under Permit - Applicant has requested 36-month permits to prepare definitive project reports, including preliminary design and economic feasibility studies, hydrological studies, environmental and social studies, and soil foundation data. The costs of the aforementioned activities along with obtaining agreements with other Federal, State and local agencies is estimated to be $100,000.

Purpose of Preliminary Permit - A preliminary permit does not authorize construction. A permit, if issued, gives the Permittee, during the term of the permit, the right of priority of application for license while the Permittee undertakes the necessary studies and examinations to determine the engineering, economic, and environmental feasibility of the proposed project, the market for the power, and all other information necessary for inclusion in an application for a license.

Agency Comments - Federal, State, and local agencies that receive this notice through direct mailing from the Commission are invited to submit comments on the described application

Despite Local Decline, State Food Prices Increase

After a brief respite, retail food prices in Kentucky resumed an upward march in November, according to the Kentucky Farm Bureau monthly marketbasket survey. But prices in Morehead dropped about one percent, following the period's only decline, an 8 percent drop, from September to October. This month's rise pushed the average 11 percent ahead of year-ago levels.

Leading gainers in the most recent survey were eggs, pork, fresh vegetables, milk and most other dairy products. Nineteen items showed higher supermarket tabs in November, while 18 were lower than the month before. A range of products, including poultry, some beef cuts, bread, flour, meal and ice cream experienced small declines.

Ground beef, a staple for many households, continues its trend toward price stability. At a statewide average of $1.48 a pound, hamburger beef was unchanged from October, and just one cent higher than September. In the 17 monthly surveys conducted by Farm Bureau volunteers, beginning in July 1979, ground beef has averaged slightly below $1.50 for 11 months, and at or just above $1.50 six times.

Salversville checked in with November's lowest local marketbasket average, at $1.54, while Monticello was highest at $2.15. In all, surveyors checked supermarket prices in 26

Kentucky communities. Other local averages were Hopkinsville, $3.29; Morehead, $3.42; Tompkinsville, $3.46; Greensburg, $4.45; Franklin, $4.62; Glasgow, $4.69; Elizabethtown, $5.38; Greenup, $5.95; Munfordville, $6.00; Owensboro, $7.21; Cynthiana, $7.25.

Covington, $8.03; Murray, $8.17; Shelbyville, $8.28; Danville, $8.70; Brandenburg, $9.17; Georgetown, $9.41; Lexington, $9.48; Stanford, $9.15; London, $9.55; Frankfort, $9.65; Louisville, $9.81; Henderson, $11.16; and Mt. Vernon, $3.11.

Farmers found themselves in much the same position as consumers, according to the most recent farm price summary from the Kentucky Farm and Livestock Reporting Service. Farm prices edged one-half percentage point higher, but lagged behind farm costs, which increased 7 percent during the period.

Compounding the problem was the fact that some farm commodities, including corn, soybeans and beef cattle and calves, exhibited price lags in Kentucky not seen in the nationwide figures. Both corn and soybeans showed small price gains nationally, but had failed to improve on Kentucky markets by the first of the month. Both grains have moved upward since the end of that reporting period, however, and will probably reflect marked improvement in the December report.

Morgan Liquor Vote

church pulpits to courthouse-yard talk. The dry forces have held at least 25 meetings, the largest rally attracting an estimated crowd of nearly 1,000 on Nov. 16 at the Middle School at which the featured speaker was Delbert Butts, executive director of the Temperance League of Kentucky.

The "wets" say the estimation of the crowd was an exaggeration of nearly double the actual crowd, that the Middle School gym has a capacity of only 800 and that again, the 1,400-plus signatures on the petitions reflect a greater number of persons in favor of the county going wet than remaining dry.

The United Dry Forces have also printed three publications circulated by mail and distributed by hand to more than 17,000 persons.

Both groups have spent impressive amounts of money on newspaper advertising and the printing of cards and bumper stickers.

The Morgan Countians for Progress argue that the legalized sales of alcohol is the only solution for the county's slumping economy. They say that the county could realize half a million dollars annually in taxes and return the money into community projects such as a new gymnasium for the high school and a cafeteria at Ezel Elementary School and aiding the ambulance service as well as improving roads and making the county attractive to new industry.

