Aligator Tafe Grows

By KATHY PARTIN
Staff Writer

Eastern Kentucky has illegal residents. Hailing from across the Florida border, young, "cute" alligators have found their way into homes as pets, then with the onset of age, aggression and appetite have been ousted into the creeks and rivers of an alien environment.

In the last issue of the News, a story reported the confiscation of one alligator, taken from an Elliott County home and being held in Minor Clark Fish Hatchery at Cave Run Lake, and told of rumors that there were more.

Apparently, the rumors were true, as six area persons may be charged with endangered species violations next month when a year-long investigation is completed, according to U.S. Fish and Wildlife Federal Agent Dan Pooler.

Pooler said conviction on the violations could result in fines of up to $20,000 and five years imprisonment. Several alligators are being held as evidence, including one at the Minor Clark Fish Hatchery near Cave Run Lake, but Pooler was not specific as to the number, preferring to wait until charges are made.

He did reveal alligators have been "released in creeks and rivers" throughout eastern Kentucky, south and east of Cincinnati. Owners of the illegal pets apparently tire of the uniqueness when the reptiles "start biting and have a voracious appetite," explained Pooler. "But people get attached to them as pets and don't want to destroy them... so they let them out. That's how we get endowed with these creatures."

"A fisherman catches an alligator and wonders, what next?" Pooler assures that the public should have no worries regarding alligators on the loose. He feels the Florida imports "couldn't survive a winter here." However, there have been conflicting reports, he said. Alligators between four and five feet long have been found, indicating they were either brought to the state already grown or they were able to survive the climate.

Lewis Kornman, district fisheries biologist at the Minor Clark Fish Hatchery, calls the alligator's chance of winter survival "slim to none."

"They're just not found this far north because they can't survive the winters. Possibly if someone let one go, a large one might be hardy enough, but it wouldn't live many winters."

When asked about the aggressiveness of the animal, Kornman said, "The ones I've been familiar with are: they hiss, bite and snap, and when you grab one end, they are pretty quick to reach around with the other." He pointed out, the said-blooded animals are sluggish in cool temperatures.

While alligators are illegal as pets, the Spectacled Caiman, another reptile, looks similar but is sold legally in pet stores. From South America, it is distinguished by its blue-green body and eyes and gray color marked with dark brown cross bands. In their youth, alligators are black with yellow bands.

Mayor Says Director's Job Was Never In Jeopardy, Despite Talk

By ROB DOLLAR
Staff Writer

City residents jamming the Carl Perkins Community Center Monday night expecting to witness a confrontation among members of the Morehead City Council about the job status of City Recreation Director Dan Stewart went home surprised to say the least.

The anticipated fight never occurred. Instead Stewart was verbally assured of his job by Mayor Crayton Jackson and several of the councilmen.

In the only action of the special meeting, council passed a motion to hire non-elected city officials. Among the group who were sworn in at the end of the meeting were City Attorney Buddy Salyer, Police Chief Fred Barnsdale, First Chief Bill Hankinson, City Clerk Diana Lindsey, City Administrator Don Evans, Finance Officer Phillip Tackett and A.T. McVeely, the city engineer and building inspector.

Included in the motion was a provision to give Chief Barnsdale McVeely and Evans a seven percent raise previously given to the other non-elected city officers last July.

Barnsdale will now make $17,655 per year as compared to his previous salary of $16,500. McVeely's salary will be hiked to $17,120 from $16,000 while Evans will receive $24,610 a year from the city compared to his previous pay of $23,000.

The meeting began on a startling note when Mayor Jackson announced the business on the agenda included only the hiring of non-elected city officers. He added that all other city employees would be notified or had been notified of their employment status through the proper channels. A stunned Councilman John Holbrook told the council that Councilman Randall Wells, while serving as acting mayor in Jackson's absence, had notified him the meeting would be for the rehiring of all city employees.

City Recreation Director Dan Stewart talks to a member of the audience Monday night after the conclusion of a special session of the Morehead City Council. Councilmen passed a motion to rehire the non-elected city officers, as well as assuring Stewart of his job. (Staff photo by Rob Dollar)

Holbrook claimed the notice did not specify that only the rehiring of non-elected officers would be discussed.

He added many of the crowd had attended the meeting because they were interested in any decision made concerning Dan Stewart and the recreation department.

"I would like for them to have some satisfaction tonight as to what will happen to the employees of the recreation department, whether they're hired, fired, not rehired," said Holbrook.

"As far as I know, nobody is going to be fired," responded Mayor Jackson, adding that "rumors" regarding possible firings had come to his attention only at the latter part of the previous week.

Holbrook contended that word of possible firings had been circulating among the councilmen, specifically from Councilman Wells.

"You told the council members, Mr. Wells, that the mayor had no intention of rehiring Becky Cunningham and Dan Stewart," Holbrook charged.

Wells promptly denied the charge and order was regained only after Mayor Jackson recommended the motion to rehire the non-elected city officers, with the designated seven percent pay raise for the police chief, city administrator and city building inspector. Wells made the motion, which was seconded by Councilman Jack Fry.

However, before it could be put on the floor for a vote, Holbrook made a motion to table it so that a closed session to discuss city personnel might first be considered. The motion was seconded by Councilman Marvin Moore.

The ensuing vote resulted in a tie and was broken when Mayor Jackson cast a dissenting vote, resulting in the previous motion going to the floor where it was adopted by a 2-2 vote. Holbrook and Councilman Jack Roe were the only members to cast "no" votes in order to show their dissatisfaction over the council's decision not to go into a closed session first.

Immediately after the "vote," Councilman Moore made a motion, seconded by Holbrook, for the council to go into a closed session to talk about the rehiring of all city personnel. This motion was also defeated when the mayor again broke a deadlock with a dissenting vote.

The third vote followed a heated debate in which Holbrook attempted to determine whether Stewart and all other city employees were to be rehired or not.

"Are all the city employees rehired, Dr. Wells? You seem to be the answering box here. Are they all rehired?"

Registrants Encounter Some Anti-Draft Sentiment

By ROB DOLLAR
Staff Writer

Local young men born in 1962 felt a draft from Washington this week that they do with the weather.

Monday marked the start of a draft registration period across the country in which the Selective Service began registering male teenagers born in 1962 for a possible military draft. The registration period ends on Saturday.

Reportedly, it is hoped the Selective Service will get the names and addresses of nearly all of the 1.9 million young men in this age bracket nationwide, when the necessary forms are completed at post offices across the land.

Morehead Postmaster Charlie Johns estimated that by early Wednesday morning, some 20 to 25 area young men had complied with the law and registered for the draft. He termed this a relatively "light" turnout.

"We are not keeping any records, so there is no way for the names and addresses of those who fail to register for the Selective Service system and we just bundle up the cards each day and send them in," said Johns.

"We were instructed specifically not to keep records," he added. While draft registration for young men born in 1962 will officially end on Saturday morning, a draft registration program will continue, however.

"The program continues and all young men that turn 18 (within 30 days prior to or after their 18th birthday) are required to register," said Johns, adding that it will be an on-going program that will begin Jan. 12.

Johns said the general attitude of those young men coming in to register this week is about the same as the attitudes of local males born in 1960 and 1961, who registered for the draft back in July.

Basically, the feedback we get is, "It's something I have to do and I'm going to do it," he commented.

In July, Johns said approximately 350 19- and 20-year-old males registered for the draft at the Morehead Post Office with very few problems. He said there were several occasions where individuals at the post office were handing out anti-draft leaflets.

"But, I believe on the whole they were ignored. It seems like the attitude is, 'It's my duty and I accept it,'" he said.

On Wednesday, a group of people braved the cold to stand outside of the post office to distribute literature on draft registration and voice their disapproval of the idea.

They identified themselves as George Patton of Elliott County and Terry McNamara, Sammie Lambert and Joan Bauer, all of Morehead.

Plage, McNamara and Lambert were there as "concerned" individuals. (Continued on page two)

Jewell Battson Dies In Hospital

By JOE LAMB

Bids for the construction of Rowan Senior High School probably will not be opened until mid-February, according to Superintendent John Brock.

Brock said this week that a combination of factors, mostly related to financing, would delay the scheduled Jan. 22 opening previously set by the Board of Education.

