Electrical Fire Darkens Half Of MSU Campus

By ALICE AKIN
Staff Writer

An electrical unit in the switchgear station of Morehead State University blew up and caught fire early Sunday morning, blacking out more than half the campus and giving the administrative and clerical staff an unexpected extra two days of Christmas vacation.

The explosion, heard by many alarmed residents in the area who flooded the city police switchboard with calls, occurred shortly after 1 a.m. at the new brick switchgear station on University Street.

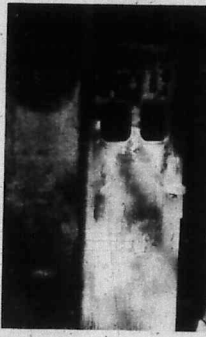

The fire, which set off a chain reaction to other electrical units housed in the station, demolished the equipment.

The Morehead Fire Department, which dispatched four trucks and 20 volunteers to the scene, put the blaze out with an extinguisher.

Overhead electrical lines from the switch station on Triplett Creek also were burning, creating a fireworks atmosphere in the pitch-black morning.

Police Chief Fred Harnsdale said that three police units helped control traffic, blocking off Main Street from Normal Avenue and Elizabeth Street for an hour.

were on the scene working to restore communications equipment.

"We worked 19 straight hours, at one time using as many as five men," said Bobby Lyons, KU foreman.

Lyons said the initial explosion in the switchgear was "very dangerous."

"And of course there was a danger of the lines falling which didn't happen but the potential was there," Lyons added.

Ironically, the damaged equipment was in the process of being replaced.

"It just blew up too soon," MSU President Morris Norfleet said yesterday.

Norfleet said the old equipment, installed in the early 1950's, was being replaced by new units, scheduled to go into operation during spring break in March.

"What we're doing now," Dr. Norfleet explained, "is jerry-rigging around the situation to be get back in operation by late Tuesday."

Norfleet said that the electrical equipment is being patched and spliced as a temporary procedure.

"We're still cleaning up and trying to see how much of the lines were damaged," Dr. Norfleet continued.

He added that the loss has not been estimated but that it would be "expensive."

Norfleet said that he did not hear the boom of the explosion but was awakened by the fire trucks.

He said that he met with the electrical contractors, Bell Construction Co., Lexington, at daylight Sunday to assess the damage.

Doug Bell, of the contracting firm, is heading the crew doing the work.

President Norfleet said that all offices on the west end of the campus were closed, but that some administrative and clerical staff had moved their offices to other parts of the campus in order to continue work.

Norfleet added that it was fortunate that no one was injured in the incident.

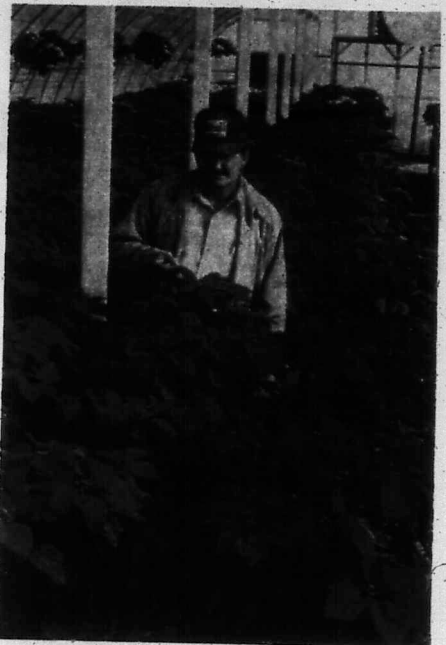

"We appreciate the prompt action of the fire department and the assistance from everyone in the community with this problem," Norfleet added.

Keith Kappes, MSU Director of Public Affairs, said that all the equipment that failed would have been taken out of service within the next couple of months.

The new brick building, completed this fall, was built over and around the old concrete structure in order to keep the new equipment dry and away from the steam tunnel which runs through campus.

"The reason the new equipment hasn't already been installed," Kappes explained, "is that it takes 36 months to fabricate the switching equipment for our use and it won't be shipped here until mid-January."

Don Litton, owner of Litton & Sons Greenhouse, examines the leaf of a poinsettia, the traditional Christmas plant. Litton said he received the rooted cuttings for the plants in August when they were two or three inches tall. Since that time he has potted and pinched them according to the shape of plant, desired, getting them ready for the season. Litton said he sells about 3,000 of the poinsettias annually. ## City Council Passes Personnel Ordinances

Members of Morehead City Council, in an unusual 8 a.m. Saturday morning session, gave first reading to two ordinances regarding legislative changes adopted by the 1980 General Assembly.

City Administrator Don Evans said the changes were being made so that the city's code of ordinances could be brought up to date.

He said one of the changes had to be made before the new year when non-elected city officers are rehired. The other ordinance, he said, simply changed some minor wording in the city's personnel codes.

The ordinance creating the non-elected officers sets forth the duties and job descriptions for city attorney, city administrative officer, finance director, city clerk, chief of police, fire chief and city engineer and building inspector.

The ordinance sets a bond of $50,000 for the finance director and $5,000 for the city clerk. It also affects that the non-elected officers take an oath of office. The ordinance states that the compensation for the officers will be set forth in the city's budget ordinance.

The powers and duties of the officers, which were not changed substantially by the ordinance, follow.

—City attorney. The ordinance says the city attorney will attend all meetings of the council and advise it in all matters of litigation or legal proceedings and perform any other duties of a legal nature by the city. It directs the city attorney to have another lawyer present, if he cannot attend a session of council.

—Administrative officer. The responsibilities of this office will be to advise the executive authority—either the mayor or city council as the case may be—in policy formulation on overall problems of the city. He is also to advise the executive authority in the appointment of subordinate administrative personnel and have continuing direct relationships with operating department heads. He is to develop and prepare proposals to state and federal authorities for projects to improve the services of the city. He has major responsibility for preparation and administration of operating and capital improvement budgets under direction of the executive authority.

—Finance director. The director of finance is responsible for the collection of the occupational tax and the issuance of itinerate merchant licenses under the city's net profits tax. He is to prepare all checks and bills for the city, invest all excess funds, complete all financial reports required by state and federal governments and report each month to the mayor.

—City clerk. The duties of the clerk are to keep official records of council actions, collect property taxes, supervise cash receipts and deposits, prepare the agenda for council meetings, attest official actions of the city, keep the corporate seal of the city and file certificates and bids.

—Police chief. The chief of police will supervise personnel, perform administrative duties within the scope of his office, and enforce the laws of the United States, the Commonwealth of Kentucky and the city. He or a subordinate is to attend all sessions of City Council.

—Fire chief. The fire chief is responsible for fire protection, fire prevention and any other hazards to life and property within the municipal city limits. He is to direct and control fire suppression operations and investigate the causes of fires. He will control the fire department building and equipment and is responsible for all expenditures and requisitions for the department. He is to control the members of the fire department in the discharge of their duties and preside at all regular and special meetings of the fire department.

—City engineer and building inspector. This office is responsible for the review of plans and specifications and the issuance of permits for all types of construction and alterations of existing structures within the city limits. He is responsible for inspection of electrical installations, new or alteration construction. He is to advise the executive authority.

Poinsettia: Traditional Christmas Plant

Potted poinsettias in white, pink and red are the traditional plants for the December holidays.

The plant as we know it today is almost entirely a creation of the 20th century, although it was cultivated by the Aztecs in Mexico long before this country was discovered. Considered a symbol of purity, the poinsettia was highly prized by Aztec Kings.

Poinsettias were first used in Christian Christmas activities by Franciscan priests near Taxco, Mexico during the 17th century. Because of its flowering time, the plant was used in nativity presentations.

The first U.S. ambassador to Mexico, Joel Poinsett, introduced the plant to this country in 1828. Named for the ambassador, the plant was called "Euphorbia poinsettiana." It was later learned that the plant had been previously named "Euphorbia pulcherrima," the scientific name it retains today. Poinsettia, however, is still the accepted name in most countries.

The poinsettia did not gain immediate acceptance as the Christmas flower because the plants were so scarce. And early varieties offered little as potted plants: they grew too tall and often dropped all their leaves before Christmas.

The poinsettia we know today started with the introduction of a variety called "Oakleaf" by Mrs. Entenman in New Jersey. Between 1923 and 1960 most of the principal introductions were derivations of this original Oakleaf. Selections were made for short growth, large bracts, better color and leaf retention.

Poinsettia breeding became increasingly popular during the 1950s, with one of the first commercial introductions being the variety, "Paul Mikkelson," named for its originator. The plant offered a number of desirable characteristics, including selections in several colors.

Eckespott C-1 was introduced in 1965 and has since become one of the leading varieties grown. It too offers superior qualities and a variety of colors. Whether selecting poinsettias as gifts or for personal pleasure, one should look for certain points, experts say. The bracts should have an intense color and be free of blemishes. The true (yellow) flowers should not be mature. The bracts should be of uniform height or the plant should be rounded in shape.

Poinsettias use a great deal of water and the growing medium should be moist. Plant owners, however, should check the pot daily and avoid over-watering.

The plant grows best in good light but it should not be exposed to direct sunlight. Temperatures between 65 and 70 degrees are ideal but the bracts may be retained a little longer at temperatures of 60 to 65 degrees.

Poinsettias should be protected from drafts, such as from heating ducts and frequently-opened outside doors.

Reblooming the plants for next season is a chore. And experts advise that, unless there is a special interest to try the technique, the plant should be discarded after flowering.

Days after the Christmas break. Then I think the selling will drop off and the season will be over," Dykes said.

Market Quota Increase

A federally-sponsored public hearing last week indicated support for an increase in the 1981 burley tobacco marketing quota.

For the past two years, the quota set by the U.S. Department of Agriculture has been 615 million pounds.

The Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association is on record as saying that any increase should total no more than five percent for the 1981 season.

Merry Christmas Closings Noted

Holiday closings have been announced.

Offices in city hall and the courthouse will close at noon Wednesday and reopen at the regular hours on Monday.

The Circuit Court Clerk's office will be closed Thursday and Friday.

Christmas day is the only day off for Morehead Post Office employees. Friday, the normal 8-4:30 hours will be observed.

Garbage routes ran as usual today and yesterday, but there will not be service Thursday or Friday.

The Citizens Bank and Peoples Bank will be closed Thursday and Friday. Both banks will reopen 9 a.m. Saturday.

Kentucky Publishing Company will close its business at noon Wednesday and reopen Saturday at 9 a.m. There will not be a Friday edition of The Morehead News, so that employees may enjoy the holidays.

Eagle Office Supply's First and Main Street locations will be closed for Christmas at noon Wednesday, Dec. 24. The Office Supply will open Monday, Dec. 29, at 8 a.m. while Eagle I opens that day at 9 a.m. Manager Bill Wells said.

General Telephone of Kentucky offices will be closed Thursday. Repair service personnel will be on duty, however, and reports can be made by calling the repair service number listed in the telephone directory.

General Telephone officials note that the peak calling periods for Christmas Day are the morning and evening hours. Because of the unusually high number of calls being placed during these periods, all long distance circuits may at times be busy, preventing some calls from going through.

General Telephone offices will be open as usual on Wednesday, Dec. 24 and Friday, Dec. 26.

Elliott Housing Authority Sues Farmers Home

CATLETTSBURG — The Elliott County Housing Authority and Frontier Housing of Morehead have filed suit in federal district court here challenging a Farmers Home Administration decision regarding funding for a 28-lot housing development in Sandy Hook.

The Elliott Housing Authority had sought a Farmers Home grant of $153,750, under the Energy Impacted Area Assistance program. The grant was to be matched by $51,250 in local contributions obtained through a loan at Peoples Bank of Sandy Hook.

The housing authority had planned to repay the loan with proceeds from the sale of the lots, which are being developed by Frontier Housing, a private, non-profit organization operated out of Morehead.

Other funds for the development of the sites by Frontier Housing is coming from the Appalachian Regional

Burley Sales May Slow After Christmas Break

By MARK PERKINS
Staff Writer

The burley tobacco market ended its 16 days of pre-Christmas sales last Thursday with declining volume but steady prices.

In Morehead, the tobacco market sold 182,901 less pounds last week than the previous week.

Although the state's average price to date is $165.97 per hundredweight, the Morehead market has held steady throughout the season at a little over $166.

Tobacco is flowing through the local market at a much faster pace than a year ago. "We are already two million pounds ahead of what we sold this time last year," said Matt Dykes of the Morehead Tobacco Warehouse.

Gross sales in Kentucky this season now total 332.7 million pounds, 96.3 million more than was sold during the same period last year.

At the Whitaker's Tobacco Warehouse, workers were busy Friday loading the floor with burley to be sold when the market re-opens on Jan. 5.

"I'm looking for the market to continue to be just as strong price-wise as before Christmas," said Richard Whitaker.

Whitaker also said he believes that the total crop will be less than people think. "I expect that companies will be more selective when the sales start up next year. The common tobacco won't bring in as much, but good tobacco will hold its own for the rest of the selling season," Whitaker said.

Dykes also expects the price per hundredweight to remain the same for the rest of the season. "I've been in the tobacco business for 45 years and this is the million I've ever seen where the price remained the same from the very first week throughout the season," he said.

Dykes said he thinks that the shortage this season will come close to the estimates. Burley production in Kentucky is expected to be 383.9 million pounds, less than the 400 million in the previous forecast, but up 23 percent from the 1979 crop.

Tennessee has sold about 98% of its crop, and Virginia is the same way. I'm not sure about Kentucky, but I expect a pretty good run for about five or six months after the Christmas break. Then I think the selling will drop off and the season will be over," Dykes said.

Commission Studies Closing Rail Tracks

The Kentucky Railroad Commission has taken under consideration a request by C&O Railway to close its tracks at Haldeman in Rowan County. C&O representatives requested the closing during a recent hearing in Frankfort.

C&O told the commission that the tracks, though still in place, had not been in use for nine years due to the closing of brick plants in the area.

The railroad told the commission that rail service is available about three miles closer to Morehead. A C&O representative said, "The general public would not be adversely affected."

Sanders Laid To Rest

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Colonel Harland Sanders, the Kentucky Fried Chicken founder and possibly the world's best known human trademark, was buried Saturday in his familiar white suit and black string tie.

Sanders, who died of pneumonia and leukemia Tuesday at the age of 90, was buried in a landscaped corner of the picturesque Cave-Hill Cemetery, final resting place for explorer George Rogers Clark and 5,000 Civil War dead.

During an hour-long funeral service in the Alumni Memorial Chapel of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Sanders was eulogized as a generous and enterprising businessman whose first religious experience came at age 75.

"The colonel's story is not over — either in this world or, better yet, in the next," said entertainer Pat Boone, who kept a promise — made last year by telephone from Sydney, Australia, to sing at Sanders' funeral.

"Colonel, this is for you because you asked me to be here," said Boone, who then sang the song requested by Sanders, "He Touched Me."

After agreeing to sing at the colonel's funeral, Boone said he went to a KFC outlet in Sydney and ate his fried chicken dinner in his hotel room. "It eased my loneliness, my homesickness," Boone said.

More than 700 mourners led by the colonel's widow, Claudia, and Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., who bought KFC from Sanders for $2 million and later sold his half share for $35 million, attended the funeral service which Sanders had helped plan.

One of the eulogies was delivered at the colonel's request by the Rev. John S. Chambers, retired pastor of the First Christian Church in Corbin, Ky., where Sanders began his chicken franchising efforts at age 66.

"He has become one of the most recognized people in the world today," Chambers said.

The colonel's most recent pastor, the Rev. J. Edward Cayce of the First Christian Church in Shelbyville, Ky., drew laughter from the mourners when he described Sanders' efforts years ago to find a wife for the feckly widowed minister.

"The colonel plays Cupid like he fries chicken — under a lot of pressure and in short order," Cayce said as Mrs. Sanders sniffled into a hanky. Cayce said Sanders later introduced him to a Fort Worth, Texas, woman whom he married.

Smoke Detector Allows Couple To Escape Fire

VANCEBURG - Mr. and Mrs. John Esham may not have the best Christmas this year, having lost their home, two pets and all their belongings in a fire last week, but at least they have their lives, thanks to a smoke detector.

The Eshams were asleep in their home on KY 8, about two miles east of Vanceburg Monday, Dec. 15, when Mr. Esham heard the alarm about 4 a.m. The couple escaped through a bedroom window with only the clothes they were wearing.

