OVC Proposes $1 Million Cable TV Expansion

A new cable television system having a 35-channel capacity and providing for improved reception will be constructed by OVC Telecommunications should city and county governments approve the cable company's rebuild proposal.

The proposal calls for replacement of 71.6 miles of cable and electronic equipment now attached to utility poles. Construction will take less than 24 months, said Joseph W. Taylor, OVC vice-president of operations. A second satellite earth receiving station would also be installed.

"Morehead and Rowan County will have one of the best cable TV systems in Kentucky when this system is rebuilt," noted Taylor.

Included in the proposal is an increase in the monthly basic cable rate to $8.50. SHOWTIME, the company's premium movie and entertainment service, would remain at $9.95 monthly. Upon completion of the rebuild, two new pay channels will be available for Morehead-Rowan County subscribers, giving OVC customers a choice of three pay channels.

Among the 23 channels scheduled to be initially energized are 10 satellite services, eight area television station signals and two local access channels.

The channel carriage includes Cincinnati's top-rated independent, Ch. 19, (WXIX) and another major independent, Ch. 9, (WGN) from Chicago. In addition to the USA Network and the Cable News Network, the company will also offer the 24-hour sports channel, ESPN.

In Judge's Absence... Court Appoints Two To Rowan Air Board

By ALICE AKIN
Staff Writer

Rowan Fiscal Court appointed two new members to the Air Board yesterday in absence of Judge/executive W.C. Flannery.

On motion of Paul Ousley, acting as chairman of the court in the judge's absence, and seconded by Lemuel Black Jr., the court approved the appointments of Alan Watts and Dr. Dean Owen to the board.

Ousley, Black and Roy Plunk voted yes on the action. Magistrate Calvin Jay Lytle was absent from the meeting.

Watts will replace John Paul Kegley, who resigned from the board last October.

Dr. Owen was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Harry Hosack who has moved to Utah.

The action is expected to repeat an argument between Judge Flannery and fiscal court members based on an attorney general's opinion that the appointment of air board members is under the jurisdiction of the judge.

In a similar situation several months ago, the court rescinded its appointment of Buddy Salyer to the board based on the opinion and on the advice of County Attorney John Cox.

Cox said yesterday, however, that the point had never been answered in the courts as to whether the chairman of the court acting in the judge's absence had the right to make appointments.

Ousley commented after court that he felt it was his duty to make the recommendations of the appointments.

CBS's Sawyer To Be Founders Day Speaker

CBS-TV, State Department Correspondent Diane Sawyer, a native of Louisville, will be the featured speaker for Morehead State University's 1981 Founders Day on Thursday, March 19.

A member of the CBS Washington news team since 1978, Sawyer previously served on former President Richard Nixon's White House staff and as a researcher on his autobiography, "RN."

She was elected in 1963 as America's Junior Miss after winning the Kentucky title. A graduate of Wellesley College, she was a broadcast journalist at WLKY-TV in Louisville from 1967 to 1970.

Sawyer was commended in the Feb. 28 issue of "TV Guide" for her reporting of the Iranian hostage crisis.

"Founders Day is a special time at Morehead State University and we are looking forward to sharing the observance with our friends," said John "Sonny" Allen, chairman of the 1981 Founders Day Committee.

The other major event in the day-long celebration will be a Fellowship Breakfast at 7 a.m. in the University Center Cafeteria. The breakfast program will recognize the role of the Christian Church in the founding of the institution which became MSU.

Diane Sawyer, TV Correspondent, will speak here.

Hunt Continues For Escapees

Local law enforcement authorities continue to search for the two Rowan County Jail inmates who successfully escaped from that facility last Saturday evening.

Clyde Busting and Gene Rivers (also known as Gene Glover) broke out of the jail, after rushing Jailer Roger Thomas with clubs they had apparently made from a broken broom handle.

Police Say Man Registered Stolen Car And Then Tried To Sell It To Dealer

Ohio law enforcement authorities apprehended a man yesterday who allegedly took a car out for a test drive from the Don McKenzie Ford dealership in Morehead Tuesday and failed to come back.

William L. Spencer, 30, 38 McPherson, Dayton, Ohio, is currently jailed without bond, after being arrested in Franklin County.

He is being held for two counts of receiving stolen property, as well as being named on two outstanding felony warrants from Oregon and an outstanding federal warrant from the U.S. Marshall's Office for being a federal posse violator.

According to Morehead City Police Chief Fred Barnsdale, the man allegedly rode off in a 1979 Ford Mustang power car from the Don McKenzie dealership around 1 p.m. Tuesday and failed to return. The car, which was silver in color with an orange racing stripe and letters designating "Official Pace Car," was promptly reported stolen to local law enforcement authorities.

The stolen car was entered into the police crime computer and authorities in the surrounding area and states were alerted to watch for it.

Lt. Jeffrey Linkner of the Madison Township Police Department said Spencer was arrested at Winchester Auto Sales, a local car dealer in Franklin County.

Linkner said salemen at the auto dealer became suspicious and called police when Spencer attempted to sell them the car at an extremely low price.

Spencer had obtained an Ohio title and registration for the vehicle, but a vehicle identification check of the car enabled the Madison Township police to determine it had been stolen, said Linkner.

Linkner said Spencer had apparently obtained the Ohio registration and title in Athens County, Ohio after producing a Kentucky title for the vehicle to proper authorities in that county.

"The Kentucky certificate of title was issued to Spencer in Carter County

Ousley said he would like to see a poll taken.

"I would like to know the sentiments of the people before voting for a $1.50 increase," Ousley said.

Kehrt pointed out that the cable system's request for a rate increase was justified even without the expansion.

He noted the cable firm had only received one rate increase of 50 cents since January of 1976.

"That half dollar increase has not kept pace with inflation," Kehrt said.

"Without a commitment on the part of local leaders to support our plan and adjust rates, it is doubtful we could proceed with such an ambitious project," said Kehrt.

Commuting To Work:

Airline Pilot Lives In Morehead, Works Out Of Chicago

By ROB DOLLAR
Staff Writer

When it's time for Morehead resident George Alfrey Jr. to go to work, the "old office" isn't around the corner and down the street.

In fact it's not even in the county nor anywhere in eastern Kentucky.

For that matter, Alfrey's office isn't even located in the state.

So where is it? Try Chicago — the "windy city." That's in Illinois for those who had trouble in school with Geography 101.

Morehead to Chicago. Now there's a drive to work talking about that — the drive Alfrey doesn't drive to work — the entire trip anyway.

And he doesn't commute daily either. Instead, he drives to the airport in Lexington, sometimes Louisville or Cincinnati, on basically four occasions during the month and catches a non-stop Delta to Chicago.

Normally, three days later, he makes a return trip to Morehead for four days of R & R.

He has been following this routine religiously since 1973, a little over seven years.

And what sends him on this long distance route toward putting bread on the supper table?

Would you believe the "friendly skies?"

Alfrey's line of work is aviation. He's a pilot for American Airlines with a base of operation in Chicago. Yesterday marked his 25th year of flying for the company.

Return to Morehead

About seven years ago, Alfrey moved his family to Morehead from the east coast. The 50-year-old pilot is a native Rowan Countian and a 1948 graduate of Morehead High School.

He said this move was made possible due to his increased seniority with American Airlines, which has given him the opportunity to choose the monthly flights he wishes to fly since 1973.

Thus, being able to successfully "bid" for choice flights has allowed him the opportunity to commute to work on a relatively comfortable schedule — three days on the job and four days off.

"I'd like to have been back earlier, but I had to wait until the time was right for me," he said about his return home.

Alfrey noted the biggest percentage of pilots with the airline tend to "migrate back to their home area."

He added, "You eventually go back home for some reason."

According to Alfrey, he ends up working about 12 days a month. Often times, there will be months when he is off one entire week; he said.

"We (American Airline pilots) limited to 75 hours a month," he said, adding, "But normally you won't fly that much."

If that sounds like a lot of free time left over, it could be much more.

Alfrey said that if he lived in Chicago instead of Morehead, he could get in his 75 flying hours per month in a fewer number of days than he does while commuting. That, of course, would mean more time off.

But, he said he was perfectly happy to stretch his flying time over a greater number of days, in order to work out a schedule suitable for his commuting purpose.

Alfrey said that commuting is not unique in the airline industry. "Almost half of our base at Chicago commutes," he noted.

He added it was not unusual for an entire flight crew to live at locations from all over the country.

"My co-pilot lives in Salt Lake City (Utah)," he said.

Alfrey said he has lived around big cities for 22 years and there is no comparison with smaller rural communities.

"I like the country... small towns. It's home," he said of living in Morehead in lieu of big cities.

His wife Mary and 14-year-old daughter Jennifer (three other children are grown and live away from home) are also happy living in a small town instead of a big city, said Alfrey.

He noted there were many distinct differences between life in a small town and life in a city, but generally living in a small community was a "much better life."

Conflicts And Problems

Conflicts and problems often arise because of his commuting schedule. "I miss things all the time," he said (Continued on page two)

Pilot George Alfrey Jr. is pictured above in San Diego beside the 727 that he flies for American Airlines. Alfrey is a native Rowan Countian who learned to fly at the age of 15 from county resident Creed Patrick. He lives in Morehead with his family, but works out of the American Airlines Chicago base of operation.

Pilot Commutes From Morehead

clinging his daughter's school activities at Morehead State University basketball games in particular.

"It's a little harder to get to work and back," he also said, admitting that living closer to work could make many things a lot simpler.

But, the important consideration that outweighs all the disadvantages is free time. Alfrey said he would rather take a little longer to get to work, so that he can spend his days off where he wants to — in Morehead.

Alfrey has been flying now for a total of 35 years.

"I started flying when I was 15 in Morehead," he said, adding it was a county resident named Creed Patrick who tutored him.

For a short time, he worked as a cropduster in Lexington, before going into the Air Force for four years at the time of the Korean War.

When Alfrey joined the Air Force, he had just finished his third year of college at Morehead State University.

To this day, he has yet to earn his college degree.

He said he has been curious over the years to find out how many credits toward graduation MSU might give him for his military and aviation experience, but has just never made it over to the school.

He admitted that he was past the point of needing a college degree, but said it might be "fun" to check on applying his experience toward credits for one.

Air Force Days

In the Air Force, Alfrey was schooled to be a pilot and eventually flew F-86 jet fighters during his stint in the military.

He noted he was scheduled to go to Korea, but the war ended two weeks before his graduation from gunnery school.

It was during his Air Force days, while stationed in Iowa, that he met his future wife who was a schoolteacher at the time.

After his tour in the Air Force, he was hired by American Airlines in 1956 and based in Dallas.

At the time he was hired, the requirements for a pilot's position included a college degree or the equivalent in flying experience. Alfrey said it was his experience flying in the Air Force that basically secured the job for him.

Today, pilots must have a college degree and considerable flying experience to be eligible for a pilot's job, Alfrey said.

He said many of the pilots being hired had their masters or doctorate degrees. The stiff competition for jobs allows only the "cream of the crop" to be considered for jobs with airlines, he noted.

He added that 90 percent of American Airlines' pilots are military-trained, which is just about mandatory these days to get a pilot's job.

But even with education and military flying experience, pilot jobs have been scarce in recent months, according to Alfrey.

Hard Times For Airlines

"Price increases in fuel have knocked business haywire," he said, concerning the troubled times the airline industry is facing due to the economy.