The new date will be set upon a recommendation from the architect at Monday night's regularly scheduled board meeting.

Brock said the need for a new date primarily was due to two things—changes in the plans to include two modified additive alternates and the currently high interest rates in the bond market, which will affect the sale of bonds to finance the project.

By delaying the bid opening until mid- or late-February, Brock said he believes the school system would be able to take advantage of a downward trend in interest rates. Contractors will be required to submit bids that are good for 60 days from the opening date.

The superintendent said interest rates still have "a distance to go, but they're moving in the right direction."

If bonds were sold this week, the interest rate likely would be above 10 percent. Brock said they need to be less than nine percent in order to build the kind of school that is planned.

With the sale of bonds, the School Board will have about $7.3 million in available financing for the project. But the system is having to cut every corner possible to bring the project under that amount.

Plans had included five additive alternates, but Brock said the state Department of Education has recommended that two more be put into the plans in case the bids are higher than expected.

The add alternates (things the board would like to include if it has the money are):

- Industrial arts department.
- Upstairs bleachers in the gymnasium. The upstairs bleachers would double the seating capacity from 1,500 to 3,000.
- Payment for the roads and parking lots.
- A wood-burning energy plant as a backup heating system that would burn scrap sawdust from local sawmills.

Student center.

A boys' dressing room for the gym.

The student center and the dressing room are the most recent add alternates.

Brock said the alternates are not prioritized and whether or not they are built will depend upon the cost of the alternate in the bids.

The new high school, planned for a site along KY 32 north of Morehead, also faces other problems related to water and sewer service.

For one thing, water pressure from Rowan Water Inc. lines in that area is inadequate to satisfy state fire marshal requirements for the school's sprinkler system.

Brock said he feels as though the School Board at least will be able to get water to the building from Rowan Water. He added that several other options are also being studied for getting adequate pressure for the sprinkler system.

Barker Seeks Reelection As Rowan County Coroner

(Paid political announcement. Paid by candidate.)

Jim Barker, coroner of Rowan County for the past three years, has officially announced his candidacy in the May Primary for re-election to the office for another four-year term.

Barker, running on the Democratic ticket, is a native and life-long resident of Rowan County where he resides at 1051 Christian Street with his wife, Karen Rae, and their two children, Kim and Kipp.

In announcing his candidacy, Barker stated:

"I have been completely impartial to our two funeral homes in Morehead and will continue to show no preference during my remaining months in office, and during another term if re-elected."

"The job of coroner is an important one. I feel, requiring dedication and availability for service 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

"My close working relationship with the Morehead Police Department, MSU Security, Rowan County Sheriff's Department, Kentucky State Police, St. Claire Medical Center and the Kentucky Medical Examiner System, has helped greatly during these past three years.

"I pledge to the residents and taxpayers of Rowan County, if re-elected as their coroner, to continue to serve them with dignity, honesty and efficiency."

In his final remarks, Barker said, "Your support of my campaign will be sincerely appreciated."

Barker, an emergency medical technician for four years, has been re-certified twice. He has attended and represented Rowan County at every Kentucky State Coroner's Conference and is a member of the board of directors of the Kentucky State Coroner's Association.

while Bauer was representing the National Lawyers Guild and its view on registration and the possible reinstatement of the draft.

The National Lawyers Guild is described in its literature as a "progressive legal organization of lawyers, law students, legal workers and jail house lawyers throughout the United States."

Bauer characterized the goal for the day as one of providing general information about registration, the possibility of deferments and alternatives to registration.

She added that a public service announcement pertaining to draft registration and "expressing disapproval would be aired over a local radio station in the near future."

Group members said they had encountered very few disturbances during their vigil. Plage said that one man had expressed disapproval of their actions and shouted a few angry words.

Another man asked for a pamphlet, looked at it and promptly tore it up before the group. He then verbally assaulted them with a barrage of obscenities.

Other than those two exceptions, the group claimed people were being courteous and accepting the literature.

"We want people to know about the draft laws and what their rights are," said Bauer.

Delta Gas Complaints Are Dropped By State

FRANKFORT—The state Energy Regulatory Commission has dismissed customer complaints filed against Delta Natural Gas of Winchester.

In dismissing the complaints, the commission said Delta is in compliance with its regulations on service practices. The company also has responded adequately to customer complaints about service, the commission said.

The complaints filed with the commission were the subject of a public hearing in December. At that time, Delta officials said most of the customer dissatisfaction resulted from misunderstandings.

The complaints were in four general areas: inadequate time for customers to pay bills before penalties are imposed; failure to maintain office hours for a full eight-hour day; refusal to implement an automatic bank-payment plan; and closing down the company computer before the end of the last working day of the week.

Fred White, of Morehead, owner of a mobile home park, was one of those to complain about the Owensville office. White had said that he had to travel to Owensville, a distance of more than 20 miles, to transact any business with the office and that he could not do so with Delta service men who had to be in Morehead regardless.

During the December hearing, Delta said it had previously closed its branches from noon until 12:30 p.m. daily. The condition now exists in four of its 10 branch offices where only one cashier is employed.

Since the complaints were first made, Delta has expanded the amount of time available for a customer to pay his bill from 10 to 15 days before a penalty charge is assessed.

The commission said only two requests for the "automatic bank payment plan had been received by the company, not enough to warrant the service.

At the hearing Delta had denied that it shut down its computer before the end of any working day.

Customers who live in counties outside the company's branch office are also permitted to call collect about service or account problems.

Ousley Seeks Reelection As District 1 Magistrate

(Paid political announcement. Paid by candidate.)

Paul Ousley, a Morehead businessman and farmer, has announced that he is a candidate on the Democratic ticket in the May primary for reelection as magistrate of District 1, comprised of precincts 10, North Morehead; 6, Brushy; 1, Courthouse; 2, Lower Farmers; 17, Pine Hills; and 16, Fleming.

A graduate of Morehead State University, Ousley is a former Rowan County High School football coach and teacher for 14 years, was elected to two terms on the Morehead City Council; served on the Police Review Board; and was recognized by the Jaycees in 1968 as Rowan County's Outstanding Young Man.

In announcing his candidacy, Ousley said:

"I believe that the office of magistrate is a very important position in the county government, especially in light of the growth that Rowan County should be experiencing in the next few years."

"As a businessman and a farmer, I believe that I can represent all of the people of Rowan County in an efficient and responsible manner."

He continued: "I have enjoyed serving the people of this county for the last four years and I would appreciate their support in helping me continue in office."

Ousley, a member of the United Methodist Church, is married to the former Gail Crosthwaite, and they are the parents of three daughters, Jana, Lisa and Beth.

I have over 29 years of office experience in budget preparation, grant application, correspondence preparation and record keeping. I offer mature, honest and responsible leadership of our county. Some of my concerns if elected would be:

- Attract new industry.

Kaski Hamm, formerly of Gwinon, Mich. I have three children: John Paul, dispatcher with the Morehead Police Department, Robert Gene, 17, a senior at Rowan County High School, and Mary Beth, 16, a junior at Rowan County High School.

I am employed by the Board of Directors of the Morehead Rowan Ambulance Service, Incorporated, as director of service. I have worked in this capacity since the ambulance service was established in 1972. I have directed the ambulance service from a one-vehicle, in-county service to a four conforming vehicle service capable of saving and sustaining life until a medical facility is reached.

I am a veteran of both the Korean and the Vietnam wars, having served 20 years in the United States Air Force. I am a member of Post 126 of the American Legion, where I have served six years as service officer. I also have served three years as 9th District Service Officer. sportation Consumer specialist and with the Gateway Area Development District in Owensville.

I am married to the former Betty Lewis of Rowan County. We have two sons, Mark, 17, and Michael, 14.

If elected, I will insure that the office of circuit court clerk is responsive to your needs and will provide you with quality, friendly service.

Holbrook replied that he was aware of this fact. "Are all the city employees rehired?" he reiterated.

"Ask the mayor," replied Wells. "Are they, mayor?" asked Holbrook.

"The other city employees are on continual contracts and unless they are notified that they are not rehired within the next week—they're rehired," answered Jackson.

After the motion for the closed session was defeated, Councilman Craley attempted to ease the suspicions of those individuals concerned with Stewart's job status.