Their two-year old house was destroyed along with all its furnishings. Also lost were two cars, a 1979 Trans Am and a 1978 Camaro.

Their cat and dog also died in the fire, which started from an unknown origin, according to Mrs. Esham.

Firemen were able to control the fire so that no damage resulted to the house next door owned by Ray Vance.

The Vanceburg Volunteer Fire Department was assisted by units from Garrison and Tolleboro.

EKU Offers Tobacco Program

RICHMOND - Here's a course that should be a natural for Kentuckians living in the Burley Belt, who would like to know a bit about the tobacco business.

Eastern Kentucky University will offer a course during the spring semester on Tobacco Grading and Marketing. Students in the ECU Department of Agriculture and others may take this course for two hours credit, or they may audit the course. The course will include field trips and marketing seminars.

Wine Scholarship

Rosie Chaney of Bowling Green has received the 1980 Bastin Scholarship to the University of Kentucky. She was a member of the state dairy judging team this year and shows registered Jerseys.

Firewood Insects
A large number of people are supplementing their heat supply by burning firewood.

One thing to be considered is that there are a number of insects associated with firewood which may cause unwarranted alarm to homeowners.

The insects found in firewood can be divided into two groups: (1) wood boring insects and (2) insects seeking shelter in firewood. A number of different beetles may be found developing in firewood. Homeowners usually become aware of these insects when they find piles of sawdust created as the adult beetles emerge from the wood. Sometimes the homeowner also finds these large multi-colored, strikingly patterned beetles. There is also a large wasp that develops in some types of firewood, especially dead elm. These wasps may emerge and cause some concern.

The homeowner may be frightened that the beetles or wasps may attack them or the structural lumber in the home. Neither fear is justified.

Carpenter ants and termites may also be found in firewood, but it is highly unlikely that these insects will invade the home from that source. Both are social insects and the integrity of the colony is usually so disturbed when the wood is cut and split that establishment in the home is not possible.

Several insects seek overwintering sites in firewood, but it is highly unusual that these insects will be found under loose bark that is totally harmless.

Homeowners may find Pennsylvania wood roach nymphs in their firewood. These insects are not capable of establishing indoors so the homeowner should not be concerned by their presence in the wood pile.

Some people don't want any of these "bugs" in their homes no matter how harmless they may be. Insect invasion of homes from firewood can be prevented by following these rules:

- (1) Do not stack firewood in or against the house or other buildings.
- (2) Bring in amounts of firewood that can be used up in a couple of days and keep it stacked in the cold portions of the house such as the garage or unheated porch.
- (3) Do not leave firewood in the house over the summer.
- (4) Do not treat firewood with insecticides. It is unnecessary and expensive.

Labo International Foundation
Are you looking for a 4-H Program to involve the whole family? If so you might consider the Labo International 4-H Exchange Program. Kentucky has been asked to host 50 Japanese Youth during the summer 1981.

The host family approach allows families to grow together and work toward a common goal during the foreign exchange student's visit.

This is what one family had to say about their exchange experience last year: "We thoroughly enjoyed our child and that is how we feel about her, as our child. We hear from her and her family quite often and feel as if we have exchanged our family over the ocean. She was a perfect addition to our family and we miss her very much."

Illegal Fertilizer Being Sold

Complaints from farmers have come to the Division of Regulatory Services that certain salesmen have been coming across the state line from Tennessee and selling a product called "Modern Grow."

"This product is in violation of two sections of the Kentucky fertilizer law," said Roy G. Rogers, Regulatory fertilizer specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The product is not registered with the Division of Regulatory Services. In addition, this product bears no label, which also violates the law, said Rogers.

Fertilizer should be bought from a reputable dealer and companies that have packaging showing exactly what is in their product, Rogers said. If any person makes what you suspect are vague or exaggerated claims about fertilizer, contact your county extension agent.

No Deficiency Payments For Barley And Wheat

The U.S. Department of Agriculture will make no deficiency payments on the 1980 crops of barley and wheat, according to John Goodwin, associate administrator of the USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Washington, D.C.

Goodwin said such payments are not required under the 1980 feed grain and wheat programs because market prices have been well above established target price levels of $2.35 for barley and $3.63 for wheat.

4-H Camp Staff Jobs

Are you looking for a summer job next summer? If so, you might want to consider working at one of the five 4-H camps in the state of Kentucky. The following jobs are available: camp managers, craft instructors, swimming instructors, recreation instructors, boating instructors, nature study instructors, riflery and archery instructors and cook positions.

In most cases, but not always, those selected to fill these positions are usually college students. If interested in applying for these positions, contact Paul Mills, County Extension Agent for 4-H, and pick up an application. Do this during the month of January because the applicants are selected during the month of February.

4-H Teen Leadership Program

Sixty-three teens are working with Mr. Mills, 4-H Agent in cooperation with the Rowan County 4-H Council in the 4-H program for 1980-81. Teens help to conduct the monthly 4-H meetings each month, reaching 36 clubs with approximately 1,200 membership.

The following Rowan County High students and 4-Hers are serving as teen club leaders: Elaine Parish, Connie Keith, Sandy McIntosh, Dana Trent, Sherry Roe, Kelly Clouser, David Hyatt, Junior McCleese, Cindy Lawson, Pamela Luman, Lisa Winkelman, Lois Gilliam, James Cornett, Vicky Littleton, Tammy Logan, Lisa Hood, Pamela Logan, Brenda Jo Gaudill, Bodie Stevens, Paula Deaton.

Doobie Brothers Sue Over Old Recordings

NATIONAL POP MUSIC SCENE

The Doobie Brothers are suing Pickwick Records for $2.1 million. The group claimed the company is selling introducing The Doobie Brothers LP as a top, highly technical recording, when actually the disc consists of 11-year-old addition and demo tapes with old band members. The low price is hurting the sales of The Doobie Brothers current Warner Bros. album.

Don Henley of the Eagles will go court January 17th to face three drug charges and one count of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. He was arrested November 21st when L.A. police raided his home after he called the fire department to report that a young guest had "suffered" a seizure. Henley is out on $5,000 bail.

Musical entertainers to appear January 19th-during Ronald Reagan's gala in inaugural eve bash include: Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, The Osmond Family, Robert Merrill, Mel Tillis, Debby Boone and Charley Pride.

General Entertainment Corp., a division of Nabisco, will soon sell pre-recorded cassette tapes through thousands of supermarkets, convenience and drug stores. The Magnetic Gold tapes will list between $3.99 and $4.99. Early in February a $10 million national ad campaign will push the product.

Kris Kristofferson will co-star with Jane Fonda in the motion picture drama, Road Over. Filming begins the first week of January in New York City.

Datineline Stockholm - Abba cancelled a German TV appearance following a kidnapping threat on the group. The four decided to stay in Sweden as do a live satellite performance for the German audience.

The three remaining members of Led Zepplin may now pursue solo careers as the group will disband to record and perform as a unit.

Winners of the Morehead Duplicate Bridge Club game for Dec. 12 were Margaret Davis and Susan Dubar, first, and Jack Whidden and Rick Cornett, second.
Winners of the Dec. 19 game were D. P. Edmundson and Judy Bailey, Mt. Sterling, first; Margaret Davis and Susanne Blair, second; and Bill Davis and Linda Gallagher, third.
There will be no duplicate bridge games during the Christmas holidays. The club's next meeting is Jan. 9.

Couple Planning March Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cox of Morehead announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Sheila Lynn to Richard Edward Whittaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Whittaker of Johnson City, Tenn.

Sheila, a 1978 honor graduate of Rowan County High School, is employed by the Rowan County ASCS Office. Richard is the manager of Whittaker's Tobacco Warehouse on Flemingsburg Road.

The couple will wed March 7 at the Clearfield Tabernacle.

Wedding Postponed

The wedding of Anna Marie Waltz and Stefan Armstrong has been postponed. The couple will wed Saturday, Dec. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the Cranston Church of God.

Armstrong, who is stationed with the Navy in San Diego, will be arriving home on leave at a later date than originally scheduled.

Day Homemakers Hold Annual Christmas Party

Holiday food, carol singing and games were the highlights of the Day Homemaker's annual Christmas party Dec. 13 at the Kentucky Utilities Building in Morehead.
Mae Caudill led the group in a devotion entitled, "The Three Symbols." The text for that devotion was taken from Matthew 1:21.
The homemakers also exchanged their "secret pal" gifts and drew names for next year.

Those present for the party were: Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Coleman; Mr. and Mrs. Earnie Thompson; Mr. and Mrs. Ora Cline; Mr. and Mrs. Winfred McCarty; Mrs. Curt Hutchinson; Nora Purvis; Nola Caudill; Alma Ingold and Grace Lewis.

PALETTE TALK

Morehead Art Guild

by B.J. & Kay

The usual stereotype of an artist is a man in a beret with a paint brush in hand.

Many of our Morehead artists, however, work in media other than paint. Rodi Jackson does jewelry, metal work. Nadine Hone is talented in drawing portraits of animals in pastel chalk.

Lynda Hoover works with fabric to create beautiful flowers suitable for wall hangings.
Lynda first got interested in fabric flowers while making decorative pillows. Since then, she has made many floral creations, from a spray of blossoms to a single rose. She uses velvets and satins, with the aid of wire and quilt batting, and then she mounts them on plywood or fiberboard.

On January 17, well-known Kentucky water color artist, Joyce Williams, will hold a workshop at the Lexington Art League Studio Gallery in Lexington, Ky. For more information, call Kay.

Mabel Reynolds has become interested in calligraphy, (the art of hand lettering) and would like to know if anyone is interested in having a class or demonstration of this fascinating art. Calligraphy has many useful applications: lettering plaques, posters, and creating beautiful personalized Christmas cards. If you know of anyone who could give us a class or demonstration, let us know.

One of nature's greatest gifts to all of us is the sunset. No matter where we live, we can look skyward and enjoy its beauty. It is especially challenging to try to capture the beauty and drama of a sunset on canvas.

Usually a sunset is so fleeting, that it is hard to paint on the spot, but transparencies are very good to work from.

Fainting skies presents special problems. They don't stay in one place long enough to give careful study. They are always changing shape or light and shadow. Some cloud edges are blended softly into the sky color, while others are kept more crisp.

The sky often sets the mood in a picture. When the sky actually appears blue, cobalt is a good hue to start with. It possesses a clear atmospheric appearance typical of the sky in spring and fall. Summer skies tend to the more purple hue of Ultramarine Blue.

A familiar technique is to underpaint over it, letting the underpainting show through in places.

Double Wedding Anniversary

Two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde A. Thomas, Morehead, and their husbands are celebrating their first double wedding anniversary today. Mr. and Mrs. Gary (Carlotta) McDaniel of Belleville, Mich. and Mr. and Mrs. Kendall (Jackie) Trent of Morehead were wed Dec. 23 in a candlelight ceremony officiated by the Rev. Scott Griffith. Gary, son of Raymond McDaniel, Michigan, is attending computer school while Carlotta works at the National Bank of Ypsilanti. Jackie and Kendall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Trent, Morehead, operate Trent's Store on Ky. 32.

Sergeant In Philippines

Technical Sergeant William M. Hyatt, son of Ruby Anderson, Rt. 32, Morehead, has arrived for duty at Clark Air Base, Philippines. Sergeant Hayatt, a crew chief, was previously assigned at Otis Air Force Base, Mass.

Life Care Highlights

Recent Events

Thursday, Dec. 11 — Comprehensive Care Center came to the nursing home. A discussion on special Christmas was led by Velma Campbell, group leader. Residents also told what they would like for Christmas.
The Rodburn Church of God held a church service.

Friday, Dec. 12 — Dr. Layne and the theatre ensemble from Morehead State University presented a drama.

Saturday, Dec. 13 — Tilden Hogg's eighth grade sang Christmas carols through the halls and gave Christmas presents.

Sunday, Dec. 14 — Big Woods Community Church held church services for the residents and presented presents to each one.

Wednesday, Dec. 17 — Coach Wayne Martin and members of the Morehead State University basketball team came over and helped us with our monthly birthday celebration.

Birthdays for the week were Jenni Cox, 83 years old on Dec. 15; Juanita Rippeote, 72 on Dec. 20 and Lorene Holbrook, 64 on Dec. 21.

We have had good response for volunteers but still more are needed. If you would like to be a volunteer please contact Dee Jones at the Life-Care Center, 784-7518.

On Dec. 11, Debra Kemp and Wilma Gray came to the Center to volunteer their time. We are looking forward to seeing them regularly. Penny Bowman and Georgetown Netherly became volunteers Dec. 18. They will be visiting regularly with residents.
Sharon Wheeler has been a volunteer the past year. We appreciate her and all she has done for the residents.

The Life Care Center would like to thank the Business and Professional Woman's Club for bringing Christmas presents to our residents. We would also like to thank Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity and Delta Sigma Theta Sorority for the Christmas presents.

Don't forget about the Christmas party for the residents on Dec. 23 at 2 p.m. in the Life Care Center. Friends and family are invited.

The University Breckinridge Key Club installed plastic along the eaves of the building Friday and Sunday. Club members are Richie Newton, Clayton Black, Don Battson, Jeff Bryant, Sandy Hill, David Thompson, Donnie Tucker and sponsor Charlie Thompson.

Here Are Some Ways To Give A Gourmet Twist To Holidays

This holiday season surprise your family and guests with some special dishes from the rich treasury of America's folk and regional traditions.

All these recipes are contributed by southern Georgians who took part in the Smithsonian's 1980 Festival of American Folklife this fall in the nation's capital. The Festival provides an unusual showcase for the cultural traditions of native and immigrant Americans. You'll find that these recipes combine the best of both worlds, beginning with a hot mulled wine and proceeding to a German-inspired breast of veal or chicken, pepper jelly and old-fashioned sweet potato pie.

Maria Agner of Fitzgerald, Ga., who demonstrated winemaking at the Festival, started making wine with strawberries about 15 years ago when she noticed that some strawberries she had picked from her garden, for freezing had started to ferment in the refrigerator. Now she makes red and white wines from grapes, especially the scuppernon, found only in the South.

Besides serving her homemade wines to guests and giving them as gifts at Christmas, Mrs. Agner uses them in cooking. Here is a recipe for a hot mulled wine she heartily recommends for cold weather and the holiday season. She also uses her wine in a veal or chicken main dish, based on a recipe brought from her native Germany.

Hot Mulled Wine
1 pint light red wine
4 cloves
1 piece cinnamon stick
2 slices fresh lemon
Sugar (optional)
Put the ingredients in a stainless steel saucepan and heat the mixture until it gets foamy. Remove from heat before it boils and serve in cups. When using a glass or crystal cup, pour the wine over a silver teaspoon to prevent the cup from cracking.

Peggy Miller of Sylvester, Ga., recommends pepper jelly as a lively accompaniment to holiday meat dishes. (Smithsonian news service photo)

Breast of Veal or Chicken In White Wine Sauce

1 pound breast of veal or chicken
3 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1 1/4 cups broth from meat
1/2 cup dry white wine
2 egg yolks
2 teaspoons lemon juice
Dash of white pepper
Mushrooms (optional)

Cut the meat into serving pieces and place in pot. Add salt, depending on your taste. Cover with water, bring to a boil and cook half an hour to an hour until done. Set meat aside.

To prepare the white sauce, use a stainless steel saucepan. Melt butter, stir in flour, pour in broth and wine gradually, beating with whisk. Bring sauce to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer for a couple of minutes. Beat the egg yolks with a fork in a small bowl, then mix with a small amount of the simmering sauce. Add this mixture and mushrooms to remaining sauce and bring to a boil. Boil for 30 seconds, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir in lemon juice. Correct the seasoning. Add meat and simmer 30 seconds.

Serve with noodles or rice. For a more elegant dish, cut the meat into smaller pieces and serve in shells or over toast.

Peggy Miller from Sylvester, Ga., another Festival participant, makes a delicious pepper jelly which she uses as a sauce for meats, though she says she's discovered recently that "the young people like it with cream cheese on crackers." Mrs. Miller got the recipe from "Mother Miller 30 years ago" and serves the jelly on special occasions - Christmas and Easter dinners, barbecues, church socials. She has won numerous prizes at county fairs for this tasty treat.