For every penny increase in fuel, it costs American Airlines $12 million a year, said Alfrey.

"We have pilots laid off right now," he noted, explaining that the seniority system determines that those hired last are the ones who lose their jobs first.

"I imagine this summer we'll call them back," he predicted.

"We (the airline industry) pretty well agree that the airlines are in a bind, adding, "Travel is something people do when they have the money."

Concerning the changes in aviation that he has witnessed during his 35 years and approximate 18,000 flight hours, Alfrey said, "It's just an entirely different world."

Alfrey said technological advancements responsible for many conveniences offered to passengers on flights has made air travel a real "bargain."

"It's phenomenal how safe aviation really is," he said comparing the present with the past.

"During his service with American Airlines, Alfrey said he has seen his share of excitement in regard to flight emergencies.

But, he-jackers aren't the common everyday occurrence for airline pilots.

"The weather is the biggest thing to deal with," he noted.

An even greater enemy to pilots might be time-zones changes encountered while flying across the country.

"I try my best to stick with my own schedule," he said, adding, "I never change my watch."

Alfrey said it is very easy when traveling around the country to "mess up" the body functions, particularly in regard to eating and sleeping.

On his attempt to maintain a regular schedule, he said, "It doesn't always work out — but I try to."

Alfrey said after three days of flying, he is "pretty tired" and devotes his first day home to a "rest-up" day.

George Alfrey, Jr. has been flying for 35 years, the past 25 as a pilot for American Airlines. As one might expect, Alfrey's city residence is perched at the top of one of the hills surrounding Morehead with a picturesque mountain-top view of the community. After more than half of one's life spent up in the air, the altitude is bound to grow on a person. (Staff photo by Rob Dollia)

"I'm ready to go back to work after four days. Four days is good — I don't like any less," he said.

Pilots' Boeing 727

Alfrey pilots a Boeing 727 aircraft for American Airlines, since his seniority on that aircraft allows him to schedule his flights to better adapt to his commuting.

However, he said the DC-10 is the preferred plane among pilots flying throughout the country, since it is more advanced and better built.

He added, it is for this reason that the DC-10 is the "senior" aircraft for the company, with the most senior pilots always bidding for the DC-10 flights.

Alfrey said he could fly the DC-10 if he wanted, but it would make for a "punishing" schedule for commuting, since he wouldn't have much seniority on the aircraft in bidding for trips.

He noted one of his friends is putting himself through this "punishment" by living in Virginia and flying the DC-10 out of the American Airlines San Francisco base of operation.

He said he is content to wait for his seniority to increase through retirements and add service before attempting to bid for the DC-10 flight. That way, he may be able to maintain his commuting schedule, when that time comes.

"The older you get, the better off you are," he laughed, noting the irony in a profession where it pays to get older.

Alfrey said the mandatory retirement age for a pilot at American Airlines is 60. He added, however, a pilot can choose to retire once he reaches his 50th birthday.

However, retirement benefits are based on the total years of service, so early retirements mean reduced benefits.

Alfrey said he plans to go the full route. He said he will plan to retire when he turns 60, which will mean he will be four months short of 35 years with American Airlines when that time comes.

Immediate Future Plans

Concerning plans for the immediate future, he said he will continue to commute to Chicago for the next three years until his daughter graduates

James-Gosser Trial Date Set

Judge Caswell P. Lane has March 24 as the trial date for a civil suit of false arrest filed by Chenault James against Bobby Gosser, a state police trooper at the Morehead post.

Judge Lane overruled a motion last week in Rowan Circuit Court asking him to make a summary judgment in the case. The motion was made by Truman Dehner, counsel for the defense.

It will mark the second time the case has been heard in circuit court. A previous trial in April 1979 resulted in a deadlocked jury and was declared a mistrial.

The suit charges Gosser with false arrest and imprisonment in an incident that occurred Nov. 15, 1976.

James was reportedly arrested for disorderly conduct and attempting to elude a police officer.

James is seeking damages of $10,000 in the suit. He is represented by attorney Buddy Sawyer.

Claims made in filing a lawsuit state only one side of the case.

Gregory Seeks Election As District 4 Magistrate

(Paid political announcement. Paid by candidate.)

Larry Wayne Gregory is publicly announcing he is a Democratic candidate for Magistrate of District 4 in the May primary. This District covers Easton, Pine Grove, Christy, and Rouburn precincts.

Gregory is married to the former Sue McCormick of Kinloch (Lewis County). They reside with their one son in the Open Fork-Bearskin community of Haldeman. Gregory, previously employed with the Commonwealth Life Insurance Co., is now a sales manager for the Kentucky Central Life Insurance Co. in the Morehead area.

In addition to being a graduate of Morehead State University with a major in Political Science, Gregory is the holder of several honorary certificates in Rowan County. He is a Kentucky Colonel, an Honorary County Judge of Rowan County, a holder of the Jaycee Presidential Award from Rowan County and a Membership Drive Award from the Morehead State University Young Democrats. He is a member of the Morehead-Rowan County Jaycees and presently chairman of the 1981 North-Gateway Regional Fair. He also holds a Provisional High School Teachers License for Kentucky Schools.

"I have been on and know practically the whereabouts of each road and resident in the District through my past experience of selling insurance in the area. I have successfully completed courses of Personnel Management and Business Management that, will add immensely to my service as Magistrate to the Rowan County Citizens of District Four.

Slow removal, upkeep of roads, gravel, drainage ditches, cleaned, bridges updated, etc. are items that concern our average citizen. Expenditures of County Funds, securing grants and aids of State and Federal Revenues for aid to our county, board appointments and many other aspects of the Fiscal Court need the attention of a concerned citizen. I feel I am a concerned citizen and I will appreciate your vote and influence in the coming Primary."

Godsey Seeks Election As District 1 Magistrate

(Paid political announcement. Paid by candidate.)

I, Ken Godsey, am today announcing my candidacy for the Democratic nomination for District 1 Magistrate.

I have lived in the county for the past 19 years.

I have been a businessman for the past 20 years and have traveled extensively in the eastern part of the state as a representative for a manufacturer.

I can assure that I know fiscal responsibility and will insist on it from your elected officials.

My promise to you is that I will always have your best interests in mind and I will always be on call and available to discuss your needs. And I will do my utmost to help.

The reason for my first try at an elective office is that I, now have adequate time to devote to a public job. This will not be a job to be taken lightly. I am also tired, like you, of sitting back and "letting the other person do it"....without speaking out.

I will do my best to contact everyone of you before May. Your support and vote will be appreciated.

Lakeview Heights Board Discusses Legal Processes

Bill Sharp, a member of the Lakeview Heights Board of Trustees, presented the group with a report on procedures and the kinds of ordinances that the city government will have to pass in the near future.

Meeting in regular session Tuesday night, the trustees discussed how to handle an ordinance dealing with appointed positions. "There were a lot of changes in the recent legislature concerning city government, but the senate bill made no statements concerning appointed positions, they only made reference to the election of the board and mayor," said Gary Van Meter, chairman of the board of trustees.

Van Meter added that under the new form of government, the board will have to go through a budget process that will also require an ordinance. Lakeview Heights ordinances are required to be read twice and advertised.

"We are going to investigate and research this further before passing any ordinance, and when we get ready we will obtain an attorney," Van Meter said.

According to Van Meter, the board decided to investigate the requirements and costs of Lakeview connecting onto the Morehead sewer system.

"At this point, it's strictly preliminary, we haven't made any commitment to do this," he said, adding that some board members will be attending the next Morehead Utility Plant Board meeting.

Van Meter and Jim Brammer will represent Lakeview at the March 12 Plant Board meeting.

Lakeview currently operates two small sewage treatment plants. "Since there is an alternative to hook up to a larger facility, we want to check it out, find out the cost and then present our plan to the community," Van Meter said.

The board also passed a resolution to support the Great Cleanup, scheduled for March 28. "We will collect (trash) in the city in order to help out the county," He said the litter would be gathered and placed in one location to be picked up.

Lewis County Man Dies From Accident Injuries

LEXINGTON—An elderly Lewis County man injured in a farming accident last week, died Monday afternoon at the University of Kentucky Medical Center from injuries he sustained in the accident.

Fred Carrington, 84, of Garrison, died at 12:05 from cardiac arrest attributed directly to a tractor accident on Feb. 25. Carrington was a passenger on a tractor driven by his 25-year-old son, Harley Carrington, when he fell off the vehicle.

The accident occurred just outside of Garrison on KY 10.

Sinclair Smoot

HILLSBORO — Sinclair Curtis Smoot, 82, of Rt. 1, Manchester, Ohio, formerly of Hillsboro, died Monday, March 2, at the Adams County Hospital in West Union, Ohio, after suffering an apparent heart attack.

A native of Fleming County, he was the son of the late Riley M. and Ida Thompson Smoot.

Mr. Smoot was a member of the Ringo's Mill Christian Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Christine Barber Smoot; two sons, Noel Barber Smoot, Aberdeen, Ohio, and Rogers Clark Smoot, Manchester, Ohio; also, a brother, Jessie Smoot, and a sister, Mrs. Bessie Lamm, both of Fleming County; two grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Thursday, March 5, at the Hutton Funeral Home with the Rev. Myron Barnett officiating. Burial was in the Hillsboro Cemetery.

Flowerbearers were Elmer Spencer, Edward Becker, Thurman McKee, Cottrell Sullivan, William E. Royce and Wilson Rawlings.

School Board To Discuss Sr. High School Bonding

The Rowan County Board of Education may request the State Department of Education to issue revenue bond anticipation notes instead of selling bonds for construction of the Rowan County Senior High School.

Superintendent John Brock said if interest rates are greater than 10 percent at the time of the May 1 bond sale, having anticipation notes would give the system flexibility to go elsewhere for a short term loan instead of facing the 25 year bond terms.

"This would give time for the bond market to stabilize, he said.

The topic will be discussed during the monthly meeting of the Board Monday at 7 p.m. in the Rowan County High School library.

The second of two pre-bid conferences will be March 10, and the same format as the conference last Friday will be used. Mechanical and electrical matters will be discussed at 10 a.m., structural and architectural at 2 p.m. in the Carl Perkins Community Building.

Over 30 companies were represented last week at the conferences, and the superintendent expects even more will submit bids by the March 19 deadline. Building specifications were sent to some 187 companies.

After bids are opened that day, the system has 60 days in which to sell bonds. Brock said the winning bidders would probably be notified in 10 days.

The superintendent said $7 million is "basically all the money we have that we can bond." The school building will cost "considerably more" depending on how much is bid.

The industrial arts and student center sections of the school, parking lot paving, copy, boys dressing facility and upstairs bleachers probably will not be included in the original construction, he said.

Anticipated date of completion is Sept. 12, 1982.

Gifted Education Conference Set

National authorities in the field of gifted education will be in Owensboro March 6 and 7 for the first Kentucky Association for Gifted Education State Conference.

Major speakers will be: Dr. Hal C. Lyon, Jr., director of the U.S. Office of Gifted and Talented; Jerome Juntune, executive director of the National Association for Gifted Children; and Sandra Warren, a parent who is vice president of the North East Ohio Association for Gifted Children.

Other conference leaders are parents, educators and other professionals from New York, New Jersey, Florida, Ohio, Minnesota, Maryland, Indiana and Kentucky.

