Church Puts Commandments Back In Schools... On T-Shirts

By KATHY PARTIN
Staff Writer

Julia Kautz is using the word "snowball" a lot these days, and she isn't referring to the weather.

Two Sundays ago, the member of the First Church of God asked her Sunday School class, "Why not put the Ten Commandments on t-shirts?"

Before the class was over, the group had decided to order 100 such shirts.

"I just got really upset with them, taking the Ten Commandments out of the schools," Mrs. Kautz told the News.

"Every night for two weeks I would wake up thinking of t-shirts. They say everything from 'kiss me' to 'who shot JR?' on them, so why not put on the Ten Commandments?"

And that's when the snowball started rolling.

The church received enough donations from members and businesses to print the first 100 youth of the church were taken to school.

Radio station WMOR picked up the story, and sent it to the Associated Press.

Then the avalanche came, in the form of the media. "I hope it goes all over the country," said Mrs. Kautz Tuesday afternoon, prior to being interviewed by the second area television station, visiting her that day.

Her words may have come true. NBC News was scheduled to arrive in Morehead yesterday (Thursday) to meet with t-shirt wearers at the Clearfield Grade School.

Told To Comply

The state Board of Education voted Jan. 20 to recommend local school districts comply with an attorney general's opinion concerning removal of copies of the Commandments from classroom walls.

About a week ago, shortly after receiving "office" notice, Superintendent John Brock of the Rowan County School system sent a memo to school principals telling them of the decision.

Brock said he has not followed up to see if the Commandments have been removed from classrooms. However, he is aware of several rooms that did have them posted.

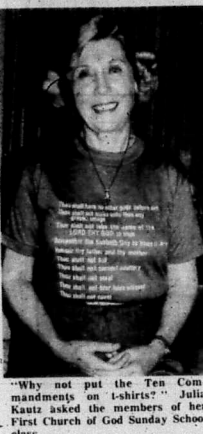

Mrs. Kautz' opinion is that "... more will see and read the Ten Commandments on a child's back than on a wall."

And, wearers of the shirts seem to be getting favorable response. Mrs. Kautz says while she was in a Morehead bank, a gentleman asked her to unbutton her shirt, "to see if I really was wearing it." She was, and by showing it, received an order from a teller who wanted one for her child.

Other Ten Commandment stories are making the rounds in Morehead. Reportedly one school teacher had a child who was wearing the Commandments stand up at an assembly of the class. The students recited the words together.

One t-shirt clad boy was asked what he thought of the shirts.

Trademore Annexation Claimed Too Costly

By ROB DOLLAR
Staff Writer

According to a detailed report submitted to the Morehead City Council Monday night by City Administrator Don Evans, the initial cost of annexing an area out to the new high school into the city limits would be more than ten times greater than the annual revenue generated by such a move.

Evans was instructed at the January meeting of the council to research the financial feasibility of such an annexation and report back to the council.

His report all but put the padlock on the door to any further annexation discussion pertaining to the Trademore area at this time.

In his report, Evans attempted to analyze the possible annexation question in two ways. First of all he considered the revenues and expenditures of annexation of only the Trademore Shopping Center area and then the revenues and expenditures of the entire Trademore area out to the new high school.

He was aided in his report by numerous city officials, who projected the estimated expense they believed the annexation of either area would have on their departments.

Evans noted that the Morehead Utility Plant Board was asked to estimate the additional expenditures that any annexation would create for them. Those figures have yet to be received by Evans. He said if only the Trademore Shopping area were annexed, he did not believe it would create much of a problem for the board in terms of costs, as water and sewer should not be a problem. However, if the entire area were annexed, Evans noted plant board costs could be quite considerable.

"Thus, Evans stressed at the council meeting Monday night that it was his belief that the figures in the report were very conservative."

He added, "The figures I'm using were strictly in our house city departments."

The report states that the initial costs of any annexation will be "tremendous."

A revenue estimate prepared by City Finance Director Phillip Tackett shows that if the Trademore Shopping Center area only were annexed, anticipated revenue of approximately $46,000 per year could be expected. Annexing the entire Trademore area would increase revenue projections by an additional $10,000 per year, according to Tackett.

This would make a total annual increase of revenue to the city of some $56,000.

While this may seem like a hefty amount, the real story surfaces when the possible expense to the city is examined.

Evans maintains in the report that the initial expense to the city for annexing the Trademore Shopping Center area only would total more than $497,800. If the entire area were annexed, an additional $84,912 is not tacked to the total making the expense to the city more than $582,711. Both of these totals do not include estimated costs to the Morehead Utility Plant Board, it should be noted. This could substantially hike the total amount for the annexation of the whole area.

The report by Evans suggests if the figures for the initial year of an annexation generated by either annexation ($46,000 or $56,600) should remain constant or grow slightly each year, the report projects annual costs of the entire annexation to still outweigh revenue generated by more than a two to one ratio.

The annual cost increase for annexation of only the Trademore Shopping Center area would be about $67,500, according to the report. The annual expense to the city if the entire Trademore area were to be annexed would be about $100,000.

Parents Question Future Of Haldeman

By KATHY PARTIN
Staff Writer

Parents of Haldeman Grade School students brought their concerns that the school is about to be either phased out or its classes combined before the Rowan County Board of Education Monday night.

Superintendent John Brock repeatedly told the group that doing away with the school, "has never been discussed and certainly is in no future plans of mine." As for combining classes and doing away with a teacher, he said, "How can I tell you what we're going to do before we make the decision?"

When Brock questioned where the crowd "got the idea," a mother snapped, "From one of your teachers."

Further into the discussion, one of the 30 residents said, "You better find some teachers who won't talk like this and spread stuff. All of Haldeman is upset."

The community's concerns may have stemmed from a state facility survey, required every five years and released last October.

It termed Haldeman, Elliottville and Farmers "interim operations with functional maintenance." Interim operations were defined as buildings expensive to operate, having low enrollment and being kept safe until time to move students elsewhere.

Brock said the board had taken exception to the survey, adding, "you might call it a standstill."

He said as long as the school was in good condition, the state would not close it. If a request were made for major renovation, it probably would be denied, he said, unless it pertained to the health, safety and welfare of the students.

He reminded the audience that a $35,000 furnace was installed recently, not the move of a system about to close a building.

Brock disavowed the board had received a letter from the Superintendent of Public Instruction, stating the "economic outlook for 1981/82 is not encouraging." A shortfall of $185 million is expected and the exact amount required to cut expenditures will be sent to schools by April 1.

The letter suggested immediate budget planning and for programs with limited local funds, an examination of staffing.

Brock explained the state provides money for teacher's salaries, based on the number of students in a system. If there are more teachers than one for every 27 pupils, the county must find funds to pay those additional teacher's salaries.

Rowan County is overstaffed with six or seven teachers, Brock said, 2 1/2 at Farmers, 2 at Haldeman and 1.9 at Haldeman. This means roughly $75,000-$85,000 of local money is spent for teacher's salaries.

One parent asked, "Is cutting the teachers the first thing (to cut expenditures) you've thought of?"

Brock replied that school buildings including the gymnasiums could be closed after hours, saving electricity and heating expenses, but some argue that taxpayers should have use of the school.

School buses can be required to go no farther than one mile off the main road.

Interest Rates, Sewer Are Sr. High Concerns

By KATHY PARTIN
Staff Writer

High interest rates and lack of a sponsoring agent for a sewer line continue to be major concerns for the Rowan County Board of Education, as those things threaten to delay construction of the senior high school on Ky. 32.

At the board's regular meeting Monday night, Superintendent John Brock called nine percent interest rates the "bench mark" for bond sales. "We can survive with nine percent even," he said. "Above nine percent, we'd be happy with."

Twenty year bond, buyer's index figures peaked Dec. 18 at 10.56 percent, lowered over a percent by Jan. 8, then began a steady rise to 9.91 percent by Jan. 29. The index figure for Feb. 5 shows a 0.1 decline.

The original bid opening date was Feb. 12.

Valentine's Day Lovers Keep Businesses Busy

By ROB DOLLAR
Staff Writer

Love is still alive as several local businesses will certainly attest on this day before St. Valentine's Day.

"And if the volume of business is any indication of what local lovers should expect tomorrow — then it's a safe bet to say Morehead and the surrounding area will be flooded with cards, candy, jewelry and flowers."

Cupid's arrows apparently have hit quite a few people and sent them scurrying about, looking for that special way to express feelings that can't be summed up in words.

Judy Donahue, an employee at Sophia's Hallmark Gallery in the Trademore Shopping Center, said Valentine cards have been selling like "crazy."

She said the Valentine card sales were keeping up with the Christmas card sales, which she termed as "fantastic." Valentine's Day card sales rated a description of "fabulous."

"Humorous contemporary (cards), I think, are selling better than anything," she remarked.

According to Donahue, Valentine's Day is one of the busiest sales periods for the store. She said that, besides cards, this year's customers were buying "cute" gifts, party ware and even stuffed animals.

Donahue described the typical Valentine's Day customer as young and single. "I would say we're doing more (business) with them than with older and married people," she added.

While Valentine's Day is a day for lovers, it can apparently be a day for users also.

"It always makes a nervous wreck out of me," observed Carole Cox, the manager of Heck's, predicting that tomorrow will be the busiest day of the month for the store due to the last minute rushes.

Cathy has been the main seller at Heck's with flower arrangements also selling well. Cox said in his four year at the store, the Valentine's merchandise has never failed to sell out. Jerry Harrelson, manager of Rose Shopping Center, said candy and card sales at the store were "excellent."

He added, "Business has been good. According to Harrelson, the typical Roses Valentine's Day shopper has appeared to be the young unmarried or young married person.

While candy and card sales have been good, so have clothing sales, note Harrelson. He said it was his belief that the state of the economy was forcing people to be more practical this year with gifts, prompting many to buy clothing items.

"It kills two birds with one stone," I said, adding, "people apparently we're looking for gifts they could get some use from instead of a flower that eventually wilts up and dies."

Area jewelry stores have also been hectic because of Valentine's Day shoppers looking for an expensive way to say that something special.

McQuerry reported that Valentine Day business is doing "great."

He said diamonds and gold chain seemed to be the big sellers to a cross-section of shoppers, which lean toward the younger crowd.

But other items were also selling, noted, adding, "Especially anything that goes with hearts — any heart shaped designs in jewelry."

Priscilla Sliker of Leroy's Jewels also said heart-shaped jewelry has been selling well resulting in a "big pickup of his normal business."

However, flowers still appear to be "the" way of expressing what we

Stacy Seeks Election As District 4 Magistrate

(Paid political announcement. Paid by candidate.)

I, Jimmie Allen Stacy, am announcing my candidacy for Magistrate of District 4 on the Republican ticket.

I was born and have lived in Rowan County all my life. I am married to the former Betty Sparks of Indian Creek. We have three children: Bobby, 22, Rocky, 17, and Callie, 16.

I have worked the past three years as a truck driver and bridge repairman for the Rowan County Road Department. I have traveled our roads and know what is necessary to put them, and maintain them in the best condition possible. I believe this will give me an upperhand and enable me to get a fast start on repairing them.