Pepper Jelly

1 cup chopped bell peppers
3 chopped banana peppers, with all seeds removed
1/2 cup hot peppers, chopped
6 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups apple cider vinegar
16-ounce bottle Certo or other gelling agent

Mix vinegar, peppers, sugar and salt and boil 20 minutes. Add Certo and cook 10 minutes. You can add a few drops of green or yellow food coloring. Pour into

Marshall Nursing Gets Accreditation

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. - The Marshall University School of Nursing has been notified that its bachelor of science in nursing degree program has been accredited by the National League of Nursing. Dr. Phyllis F. Higley, dean of the school, announced.

"The accreditation, which is the stamp of professional approval by others in the field, is due to a great deal of hard work which preceded my arrival at Marshall this summer," Dr. Higley said, praising Mrs. Ruth Pearson, B.S.N. program director, and the faculty.

Marshall's program, the first upper division B.S.N. degree program for registered nurses to be established in West Virginia, is one of very few such programs in the nation to be approved by the League, which accredits all nursing education programs, according to Mrs. Pearson.

Fleming Thieves Are Big On Silver

FLEMINGSBURG - The Fleming County Sheriff's Office is investigating a rash of break-ins and theft of silverware recently reported in the county.

An estimated $5,800 worth of silverware has been stolen from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones, of Mt. Carmel Avenue.

An undertermined amount of silverware was also taken from the residence of Mrs. Alice Davis.

State Police are also investigating the theft of silverware valued at $6,000 from the Indian Fields home of Jim and Nancy Farley.

Workshop Set

A workshop on computer analysis of pressure and flow in piping systems will be at the University of Kentucky, Jan. 7-9.

The program, directed to engineers, will be in Anderson Hall on the UK campus. Registration is $200. For additional information, call (606) 257-3971.

hot pint jars. Makes 6 to 8 pints.

Minnie Pearl Brown of Tifton, Ga., showed Festival visitors her special techniques for canning fruits and vegetables, including apple preserves and corn relish. But, Mrs. Brown, who has 63 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild, is also renowned for her baking skills. Her sweet potato pie is just one of many kinds of pies and cakes she bakes for sale after working five hours a day at a local daycare center. As to what kinds of pies and cakes she can bake, Mrs. Brown says, "You name it, I make it!"

Using 9-inch pie crusts, Mrs. Brown gets four pies from this recipe, which she learned years ago from her mother-in-law, Della T. Hooks.

Sweet Potato Pie

6 medium sweet potatoes

1/2 pound butter
3 1/2 cups sugar
Dash nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon allspice (or 1 teaspoon vanilla flavoring)
1 cup sweet milk (or 1 can condensed milk)

Peel the sweet potatoes and cut into quarter-inch squares. Cover with water, boil until tender, then drain. Mash the potatoes in a bowl with a fork until smooth, then add the butter, sugar, nutmeg and allspice (or vanilla) and beat in a mixing bowl. Add the milk in small quantities until the filling reaches the proper consistency (similar to pumpkin pie filling - firm but not too thick). If the filling seems to be getting too soft, don't use all the milk.

Bake in a 400-degree oven for 20 minutes, until the crust is brown, then reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 15 minutes more. Less time is required if you have a gas oven, Mrs. Brown says.

Like the calm contentment of a snowy landscape, may you and yours have the serene peacefulness of Blessed Christmas.

A Christmas Walk In A Kentucky Hollow

It is a normal routine for outdoor columns to carry news about appropriate gifts for the outdoorsman at Christmas time, but I find that a bit inadequate in most cases because there is simply so much available in the form of gifts that it would be impossible for me to mention even so much as a fraction of those multitudes of goodies that most of us would enjoy giving or receiving.

Instead, there's a subject I like to write about in winter and especially during the holidays that is dear to me and others who love to walk in winter woodlands.

Each year during the Christmas season, I enjoy hikes here in the hollow that re-acquaint me to winter in eastern Kentucky. Winters of beauty and mystery with the magnificence of nature's plan of survival, rather than traditional winter acquaintances of icy highways, fuel bills and the sort.

Generally, my walks commence shortly after dawn when the day is fresh and the winds have died to their morning calm. The big FO Cota thermometer on the porch of the cabin is usually the first thing I look at when I leave the house.

Today, for example, the mercury stood at a cold 23 degrees. Earlier the radio broadcast the temperature in town as being three degrees warmer, but those of us who live in narrow hollows have learned to expect cooler temperatures, usually the year round.

There's something clean smelling about a crisp frost in eastern Kentucky. Especially a country frost that hasn't been assaulted by a deluge of auto exhaust, chemical fumes and the disturbing sounds of commerce. Here in the hollow, it's like a cleansing of the smelling senses with the only intrusion to the crisp feeling in the nose being that of hickory smoke coming from the wood-burning stove inside the log walls of the cabin. Somehow or another, that smell is welcomed here as it is around every blazing campfire in the world at this time of the year.

Sometimes in the night before the dawning, a heavy cloud blanket has crept across the star-laden skies of the late evening. There's a promise of snow in the air and the hope of a white Christmas still stirs fond memories of Decembers past when, as a child, I would scan the night skies on Christmas Eve, hoping with every fiber to see those big, soft snowy flakes drifting down. Visions of Santa and a sleigh filled with toys, and, oh yes, those reindeer! It seemed a must that I snow on this most wonderful of nights to a young, runny-nosed kid standing in a deep, dark hollow amid the dark hills of eastern Kentucky.

Funny, I still look for Santa Claus and white Christmases.

I walk out upon the wooden bridge that crosses the creek here in the hollow. Saint, the English setter, has left his tracks on the frosty boards, because it is impossible to take a walk without him. Somehow I prefer it being that way.

December rains have put water back into the creek once more. Ice formations have formed along the shallow edges, creating crystal like art objects that would glisten like diamonds if the sun were out.

From back of the cabin, Napoleon and Jethro, the beagles, let out a barrage of barking as they trail a rabbit whose tracks have suddenly grown too hot to keep the dogs quiet. Ahead of me in the brush, the setter rushes towards the sounds on the distant hillside.

There's a heavy leaf cover here in the hollow attesting to the five years that we have escaped the annual burning that ravaged our end of the state. Because of the fallen leaves, the forest floor in the hollow is colored a drab brown, but the casual stroller, who is quick to observe, will see a variety of color during the Christmas season. For example, there's no greener green than that of the Christmas fern in December. Splashes of this holiday coloration adorn the shady areas of the hollow and work their way a piece up distant slopes. To add its own decoration, a maiden hair fern shows off its vivid yellow-greenings. Remaining berries from the dogwood add the color of scarlet and the stark whiteness of the upper branches of the sycamore offers that traditional Christmas color of white. The color coordinates added to the icy formation at streamside complete the hollow's decorations for the holidays.

A rotting stump by the side of the trail adds its bit of seasonal magic with white clusters of wood destroying fungi. Other fungi and mushrooms along the path adorn the forest floor with splashes of coloration, adding to the hollow's collection of winter trim.

As I walk up the path behind the cabin, I pass the mud hole that was made here in years past by a logging truck. A spring apparently feeds it year round, because there is always water in it. A haven for peeper frogs in spring and I suspect mosquitoes, in summer. There is no trace now of any life form. In the mud at its bottom, though, I suspect, I could find a hibernating frog if I dug long enough.

A trace of a path breaking off to the left from the main hollow, leads up Trillium Cove. So named because in spring perhaps as many as 50,000 large, flowered trillium bloom here, casting a carpet of white across the drabness of the forest floor.

There is little evidence now that such a profusion of wild flower inhabit this narrow fold in the uprising hills. Nor can I find any remaining wild ginger plants that bloom along the dry creek's edge in late spring and summer.

A giant beech, its bark casting off a greenish-grey color, has the initials HW carved into its bark. By the single initial, I suspect the carver was not suffering from romantic notions at the time. Rather just a vainness to leave some part of his being there to last through the years.

Retracing my steps out of the cove and back again into the main fork of the hollow, I wonder upon a blooming Witch Hazel. This strange shrub that blooms in December, no doubt, has a great deal of superstition attached to its history. A soothing skin lotion by the same name is manufactured from the leaves and bark of this shrub and has proven quite popular with many women over the years.

As I move along the path, I notice a strange absence of bird life here in the deeper coves of the hollow. Though not plentiful, a few birds make the deep woods their home in winter. It comes to mind that woodpeckers are one such variety.

Most of the birds in the hollow are found either at our feeding stations or in the pine thicket adjacent to the barn of our neighbor, Bruce Lyons. Juncos are the species at the feeder right now, but there's a healthy number of cardinals here and yellow-breasted woodpeckers will come when the coldness of January arrives.

My Christmas walk takes me below the cabin to investigate a great disturbance of barking from Jethro, our female, mixed-up, part-beagle, part-Walker fox hound. She has treed a beautiful fox squirrel that is all decked out in its winter furs. The dogs would like very much to mess up that patch of soft hair, I'm sure, so I restrain them while Ol' brushy-tail makes a hasty retreat to the safety of the high oaks across the road.

There's much for the winter stroller to see in our Kentucky woodlands at this time of the year. The leaves are gone and most of the weeds have been broken over by rains and early winter winds. This makes the little things of the forest floor easier to see. The accompanying solitude provides a time for measuring things current and fondly remembering happy times past.

I hope that each of you have time for a winter walk at Christmas. Who knows, perhaps our trails will cross on a snowy path someplace. Until then, my wish is a happy holiday season to each of you.

BEAUTY is everywhere in winter. The icy formation atop the Fern Hollow sign provides an interesting winter study of things natural.

YELLOW BREASTED woodpeckers frequent feeding stations in the Hollow when the real cold of late December sets in. Normally, these birds feed on insects, but they won't turn down a meal of cracked corn and beef suet.

A FOX SQUIRREL all decked out in winter furs greeted us on our Christmas walk in the Hollow.

Atlanta Places 13 Players On Pro Bowl Squad

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Atlanta Falcons and the Los Angeles Rams, who battled their way to playoff berths this season, have combined to place 13 players on the 40-man NFC Pro Bowl squad.

Eight Rams and five Falcons, led by quarterback Steve Bartkowski, were named today to the NFC Pro Bowl team, which will meet the AFC squad in the Pro Bowl on Feb. 1 at Honolulu.

Four of the eight Rams selected will be starters — guard Kent Hill, center Rich Saul, cornerback Pat Thomas and safety Nolan Cromwell. The other clubs chosen at backup positions include guard Dennis Harrah, defensive tackle Larry Brooks, middle linebacker Jack Reynolds and cornerback Rod Perry.

Bartkowski, named to the NFC Pro Bowl squad for the first time in his 6-year career after leading the Falcons to the first division title in their 15-year history, edged Philadelphia's Ron Jaworski for the starting position. Tackle Mike Kenn of the Falcons also was named as a starter and center Jeff Van Note, rookie tight end Junior Miller and running back William Andrews were named as reserves.

The starting backfield consists of Bartkowski at quarterback, joined by Chicago's Walter Payton and Otis Anderson of St. Louis at running back. Harold Carmichael of Philadelphia and James Lofton of Green Bay were named at wide receiver. Jimmie Giles of Tampa Bay at tight end, Kenn and Dan Dierdorf of St. Louis at tackle, Hill and Herbert Scott of Dallas at guard and Saul at center.

The starting defensive unit consists of Roy Selmon of Tampa Bay and Al Baker of Detroit at end, Randy White of Dallas and Charlie Johnson of Philadelphia at tackle, Brad Van Pelt of the New York Giants and Matt Blair of Minnesota at outside linebacker, Bob Bruening of Dallas at middle linebacker, Thomas and Lemar Parrish of Washington at cornerback and Cronwell and Philadelphia's Randy Logan at safety.

Dave Jennings of the Giants was named the punter, rookie Ed Murray of Detroit the kicker and Washington's Mike Nelms the return specialist.

The offensive backups include Jaworski at quarterback, Andrews and back, Minnesota's Tim Sims at running back, Dallas at tackle, Harrah at guard and Van Note at center.

On defense, the reserves will be Chicago's Dan Hampton at end, Brooks at tackle, Tampa Bay's David Lewis at outside linebacker, Reynolds at middle linebacker, Perry at cornerback and Chicago's Gary Fencik at safety.

The record-setting passing combination of quarterback Dan Fouts and receivers John Jefferson, Kellen Winslow and Charlie Joiner were among eight San Diego Chargers named Wednesday to the AFC squad. Also named from the Chargers were guard Doug Wilkerson, defensive end Fred Dean and defensive tackles Louis Koloche and Gary Johnson.

The starting unit includes Cleveland's Brian Sipe at quarterback, with Houston's Earl Campbell and Buffalo's Joe Cribbs in the backfield; Jefferson and New England's Stanley Morgan at wide receiver; Winslow at tight end; Marvin Powell of the New York Jets and Doug Dielle of Cleveland at tackle; John Hannah of New England and Joe DeLamielleure of Cleveland at guard; and Mike Webster of Pittsburgh at center.

The starting defensive unit consists of Dean and Kansas City's Art Still at the ends, Johnson and Kicker at tackle, Houston's Robert Brazile and Oakland's Ted Hendricks at outside linebacker, Pittsburgh's Jack Lambert at middle linebacker, Lester Hayes of New England and Mike Haynes of New England at cornerback and Donnie Shell of Pittsburgh and Gary Barber of Kansas City at the safeties.

Ray Guy of Oakland was selected as the punter, John Smith of New England the kicker and J.T. Smith of Kansas City as the return specialist.

The backups on offense include Fouts at quarterback, Joiner and Buffalo's Jerry Butler at wide receiver, Houston's Dave Casper at tight end, Oakland's Art Shell at tackle, replacing the injured Leon Gray of Houston, Wilkerson at guard and Cleveland's Tom DeLeon at center.

On defense, the reserves include New England's Julius Adams at end, Buffalo's Fred Smerias at tackle, Pittsburgh's Jack Ham at outside linebacker, New England's Steve Nelson at middle linebacker, Houston's Greg Stenrick at cornerback and New England's Tim Fox at safety.

The teams were chosen in balloting among the 14 head coaches from each conference and NFL Players Association members on each team. The players' vote from each team was a consensus of the entire team, with each team having two votes — those by players and those by coaches.

The NFC leads the Pro Bowl competition six games to four.

Greenup Co. Hands Breck Girls Their 10th Loss

Greenup County broke open a close game in the second half Thursday night at Wetherby Fieldhouse and went on to post a 49-37 triumph over the University Breckinridge Lady Eagles.

It was the fifth straight loss for UBS, the second time this season the now 110 Lady Eagles have dropped five straight.

Breck trailed by only two, 23-21, at halftime, and in fact led late in the second quarter. The offense died out in the third quarter, scoring only two points, but the defense allowed only five and it was still only a five-point deficit heading into the final frame. The Lady Musketees, now 3-2, opened up in the last eight minutes, however, outscoring Breck 21-14 to win handily.

The Lady Eaglet floor shooting was up considerably from the abysmal 11 percent performance at Fleming County earlier this week. Breck hit nine of its 35 attempts, 26 percent, compared with a 37 percent performance by Greenup County. Breck outshot the visitors at the charity stripe, hitting 16 of 23 for 48 percent, compared with Greenup County's 13 of 30 for 43 percent.

Shelli Lichtenberg recorded 16 points for Breck, leading all scorers and setting a new individual high this season by a Lady Eaglet. Lisa Cade collected 12 to lead the Lady Musketees. Kim Boyles topped the winners in rebounds with 13, while Kerrie Stephenson had 11 of Breck's 23 caroms.

Sandy Carter was the only Breck player to foul out. Two Lady Musketees, Robyn West and Teresa Fritz, were forced from the fray with five fouls. A total of 25 whistles went

Glenn Napier, a junior guard on the Morehead State basketball team, scored 17 points Saturday night against Southern Illinois. The Eagles blew a 35-20 half time lead and lost their third road game in a row, 84-80

Lady Vikings

Lori Powers tossed in eight points by hitting all four of her field goal attempts.

As a team the Lady Vikings hit 51 percent of their shots from the field, and 61.6 percent from the free throw line.

Morgan County hit just 31.5 percent from the field and 35.7 percent from the charity stripe.

Season's Greetings

The sending of Christmas cards is a relatively recent tradition, but one that has grown to become almost universal.