The conference, "A Challenge for the '80s - Parenting and Educating Kentucky's Gifted and Talented," is being co-sponsored by the Kentucky Association for Gifted Education and the Kentucky Department of Education. It is being held at Owensboro's Executive Inn. All interested persons are welcome to attend.

KAGE President Lounette Steeprod said she considers the conference a major milestone for gifted and talented education in Kentucky. KAGE, incorporated in December 1979, has since run a successful lobbying campaign to maintain funding for gifted programs, has become affiliated with the National Association for Gifted Children and has organized local chapters across the state. It boasts a membership of 1,300 parents and teachers, she said.

Registration fees for the conference are $12 for KAGE members, $18 for KAGE member couples, $18 for non-members and $30 for non-member couples. Participants who pre-register by February 28 receive a 20 percent discount. Checks should be made to KAGE and sent to: Bill Price, Wells Hall, Murray State University, Murray, 42071.

Local Man Hurt In Wreck Monday

In an injury accident worked by state police Monday, a one-vehicle mishap at the junction of the Copperas Branch Road sent Charles Carpenter to the St. Claire Medical Center for treatment of a broken jaw and broken wrist.

a steady flow of customer traffic has been prevalent at the store all week. "The response has been great," he said about the store's first week of business. The grand opening of the store is scheduled for March 23.

Engineer Testifies He Kept In Touch With Stamper

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — The Winchester engineer who surveyed the Hidden Valley property for the state testified Wednesday he kept in regular contact with state Sen. Woodrow Stamper about the progress of the work.

Ralph Palmer also testified Stamper visited him about Hidden Valley in December 1976, before he was contacted by the state to perform the survey work.

Stamper, D-West Liberty, and Lexington realtor Robert F. Link are on trial in U.S. District Court on charges of extortion, conspiracy and mail fraud in connection with the state's 1977 purchase of the former duode ranch in Powell County.

The prosecution contends that Stamper concealed his interest in the property and used his position as a state senator to influence the state's decision to buy the land for use as a correctional facility which was never built.

According to long distance telephone records in evidence, Palmer noted he called Stamper's home or his West Liberty motel 15 times between January and August 1977.

Palmer said he kept in touch with Stamper because, "Woodrow is a state senator who knows how way around my opinion and Woodrow is a good friend to know."

Palmer also testified under questioning by federal prosecutor Joseph Lawless he often asked Stamper how the state's plans for the property were progressing because "he (Stamper) seemed to have a knowledge of it."

Other evidence in the case showed Stamper was to receive a copy of the survey report but Palmer said he could not remember if Stamper actually received the report.

Palmer also testified about the splitting of the Hidden Valley property into two tracts after the survey was in progress. He said he could not recall who told him to split off a 140-acre portion of the total tract and survey it separately.

The second tract contained the best farmland on the entire property, Palmer said. The remaining 541 acres of the total tract were purchased by the state for $515,000 from Investors Trust Inc. of Indianapolis.

Samuel Williams, a former Palmer employee who performed the survey work, said he was told by Palmer sometime in the middle of the project to split the land into two parcels, which he did.

Also testifying Wednesday was Robert Moore of Frankfort, who did the first appraisal of the Hidden Valley property for the state.

Moore said he received a call from former Democratic Party Chairman Howard P. "Sonny" Hunt Jr. in October 1976 asking if he could perform the work. Moore said he went to party headquarters the same day where Hunt told him a little about Hidden Valley and asked if $5,000 was a sufficient fee for the appraisal.

Hunt also told Moore the property was on the market with a selling price of $625,000. Moore also said he went to the Lexington office of Link to get a copy of the appraisal Link had done on Hidden Valley.

Moore was still on the stand when Judge Bernard T. Moynahan Jr. recessed the trial until Thursday.

CAMPTON — State police are investigating the theft of over $500 of merchandise taken from a building on the Gerald Charles property in Wolfe County.

The theft was reported to state police Wednesday by the family.

According to the state police report, the family said they moved from Wolfe County to Jackson County about three weeks ago and left some of their belongings in a shed on their property.

After returning for the items this week, the family discovered everything was missing, said police.

The location of the Charles property is 5.5 miles south of Campton.

Cable TV —

Chicago-based Centel Communications Company in July of 1980, will eventually invest more than $1 million to rebuild the Morehead-Rowan County system.

The company will also provide a converter to each subscriber at no charge. Current subscribers will pay no installation or deposit charges for the converters, added Kehr.

Company officials also intend to meet with members of the Morehead City Council at its regular meeting on Monday, March 9.

The investment in a regular system is necessary to replace cable and equipment, which in some locations, is more than 17 years old. Since OVC purchased the system in 1975, over $100,000 has been spent to repair the system. Monthly rates have remained constant in the city since June of 1978, while county rates have remained the same since October of 1978.

Ann Landers

Copyright 1981

Field Enterprises, Inc. Field Newspaper Syndicate

Dear Ann-Landers: My grandson asked me a question I couldn't answer. Maybe you can. He wanted to know why the weathermen on national TV refer to Indiana as the "Midwest." I agree with him that Indiana is Midwest.

As a former teacher I recall we showed our pupils a map that divided the states according to the Mississippi River. The states along the Pacific were the Far West. The plains states of Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas were the Midwest. The states east of the Mississippi were the Mideastern states. The Atlantic Coast states were the East. No way could Indiana be considered the Midwest.

I wonder what people in California think when they hear such statements. Please comment. - O.M. of Syracuse, N.Y.

Dear O.M.: I called John Coleman, whose friendly, down-home weather commentary is heard on ABC's "Good Morning America." John said, "I've had many complaints about how I refer to various regions of the country, so I try to stick to the guidelines of the National Weather Service. It is impossible to keep everybody happy because there are so many different possibilities. Indiana, for example, can rightfully be called one of the Great Lakes states, or the Ohio Valley, also part of the Central Midwest, and on rare occasions, in the Eastern part of the U.S."

I then called Willard Scott, the jovial, sunny westerly man who does his lively number on NBC's "Today Show." He said, "People from Indiana think of themselves as 'Midwesterners' - not Easterners. I refer to Indiana as the lower part of the Ohio Valley, part of the Great Lakes area or the middle Mississippi Valley. Hoosiers do NOT consider themselves Easterners."

F. Gordon Barnes, the golden-voiced meteorologist of CBS News, said, "I think this problem dates back to the time when there wasn't much west of the Rockies. Although Indiana is in the Eastern time zone, it is definitely considered part of the Midwest. I can tell you that the people who live in Indiana resent it when they are called Easterners.

So, if they are still using those old maps in the Syracuse schools, maybe they'd better invest in some new ones. Thanks for writing.

Breck Speech Team Defeats 74 Schools, Takes Sweepstakes

A small University Breckridge speech team defeated 74 schools from 13 states to win the sweepstakes award at the Great Smokey Mountains Forensic Tournament last weekend.

"It's the most prestigious tournament in the south as well as one of the largest in the Eastern United States," said Coach John Edwards about the event held in Jefferson City, Tenn.

Speech Team Breaks Record

Eleven freshmen and juniors from Breck entered 23 events, and based on quality points, outranked last year's state champions from Kentucky, Alabama, Georgia and Virginia.

The Morehead school had 69 sweepstakes points, 22 more than second place Calloway County. Calloway County placed first at last year's Kentucky state tournament. Said Edwards, "It's the first time they've taken second to us in a large tournament. We're looking forward to state!"

Students from Caloway County gave the Breckridge team a standing ovation at the announcement of their win. "It was so unexpected!" said Edwards.

University Breckridge won the Smokey Mountains event in the early 1970's when it was headed by director of speech and theatre. Last year, Breck placed third at that tournament among 63 schools.

The team advanced to semi-finals and five to the final round.

Julie Bigham won first place in oral interpretation with 180 participants. The freshman competed with five senior students in the final round.

Of the 24 students in the semi-finals of oral interpretation, three were freshmen from Breckridge. Will Julie were Boone Brumagen and Robin Urban.

Breck students advancing to the final round other than Julie were Mona Sabie, junior, first place, original oratory and fifth after dinner speaking; Laura Duncan, junior, second place, after dinner speaking and sixth in solo acting. The five finalist wins were more than any other school achieved.

Other students competing in the event and helping earn points toward the sweepstakes trophy were Laryn Tapp, Tracey Clough, Alice Berry, Alicia Johnston, Dennis Dailey and Laura Sprague.

While in Tennessee, the team found time to tour Gatlinburg, ice skate and "I would enjoy playing host to any civic group interested in our Teen Center," Stephens said, "and would encourage interested groups to hold a meeting at the Center to see and play the same games our kids play!"

The Center recently acquired new equipment, donated by Heck's Department Store through the Morehead Women's Club. A ping pong table was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mahoney and a dart board by Smith's Sports Center.

The Teen Center, in its outreach to community youth, would like to invite other organizations with youth outreach goals to schedule a meeting at the Center. These groups may be school, civic, or church youth groups, such as the FFA, Beta Club, and PAL.

How Many Francs For Some Frites?

Breck's Fifth Grade Knows The Answer

The fifth grade students of Mrs. Kay Freeland and Mrs. Dana Lindsey at Breckridge School have been busy learning how to order a meal in French as part of their enrichment program.

Using as inspiration a bulletin from the American Association of Teachers of French which told of the growth of McDonald's in France, French teacher Suzanne Bauer decided to teach the students to order their favorite foods "en francais."

Candy Withrow, the public relations representative at the Morehead McDonald's, provided the class with McDonald's hats, order forms, empty food containers and a price list.

The students went to work. The menu was translated into French — a Big Mac is "le Big Mac," fries are "frites," and a chocolate shake is "un frappe glace au chocolat."

The class also had its math skills put to test as dollars and cents were converted into "francs" and "centimes."

Finally, Tuesday, Feb. 24, the class had Mrs. Withrow return to order lunch at the French McDonald's newly opened at Breck.

Some students were waiters, some were customers. "The students learned to order, to take orders and to count in French currency and had a good time doing it!" said Mrs. Bauer.

School 'Essentials' Listed For Emphasis

LOUISVILLE, KY. — The Kentucky Education Association has adopted a seven-point legislative program to take to the 1982 General Assembly as "essential for school needs."

KEA president Joyce Dotson said the 29,000-member teacher organization's delegates, meeting here in a two-day session, also listed several other items for "legislative emphasis."

The seven basic items — which relate to the foundation program, fringe benefits, professional negotiation, and teacher retirement — are these:

- Increase per-pupil expenditure to the average per-pupil expenditure in the seven bordering states. (The 1980-81 Kentucky estimate is $1196 compared with a bordering states' average of $2132.)
- Increase teacher salaries to the average salary of teachers in the seven bordering states, and to offset the increase in the cost-of-living. (The 1980-81 estimate for Kentucky classroom teachers is $15,580 compared with a bordering states' average of $16,196.)
- Seek legislation permitting students to reestablish the collection of school fees (for such items as workbooks, crayons), in addition to the $15 provided by the state for student fees. Also provide for teachers' input at the local level for expenditures of student fees.
- Restore and improve medical benefits that were eliminated in 1980-81.

(For the current year in-hospital diagnostic testing was eliminated and the deductible for major medical coverage was increased.)

— Secure an equitable professional negotiation law requiring all school boards to negotiate in good faith with local teacher organizations upon their request.

— Keep the Teachers' Retirement System actuarially sound, separate, and independent from all other state retirement systems and lower the years of service from 30 to 25, for retirement regardless of age.