Last Friday, The Morehead News had published a story indicating that Stewart and some council members felt as though the recreation director's job might be in jeopardy. Mayor Jackson was out of town and could not be contacted for a statement on his position about Stewart's future.

"I was mortified when I came home and saw what was in the paper," Jackson told a reporter after the meeting.

Fiscal Court Discusses Courthouse Restoration

By ALICE AKIN
Staff Writer

With the Martindale Building project apparently going smoothly, Rowan Fiscal Court yesterday turned its attention to restoration of the old courthouses.

The court authorized County Attorney John Cox to work with the Appalachian Development Center at Morehead State University in seeking grants and revenue for the restoration of the structure.

Three representatives from the ADC attended the meeting and will serve on a committee with Cox on the project.

They are James Gifford, Appalachian Studies Director; Shirley Hamilton, Community Services Director; and Betty Marshall, Editorial Assistant.

In addition, Mrs. Ronald Tucker, of Lakeview Heights, will also serve on the committee.

Cox said that he had previously written the ADC to see if it were interested in assisting in the project.

"We appreciate all the help we can get from any organization," Cox said. Cox said that the ADC was the "ideal" agency to help with the exploration of funding and securing revenue for the restoration.

Cox noted that work on the Martindale Building is progressing and that it is possible the county offices will be able to move into the judicial facility this spring.

In other business during its 90-minute session, the court decided to review four applications for the position of county finance director and interview the applicants next Thursday.

The decision to recess until next week on the hiring and interviewing of a director was made because Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery and Magistrate Roy Plank were both absent from yesterday's meeting and the magistrates (all members of the court should be present to vote on personnel matters).

Judge Flannery was in Lexington for a medical check-up and Plank is ill and a patient in St. Claire Medical Center.)

Those applying for the position — treated to handle the county's new payroll tax — are:

Edward Smith Jr., Phillip M. Tackett, Charles F. Stansbury, Bill Morehead, and Kelley Galloway and Company, a firm based in Ashland but with local office here.

In other matters, the court directed Mrs. Tucker, who also appeared before the court as a trustee of the City of Lakeview Heights, to submit a written claim on expenditures proposed for fire protection for the sixth class city.

The court has $3,000 budgeted for the city for fire protection and told Mrs. Tucker it would be released upon receipt of the written claim.

The court also:

Agreed to pay all monthly claims with the exception of a $500 bill from the Morehead Utility Plant Board which was submitted for the board's making a computer change to accommodate withholding of the county payroll tax. The court rejected the bill and ordered that it be returned to the board.

Directed County Treasurer Pruda

Shay to place $45,658 on certificate deposits for six months at the People's Bank.

Authorized County Clerk Jean Bailey to notify Harp Enterprises, Lexington, for protective maintenance and necessary repairs on all voting machines.

Voted to pay dog warden Brooks Karkirk for one week's vacation in lieu of taking time off.

Transferred $1,250 from the miscellaneous current expense account for office materials and supplies for the county attorney's office.

Paul Onley, acting as chairman of the meeting in Judge Flannery's absence, pointed out to the magistrates that the bill for gravel for December was $10,378.

The magistrates agreed to pay the bill rather than hold it over to avoid interest payments.

Onley indicated, however, that he intended to ask Flannery about the gravel, particularly as to the locations where it was being placed.

is to build a small lake in a wooded area at the back of the school's property that would include a pump large enough to assure pressure for the sprinkler system. Brock said the lake could be used as a biological study center for students and would also irrigate the school grounds.

Another option would be to build an outdoor swimming pool that would include a pump for the sprinkler system.

Brock said he favors those options over two others of building either an elevated water storage tank or a low profile water tank on a hill near the school. The superintendent said the tanks would be expensive and would serve no other useful purpose after the school was able to get adequate water pressure from the water company.

The superintendent said, however, that it is too early for him to make a recommendation to the board about a solution to the water problem.

Another option would be to build a school site still open. The Morehead Utility Plant Board has a line in the area but it will be expensive for the School Board to extend its own lines to reach it.

In addition, some questions have arisen as to whether or not the board can legally extend a sewage line across private property, something it would have to do to reach the Plant Board line near Bluestone-Bratton Branch Road.

Brock said this week that both the city and county governments were working with the board to help solve the problem.

Not Now

When the noontime whistle blew on the construction site, Schuck limped out for lunch. "Why the limp?" his foreman asked. "You got a sore foot!" "No, there's a nail in my shoe," the workman moaned. "Why don't you take it out?" "Not on my lunch hour!" Schuck said indignantly.

Advance Planning Is Key To Winter Travel

If you must travel during winter storms, make sure your vehicle is in good condition, properly serviced and equipped with chains or snow tires, said Wilbur R. Buntin Jr., executive director of the Kentucky Disaster and Emergency Service.

Plan your travel by selecting primary and secondary routes. "Make sure someone knows where you are going, your approximate schedule and your estimated time of arrival," he said.

Travel by daylight and use major highways as much as possible and avoid traveling alone, Buntin advises. If possible, travel in convoy with another vehicle or vehicles. Keep the car radio on for weather information and advisories.

Keep your gasoline tank full to help keep water out of the tank and fuel line and to provide for additional fuel needs. Always fill your tank before entering open country, even if only for a short distance, Buntin said.

Have emergency winter storm supplies in your car, such as a container of sand, a shovel, a windshield scraper, battery booster cables, a tow chain or rope and a set of tire chains. It is also a good idea to keep a flashlight and transistor radio with extra batteries and a first aid kit with a pocket knife and coins for emergency telephone calls.

A CB radio is a good investment, particularly if you travel alone or extensively, he added. Also helpful are a compass, road maps and tools such as pliers, a screwdriver and an adjustable wrench.

Have a high-calorie, non-perishable food supply, such as canned nuts, dried fruit or hard candy. Also keep a supply of matches and candles, paper towels and facial tissues, extra clothing and blankets or sleeping bags, Buntin said.

Drive carefully and defensively; do not try to save time by traveling faster than road and weather conditions permit, Buntin said.

Trapped In Your Car

The first thing to remember if you are in trouble is to stay calm. If your car breaks down during a storm or if you become stalled or lost, don't panic.

If you are on a well-traveled road, indicate you are in trouble by turning on your flashing lights. Raising the hood of your car or hanging a cloth from the radio aerial or car window. They stay in your car and wait for help to arrive.

"Wherever you are, if there is no house or other source of help in sight, do not leave your car to search for assistance, you may become confused or lost," Buntin warns.

"Disorientation comes quickly in blowing and drifting snow. You are more likely to be found in your car and will at least be sheltered there."

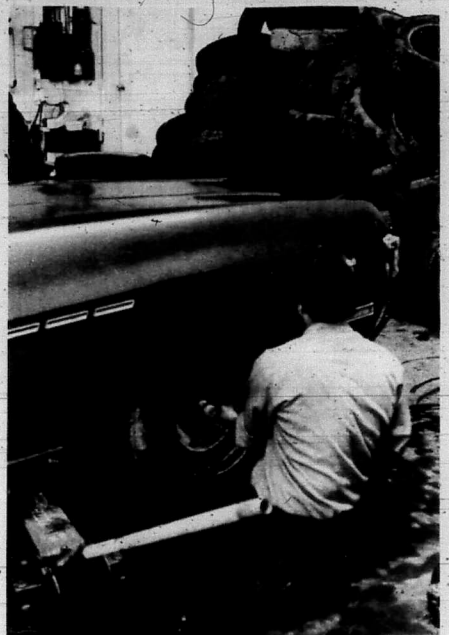

Keep downwind window slightly open for fresh air. Freezing rain, wet snow and wind-driven snow can completely seal the passenger compartment. Run the engine and heater sparingly, and only with a downwind window open for ventilation, Buntin said. Make sure snow does not block the exhaust pipe.

"Don't stay in one position too long."

Buntin said. "Exercise by clapping hands and moving arms and legs vigorously from time to time. But don't overdo it. Exercise warms you, but it also increases body heat loss."

If more than one person is in the car, be sure that at least one person is awake at all times. If alone, stay awake as long as possible. Turn on the dome light at night to make your car more visible to rescue crews.

Because winter travel can be more hazardous than at any other time of the year, "use the above precautions to help assure your safe arrival," Buntin said.