The originator of the custom probably had little idea he was starting a mass tradition, which probably is why there is some confusion about how the whole thing began.

The world Book Encyclopedia attributes the first printed Christmas greeting to Charles Goddall and Son of London in 1843. That firm expanded its Christmas card printing to a wide scale in 1862. The first colored cards are attributed by the encyclopedia to Lewis Prang of Boston, Mass. in 1865.

Other sources credit the Englishman W.C.T. Dobson as being the first to send Christmas cards to a few friends in 1844. He sent out a larger number the next year. Some references say J.C. Horsley was next to follow the practice in 1846.

The selling of Christmas cards is recorded as happening as early as 1858. Such sales are said to have been common by 1862.

The "Price Guide to Antiques and Collectables" lists an 1880 colored card by Kate Greenaway as being worth $50.

Just to give you some idea of the extent to which the exchange of Christmas cards has caught on, the U.S. Post Office said that it expects to handle 1 billion pieces of holiday mail this December.

Peanut Shortage

It seems almost symbolic, and end of an era. Just as the administration of the peanut grower-turned President ends, there is an Associated Press story about a shortage of peanuts at U.S. 2008.

A drought reduced the peanut crop. This cut back on supplies used by zookeepers to feed their charges, as well as those available to visitors who like to make an offering to the animals.

Actually, according to the press report, peanuts are more of a treat than a staple, so the animals' diets are not endangered. They will respond just as well to currants, bananas, raisins or walnuts proffered by tourists.

J.R. in Chicago

Reading about Chicago's Mayor Jane Byrne is like watching "Dallas."

Her honor has a distinctive way of dealing with press criticism: She throws the mayoral equivalent of a temper tantrum. The latest example came when it was announced that Mrs. Byrne's personal bodyguards will get a 52 per cent raise next year. According to The Wall Street Journal, the two men will make more than most U.S. Mayors and more than most of President Carter's bodyguards.

One Chicago columnist suggested this was because the mayor "has more enemies than the President." Mayor Byrne reacted with perfect dignity; she took away all newsmen's parking spaces.

This is only reasonable: J.R. would not have let some punk newspaper push him around, even if it were the public's money he was dishing out. Besides, the mayor's husband gave a perfectly good reason for raising the bodyguards' wages: they accompany the mayor and her husband when they go to fancy restaurants and the bodyguards needed the raises to pay for their meals.

If J.R. had spent that kind of money on bodyguards, maybe he would not have been shot.

Responsibility

Somewhere society is going to have to draw the line on personal responsibility. Almost every week there is a news story of a law suit seeking to gain redress for a person who has only himself to blame, but is hoping to make someone else pay for his folly.

UPI reports a New Jersey land developer is suing an Atlantic City casino because it let him lose at craps.

The developer charges the casino let him bet more than the legal limit, if this is so, it is a violation of the law and the agency overseeing casino operations ought to take action. That does not mean the courts ought to award him money just because he lost. He might have won, too. Besides, he could always have decided to stop betting.

Census Figures Show Kentucky Will Retain Seats In U.S. House

FRANKFORT — Preliminary population figures released last week by the Census Bureau indicate that Kentucky has kept apace with the average in population growth and will not lose or gain any seats in the U.S. House of Representatives.

The 435 House seats are apportioned out to the states on the basis of population while each state has two U.S. Senators. You simply divide the total population (226 million) by 435 to find the number of persons in each House district.

Preliminary population figures were released for 49 states, all except New York where fire destroyed census figures and the work has to be done over.

Kentucky gained 13.1 percent in population from a total of 3,220,711 in 1970 to 3,632,143. Kentucky now has seven House seats and has kept apace in population growth since the 1960 census when the state lost one House seat because of the great exodus of people from the coal-producing areas of the state in the slump of the late 1950s.

The state's population shows that the coal areas have regained a lot of that population since then and the Bluegrass area has gained considerably. Jefferson County was the major loser in population but the growth in other parts of the state more than made up for this loss.

New York state had about 18.5 million people in 1970, but has lost or not gained according to an Associated Press report last week. New York is expected to lose four seats, and losing two each will be Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Losing one would be Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey and South Dakota.

Predicted to gain seats are Florida with three while California and Texas will pick up two each.

Gaining one seat will be Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Oregon, Tennessee, Utah and Washington. The big shift in population has been to the sunbelt and the western states.

While Kentucky probably will not gain or lose a seat, it will be necessary to redistrict to balance out the population shift. Jefferson county now has one full House seat and parts of the county are in the Fourth Congressional District.

The area of the Sixth Congressional District more than likely will be reduced because of growth in the Bluegrass counties. Reapportionment will have a domino effect that will change all districts.

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. has said in the past when he will not call a special session of the General Assembly in 1981 "unless it is absolutely necessary." His press secretary, Frank Ashley, said last week the governor is still maintaining this position.

The 400 Kentucky House members and half of the Senate will run for office in 1981, but there can be no reapportionment by that time. They will run from their present districts. The House members will run for three year terms and half the Senate for five-year terms to facilitate creation of a legislative term, every year, beginning with the odd-year short term in 1983 when the other half of the Senate will run for a five-year term. It will all even out in 1988.

Legislative Research Director Victor Hellard said a subcommittee on state government is already preparing for redistricting in the 1982 legislative session. The committee is chaired by Lloyd Clapp, D-Mayfield.

Hellard said the demographic charts for the new population figures and the present legislative districts will be superimposed and new districts drawn early enough for the 1982 legislature to act early in the session to set the congressional districts for the 1982 races. The primary will be in May.

However, there will be no state legislative races that year and these districts can be drawn later in the 1982 session and ready for the 1983 legislative races.

Kentucky's seven Congressional Districts did not share equally in the growth of the Commonwealth's population during the 1970s. While the Seventh and Fifth Districts in Eastern Kentucky experienced population increases of 22.6 percent and 20.5 percent respectively during this period, the First District in Western Kentucky grew by only 12.2 percent and the Third District containing the City of Louisville lost 14.8 percent of its population.

As a result of these changes, the boundaries of Kentucky's Congressional Districts will be revised by the General Assembly to achieve a closer balance on the basis of the Census Bureau's 1980 Preliminary Counts. The average population of Kentucky's Congressional Districts should be 520,306.

The 1980 Preliminary Counts for Kentucky's Congressional Districts, as they now exist, are listed below. The figures were obtained by the State Data Center from the staff of the Legislative Research Commission and the Committee on State Government.

Southern ADD's Are Big Gainers

The Census Bureau's Preliminary Counts for 1980 show that all 15 of the Area Development Districts are increasing in population. But the growth is not evenly distributed among them.

The greatest percentage changes are found in Eastern and Southeastern Kentucky with the Big Sandy ADD being the fastest growing region. Other Districts with rates greater than 20 percent are the Kentucky River, Cumberland Valley, and Lake Cumberland.

The average increase for all ADDs was 28.096. Five regions were above that average. The Bluegrass ADD had the greatest net change experiencing almost twice as much growth as the second most rapidly increasing District, Big Sandy. These were followed by a contiguous tier of ADDs located along Kentucky's southern border stretching from the Cumberland Valley to the Pennington.

Christmas Is Many Things To Children

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Sure, Christmas is for kids, but what do kids really think Christmas is all about? What do you figure a 5-year-old would say if you asked, "What is Christmas?" Well, a reporter asked some children aged 4, 5, 6 and 7 just that when he joined them in their wait to see a department store Santa Claus just a few days before Christmas.

These were children at that "special" Christmas age. Their eyes grew big as they looked at the lovely Christmas decorations all around them.

Slight grins appeared as they talked with an adult who had bent on one knee to chat with them face to face. Some giggled a little.

Sometimes a reassuring look up at mom or dad was needed. But none cried. And they really seemed to like to talk about "What is Christmas?"

Nicole, asked how old she was, held up four fingers. Asked "What is Christmas?" she replied in a very soft voice, "Ho, ho, ho."

Q: "Is Christmas anything else?" She nodded yes and said, "Santa Claus."

Q: "Why is Christmas Santa Claus?" "Cause I like him."

Q: "Why do you like him?" "Ho, ho, ho."

Now that's a pretty good circle of answers.

Lucas Millard said he was "five" and he said Christmas is "toys."

Q: "What do you mean, Christmas is toys?"

"Getting toys."

Q: "Why do you get toys?" "Because you're good."

Lucas' 7-year-old brother, Jacob, was a pretty smooth talker.

"Christmas is a lot of things," he began. "It makes me happy. I get presents. I give presents. To my mom and dad. To my grandma. We get to go places at Christmas. We go to my grandma's."

Q: "What do you want for Christmas?" "I want it to be a surprise. I asked for things before. This Christmas I don't want to know."

A little boy held up five fingers and said his name was "Jason." Yes, he knew his last name too. "Canterbury. And what is Christmas?"

"Snow."

Q: "Why snow?" "Cause I like to play in it."

Q: "Is Christmas anything else?" "Santa Claus, too. I like Santa Claus. He gives me toys. I want him to bring me 'Crusher' this year."

Q: "What is Crusher?"

"A monster. I saw it on TV."

It took quite a few children before "What is Christmas?" was answered the way Heather Kowzan, 6, did.

"About Jesus," she said.

Q: "Why is that?" "I guess cause he's so nice. He lets you know he's nice."

Q: "Is Christmas anything else?" "Santa Claus. And the elves. They're his helpers. They make toys so little boys and girls can have a good time playing."

And finally, Lisa Potts, 7, knew exactly what Christmas is.

"Jesus' birthday," she said.

Q: "How do you know that?" "My mom and dad and teacher told me."

Surgery Gives Man Back Both Severed Arms

BOSTON (UPI) — A maintenance man whose arms were cut off in "feeling pretty good" about his replanted limbs and the difficult surgical procedure that successfully reattached his severed arms.

Anthony Cardoza, 38, of Brockton, Mass., was listed in good condition Saturday at the Massachusetts General Hospital more than seven weeks after his arms were sliced off in an unexplained mishap at the Vulcan Last Corp.

The accident took place Nov. 6 during lunch hour when Cardoza came in contact with the whirling blade of a

Cardoza is in good enough spirits to talk with friends and told a colleague — while a nurse held the telephone — "I'm feeling pretty good. They're exercising my hands now and soon will be changing the dressings. Say 'hello' to everybody back at work."

His fellow workers are credited with saving his arms: They applied tourniquets to reduce the blood loss after the accident, placed the severed limbs in a plastic bag and cooled them with water from a drinking fountain.

Brockton Fire Lt. Frederick G. Flaminio, who summoned an ambulance, recalled Cardoza's "arms were cut absolutely clean, as though sliced by a guillotine," and said Cardoza remained conscious.

Surgeons at Massachusetts General Hospital, where the first successful replantation was conducted 18 years ago, worked in shifts on Cardoza.

Dr. Leonard Gordon headed a five-member orthopedic surgical team rejoined one of Cardoza's arms while a second five-member team of plastic surgeons replanted the other in bilateral operations lasting 14 hours.

Using microscopes, surgeons painstakingly rejoined 15 tendons, four veins, two arteries, three major nerves and the bone in each arm. Peering through high-powered lenses, they sutured with thread thinner than a human hair.

Gordon said the hands survived, but it will be a long time before doctors know what functions will be restored.

It was believed to be the second successful two-arm replantation in medical history. The first took place in 1977 at Jewish Hospital in Louisville, Ky., where surgeons rejoined the severed arms of a zinc miner.

May the Star of Christmas shine within you and give you peace.

N.O.W. IT'S STERLING

Effective December 31, 1980, The Mount Sterling National Bank will offer interest-bearing checking accounts. We call them "Sterling Accounts."

HISTORY

The Negotiable Order of Withdrawal, or Sterling concept is not a new one. Prior to the Banking Act of 1933, some banks paid interest on checking accounts. But that act prohibited such a practice.

In 1972, NOW accounts were reborn in Massachusetts and the idea quickly spread across state lines into New Hampshire. This practice allowed persons to write a check or "share draft" on a savings account.

In 1976, Congress got into the act and passed Public Law 92-100, allowing all six New England states to have NOW accounts. But problems arose with state lines.

Customers in states bordering New England found all they had to do was cross a state line to write checks and draw interest on the same account. This was interpreted by some as an unfair competitive advantage for New England banks. The argument was settled in 1978 when an appeals court ruled that automatic transfer accounts were illegal.

But this forced Congress to take more action and effective December 31, 1980, we have a new nationwide NOW account law.

How STERLING works

The Sterling Account is not for everybody. But it is for you, if you can keep several hundred dollars in your Sterling Account. You will earn interest on those funds all the time they are in the account. We figure your interest on the daily balance, then add it up and post it to your monthly statement as of your statement date. Keeping Sterling Accounts is a costly book-keeping procedure for us, so we are forced to charge a $5 monthly service fee if your daily balance falls below $1500. See the table below for more details.

Remember, we will always pay you 5 1/4 percent interest on your Sterling Account balance, regardless of what your balance is.

WHAT is the STERLING ACCOUNT?

The Sterling Account is simply an account at the Mount Sterling National Bank on which you will earn annual interest and upon which you will also be able to write checks. As an example, if you write a check to an out of state firm and it takes that check two weeks to be returned to our bank for payment, the money you subtracted in your checkbook would earn interest for you every day until the check actually came in.

An important thing to remember is that the new law provides that only individuals and non-profit organizations qualify to have Sterling accounts. The new law was designed for you, the individual consumer, and not for big business.

How to decide if STERLING is for you!

Monthly Earnings

MONTHLY BALANCE	5 1/4% INTEREST	CHARGES	MONTHLY PROCEEDS
$5,000	$21.87	$0	$21.87
4,000	17.50	0	17.50
3,000	13.12	0	13.12
2,000	8.75	0	8.75
1,500	6.56	0	6.56
1,400	6.12	5	1.12
1,200	5.25	5	-0.25
1,000	4.37	5	-0.63
500	2.18	5	-2.82

When does STERLING START?

The law allows that December 31, 1980 is the effective first day in which a Sterling account can be transacted. But you can visit the Mount Sterling National Bank NOW to learn exactly how you would qualify for this account. Normally it is a matter only of signing signature cards for a new account.

For all practical purposes however, the first business day after New Years Day 1981, interest would start accruing to your Sterling account.

Elliott Housing Authority

Commission and the Kentucky Housing Corporation.

Farmers Home denied the application for funds on the grounds that the Housing Authority was not the proper agency to receive them. Farmers Home said the agency was a special authority that it is separate and distinct from the general political subdivision. Farmers Home contended that only agencies, such as city councils or fiscal courts that have the power to collect and levy taxes, should be eligible for the loans under the section 601 Energy Impacted Area Assistance program.

The Housing Authority and Frontier Housing are also challenging a ruling by FmHA that 75 percent of the money collected from the sale of the lots should be used to offset the federal grant being made.

The Housing Authority contends it would not be able to repay the bank loan if that ruling is made to apply. But Farmers Home contends the proceeds from the sale of the lots would decrease the local contribution to below 25 percent.

The plaintiffs — the Housing Authority and Frontier Housing — allege in their suit that the opinions by Farmers Home regarding the grant funds do not correctly interpret the law and that they are in "total contradiction of the intent and purpose" of the Power Plant and Fuel Use Act and "are being used to thwart its implementation."

The plaintiffs charge in the suit that they received communications from Farmers Home Administration indicating that there was no problem with the application until about a year after the filing of the initial application for section 601 funding.

The plaintiffs said, "In reliance on these communications... (we) incurred debts and spent considerable sums of money on the assurances by FmHA that the Elliott County Housing Authority was an eligible recipient for section 601 funding, that the funding scheme set forth in the section 601 pre-application was in accordance with the law, and that the application would be approved."

Lawyers for the plaintiffs are Allen Holbrook of Morehead, who is the attorney for the Elliott Housing Authority, and Forrest Roberts, of Northeast Kentucky Legal Services, attorney for Frontier Housing.

The plaintiffs ask Farmers Home to issue orders declaring that the Housing Authority is eligible to receive section 601 funds and that the authority is not required to reimburse the federal government with any of the proceeds it receives from the sale of lots in Sandy Hook.

The suit, which seeks a declaratory judgment, also asks the defendants to grant the plaintiffs their costs and reasonable attorneys fees.