State Seeks Student Interns

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Department of Personnel is in the process of recruiting candidates for the Administrative Intern Program for the 1981 summer-fall session. Kentucky college students interested in applying for internships with state government should begin making contacts with the campus coordinators.

Students selected for the summer-fall session will work for the state from June 1 to Dec. 16. Each intern will receive a monthly salary of $330 paid by the hiring agency and 15 to 21 hours of credit through his college or university.

Youth Corps Provides Summer Employment

FRANKFORT — About 280 Kentucky youths in 22 counties including Rowan will have jobs this summer working to improve the environment while learning more about it.

Participating in the Youth Conservation Corps, the young Kentuckians will work to beautify public properties in 24 Kentucky communities.

Youth Conservation Corps is a national work-learning program for young men and women 15 through 18 years old. The corps is funded by the federal Agriculture and the Interior departments and local governments.

Kentucky's Department for Human Resources has received $200,000 from the federal government to support the program this summer, according to Dr. C. Wells, commissioner of the department's Bureau for Manpower Services. The 24 Kentucky communities that will operate corps projects this summer will provide matching funds, Wells said.

This will be the eighth summer young Kentuckians have had the chance to learn about our natural resources through Youth Conservation Corps jobs. Wells noted a addition to working on local community projects throughout the state, Wells said many of the youths in the corps may be assigned to federally operated residential and non-residential camps in Kentucky.

The goals of the Youth Conservation Corps projects are to accomplish necessary conservation work, provide eligible youths with gainful employment and develop environmental awareness.

"Conservation corps workers will be paid federal minimum wages for their labors," Wells said. They will spend six hours daily in beautification and environmental conservation work on public-owned properties. Two hours will be spent learning about environmental conservation.

Recruitment for Youth Conservation Corps participants began Jan. 1 and will continue through March 15. Applicants must be in good health, have a work permit and a social security number, and have parental consent to work in either a local project or in a federal camp. Corps participants will be selected randomly from all eligible applicants.

Young Kentuckians interested in applying for summer work in the Youth Conservation Corps should contact their high school counselor or the Bureau for Manpower Services office in the county where they live.

Beshear Says Pregnant Girls Under 16 Must Attend School

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Pregnant girls under 16 must attend school but once their baby is born they are exempt from the state's compulsory education laws, Attorney General Steve Beshear said Wednesday.

"Before childbirth we believe the under 16-year-old unmarried girl is required to go to school," said the opinion written by Deputy Attorney General Robert L. Chenoweth.

But unmarried mothers under 16 are exempt from the law, the attorney general's opinion said.

"After the baby is born, if the baby is kept by the girl, caring for the infant is a full-time job," Chenoweth said in the opinion dated Feb. 25 but released today.

"The responsibilities of raising children 'are so great that it is unreasonable that to construe the law so as to require a girl in such a situation to go to school,'" the opinion said.

The opinion was issued in response to a request for clarification of the state's compulsory education laws sought by the director of pupil personnel of the Newport City school system.

"The state law does contain provisions allowing the pregnant girl to miss some school for medical reasons."

A school "shall treat pregnancy, childbirth, false pregnancy, termination of pregnancy and recovery therefrom as justification for a leave of absence for so long a period of time as is deemed medically necessary by the student's physician," the state law reads.

"Any young mother girl decides not to attend school may return, the opinion said. Kentucky students are entitled to 12 years of public education until the age of 21, it said.

"Any girl who is married before the age of 16 is also exempt from the state's compulsory education laws, the opinion said."

Chenoweth cited an earlier attorney general's opinion, issued in 1961, which said any married persons under the age of 16 is exempt from the law as well.

"When such a marriage takes place," the earlier opinion said, "the emancipated child is the head of a new family as such is subject to the obligations and duties to his wife and children."

The same holds true for married girls, the 1961 opinion said.

Lady Vikings Destroy Morgan

May Pumps In Career High 32 Points

Throughout the Lady Viking 25 game regular season, guards Jeanie Cornett and Karla May combined to account for 84.5 percent of Rowan County's points.

Wednesday night in a first round district tournament game against Morgan County, the pair produced nearly 60 percent of Rowan's points and the Lady Vikings advanced with ease into the district final against Breck tonight, 86-42.

Karla May struck for 32 points, a new career high. The junior said her previous best performance was 28 points versus Russell during her freshman season.

"Karla was phenomenal, she really took the ball to the basket, and she also hit her jump shot," Lady Viking coach Claudia Hicks said after the game.

The 2-2 defense Hicks used against

Morgan County was designed to take advantage of May's quickness and to create Lady Cougar turnovers and convert them into easy baskets.

That's exactly what happened as May was able to race down court and beat everyone to the basket for several of her 16 field goals.

Cornett, a senior, was also busy against Morgan County. She pumped in 10 field goals, half coming during the third quarter when the Lady Vikings blew away from Morgan, 28-8.

"The third quarter was the difference in the game," Hicks said, which was an understatement.

Rowan County didn't waste any time getting a big lead. The Lady Vikings took a commanding 14-2 lead with 3:30 left in the first quarter.

May tossed in four baskets. Jelana

Haney had three from the inside and Cornett added two buckets.

By limiting Morgan to just two field goals from Tonya Finch and a basket each out of Robin Humble and Barbeg Carter, the Lady Vikings outscored the Lady Cougars 18-12 in the second quarter. May had five field goals during the period.

During the fourth quarter blowout May had four field goals. Haney and Mary Hamm each had two and Debbie Dehart tossed in one to go along with Cornett's five.

May could perhaps have scored more than the number on her jersey but Hicks called in the first string troops early in the fourth quarter and let her second team finish the game.

"Our defense and passing were excellent. Jelana did a super job inside, and the guards were doing a great job of getting the ball to our big people for the inside shot," Hicks said.

Rowan County finished with 25 assists, nine above their season average. May accounted for 10 of those scoring passes.

"Hamm really showed her strength tonight in getting the outlet pass," the coach said. Hamm's passes led to several easy Lady Viking layups.

Cornett and May weren't the only Rowan players in double figures. Haney tossed in eight out of 13 field goals for 16 points.

Hamm and Vivian Flora each totaled six points.

Shelagh Anderson sunk two out of three fourth quarter shots.

For the Lady Vikings it was the second victory this season over Morgan. On Dec. 16, Rowan County beat Morgan 88-53.

Rowan County is now 2-1 and will meet University Breckinridge tonight for the district title.

Both teams will advance to the regional next week to be held at East Carter.

Karla May scored a career high 32 points Wednesday to lead the Lady Vikings to a 88-42 opening round district tournament win over Morgan County. May's previous best was 28 points her freshman year against Russell.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

Department of Fish and Wildlife

John Phillips, the wildlife biologist in charge of Kentucky's deer management program, has been collecting and counting check station stubs and other harvest data since the last phase of the 1980 season closed Dec. 31. He's just got everything added up and the results contain some surprises.

The biggest surprise is the increase in harvest by bow hunters. Archers in open counties took 1,004 bucks and 710 does during 1980, an increase of 175 percent over the bow harvest in 1979. The gun harvest in open counties was 7,323 bucks and 665 does, up six percent over 1979.

Phillips isn't sure what made the bow and arrow harvest jump so much, but he feels that the two-tag system is probably responsible. For one thing, more archers may have taken their deer to check stations, since a stamped check station stub was necessary to validate the second tag.

Also, Phillips says, bow hunters may have been willing to take the first deer they encountered, feeling that they could trophy hunt with their second tag after putting venison in the freezer with the first.

Only 300 deer were taken with second tags, which is just about as expected. Phillips had estimated the second tag would cause an increase in harvest of 400 deer from open counties.

Of course, the increase in bow harvest could also be another reflection of the growing deer population and the growing popularity of deer hunting in Kentucky.

The only problem with this increased harvest is that too high a percentage of does were taken in some counties, Phillips says. "We had a doe harvest of up to 30 percent in some Eastern Kentucky areas," he says. "And that's too high for these areas, where we want to herd to continue to grow."

The total estimated harvest from open counties, federal areas and state wildlife management areas was 16,183, as compared with 13,570 in 1979. These figures include the total check station count plus a mathematically derived factor to take into account the estimated number of hunters who did not visit a check station or those not visited to do so, such as handowners hunting deer on their property.

"Harvest data will help form the basis for setting next year's deer seasons across the state. Phillips and other wildlife biologists will study these findings and submit their proposals to the Fish and Wildlife Commission at its March meeting. The commission will make the final decisions and the specifics next year's hunts will be announced then."

Phillips is also in charge of keeping the lists of trophy deer. Although he's had no time to work up last season's results yet, he says there will be some interesting additions to the lists, including a 300-pound, field dressed weight buck and a 28-point non-typical rack. We'll let you know the full particulars when they become available.

If you took a buck last year that had an antler with an excessive beam length, get in touch with your local conservation officer — your deer might qualify for the trophy lists. Lists are also kept on the basis of weight for both bucks and does, but it's a little harder to qualify now unless you have enough witnesses to the weighing.

Breck Girls Survive Menifee Challenge

BY KURT PICKERING
Sports Staff Writer

Shelli Lichtenberg scored a game-high 16 points, nine of them in the pivotal second half, and pulled down a game-high 14 rebounds Wednesday night at Wetherby Gym to lead University Breckinridge to a 39-31 District II victory over Menifee County.

way to its two-point intermission edge.

Breck had a rocky start in the third stanza, although it couldn't be seen on the scoreboard. Carter picked up her fourth foul just two seconds in and immediately went to the bench, and Lichtenberg missed a layup after a turnover a minute later.

However Ellen Brown, who loves to shoot from far outside but missed all but one such attempt in the first half, hit two from 20 feet in the first two minutes and the Lady Eagles were on their way. By quarter's end, it was 28-20 and Breck led by as many as 12 with 10:20 left in the final frame.

Breck coach Jim Austin denied any special strategy when Carter hit the bench so early in the second half. "We need Sandy in there most of the time," he said, "but Mary (Braugher) came in and handled it. I have confidence in Mary."

Braugher, despite the fact that she is only an eighth grader, is the third tallest Lady Eaglet and usually jumps center while actually playing guard. A regular starter, she was the youngest starter to take the floor in either of Wednesday's district girls' openers.

Brown added 11 points to Lichtenberg's 16 to account for the bulk of Breck's offense. Menifee County spread its numbers around, with Lana Crouch leading the scorers with just seven and Charlotte Bryant topping the rebounders with only six.

By all indications it was supposed to be a close game, decided perhaps in the last few minutes. After all, the Cougars edged the Wildcats 42-40 earlier in the season on their home court.

The outcome was determined late in the fourth quarter when Wildcat coach Terry Young decided to put the brakes on his offense and spread it out with a three-point lead, 52-49, and 42:42 left.

Young used his first timeout at that point. "I pulled them out of their zone. We wanted them to go man to man and then we would have been able to work the ball inside easier." The problem

Morgan Overcomes 16 Point Deficit To Defeat Menifee County

Morgan County's center John Stewart scored to pull his team to within one, 52-51 with 2:10 left.

For the Wildcats, it seems like when it rained it poured. On the following in bounds play, the Cougars pressed full court and Menifee wasn't able to get the ball in play within the required five seconds.

Scoring By Quarters

The rest of Morgan's points came from the free throw line. Stewart went to the charity stripe twice within the final 28 seconds, but not before Young called back-to-back timeouts in order to let Stewart think about them for awhile.

Like Young's field tactics, that strategy also failed as Stewart calmly sunk all four attempts.