The "wets" further state that an attorney general's opinion gives local government "the right to regulate the nature of selling on such premises," and that there would be no "beer joints" or drinking on the premises where alcohol is sold.

Both the taxation and the regulation of establishments selling alcoholic beverages, are included in two ordinances passed by Morgan Fiscal Court and upheld in an attorney general's opinion.

However, the dry forces point out that attorney general opinions do not have the force of law and that Morgan County would be the first county in Kentucky to test those provisions of taxation and regulation.

Although the "wets" say that initially there would be only two package stores in the county, the "drys" point out that the population of Morgan County, by ABC regulations and Kentucky law, could qualify for a maximum of five stores.

The United Dry Forces further feel that Morgan County, bordered by seven dry counties — Rowan, Elliott, Menifee, Wolfe, Magoffin, Johnson and Lawrence — would become the "drinkers oasis" and the "bootlegging center of Eastern Kentucky."

To this, the Morgan Countians for Progress answer that with more than 20 known bootleggers in the county, the county couldn't get "any wetter than it already is."

Morgan County has been dry for 44 years.

Whether it will remain that way or return to the wet days that ended in 1936 will be decided on Friday.

Betsy Palmer returns to TV after 11 years

Betsy Palmer, who appeared weekly on "Masquerade Party" (1955-56) and "I've Got a Secret" (1956-67) and frequently on "To Tell The Truth" and "What's My Line," returns to network television for the first time in 11 years to star in NBC's new comedy-drama serial, "Number 96," premiering over three consecutive nights, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Dec. 10, 11 and 12.

Marking her first role in a series, the actress — once called TV's "golden girl" — portrays Maureen Galloway, a newly widowed and suddenly emancipated 50-year-old who moves into her daughter's apartment building and sheds too many inhibitions.

"I'm an old face and a new face, and after more than a decade of going from play to play to play, I think it's time for me to come back to television," says Betsy Palmer. "There's a whole generation of kids who don't know me, except for that crazy hit horror movie, 'Friday the 13th.'" Her recent Broadway and regional theater credits include "Same Time Next Year," "Peter Pan," "A Doll's House," "Cactus Flower," "The King and I," "Mary, Mary" and "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie."

"Maureen will give me a chance to be more than sweetness and light Betsy. For years the character lived in a doll's house under her husband's thumb, and now the wraps gradually come off her, and she emerges from her cocoon."

Palmer calls the role "a fluke." While in Phoenix to speak for the Salvation Army in July, she decided to visit Los Angeles for the first time in 14 years.

"I figured as long as I was that close and my agent had just set up an office there, I'd have him line up some casting directors. People think that because you come from New York and the theater that you've got a whole other ballgame going on inside your head and put down TV. But I came out of the medium and look forward to coming back and playing a role that is a lovely extension of myself and definitely not a caricature."

Palmer's additional TV credits include "Studio One," "Philco Playhouse," "Alcoa Hour," "Kraft Television Theater" and "Omnibus." She starred in such films as "The Sandlot," "The Last Angry Man," "Queen Bee" and "The Tin Star."

SOAP OPERA WEEK

'The Doctors' go to a real VA hospital

By NANCY M. REICHARDT
 NEW YORK — On Veterans Day, Tuesday, Nov. 11, the cast of "The Doctors" appeared in a live entertainment show that they produced and directed themselves. The group performed for the patients at the Veterans Administration Hospital in New York City.

After the main performance in the hospital's auditorium, the troupe toured several special wards that housed bed-ridden patients and autographed photos. "Our actors have many talents apart from their performances on the daytime drama," said executive producer, Jim Baffico. "It was a great pleasure to see them utilized in a way that brought a special treat to deserving people." The group put together the Veterans Day show after their regular working hours on "The Doctors."

Several soaps have had cast exits and additions, including "Days of Our Lives," which brought out daytime newcomer Susan Keller to replace Barbara Stanger in the role of Mary Marshall. There was no specific reason given for Barbara's exit, but it was rumored that the actress hasn't been happy on the show for some time now. Also exiting "DOOL" was Tyler Murray as Carol Welles.

Peter Matthey joined the "One Life to Live" cast in the role of Becky Abbott's ex-husband, Luke Jackson, and you can be sure this won't be a very "nice" character.