I feel the Fiscal Court should cooperate and work together in order to spend our tax dollars wisely. I also believe that the citizens should have the right to voice their opinion on important matters before a Fiscal Court decision is made.

If elected, I would like everyone to feel free to call me about any problem or question which they may have. Your support and vote will be greatly appreciated.

Auditor Gives Annual Report

Auditor Larry Blair briefly discussed a financial report over 40 pages long with members of the Rowan County Board of Education, and gave them a list of suggestions for improving internal bookkeeping Monday night at the board's monthly meeting.

Blair said the board ended the fiscal year June 30, 1980 "in the black" by $39,000 in comparison to $79,000 the previous year.

Interest earned on investments increased from $26,000 for 196 fiscal year ending in June 1979 to $55,000 last year. Blair attributed the upswing to higher interest rates and better utilization of money.

The first six months the three percent utility tax was in effect resulted in $133,000 for construction of the senior high school. That tax was first assessed Jan. 1980.

Expenditures of $100,000 from the special voted fund were called "questionable" by the auditor. The property tax monies established in 1959 were earmarked for buildings, upkeep and equipment, appropriations loosely defined by the Kentucky Revised Statutes but more strictly so by certified public accountants.

Rowan County's use of the $10,000 for supplies and maintenance is a "question of interpretation," Blair said.

The CPA also said his audit included not just financial data but also compliance matters such as bid laws.

Arson Suspected

Arson investigator Don McBrayer of the Kentucky State Police is investigating this blaze that gutted a bedroom and hallway in a Christy Creek home Monday afternoon. Fire Chief Bill Hankinson said the house is owned by a Brown family, and had been vacant for several weeks. Firemen dealt with intense heat and smoke upon breaking into the stone structure, and had to refill one fire truck with water from the Elliottville store. (Staff photo by Kathy Partin)

Valentine's

Sada Ravenscraft of the Atkinson Florist said, "We always sell out of roses every year."

She added that things really pick up during the last day or two.

This year, besides the traditional roses and carnations, Ravenscraft said "planters" have been selling very well.

She said Valentine's Day is traditionally the busiest time of the year for Atkinson Florist and a few part-time people are usually hired for the rush.

Of the Valentine's Day clientele, she said, "I'd say the majority of them are younger people."

Jim McClure of Ezelle's Flowers said roses and carnations were the "big sellers for Valentine's Day."

He said business was busy, but other holidays such as Mother's Day and Memorial Day equal Valentine's Day in sales.

Dinah Tyree of The Dogwood Tree, though, didn't have enough hands for all the work she had to do preparing for Valentine's Day.

"We've been awfully, awfully busy," she remarked.

She said that Valentine's Day was the busiest time of the year for her business in terms of the volume of flowers moved through the shop in a 48 hour period.

Tyree said that despite inflation, practically everyone finds the money somehow to buy flowers on Mother's Day and Valentine's Day.

She noted that cut flowers, specifically roses and carnations, were the biggest favorites. More and more people are turning to flowers to convey messages in lieu of expensive gifts, she said.

Flower buyers for Valentine's Day are from all age groups at The Dogwood Tree, according to Tyree.

"It's one of the few holidays we see a real cross-section of people come through the shop," she noted.

When asked if she thought people will ever seek an alternative to flowers on Valentine's Day, she said, "The tradition is very ingrained. I don't see anything changing that."

She added, "I don't think flowers will ever go out."

Thefts Investigated

More reports of thefts and burglaries in the area have been received by state police authorities over the past few days.

Debbie Thompson, an employee at the Windmill Restaurant in the Trademore Shopping Center, said her purse was stolen at the restaurant sometime last Saturday.

It contained a large amount of money, a $70 check from the restaurant, her operators license and several personal property items.

Another theft report received by state police authorities Feb. 9 from employees at the US Forestry building at Rodburn claimed that several hollow chain saws were apparently taken. The incident is being investigated.

The State police received a follow-up report in regards to a theft and apparent killing of two pigs at the rural Elliott County residence of Arnold Burton.

Burton reported to state police Feb. 9 that he had found the pigs near his residence covered up with hay.

He said he had also received a threatening phone call the night before from the apparent thieves, who said they were going to burn his house down.

Burton told police, he suspected the thieves were either related to his family or had been in his house since he has an unlisted telephone number.

The state police are investigating the incident.

Two Powell County burglaries were reported to state police officials Feb. 11.

Thieves broke into the Power Line Construction Co. office in Stanton Tuesday night by entering a kitchen window. According to the state police report, a safe containing an undetermined amount of money and all of the company papers was taken.

Also Tuesday night, an unknown person or persons broke into the E & P Super Market in Stanton on KY 213. It has not been determined what was taken in the incident. State police are investigating.

Dr. Blevins Announces For State Representative

(Paid political announcement. Paid by candidate.)

Dr. Walter Blevins Jr. has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for State Representative of the 71st District, which consists of precincts in Menifee, Morgan, Rowan and Wolfe counties.

A native of West Liberty, Dr. Blevins is the son of Walter C. and the late Dorothy Bechalmer Blevins. He is the grandson of the late Dallas W. and Myrtle Lowe Bechalmer and Andy F. and Sara Williams Blevins.

Dr. Blevins is a graduate of Morgan County High School and Morehead State University, where he received a bachelor of science degree in biology. He graduated with distinction from the University of Kentucky College of Dentistry.

In addition, he served for two years in the United States Army, attaining the rank of captain.

Dr. Blevins worked at Dr. Arlis Wheeler and the Gateway District Health Department for six months as a dental provider before moving to Morehead and working at Dr. J.K. Smith's office. He recently opened his own office at Morehead's Trademore Mini Mall.

Some of his accomplishments include: being voted to Who's Who, both in high school and at MSU; being voted to OKI, an honorary dental fraternity serving as vice president and president of MSU's Young Democrats Club; serving as secretary of the Democratic party in Morgan County at the age of 21; and currently serving as a member of the board of directors of the Morehead Optimist Club.

In making his announcement, Dr. Blevins said: "I am for equal opportunity for all people in the 71st District, including the senior citizens who are at the mercy of the evils of inflation."

"I am for progressive, efficient, but above all, honest government for the people. Better roads, upgrading of education, and more jobs for the people of my district are my major goals."

"I promise to work diligently for the fulfillment of all these goals if I am elected."

Parents

reducing gasoline costs, but parents of small children would be against this, he said.

"We have to cut expenses," Brock said, "and there is only one major area I know of where there can be major savings—staff."

As the parents discussed their feelings about losing a teacher at Haldeman, they made comments such as "To keep good teachers in Kentucky you can't let them go." "We want our children to have better than what we had." "Why not cut the administration instead of teachers?" and "Why lose another teacher at Haldeman? Jack Roberts serves as physical education teacher, coach and head teacher."

Eugene White, board member for the Haldeman district, pointed out that the people of Haldeman notice there is one person filling three positions at the elementary school. "They feel they're getting the short end of the horn. I think they're concerned Haldeman is going to be treated differently."

"All we can do," said one parent, "is to be treated like everyone else."

"I can assure you of that," said Chairman of the Board Warren Proudfoot. Proudfoot suggested a committee be formed that would see "what the budget is, where we spend the money, and areas that could be cut."

Brock said "once we get ourselves educated and know where our controls are, legislators could be invited to the meeting."

The superintendent invited the group to attend future school board meetings at the board, in turn, was informed of the Haldeman PTO meeting date.

Camp Kysoc, the Easter Seal resident camp at Carrollton provided camping opportunities to 75 handicapped Kentuckians in 1980.

Interest Rates, Sewer

moved from Jan. 22 to March 12 to allow time for the rate to drop.

Board member Eugene White, who also serves on the Rowan Water, Inc. Board, reported the status of sewer and water lines for the future school site. "I think our water situation is solved," he said, announcing the possibility of a $610,000 FmHA loan to Rowan Water for improvement of lines on Ky. 32 north of Morehead.

On the other hand, White said, "I don't think we're any closer to solving the sewer problem than three months ago."

Earlier, the state Department of Education said it must have a contract between the school board and a utility company indicating sewer service would be provided by the time of the facility's completion. Only then would it approve plans and specifications and allow the board to advertise for bids.

Now, the state will allow the board to take bids but not sell bonds before there is a contract.

A sewer line along Ky. 32 is in the planning stages as the result of a $125,000 area development fund appropriated through the state government. However, the committee formed for the project has indicated interest in routes that do not go directly to the future school site, and the school cannot spend money off its property to connect with other proposed lines.

He fully explained this, he said, gives the board the "best price — nothing is hidden."

The conference will be in the Carl Perkins Community Building Feb. 26, with electricians and mechanics meeting at 10 a.m. and architects at 2 p.m. Bids will be opened March 12 at 2 p.m.

"We're ready to go," Browning said. "We'd like you people, we hope those interest rates will go down."

Mechanical engineer Walt Newton told the board the wood-waste burning system is "designed and ready to go. All we need is good prices on it." Two parties that market such systems have indicated interest, "so we will have competition," he said.

The waste heating system is an alternate to natural gas and oil base bids.

Board members approved the final plans for the school and gave the superintendent and architect authority to advertise for bids. Brock noted, if interest rates remain near 10 percent, a special meeting to delay bidding may be called. Bid documents are good up to 90 days, which could push bond sales as late as the first of May.

In other school business, the board discussed Haldeman Grade School with about 30 residents of that area, and heard an auditor's report. (See separate stories.)

Approved a request by Foley Partin, principal of Tilden Hogge School, for that school to make up Tuesday, Jan. 6 classes-missed due to lack of water by beginning its day 15 minutes early. Director of Pupil Personnel Billie Jean Clayton said this would take 24 days. Tilden Hogge began the new schedule the day after the board's approval and will continue with it through March 16.

Approved Robert Lee Harding, Jacklyn S. Mirple, Homer Wayne Tracy, Anna Siker and Mary Elizabeth Grey as substitute teachers and Joe Redwine as bus driver.

Recognized students from Morehead State University and their instructor, Cheyenne Oldham, who attended the meeting as part of the advanced newswriting class.

"I had no idea it would get the publicity it has," said Mrs. Kautz. "The strange thing is, everyone I mention it to really seems to like the idea."

Other churches in the area are getting on the bandwagon, with one as far away as Harrodsburg calling in an Yesterday, including the Harrodsburg order, 275 shirts had been printed. "It just all snowballed," marvels Mrs. Kautz.

According to Evans, the figures in the report show that should either annexation take place, the city of Morehead would have to foot a bond issue to bear the cost of the initial investment.

Evans further states in the report that the figures also show that yearly operating cost to the city by either annexation will exceed the revenue generated from such a move. The report states that with the given situation as it presently exists, business generated within the Trademore Shopping Center would have to increase two-fold for the city just to break even on revenue versus expenditures on an annexation of the Trademore area.

Evans maintains in the report that the city could never break even if the entire area were annexed.

Hankinson notes in a memo contained in the annexation report that because of the type of property in the anticipated annexation, specifically, the Trademore Shopping Center and the new Rowan County High School, annexation would require the purchase of two pieces of fire apparatus identified as an aerial apparatus and a mobile water supply apparatus or tanker pumper. He also maintained that due to the distance of travel involved from the present fire station to the annexed area, it was likely that the Insurance Service Offices of Kentucky (ISO) would require a sub-station on the connector in the vicinity of the Holiday Inn. The Morehead Fire Department would have to increase its membership also by a minimum of seven fire fighters to handle the new equipment and station, if required.