"We hit our foul shots when it really mattered," Morgan County coach Robert Slone said after the game.

Wildcats Blow 16 Point Lead

As far as scoring totals, Breck and Menifee County duplicate themselves in the second quarter, with Breck again winning the frame 8-7 for a 16-14 halftime lead. But the Lady Cats led only in the early seconds when Jannah Crouch hit a layup 10 seconds in to make it 9-8. Lichtenberg tied it in a free throw 29 seconds later and Breck went ahead for good on a turnaround bucket from underneath by Sandy Carter with 6:42 left in the half.

That's not to say it was easy. Although UBS never again trailed, it also never led by more than four on the

The length of the game approached two hours, stretched out by numerous whistles. There were 57 personal fouls called, and many of the night's 37 turnovers came on block-toppers such as walking or lane violations.

UBS dominated the boards as never before this season, 43-17. Included in the Breck total were 22 offensive rebounds, giving the Lady Eagles many more chances to score. In fact, all three of Breck's first-quarter field goals came on rebounds of offensive rebounds; the second Breck bucket came on the fifth attempt of the floor trip.

Neither team's shooting was impressive. UBS connected on just 25.5 percent from the floor on 12 of 47. The Lady Cats racked up 26.5 percent by hitting nine of 34.

With all the fouls—27 on UBS, 30 on MCHS—the two clubs virtually wore a pair of towels behind each free throw stripe. Breck attempted 35, hitting 15 for a 42.9 percentage; the Lady Cats lauded 31 charity shots, connecting 41.9 percent of the time for 15 points.

By all indications it was supposed to be a close game, decided perhaps in the last few minutes. After all, the Cougars edged the Wildcats 42-40 earlier in the season on their home court.

The outcome was determined late in the fourth quarter when Wildcat coach Terry Young decided to put the brakes on his offense and spread it out with a three-point lead, 52-49, and 42:42 left.

Young used his first timeout at that point. "I pulled them out of their zone. We wanted them to go man to man and then we would have been able to work the ball inside easier." The problem seconds, for turnover number two within a matter of seconds.

David Potter connected on a basket which gave Morgan the lead for good, 53-52.

Menifee had a chance to regain the lead, but center Norman Swartz missed an inside shot and couldn't retrieve the rebound.

It looked as if the predictions of a close game would have to be tossed out the window early, even before the first quarter ended as Menifee County blasted out to a 20-4 lead.

Morgan County didn't get its first bucket until almost three minutes into the game, and their second basket didn't register until 1:17 left in the first quarter.

Menifee's first quarter assault came from all directions. Robert Wells led the charge with four first quarter baskets. Norman Swartz, Bryan Blankenship, and Tim Swartz each contributed two baskets in the opening eight minutes.

"It was the worst thing that could have happened to us," Young said when talking about the big first quarter lead.

"We started to lose our concentration and we stopped playing defense. Seems like we've had a tendency to do that, get a big lead and lose our concentration. Makes it tough to lose that way," Young said.

To Morgan's credit they didn't fold up, which under district tournament pressure would have been easy to do. David Potter and Stewart each connected on three baskets during the second quarter as the Cougars outscored Menifee 20-12, and trailed by five at the half, 32-27.

Menifee came out and picked up two quick baskets for the first four points of the second half, but then Morgan scored four straight buckets to pull within one, 36-35.

After a Blankenship layup, Morgan's Brent Terrell scored and David Potter connected on a 10 footer to give the Cougars their first lead of the game, 39-38 with 1:40 left in the third quarter.

Wells gave Menifee the lead back, 40-39, but Marty Clark hit a jump shot at the buzzer for a 41-40 Cougar advantage.

Morgan County's coach Slone used his third timeout with 6:54 left, after Menifee had scored two fast baskets to start the final period.

Scores from Terrell and David Potter kept the Cougars within one, but free throws by Clark and a layup from Blankenship put Menifee up by five, 45-40, and prompted Slone to call another timeout with 4:29 remaining.

From that point on Morgan outscored Menifee 13-2.

"Our kids hung in there even after it looked like we were going to be blown out," Slone said.

David Potter, a guard for the Cougars, led Morgan County in scoring with 18 points. Stewart added 16, eight in each half.

Anthony Murphy totaled eight points.

Mary Braugher, an eighth grader at Breck, was the youngest starter in this week's 61st District Tournament being held at Wetherby Gym.

Five players fouled out. Breck lost Lichtenberg with 1:05 left and Braugher in the closing seconds. Carter, who missed all but two seconds of the third quarter, Kim Bailey, who missed almost three minutes of that frame, and Rachel Carpenter, who did not even enter the game until the second quarter, all barely survived with four.

Things were similar but slightly worse for Menifee County. Center Sonya DeRossett picked up her fourth foul with about 2 1/2 minutes left in the third quarter and went to the bench, taking much of Menifee County's height with her. She returned to open the fourth quarter but fouled out less than three minutes in. Denta Back and Lana Crouch later followed.

Each club had a particularly ragged half in its floor game. For Breck, it was the first, when the Lady Eagles turned the ball over a dozen times. Menifee County answered with 12 turnovers in the second half. Overall, UBS had 19, MCHS 18.

"We made a lot of mental mistakes," Austin admitted. "There weren't too many physical mistakes, but we made a lot of mental mistakes that caused the turnovers."

The win makes Breck a district survivor, assuring the Lady Eagles a spot in next week's 16th Region playoffs. Tonight, however, the decision will be made as to who gets the district's championship berth, with its favored seeding status.

That decision will be made starting at 8 p.m. when the Lady Eagles 64-27 on a neutral floor December 24 during the Eastern Kentucky Conference tournament.

Menifee County ends its campaign at 3-14, while UBS is now 5-22.

John Stewart, the center for Morgan County, gets in rebound position Tuesday night in an opening round district tournament game against Menifee County. Stewart scored 16 points to lead the Cougars over the Wildcats 58-52.

Loney Announces New Football Recruit

Morehead State University Head Football Coach Steve Loney has announced the signing of Ray Winebrenner of Burbank, Ohio to a national letter-of-intent.

A 6-4, 240 defensive lineman, Winebrenner earned honorable mention All-State honors his senior season at Norwayne High School.

"We feel that Ray was one of the most active linemen we saw all season," stated Loney. "He has good speed, great leg strength and should be an excellent addition to our program."

The 15th signing of the recruiting season, Winebrenner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Winebrenner, 209 East Britton, Burbank, Ohio. Loney was coached in high school by Dave Vodka.

Lady Eagles Take 2nd Place In KWIC

By KURT PICKERING
Sports Staff Writer

The Morehead State Lady Eagles served notice on the Kentucky Women's Interscholastic Conference over the weekend: nobody but the Kentucky Lady Kats are better in the KWIC.

Locked in a second-place tie in the circuit with Northern Kentucky and Eastern Kentucky, the Lady Eagles traveled to NKU Friday for a playoff to decide, once and for all, who is second, who is third and who is fourth.

Despite the fact that MSU split with both of their rivals during the regular KWIC campaign, neither game turned out to be much of a contest as the Lady Eagles rolled to the runnerup designation.

Morehead State 97 Northern Kentucky 83

After EKV drew the first round bye and MSU received the dubious distinction of playing the Norse on their home floor, it looked as if the playoff might be an uphill climb for the Lady Eagles.

But Morehead shot an astounding 70 percent from the field in the first half of Friday's game with Normen, posted an equally astounding 90 percent from the free throw line, and the halftime score had MSU on top 51-43. MSU blew it open in the second half, leading by as many as 16.

NKU placed five players in double digits, MSU four. The Lady Eagle backcourt was especially instrumental in the easy victory. Robin Harmon led all scorers with 31 points, while Irene Moore added 20 points and 16 assists. That assist total marked the third time this season Moore has broken a single-game record that had stood through four seasons.

"She loves to pass it off," coach Mickey Wells said. "The other kids are catching the ball real well, which they weren't doing earlier in the year." Priscilla's (Blackford) hands have improved a lot. Marty (Rust) is doing real well. And Donna (Stephens) can catch anything you throw." Moore also put on a shooting clinic, going seven for 11 from the floor and six of six at the line.

Stephens joined Moore with 20 points. Blackford was the fourth Lady Eagle in double digits, scoring 13. The fifth Morehead starter, Rust, did not reach twin figures but did her job by delivering a game-high 12 rebounds.

After Plaugher topped NKU by collecting 23 points, including 13 of 13 at the line. She was aided by starters Barbarkins with 16, Brenda Ryan with 14 and Janet Briggs with 10, and reserve Jennifer Lyons with 12. Bryans bested the board crew with 10.

As a team, Northern outbranded Morehead 42-36, and the teams were even in turnovers at 13, but the Norse could not overcome MSU's eagle eye from the floor.

After their first start, the Lady Eagles wound up hitting 62.1 percent from the floor on 41 of 65. NKU scored 18 fewer points from the floor, hitting 32 of 76 percent. The losers made up some ground, but not nearly enough, at the foul line as the Norse hit 16 of 23 for a fine 69.6 percent.

The loss dropped NKU to 6-7 in the KWIC and 12-16 overall.

Highland State 83 Eastern Kentucky 72

For the second straight game, Morehead connected in the vicinity of 60 percent of the time and won easily.

Part of the reason was the EKU was as cold as dry ice in the first half. The Lady Eagles tried only four free throws, hitting three, and yet the lead was already 10 points at intermission.

Part of the reason was the EKU was as cold as dry ice in the first half. The Colonels hit only 27.5 percent from the floor and stayed in the game only because they took five more shots from the floor and hit nine of 12 from the stripe.

Eastern improved both figures in the second half, hitting 53.3 percent from the field and nine of 11 at the line, but Morehead negated that by catching fire. The Lady Eagles took 28 shots, two fewer than Eastern in the half, but hit 18, two more. The result was a 64.3 percent for the half, a 57 game percentage, and an unbeatable 22-point margin by the time the clock wound down to three minutes left. At that point, Wells sent in the reserves and MSU ran out the clock for an 11-point victory.

On the game, Morehead State hit 37 of 63 from the floor and nine of 12 at the line. Eastern, after its disastrous start, managed 38.6 percent from the field on 27 of 70. The Colonels scored twice as many points from the line as MSU, getting 18 of 23 for 78.3 percent.

Tina Wermuth led all rebounders with 13, but Morehead won the battle of the boards 41-38. Lynn Miley came off the bench to top the Lady Eagles in caroms with just eight, showing the balance of the board crew.

The score was rather balanced, too, as each side put four players in twin figures. Stephens led all scorers with 23, while Harmon and Miley added 16 each and Blackford delivered 10. Sandra Mukes topped Eastern with 20, while Wermuth added 18, Lisa Goodin 12 and Karen Evans 10.

If the Lady Eagles had a fault, it was in their floor game. MSU got away with 26 turnovers, largely because EKU responded with 22. But the floor game wasn't all bad; Morehead used assists to set up all but 12 of its baskets.

The loss dropped Eastern to 16-15 overall, 6-7 in the KWIC. Officially, EKU will be credited with third place in the 1980-81 campaign with the Norse fourth.

The at-large bid

MSU's chances of receiving an at-large bid to the AIAW tournament as a result of the wins appear slim, according to Wells.

"If I had to say, I'd guess the three at-large bids will go to Tennessee Tech, Clemson and North Carolina or North Carolina State, whichever one doesn't win the state title," Wells said. The other five regional bids automatically go to the champions of the states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia and each of the Carolinas.