The defendants — listed as Bob Berglund, secretary of agriculture, Gordon Cavanaugh, Farmers Home administrator, and Daniel Marcus, general counsel for the department of agriculture — have 60 days to file a response to the suit.

Claims made in filing a lawsuit state only one side of the dispute.

Burley

would be all right, but I would also recommend to the Agriculture Department that they attempt to adjust to the fact that a lot of farmers who receive allocations are not growing any tobacco, and that action is hurting the market," Dykes said.

Dykes has other recommendations he thinks would benefit farmers. "I think we need price supports for loose leaf tobacco like exists for baskets and bales. I'm also bitterly opposed to crossing county lines with tobacco leases. That would be a mistake if that were ever approved; it would only help destroy the economy of the small farmer," he said.

Holiday Deadlines Set

In order that its employees may enjoy the holidays, The Morehead News will be published only one time during Christmas week.

That publication will be delivered as usual on Tuesday morning. There will be no edition on Friday, Dec. 26.

Offices for Kentucky Publishing will close at noon Wednesday, Dec. 24. They will reopen on Saturday, Dec. 27, at 9 a.m.

Deadlines for classified and display advertising as well as news items for the Dec. 30 edition of The Morehead News will be noon on Saturday, Dec. 27.

For the New Year's holiday, the Jan. 2 edition of the newspaper will be delivered to mail subscribers one day later than normal. Copies of the newspaper will be available on newsstands late Friday evening.

Deadlines for that edition will remain the same as Kentucky Publishing Company office will close on New Year's Day.

Morgan Man Stabbed In Accident At Home

WEST LIBERTY — An 18-year-old Morgan County man was listed in fair condition Monday morning at St. Claire Medical Center in Morehead after being accidentally stabbed at his home.

Ardus McPherson of Byrd Ridge Road, about 8.2 miles out of West Liberty, was transferred to the hospital from Morgan Appalachian Regional Hospital after suffering a stab wound Saturday.

State police report the man was "playing around" with his brother, when the incident occurred.

No charges have been filed and police have not opened a case in the matter.

Campus Fire

Kappes said that it was fortunate that the incident occurred during the holiday break because most of the classroom buildings, offices and some of the dormitories were darkened.

The married housing units in Lakewood Terrace were also without electricity.

"Although many of the Lakewood residents have gone home for the holidays there are still some there without electricity and heat from the forced air furnaces," Kappes said.

"Some of them have temporarily moved to other locations and some are getting heat from gas stoves," Kappes said.

Kappes echoed Dr. Norfleet's remark that it was fortunate no one was injured in the fire and that it occurred at a time when the University wasn't in full swing.

Kappes also complimented the members of the fire and police departments as well as Kentucky Utilities crewmen and the electrical contractors assisting in the emergency.

"They worked in temperatures which got down three degrees and managed to handle the situation efficiently," Kappes said.

The switchgear station on University Street is one of two stations on campus.

The other is located on the western end of campus behind Weatherly Gym.

City Council

minister and enforce the city zoning ordinance, investigate complaints of violations and correct them using the guidelines of the city ordinances. He is to serve as an ex-officio member of the Morehead-Rowan County Joint Planning Commission and the Board of Zoning Adjustments. He will also be responsible for recommendations to the commission on zoning maps and changes and conducting any public hearings required for them. He is to collect the building permit fees and alteration, construction, conduit and various engineering work and give engineering opinions as to the western work to be performed within the city.

Council is to meet again Tuesday, Dec. 23, to give second and final reading to these ordinances. The meeting will begin at 9 a.m. at City Hall.

Requests For City Tax Refunds Are Due April 15

Those persons who pay the city payroll tax have until April 15, 1981 to file for a refund for any portion of their pay that is earned outside the city limits.

The Morehead city payroll and net profits tax ordinance has a provision that permits refunds for portions of a person's pay earned for work actually done outside the city limits. The same applies to businesses.

City Finance Director Phillip Tackett says that any taxpayer who files for a payroll tax refund must furnish him with a W-2 form and a statement from his or her employer verifying any wages earned out of the city.

Refunds may be claimed for the years 1979 and 1980 only, Tackett says. Refunds for 1979 will not be paid if the return is filed after April 15, 1981. The due date for 1980 refunds is also April 15.

Tackett invites anyone with questions concerning the tax to phone him at his city office, 784-9744.

Burley Quota Answer Due Earlier

Burley growers and the tobacco industry will not have long to wait for the answer on next year's national crop quota.

Due to the administration change at Washington on Jan. 20, the quota decision will have to be announced before then by the present Secretary of the Agriculture. Heretofore the deadline has been Feb. 1.

As the market went into the Dec. 18-Jan recess, the strong buying movement continued to reflect the burley supply shortage. So did the pool receipts, which have been by far the shortest on record.

As the holiday shutdown began, Alvin R. Beckley, executive secretary-treasurer of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association, reported receipts of only 13,830 pounds from the 1980 crop, out of total sales of 485 million pounds this season.

Of the estimated 548 million pound crop, pre-Christmas sales have taken over 80 percent, and the eight-state belt average was $165.81 per hundred.

The industry-wide hearing at Lexington Dec. 15, conducted by a panel of USDA officials from Washington, was attended by about 130 growers, representatives of industry groups and tobacco dealers. The meeting registered a consensus of support for increased quotas, mainly for a raise of five percent above last year's figure. This was backed by the Burley Growers Association, Burley Auction Warehouse Assn., Burley Farmers Advisory Council, Ky. Farm Bureau and tobacco leaders.

The meeting registered a consensus of support for increased quotas, mainly for a raise of five percent above last year's figure. This was backed by the Burley Growers Association, Burley Auction Warehouse Assn., Burley Farmers Advisory Council, Ky. Farm Bureau and tobacco dealers.

Joe McDaniel, president of the Burley Growers Association, reported the majority of that organization favored the five percent increase, and a minority report asked for a 7.5 percent increase.

"We find that production during the last three years is 250 million pounds below disappearance," said McDaniel, "and the reserve supply is about 132 million pounds below normal."

The board of directors of the Burley Cooperative thinks that a reserve supply of 150 to 200 million pounds held by the pool is a healthy situation. It is impossible to predict how much of the effective quota will be produced in 1981 as a result of under-marketing in previous years, but it is physically impossible to catch up in a short time. It will take several years to accomplish this—if ever.

"We therefore recommend to the Secretary an increase of not over five percent in basic allotment for 1981, which would put the national quota at 625 million pounds."

McDaniel said that the Growers Co-op "advises against changing the tobacco program in any way that would necessitate going to Congress to alter the present law," and he noted that "both Kentucky Senators have warned of the risk involved in introducing legislation pertaining to tobacco."

Coinciding with this was the view of Charles Robbins, USDA official who conducted the Lexington meeting. He said that tobacco is faced by "a highly urban Congress, the anti-smoking lobby, and the fact that the product is considered neither food nor fiber."

Robbins is chief of the program development branch, price support and loan division.

Robbins said that carryover stocks at the beginning of the 1981 marketing year are projected to be 953 million pounds, with domestic use at around 485 million. Exports are estimated between 125 and 145 million pounds, depending upon availability.

World cigarette use has been increasing about two percent a year, he said, and U.S. short crops in 1979 and 1980 have led to a worldwide under-production of burley tobacco, amounting to about 100 million pounds.

Two options considered for the 1981 crop, said Robbins, are:

- (1) An increase of 2.5 percent over the 1980 quota, and,
  - (2) An increase of 7.5 percent.
- The two-and-one-half percent option would provide for an estimated 630 pounds, and would about equal projected 1981 total use.
- The seven-and-one-half percent would mean 660 million pounds estimated, or .five percent above projected 1981 use.
- Besides the quota recommendations at the Lexington meeting, the secretary of agriculture has invited comments by mail.
- These must be submitted to reach Washington not later than January 16, and are to be addressed to: Director, Price Support & Loan Division, ASCS-USA, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

DEC. 22-28, 1980

Hear the Christmas bells from hill to hill.

Write that letter to an old friend now — Robin became national bird Dec. 27, 1960. Average length of days for the week, 9 hours, 4 minutes. USS Pueblo seized Dec. 23, 1968. Chewing gum patented Dec. 28, 1869. Merry Christmas and be of good cheer. Things will be better next year.

Ask the Old Farmer: I have always wondered about the meaning of the folk song, "Jimmy cracked corn and I don't care." Can you enlighten me? M. I., Troy, N.Y.

We believe the song originated in the Deep South. One of the meanings of the word "crack" is to open a bottle. "Corn" is identified with homemade whiskey.

Home Hints: To remove mildew, wet the article and rub with a mixture of one-half chalk and one-half soap. Place in the sun until dry is gone.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS:

New England: Clearing, very cold, snow flurries through mid-week, weekend is sunny and mild.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Cold, cloudy, few showers begin the week; then rainy and mild by week end.

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Most of week is cold and cloudy; then light showers, snow in mountains for weekend.

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Sunny and cold at week's start; middle through end of week brings heavy rain.

Florida: Beginning of week brings showers, cool temperatures; then clearing north, cloudy south, warming through weekend.

Upstate New York-Toronto & Montreal: Partly sunny and mild to start, showers or snow central and west, weekend mild and rainy.

Greater Ohio Valley: Cloudy and cold, snow east, at start of week, rainy and mild for week's end.

Deep South: Week starts sunny and seasonal, with hard frost north; rain midweek, then showers and mild temperatures.

Chicago & Southern Great Lakes: Rain south to start, then partial clearing; rainy and warm midweek, snowy and cold by weekend.

Northern Great Plains-Great Lakes: Light snow, cold temperatures begin the week, then clearing and mild; cold wave, snow at week's end.

Central Great Plains: Week starts sunny north, rain southeast; middle of week through week's end brings rain east, showers west.

Texas-Oklahoma: Rainy and cold all week, becoming mild for weekend.

Rocky Mountain: Partly cloudy and mild, then cold midweek; weekend brings heavy snowstorm.

Southwest Deserts: Few sprinkles, cold east, cold nights south, through midweek, cloudy, showers at week's end.

Pacific Northwest: Sunny and mild, then cloudy and cold middle of week, clearing is cold, freezing temperatures west.

California: Cloudy and cooling most of week, with showers mid-week and weekend.

Homes Should Be Prepared For The Storms Of Winter

Winter storms pose a threat to Kentuckians, even if they are at home when bad weather strikes, warns Kentucky Disaster and Emergency Services Executive Director Wilbur R. Buntin Jr. "With winter approaching, it's a good idea to get your home prepared for the season," he said. Be prepared for isolation at home during winter storms. "If you live in a rural area, make sure you could survive at home for a week or two in case a storm isolated you and makes it impossible for you to leave," Buntin said. Keep an adequate supply of heating fuel on hand and use it sparingly as regular supplies may be curtailed by storm conditions. If necessary, conserve fuel by keeping the house cooler than usual, or by closing off some rooms temporarily. Stock an emergency supply of food and water, Buntin advised. "These supplies would be needed during any natural disaster," he said. Supplies should include food that requires no cooking or refrigeration and emergency cooking facilities in case of power failure. Well-balanced nutritional meals allow the body to produce its own heat efficiently, especially quick-energy foods like raisins and other dried fruit.

Beware of possible fire hazards due to overheated coal or oil-burning stoves, fireplaces, heaters or furnaces. Keep simple tools and equipment needed to fight a fire, in case fire department assistance is not available. Severe winter storms can knock out power lines, Buntin said. Have a flashlight, extra batteries or candles and matches and a battery-powered radio with extra batteries. The radio will allow you to follow the storm's progress and keep you posted on any emergency information broadcasts by local authorities.

Downed power lines can affect not only lights but heating equipment as well. If a furnace is controlled by a thermostat and electricity is cut off by a storm, the furnace probably will not operate and emergency heat will be needed.

Emergency heating equipment and fuel should allow at least one room of the house to stay warm enough to be livable. This could be a camp stove with fuel, or a supply of wood or coal if there is a fireplace.

However, use extreme caution with emergency heating equipment, Buntin said. Proper ventilation is essential and extra caution must be taken to prevent fires. To learn how to handle alternative heat sources safely, talk to a local dealer; he'll be listed in the yellow pages of your telephone directory under "heating."

If a home should lose heat, keep water pipes from freezing by wrapping them in insulation made for water pipes, or in layers of old newspapers, taping the ends and tying them around the pipes. Cover the newspapers with plastic to keep out the moisture. If it is extremely cold and there is danger of freezing, let the faucets drip a little.

Know where the valve for shutting off the water coming into the house or apartment is located. As a last resort shut off the main valve and drain all the pipes to keep them from freezing and bursting.

If pipes should freeze, do not try to thaw them with a blow torch or other open flame, Buntin warns. Instead, open faucets, wide to allow for expansion of the frozen water. Remove any newspaper that may be around the pipe. Wrap pipes with rags and pour hot water over the rags, with the faucets still open.

"Weathering winter storms at home won't be as difficult if you've prepared for it," Buntin said.

Use Caution In Preparing Foods For Holiday Table

'Tis the season for family dinners with all the relatives, buffets with people from the office, and open houses with the neighbors. But with all that eating and drinking, it's also the season for increased chances for food poisoning. By taking a few extra precautions, cordial entertainers can make their guests merry without making them sick.

The special foods, large gatherings of family and friends and hectic days that make the holidays festive also contribute to the possibility of food poisoning, according to Sae Burrier, Extension food and nutrition specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"During the holidays, people serve larger amounts of food to more people than usual," Burrier said. "Food takes longer to prepare, and is handled more, and is left at room temperature longer than usual for dinners and buffets."

Increased handling and standing at room temperature can turn perishable foods into breeding grounds for bacteria. "All bacteria need to grow is the right combination of time, temperature and moisture," Burrier said. "Left at room temperature longer than usual, products can easily become contaminated."

Many traditional holiday foods require a great deal of handling and are highly perishable, she said. They include turkey and stuffing, gravy, seafood, eggnog, creamed pies and puddings, creamy salad dressings, salad mixtures and deviled eggs.

Unfortunately, it is not always possible to tell by taste, appearance or odor of food if it is safe to eat. Most germs that cause food poisoning are killed when food is cooked, but germs can again contaminate food after it is cooked. Even in large numbers, germs seldom change how food looks, smells or tastes.

Common symptoms of food poisoning, including diarrhea, nausea, vomiting, headache, fever and stomach cramps, can last for several hours or even days. With young children and elderly people, the results can be more severe.

Many people who suffer from food-borne illness never realize they got sick from contaminated food, Burrier said. "They think they caught a touch of the flu, when it was a mild case of food poisoning."

Food poisoning, which can ruin the holiday season, can easily be prevented with meal planning and careful food handling, Burrier said. She offers hosts and hostesses the following food safety tips:

Decide how many people you can serve safely. Consider size of refrigerator, size and quantity of cooking equipment, and supply of eating utensils and dishes. Check temperature of refrigerator to make sure it cools food adequately. Temperature should be less than 40° F.

When planning menus, consider how certain foods must be prepared, served and stored, and how much time and equipment you have. If you do not have adequate refrigerator space, plan to serve food that does not need to be kept cold, for example, fresh fruit or fruit pies for dessert instead of pudding or cream pies. Or pack drinks and food in a cooler with plenty of ice to supplement refrigerator space.

When preparing food, keep hands, work areas and utensils clean. Scrub and sanitize cutting boards and knives after using them for handling raw meat. Germs from raw meat can contaminate cooked meat and other foods.

Thaw frozen foods, particularly frozen poultry and meats, in the refrigerator. Germs can easily grow on outer surfaces when meat and poultry are thawed at room temperature. If it is necessary to thaw, a large turkey outside the refrigerator, thaw it in a watertight package in cold water. Replace water often to maintain cold temperatures.

Cook meat and poultry promptly and completely after thawing. Never partially cook meat at one time and finish cooking it later.

Keep cold foods cold (below 40°) and hot foods hot (above 140°). If you prepare food ahead of time, refrigerate cold dishes immediately and hot dishes within 30 minutes after cooking. Reheat hot dishes thoroughly just before serving.

Plan to prepare, serve and put away perishable foods within two hours. These foods include meat, turkey, chicken, seafood, dressing, gravy, cracked vegetables, pies, puddings and salad mixtures, and egg dishes.