Initial estimated costs to the fire department were broken down as follows: one aerial ladder, $200,000; one tanker pumper, $65,000; one sub-station (if required) $125,000; and seven fire fighters, $7,500.

New Rates Adopted For Center

By ROB DOLLAR
Staff Writer

The Morehead City Council Monday night passed a motion to accept the report of a committee established in January to study the fee structure of the Carl Perkins Community Center and adopt the committee's new suggested rates for use of the facility.

City Administrator Don Evans submitted the report to the council on behalf of the committee, which included council members Roy Anderson and John Holbrook, Center Director Steve Wright and the Rev. Harold Tatman and Waverly Jones, representatives from the community at large.

The committee established three different rates for the building: commercial, convention and non-profit or private individuals.

The commercial rate was for those who used the facility to make money. The multi-purpose use rate for this group will be $100 for one to three hours and $25 for each additional hour. Meeting rooms will be rented out at a $50 rate for one to three hours and $15 for each additional hour.

Business organizations using the facility for entertainment or meetings that do not generate direct profit to the business will be charged the convention rate. Multi-purpose use will be $50 for one to three hours and $15 for each additional hour.

The non-profit and private individual rate charge will be used for organizations classified as non-profit by the Internal Revenue Service, civic clubs and private citizens from Rowan County. Multi-purpose use rates for this category will be $25 for one-to three hours and $8 for each additional hour. The renting of meeting rooms will be $15 for one to three hours and $4 for each additional hour.

Table and chair rental rates were set at 10 cents per chair and 25 cents per table by the committee. However, this charge will not apply to civic organizations.

The committee also established a policy whereby the Community Center will consider requests from civic organizations desiring to use the center free of charge for special activities provided the activity proceeds are for specific community service projects. Under this new policy, if the activity is to generate any revenue, a written used in community development must be submitted.

The policy further states that any one organization will be limited to four special activities per year and that each organization using the facility free of charge must place a $30 deposit prior to its use.

Council member Randall Wells, serving as acting mayor in the absence of Mayor Crayton Jackson who was out of town, commended the committee for its work, as well as addressing the problem.

"I think this committee has done a fine job of reporting on this," he said. He directed Evans to write letters of appreciation to the members of the committee from the community for their contributions.

In another major development, the council agreed not to take any further action in regard to the annexation of the Trademore area into the city limits.

Evans submitted council members a detailed report he had been instructed to prepare at the January 12 meeting.

"It's my opinion and my recommendation — I think you can read this report — that's it's not, as I stated in here — it's not practical or feasible that we annex any area out there at all at this present time," he told the council.

Council member Marvin Moore, who was the initiator of the study at the last meeting, said at least the findings might answer the questions of citizens wondering about such an annexation.

He added, it was good to know that the annexation proposal had at least been researched as to the possible effect on the city, stressing that this had not always been done in the past. (See the related story on the proposed annexation and the predicted effect it would have on the city.)

Another matter allowed Evans to report to the council on the proposed plans for the new city garage which is to be constructed this fiscal year. The facility is expected to be in operation before June 1.

Evans has been working on the tentative construction plans along with A.T. McNeely, the city's engineer and the building inspector, and several other city officials who will use the facility.

He revealed to the council several aspects that have been agreed upon up to this date.

The 3,000 square foot facility is to be of a metal insulated construction in lieu of wooden frame construction. Evans said it was felt that metal would be far safer than wood in regard to the possible fire hazard that might develop because of the nature of some of the work which will be done in the facility.

He said the best location for the building was decided to be on Triple Street by the dog pound. Thus, he said the dog pound will have to be moved.

Evans stated that a number of things must be done before the actual bidding on the project is initiated. The next morning, he said the bidding process may be able to start within the next three weeks.

He requested and got authorization from the council to move on the project through a motion passed unanimously.

Bill Patrick, director of the Morehead Housing Authority, in another agenda topic, requested that the council waive the payment normally made by the agency in lieu of taxes each year.

Evans noted that the agency has met with some unexpected financial problems through no fault of its own.

"It seems they just don't have the money that they normally pay to the city," he told council members.

City Attorney Buddy Salyer interjected, "The thing is they (have) no obligation to pay it at all."

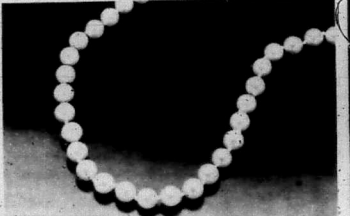

It was noted that the Morehead Housing Authority, has been making an annual payment to the council for several years, so as to help pay its share of services rendered by the local governments.

Over the years, the payment has been made to the city, which has then turned over two-thirds of the money to the county government, the reasoning apparently being the county's tax rate is about twice that of the city's.

Patrick told the council at the meeting that the agency only had a corporate agreement with the city, so he believed the council could waive the payment. He said it was his belief, he would not have to approach the Fiscal Court about the matter.

A motion was passed by the council to waive the payment for this year by the housing authority. This followed another motion passed by councilmen instructing City Attorney Salyer to research the legality of some of the payment money being turned over to the county. Salyer was also asked to determine how the city could get money paid to the county in the past back, if in fact the payments were not required. This particular motion was made by

We were making Valentines this week at the center, getting ready for our party today. Come be with us if you can.

Shade Kincer brought a jar of goats milk to the center today and was passing it out to everyone who would "partake" of it. A lot of people "took."

Spring isn't too far away, now. I've seen several people looking at the seed

MSU Seeks Funding For Mountain Heritage Project

In an effort to help Eastern Kentuckians know more about their history and heritage, Dr. James Gifford, coordinator of Appalachian Studies at Morehead State University, recently submitted a proposal to the Ethnic Heritage Studies Program which would provide material for Appalachian studies programs throughout Eastern Kentucky.

The Ethnic Heritage Studies Program is a federal agency that provides funds for educational projects designed to give students opportunities to learn about their own heritage and culture.

The proposed project, constructed around the production and distribution of a book entitled "Mountain People: Biographical Sketches of the Men and Women of Appalachian Kentucky, 1763-1981" will, according to Gifford, "focus on the unique culture of Appalachian Kentucky and the contributions that Kentucky's mountain people have made to their region, state and nation."

MSU President Morris Norfleet said if the project is funded, "copies of 'Mountain People' will be distributed to every secondary and post-secondary school in Appalachian Kentucky."

The book will consist of 50 biographical sketches to be written by MSU faculty and staff and other regional writers. Recommendations from the people of Eastern Kentucky made significant contributions and who appear worthy of consideration for inclusion in the book will provide the primary basis for the selection process.

Very little work, according to Gifford, has been done to record the major contributions that Eastern Kentuckians have made to society in the fields of education, medicine, science, industry, art and politics.

Additional information is available from Dr. James Gifford, coordinator, Appalachian Studies Program, Appalachian Development Center, MSU, Morehead, KY 40351, or by calling 606/783-4731.

Cave Run Ride Featured In Horse Magazine

Sheltoewe Trail riders David Colson of Brodhead, Ky., and Bobbie Cox of Mt. Vernon, Ky., are featured on the front cover of the February issue of Appaloosa News sitting around an evening campfire at Cave Run Lake after a day on the trail, according to Morehead Tourism Commission Director Beud Buchanan.

Inside the 264-page monthly magazine, four pages and seven full-color pictures tell the story of the trail ride held in the Daniel Boone National Forest, Morehead, in October 1980.

According to Buchanan, there were 60 Appaloosa trail riders during the four-day feast of mountain scenery, fall colors, and Indian summer weather.

from California, Idaho, New York, and many states in between.

The article, written by George B. Hately, describes each day's ride of 15-22 miles and activities around the campfire each evening. Jim Evans, ride manager from Greensburg, Ky., presented programs centered around Daniel Boone, how the trail got its name, and hunting in the area.

According to Evans, another Sheltoewe Trail Ride will be held this fall, with riders camping at Cave Run Lake.

The Morehead Tourism Commission assisted Evans and the Appaloosa Horse Club, Moscow, Idaho, with promotion of the Trail Ride.

Prepare For Spring Pruning

Of Trees and Shrubs
One of the best times for pruning many trees, shrubs and evergreens is in late winter or early spring before new growth starts. This season's extremely severe winter temperatures may have caused some dieback in weak plants, tender plants, or some newly planted items.

The exact amount of damage still may be difficult to determine in some plants. When in doubt do not be too quick to prune. If twigs are flexible, they may still grow. If twigs snap easily when bent, however, and do not show any interior greening close to the bark, they could be dead and should be removed. The most severe cold damage often occurs on the most exposed plants, or on the upper portions of plants that were not protected by snow or windbreak provided by building or other plants.

Before beginning the pruning operation, be sure to have the proper tools in good condition. Without proper tools, pruning can become a chore and may even damage plants. These tools are basic to good pruning and should be a part of every good gardener's equipment.

Have hand shears for pruning small twigs or branches up to 3/4 inch in diameter. In addition to spring pruning, hand shears are useful for many other garden activities all year.

For pruning branches 3/4 or 1 1/2 inches in diameter, use loopers. Loopers have long strong handles that give good leverage for shearing off branches that are fairly thick. Trying to cut branches of this size with hand shears is not only difficult, but may damage the shears.

Pruning axes are essential for cutting branches thicker than one-and-one-half inches in diameter. There are different types, but one of the most useful designs has a curved blade with fairly coarse teeth that cut on the pull stroke.

Twigs and branches heal best when cut in a slanting position. Therefore, sharp tools not only benefit plants, but make pruning faster and easier.

Two techniques are basic for pruning trees, shrubs or evergreens. They are thinning out and heading-back. Pruning is often a combination of both techniques.

Thinning out means removing a shoot or branch completely back to another main branch or trunk. No prominent stub remains, so the wound heals and is hidden quickly. For plants that sucker heavily at the base, thinning out may also mean cutting out at ground level some of the many shoots. It is a method used to give a plant light to medium pruning while maintaining natural beauty and reducing size.

Heading-back generally means a lighter pruning. Selected twigs are cut back to healthy side buds. With this method, stubs remain but side buds close to the cut tips soon develop new shoots that cover wounds. This method works well on plants where, without changing the basic appearance of plants.

Worker's Comp Cuts Could Save $100 Million By July

FRANKFORT - A state Department of Insurance official has told a legislative panel that legislative-mandated cuts in Kentucky workers' compensation rates will save employers nearly $100 million by July.

Steve Cox, an Insurance Department attorney, told the Workers' Compensation Subcommittee of the interim Committee on Labor and Industry the savings that will be realized by House Bill 532, would not have been possible without a 27 percent reduction in benefits for claimants. The bill, which went into effect last July 15, mandated a minimum 27 percent reduction in workers' compensation rates.

The state Department of Insurance went beyond the legislative mandate and in December, after extensive hearings, approved a 32 percent reduction in rates for most classifications of workers, Cox said.