Wells says the Lady Eagles' 17-14 record is probably not good enough to draw a bid, even though MSU won 12 of its last 16 games. In previous seasons, the KWIC would have held a post-season tournament, but it was decided not to do so this year. "In pre-season we set some deadlines," Wells said. "We had to do that with a young team. We didn't figure on winning a lot early but that we would peak for the state tournament. We've peaked and there's no journey. Now would have been an ideal time for us to go into a state tournament."

In a manner of speaking, MSU will be the defending champions of the KWIC next season. The actual titleists, the Lady Kats of UK, will leave the league next season to compete in the Southeastern Conference.

The basketball season for Morehead State just ended last weekend and the baseball season starts tomorrow. The Eagles are on an opening week long road trip which will take them to Mississippi. The first MSU home game will be next Saturday against Anderson College. See complete schedule elsewhere on sports page. (Staff photo by Rob Dollar)

Verderber Says The 'Cats Are Ready

BIRMINGHAM — There's always the chance it will be an upset if our team, other than L.S.U., of Tennessee wins the Southeastern Conference tournament here this week but there is always that chance.

"Any team that wins the automatic qualification for the N.C.A.A. tournament, Kentucky, L.S.U. and Tennessee appear to already be showing us for an invitation to the post-season classic but the action this week is important to them too.

"Kentucky's junior forward, Chuck Verderber, has played in both S.E.C. tournaments since the post-season meet was reinstated after an absence of 26 years.

"It's important to be playing well by now," says Chuck. "We didn't go very far in the N.I.T. or the N.C.A.A. the past two years, even though we were runner-up in the S.E.C. both times. We need to win it this year and be on a peak next week."

Verderber thinks the current Kentucky team has a better chance than either of the last two Wildcats squads.

"We're basically a sophomore team," says Chuck. "Coach Hall says a players doesn't adjust to the Kentucky program until the second semester of his sophomore year and I agree with him."

"There are four adjustments a player has to make. The first, and the hardest, is academically. The change from high school to college is a dramatic change and then we miss so many classes because of the travel during the season."

"We also have to adjust socially. It takes a while to get accustomed to handling the press and the fans."

"I think the third hardest adjustment a player at Kentucky has to make is the mental part of the game. There's pressure on us every time we go on the court and we've got to be ready to give it our best."

"The fourth adjustment is physical. Our pre-season conditioning program prepares us for that. I'm still not in top physical shape because of the appendectomy, but I think the rest of the team is."

Verderber adds, "I think we've all made those adjustments and I think we're ready."

four in each half, and Terrell also tossed in eight. Kerrick Potter rounded out the Cougar scoring with six.

Menifee placed three players in double figures, led by Wells with 14. Norman Swartz and Blankenship each totaled 12 points. Tim Swartz scored eight and Marty Clark added six.

The loss ended the Wildcats season. Menifee County posted a 15-12 record this year.

Morgan County will face the winner of last night's Rowan County-Kentucky Breckinridge game this Saturday night for the championship of the 61st district.

Universities Should Benefit From Tuition Increases

Enough is enough! We are compelled to speak out on behalf of the students who attend Morehead State University and Kentucky's other public universities.

We raise our editorial voice in opposition to the proposal which would increase tuition but deny the universities the use of the additional income at a time of state budget cutbacks.

Historically, our public universities have been permitted to keep the extra income generated by tuition increases mandated by the Council on Higher Education. However, State Finance Secretary George Atkins has been saying recently that the state may regard the added tuition as state revenue and deduct it from each university's general fund appropriation for 1981-82.

The exact amounts of those appropriations, of course, remain in doubt because the new state budget cutback, the second in less than a year, has not been finalized.

As we see it, students will be paying the higher tuition and they should reap any benefits derived from their financial sacrifices. If MSU and its sister institutions get to keep the extra money as in past years, the added income will help soften the impact of the next round of state general fund reductions. If this is not the case, the extra tuition paid by Kentucky's public college students actually will benefit other state agencies because it will release general fund dollars originally allocated to higher education.

We support low tuition at our public universities and we also realize that inflation makes it necessary to periodically increase the share of the costs borne by our students and their families.

But if higher tuitions must come, it should be used to fill young minds — not potholes!

Prince Charming

Perhaps part of the reason Prince Charles is one of the most popular royal figures of the century can be seen in a comment he made to the press in discussing his engagement to Lady Diana Spencer.

An educated and witty man, Charles is not only extremely rich, he is heir to one of the last great thrones. Yet, when he proposed, he said, "I wanted to give her a chance to think about it — to think if it was all going to be too awful."

In fact, being a member of the British royal family can be pretty awful at times to those not up to it. The constant demands of publicity, the unending stream of ceremonial duties and the need for circumspection can be very trying to someone not brought up to it. Even so, there are probably few unmarried women who would not have jumped at the chance.

Modesty and consideration for others in a future king are hard to resist.

Needed Government

One of the grimmest reports to come out of the press recently concerned the resurgence of sweat shops in New York. Stories of long hours without overtime pay, crowded conditions, less than minimum wage and other echoes of the last century are said to exist in New York City's garment district.

It is sad to think that a problem that outraged Theodore Roosevelt when he was a beginning politician has reemerged.

One would hope that decency would prevent any employer from reducing his workers to peonage. One would hope, but hopes sometimes go unfulfilled.

When private goodwill fails, it is the responsibility of the government to protect the rights of its citizens and see that the republic's laws are enforced.

It is usually best if government need not be brought into the fray, but the government is the ultimate protection. In the enthusiasm to dismantle cumbersome government mechanisms and reduce bureaucratic waste and inefficiency, let us not forget that some of us deserve to have the government on our backs. Those who subvert the rights of others ought to have government interfering in their business. The need for increased productivity does not justify mistreating other human beings in the name of profit. We have not yet come to that.

Echoes of Viet Nam

There are ominous overtones to the controversy surrounding American interest in El Salvador. Some observers express fears that U.S. policy concerning El Salvador is being to resemble that practiced at the beginning of the American involvement in Viet Nam.

While it is desirable that stability be established in El Salvador, the fact remains that much of what goes on in what country is no business of the United States. For that matter, whatever happens there will have little effect on the United States. The country could become a suburb of Moscow or disappear entirely without making much difference to North America. Such occurrences would be unfortunate for those living there, and as an ally, the United States should try to help prevent such fates. Still, that is no reason to begin sending American troops there. That happened in Viet Nam, and nobody benefited.

It would be stupid to let national pride or a desire to impress the Soviets lead the United States into committing troops to fight in a distant country over an issue not vital to the United States.

Letters To The Editor

The Editor:

Once again the citizens of Rowan, Morgan and Menifee counties are being subjected to the planners of the district tournaments. In many districts the boys and girls have the same pairings and also play on the same night. This allows fans to gawp the boys and girls play on the same night this eliminating two nights of travel and two nights of having to pay admission.

Why then is our tournament run differently? It is run this way in order to make as much money for the participating schools as possible. To see the boys and girls team play from one school it is necessary to go on two separate nights and if they both win, it becomes necessary to go on all four nights.

As educators it is also the duty of planners to help in the struggle for conservation of natural resources. With the thoughtless system that has been set up by the planners this year, they are wasting our resources by requiring twice the travel necessary and picking the fans' pockets by requiring them to attend twice as many games. Athletic contests should be for the students and the fans. It should not be for the purpose of financing the schools' other programs.

Respectfully,
Red Ellington
Rt. 1, Morehead

The Editor:

I want to write this so the people will know how happy we were with the response we got when we called for help from the 377 Volunteer Fire Department. Without delay, they were here.

You know, one doesn't realize how much this means until he has reason to call them. The young men are trained and ready to go, and are friendly and willing.

Let's say thanks, not only in words, but let's support them any way possible. From here on out, I know if we help them, they can help us even more.

I am so grateful just to know I can call on them if I really need help.

Sincerely,
Herb (and Alice) Morehouse

Agree Or Not . . .

FRANKFORT — There was nothing sneaky how Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. gave Kentuckians notice there is going to be more taxes levied by the 1982 session of the General Assembly.

In the face of the $185 million shortfall next fiscal year, and the possibility of $25 million in federal funds, said we are going to have to bite the bullet and get more money from taxes which means an increase somewhere. He didn't say where.

He did indicate he would call a special session this year to handle the problem if it were not for the fact that the legislators are running for office this year and there is no way to expect them to vote for a tax increase during a campaign year.

The state had to cut expenditures $114 million last fiscal year to meet the shortfall that the downturn in the economy provided.

The governor will live by the old canard there will be no new taxes, for Kentucky already has every kind of tax available. There are only three kinds of taxes — income, property and excise — to tap them all. The governor is going to have to increase these taxes or tax some other products or businesses under the tax tent.

Kentucky's two largest sources of revenue are the sales tax and the personal income tax. According to a report released last week by the Finance and Revenue Departments, the sales tax produced $185 million last fiscal year and the personal income tax produced $306 million. Corporate income tax produced $159 million. All of this revenue goes to the general fund.

Oil and gasoline taxes produced $187 million for the general fund last year and is down $9.5 million for the first seven months of this fiscal year against the same period last year.

The coal severance tax produced $176 million. The cigarette tax will produce about $30 million this year for it has taken in $9.5 million for the first seven months.

The road fund is running about $22 million behind estimates for the first seven months.

However, overall, the revenue the first seven months of this year is $59 million above the same period of last year, but well behind budget estimates.

The framework of the revenue structure and its sources have been laid out above. Now, where is the governor going to get the needed $185 million.

He told us he was going to run the government like a business, and he knows you have to have money to operate the business and he has to go after it. In business you produce new products, increase sales, raise prices and cut overhead.

Brown has been reducing overhead by reducing the number of state employees, but the payroll gets higher because he is paying higher salaries to his key people and the rest of the employees get cost-of-living increases.

Now, he has to increase the revenue and that means increasing taxes. He can spread the increase over several sources, but the two chief sources for the general fund are the income and sales taxes.

Kentucky has a relatively low personal income tax. This can be increased, and he could disallow the federal income tax as a deduction in calculating the Kentucky tax. This disallowance would be more equitable to the low income people. Persons in the 50 percent federal bracket pay only three percent of the state's six on their gross because of the federal deduction reducing their base on which to pay.

Increasing the sales tax one penny would bring in an estimated $100 million a year. The sales tax could be extended to take-home groceries and produce more than $100 million a year or the sales tax could be extended to services.

The problem with extending it to services is that it produces a nightmare for administration.

Kentucky has the third lowest excise, three cents per package, on cigarettes. Each penny produces a little better than six million dollars a year. If this were increased five cents, to eight cents per package, you could gain $20 to $30 million, but this is a piddling amount of the $185 million shortfall.

Gov. Brown also could ask the 1982 General Assembly to reinstate the tax on utilities that the 1979 special session repealed.

The gasoline tax will go up in April because the 1980 legislature changed the tax from nine cents per gallon to nine-percent of the wholesale price of gasoline. This price is expected to reach the $1.00 mark in April.

The latter slogan of the Wendell Ford era is in for sad days.

Tax Savvy Should Be Goal Of 'Mom And Pop' Businesses

(second in a series of five articles.)

Things have changed since the days when the Mom and Pop retail store epitomized small business in America. Mom usually worked for Pop, the sole proprietor; she usually worked without pay and wasn't eligible for social security benefits.