Perry Sloan of the Caudill Tire Company prepares to mount snow tires onto the car of a weather-conscious motorist. A Tuesday night snowfall sent some area residents to local tire dealers in search of the safety that snow tires can bring. (Staff photo by Rob Dollar)

Despite The Snow, Tire Sales Aren't Hectic

The first major snowfall of the winter Tuesday night left many city tire dealers scratching their heads Wednesday morning.

While snow tires were selling — they weren't selling at the normal rate — rate that of a few inches of snow on the ground can be responsible for.

"Today surprised me — I figured everyone would want them on," said Foley McKinney of Foley's Tire Center on East Main Street.

McKinney estimated that close to 50 new snow tires were mounted on Wednesday, making only an "average day."

He added that during the past few months, only 20-25 snow tires have been sold by the business. Apparently, many people have been coming to him to have studs put on their tires in lieu of new snow tires or chains.

With a little over two months of winter left, McKinney predicted that more people will probably opt to have their tires recapped for the winter weather instead of buying new snow tires.

Bill Hough of the Caudill Tire Company reported that by 10 a.m. Wednesday, only 20 to 30 new snow tires had been sold and mounted for customers.

He noted, though, that this selling rate would certainly not endanger any company selling record. By the afternoon the pace at Caudill's had picked up, with over 60 tires being sold.

According to Hough, after one snowfall last year, 180 new snow tires were sold during a day in which close to a total of 300 snow tires were mounted on cars for weather-worried motorists.

"Today won't be like that," said Hough Wednesday morning. A bright morning sun melting much of the snow on roadways was one possible explanation Hough had for the unusual "drought" of snow tire customers.

Even with the off day, however, Hough said Caudill Tire Company has been doing a "steady" business of selling snow tires since September. People have been buying them and waiting for the snow to fall, before having them mounted, he said.

But, despite steady sales and normal sales to other dealers in the area, Hough said the tire business does rely on the weather and old man winter in particular to boost sales.

"It really makes a big difference — the weather does," he said, adding, "This time of year makes all the difference in the world."

Field Enterprises, Inc. Field Newspaper Syndicate

Dear Ann Landers: During the recent political season many of your readers were subjected to a radio commercial in which the words "bull" was used twice. This offered a great number of people. The radio station where I work was flooded with calls.

We tried to explain to an outraged public that the FCC (Federal Communications Commission) has decreed that there will be no censoring, no editing and no rejection of commercials from politicians — regardless of content. This means if some kook wants to yell the filthiest words he can think of over and over for 30 seconds, the FCC says he must be permitted to do it. TV is also subject to this ruling, so if some nut wants to show 30 seconds of the wildest pornography, the law is on his side.

Your business readers might like to know that politicians get the lowest rates possible, whether they buy time for one commercial or a thousand. Commercial customers, on the other hand, must buy a thousand to get the same rate.

If your readers are interested in keeping filth off the airwaves in the next election, they should write to their congressman and protest. Otherwise, they should keep quiet if someone decides to flash a picture of genitals on TV during a future campaign.

Disgusted in Bay City, Mich.

Dear Bay City: I checked with Newton Minow, a Chicago attorney and former head of the FCC. He said, "Yes, it is true. The law forbids any censorship of a political broadcast. Congress passed this law a year ago."

On balance, I believe it is a good law.

To edit political messages would be a violation of the First Amendment. In exchange for freedom of speech I am willing to listen to a little barnyard language.

Did you notice that the candidate who used the offensive word twice in his commercial didn't get many votes? The shock treatment, or whatever he was after, didn't work. In fact, it distracted the listener from the message and was self-defeating.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to comment on the letter from the woman who signed herself, "One Less Scandal." She was feeling pretty good about being a "tested marketable item."

First, she said the proposition came from her husband's best friend. Best friend, huh? Second, she said some wives remain faithful because they have never had an appealing offer. Appealing offer? Huh? Then she went on to say she knows scandal can tear families apart. True. Now it is time she took a good look at the rat who asked her to have an affair. Why feel complimented when a man like that wants to go to bed with you? He is nobody's friend and couldn't care less about a scandal. That kind never does. He just wants what he wants.

There is no way to keep low-down skunks from asking, but how a sensible woman can consider a cheap pitch like that a compliment is beyond me. — 20-20.

Dear 20-20: Thank you for shaking the molars of that dumbbell who was flattered out of her gourd because her husband's best friend invited her to go horizontal. A proposition like that doesn't mean the woman is considered desirable — it just means he thinks she is available.

Conservation Officer Assigned To Rowan

Mike Gilliam, Carter County native who attended Breckinridge Training School and Morehead State, replaced Marland Crawford as conservation officer for Rowan County Jan. 1.

Gilliam had been conservation officer in Carter County since 1972. One advantage to his new assignment, he says, is being "more centrally located." He explains that in his previous job, his home/office was very close to the Rowan-Carter border, making it difficult to answer calls to the other end of the county.

He and his wife, Shirley, owner of The Magic Mirror in Morehead, are living with her father, Chalmers Davis, until their home in Oakdale Subdivision is completed.

Gilliam describes Morehead as "more like home." He attended MSU from 1964-69, majoring in business and geography. Then worked as a construction engineer at the Ashland Department of Highways. There, he ran the preliminary line for I-64, prior to employment in Carter County.

Entering work with the Department of Fish and Wildlife because of his enjoyment of the outdoors, the avid grouse hunter's ambition is "to have something here for future generations."

An apparent pet concern of his is the spotlighting of deer. Commissioned by the U.S. Department of Interior as a Federal U.S. Deputy Game Warden, Gilliam has already spent many nights in search for such hunters.

"It's really not a job, it's a way of life," he remarked. "It's 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

If your readers are interested in keeping filth off the airwaves in the next election, they should write to their congressman and protest. Otherwise, they should keep quiet if someone decides to flash a picture of genitals on TV during a future campaign. — Disgusted in Bay City, Mich.

Dear Bay City: I checked with Newton Minow, a Chicago attorney and former head of the FCC. He said, "Yes, it is true. The law forbids any censorship of a political broadcast. Congress passed this law a year ago."

On balance, I believe it is a good law.

To edit political messages would be a violation of the First Amendment. In exchange for freedom of speech I am willing to listen to a little barnyard language.

Did you notice that the candidate who used the offensive word twice in his commercial didn't get many votes? The shock treatment, or whatever he was after, didn't work. In fact, it distracted the listener from the message and was self-defeating.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to comment on the letter from the woman who signed herself, "One Less Scandal." She was feeling pretty good about being a "tested marketable item."

First, she said the proposition came from her husband's best friend. Best friend, huh? Second, she said some wives remain faithful because they have never had an appealing offer. Appealing offer? Huh? Then she went on to say she knows scandal can tear families apart. True. Now it is time she took a good look at the rat who asked her to have an affair. Why feel complimented when a man like that wants to go to bed with you? He is nobody's friend and couldn't care less about a scandal. That kind never does. He just wants what he wants.

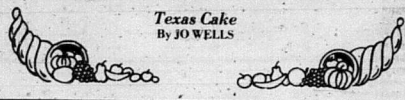

There is no way to keep low-down skunks from asking, but how a sensible woman can consider a cheap pitch like that a compliment is beyond me. — 20-20.

Dear 20-20: Thank you for shaking the molars of that dumbbell who was flattered out of her gourd because her husband's best friend invited her to go horizontal. A proposition like that doesn't mean the woman is considered desirable — it just means he thinks she is available.

Conservation Officer Assigned To Rowan

Mike Gilliam, Carter County native who attended Breckinridge Training School and Morehead State, replaced Marland Crawford as conservation officer for Rowan County Jan. 1.

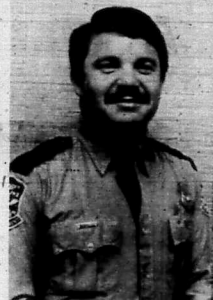

Gilliam had been conservation officer in Carter County since 1972. One advantage to his new assignment, he says, is being "more centrally located." He explains that in his previous job, his home/office was very close to the Rowan-Carter border, making it difficult to answer calls to the other end of the county.

He and his wife, Shirley, owner of The Magic Mirror in Morehead, are living with her father, Chalmers Davis, until their home in Oakdale Subdivision is completed.