Jim Carrigan, deputy commissioner of the Insurance Department, told the panel all workers' compensation premiums have been reduced since July, but that the reductions may have been masked by increases because of reclassifications or because of increases in employers' payrolls.

Even if a premium seems higher, the mandated "savings will be there," Carrigan said. Rep. Ronald Cyrus, D-Flatwoods, had expressed concern to Carrigan that some employers had "not noticed a reduction" in their worker's compensation rates.

Rush Dodier, an assistant to Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., appeared before the panel and said that the St. Louis accounting firm, Tillghaus, Nelson and Warren, will have a study on workers' compensation in Kentucky prepared by June 1.

The 1980 Legislature appropriated $150,000 for the study. Dodier, who is an attorney, said the report should help the state "squeeze a little more cost out of the system."

The Philharmonic? Just Part Of Suanne Blair's Busy Schedule

By KATHY PARTIN
Staff Writer

Suanne Blair loves sailing, bridge and music, "but not necessarily in that order: it depends on what week I'm in". Recently, during a week of playing with the Lexington Philharmonic, she received public attention when a

Some weeks, Suanne Blair spends 40 hours in her role as principal cellist with the Lexington Philharmonic Orchestra, and 30 hours as assistant professor of cello at Morehead State University. She says her husband Paul "realizes I have my things to do. He's very supportive. Good relationships are built on mutual support and respect of the other's interests." (Staff photo by Kathy Partin)

Lexington Herald story lauded the principal cellist and other featured soloists in the orchestra's January concert.

Blair is quick to point out she is not the only Moreheadian with a "first chair" position in the Philharmonic. Other principal players affiliated with Morehead State University are Milford Kahn, French horn; Robert Pritchard, flute and Edward Materer, trombone. Even a student, Lori Young, is in the first violin section.

"Lexington knows that Morehead is here musically," Blair proudly states. Her involvement with the orchestra dates back to 1966, the same year she came to Morehead as an assistant professor of cello. Being a member of the Philharmonic then meant traveling to Lexington on pre-interstate roads, so the fact she quit after one year is no surprise. About four years ago, she rejoined when offered the first seat for her instrument.

All the members of the Lexington Philharmonic have other jobs and many hail from towns other than the metro city, requiring a dedication, perhaps not fully appreciated until a member such as Blair describes her routine.

She adds the two and one half hours of each rehearsal to three hours of traveling time, and multiplies these hours times the number of rehearsals prior to a concert, to come up with a 40 hour week. Teaching classes doesn't stop during the September to May concert season, so the 40 hour week runs concurrently with her 30 hour job.

Home tasks are not eliminated, either, during the musical season, and so the hands that finger the cello's bow and strings prepare nearly every meal for her attorney husband, Paul, and herself.

"I love to cook, we rarely eat out," she says. During the snowy week of rehearsal for her solo in "Sinfonie Concertante" by Franz Joseph Haydn, Blair packed an overnight bag before each trip to Lexington. "I knew I could not miss a rehearsal," she explained.

And the result of the whirlwind week? Two curtain calls and a public commendation by conductor George Zack.

"I think they liked it," she says modestly of the packed Lexington Opera House crowd, a rarity in a winter month. "They're used to international artists as soloists."

Started in Fourth Grade

Blair began playing cello in the fourth grade, a "good age to begin," she says. "Coordination is often a problem prior to that."

She was persuaded to take up the instrument as her mother played the piano and her sister the violin. A cellist meant the formation of a piano trio, which could play at local fairs and clubs.

The daughter of the editor and publisher of an Emmett, Idaho newspaper attended Willamette University in Salem, Ore. and earned a masters degree in music from the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

While giving private music lessons at USC she discovered teaching was "great fun" when it didn't involve spending a lot of energy with discipline.

"I had trained thinking I would be a performer... only two percent end up making it. I talked with some who had and they said it was a terribly lonely life," she related.

So the musician, who had not anticipated teaching, found herself in a music placement service with four teaching opportunities in three varied areas: Alaska, the Philippines, Missouri and Morehead.

"Why Morehead?" is the obvious question and one she admits to being asked often. "I didn't know anything about Kentucky. The only reason I chose Morehead was its proximity to the University of Tennessee," she says with a smile. "I was dating a fellow there."

The smile probably comes from the fact that the "fellow" did not turn out to be the man she would marry.

Blair returned to the west for two summers in the late 1960's to work on her doctorate at the University of Washington. There, she told the Herald, she studied through the week and hiked in the Olympic Mountains and the Cascade Range every minute of the weekend.

"I never became a musician who spends six hours a day in the practice room. I knew some students with lily white skin; they never went out on dates. I've always done many things." Some of those things include traveling to duplicate bridge tournaments in Deyver, Chicago and this summer to Boston. Blair is a Senior Master working for the Life Master bridge rank.

She and her husband play for fun, not to win a national title, she says. In fact, they met in Morehead at a bridge game and married three months later in 1970.

"I've got an awful lot to learn in bridge," she noted. "I don't think you can ever be the master; you can always be better and always learn more... but that's the way it is in anything, isn't it?"

As if teaching cello, string bass, string class and music literature wasn't enough, Suanne Blair took it upon herself to learn to play the harp and now teaches that at MSU, too. (Staff photo by Kathy Partin)

Blair also takes "fun courses" at MSU, such as abnormal psychology, death and dying, and medical ethics. "I've always loved studying. I'm a perennial student."

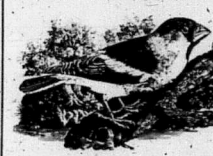

described, "very arduous. I found I'm not as young as I used to be." Her other interests vary from gardening to learning to play the harp. "It's important to increase interests and have new intellectual pursuits. Even if I'm extremely active, I still can't keep up."

Norma received a $50 savings bond from the Rowan County Education Association and will attend the district contest. The state contest is in Louisville in April.

To Represent County

Tammy Kidd, 15, Rowan County High sophomore, will be the county's representative to the first Kentucky Youth Leadership Seminar this spring. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Kidd was selected by her school's faculty and the Hugh O'Brien program to be one of 110 students attending the Jaycee managed event. Speakers at the seminar will cover government, business, education and political topics. (Staff photo by Kathy Parnell)

Starting School

As part of her "talent development" work at Rowan County High, Heidi Brewster is establishing a mini-school for children ages three to six. Held in her home under supervision, Heidi is planning various educational and recreational activities. The school will be on Saturdays from 11:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. during March and April. For information, call her at 784-6112 after 3 p.m.

PAPELIE

The Creedence Clearwater Revival LP currently on the market, labeled as "recorded at the Royal Albert Hall Concert in London" was not recorded there at all. It seems someone mislabeled the master tape. The material was actually recorded January, 1970 at the Oakland Coliseum. The record company is in the process of correcting the mistake, changing all forthcoming album jackets. If you have one of the first copies, you've got a collector's item.

Paul McCartney recently gave $100,000 to the New York Times Neediest Cases Fund. When Paul McCartney purchased the Edvard Munch Co. the rights to the song "On Wisconsin" were in the deal. Note every time the tune is performed royalties are due McCartney. Wisconsin Gov. Lee Dreyfus has written Paul asking him to give the song "to all the people of Wisconsin."

Abba will be offering stock in their Swedish holdings to the Swedish public. Within a year or two you will be able to buy stock in Abba here in the U.S. through their Polar Group.

Last year the records and tapes sold through U.S. Armed Services outlet stores alone brought $63 million to record companies.

The annual Charlie Daniels Volunteer Jam in Nashville last night featured a large variety of entertainers from Mickey Gilley and Roy Acuff to Molly Hatchet, Bill Joel and Ted Nugent. An album of the event will be issued later this year.

When The Police performed at the Variety Arts gig on the West Coast recently, only fans with blonde hair or blonde wigs were admitted. It was the group's Police Go Home show.

Many Australian music fans are upset that Air Supply wasn't nominated for any Grammy Awards.

Keith Emerson of Emerson Lake & Palmer will compose the musical score for the Sylvester Stallone/Billy Dee Williams film, "Night Hawks."

Ry Cooder (who has just released a new album) will write the music for "The Border," the picture stars Jack Nicholson, Warren Oates and Valerie Perrine.

Mel Tillis will appear in the upcoming Cannonball movie. "This Flick" also features Bert Reynolds, Roger Moore, Farrah Fawcett, Jessi Marin and Sammy Davis Jr. Terry Bradshaw joins Mel in a TV pilot based on the Cannonball film. The television version is called "Shot Trackers."

Sources at Atlantic Records say the Rolling Stones' next greatest hits package will be called "Suck-in the 70's."

Styx, who in a recent Gallup Poll were judged as the most popular rock band in America, have received a dubious form of flattery from their unknown criminal imitators. George Prealey, who was serving a sentence of successive weekends in jail for possession of a stolen car, had been occupying his weekdays imitating Styx' James Young ("J.Y."). Soon after the Prealey incident, Styx' management, office in Los Angeles received a call from a young lady in LA who wanted to make sure that her boyfriend was really Tommy Shaw of Styx, as he claimed to be. Knowing that the band was in the studio at the time, the office informed the young lady that her boyfriend was surely not Tommy Shaw. And recently yet more reports have surfaced of a gentleman claiming to be Styx' Dennis DeYoung and trying to woo women in that guise.

NEW TALENT
A new group called "Out Of 5 Doctors" has released their debut LP and single, "Want You Back." The new members sound a little like The Cars and The Knack, only their music seems a bit more frenzied.

Student Suit Could Delay GenTel Hike Request

FRANKFORT — A lengthy delay in a lawsuit challenging Gov. John Y. Brown Jr.'s executive order to merge the state's utility regulatory commissions could be costly for customers of General Telephone.

The University of Kentucky Student Association filed the lawsuit last Monday in Franklin Circuit Court. The students had intervened in a rate case filed by the phone company last November.

GenTel is seeking an increase of $23.4 million, an amount that could increase local telephone bills by more than 40 percent.

If the rate case is not decided by May 15, the company will be able to impose the full increase until the case is finally resolved. The same would apply to other utilities that have rate cases before the commissions.

The attorney for the UK Student Association, Keith Baker, however, says he does not believe that will happen because he plans to seek an injunction that would keep the situation as it is now.

The merger of the two commissions is scheduled to take place on March 1. A tentative date for a hearing on the suit has been set for Feb. 23.

If GenTel has a lower rate than requested approved after it has imposed the higher rates, it will have to refund the difference to customers. The commissions have an option on whether to order utilities to pay interest with the refunds, and rulings have varied from case to case.

According to one report, if GenTel imposed its increase for two months, and then was granted only half of its request, it could, under the law, receive an interest-free, short term loan of $1.9 million.

Class Has Field Day

Third and fourth grade students at Tilden Hogue Elementary had a field day Friday, Feb. 6.

They visited the Morehead State University planetarium and heard Dr. Whidden discuss the movements of the planets around the Sun and their relative distances and magnitudes.

Mr. Meade guided them around the science museum where they learned how animals and snakes are preserved after death for study.

Wayne McDaniel showed the group the college television station. They were told about T.V. cameras, lights and the control room and how a news show is produced.

Mrs. Carmen Evans gave instructions on tooth care at the dental clinic.