When serving a buffet, keep servings small and replenish as needed directly from the refrigerator or stove. Chafing dishes and hot trays with temperature controls can be used to keep hot foods hot. Cold foods, such as relishes, can be packed in ice.

After a meal, promptly refrigerate leftovers. Hot foods will chill more quickly in shallow containers.

If food containing meat, poultry or dairy products has been left at room temperature for more than two hours, throw it away.

Will Cars Soon Have Anti-Collision Radar?

DETROIT (UPI) — A dream of automotive engineers is to make cars smart enough to protect even the most neglectful driver. Imagine a vehicle speeding on a dark country road with a fatigued or inebriated driver. He dozes. Suddenly, the car squeals to a stop by itself, narrowly avoiding a collision with a parked truck.

The driver's life has been saved by a radar system that senses when a collision is imminent and applies the brakes.

That scenario isn't so farfetched. Sophisticated computers are becoming standard equipment on automobiles. That, coupled with advances in microwave technology, is bringing automotive radar out of the realm of dreams.

RCA Corp. has developed a radar braking system it says can be adapted to cars in the very near future. But it lacks a commitment from an automaker.

"If the president of General Motors says, I want to have automotive radar on Cadillacs by 1985, he can have it," said Fred Sterzer, head of RCA's Microwave Technology Center.

"The feasibility, in my mind, has been demonstrated. The next step, of course, is for someone to invest the money."

RCA's project was undertaken in connection with the government's effort to design and build a Research Safety Vehicle.

The company came up with a radar system that won't stop a car short of collision but will reduce the impact speed.

False targets — bridges, viaducts, roadway signs or anything that could trigger the braking mechanism at the wrong time — were the toughest problem.

To tackle it, technicians drove a radar-equipped van through a variety of road conditions and recorded the blips made by false targets. Computer controls then were programmed to avoid them.

Sterzer said a longer radar scanning range would be needed for collision avoidance. The problem of false targets would be much more serious with a longer scan.

Automatic hard braking to avoid collision also might make it impossible for an alert driver to steer out of trouble.

Sterzer wonders whether automatic braking would hold much public attraction since if a device most drivers will never see in use. But its attractiveness is increased by a radar cruise control that adjusts automatically to match the speed of the vehicle ahead.

In that application, now in use on RCA test vehicles, the driver is spared having to disengage the cruise control to slow down and then reset it to resume speed. It's done automatically.

Automotive radar research has focused on methods to keep cars properly spaced on highways. Sterzer said cruise control can accomplish that.

Edward F. Weller, electronics department head at General Motors' Warren, Mich., research lab, is skeptical about automotive radar. He believes the false target problem has not been solved, nor is it known how car radar devices would interfere with each other.

Costs likely won't be a major drawback. Sterzer estimates a radar-controlled collision mitigation system will be no more expensive than a high quality FM radio.

Foster Children Given Party

Twenty-seven foster children were treated to a Christmas party sponsored by the Fraternal Order of Police and Heck's Department Store Wednesday, Dec. 17 at the Jaycee Farm. Heck's employees assisted the FOP in selecting gifts for each child. Santa Claus made the presentations. Making and filling stockings were Kappa Delta Sorority members. Providing food for a dinner were foster parents, Bureau for Social Services staff, Allens' IGA and Day's Resale.

FOP members and families assisting with the party were: Chief Fred Barnsdale, Lt. Mike Kash, Officers Gordon Lambert and Scot Barker of Morehead City, Police; Officers John Barnett, Dave Livers and Roger Holbrook of the MSU Security Police; Officer Lambert, Morehead Police; Chaplain, gave the invocation. Foster parents attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Arlie Hardin, Mrs. Lucille Fannin, Dr. and Mrs. Michael Biel, Mr. and Mrs. John Barnett, Mrs. Ruth

France Battles Alcoholism

PARIS (UPI) — France has come up with two weapons in what is billed as its battle of the century against alcoholism: non-alcoholic "wines" and for the first time in 100 years, public fountains serving, ugh, water.

"We must reinforce the idea of not drinking excessive alcohol," said Denis Boisset, in charge of the government's High Committee on Alcoholism, as she gestured to a bottle of non-alcoholic liqueur.

The government launched its battle against alcoholism Dec. 10 when the cabinet approved the first decrees on drinking since Prime Minister Pierre Mendes-France tried in 1955 to get the French to drink milk. His campaign failed.

The 1980 government measures follow the High Committee's less harsh theme that citizens should drink only a half-liter of wine a day, and only with food — a revolution in a land where many pour brandy into morning coffee, drink wine with a mid-morning snack and wash down lunch and supper with 2 liters of wine plus aperitifs before meals and brandy afterwards.

The High Committee says alcohol consumption in France in 1978 was 16 liters per person, nearly twice that of the United States.

"There is no question of prohibition of alcohol as tried in the United States — we cannot brutally change French habits," said Mrs. Boisset.

One measure calls for the promotion of non-alcoholic beverages, such as grape juice, that smell, look and allegedly taste a bit, anyway — like Bordeaux, Beaujolais and the other great wines of France.

They will be sold as red, white or rose, and will contain very little sugar and no chemicals or artificial colorings. Whether they would pass muster at a gourmet dinner is another matter.

"They are not fake wine, they are wine without alcohol," insisted Mrs. Boisset, waving the recipe she published in a wine-growers' magazine.

The first non-alcoholic "pastis" appeared in supermarkets in November. It looks and tastes like the famed licorice-flavored drink of Marseille, but instead of containing 45-50 percent alcohol the drink is alcohol-free.

Another measure approved by the cabinet was public drinking fountains, a rarity in France — one reason why the French drink more alcohol than in any other industrialized nation, the committee says. Restaurants and cafes charge more for bottled water than for beer or wine. Customers who order tap water are regarded as unchic. The reformers may be able to lead Frenchmen to water, but can they make them drink it? Mrs. Boisset admits it will be difficult.

"We French think tap water is something to wash your hands in," she said.

"We will install fountains on public streets and in parks, railway stations, airports and schools. They must look charming, with flowers and tiles, to make people want to drink water," she said.

Paris has some drinking fountains, 100-year-old iron sculptures called "Wallace Fountains" after the British philanthropist who gave them to the capital.

But they are dry. Soon they will dispense water for the first time in half a century, Mrs. Boisset said.

Gateway Tourism Group Won't Have Publication

—OWINGSVILLE — The Gateway Area Recreation and Tourism Advisory Committee, meeting here Tuesday night, voted not to attempt to put out a locally oriented tourist publication at the present time, Chairman Eva Alexander announced.

"We just feel it's not a good idea right now," Ms. Alexander said, "and we're going to wait until spring and look at the idea again."

Instead, the committee voted to approve the use of nearly $8,000 in 50 percent matching tourist funds from the state for two local tourist publications that are already underway. One brochure is for Mt. Sterling and it is now being sent to the printer. The other is for the Morehead area and is expected to be finished by January, 1981.

The meeting marked the first time in recent years that all of the matching funds allocated to the Gateway area were used. No requests for funds were received from either Bath, Menifee, or Morgan Counties; however, the committee said it believed that Morgan County wanted to use some money for Sorghum Festival promotion.

The committee voted to set aside $300 for Morgan County, even though no one from Morgan County had asked for the money. The committee voted to give the Morgan County members of the Tourism Committee until December 31 to apply for the money. If it is not used, the funds will revert to the other counties.

Block Grant Plan Outlined At Meeting

MT. STERLING — The community block grant plans for which Mt. Sterling hopes to be awarded $2,750,000 by the federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) agency to spend over three years were outlined to 37 persons at a meeting Monday night at Kees CME Church at Queen and Locust streets.

Dwayne Clayton, who is in charge of the community development agency in Mt. Sterling, and Paul Krutko, project planner with Proctor, Davis, Ray, consulting engineers of Lexington, conducted the meeting.

Krutko explained that it is hoped to involve the four local banks in a grant program that would include the spending of about $5 million over the three-year period for improvements in the area on both sides of Locust Street from Queen Street to the cemetery.

The present HUD funds are being spent in the Tenney Hill area. Krutko explained that HUD is not accepting straight grant requests now, but it must be of a grant-loan basis with local financial funds available.

He outlined what the funds could be spent on and told the group they wanted citizen participation. The schedule for the program, outlined by Krutko, was filing of the pre-application by Jan. 26; determination in March or April if the city is to file a full application, and release of the money in May or early June if the city is funded for the work.

He said, if the application is approved, the city probably would receive about $750,000 to be spent the first year and $1 million in both the second and third years.

Clayton said the program is expected to involve improvements to about 130 houses. The family size and income will determine the amount each family will have to pay for the improvements. He also reported on the progress of the Tenney Hill project and said a new surface is to be put on the blacktop street next spring. He said that four more houses in the Tenney Hill area are to be improved instead of trying to acquire Cozy Corners. Clayton also reported that a Sec. 8 high-rise housing development for the elderly is expected to be built in the Tenney Hill Area and a playground is planned in the flood area along Hinkston Creek.

Due Process Law Studied

FRANKFORT — Violation of a person's right to due process of law has come under study by a legislative subcommittee reviewing state law which deals with mental illness and incompetency.

The law, KRS 202A, relates to all areas of hospitalization of the mentally ill. It is being challenged in the courts on grounds that a person's due process of law is being violated.

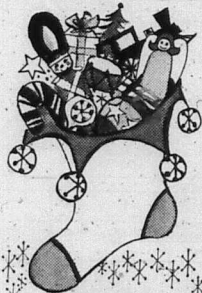

The subcommittee, in anticipation of the law being struck down, is seeking opinions from the experts in the field in an effort to draft new legislation.

Changes in the present law proposed by the committee include a mandatory 72-hour screening provision for all mentally ill persons ensuring that persons arrested would not be kept for an unspecified length of time before receiving an examination.

The number of physicians needed for an examination would also be changed from two to one in the proposed law.

This is being done with the eastern section of the state in mind noting the shortage of qualified doctors in the area and the problems in finding the required two physicians without crossing county lines.

Being A Foster Parent Can Be Rewarding And Heartbreaking

JACKHORN, Ky — There are many "Jackhorns" in Eastern Kentucky.

Cold Wind
The discomfort created by a brisk winter wind can make a liar out of the thermometer. For instance, a 30-mile-per-hour wind combined with a temperature of 30 F can have the same chilling effect on the body as a 2 F reading.

Here Come the Bats
Frogs aren't dumb. Looking up at the night sky, they spot silhouettes of predator bats cruising over the pond. As the bats come close, the frogs halt their courtship calls.

Skin Breather
The Lake Tisicaca frog high in the Andes Mountains doesn't normally use its lungs to breathe. The creature's baggy skin contains thousands of blood vessels that absorb oxygen directly from the water into the bloodstream.

Hidden Target
Hares and rabbits often "freeze" in a moment of imminent danger, probably to hide the visual target a predator may have been following: the cottontail's white tail or the jackrabbit's white sides. Suddenly deprived of the target, the predator may become disoriented.

Such "company towns" sprang up around mining companies during the coal booms of the 30s and 40s and have since given way to strings of modest homes with edge creeks and lead up hills.

The Jackhorn company store still stands, but the company that ran it and the town have long since moved on. The Letcher County community bears little resemblance to the bustling Jackhorn of the boom days, but the post office is still there and most of the men in the community work in one of the area's coal mines.

Ed and Twalla Brown have lived in Jackhorn for about 10 years. Ed works in the coal industry. Twalla, like most women on the creek, spends her days caring for children and keeping house.

Their small, yellow frame house is filled with the signs of children. From the holiday cut-outs on the door to the multitude of 8-by-10 school pictures on the walls and tops of the living room furniture, it is clearly a home with children.

There are six children in the Brown home. The 18-month-old boy is a "handful," but Twalla has help with him from the two older girls, who are both at home. Two other daughters attend the local high school. A son is in the first grade.

There is little to distinguish the Browns from any other family in the community, except that four of their children are foster children and three of those, because of their physical, emotional or behavioral problems, are considered "special needs" foster children.

The Browns have been foster parents since 1973 and are one of the 13 families approved to care for special needs children in the eight-county district.

Until the inception of the Department for Human Resources' specialized foster care program in 1978, a child like their 18-month-old foster son might have spent the first year of his life in a hospital.

Born with a defective heart, he has undergone open-heart surgery twice, first when he was 18 days old. He has also had chronic ear infections and, according to Twalla, "has spent as much time in the hospital as out."

He has been in the Brown home for a year and is doing much better now.

"They say by the time he's six, he'll be as normal as any other little boy," Twalla says.

Being foster parents is both rewarding and heartbreaking for the Browns. Occasionally the placement doesn't work out or the child is returned to his home after his family learns how to care for him.

"It's hard to see them go when you get attached to them," Twalla said. "The Browns keep in touch with many of the children who have been in their home. They once had a phone bill of nearly $200 the first month after a little girl who lived with them was placed with one of her relatives."

According to Howard C. Lawson, deputy commissioner of the Human Resources Department's Bureau for Social Services, special needs children placed in specialized foster homes have a better chance of permanency because the parents have undergone training that helps them deal with the children's problems.

Before the program these children often were institutionalized or moved from foster home to foster home because the parents didn't have the skills to care for the child, he said.

In a specialized foster home these children receive individual care and attention they might not get in an institution. They also learn socialization skills they might not pick up in an institutional setting.

In addition, it is less expensive for the state to place children in homes rather than institutions.

It is easy to recruit foster parents for the special needs program in the mountain area, according to Gene Rice, district manager of the Bureau for Social Services' eight-county Kentucky River district in Eastern Kentucky.

However, the program is hindered by the lack of specialized medical and psychiatric resources in the area, he said.

"We have excellent primary health care. If a child gets a cold or the measles, we can take care of him right here. But many special needs children routinely require medical and mental health care that just isn't available here," he said.

The closest medical facilities providing the needed services are in Lexington, a three- to four-hour trip from most of the counties in the district.

These kinds of trips cause stress for the parents, who aren't required to make them but usually do, and for the children, Rice said.

The Kentucky River district has "more than enough homes" to place the area's children and often accepts referrals from other districts unable to

More Foster Homes Needed

Although Kentucky's special needs foster care program has enough homes in the Kentucky River district, more foster homes are needed in other areas of the state.

Special needs foster parents are required to take 32 hours of training in the care of special needs children. Training is usually held in a central urban area, like Lexington or Louisville. It involves learning the use of appliances for children who are physically handicapped, like braces or catheters, or special training in the care of status-offender teenagers and emotionally disturbed or retarded children.

In addition, they complete six hours of up-date training every three months. Foster parents who complete the training and are approved for the program receive a stipend of $11 per day. Under the regular foster care program foster parents receive from $4.75 to $5.75 per day, depending on the age of the child.

The state pays for any equipment the child might need, like a wheelchair or installation of a wheelchair ramp in a foster home. The state also pays the child's medical bills.

For more information about the foster care program in Kentucky, contact local offices of the Department for Human Resources, Bureau for Social Services.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Taking a note from her actor-director husband, Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward will direct a segment of "Sense of Humor," one of a series of hour-long TV films based on humorous short stories by outstanding authors.

Miss Woodward's episode, titled "Come Along With Me," is based on Shirley Jackson's original story and stars Estelle Paterson, Barbara Baxley and Sylvia Sidney.

Other famous names scheduled to direct segments of the series are Hal Ashby, Joan Darling, Buck Henry, Martin Ritt and Arthur Allan Seideman.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Elizabeth Montgomery and Christopher Plummer will star in "When the Circus Came to Town," a two-hour CBS-TV romantic comedy on Jan. 21.

Miss Montgomery will play a lonely woman who runs away from home to enter the magic world of a ragtag traveling circus owned by its jaunty ringmaster, Plummer.

Eileen Brennan also stars in the film, which was produced on location in Savannah, Ga., with the Stebbing Royal European Circus, a one-ring traveling circus, as a background.

Q. My father has cancer of the prostate and I am afraid of getting it. Could blood in the urine be a sign of this? How is it diagnosed?

A. In men over 50, continuing urinary difficulties may indicate prostate cancer. Such difficulties include a weak or interrupted flow of urine, the need to urinate frequently (especially at night), inability to urinate or difficulty in starting urination, blood in the urine, a flow that is not easily stopped, or painful or burning urination. Pain in the pelvis, lower back, or upper thighs may also be a sign of prostate cancer. Sometimes such pain is the first or major symptom.