Gilliam describes Morehead as "more like home." He attended MSU from 1964-69, majoring in business and geography, then worked as a construction engineer at the Ashland Department of Highways. There, he ran the preliminary line for I-64, prior to employment in Carter County.

Entering work with the Department of Fish and Wildlife because of his enjoyment of the outdoors, the avid grouse hunter's ambition is "to have something here for future generations."

An apparent pet concern of his is the spotlighting of deer. Commissioned by the U.S. Department of Interior as a Federal U.S. Deputy Game Warden, Gilliam has already spent many nights in search for such hunters.

Mike Gilliam

"It's really not a job, it's a way of life," he remarked. "It's 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

Motions Denied In Stamper-Link Trial

LEXINGTON — A federal judge Wednesday denied motions to keep the list of prospective jurors secret and sequester the jury in the Stamper-Link trial, scheduled to begin Feb. 9.

Federal prosecutors Robert G. Andary and Joseph M. Lawless made the motions last week, arguing that the jury be sequestered because of the publicity the trial will generate.

But U.S. District Judge Bernard T. Moynahan denied the motions. He said the trial will probably last at least two months and the court would create monumental problems for itself by sequestering the jury.

"I can talk until dark about the problems," Moynahan said. "When you tell a courtroom full of jurors that they're going to be sequestered for one or two months or longer, the first thing you're going to lose is those jurors who are self-employed."

He added that many ordinary workers, as well as anyone in poor health or with small children, would be unable to serve.

"It's probably going to be hard to get a jury in this case anyway," Moynahan added.

However, Moynahan said he would grant the motion if the prosecutors could prove that sequestering was necessary.

Andary, arguing for the prosecution's motions, conceded that sealing the list of jurors would make it harder to pick a jury because neither side could investigate backgrounds in advance.

But, he said, the hardship would be "a shared disadvantage" for both sides.

The defendants in the case are state Sen. Woodrow Stamper, D-West Liberty, and Lexington real-estate broker Robert F. Link — were indicted on July 25 by a special federal grand jury in Lexington, on extortion, conspiracy and mail-fraud charges relating to the state's 1972 purchase of the Hidden Valley resort in Powell County.

Arguing against the motions, one of Stamper's attorneys, William E. Johnson, of Frankfort, said "normal procedures of the court" would be sufficient to protect the defendants' rights to a fair trial.

He contended that the prosecutors were trying to "make a mountain out of a molehill" by raising Stamper's alleged improper contact to relatives and employers of prospective jurors.

And he noted that no charges were filed against Stamper "because there just wasn't any case there."

The trial began as originally set on Nov. 17 with jury selection. The next day, however, after a closed hearing, Judge Moynahan postponed it until Feb. 9.

It was subsequently revealed that the postponement resulted from Stamper's alleged improper contact with relatives and employers of prospective jurors.

Sam Holbrook tossed in 16 points Tuesday night for University Breckinridge against Elliott Co. Elliott Co. won, 63-51. (Photo by Kevin White)

Elliott Co. Downs Breckinridge, 63-51

By KURT PICKERING
Sports Staff Writer

Standout forward Steve Gillum poured in 37 points Tuesday night to lead the Elliott County Lions to a 63-51 victory over the University Breckinridge Eagles. It was both an Eastern Kentucky Conference and Foothills Conference game for the two rivals, who were meeting for the third time this season. Elliott County swept all three of those meetings. Oddly enough, the win at Wetherby Gym Tuesday was by a wider margin than the margins of the other two games, both played in Sandy Hook, combined. The Lions won an FHC tournament game over Breck 50-48 in overtime, then took a 37-24 regular season decision.

Tuesday's game was about as close most of the way. The clubs were tied at 27 when the halftime horn sounded, and the difference was still only four points, 46-42 Lions, after three quarters. But the winners won the final frame 17-9 to make the final score look like a rout. Gillum was hitting well with his outside jump shot, as usual, but was also successful in consistently getting open underneath. The double threat accounted for his scoring spree. No one has scored more points in a game against Breck this season.

Breck forward Joe Magrane saw a long streak snapped and only narrowly extended another. Magrane led his team in scoring for the 24th straight. Sam Holbrook by only one. The streak that ended was his string of consecutive games with 20 or more points, stopped at 11. The 6'3" junior made a run at keeping the streak alive after a low scoring first half, but fell short when he fouled out late in the fourth quarter. Magrane's streak, however, was in trouble early when he scored only five first-half points.

It was the opposite for Holbrook, who ran up 14 points by intermission but could add only two after that.

Magrane continued to do his job on the boards, however, collecting 15 of Breck's 25 rebounds. Elliott County out-rebounded the losers by collecting 31. Mitton Stamper paced the Lions in that department with 13, and might have had more if he hadn't sat out much of the second half with fouls.

Elliott County has been around the 500 figure all season, and Tuesday's win allowed them to inch above the break-even point at 7-6 overall. The Lions now carry 300 marks in both conferences, 3-3 in the EKC and 2-2 in the FHC. Breck slipped to 4-11 in losing its second straight. The Eagles are now 0-7 in the EKC and 1-4 in the FHC. UBS hosts Raceland tonight. The Rams are 5-4.

Lady Eaglets Defeat Magoffin Co., 39-33

It's the same season but a new year for the University Breckinridge Lady Eaglets, who shot like a new team from the field in defeating Magoffin County 39-33 Monday night at Wetherby Gym. Breck, which hit 11 and 26 percent from the floor in its last two games before the Christmas break, canned 43 percent of its 39 shots against the Lady Hornets.

For the second time this season, the Lady Eaglets stopped a losing streak at five. Breck dropped its first five games before blasting Lewis County in the Eastern Kentucky Conference tournament, then lost five more before Monday's win.

All during the second streak, coach Jim Austin had said that his girls were running good offensive patterns and taking good shots, but still missing. Austin attributed the misses up to the use of a new but similar pattern.

"This pattern has more movement in it," Austin said. "We were standing still sometimes in the other one, and that was a reason for some of our poor shooting."

Whatever the reasons, the shooting worked up enough to provide enough offense for the victory. Austin said another benefit of the new pattern is that it gets Sandy Carter open more often, and that seems to be a wise move to make. Carter pumped in 24 points to lead all scorers. Carter also led the Eaglets in rebounds with nine.

Valerie Coldiron was the top Lady Hornet scorer. Included in her 20 points were 10 free throws, out of 15 tries. In fact, more than half the Magoffin County scoring was done from the charity stripe. Of their 33 points, the Lady Hornets collected 17 out of 36 from the stripe.

Defensively, Breck used what Austin called "a 1-2 sagging zone" to force Magoffin to shoot from the outside. It worked well enough to hold the Lady Hornets to an invisible 15 percent from the field. Magoffin County hit just eight field goals out of 53 attempts.

Magoffin did outscore Breck. Led by Coldiron's 10, the Lady Hornets yanked down 24 missed shots, compared with 22 by Breck.

The Lady Eaglets, now 2-10, evened their Foothills Conference record at 1-1. Magoffin County record slipped to 5-9. Breck hosts Raceland Monday.

Sandy Carter led the Breck girls to their second victory of the season Monday night by pouring in 24 points and grabbing nine rebounds. Breck defeated Magoffin Co., 39-33. (Photo by Kevin White)

Mickey Wells' Punishment Amounts To Paid Vacation

One of the reasons that Morehead State justifies spending time, effort and money dispensing information about its athletic teams to hundreds of newspapers, small and large across the state is that often it is through sports that young people first hear about MSU. The reasoning is they will start following one or more of the programs and then consider MSU when deciding where to go to college.

Unfortunately for the university, most of the ink which appeared in editorial and sports pages during the past week were, at best, less than positive.

When writing last Saturday about the Mickey Wells' incident, which took place on New Year's Day, when the Lady Eagles coach flattened referee Joe Pike with a punch to the jaw, The Lexington Herald said, "Wells seemed honestly appalled at his own action. But his regret does not exonerate him. It only illustrates how a decent man can get caught up in the atmosphere that stresses winning above all else."

Sports Commentary

By Mark Perkins

Late Monday afternoon, a full 97 hours after the incident and after several meetings, MSU officials decided to suspend Mickey Wells for the next six games and placed the 39-year-old coach, now in his sixth season at Morehead, on indefinite probation.