Today's Mom and Pop are more likely to be officers of their own corporation, both receiving salaries and other fringe benefits. According to the Kentucky Society of CPAs, a primary concern of today's savvy husband and wife business owners is avoiding taxes. If you and your spouse operate a business and file a joint federal income tax return, there are many things to consider.

Are you paid a salary or dividends? Do you know which offers the greatest tax advantage? Are your personal assets — like home and car — protected from liability from business losses? Do you have the most tax beneficial fringe benefits?

Is your business a partnership, corporation or subchapter S? If there's a little risk involved in your business, a partnership may suit you best. This is similar to a sole proprietorship. You and your spouse provide all the capital, you receive all the profits, and you assume all the risks. Your profits and losses are included on your personal income tax return. You may be able to reduce taxes by forming a family partnership and dividing income with your children, who are in lower tax brackets, if they contribute labor or capital to the business.

If you have a corporation, you have more personal protection. That property which you own personally such as your house and car, could not be seized to pay corporate debts if your business failed. Also, the corporate tax rate may be lower than the rate on personal income tax, depending on the bracket into which you fall. However, corporate profits may be taxed a second time when they come out of the corporation as dividends. If you and your spouse collect those dividends you pay income tax on them.

Determine your salary — or dividend income — by figuring out the best tax advantage. Ask your tax advisor how this works. Remember the best salary for you and your spouse is one that won't cost you more in personal income tax than it saves the company in corporate tax.

As employees of a corporation, you can take advantage of corporate fringe benefit plans which are deductible by the corporation but not taxable to the employees. For instance, the corporation may be able to deduct as much as 25 percent of total compensation paid during the year, or possibly even more, through corporate profit sharing and pension plans. That money is not taxable to you until you collect it at retirement when you will probably be in a lower tax bracket.

The subchapter S corporation offers many of the advantages of a regular corporation while avoiding the double tax. Profits are taxed to you in the year they are earned by the corporation and you report them as income on your tax return. CPAs say that you may find a subchapter S corporation especially beneficial in the early years of a business — the years with most risk and the biggest losses. You can take the business losses as deductions on your personal income tax return, but they are limited to the amount you have put into the company.

No matter what structure your business assumes, the IRS has specific regulations regarding the operation of a business from your home. Stringent requirements must be met, but you may be able to claim certain deductions.

The "home office" deduction is not a single deduction, but an assortment of expenses. You prorate the amount of space used by the business, a share of the heat, water, utilities, telephone, trash collection, maintenance, depreciation, or the amount of your rent.

Remember, too that when you sell your home and have been depreciating a part of it as a business expense, you must adjust the basis when computing any capital gain from its sale.

Say you are over 35 and are able to avoid tax on up to $10,000 in profits from the sale of your home. The actual gain would have to be prorated to reflect the part of your house you used for business. In that case, you must pay tax on that portion of the gain.

It's very likely that our vineyard Mom and Pop did not own the building their store was in. They may have rented it as well as the apartment upstairs. Today's Mom and Pop, CPAs say, should consider the possible tax advantages of buying the building and leasing it to their business. Consider the same approach with the company car.

Do your kids work in your business? If so, there may be more tax breaks available. Let's say you and your spouse operate an electrical supply business as a family partnership. You and your spouse combined taxable income of $36,000 and are in the 43 percent tax bracket. Your two teenagers work for you during the summer and each earns $2,000. Neither you nor your children will owe any federal income tax on their earnings. (They can file a W-4 when you hire them so that you won't need to deduct taxes.)

The $4,000 will be deducted from your income tax as a business expense and reduce your own taxes. It will also provide your children with money toward their college expenses. Generally, children may earn as much as $3,300 before they must pay taxes on their salaries.

A child under 18 who works for a partnership operated by only his parents is not required to pay social security taxes, no matter what the salary. In this case, the parent is not required to contribute the employer's share.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A strike by 2,700 hourly Louisville Gas & Electric Co. employees entered the second day today. The strikers are angry about LG&E's insistence on being able to reassign injured workers to lower paying jobs. Supervisors were pressed into service to replace linemen, maintenance and other workers who provide electric and gas service to almost 300,000 customers in populous Jefferson County and 411 nearby metropolitan-area counties.

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — About 300 students planned to march today on the state Capitol to protest suggestions Kentucky State University be closed or merged. They don't have official backing from the KSU administration. A spokeswoman in the school's public information office said Wednesday no details of the march are available "because this is totally a student idea. They didn't come to KSU for approval." The protest-march was organized by Darryl Niles who said the school's chiefly black student population has been perturbed by two recent proposals: one to close the school and another to merge it with the University of Kentucky.

The Hidden Valley residence of Charles Myers was victimized by thieves Tuesday afternoon between 2 p.m. and 3:15 p.m. Myers told police that an unknown person or persons broke out a window in his home and entered the dwelling. Myers reported to a police that the thieves took $30 and a gold wedding band. The burglary is being investigated by detective Bob Wright.

City police officers Mickey Refitt and Scot Baker pursued a pick-up truck during a brief police chase around 1 a.m. Wednesday morning, after the vehicle tried to elude the officers. The officers attempted to stop the vehicle after they observed the driver operating the truck in an erratic manner upon coming off of the I-64 East ramp, according to the police report. The officers managed to stop the vehicle just inside the Thomas addition to the city. The driver of the vehicle, Harlan Johnson, 33, Morehead, was arrested on the charges of driving while under the influence, attempting to elude police officers, resisting arrest, and failure to have an operators license. Johnson was also charged by police with possession of stolen property after it was determined the truck he was driving was reported stolen in Lexington in February. Arrested with Johnson on charges of public intoxication were Gary Spicer, 35, Morehead, Doug Ramey, 19, Morehead, Linda Keaton, 22, Morehead, and Jackie Adkins, 29, Morehead. All were taken to the Rowan County Jail.

Legislators Feuding Over Budget Cuts

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. and the Democratic leadership of the Kentucky General Assembly appear headed for a clash over the timing of the announcement of proposed cuts in the state budget.

President pro tem of the State Senate Joseph Prather and House Speaker William Kenton said Wednesday they would ask the governor extend the deadline when Brown will announce what programs will be cut to compensate for the expected $186 million shortfall in the state budget from 1980-82.

Brown has said he will announce those cuts by April 1. Prather said that date is too soon for the legislature to have any significant input into Brown's decisions. "I think there's no way we can have our work completed by that time," he said. "We have the responsibility to take a thorough look before we act." But when Brown emerged briefly from a meeting Wednesday night with Prather, Kenton and ten other "dormant" legislators, he said he didn't think he could extend the deadline. "I don't believe we can delay it," Brown said, adding he hadn't yet discussed the deadline at the late-night meeting and might be open to a compromise.

However, the governor said, "I'm not going to do anything I'm not comfortable with."

Brown has not detailed what areas of the budget will be cut, but has pledged they won't effect "the quality of education or essential human services."

Brown said the decision on where the budget will be cut must be made by April 1 because non-tenured teacher contracts expire April 30 and school boards must know how many teachers they can rehire before then.

Earlier, Prather introduced a resolution to the Legislative Research Commission aimed to open up the review of the proposed budget cuts. The resolution, which passed unanimously, provided for two members from each legislative committee possibly effected by the cuts to participate in an advisory capacity at all meetings of the several budget review subcommittees of Interim Joint Committee on Appropriations and Revenue.

Fiscal Court

so that the air board could function. "I will not back down," Ousley said, adding that he had regrets about voting to rescind Salyer's appointment.

"At that time, I was acting on what I thought was the county attorney's advice," he said.

"We'll take it to circuit court if necessary to get it settled," Ousley added.

In other action concerning the air board, Paul Caudill, secretary of the board, appeared before the court and asked for funds to meet a yearly $3,400 payment due in May on the airport trailer as well as $1,933 insurance on the trailer plus other operating expenses.

The court took under advisement the request for funds.

Several residents involved in a dispute over an alley in Clearfield appeared before the court.

R.F. Elliott, of Ashland, representing his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Budesheim, whose Clearfield property adjoins the alley, asked that the court seek a restraining order preventing any further dumping of gravel on the alley.

The Budesheims claim that the gravel is raising the surface water and causing their property to be flooded.

Ousley said that since Judge Flannery and Lytle, the magistrate in that district, were both absent, that no decision or action could be taken at the meeting.

Flannery and Lytle had told the Budesheims that they would look into the matter at last month's meeting and report back at yesterday's session.

Mr. and Mrs. Foley Partin were also present at yesterday's meeting to discuss the alley, pointing out that the county had not been properly maintaining it and that some portions were being blocked.

Cox told the Budesheims and Partins that he thought the matter could be settled outside of circuit court and that he had no authority to request a restraining order as requested without being directed to do so by the court.

"It is a public alley and by virtue of its being public property, the county is obligated to either properly maintain it or legally close it," Cox said.

The court directed Cox along with county road foreman Jesse Anderson to inspect the alley and bring it up to standards so as to prevent any damage to private property and make a written recommendation on the matter.

Also appearing before the court was Robert Kehrt, controller for OVC Telecommunications, Inc., requesting that the court consider a rate increase from $7 to $8.50 monthly for the television cable rate.

The court took under advisement the request. (See separate story elsewhere.)

In other business, the court granted authority to Cox to form a corporation to apply for funding and grants for preservation of the old courthouse.

The non-profit corporation will be known as the Rowan County Courthouse Preservation Corporation.

Its board of directors, also approved by the court, include:

Jim Fluty, a certified public accountant; Bobbi Tucker, an interested citizen; Glen Boody, Director of the Physical Plant at Morehead State University; James Gifford, Betty Marshall and Shirley Hamilton, all with the Appalachian Development Center at MSU, and Cox.

The magistrates also discussed the February gravel bill which amounted to $7,702 and complained that some of the gravel they had requested was not being distributed in their districts and that other gravel distribution was excessive.

"We should turn in our lists and direct the judge not to exceed it," Ousley suggested.

Plank said that he would like to know where all the gravel went.

"I didn't get any gravel that I turned in for," he said.

Ousley also said that the gravel distribution should be listed by roads rather than names of people for better reference.

In other business relating to roads, the court voted that no county employee in the road department other than the road foreman would have the authority to make purchases for the county and requested the county road foreman to be present at the next meeting to make a road report.

Sheriff Jim Nickell gave a tax collection report to the magistrates pointing out that $979,000 had been collected out of the total bills of $1,590,986.

The court also approved the formal contract employing Charles Stansbury for a two-year period retroactive to Jan. 1, 1980 for a finance at a salary of $15,000 per year.

Stansbury told the court that response from employers and self-employed people had been good thus far and the collection of the occupational tax "was starting to move."

In other business during the three-hour meeting, the court:

- Authorized Kentucky Utilities to relocate a pole at the Martindale Building from the driveway to the traffic island.

- Granted permission to Kentucky Central Life Insurance Company for the county treasurer to withhold payments from the payroll checks of county employees with their authorization for life insurance policies.

- Directed Brooks Karrick, courthouse custodian, to be responsible for seeing that the flag on the courthouse lawn was taken down at night.

- Signed a monthly lease agreement with MSU for a parking area in back of the Martindale Building for $50 a month.

- Authorized Cox to file a suit in circuit court against Doris Brown for obstructing Sand Gap Road with fence posts.

- Agreed to check out used tires at the county garage and advise them for sale upon completion of inventory.