New to "As the World Turns" is Justin Deas (ex-Bucky Carter on "Ryan's Hope"). Justin is now portraying Tom Hughes, a role that has seen several actors in past years.

"Search for Tomorrow" has added Patricia Mauceri as new character, Andrea Korackas.

Letters:
 My question is about Kathryn Harrold, who played Lauren Bacall in the TV movie, "Bogie" and also played Jim Rockford's blind girlfriend in "The Rockford Files." Did she also play Nola Dancy on "The Doctors?" — Anonymous

Yes, Kathryn did indeed portray Nola Dancy on "TD" until she left for the Hollywood scene. Needless to say, Kathryn has done well on the West Coast.

TV TATTLE

Israeli 'Sesame St.'

Children's Television Workshop, producers of "Sesame Street," recently announced plans for a Hebrew language version of the award-winning series for pre-school children. The series will be produced in cooperation with the Instructional Television Center of Israel under a $750,000 grant from the Charles H. Revson Foundation.

The joint production will result in 65 half-hour programs in which Israeli and U.S.-produced material will be integrated into a "Sesame Street" with its own Israeli stamp. The Israeli portions of the series will go into production next year, and the program will be broadcast daily in Israel beginning in 1982.

Alexander on PBS

"The Search for Alexander the Great," a four-part dramatization of the life of the legendary conqueror, will premiere on PBS this spring. Nicholas Clay (seen recently as Tristan, in "Tristan and Isolde") portrays Alexander, who conquered the known world by the time he was 27, and died five years later, in 323 B.C. An international exhibit of artifacts from the age of Alexander, which opened last summer in Salonika, Greece, is now at the National Gallery in Washington and will tour major museums in the United States for two years.

'Tis The Season For Shoplifting

The Christmas shopping season brings good and bad news to retail merchants. The good news is increased sales; the bad news is shoplifters.

According to the state office of crime prevention, shoplifting increases dramatically during the Christmas shopping season.

Gary Bush, crime prevention official, said the season brings our professional shoplifters who work in the cover of large crowds of shoppers.

According to the uniform crime report maintained by the state police, 4,769 persons were arrested for shoplifting last year. Shoplifters took merchandise valued at $258,204, an average of $54 per theft.

Bush said that the real figure for shoplifting is probably double that. "The number of shoplifters-caught is only a small percentage of the total shoplifters in the state," he said.

Even with the Christmas spirit, I doubt that many merchants want to give their merchandise to shoplifters," he commented. Merchants should take steps to discourage shoplifters and make shoplifting more difficult, he said.

One of the most basic steps to take, Bush said, is to prosecute all shoplifters caught in the store and make court appearances.

"Stores that don't prosecute get a reputation among professional shoplifters as easy targets," he said.

Other tips to combat shoplifting:

✓ Greet all customers as they enter. It's good for business and discourages shoplifters. Shoplifters don't like attention.

✓ Watch for jittery eyes and nervous hands. These may be clues to a potential shoplifter.

✓ Pay special attention to persons with large packages or purses and those wearing unusually bulky clothing.

Bush, a former police officer, said he once arrested a man who had sewn pillow cases to the insides of the pockets on a loose coat. The man had $300 in clothing stuffed in the coat.

✓ Keep valuables in locked displays and away from store exits.

✓ Avoid tall displays and long rows that can provide hiding places for shoplifters to work. Limit the number of garments that can be tried on in changing rooms.

✓ Neatly kept displays and regularly removed empty hangers can tip store personnel to a shoplifter at work.

Bush said that advertising shoplifting policies with signs around the store discourages many shoplifters. Merchants who think they've spotted a shoplifter should call the police. If the person attempts to leave the store, the merchant has the right to confront the suspected shoplifter.

He said, the merchant should ask the suspect, "Do you have something of mine? I would like it back."

Fond Memories Of Christmas Past:

China Dolls And A Tin Wagon

In a big closet in a certain-house not far away are dolls - Raggedy Anne, By-Low-Baby, dolls as big as life and wearing "real" infant clothing. An old doll bed, painted blue, with a small patch-work quilt, holds a row of dolls, part of them celluloid with a pink color that looked like the skin of a new born infant, one of kid leather that felt like real baby skin and some of those little china dolls that senior rememberers call, "Those wondrous china dolls."