These symptoms may also result from a non-cancerous enlargement called benign prostatic hypertrophy (or BPH). More than half the men in the U.S. over 50 suffer from BPH, which often requires surgical removal of part of all of the gland. Only a physician can tell if the symptoms are due to a benign or malignant enlargement or other illnesses.

The initial step in diagnosing cancer is a rectal examination. During an internal examination of the rectum, the physician can feel irregular or unusually firm areas that may indicate a tumor. Fortunately, almost all prostate cancers begin on the part of the prostate that can be felt by a rectal examination. Prostate cancer is one of the most frequent tumor types in men.

If you would like more information, we encourage you to write us at Cancer Hopeline, 915 S. Limestone St., Lexington, KY 40536, or call our toll free number (1-800-422-8321.) We have pamphlets on prostate cancer as well as material on other types of cancer.

Theater Workers Sought

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Arts Commission is now accepting applications from professional theater artists and mimes interested in conducting a series of one- or two-week residencies in Kentucky elementary and secondary schools.

The theater artist will serve the school and, where feasible, the community. According to the commission, artists will be expected to give in-class performances and conduct workshops in areas such as improvisation, mime, theater games, and performing and technical skills.

Applicants should submit a resume that includes three references, dates available for work, and a brief proposal outlining goals, idea and activities appropriate for school residencies to the Kentucky Arts Commission. A screening panel will interview these artists who seem best qualified as versatile theater professionals and who are best suited to work in schools.

Applications must be received by Jan. 5, 1981. Interviews and final selections will take place in January. For further information, contact Nancy Carpenter, Kentucky Arts Commission, 302 Wilkinson St., Frankfort, KY 40601 or call (502) 564-3757.

At the season of holly and mistletoe, it is our special pleasure to wish you a Merry Christmas and to express our thanks for your patronage throughout the year.

Home Entered, Fire Started

Firemen notified Kentucky State Police regarding a fire Saturday at 2:33 a.m. in a Patty's Lick Home that showed signs of being illegally entered. Assistant Fire Chief Eddie Holbrook said no one was living in the Charles Waddell residence off Ky. 32 South. Firemen found a chair in a front room burning, and removed it from the home. Reportedly an ash tray had been placed on the furniture.

A further search revealed four burners were turned on a kitchen stove, as if to warm the house, and the back door was broken in.

The Christmas message is a source of everlasting joy and hope. May it bring you deep fulfillment.

Personal Service Contracts Criticized

FRANKFORT — Personal service contracts had been any place but requested by the state Department of Transportation and the Department of Human Resources Bureau for Health Services have received their share of criticism from legislative subcommittee members. A 10-month extension costing $180,000 on an original 40-month contract for $1.85 million was sought by the state Transportation Department. Brighten Engineering Co., Frankfort, is the consulting firm on the KY 80 project which runs from Hazard for Waterway. An $893,400 contract to Perry-Knott-Floyd counties. Rep. Henry "Hank" D-Lexington, said he was concerned about a project that began two years ago and "now requests a 10-month extension.

He said if the project had been any place but Eastern Kentucky, "I would reject it." The diffculties in constructing anything in the mountains is recognized as a viable reason for delay, List said. But, he warned, contractors cannot continue to expect extensions from the state every time they fail to meet deadlines. The committee rejected for a $25,000 contract between the Department for Human Resources, Bureau of Health Services and the Kentucky Hospital Association of Louisville to provide data to the department for a yearly report. An $893,400 contract to Caudill Rowlett Scott Inc., Houston, Texas, was approved by the committee for design and construction supervision of the Kentucky Center for the Arts planned for Louisville.

Auto Accidents Are Main Cause Of Death Among Young Children

FRANKFORT — Automobile accidents are the number one cause of death in children under the age of four, according to Bennie Maffet, transportation safety coordinator.

Addressing the legislative subcommittee on highways and highway enforcement Thursday in Louisville, Maffet said child restraint devices are a solution to the problem.

Since children weighing under 40 pounds are not properly protected by seat belts, child restraint devices are designed to protect the child if an accident occurs.

A bill pre-filed for Kentucky's 1987 legislative session would require parents to use child restraint systems on children under four years of age.

Legislators joined a seminar on passenger safety at the Galt House after the subcommittee meeting to learn more about the problem and its solution.

Dr. Robert Sanders, Tennessee health department director, told the group of legislators, doctors, interested citizens and transportation officials that children are discriminated against because child restraint systems are not found in many cars.

Sanders was a strong supporter for the child restraint bill passed in Tennessee in January 1978. Tennessee was the first state to require passenger restraint of any kind, but now many states are looking in restraint bills of some kind, he said.

Opposition of the bill came from group resenting government intervention and groups of the poor resenting the cost, Sanders said.

The Tennessee program covers the problem of cost by setting up lending programs for the poor. Most systems would not cost more than a tank of gas, Maffet said.

Sanders stressed that he felt legislation necessary to protect small children because they can not make the choice to wear a restraint themselves.

He cited apathy and lack of knowledge as the two main reasons parents fail to use child restraint systems with the small children. "I know it is traditional for the mother to carry a small child in her arms while riding in the car, but it is just not safe," Sanders said.

A 15-pound baby is thrown at a force equal to 300 pounds during a 20 m.p.h. collision. No one is strong enough to hold on to the child in that instance, he said.

In the Tennessee program, law enforcement officers carry child restraint systems in their car. A vehicle stopped and ticketed for not using a child restraint will be given one to use. Charges are usually dropped if the driver appears in court with proof that a child restraint system has been purchased and returns the borrowed one.

The emphasis shifts from "punitive to positive enforcement," according to Tennessee officials.

Sanders told the group that the bill is working.

Not a single child has been injured or killed in an automobile accident in Tennessee since the bill was passed, he said. "The real heroes in Tennessee are the members of the General Assembly who passed the bill."

Jean Peters Will Return To Screen

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jean Peters, who received more notoriety for her marriage to Howard Hughes than she did as a contract actress at 20th Century-Fox, returns to the screen for the first time in four years in "Peter and Paul."

The actress will costar with Anthony Hopkins and Robert Foxworth, in the title roles, in the four-hour movie scheduled for CBS-TV next season.

Miss Peters, whose most recent TV films were "Winesburg, Ohio" and "The Money Changers," will be working for producer Stan Hough who is also her husband.

Auto Accidents Are Main Cause Of Death Among Young Children

FRANKFORT — Automobile accidents are the number one cause of death in children under the age of four, according to Bennie Maffet, transportation safety coordinator.

Addressing the legislative subcommittee on highways and highway enforcement Thursday in Louisville, Maffet said child restraint devices are a solution to the problem.

Since children weighing under 40

pounds are not properly protected by seat belts, child restraint devices are designed to protect the child if an accident occurs.

A bill pre-filed for Kentucky's 1987 legislative session would require parents to use child restraint systems on children under four years of age.

Legislators joined a seminar on passenger safety at the Galt House after the subcommittee meeting to learn more about the problem and its solution.

Dr. Robert Sanders, Tennessee health department director, told the group of legislators, doctors, interested citizens and transportation officials that children are discriminated against because child restraint systems are not found in many cars.

Sanders was a strong supporter for the child restraint bill passed in Tennessee in January 1978. Tennessee was the first state to require passenger restraint of any kind, but now many states are looking in restraint bills of some kind, he said.

Opposition of the bill came from group resenting government intervention and groups of the poor resenting the cost, Sanders said.

The Tennessee program covers the problem of cost by setting up lending programs for the poor. Most systems would not cost more than a tank of gas, Maffet said.

Sanders stressed that he felt legislation necessary to protect small children because they can not make the choice to wear a restraint themselves.

He cited apathy and lack of knowledge as the two main reasons parents fail to use child restraint systems with the small children. "I know it is traditional for the mother to carry a small child in her arms while riding in the car, but it is just not safe," Sanders said.

A 15-pound baby is thrown at a force equal to 300 pounds during a 20 m.p.h. collision. No one is strong enough to hold on to the child in that instance, he said.

In the Tennessee program, law enforcement officers carry child restraint systems in their car. A vehicle stopped and ticketed for not using a child restraint will be given one to use. Charges are usually dropped if the driver appears in court with proof that a child restraint system has been purchased and returns the borrowed one.

The emphasis shifts from "punitive to positive enforcement," according to Tennessee officials.

Sanders told the group that the bill is working.

Not a single child has been injured or killed in an automobile accident in Tennessee since the bill was passed, he said. "The real heroes in Tennessee are the members of the General Assembly who passed the bill."

Jean Peters Will Return To Screen

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jean Peters, who received more notoriety for her marriage to Howard Hughes than she did as a contract actress at 20th Century-Fox, returns to the screen for the first time in four years in "Peter and Paul."

The actress will costar with Anthony Hopkins and Robert Foxworth, in the title roles, in the four-hour movie scheduled for CBS-TV next season.

Miss Peters, whose most recent TV films were "Winesburg, Ohio" and "The Money Changers," will be working for producer Stan Hough who is also her husband.

80 Percent Of Burley Crop Has Been Sold

By the latest crop estimate around 80 percent of this year's burley tobacco production has been sold, according to the Federal-State Market News Service.

Demand remained strong for burley tobacco auctioned during the fourth week of sales and quality was similar to the week before.

Volume became extremely light at a few markets, however, some points recorded full sales throughout the week. The amount placed under loan was very small.

The Christmas break is now being observed with sales scheduled to resume Jan. 5, 1981.

Gross sales for the week ending Dec. 18 totaled 101,104,761 pounds and averaged $165.82 per 100, down only 14 cents from the preceding week. The season figure reached 486,081,493 pounds averaging $165.92.

Last year before Christmas, 317,848,543 pounds averaged $145.20. The current season figure includes 51,867,063 pounds of baled tobacco averaging $165.97 per 100.

Resales totaled 20,471,658 pounds (20.3 percent) for the week and 60,100,337 (12.4 percent) for the season. Nonauction totals around 13 million pounds so far this year.

Grade averages held at $166 per 100 pounds for all marketings except for some of the very lowest quality.

Tobacco designated as nog averaged $151 per 100.

Last week's marketings consisted of a large percentage of mixed-stripped and less leaf. By group, flyings accounted for about 9 percent of volume, cutters 13, leaf 39, tips 8, mixed 22 and various nondescript about 9 percent.

The burley cooperatives received 4,091 pounds of tobacco last week and only 14,532 pounds for the season. Before Christmas last year, 964,492 pounds were placed under loan.

Tuberculosis Still A Problem In State

FRANKFORT — Although the case rate has steadily declined over the past 10 years, tuberculosis is not yet eradicated in Kentucky. The state ranks sixth in the nation in the incidence of newly diagnosed cases, according to Marty Huber, manager of the respiratory disease program of the Department for Human Resources.

In 1979, 27,669 new cases of tuberculosis were diagnosed nationally; 635 of those cases were in Kentucky. The department projects 800 new cases will be found in the state during 1980.

Kentucky's rate continues at approximately 50 percent above the national rate. Last year there were 18.0 cases per 100,000 Kentuckians, compared to 12.6 cases per 100,000 nationally.

Many factors contribute to the state's higher incidence rate, Huber said, among them the history of inadequate medical services in the eastern part of the state.

Routine skin testing on children entering school for the first time has been discontinued.

"Testing in the general population, particularly young children, we don't find infection. We are more effective testing a target area," she said.

"Detection is now primarily accomplished through 'contact investigation,'" she said. When a case is found, everyone who has come into close contact with the infected person is tested.

Attorney To Live In Airport Trailer

Meeting in a brief special session Friday afternoon in the office of Buddy Salyer, the Rowan County Air Board agreed to let John Pence, an Owenboro attorney planning to establish practice here, occupy the trailer at the airport.

Pence and his wife, who will soon be moving to Morehead where Pence will live in the "mobile home" rent-free in exchange for providing security and maintenance of the airport along with the volunteers who are presently providing those services.

In a letter to the board, Pence said he would pay all utility costs associated with the trailer and furnish a significant amount of labor for maintaining the airport.

He also agreed to permit transient aviators and passengers to use bathroom facilities when he is at home and agreed to serve as a security guard under terms to be agreed upon between himself and the board.

Pence also said he will make at least a weekly inspection of all lighting on the premises and replace bulbs as necessary.

Pence's occupancy was accepted on a motion by Harry Hosack which was amended by Paul Caudill to include a waiver by Pence on liability and workmen's compensation.

The motion and its amendment was seconded by Jerry Collins.

At the special meeting, in addition to Hosack, Caudill and Collins, was Steve Watts, acting chairman of the board.

Terry Anderson was absent.

1981 Changes For Business

Businesses in Kentucky will be facing several changes when the new year rolls around. Here are some that will affect the businessman's pocketbook:

- The minimum wage. The federal minimum wage will go from $3.10 an hour to $3.35 on Jan. 1. This is the final of a four-phase increase voted by Congress in 1977.
- Social Security. The amount of income subject to Social Security will go from $25,900 to $28,700 on Jan. 1. In addition the rate increases from 6.13 percent to 6.65 percent. Retirees between the ages of 65 and 71 can earn $5,500 or less without a reduction in benefit payments. Retirees under 65 may earn up to $4,000 without a reduction in benefits.
- Worker's compensation. The state-mandated reduction in worker's comp premiums expires in mid-July. The 27 percent reduction in premiums was a result of legislation passed by the 1980 General Assembly. Most observers predict that insurance companies will be filing for rate increases at the July expiration. Speculation is, according to the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, that increases will be from five to 10 percent.
- State unemployment insurance. In 1980 the General Assembly passed legislation increasing the employer's contribution to the fund. The Kentucky Chamber of Commerce says the best employers can hope for is a three percent increase in their annual contributions. The worst, it says, is that the annual contribution could go up by nine percent to 10 percent. The chamber notes that the state may have to borrow as much as $40 million from the federal government just to pay the first quarter obligations in 1981.

Food Prices Up 1.8% In December Survey

Food prices in Kentucky continued their relentless trek upward this month, registering a 1.8 percent gain since November, according to the Kentucky Farm Bureau marketbasket survey. It was the seventh increase in the past eight months.

The selected marketbasket of 40 staple food items cost an average $58.70 in the December survey, compared to $57.61 in November, and $52.21 in December 1979. The 12-month gain amounts to 12.4 percent.

Prices increased during December on food items over the entire food-group spectrum, including some cuts of beef and pork, poultry, eggs, ice cream, fresh and canned vegetables, cooking ingredients, including meal, flour and oil, and fresh vegetables.

Eggs have gone upward in price better than 20 cents a dozen since October, with half that jump measured in the current survey. Similar jumps were noted in last year's December figures, suggesting that seasonal factors, such as holiday cooking, may play a partial role.

No Drivers In Car Accident

There was an unusual automobile accident Saturday afternoon at Pine Ridge Apartments, due to the fact that no drivers were involved.

John T. Oliver, 180 Normandy Rd., Lexington, told police that he got out of his 1979 GMC van to go into the apartment building Saturday at 4 p.m., for a few minutes. Oliver said he left his engine running with the transmission in park.

While Oliver was inside, his van rolled backward and struck a 1972 Buick owned by Gladys Trent, 46 of Apt. 28, Pine Ridge Apts. Mrs. Trent, however, said she saw the collision from her apartment and her son went out and found the van in reverse gear.

Other food groupings showed less of a trend, however. Bacon went up in price while sausage came down, pot roast was higher though hamburger dropped, and whole fryers showed an increase as chicken breasts decreased.

Tompkinsville had the lowest local marketbasket average in December, the second time in three months, while Hazard was at the top. In all, volunteer surveyors checked supermarket prices in 25 Kentucky communities.

Those local figures were Tompkinsville, $3.40; Greensburg, $4.63; Frankfort, $5.00; Glasgow, $5.02; Hopkinsville, $5.09; Munfordville, $5.40; Sebree, $5.40; Elizabethtown, $6.42; Salyersville, $6.64; Covington, $7.89; Owensboro, $8.30; Gretna, $8.32; Murray, $8.45.

Henderson, $8.55; Shelbyville, $8.70; Edgewood, $9.21; Cynthiana, $9.10; London, $9.37; Georgetown, $9.78; Stanford, $9.90; Louisville, $2.03; Frankfort, $2.03; Lexington, $3.26; Shepherdsville, $4.40; and Hazard, $4.51.