The day ended with a tour of McDonald's and the restaurant treated the students to lunch.

Girl Scout Troop News

Brownie Troop 99 made yarn angels as tree ornaments and took them to the Morehead Regional Center over the holidays. The second graders have been learning songs and games from other lands. Troop 99 also had a tour of Pizza Hut — which included free samples!

Junior Troop 595 have been working on the Dabbler in Arts badge since the holidays. The fourth, fifth and sixth graders have designed note cards, made a Girl Scout banner for their meeting place and for parades, learned a new folk dance and have written a story. Ron Dobbler visited the troop and demonstrated playing and singing with the dulcimer.

Vocational School Celebrates Awareness Week

By MARK PERKINS
Staff Writer

To help celebrate National Vocational Education Week (Feb. 8-14), Chris Wells, the director of the Rowan County Area Vocational Education Center, has taken steps this week to educate the community as to what the school is all about.

This week the school set up an exhibit inside the mall in the Trademore

Shopping Center, and students are distributing brochures and literature about specific programs offered at the school. "Also each day this week, WMOR radio has had someone from the school on its Needs and Problems program in the morning," Wells said.

The school also aired a special program over the university cable television station which featured non-traditional program areas. Wells explained that the program concentrated on skill areas where men and women aren't normally found. For example, males performing as nurses and secretaries, and women learning auto mechanics and carpentry skills.

Wells pointed out that he doesn't like to hold open houses during this time of the year, due to the bad weather. "We would rather hold an open house in late March or early April, when we could make definite plans," he said.

The Vocational Education Center, which is over 10 years old, is located at 121 East Second Street, and operates on a $300,000 budget.

For every student we admit into the school, we have to turn two down," Wells said.

The center currently has 40 full-time adult students enrolled in its business and office education program, as well as 60 high school students. The drafting program has 27 high school students and two full-time adult students; building trades has 18 adults during the evening and 35 high school students during the day; and the auto mechanics program, educates 37 high school students and 17 adults.

The first-floor of the center contains three shop areas, each 47 feet by 64 feet, three large classrooms, and two offices. The classrooms and shop areas are used by the auto mechanics, building trades and drafting programs. The second floor consists of three classrooms and a small office area is used for business and office training.

Three, 12 foot, by 34-foot mobile units are located next to the building as evidence of just how tight the center is for space. The units house the consumer and family life skills center, offices for the cooperative education coordinators, counseling and financial aid services, as well as additional classrooms.

History

The Rowan County Area Vocational Education Center began operation in September, 1970 as an extension of Ashland Area Vocational School. Two programs were open at that time for students — Enrollment consisted of 40 students in business and office training and 26 students in the auto mechanics program. An eight-month manpower program in clerk-stenographer training began in February 1971 for 20 students. Expansion began during the second year of operation with the addition of training programs in building trades and drafting for secondary students. The addition of these two programs accounted for an increase in secondary enrollment to 104 students. Short refresher courses were offered in typing and shorthand during the evening for people who were employed but needed to update their skills.

Four new programs were added for postsecondary students in August 1973. New programs included, business and office education, auto mechanics, building trades and agricultural training for the disadvantaged.

Connie Fultz, 16, and Debbie White, 15, demonstrate the proper technique of administering CPR which is part of the instruction in the health careers class at the Rowan County Area Vocational Education Center in Morehead.

Programs in auto mechanics, building trades, business and office education and drafting were approved for veterans' training. Health careers were added in the fall of 1977 for high school students. Heating and air conditioning was approved for use during the 1979 school year. A part-time teacher for disadvantaged students was employed for the 1979-80 school year.

Vocational education programs are free to high school students. Post secondary or adult long-term students pay a $3 enrollment fee and $4 per month tuition plus books. Average cost for students is approximately $100 per year for a 1,320-hour program which lasts 11 months.

The U.S. Forest Service maintains a breeding flock of Giant Canada Geese for the purpose of establishing a free-flying flock of the birds on Cave Run Lake. Outlook Is Brighter Now For Giant Canadas At Lake

By MARK PERKINS
Staff Writer

The U.S. Forest Service's program to establish a free-flying flock of Giant Canada Geese on Cave Run Lake is standing on much better footing than a year ago.

The program, which began in 1977 when 20 of the birds were brought to Morehead through the Tennessee Valley Authority, seemed to be in jeopardy about a year ago due to poaching.

Harry Pawelczyk, a wildlife biologist with the forest service, however, says the situation has improved. "This time last year I was skeptical about the program because of the poaching, but this year we haven't experienced any problems. The public seems to be cooperating and people are more aware of the program and are more concerned," he says.

"That's exactly what we need in order to have a successful program. If the public doesn't cooperate, no matter how many birds we release, the program will be a failure," he continues.

Last fall the forest service released 23 Giant Canadas from a 17-acre fenced preserve off KY 801, near Cave Run Lake. The largest weighed 18 pounds and had a wing span of six feet. According to Pawelczyk, the current breeding flock numbers about 30 birds.

The geese were moved to different wintering quarters this year, which Pawelczyk figures helped eliminate the poaching problem. "At least the people who poached and shot the birds last winter don't know where they are," he says.

In addition, the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources closed the counties surrounding the lake to geese hunting. Pawelczyk points out that geese can't reproduce until they are three years old. "So, in order to establish a free-flying flock on the lake, we had to protect them during the hunting season," he says.

This spring the geese will be returned to the enclosed preserve for breeding, and Pawelczyk anticipates about 35 more birds to be raised this year.

Pawelczyk says the forest service plans on breeding and releasing the geese up through 1985.

The Giant Canada, a sub species of the Canadian geese, was thought to be extinct until 1964 when a small flock was discovered in captivity by a game breeder.

From that nucleus flock, several birds were bred by the TVA and the first group of 20 was brought to Morehead in 1977 from the TVA in Norris, Tenn. Another 20 were brought from Tennessee in 1978 and 10 more were added in 1979. Three more birds were born to the flock.

The forest service had built a second pond in the geese preserve and provides them with feed, and nesting structures, which consist of floating rafts.

After the breeding program is concluded, the forest service will continue to maintain the preserve, and use it for a display area.

"Things are not perfect, but they are looking better, and because this is a long term program, there is still a ways to go before it's a complete success," Pawelczyk concludes.

This is the 17-acre fenced in preserve off KY 801, near Cave Run Lake, which is used to house the Giant Canada Geese. The U.S. Forest Service built a second pond in the preserve last fall.

Vikings Work For Good Shots, Earn Easy Win Over Menifee

By KURT PICKERING
Sports Staff Writer

The Rowan County Vikings solidified their position as district favorite and moved within one game of an undefeated Eastern Kentucky Conference campaign Tuesday night by routing Menifee County 78-53 in Morehead.

The Vikings put on a clinic in how to get the best shots and how to hit them, particularly in the early going. In the first quarter, the Vikes took only two shots from outside the free throw lane. With such percentage shots, Rowan County couldn't help but shoot well, but even so their percentage of 77.8 from the field was almost unheard of.

The clinic continued in the second frame. While the Vikes tailed off a bit, they stayed above 70 percent, hitting 77.9 percent in the quarter to total 73.9 for the half.

Menifee County, meanwhile, was hitting only 37 percent from the floor. The Vikings led by as many as 17 in the half and, following a late Wildcat surge, took a 42-31 bulge into the locker room.

Menifee County put up a struggle in the third quarter, closing to within three with less than two minutes left. But Rowan County scored the last six points of the stanza and never led less than five in the fourth quarter.

Rowan County turned the game into a blowout by scoring a dozen points each from the stripe and the floor. The Vikings led by as many as 18 points in the frame.

Rowan County's final floor shot percentage was a fine 57.4. But the Vikings were just as hot from the line.

where they hit 12 of 16 for 75 percent.

By comparison, Menifee County hit 41.1 percent from the floor and a fancy 81 percent at the stripe, the latter coming on a 17 of 23 performance.

The Wildcats seemed jinxed at both ends of the game. While they hit half their floor shots in the middle two quarters, Menifee County managed only four boards in 14 in the first frame and seven of 18 in the last.

Individually, one player from each team hit two dozen points to deadlock for game honors. For Rowan County, it was Randy Eldridge, who collected 12 points in the second quarter alone. The big man for Menifee County was Robert Wells. Other twin figure scorers in the game were Wade Littleton with 13, Matt Spivey with 12 and John Stamper with 11 for the Vikes and Norman Swartz with 15, Bryan Blankenship with 11 and Tim Swartz with 10 for the Cats.

Rowan County enjoyed an 11-carom advantage, 38-27. John Stamper topped the Viking boardmen by snaring 15 and the Eldridge added 11. Wells and Blankenship collected 11 each for the losers.

The game was relatively turnover-defense rich but Menifee County lost 11 times and Menifee County lost it nine times.

Fouling was a factor besides the free throw line. Menifee County lost three free throws, two of them starters to the five-foul limit. Norman Swartz, Marty Clark and Rick Bottom were all forced out as the Cats committed 23 personals. Rowan County was called for 18 fouls, plus a technical on Kelly Curtsinger for slapping the backboard, but no one fouled out.

"We always have a problem like that when we go to our bench," Viking coach Ted Trent said when asked about the third-quarter disappearance of the Rowan County lead. "But I think letting them play now will help us in March. Trent was referring to the district playoff, the draw for which is set for February 20.

"I think a key tonight was Wade Littleton's play," Trent added. "The senior pivotman probably came into his own."

"But if I start naming names, I can name the whole squad. I think the overall play of my bench was a little better than theirs." The scoring, at least, tends to back up Trent's starters scored 21 Rowan County points, compared with only two by the Wildcats.

But Trent cautioned against too much confidence. "This game came much harder than the score. My kids know that. Menifee County is going to be a force in the district."

For Menifee County, it was the second loss of the season to Rowan County, and the fourth in nine EKC games. The Cats are now 13-9. Rowan County, meanwhile, ran its record against district teams to 3-1 and collected its fifth win in as many EKC outings. Only East Carter County, February 20 in Morehead, stands between the Vikings and an unbeaten EKC season. Overall, the Vikes are 7-10 going into tonight's home game with McDowell.

Farmers Hosts 7th Grade Tournament

The first annual Farmers Invitational Seventh Grade basketball tournament was held his week.

The schedule has been moved back because of the weather. If school is held today, the finals will take place Saturday night.

Over 300 Honor 1980 Eagle Football Team

Over 300 people crowded into the Morehead State University student center cafeteria Tuesday night to honor the 1980 Eagle football team.

Steve Loney, the new Eagle coach read a telegram that former coach Tom Lichtenberg sent saying that "like everything else the Quarterback Club has done, I'm sure this banquet is first class." The telegram read:

"The 1980 banquet was the second annual dinner for the MSU football team sponsored by the Quarterback Club, and featured Tommy Bell as the guest speaker."

The player who made the most trips to the awards table was Dorrton Hunter, the Eagles' leading offensive player last year. Hunter received an award noting his 13 NCAA Division II records, an award for being named the offensive player of the year and an award for being named to the All-Ohio Valley Conference team.

Kevin Durban, a freshman linebacker from Hillard, Ohio, was given the president's award for outstanding work in the classroom as well as on the field. Durban has a 3.94 grade point average.