Elsie Halsey Lacy, poet of Morgan County, remembers that "We generally had a program at school at Halsey Fork. Hattie Wheeler from Hazel Green was our teacher. She had us make up songs. Monroe Gevedon played the fiddle and Courtney Osborne the banjo. I always said a recitation. Oh, we had a good time even if we did have to walk through snow."

"This was about 1900. At home we decorated with pine and cedar and always a tree. I'd get a china doll and my brothers would receive a Barlow knife or a kite. My Dad always brought in hickory logs for the holidays, because it burned better and made stronger ashes. You know, people made lye for homemade soap from ashes back then."

"I grew up at Caney, the Malone section," said Mrs. Cortis K. Stacy of West Liberty. "We didn't have decorated trees then, didn't decorate houses either, but my, how I looked forward to hanging my long cotton stockings on the mantle on Christmas Eve. There were three of us children, sister Edna (the late Mrs. Ren Nickell) and brother Bill (the late Will Carter) and I all hung our stockings and each got the same - a little candy, a toy and one apple. Apples were about as scarce as oranges back then."

Mrs. Stacy, an active 86 year old, is the daughter of Permelia Howes Carter and John Scott Carter. "One year I got a little china doll with painted hair. We usually had a big baked chicken for Christmas dinner - sometime a turkey but they were not plentiful. We always had my favorite cake, a jam cake. But that china doll was precious."

Mrs. Lucy (Bert) White of Elliott County remembered that "Dad, Will Green, had a store at Bruin all his life. He sold little china dolls at Christmas." Mrs. White and husband also operated a store at Bruin many years.

"Before Christmas my dad would send a team of mules driven by Joe Rob Evans to Leon to get a load of Christmas supplies sent on the train. My sister Ruby and I had to stay home, but we knew the sound of our mules and could tell when it was Dad's team that came through the creek and on to the house. It would be after dark when the team got back but we always waited up. We knew our Christmas dolls were on that wagon.

"We got to go to the store before the big day and select our doll, though we could not take it then. Santa Claus always left them in our stockings. We also got stick candy and an orange. A niece still has one of those wondrous dolls. The sawdust is gone from its little body and a leg. Still, it's a wonderful doll."

"First Christmas ever I remember," recalls Mrs. Polly Oakley of Rowan County, formerly of Paragon in Morgan. "I hung my stocking around the fireplace and next morning I found what they call a chiney doll, black headed doll you don't see anymore, and a peppermint sawlog. That was all the go in that day and time. We didn't go to town for anything much." Polly is the daughter of Clell and Liddie Amyx Donohue and granddaughter of Polly Cowan Sargent Amyx who "was born at the Hanging Rock near Ironton, Ohio." She is part Cherokee and her great grandmother Nancy Baker Amyx once owned a considerable Indian estate.

"No, I was never disappointed at Christmas. Course, I didn't expect too much, me and my brothers, just a sawlog of candy, but that was plenty back then. Licking River would generally be frozen and I've taken many a sleigh ride at Christmas on the river. My brother would push me along on a homemade sleigh and I'd knock fish in the head and pile them around me in the sleigh. We'd have fish and wild turkey for Christmas dinner. One time I counted 18 wild turkeys flying to a tree across the river. My Daddy got the shotgun, for we liked turkey, but the lever car came along on the railroad and scared them away."

Mrs. S.B. Allen of Florida grew up in a big white house on Water (Riverside) Street in West Liberty. "The Christmas parties! One year Mrs. Nettie Filson Carter and her daughter Leona Belle gave a party for the children in West Liberty. Mrs. Carter, (member of the historic Filson family from Mason County) decorated the house with bowls of fruit and peppermint candy, with pine along the mantel piece and mistletoe hanging from the gas chandeliers. The town children came to the party and each was given a gift. Girls got little china dolls and the boys got horns. I was so pleased with my doll that I named it Ollie Belle after Leona Belle and one of the friends. I kept my doll well after I married, then my home burned and I lost Ollie Belle."

No, the late George Moore of Sinking Creek, Elliott County, did not get dolls but said "the girls set great store by them." He recalled, "Girls who got china dolls carried them about for days."