On Wednesday the Herald wrote in the same editorial space, "Wells received what amounted to a slap on the wrist for slugging the referee."

The Herald was correct in their assessment of Wells' punishment. At the very least, the suspension should have been without pay, and it shouldn't have taken so long to render the decision. MSU President Morris Norfleet noted in his statement that Wells would continue in his position as director of intramurals, as well he should, but he will also receive full compensation for his Lady Eagle coaching duties during the 20-day suspension. Wells' punishment amounts to a paid coaching vacation for hitting a referee.

Perhaps MSU officials should look to Eagle basketball coach Wayne Martin as an example of how to handle a disciplinary problem. Last Saturday Albert Spencer, a 6-9, 230 pound nose, landed a punch to Middle Tennessee's Mike Frost head and broke his nose.

Martin swiftly dismissed Spencer from the team, saying, "I do not condone, nor will I ignore such action. I am not a hypocrite."

During the 1979-80 season two such flagrant fouls were committed by an opponent against one of my players. At that time I was outspoken about my feelings concerning such action. That player was allowed to continue playing following both incidents, and neither the Ohio Valley Conference or the team involved took any further action. There was jostling, pushing and shoving that occurred within the framework of aggressive play, but that offers no justification for the flagrant foul that was committed."

Near the end of the first semester Martin swiftly suspended two of his basketball players after he learned they had broken a team rule. As any parent of a young child will admit, when it comes to discipline, procrastination doesn't help.

When considering disciplinary action, for whatever reasons, not just sports, MSU officials should carefully consider how their actions will look in the eyes of youngsters and their parents who look up to the institution.

Graham Extends Football Training Into Winter Months

It used to be high school football players started thinking about the sport around spring time.

"That's not the case anymore. The successful programs, the ones that are able to come up with the extra effort late in the game and season, work during the winter.

The work doesn't consist of blocking and running pass patterns, but rather developing the body through lifting weights.

For three days a week since the end of the regular season, the 26 Rowan County football players who will return to the gridiron next year and who aren't involved in basketball, put in a solid workout in the school's weightroom.

"A good football player shouldn't have any body fat," says Rowan County head football coach Ray Graham. "What we are trying to do is develop a leaner, stronger and faster player," he said.

Graham intends to accomplish that through a series of special weightlifting exercises, each designed to improve different muscles that football players use during the course of a game.

For example players spend time developing their neck muscles on a Nautilus Four-Way neck machine that enables a person to exercise their neck muscles in four different directions.

Players take turns on each piece of equipment and spend about 10 minutes at each station.

The exercises Graham puts his players through stress a full range of motion, all designed to increase flexibility.

In addition to just lifting weights, the players also run and jump rope to increase their speed and coordination.

"The only way to develop a consistent winner in football is to keep your athletes active all year long. A team that is stronger than its opponents will often times be better, and that can only be done through proper strength technique," Graham said.

Graham is stressing goals for players to try and reach.

For example Graham has set up an "Iron Man" test, which in his own words "is a 'very grueling and challenging' test."

To become an Iron Man, a player must, squat one and one-third his body weight; bench press 75 pounds above his weight; clean his body weight; military press three quarters of his body weight 10 times; curl one-half his weight five times; do 15 dips for linemen and 20 for backs; 100 correct sit-ups; and backs must run a mile under six minutes.

Graham is planning some activities that he hopes will allow him to purchase additional weightlifting equipment. Later this year he plans to have a Lift-A-Tion, where people sponsor an athlete to lift so many pounds in the bench press and dead lift, combined. For example a penny a pound.

This Thursday, the Rowan County football players will compete in weightlifting competition against Morgan Co.

Three athletes in nine weight divisions from each school will both bench and dead lift for points, and the school with the most points will win.

Graham is giving out T-shirts to anyone who can reach 1,000 pounds combined in the bench press, squat lift and dead lift.

The only player to have accomplished that thus far is Marvin Adkins, who bench pressed 220, squat lifted 406, and dead lifted 441.

There aren't any players who have completed the requirements for Iron Man, but the four that are leading are: Brian Easton, Bill Brock, Marlin Muse and Adkins.

To help push the players along, Graham is working at becoming an Iron Man himself.

Graham's goal is to be able to place 22 Iron Men on the football field this fall.

Marvin Adkins is the only player thus far to reach the 1,000 pound mark in the Vikings weightlifting program. Adkins bench pressed 220 pounds, squat lifted 406 and dead lifted 441.

Morgan Co. Gets First Win Over Vikings

Morgan County came into the Rowan County gym Tuesday night 0-8, having lost to its opponents by an average of 11.7 points.

Despite those facts, the Cougars handed the Vikings their sixth loss out of eight games this season.

In a game in which neither team was able to take command, the largest lead was five points when Morgan led 15-10. The Cougars held on to win, 52-50.

Viking coach Ted Trent summed up his team's performance by saying, "It was the worst game we have played all year. We have the physical talent to compete, but we are losing games due to mental errors. All of our 22 turnovers were self-inflicted, they didn't have any steals."

"Our kids are playing like they are waiting for things to happen. On defense, our big kids under the basket really had a bad game. They were giving up layups and the baseline all evening," Trent said.

Scheduling Morgan County right after the Christmas break and before traveling to Lexington tonight to face Henry Clay, one of the top teams in the state, was supposed to be a confidence builder, but it didn't turn out that way.

"Our kids haven't been playing well under pressure. The game with Morgan County wasn't supposed to be a pressure game, but it turned out that way. Now against Henry Clay we will probably be relaxed because we won't have any pressure," Trent said.

Rowan County hit five more baskets than the visitors. The Vikings hit 23 out of 59 shots from the field for 59 percent.

Morgan County hit 18 out of 43 shots from the field for 42 percent.

Randy Edridge led the Vikings in scoring with 13 points. Matt Sparks and John Stamper each had 10 points. Wade Littleton tossed in eight points, Jimmy Roberts had four points and Jeff Johnson, Wes Hardin and Troy Hogge each added two points.

David Potter led Morgan County with 15 points. Andy Murphy had 12 points, John Stewart had 11 points, Brent Terrell tossed in 10 points and Kerrick Potter added four points. Rowan County is now 2-6 on the season and will face Henry Clay tonight in Lexington.

Assistant Head Coach Added To Eagle Football Staff

Morehead State University Head Football Coach Steve Loney has announced the appointment of Jay Adcox of Seattle, Wash., as assistant head coach with the Eagle program.

Adcox has been a member of the Missouri Western State College coaching staff for the past seven years where he was assistant head coach and defensive coordinator.

A graduate of Knob Noster (Mo.) High School, Adcox attended the University of Missouri, received a bachelor's degree from Missouri Western and a master's degree from Northeast Missouri State.

"We feel very fortunate to have Jay join our staff," stated Loney. "I first met him when we were on the staff at Missouri Western and I was very impressed with his coaching ability and his rapport with the athletes."

He continued: "With Jay's experience as a defensive coordinator, he brings to our program a great amount of expertise on defensive football that should help improve the things we are trying to do."

Adcox, who will also coach the defensive line, is married to the former Bonnie Baker of Sedalia, Mo. They have two children.

Loney also announced that Marshall Burdette would be elevated to the position of defensive coordinator and linebacker coach for the Eagles and Stan Hixon would remain as offensive backfield coach. Both are entering their second season on the Eagle staff.

Letter To The Editor

Editor's Note: The following letter was addressed to The Lexington Herald. It is being printed in The Morehead News at the request of the writers.

The Editor, The Lady Eagles of Morehead State University would like the opportunity to express our thoughts concerning the incidents which occurred during the Morehead UK Women's Basketball game January 1, 1981.

We realize we are not representing a large and influential school such as the University of Kentucky, but we are just as proud, if not more so, of Morehead State University and feel we deserve the democratic opportunity to tell our "side" of the story.

We were shocked and appalled by the unprofessionalism of your Lexington Herald's sportswriter. In a story written by her, UK players' derogatory comments concerning our team and coach were reported without a single word of defense from any Lady Eagle team member present. However, one Lady Eagle was contacted for comment by Ms. Ridenour the day after the story was released but her statement was not used. Why, do not know.