For the first time in the 18 months that Farm Bureau has conducted the marketbasket survey, farm prices increased more than food prices. That gain in commodity prices was 1.9 percent on the December 2 report, compared to the 1.8 percent climb at the retail level.

Burley tobacco led the way among farm products, selling for an average $186 per hundred, $21 above the 1979 price level of $145. Other gainers were corn and soybeans, while most livestock, including hogs, beef cattle and feeder calves declined.

Overall, farm prices stood 11 percent higher this month than last December, while farm costs, including wages, fuel, feed, seed and fertilizer, were up 12 percentage points.

HOW IS THE BRAWNY BOSS DESIGNED?

HEATING CHAMBERS - The Brawny Boss puts out the most heat while using the least wood, because it uses the three hottest double wall chambers to transfer the heat - the bottom, the top, and the back. Most inserts use the back and the cooler sides only, resulting in poorer performance. The Brawny Boss sides are completely firebricked to prevent heat loss through the sides.

FOUR DRAFT CONTROLS - The Brawny Boss has two extra upper draft controls that aid in starting your fire quickly, provide a secondary air supply, and help prevent smoking.

SMOKE BAFFLE SYSTEM - The Brawny Boss smoke baffle is formed at a 27 degree angle to maximize heat production and economy before the exhaust goes up the chimney.

TEMPERED FIREBRICK LINING - The firebrick lining not only helps protect the metal, but it also insures an abundance of extra heat retention, even though the fire may be almost out.

FIRESCREEN AND DAMPER - An attractive snap-in fire screen is provided for burning with the doors open. The convenient damper control is used to maximize the heat output when burning with the door open.

011 In Memoriam

We think of you often, And we feel so alone. Sometimes we have problems, And wish we could share them with you. Because you were very wise, And you'd know what to do. At Christmas we'll all have you in our heart, But we know you'll be with us. Even though we're apart. We'll all be with Mom. And we'll help each other. For, Dad you know, We still have our great Mother. Sadly missed by all, The Hamilton Family p-103T

065 Legal Notice

LEGAL NOTICE
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
FEDERAL ENERGY REGULATORY COMMISSION
Saranac Energy Corporation
Project No. 3538-000
NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR PRELIMINARY PERMIT
November 21, 1980
Take notice that Saranac Energy Corporation (Applicant) filed on October 8, 1980, an application for preliminary permit (pursuant to the Federal Power Act, 16 U.S.C. §§ 791(a) - 825(f)) for the proposed Cave Run Project, FERC Project No. 3538 to be located at the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' Cave Run Lake Dam on the Licking River in Bath and Rowan Counties near Salt Lick and Farmers, Kentucky. The application is on file with the Commission and is available for public inspection. Correspondence with the Applicant should be directed to Mr. Charles Mirek, P.E., Cortland Assoc., Inc., 838 Arlington Drive, Tucker, Georgia 30084. Any person who wishes to file a response to this notice should read the entire notice and must comply with the requirements specified therein for the particular kind of response that person wishes to file.
Project Description - The proposed project would utilize an existing U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' dam and reservoir. Project No. 3538 would consist of: (1) a proposed powerhouse located on the eastern bank of the river; (2) proposed transmission lines; and (3) appurtenant facilities. Applicant estimates the capacity of the proposed project to be 8.2 MW, and the annual energy output to be 43 GWh.
Purpose of Contract Documents - Project No. 3538 would probably be sold to the Kentucky Utilities Company, Lexington, Kentucky.
Proposed Scope and Cost of Studies under Permit - Applicant has requested 36-month permits to prepare definitive project reports including preliminary design and economic feasibility studies, hydrological studies, environmental and social studies, and soil foundation data. The costs of the aforementioned activities along with obtaining agreements with other Federal, State and local agencies is estimated to be $100,000.
Purpose of Preliminary Permit - A preliminary permit does not authorize construction. A permit, if issued, gives the Permittee, during the term of the permit, the right of priority of application for license while the Permittee undertakes the necessary studies and examinations to determine the engineering, economic, and environmental feasibility of the proposed project, the market for the power, and all other information necessary for inclusion in an application for a license.
Agency Comments - Federal, State, and local agencies that receive this notice through direct mailing from the Commission are invited to submit comments on the project, not file comments for preliminary permit. (A copy of the application may be obtained directly from the Applicant.) Comments should be filed on or before the date relevant to the issuance of a permit consistent with the purpose of a permit as described in this notice. No other formal request for comments will be made. If an agency does not file comments within the time set below, it will be presumed to have no comments.
Competing Applications - This application for a competing application to Eastern States Energy Resources, Inc. Project No. 3421 on Cave Run Dam Project in Salt Lick and Farmers, Kentucky under 18 C.F.R. 4.33 (1980), and, therefore, no further competing applications or notices of intent to file a competing application will be accepted for filing.
Comments, Protests or Petitions to Intervene - Anyone desiring to be heard or to make any protest about this application should file a petition to intervene or a protest with the Commission, in accordance with the requirements of its Rules of Practice and Procedure, 18 C.F.R. 510 or 51.10 (1980) Comments or protests conforming to the procedures specified in 51.10 for protests. In determining the appropriate action to take, the Commission will consider all other comments filed, but a person who merely files a protest or comments does not become a party to the proceeding. To become a party or to participate in any hearing, a person must file a petition to intervene in accordance with the Commission's Rules. Any comments, protest or petition to intervene must be filed on or before January 1981.
Filing and Service of Responsive Documents - Any comments, protests, or petitions to intervene must bear in all capital letters the title "COMMENTS," "PROTEST" or "PETI-

Wreck Kills Bethel Woman

A 24-year-old Bethel native was pronounced dead at the scene of a one-car accident Friday, Dec. 19 at 2:30 p.m.

Debbie Kay Mitchell Dailey was alone in her car headed toward Owingsville on the Mt. Pleasant Road when she apparently lost control of her vehicle and struck a tree. Bath County Coroner Ritchie Hunt said. He attributed the death to massive internal injuries and a broken neck.

The body was taken to Richardson and Hunt Funeral Home where services were held Monday, Dec. 22 at 2 p.m. Burial was in the Longview Cemetery.

A graduate of Bath County High School, Mrs. Dailey is survived by her husband, Jody, a daughter, Tammy Jo, age 5; her parents, Nora McIntyre of Bethel and Harlan Mitchell of Nicholas County; one brother, Marty Mitchell, Bethel and one sister, Bonnie Sams, Nicholas County.

Terrorist Captured

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — Police arrested a leader of the leftist Front Line terrorist group Saturday after a brief shootout that left two officers and one passerby wounded.

Police said Marco Faggiano, 21, a Front Line leader, opened fire on them as they tried to arrest him and an unidentified woman in the center of the city.

The woman also was captured, but police did not immediately know if she was a member of the group.

Measures To Put A Stop To Hotel Fires

A national survey of fire officials shows there is technology available now to construct high-rise buildings with sufficient safeguards to prevent disasters like the one that occurred at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas.

If such a building existed, fire officials believe, it would have the following safety devices:

- Sprinkler system on each floor.
- Sophisticated, computerized control panel on the ground level to pinpoint a fire and even differentiate intensity and speed of development.
- The control panel and other backup power systems hooked up to neighboring power systems that automatically trip on in emergencies to prevent dead elevators, lighting and public address systems.

- Smoke and heat alarms in every room backed up by batteries that recharge themselves periodically.
- Public address system for management to advise guests of best evacuation routes, the nature of the fire and help maintain calm.
- All alarms connected to city fire stations.
- Safe areas - or cores - heavily shielded from fires with smoke evacuation devices.
- Windows that open, but not far enough to allow panicky residents to jump, although they could be shattered if necessary.

- Furnishings excluding plastics that create noxious and often fatal fumes. Only federal laws can now regulate use of such materials.
- Carpets and furnishings of fire resistant materials.
- Hall ashtrays of the wet sump variety that drown cigars and cigarettes.
- No dead-end hallways.
- Exit signs with battery-powered lights that come on as soon as electricity is cut off.
- Elevators equipped with heat-sensing devices that prevent opening at those areas already too hot to allow life.
- Many elevators now automatically go to a burning floor and open.
- Clear instructions in each room on what to do in a fire emergency, - geared to occupants of that room only.
- Emergency compartments in each room that sound an alarm when opened and contain inexpensive, four-hour, oxygen supply masks.
- Nylon rope ladders already attached that reach the ground level, capable of holding up to 20 persons at a time.
- Kitchen areas and areas where fires frequently begin to be isolated and shielded from the main residential area of a high-rise.
- Helipads on roofs with ready access for those forced to take this evacuation route.

The expense of such systems is great.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - As he oversees the transition from his Pacific Palisades home, President-elect Ronald Reagan is demonstrating he does not have the same devotion to detail that President Carter has displayed.

"You're not going to see Governor Reagan keeping the list of aides who want to play on the White House tennis court," said one Reagan insider. He referred to an early example of Carter's involvement in the minutiae of the presidency.

But Reagan's refusal to get bogged down in details goes beyond the tennis courts at the executive mansion.

"You're ahead of me. I haven't seen the schedule yet myself," he told reporters last week when asked about his first foreign trip as president-elect - a Jan. 5 visit with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo.

"I can't give you any details. You're just going to have to wait until I find out for myself how it was all arranged.

Reagan Doesn't Get Bugged Down In Details

Reagan said such a visit had been discussed but he did not realize the plans had been completed, despite aides' confirmation only a few hours earlier that the trip was set.

"He's totally cognizant of all the things that are happening," insisted top aide Edwin Meese when asked about Reagan's role in the transition.

But Reagan, who has been described as a "chairman of the board" kind of administrator, himself has said he prefers to rely on aides when they know the subject.

During his campaign, he was candid in declaring that he left it up to more knowledgeable politicians to work out campaign strategy, schedules and tactics.

At other times, it was left to aides to provide details on his stand on such complicated issues as the Chrysler bailout, which Reagan initially opposed.

The president-elect's recent public appearances have little to do with decisions that face him when he becomes America's 40th president in a month.

In a departure from usual transition procedure, he has declined to be present at the announcements of his Cabinet nominees.

Reporters get a chance to question him on his selections only on the run. Last week Reagan fielded queries as he went into and came out of his Beverly Hills barber shop, as he arrives at and left his Beverly Hills tailor and as he picked up some veal and beef at a meat board role. Sources say aides do the preliminary questioning and Reagan injects himself only when he is near a final decision.

"He's very strong on letting subordinates ferret out the information and he will synthesize it and make the decision," said former California Assembly speaker Robert Monagan. "But he just doesn't go away and give people total rein."

Locker in Thousand Oaks.

Meese, Reagan's designated Cabinet-level general counselor, said Reagan is "really running things" when he is not doing these chores.

"He's on the phone with us, he's making decisions, particularly as it relates to the Cabinet, which is the main thing now."

But even in Cabinet selection, Reagan prefers to adopt the chairman of the board role. Sources say aides do the preliminary questioning and Reagan injects himself only when he is near a final decision.

"He's very strong on letting subordinates ferret out the information and he will synthesize it and make the decision," said former California Assembly speaker Robert Monagan. "But he just doesn't go away and give people total rein."

PBS series renovates a Victorian mansion

The Bigelow House was dying. Slowly. Dying of neglect and vandalism. Dying of its own uniqueness and size in a modern world of economical, space-saving sameness. Worst of all, its death was going unnoticed by nearly everyone. The year was 1975.

In its prime, the H.H. Richardson-designed house was a showplace, a wonderful, rambling, shingle-covered, hilltop summer home for its owner, Dr. Henry Jacob Bigelow, and his family.

Time brought new families. Then the world began to change. Owners could no longer afford the luxury of such a marvelous time piece. In 1919 the house was purchased by the Peabody Home for Crippled Children. Fifty years passed. The Peabody Home closed. The City of Newton then leased the house and tried to keep it alive as a storage facility, then a nurses' residence. Finally, in 1973 it was all over. Dr. Bigelow's hilltop home was empty — boarded up, abandoned and slated for the wrecking ball.

Enter John Howard, chief scientist of the Air Force Geophysics Laboratory, and, as it happened, owner of a Victorian shingle-style house that he had restored. Believing that works deserved better than salvage yards, Dr. Howard set out to save it.

First he paid a visit to the house. But he wasn't ready for the sight that greeted him. Vandals had broken every window in the house. Toilets had been ripped out; fixtures stolen, banisters chainsawed; beer cans and broken glass strewn everywhere.

Howard knew that if the house was to survive, he would have to act fast. A colleague began working to have the house accepted by the National Register of Historic Places, knowing that once it was accepted, the house could not be torn down by the city without public approval.

At the same time Dr. Howard was busy on two fronts. First he set up the Newton Historic Preservation Association to keep a protective eye on the house. Then he dug into the Herculean task of cleaning up the battered property — sweeping, shoveling the litter from the rooms; hauling garbage to the dump; mowing the lawn; clearing brush; repairing windows; and chasing off the nighttime visitors who had claimed the property as their lovers' lane.

The house was safe. Useless, gutted, deteriorated — but safe. Still, the city of Newton was faced with the problem of what to do with it. Then Dr. Howard's newly formed Newton Historic Preservation Association offered to buy the house and restore it to usefulness.

A deal was struck. Howard and other members of the association made suggestions as to the best use of the house. But of all the proposals, the most appealing to the city and the association was a plan to convert the house into five luxury condominiums. In this way everyone benefitted. The Historic Preservation Association could renovate the landmark and preserve its architectural integrity, while the city of Newton could return the property to its tax rolls. No one even considered the possibility of making the Bigelow House a television star.

Call it coincidence or fate, but while Dr. Howard and his friends were trying to find a useful role for their orphaned Victorian house, Russell Morash, producer of the WGBH home-renovation series, "This Old House," was looking for a house to star in the series' second season. When Morash saw the house, he knew he'd found his star. Nearly 100 years after its architectural birth, the Bigelow House was about to be born again.

The 27-week rescue effort on the house begins Thursday, Jan. 1, on PBS. Viewers can follow along step by step through every aspect of the remodeling process, from plastering and painting to roofing, landscaping and tax assessment.

It's just got to make John Howard feel like smiling, knowing that this great forgotten house is about to be brought back to life, while millions of American viewers share in the process.

TV anti-listings

Chips, a new bi-monthly magazine devoted to the good life, as in "in the chips," obviously feels television is not part of high living. The magazine has prepared a feature that will debut in a future issue called "This You Can Miss!" The two-page insert will, on a steady basis, be devoted to a listing of six television shows Chips considers genuine clinkers. In order to help its readers miss these losers, Chips will list the wrong days, times and networks for the dirty half-dozen, thereby making watching them as difficult as possible.

Martha's story

Diane Ladd will star as the late Martha Mitchell in "Martha," to be filmed in the summer of 1981. Miss Ladd, currently starring as waitress Belle in CBS's "Alice," will also serve as executive producer of the docu-drama, which is based on the files of UPI correspondent Helen Thomas.

Hallmark moves

Three specials portraying the lives of notable men and women from history, literature and sports will be presented on PBS early in 1981 as part of the Hallmark "Hall of Fame," television's longest-running and most-honored dramatic series. This will mark the public television debut of the "Hall of Fame."

TV TATTLE

now in its 30th season on commercial television and scheduled to return next fall on CBS. The first presentation, "Mister Lincoln," will air Monday, Feb. 9, and features British actor Roy Dotrice in a one-man performance. The program was taped last year at Ford's Theater, Washington, D.C., where President Abraham Lincoln was fatally shot in 1865.

Stars also write

Ted Lange and Fred Grandy, starring, respectively, as Isaac Washington and Gopher Smith on ABC's "The Love Boat," have written two segments of the hour-long series for airing early in 1981. Lange, with his partner, Jean Ford, wrote "Isaac and the Mermaids," which has Isaac trying to break into show business. Starring with him are the Pointer Sisters and comedian Louis Nye. Grandy, along with his wife, Jan Gough Grandy, penned the "Black Sheep" script. In this episode, Isaac's unscrupulous Uncle Jessie (Demond Wilson) boards the ship and is an embarrassment to his nephew (Lange).

Mae West film

The late Mae West, the legendary sex goddess who for more than five decades entertained and tantalized moviegoers, will be the subject of an ABC motion picture for television now in development and planned for airing during the currently television season.