"I was born in a two-room log house and remember my first Christmas there. That was the only time in the year we had oranges. The boys on the creek always managed to have firecrackers and Roman candles to shoot off. There was always a program and tree at Shady Grove school. We'd get striped stick candy from the teacher. Bad part was that I, along with all the other boys, had to stand up in front of all the parents and say our pieces. The boys would bring in the tree for the school and we always made a point to get one that reached the ceiling and if it had a live hornet's nest at the top all the better. At some time during the program the hornets would get stirred up a little.

"We had to walk three miles to Shady Grove and back. I remember in 1917 it coming a big snow and a sleet on top of that. We couldn't even turn our cattle out, for those that were turned out slid all the way to the bottom of the hill.

"My Dad Martin Moore - everybody called him Coon - and Mother Sarah Harper Moore, saw to it that I always got something under the tree. One year I got a knife and another time a new pair of shoes."

Moore's most memorable gift? "I remember best of all the year I got a little red pull wagon with a tin body."

Sometimes the best Christmas is the one where the gifts are little china dolls for the girls - and for one youngster on Sinking Creek, a red tin pull wagon.

In an unusual visit last year, Santa entertained youngsters at Clearfield Elementary School during a special program.

*At Christmas I no more desire a rose new-fangled mirth;

But like of each thing that in season grows.*

Christmas...

Some People Forget About Their Pocketbook When Toy Shopping

By KATHY PARTIN
Staff Writer

If you think inflation and its larger-than-life price tags have made you resistant to impulse buying, beware. Most stores have one department where shoppers seem to forget about budgets, give in to desire and buy.

The toy section is the spot where money and conservatism are not mixing, according to several Morehead merchants. Christmas shoppers, says Brenda Combs, head of the toy department at Roses, are "cutting someplace else."

"There will always be kids, and they will always get toys for Christmas," she rationalized during a pause from pricing toys. She revealed children are not always the recipients of gifts from her department.

When helping a lady select a race car set, Combs asked the child's age. "Oh, I don't have any children," was the reply. "this is for my husband."

At Hobbs, where a large supply of toys is kept year round and Christmas layaways begin in early summer, Manager Walter Pittman agrees with Combs about toy sales. "Inflation hasn't hit the toy department, everything else, but not toys."

Stores in the area that have not experienced the rush of toy buyers are expecting that to change this week. Immediately after Thanksgiving is when "everything breaks loose," according to Louise Stevens, division manager of Maloney's.

Judy Whitt, sales clerk there,

Toy Shopping

remarked that it "seems like they (toy shoppers) are buying an awful lot." One day when a supply of toys was delivered, there were too many customers in the aisles to restock. One woman bought $300 of toys at one time.

For someone who has not walked through a toy department in a few years, the trip can be a bizarre one. A Superman doll, clean-cut as ever, stands beside the stage-painted face of a Kiss rock group doll. Ken, boyfriend of the famous Barbie doll, long ago said goodbye to his blond crewcut and today sports a dark, shaggy mop. One wonders what goes on in Barbie's "Dream House," a structure several feet tall selling for about $80 — without furniture. The item is a popular one this year, with Heck's having sold about a dozen of them, according to department head Donna Parish.

Traditional playthings like gun and holster sets are placed alongside their modern counterpart — "lazer fazers." Cars range from the get-on-the-knees-and-push variety to one priced at over $30, sporting a computer under the hood for programming the car's direction as well as turning on its lights and sirens.

Having three children would seem like a good background for working in a toy department, but Whitt, who started working at Maloney's this year, says, "Until you work in them, you just can't realize how many new ones there are."

Surprisingly, the most-sought-after toys this year are not the computer games as one might imagine, but little, six-inch dolls that smell like their names, "Strawberry Shortcake," "Apple Dumpling" and "Blueberry Muffin." Based on a television cartoon, the dolls have accessories sold separately, but the problem in Morehead is first finding the doll. "The Strawberry Shortcake shipment didn't last," says Roses. "We're sold out" says Hecks. "They're very much in demand, we can't get them," says Hobbs.

Another popular doll is "Baby Cries For You," Roses calls it its "hottest item." Several hundred have been sold there.

Most sales clerks expressed surprise that small plastic figures representing characters from the movies Star Wars and The Empire Strikes Back are just as popular this Christmas season as last. Several different styles of space-ships are available for the figures' ease of transportation.