The 1980 rookie of the year played 27 quarters and finished the season with the highest average per carry anyone on the team, Brian Shimer, a tailback from Naples, Florida.

Ray Yates, a 6-3, 251 pound offensive tackle from Trotwood, Ohio, was presented the 100% award.

Ken Hopkins, a junior defensive back from West Virginia, was given the Player of the Year award.

Danny Gooch, a sophomore defensive back, who set several defensive records last season, was named the defensive player of the year.

At the end of the banquet, Ted Beckmann, president of the MSU Quarterback Club, challenged Loney, and the rest of the football team to strive for an OVC championship this fall.

Lady Vikings Get Valuable Court Experience With Boyd Co. Win

The Rowan County Lady Vikings raised their season record to 16-4 last Monday evening, but what was just as important was where the contest was played.

Boyd County was the opposition, and Rowan County won with ease, 38-16, but the game was originally scheduled to be played in Morehead. By agreement between both coaches the contest was shifted to the East Carter gym, the site of the 16th regional.

Both schools wanted experience in the gym which will host the regional tournament," said Claudia Hicks, the Lady Viking coach.

The Boyd County contest provided everyone on the Rowan County team a chance to see some action. Hicks could have very well run up the score against Boyd County, but chose not to.

The Lady Lions stayed with the top rated school in the 16th region throughout the first quarter, and the score was tied at the end of eight minutes at 14.

"We opened up in a 2-1-2 zone defense in order to protect the inside because that's where we thought they would cause us the most trouble," Hicks explained.

The problem was Boyd County brought along some good outside shooters, including Carla Jewitt who struck for 29 points, mostly from the outside.

Rowan County switched to a 1-3-1 defense which put additional pressure on the Lady Lions outside game. The result was Boyd County could manage just half as many points in the second as they scored in the first quarter.

On the other hand Rowan County opened up to score 20 points to take a 34-21 halftime lead.

Jeanne Cornett tossed in two baskets, Debbie Dehart had one, Karla May had two baskets and two free throws, Jelana Haney collected three baskets, and Mary Beth Hamm rounded out the second quarter scoring with a basket.

Playing mostly with substitutes in the second half, the Lady Vikings were outscored by one, 25-24.

May led Rowan County in scoring with 18 points. The junior guard connected on seven out of 16 shots from the field and four out of six from the free throw line. She also grabbed four rebounds, handed out seven assists, came up with three steals and had a blocked shot.

Cornett was the second leading scorer for Rowan County with 15 points. The senior collected seven baskets out of 15 attempts from the field and hit one out of two free throw attempts. She also grabbed a total of four rebounds, had four assists and two steals.

Haney was also in double figures with 14. The junior who plays both forward and center, connected on seven out of 10 shots from the field and grabbed four rebounds. She also had two assists and four steals.

Dehart and Hamm were the only other Lady Vikings to light up the scoreboard. Dehart hit three out of four shots from the field and connected on her only free throw for a total of seven points. She also had four rebounds.

Hamm tossed in two out of three shots for four points, had three rebounds and one blocked shot.

The Lady Vikings hit on 49 percent from the field as a team, and 66 percent from the free throw line.

Boyd County connected on just 33 percent from the field, but hit 72.7 percent from the free throw line.

Bourbon Beats Breck Girls By 22

The Bourbon County Lady Colonels took advantage of some poor floor shooting and a big third quarter to defeat the University Breckinridge Lady Eagles 59-30 Monday night.

While Breck was hitting only three of 24 first half key tries, Bourbon County was on the way to a 22-13 first quarter edge. The winners then put the game away with a 22-4 third quarter spurt that saw the Lady Colonels hit nine of 11 floor shots, many on fast-break layups. "Those fast breaks weren't coming off the press," Breck coach Jim Austin said afterward. "They were coming off defensive rebounds."

With the game secure, Bourbon County hit only two field goals in the fourth quarter, losing the frame by a 13-8 count but still taking the game easily.

Breck owned a tremendous rebound advantage, 35-18, but gave away much of that advantage by committing 23 turnovers. The Lady Eagles also failed to take advantage of some of the press. As Austin said, "On one occasion down the floor we had four shots at the basket and none of them went in. In fact, we had two or three times like that." Situations such as that, of course, contributed nothing to the scoreboard.

The Lady Eagles improved their shooting from 12.5 percent in the first half to 31.4 percent on the game by holing eight of 21 in the second half. Bourbon County's numbers shone by comparison, 17 of 38 for 44.7 percent on the night, including 55 percent in the second half.

"When we forced them to set up their offense, we did all right," Austin said. "When they got fastbreaks, that's when they got that lead built up."

The victors outshot Breck at the free throw line as well. Bourbon County connected on 54.5 percent on 18 of 33; the Lady Eagles shot 36.4 percent, eight of 22. Breck committed 22 personal fouls and lost two players, Sandy Carter and Mary Braugher, to the limit. Bourbon County, which had no one fouled out, committed 33.

Shari Rau was the game's scoring leader with 18, most from the outside. Susan Rose added 12 points and nine rebounds.

For Breck, Ellen Brown scored 12 points, all on field goals. Brown's six layups outnumbered the rest of the Lady Eagles' combined by one. Shelli Lichtenberg led the Breck board parade with 15, while Kim Bailey had 11.

Bourbon County collected only its fifth victory in 12 losses. Breck, now 2-17, faces Whitesburg Saturday at 5 p.m. in a preliminary game to the Morehead State-Northern Kentucky game at Wetherby Gym.

Breckinridge Loses In Overtime To Sayre, 61-59

By KURT PICKERING
Staff Sports Writer

Basketball is a game of points, not percentages, as the University Breckinridge Eagles proved Friday night in Lexington, as Breck dropped a 61-59 overtime decision to Sayre.

The two clubs were virtually even from the floor as far as shooting percentage goes, and Breck enjoyed a wide advantage in percentage at the free throw line. The Eagles tossed out 42.2, 18 and Breck hit 46.6, 10 out of 21.

But the points produced did not reflect the percentages. Sayre outscored Breck by 10 points from the floor, hitting 24 of 57 as opposed to 19 of 45. The Eagles compensated somewhat at the stripe, getting 25 of 28, compared to Sayre's 13 of 21; but the decision boiled down to the fact that the Spartans outscored the Eagles 5-3 in the overtime.

Another contrast between the schools was in balance. As usual, Joe Magrane was the key to the Eagle offense;

Sayre, however, showed a nicely balanced score sheet.

Magrane led all scorers by far with his 27 points, including 10 of 16 from the floor and seven of 10 at the line. He was the only Eagle in double digits.

Sayre, on the other hand, placed four players in twin figures, all within five points of each other. Hugh Gibbs led the way with his 16, followed by Tim, Peterson's 13, William "Bebe" Peterson's 12 and the 11 of Joe Cies.

At a club, Breck narrowly outrebounded 12 losses, Breck, 33-51. The Eagles' top carom man was sophomore center Sam Holbrook, who pulled down 12-Newcomer was the leading Sayre rebounder with seven.

The Spartans offset the Eagle board advantage by playing a better floor game. While Breck was committing 18 turnovers, Sayre held its total to just seven.

The Spartans committed two more personal fouls than the Eagles, 19-17.

Sayre's victory improved its record to 7-1. Breck fell to 7-13. The Eagles take a rare Tuesday off tonight, then face Russell there Friday.

Norris Beckler, a junior on the Morehead State basketball team, leaps high for a rebound. Beckler entered last night's game against Tennessee Tech with 11.6 points per game average. He is the team leader in assists with 37 and 22 points per game.

Phillip Mabry, a member of the Tilden Hogge seventh grade basketball team, scored 24 points Monday night to lead the Mustangs to a 38-34 win over Farmers.

Steve Loney, the new Eagle coach read a telegram that former coach Tom Lichtenberg sent saying that "like everything else the Quarterback Club has done, I'm sure this banquet is first class." The telegram read:

Wells Gets 100th Win With Louisville Victory

By KURT PICKERING
Sports Staff Writer

Mickey Wells seems to have weathered the storm. A month ago, the Morehead State Lady Eagle coach was in the midst of a six-game suspension, slapped on him for slugging an official in the Kentucky game New Year's Night. Tuesday, Wells passed a major milestone when his Lady Eagles outlasted Louisville 79-73 at Wetherby Gym. The victory was Wells' 100th as MSU boss. Wells, currently in his sixth season at the Morehead helm, now has 125 career wins overall.

The victory was a milestone in more than one way for the players themselves, too. For one thing, it evened their record at 12-12, marking the first time the Lady Eagles have been at .500 since '73. For another, the Lady Eagles proved they can win without the scoring of Donna Stephens.

Morehead State was 3-4 when Stephens returned from Missouri. Since then, the 6'1" junior has handled the great bulk of the scoring and twice been named Ohio Valley Conference player of the week. Without her following an injury in the Tennessee Tech game, the Lady Eagles suffered one of their worst losses of the season.

Tuesday against Louisville, Stephens was on the floor but suffered an off-night of the sort nightmares are made. Stephens, who is threatening the single-season scoring average record now held by Donna Murphy, missed seven of 10 field goals, scored only nine points and committed nine turnovers. The night was not a total loss for Stephens, who hit three of four free throws and pulled down nine rebounds, but it was not a game she is likely to remember with fondness.

Irene Moore and Priscilla Blackford picked up the slack admirably. Moore led all scorers with 23 points and also had a game-high six assists; Blackford added 21 points and led all rebounders with 12.

Louisville, meanwhile, put five different players in double digits but got only three points from the rest of the team combined. The top Cardinal was Sheila Force with 18, followed by 15 from Stephanie Edwards. Lisa C.athers, 13 by Valerie Gay and 10 for Rosalind Smith. Force and Gay topped the rebounding with seven each.

Morehead never trailed, and the game was tied only at two. The Lady Eagles built a 14-point halftime edge, largely because the Cards hit only 22.5

percent from the floor in the opening stanza. Louisville gave it a go after intermission, twice drawing within six, but the Lady Eagles were able to hold on.

For the game, the Cards improved their field goal percentage to 39. They also hit 90 percent of their foul shots, although they only launched 10. From the field, Morehead scored on 33 of 68 shots for 48.5 percent, while shooting 76.5 percent at the stripe on 12 of 17.

The low number of free throws reflected the fact that the game was fairly foul free. Louisville committed 16. Morehead 15.

The Lady Eagles outrebounced the Cardinals 32-7, and it's a good thing they had that margin. It may have been the rebounds that kept the sloppy Morehead from being the game's deciding factor. MSU established a new season high for turnovers in a game, committing 32 floor errors. Louisville's 19 seemed minuscule by comparison.

Louisville is now 11-12, 3-6 in the Kentucky Women's Intercollegiate Conference. The victory kept the Lady Eagles unbeaten at home, where Morehead was 9-0 heading into last night's rematch with Marshall. The Lady Eagles whipped the Green Gals earlier this month in Huntington.

The MSU Quarterback Club held its second annual banquet in honor of the 1980 Eagle football team. Seated at the head table, left to right, Steve Loney, the Morehead coach; Tommy Bell, a Lexington attorney, and former NFL official, who was the guest speaker; and Ted Beckmann, president of the MSU Quarterback Club.