Our team is a very close family and the statements carried in your paper about our team and Coach Wells were very personal. But what is worse, we were never given a chance to defend ourselves.

Coach Wells has instilled in all of us a great deal of character. He stresses pride, loyalty, honesty, integrity, trust, and dependability. At no time has he instructed any of us to intentionally do bodily harm to an opposing player. He does expect us to play hard and give 110 percent at all times, not just on the court but off the court as well.

Emotions ran high on both teams during the game, and yes, words were exchanged in the heat of competition, but nothing a mature player of college basketball on either team could not handle.

We are proud of Coach Wells regardless of the mistake he may have made. He was man enough to admit he was wrong. He is a pioneer of women's basketball in Kentucky and the comments made by UK players concerning him are unfair and unjust. We suggest the UK Lady Kats examine their own values, motives, and character before pointing fingers at others.

Vanmeter Named Chairman Of Lakeview

By MARK PERKINS
Staff Writer

Gary Vanmeter was elected chairman of the Lakeview Heights Board of Trustees Tuesday night.

According to Vanmeter, that first meeting of the new year was mostly of an organizing nature.

Employees of the county's newest city were rehired, including Nancy Ross, city clerk, Glen Johnston as treasurer and Slen Johnston as treasurer and Slen Johnston as treasurer and Slen Johnston as treasurer.

"We were pleased to have the turnout we had. Several people showed up who weren't on the board and we like to see residents become involved in their community," Vanmeter said.

The board began discussion on the new budget, which according to trustee James Brammer, "will take effect as soon as we get it firm-ed up."

The budget is estimated to total about $10,000, including $3,000 from the Rowan County Fiscal Court for fire protection.

Brammer said at this point the board for the spring semester is scheduled Jan. 12.

Registration for pre-registered students is scheduled in the Laughlin Health Building Jan. 13 and 14. Classes begin on Thursday, Jan. 15.

plans to install three to five fire hydrants in Lakeview, depending on how far the money will go. According to Brammer, each hydrant will cost about $1,500. The hydrants will be installed by the Morehead Utility Plant Board.

"Dog problems were mentioned," Brammer said, adding "Letters will be sent out concerning the matter. Dogs should be kept on the owner's property and during the time they aren't, they should be on a leash."

Vanmeter said that during the next regular meeting the board will discuss future goals for the community.

For the time being, two long range goals for the town include getting some form of water pumps to be used while waiting for the Morehead Fire Department to respond to a fire, and a park or playground area — "someplace for kids to go and play ball," Brammer said.

The board of trustees include Brammer, Vanmeter, Dr. Tom Fossett, Bill Sharp, Mrs. Ray Ross, and Mrs. Ronald Tucker. The board meets on the first Tuesday of each month.

Members of the Board of Trustees of the City of Lakeview Heights were sworn in Monday, Jan. 5, by Rowan County Judge/Executive W.C. Flannery. We figure you never saw such spinning done. The real sleight of spinning lay in the way the spinner "stretched" the yarn. In fact, the whole process depended on it. Size, length, and twist. So when the old-timers wanted to indicate that someone was stretching the truth, they likened it to spinning a yarn. Home Hints: For a wonderful pin cushion, cover a ball of steel wool with a bright scrap of material. Seventh Grader Wins County Essay Contest

An essay on "Trees and My Community" written by Karen D. Sprague, 12, seventh grader at University Breckinridge, has been judged the best of 116 submitted by Rowan County grade and high school students in a contest sponsored by the Rowan County Soil Conservation District.

Karen is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Stuart Sprague. Her essay now goes to state competition and is reprinted here, in part.

Trees. What do they mean to you? Do they mean an ideal place for a picnic? Perhaps they mean a great place to read a book on a hot, sunny, summer day. Maybe they mean the perfect thing for your club — a treehouse! Trees can mean many things, but to me, trees mean economy.

Last winter, I read in The Morehead News that a new Rowan County high school was going to be built in my community. One of the many unanswered questions about construction was: "what source of energy would be used to heat the new school?" As an alternative to natural gas, oil, or coal which are expensive and going up constantly, the Rowan County school board decided the ideal fuel would be tree sawdust. Soon, the board sent three men to Wisconsin and Michigan to get more details on the unusual wood burning system. In those towns, sawdust was used to heat schools.

When the three men returned, they reported — enthusiastically that the energy from wood products would be very promising indeed. One of the many places they reported about was Park Falls, Wisconsin. There, they were burning wood chips at a cost of fifteen dollars per ton. For a 200,000 square foot school, it would take about 12 tons of wood chips daily. Sawdust would cost only six dollars per ton, which is the delivery fee.

At Park Falls, Wisconsin enough wood waste for 10 days (120 tons) is stored in a brick bin, 24 feet in diameter, and around 40 feet high.

One man mentioned the problem with burning sawdust is having too much heat. That makes it difficult to control. During unseasonably warm weather in the spring and the fall, the length of time required to cut off the heat would cause students some discom fort.

One of the men who had traveled on the trip said Park Falls had an auxiliary heating system that could be used during unpredictable weather. Park Falls had a backup system that allows a switch to oil heat in a matter of only fifteen minutes.

Gene White, owner of White's Lumber Company said, "Wood is more stable than coal, and we know it's more stable than gas. We're presently growing timber faster than we can saw it... mainly due to the protection of the U.S. Forest Service." He then mentioned that he has sawdust waste between twenty and twenty-four tons per day.

The total cost of the heating system, plus backup in Wisconsin was $206,000, or about $86,900 more than a conventional system. By using such a system in Rowan County, a saving of $30,000 to $35,000 per year would be gained.

So, even if you may have thought of trees as something to sit under for a picnic, shade yourself from the summer sun while reading, a handy thing for having a swing hang from, or for building a tree house for your club, remember that trees are used for other purposes as well. Not only are the trees cut into lumber and the wood used for building houses, making furniture, and many other uses, but also, even the sawdust can be put to good use.

Cheryl Pollitte At State Pageant

Thirty-three high school seniors from communities across the state, among them Cheryl Pollitte of Morehead, arrived in Bowling Green Monday to begin competition for over $9,000 in cash scholarships and the title of Kentucky's Junior Miss.

This year's pageant will be in Van Meter Auditorium on the campus of Western Kentucky University in Bowling Green. Competition covers three days, Jan. 9-11.

Tickets are $3 each for Friday and Saturday and $5 on Sunday, or $9 for a set for all three days. Persons wanting tickets should contact Tom Hart at (502) 781-1027.

Contestant's will be judged in five categories: an interview with judges, poise and appearance, creative and performing arts, scholastic achievement and youth fitness. The pageant winner will advance as Kentucky's representative in the National Junior Miss Competition held in Mobile, Ala. next spring.

The Junior Miss program is an outgrowth of a community floral celebration held in Mobile 23 years ago. Then, as now, the pageant objectives were to recognize, reward and encourage excellence in youth. Toward this goal, the Junior Miss Scholarship program helps hundreds of girls each year in their quest for a college education.

Braugler Named To Honor Roll

Bart D. Braugler, son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Braugler of Morehead, has been named to the honor roll for term I at Fork Union Military Academy in Fork Union, Va.

This achievement is particularly significant because of the Academy's one-subject plan of study, whereby students take one course during an eight week period, the term representing an entire year's work in that subject. The plan has been in continuous use at Fork Union in the high school grades since 1950.

Fork Union Military Academy, with a student body of 650 boys from 34 states and 21 countries, offers a college-preparatory education in grades five through twelve, plus a year of postgraduate high school study.

011 In Memoriam

In Memory of Wendell Ray Smedley who passed away January 9th, 1980

At rest beyond the cares of life in a peaceful world above. God sent an angel in the night, to take you home on wings of love. Where there is no more loneliness, no sickness, pain or tears; Just one eternal day of joy throughout the endless years. The ones that loves and misses you, your memory they will keep. And many silent tears are shed while others are asleep. Lord helps not to question thee, just give us peace within. We know he can't come back to us But we can go to him.

Missed much by his family. Written by his Mom, Letha Plank p-3F

CHECK THE CLASSIFIEDS For All Your Needs

To All Rowan County Property Owners

The tax rolls will be open from January 1, 1981 to March 1, 1981 for the purpose of listing your 1981 Tax Liabilities for the year 1981. It is your responsibility and privilege to list your Property K.R.S. 132-990 (1)

If you have added improvements or new construction or made a change of any kind during 1980, we need a current update as of January 1, 1981.