Hobbs said its stuffed toys are selling well, even the large $25 bears, but it is in the minority. Only "Giggles," a stuffed bear that begins laughing when tossed in the air, was mentioned as a popular stuffed animal; the Roses toy manager said she has to put new batteries in the display toy everyday. Other stores said stuffed animals just aren't as popular as in the past; those items are "just sitting" said McBryer Clerk Patty Johnson.

"Four-wheel-drive" is the magic word in toy cars these days. Stomper miniature cars and the Wild Mountain Set are quickly disappearing from shelves. A Tonka road racer with changeable tire is a hot item at Hecks, while Tonka bulldozers had to be re-ordered twice at Hobbs.

Hotwheels are becoming a traditional favorite, while the new Dukes of Hazzard model cars, especially "Daisy's Jeep," are going fast.

If you want to be with the in-crowd among gift givers, you will know to buy Sesame Street dolls Bert and Ernie over Kermit and Miss Piggy of the Muppet Show.

And what about those computer toys? Ranging in price from $12 to $79, the top ones appear to be "Merlen," "Simon," "Speak and Spell," and "Head to Head Football" or "Football II."

These modernistic games are appealing to those ten and over.

These children seemed to find something to do while their folks went shopping in Morehead last Christmas.

Santa received a somewhat skeptical hug last year during his visit to downtown Morehead.

State Undertakes 'Operation Toybox'

FRANKFORT, Ky. Although most adults never think of small parts, sharp edges or lead-based paint when shopping for Christmas toys, the Department for Human Resources "Operation Toybox" has started unannounced inspections of retail toy outlets around the state to assure toys on their shelves are free of these and other potential safety hazards.

Inspectors from the Department's consumer product safety branch will visit 150 stores across the state between now and Christmas for spot inspections of toys and other products intended for use by children.

Toys will be inspected for sharp edges and points and small parts that could be broken loose from the toy and swallowed. Samples of painted toys will be collected to check for lead content in the paint, according to branch manager Edsel Moore.

In addition, electrical toys will be checked for proper labeling and independent testing laboratory logos. Federal consumer safety guidelines state electrically operated toys intended for children under 8 must not have a heating element.

Toys that have been banned or are subject to mandatory or voluntary recall by the federal Consumer Product Safety Commission since the state's last inspection may still be on some shelves, Moore said. Inspectors will remove them.

"The consumer has an important voice in toy safety. If someone buys a toy and it proves to be a health hazard, we can check it out if they bring it to our attention," Moore said.

Moore emphasized that the branch can't be responsible for toys that do not work properly and are poorly made. The branch can intervene if a defect in a toy proves to be a hazard to public safety.

"The toy industry had an estimated $6 billion in sales last year. Toys are tokens of affection and we want to see that they don't cause injury or pain," Moore said.

One-third of all injuries to children are toy-related, he said.

Toys Need Not

"Puzzles are fairly inexpensive and they are a good problem-solving toy. Doll houses can be made out of boxes and house scraps. They are nice toys and an investment in one would not be wasted. A Jungle Gym is a good motor toy for a large muscle play but buying one isn't necessary since there are playgrounds in Morehead.

"A bicycle or tricycle and a wagon gets top priority when considering what toys to buy. A good way to buy toys inexpensively is to shop at garage sales and to trade with your friends who have children," Hammons states.

Hammons suggests encouraging your child to play with what she calls "lovies," any soft plaything such as a blanket. "I think it is nice for a child to have something soft to play with in order to cope with the strange world they live in," she says. A parent, instead of trying to take away a child's security blanket or "lovie" should encourage its use, she says.

Too much emphasis is put on commercial toys, Hammons believes, and a child's imagination and playmates go a lot farther than sophisticated toys.

"Children are more interested in playing with each other rather than with toys. They want to have someone to play with, especially their teachers and parents at this age. They haven't learned to rely on their peers yet," Hammons said.

"Doing things with children that involves the senses taste, touch, smell, sound, sight anything a parent can do to enhance their child's senses will be good for the child," Hammons explains.

Hammons concluded by saying that the commercial toy sales "is a profitable business in our country, I'm not saying there aren't some good commercial products such as Fisher Price, but parents should look at the commercial toys and try to judge the construction of them."

"But it is not necessary to buy expensive toys for children to play with. This is the point I would like to make, having someone to play with is more important than toys."