011 In Memoriam

IN MEMORY

In memory of Everett Fultz who passed away eleven years ago February 13, 1970.

Eleven years has passed since you were called to be with Him above. I'm lonely since you left me here, you were my own true love.

You were my life companion on I could depend.

A father to my children, my husband and best friend.

To know you was to love, the simple way you lived.

No one asked for anything you didn't try to give.

These things I remember while thinking of the past.

Someday we'll meet up yonder and be home at last.

Sadly missed by his wife and children

066 Public Notice

As a result of Public Law 96-499, the Rowan County Board of Education is announcing the revised family size income standards for determining eligibility for free and reduced price meals and free milk in the National School Lunch Program, School Lunch Program, and Special Milk Program.

FAMILY SIZE	REVISED INCOME SCALE
	COLUMN I FREE MEALS AND FREE MILK (If family income is within)	COLUMN II REDUCED PRICE MEALS (If family income is within)
1	0 - $ 5,700	0 - $ 9,950
2	0 - 7,200	0 - 10,170
3	0 - 8,700	0 - 10,390
4	0 - 10,200	0 - 10,610
5	0 - 11,700	0 - 10,830
6	0 - 13,200	0 - 11,050
7	0 - 14,700	0 - 11,270
8	0 - 16,200	0 - 11,490
9	0 - 17,700	0 - 11,710

For each additional family member, add $1,500 per year to the income level for free meals and $1,300 to the income level for reduced price meals.

School officials will review all free and reduced meal applications currently on file in the schools using the revised income scale. If any change occurs in a student's eligibility status, parents will be notified in writing 10 days prior to any change being made in benefits.

In determining a child's eligibility under the new income guidelines, a school shall compare the family's income to the guidelines without allowing any hardship provisions. The hardship provision has been replaced by a standard deduction which is incorporated in the income scale.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if a family's size and income changes during the school year, the family should contact the school to file a new application.

Under provisions of the policy, the school official will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If he wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request either orally or in writing to John Brock, Superintendent, 118 University Blvd. 784-8029.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, or national origin. Each school and board of education has a copy of the completed policy which may be reviewed by an interested party.

Under these announced legislative changes, local boards of education are allowed sufficient time to implement the required revisions.

Five More In May Primary
Five more persons have filed as candidates in the May primary since last week, bringing the total number of those seeking office to 44. Morje Hall Elam, Rt. 1, Democrat, and Norman N. Roberts, Rt. 1, Republican, are running for county clerk. Also in that race is Jean W. Bailey, Morehead, Democrat, who is seeking re-election. Calvin Ray Lytle, Rt. 4, Republican, joins Democrats John B. Hamm and Jim Nickell, both of Clearfield, in filing for county judge-elective. Two more persons have entered the contest for magistrate of District 1. Nadine Pennington Prater, Rt. 5, and Lawrence Arnett Jr., Rt. 1, are the newest Democrat contenders. Five other Democrats and four Republicans have filed before them, making the District 1 seat the hottest of the four magistrate positions.

Moore. Another agenda matter by the council resulted in the first reading of a budget amendment ordinance, after councilmen passed the necessary motion.

Evans told the council that several line items in its operating budget adopted at the beginning of the fiscal year would have to be amended, since state law does not allow governmental bodies to operate under a deficit budget. He said the items would eventually go over their original budget projections before the fiscal year was over. Amendments to governmental budgets can only be made by passing an ordinance, according to state law.

Once the ordinance is read a second time, passed by the council and published in the newspaper - the amendments will be legal and the amended budget will become the new operating budget of the council.

In other business, the council:

- Upon the recommendation of Evans increased the mileage expense paid to city officials for the use of private automobiles for travel purposes from 15 cents to 21 cents by way of a carried motion.
- Passed a motion to re-designate a yellow parking zone between the Combs and Lappin Buildings on the MSU campus into a loading zone, so that trucks could unload supplies into a cafeteria in the immediate area without blocking traffic on the street.
- Adopted a city safety program for city employees and established an Accident Review Board. The objective of the safety program is aimed at the elimination of unsafe conditions and work practices, as well as unnecessary suffering. The purpose of the Accident Review Board will be to review all impact-type accidents and determine liability. If the operator of a city owned vehicle were found to be negligent he or she would be assessed for the cost of the damage not to exceed $200. The program and board was implemented into city policy by way of an executive order from Acting Mayor Wells.
- Received an appraisal report from Evans in regard to the Rt. 32 property owned by the city. Evans said the 68 acres were appraised at $50 per acre. "I didn't know we had any property in Rowan County that sold that low," he said.
- Passed a motion accepting the bid for a new police cruiser from Larry Fannin Chevrolet. Fannin's bid for a Chevrolet Impala was $8,413.64. It was the only bid received by the city.
- Declined to take action on a farmer's request to lease the Industrial Site Property near the State Maintenance Garage for agricultural purposes.

WKU Students March

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (UPI) - A group of Western Kentucky University students braved 10-degree temperatures Wednesday afternoon to hold a "Back Zack" rally on "The Hill" in support of President Donald W. Zacharias.

The group, its numbers reduced by the frigid temperatures, marched at 13th and College streets and formed up the hill to Cherry Hall, a campus administration building.

Student spokesmen said they represented a "positive protest" in support of Dr. Zacharias' efforts in speaking out against proposed state university budget cuts last month.

Dr. Zacharias on Jan. 8 outlined the expected impact of the state's mandated budget reductions on WKU.

Stamper Trial Postponed Until Today

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — The federal trial of state Senator Woodrow Stamper, D-West Liberty, and Lexington realtor Robert F. Link, was postponed until 9:30 a.m. today. The trial was scheduled to resume Thursday with opening statements expected from the prosecution and defense but U.S. District Court Judge Bernard T. Moynihan ordered the postponement Wednesday afternoon. U.S. Attorney Robert Andary said Wednesday he believed Moynihan postponed the trial because of bad weather. Kentucky was hit by a winter storm Wednesday but much of the state missed the major brunt of the bad weather. Andary said some of the jurors, who were seated Tuesday, live in towns far from Lexington, the site of the federal trial. Stamper and Link are charged with conspiracy, extortion and mail fraud in connection with the state's 1977 purchase of the former Hidden Valley resort in Powell County. Stamper is also charged with filing false federal income tax returns.

Valentine and Juno

St. Valentine probably had nothing to do with what we call valentines. Reference books say the feast of this Roman Martyr is celebrated about the time of an old holiday devoted to Juno. It is from this association that we have come to call St. Valentine as the patron saint of lovers, not because of anything he did himself.

This practice of celebrating Christian holidays at the time of pagan ones was common. Since people were accustomed to celebrate at those times anyway, the early Christian fathers provided a substitute for the pagan observances. This naturally led to the inclusion of some pagan customs in the Christian celebrations.

Stranger things have happened, and even if Valentine flies under false colors, as it were, we have a pleasant holiday.

A Proclamation

We seek, in the 1980s, an era of national renewal, an era that will set loose again the energy and ingenuity of the American people.

Today there are 35 million disabled Americans who represent one of our most underutilized national resources. Their will, their spirit, and their hearts are not impaired, despite their limitations. All of us stand to gain when those who are disabled share in America's opportunities.

To increase the participation of disabled persons in our national life and in the lives of other nations the United Nations has designated 1981 the International Year of Disabled Persons. America has long been a world leader in this area, and the United States

Council for the International Year of Disabled Persons and our Federal government have already responded to the United Nations challenge. Programs are running throughout the Nation.

Through partnerships of disabled and nondisabled persons; of our private sector and our government; and of our national, state, and community organizations, we can expand the opportunities for disabled Americans to make a fuller contribution to our national life.

I am proud to pledge the cooperation of my Administration and the Federal agencies under my jurisdiction, including the Federal Inter-agency Committee for the International Year of Disabled Persons.

—Ronald Reagan

Killer Film?

A controversy has arisen over whether showings of "The Deer Hunter," an award-winning film, are responsible for injuries and deaths.

There are reports that 15 persons shot themselves, in apparent imitation of a Russian roulette scene in the film.

The gun lobbyists have long maintained that guns ought not to be blamed for shootings. "Guns don't kill people, people do," is their slogan. Actually, people use guns to shoot people. Blaming "The Deer Hunter" for imitative shootings is going a step further than blaming guns for shooting. If you hold the movie responsible, your position is that a fictional act on celluloid inspired people to use guns to shoot people.

Of course human beings can be influenced by fiction. If they were not, there would be little incentive to write it and few readers for it. Books, the theatre and the cinema make us cry, laugh, shiver with fear and joy. They can make us rage and they can make us mourn. They can thrill us and chasten us. If we let them, and they are well made, books and plays and films can make us forget reality; they can give us a world to replace the real one.

For the reasonably sane, though, the new world is short-lived. At the end of a chapter or an act or when the projector stops, we return to reality. If fiction to be blamed for the actions of those who cannot tell the difference?

No reasonable adult will shoot himself or another person simply because he saw such a shooting play acted in a movie. Most children would not do so, either. Those who might be so impressionable should be shielded from influences that might harm them. Surely, it is the responsibility of parents to see that unstable, impressionable children are not exposed to films too mature for them. It is equally a parental task to deny children access to firearms they cannot be trusted to use properly.

Tan Your Hide

The old science fiction idea of ending racial discrimination by making everyone green or blue may be given a chance to be tested soon.

Press reports say Laboratoire Bio-Chimique of Montreal has announced it is making a pill which would dye fatty body tissue. The present dyes are said to produce the appearance of a sun tan, without the sun. If it works, can it be long before other colors besides the traditional light brown become available? Will those with more money than taste color their skins to match their eyes or furs or cars? Will wild-eyed idealists hatch plots to fill our water supplies with these pills, so all of us will turn burnt amber, forcing us to devise new grounds for discrimination? Only time will tell.

Agree Or Not . . .

FRANKFORT — While kickbacks and the splitting of commissions on workers' compensation insurance for state employees during the Carroll administration was the subject of federal grand jury indictments last week, this type of insurance is important to the state's economy in the private sector.

This type of insurance has been a hot political subject for many past sessions of the Kentucky General Assembly and reached a sort of climax in the 1980 session when legislation was passed to force reduction of premiums by 25 to 30 percent.

The cost of this type of insurance is based upon the experience rating of all types of businesses and industry for accident occurrences and for occupational diseases. The law requires this type of protective insurance for employees be carried with commercial companies or that the company be self assured.

Coal mining, logging and construction have become high risk industries and the rates are higher for this type of business. At one time in the early 1970s, some coal companies compensated insurance cost a dollar for each payroll dollar expended. This has been reduced considerably since then. However, it remains one of the large operating costs of the business.

Blacks have become a compensable industrial disease for the coal industry in the late 1950s and really mushroomed in the late 1960s and the 1970s when the federal government appropriated funds to compensate miners who contracted the disease in the early years as black lung was generally recognized as a compensable factor.

During calendar year 1980, workers in Kentucky were awarded $22,941,517.83 for disabilities from occupational disease, about 95 percent of it for black lung.