You need to list all your Mobile Homes, Watercraft, Commercial and all personal property - tangible or intangible, etc. that applies to you. This is to prevent possible omitted bills, and penalties being issued.

If you will reach your 65th birthday during 1981, and own and maintain a residential unit as your personal residence, stop by the office and file an application to see if you qualify for the Homestead Exemption. This must be done during January and February, 1981.

Trial Dates, Sentences Set

Trial dates and sentences were set on several persons in Circuit Court recently.

Pedro Isidro Poveda, charged with the Oct. 1980 theft of General Telephone Company equipment, valued at over $100, pleaded guilty to an amended charge of theft by unlawful taking, under $100. He was given 12 months in jail, suspended.

Randall Hamilton was sentenced to three years probation and ordered to pay $25 per week in restitution to Triangle Carpets Store on a third degree burglary charge he received July 1980.

A theft by deception charge against Keith Netherly was amended to theft less than $100. Netherly pleaded guilty and was given six months suspended sentence and $250 restitution, plus $55 court costs. He had been indicted for passing a $400 check at J & J Auto Sales.

Trial dates were set for the following:

- William Meredith, charged with assault on the second degree after an Aug. 14 incident when he was said to have caused physical injury to Sonny Caskey with a hunting knife. Meredith's trial was reset for Jan. 19.
- Ronald Caskey, for March 2
- In civil action, a case involving Bobby Gosser, charged by Chynault James with false arrest and imprisonment in an incident occurring Nov. 15, 1976, will be tried March 24.
- James reportedly was arrested for disorderly conduct and attempting to allude a police officer. A civil suit in April 1979 in which James sought $10,000 damages ended in a deaolted jury.

MSU Plans Night Class Registration

Part-time students planning to enroll in evening classes during the 1981 spring semester at Morehead State University must register Jan. 12 and 13.

According to Gene Ranvier, MSU registrar, this will be the only opportunity to register in the evening for on-campus evening classes offered this spring.

Registration is scheduled in the Laughlin Health Building from 5 p.m. until 7 p.m. each evening.

Your Social Security

People getting social security checks will be able to earn more in 1981 than in 1980 before any of their social security benefits are withheld. Robert Stapp, social security district manager in Ashland, said recently.

In 1981, a person under 65 for all of the year can earn $4,000 before any checks are held back. This annual exempt amount was $3,720 for 1980. The annual exempt amount for people 65 or older in 1981 is $5,500, up from $5,000 for 1980.

If a person's earnings exceed the annual exempt amount, $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings above the exempt amount. People should notify social security as soon as they think their annual earnings might exceed the exempt amount. This way they can avoid receiving any incorrect payments that might have to be repaid.

There is a special rule that applies to the year in which a person retires. In the year of retirement, people can receive checks for any month their earnings do not exceed the monthly limit even though total annual earnings are well above the annual exempt amount.

The 1981 monthly limit is $458 for people 65 or over and $340 for people under 65.

Shop The Classifieds

Most people would say that fresh products are always higher in vitamin content than canned or frozen products, but this isn't always so, says foods and nutrition specialists with North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service.

"If fresh vegetables aren't kept under the proper storage conditions they can lose some of their vitamins.

Vitamin C, for example, is one vitamin that is easily lost. Spinach stored at room temperature for two days loses 50 percent of its original vitamin C.

However, you can reduce the loss from 40 to 80 percent by lowering the temperature. The spinach is stored at to 48 degrees F. Humidity is also an important factor. Since vitamin C is water soluble, it will be lost as moisture is lost from the vegetable. When the humidity is low the vegetable will dry out faster, losing its vitamin C as it does.

GARDEN

An outdoor bushy plant memorable for its sweet scent is the lilac, or Syringa vulgaris. Originating from European terrain, the shrub is very popular for lending a spray of mauve or violet color to a patio, screen-house, walkway, or for lining the exterior of a house. Although most lilac clusters are shades of purple, some do bloom as red, yellow, and white. Syringas grow as single or double clusters on a stem and have heart-shaped leaves about three to four inches in length. They are cut and used for flower arrangements as well as for outdoor landscaping. They bloom in the spring.

Lilacs can be discouraging to the amateur gardener, especially when it comes to rooting new off-spring from Syringas. While lilac clusters of a mature plant continue to grow upward, numerous shoots are spreading out below the ground. Cuttings should be taken from the mother plant leaving a few of these shoots to help rejuvenate it. When they are rooted, care must be taken to trim excess shoots from the base of the new plant so that its growth is not harmed and its strength depleted by the other shoots.

If successful with this job, two other dangers lurk for lilacs - insects and borers, and mildew affecting the blooms around August or September. They favor an alkaline soil and need full sun.

The Water's Back On: Rowan Customers Have Normal Service Again

By JOE LAMB

Customers of Rowan Rural Water in the northern end of the county now have water after going for nearly a week with only sporadic service.

Classes had to be dismissed Tuesday at Tilden Hodge Elementary School, after students suffered through one day of sub-normal temperatures and the inconveniences of no water on Monday.

The school is heated with steam and by mid-day Monday temperatures had dropped into the low sixties. Supertendent John Brock said temperatures were in the fifties during the morning and that there was no water for use in the lunchroom or the restrooms.

Classes were not held Wednesday or Thursday at Tilden Hodge because of snow.

Customers of Rowan Water, particularly in the Cranston Road area, where the school is located, had been unable to take baths, cook food or even flush their commodes since the water problem began last week.

Carol Collins, Rowan Water's office manager, said the utility's three employees finally located a major leak Tuesday afternoon and repaired it that evening.

"She said the men had been 'working night and day to correct the problem.' In addition, she said, members of Rowan Water's board of directors had walked water lines, trying to locate the source of the leaks that were draining the system.

Although there were several small leaks that contributed to the problem, the major leak on KY 377 above Johnson Church was primarily responsible for draining a tank in the Farmers-Sharkey area that serves most of the utility's customers in the northern area of the county.

The areas affected were Farmers-Sharkey, a section along KY 32, Pine Hills, Moore's Flat, Big Brushy and most of Cranston along KY 377, including the Morehead State University farm.

Customers in Park Hills were not as affected because they live closer to a pump station than others.

Collins said the utility had adequate water coming from the Morehead Utility Plant Board main, but it simply was not getting to the customers.

Some of the customers had water part of the day when usage is low, while others had none at all. Most were without water when the usage was at its peak in the early morning or late afternoon.

Even when there was water, it was often only a trickle, Collins said.

The water company's phone had been ringing off the hook with complaints and questions from the 300 customers in the area since the problems began, Collins said. She added, however, that most of the calls stopped after the leak was fixed Tuesday.

Many of the customers were understandably upset about the problem.

Rev. Bernard Lovely, who lives on Cranston Road, for example, said this week, "Somebody just doesn't know what's going on."

He said he had been without water for eight days and he felt as though the water company should be making provisions to get water to him.

Rev. Lovely said he had 11 people over for dinner on New Year's Day and no water at all.

Collins said Thursday morning, "Everything's all straightened out now."

She said another leak had cropped up Wednesday in the Farmers-Sharkey area, but it was repaired quickly. Collins added, "We may have some more, we don't know. I hope we've got them all fixed."

Collins said the company's workers kept checking and re-checking "the lines for the problem but it just wasn't one of those visible leaks."

The week-long problem was described as the worst the utility has experienced.

PIPELINE

Within a week after John Lennon's death, four special tribute singles had been recorded. The first one, by Baxter, Bester & Bester, was written, recorded and shipped within 48 hours of the slaying.

John Lennon left enough songs on tape to fill another album. Most of them are straight rock and roll. Yoko Ono has the final say if and when the tunes will be released.

It is an uncanny coincidence that the plot of the upcoming Robert Stigwood film, The Fan, parallels the recent murder of John Lennon. In the movie, made last spring for a May 1981 release, a deranged young man who works in a record shop seeks to kill his stage idol, Lauren Bacall, plays the part of the star. The picture was to have been released in November but was held up to complete the musical score.

Paul McCartney, David Bowie and Linda Ronstadt have hired bodyguards since the Lennon incident.