Of the total in awards was $18,500,118.37. These figures were supplied by the Kentucky Department of Labor where workers' compensation cases are handled.

The amount of the award to the disabled worker is based on the amount or percentage of disability. For total disability, the award is based on the average weekly wage per week in Kentucky.

The 1980 legislation was an important change in the awards for partial permanent disability. After July 15, 1980 the award was limited to 425 weeks instead of a lifetime. Industry had been fighting the lifetime award for permanent partial disability for many years in the legislature, but had no success until 1980 although some amendments to workers' compensation law was made every session.

In the late 1970, labor, business and the legislature realized that some clarification was absolutely necessary to untangle the mess in the compensation insurance field.

Many attorneys found workers' compensation insurance to be a lucrative field for making big sums of money, particularly in the practice of black lung cases.

The top attorneys in this field last year were Cawood Smith, Harlan, $278,964.00; Kelsey Friend, Pikeville, $260,000.00; Eugene Goss, Harlan, $235,000.00; Richard Cooper, Hazard, $235,000.00; George Chad Perry, Paintsville, $214,966.31; Herbert Deskins, Pikeville, $214,500.00; Legnd Monhollon, Madisonville, $213,885.00; Jerry Rhoads, Madisonville, $210,397.00; Grayson Johnson, Hindman, $128,967.62; W.W. Burchett, Prestonsburg, $122,000.00.

The top ten for 1979 were Goss, $233,996.20; Monhollon, $189,830.40; Friend, $181,625.00; Deskins, $178,131.43; Cooper, $159,000.00; Smith, $150,000.00; Perry, $156,000.00; Earl Cole, Barbourville, $143,940.00; Johnson, $234,720.00; and Burchett, $126,734.00.

Letters To The Editor

The Editor: I am writing this letter in regard to our magistrates who seem to be so concerned about Brooks Karkick and the taxpayer's money.

The magistrates state they are concerned about Brooks Karkick and his holding two jobs and wasting the taxpayer's money.

I feel, and I am sure several other people in the community will agree, that if the magistrates were as concerned over the taxpayer's money as was mentioned in Friday's paper, they would get out in their districts and try to collect their pay.

Also I feel we, the people of Rowan County, saw just how "concerned" the magistrates were about the taxpayer's money when they went against the taxpayer's vote to buy the Martindale Building for the new courthouse.

I think if our magistrates would get out and do work in their districts and not have the time or energy to spend thinking of ways to start trouble at every meeting as we have seen evidence of each meeting.

I trust that we, as taxpayers, when it comes time to vote, will stop and think over the past few years and just see how our magistrates have done for us and our community and itself this is the kind of thing we are wanting to see for our community.

The Editor: Several weeks ago, I wrote a letter to your newspaper, hoping for a small article that would inform the readers of my mother's (Mrs. Delphia Beaire) forthcoming birthday. You were gracious enough to publish the letter and I'm so happy to say, the response was even greater than I dared hope.

To the many old friends, and acquaintances who sent cards and letters, please accept my sincere and heart-felt gratitude. The happiness and pleasure she derived from her Kentucky friends cannot be expressed by mere words.

Her health doesn't allow her to reply personally but be assured each day you are in her thoughts and that you made her feel remembered and loved.

I might add that I, too, enjoyed this trip down memory lane and send a warm hello to everyone.

Thank you and God bless you.

The Editor: In recent months, many plans have been made, hands shaken and backs slapped in an effort to raise money for the elementary schools in Rowan County.

I must congratulate those who have done the planning, shaking and slapping. The money has been raised.

Now one must ask oneself, what is to be done with the hard-earned money. Are there new sports supplies to be bought? New playground equipment? No, the calm reply, air conditioning!

Surprised? So was I. A few days ago, purely by accident, I was given the opportunity to inspect the library of my local grade school. To say the least, I was dumfounded. The encyclopedias were dated, 1973. The most recent magazines were 1971. There isn't even a part time librarian.

What few books there are so ragged that they are disgraceful.

At this point I have only one question to ask: When did the parents of this country start putting the comfort of a child ahead of his learning? Are we to have a nation of comfortable incompetents?

It is my opinion that we are far better off having our children slightly uncomfortable now and have them be able to function in the competitive world tomorrow. Our children will thank you for the chance to learn.

Sincerely,
Robin Barck

The Editor: How do you feel about your new NOW Checking Account?

If you are among the upper middle class or the rich, there is undoubtedly a smile upon your face. However, if you are among the "put and take" checkers, there is much dissatisfaction.

Should you be fortunate enough to have a balance in your NOW checking account, you will receive interest for doing so. Or if you can maintain a balance of $551.00, or more, you are not obligated to pay for the cost of this privilege.

However, once again, if you are like many of us who put our money in the bank only to take it out a few days later, we are obliged to pay a minimum of $60 per year for the use of this service.

Carrying cash on one's person or keeping it in one's home has become hazardous to one's health. In order to protect our money, and have a receipt for our payments, we must therefore use our checking accounts.

However, remember it was your neighbor from down the road who provided you with that added income and not the smiling cashier or your friendly banker.

K. Sue Black

The Editor: Do you ever get fed up with the one sided views we are fed via the idiot box? We have freedom-of-speech here but if you're looking for an alternative point of view you'll have to make a trip to the library and undertake a systematic search.

Take the hostage issue. If you can go beyond soap opera sentimentality and ethnocentrism, consider this: anyone who would represent a government which lets it be run by big business deserves to be held captive.

Our leaders harp about human rights but don't hesitate to support brutal governments when it is economically advantageous. We sell hazardous products to other countries so the producers of those products can get richer. Our Super Rich will stop at almost nothing in their quest for greater and greater wealth, even in the face of massive human starvation and suffering, which they could alleviate.

This is indeed a callous nation. Yet we continue to vote for the same type of leadership. We all deserve to be held hostage for paying taxes into this greed machine.

We were born into this situation and thus are numb to it. But it is not too late to change. What can you do to express your dissatisfaction? Think, and act. Let's stop swallowing everything they tell us on TV and make the systematic search for alternative viewpoints in the "library."

"We're just 'house niggers,' allowed better food than the 'field niggers' and wearing fancier clothes, but none of us owns the land. In the cotton field, Massa owns it all and Massa - the two or three percent who essentially own America is the real problem." (William Ryan)

Thank you for allowing me to express my views.

Sincerely,
Darnell Davis

Commissioner of Revenue Robert Alphin called it "the most comprehensive personnel handbook to be issued to any department of state government."

"We are in effect a law enforcement agency," Alphin said. "Our employees must be beyond reproach."

The new policy:
-Limits acceptance of gifts, favors or entertainment by employees to "nominal courtesies extended in a spirit of hospitality."

-Requires employees to immediately return any gifts "which can be construed to be provided in connection with your departmental duties."

-Prohibits employees from using information obtained on the job for service gain when the information is not available to the public.

The handbook also provides Revenue employees with information on state and federal rules and regulations concerning fringe benefits, overtime, sick leave and other working conditions.

Friday The 13th Isn't All That Unlucky For Some

It's a big mouthful. But if you're afraid to ask your boss for a raise — much less step out of the house today — all because it's Friday the 13th, you may be suffering from it. It's a fear of the number 13 — the number of people attending Jesus Christ's Last Supper and the number of witches in a coven — that over the years has become a harbinger of bad luck. But this Friday the 13th, Ponce Cruse, better known as Heloise II in her nationally syndicated column, and Texas plumbing contractor David Evans aren't letting it get in the way of their wedding plans. The Grateful Dead rock group is planning to turn it into a wild music festival. And convicted killer David Dene Martin granted a last-minute postponement of his scheduled Friday the 13th execution, has had his day of ultimate bad luck turned into a day of hope.

In fact, an associate professor of psychiatry and behavioral science at the University of Louisville in Kentucky, says in his 15 years of dealing with patients with phobias he has never encountered anyone with triskaidekaphobia.

"I deal a lot with phobias, but I've never had anyone who is phobic about Friday the 13th," Dr. Curtis L. Barrett said. "There's a lot of superstition to it as opposed to a phobia. It certainly has not brought anyone to my clinic."

Miss Cruse, 29, the columnist who writes money and timesaving tips, and Evans, both of San Antonio, Texas, think a wedding altar is the most appropriate place this Friday. After the ceremony they will celebrate with a bash for 300 guests.

At the Marin Civic Center in San Francisco, the Grateful Dead and a group called the Rhythm Devils will put on a Friday the 13th show, billed "A Walk on the Wild Side."

And Friday the 13th will be a day of hope for Martin, sentenced to die in Louisiana's electric chair for killing four people in 1977. A New Orleans federal judge, acting on a petition charging Martin's lawyer was ineffective during his trial, Wednesday postponed his execution date.

Look Out... Today Is Friday The 13th

If you feel the superstition that Friday the 13th is unlucky, watch your step today.

Like broken mirrors and black cats in paths, the number 13 is approached with such caution that it is often omitted from elevator floor buttons.

"The number thirteen has different meanings to different cultures," said Dr. Perry LeRoy, professor of history at Morehead State University.

"It may be traced to the number of the witches' coven or to Jesus and His followers," said Dr. LeRoy in implicating the superstition probably was initiated by anti-Christ groups.

He added that most myths had their origin in medieval Europe.

At any rate, if you are apprehensive about today, be prepared to adhere to the same emotion next month when the 13th rolls up again on Friday.

After that, you can rest easy until November when the 13th again shows up on Friday.

Last year, there was only one bad luck day to worry about, June 13, compared to the three dates this calendar year.

In 1982, Friday the 13th will appear only once and that's in August.

MADISONVILLE, Ky (UPI) — It has been a relatively snow-free winter in western Kentucky but Brenda Holeman should remember Tuesday's, snow storm even if her newborn twins don't. "I'm feeling better," said the 19-year-old Dawson Springs woman while resting at the Regional Medical Center of Hopkins County. She gave birth to the twins in a station wagon and ambulance after her car ran off the road in the storm.

Daughters Jessica and Bethann, both five weeks premature, received oxygen to aid their breathing but otherwise were reported fine.

County Wrecks Hurt Two

State police worked two injury accidents in Rowan County Wednesday attributed directly to icy road conditions created by the severe winter storm that moved through the area.

A 7:45 a.m. mishap involving one car sent a Clearfield woman to the Saint Claire Medical Center for treatment of a fractured nose.

Connie Gardner, 31, Clearfield, was injured in an accident one and five-tenths of a mile east of Clearfield on KY 1167.

According to the state police report, the woman lost control of the vehicle on the ice, which caused it to leave the roadway and overturn.

She was released from the hospital following treatment.

Kenny Roberts, 19, Farmers, was injured in an accident that occurred one and six-tenths of a mile from Farmers on US 60 in another weather-related accident Wednesday morning.

State Police said that a car driven by Juel C. Link, 38, Salt Lick, had slowed for traffic on US 60, when the Roberts vehicle unable to stop due to the icy roads plowed into the rear of her car. Link was uninjured in the wreck. However, Roberts was treated at Saint Claire Medical Center for head injuries and released the same day.

The weather was also responsible for five other accidents in the immediate area investigated by the state police. All involved minor property damages which resulted in no injuries.