- Voted to hire Nelson Jennings to make a road around the McClain-Crawford Cemetery on Jones Ridge for a fee of $30 per hour not to exceed two hours work.

- Approved the payment of all monthly claims with exception of all bills pertaining to the director of finance's office which will be paid when tax money is collected in April. The court also voted to hold a $472 bill from Rowan Wholesale Auto Parts for two batteries.

charges," Linsker said. Linsker added that Spencer told police he had previously served 30 months at the Ashland (Ky) correctional facility for the fraudulent use of credit cards.

Fiscal Court Will Set Salaries For Elected Officials

Although some members of Rowan Fiscal Court will not return to office in 1982, it will be up to them to set the salaries of the county's elected officials.

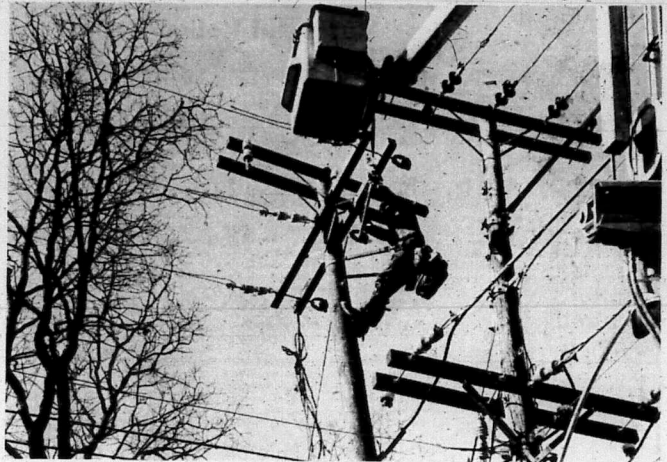

According to state law, the fiscal court must set the salaries of county officials and their deputies no later than the first Monday in May of the year in which the officers are elected.

No county judge, executive, magistrate, justice of the peace or commissioner holding office on the first Monday in January 1982 can receive less than the total annual salary received by that official during the 1981 calendar year.

In addition, the salary of the judge/executive cannot be set at less than 90 percent of $25,058, the maximum amount set by the state Department of Commerce.

The total salary of fee officers set by the county and the fees earned may not exceed the maximum set by the commerce department. The fiscal court may also fix the number of deputies and assistants and their compensations, as well as the maximum amount that the officer can spend on expenses for his or her office.

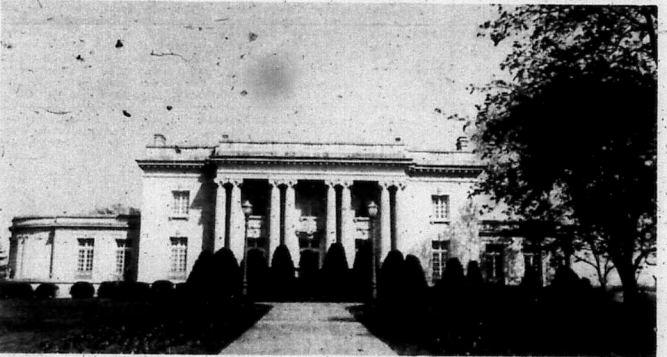

Elected officials whose salaries will be set by the present fiscal court include: judge/executive, magistrates, county attorney, county clerk, sheriff, jailer and coroner. The court must also set the salaries of deputies and part time employees.

stallation of the feeder cables which arrived that morning. MSU officials said the electrical switchover to the station, which will return the campus to normal electrical service, should be completed next week during the university's spring break. (Staff photo by Rob Dollar)

Repairs To Proceed

An outpouring of public support, according to Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., now means that the Department of Finance can now move ahead with structural repairs to make the Governor's Mansion in Frankfort habitable as the official governor's residence. The Browns were forced to move from the mansion last May after it was ordered closed, by the state fire marshal because of dangerous wiring and inadequate plumbing. Save the Mansion Inc., a non-profit corporation founded by Phyllis George Brown, has raised more than $700,000 to offset state costs in restoring the mansion.

Jail Escapees

had unlocked their cell to give them a bucket of mop water they had requested in order to clean the floor of the cell.

Morehead City Police Chief Fred Barnsdale said his department is working on the case, but little progress has been made.

"We've had some places staked out that we've been watching — but there's been no breakthrough," he said.

Detective Bob Wright was in Johnson County all day yesterday checking out one lead that was received in regard to the case.

Barnsdale said the department has received numerous leads from the public so far in the investigation, but all have been unsuccessful.

"We get them and follow up on them," he said about "tips" from citizens.

Even though none of the leads have turned up successful results, Barnsdale said the department welcomes any help the public can give in regard to apprehending the two escapees.

Both Burton and Rivers were awaiting trial on first degree burglary charges at the time of their escape. Rivers also has several other charges against him, including a robbery charge in Paintsville.

Changing Face

The renovation of the Martindale Building into the county's new judicial complex took on another new look recently after a fresh layer of paint was applied to the exterior of the building. Attorney John Cox, one of the county's coordinators in the project, said the building inspector has recently received permission from the state fire marshal's office for the first floor of the new complex to be occupied as early as April 1. The dedication of the building is tentatively scheduled for May 1. (Staff photo by Rob Dolar)

Housing Decline In 1979 Contributed To Recession

The major decline in housing in Kentucky in 1979 substantially contributed to a recession in 1980, according to the annual housing report recently released by the University of Louisville's Urban Studies Center.

The report gives an account of county-by-county housing information throughout the Commonwealth. Partially funded by a grant from the Kentucky Housing Corporation, the report gives statistics for the five basic geographic regions of Kentucky, for the 15 Area Development Districts (ADD) and for each county.

The severe housing recession in 1980 caused a reduction in construction jobs, a 76 percent decrease in lending and the lowest housing production levels in the past decade. Although housing prices increased nationally, the cost of housing in Kentucky increased more slowly than in the rest of the nation. A major positive trend in 1980 was an increase in the number of households added. Approximately 32,000 units are being added to the state each year. This figure is six percent higher than earlier estimates. Western and Midwestern Kentucky fell below this average, while the state's fastest growing counties are in Northeast and Southeast Kentucky. The growth in the number of households indicates continued strong demand for housing in the state. Even though immediate demand was reduced by high interest rates and a national recession, the annual rate of increase as 2.6 percent over the 1970-79 period, compared to 2.2 percent annually from 1970-77.

Although there was an increase in demand for housing, actual housing starts fell to their lowest levels in a decade. The 11,106 new single family housing starts were 25 percent below the previous recession's low in 1975, and 60 percent below the record high production levels of 1972. Multi-family production has been stalled at about 5,500 units per year. This low level has varied only slightly in the past few years.

The study indicates that in 1980 one in five construction workers lost their jobs due to the recession. A further 16 percent reduction in 1980 and another five percent reduction in 1981 were estimated.

Construction workers in Northeast Kentucky were severely affected. There were over 4,000 fewer construction workers employed in March 1980 than in March 1979. In the FIVCO (five county) and Bluegrass Area Development Districts, contract construction employment dropped 52 percent and 24 percent, respectively.

The signs of the housing recession were clearly evident in the savings and loan industry in Kentucky. Home purchase financing, down $134.3 million in 1979 for a 25 percent decline, fell an additional 36 percent in 1980. From April to June 1980 alone, loans fell 76 percent as compared to the same period in 1978.

Government loans helped to offset the losses in lending, both in 1979 and 1980. In 1979, 1,700 more FHA/VA loans were made than in 1978. FHA loans increased over 50 percent in dollar value and 30 percent in number.

Savings associations increased FHA loans originating from their offices, by nearly 11.9 percent. The increase could be the result of several factors, the report indicates. The Loans to Lenders program of the Kentucky Housing Corporation made available below-market rate mortgage money directly to participating savings associations, which was very attractive to lenders facing the constricted loan market.

The U of L report also indicates the tighter market for deposits might have influenced savings associations to increase participation in the secondary mortgage market, where insured loans are bought and sold. Savings and loan associations increased net loan sales from $24 million in 1978 to $58 million in 1979.

Vodika Collins Runs Third In $50,000 Stake

In his first stakes race, Vodika Collins, a three-year-old colt owned by M.B. "Buddy" Collins of Mt. Sterling, ran third Saturday at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs, Ark.

Vodika Collins, which is eligible for the Kentucky Derby, returned $4.40 to show. The six-furlong handicap was won by Bold Ego in 1:11.45 and he returned $9.20, $5.20 and $4. Lockjaw finished second and paid $1.20 and $2.40.

The Montgomery County-bred and raised colt now has two wins, a third and a fourth this year in four starts as a three-year-old.

Attorney General Says GenTel Is Not Providing Adequate Service

Attorney General Steven L. Beshear filed, as part of his office's written testimony in the General Telephone Company rate case, a survey concerning the quality of service provided by the telephone company to its residential subscribers.

Beshear said representatives of his office, members of the Utility Regulatory Commission and the general public have heard testimony on two occasions from General Telephone's customers complaining about the quality of service received. "Officials at General Telephone have tried to imply that these are isolated instances which are not representative of any significant portion of their customers," he said "I therefore decided to determine just how widespread these problems are in the company's entire service area."

The survey included a random sample of 582 people selected in the General Telephone service area and interviewed during the last week in January. The survey was conducted by the University of Kentucky Survey

Research Center in Lexington. "The results we obtained are extremely interesting," Beshear said. "Thirty-four percent of General Telephone customers, or one out of every three, feel that the service they receive is below average."

"Since General Telephone has approximately 213,500 residential customers in Kentucky, this would indicate that over 72,500 people are dissatisfied with the service they receive from General Telephone," he said. Beshear said a better indication of the way General Telephone customers feel about the service they receive came from those who have had prior experience with another telephone company.

"These people were asked to compare the other company's service to the present service by General Telephone. Fifty-two percent of those who responded said General Telephone service was worse, while only 14 percent thought it was better," he reported. "General Telephone may argue that the survey indicates that a majority of their customers think that the service is at least average," Beshear said. "However, is there anything to be proud of when over a third of your customers rate your service below average?"

He said a private company where 34 percent of its customers felt this way about service would not be in business very long.

"In spite of this, General Telephone wants a rate increase. And they admit that a significant portion of this increase will end up in stockholders' pockets as profit," Beshear said.

"It is time for the Utility Regulatory Commission to quit rewarding a utility company for rendering poor service to over a third of its customers," he said. "It is time that General Telephone be required to give adequate service in return for the hard-earned money which the people of Kentucky are required to pay them."

KET Offers Night Of Country Music

KET presents an evening of hand-clapping, foot-stomping entertainment for music lovers of all kinds Thursday, March 12.

Bluegrass abounds beginning with an encore performance of "J.D. Crowe and the New South," airing at 8 p.m.

Nest at 8:30 p.m., KET presents "Kentucky Bluegrass: A Preview." This sampler from KET's new bluegrass music series starting the McLain Family Band offers a glimpse of the performances taped live at the family's annual summer music festival and a close-up of the individuals who make up the McLain band.

Then at 9:30 p.m., KET premieres the first episode in its new series, "Kentucky Bluegrass: The McLain Family Festival." In thirteen half-hour programs, the series explores the full range of bluegrass music — from traditional bluegrass to country-western, gospel and the blues performed with a bluegrass flavor.

The series premiere features the entire McLain clan — Raymond K on guitar, Raymond W. on banjo, Nancy Ann and Michael on mandolin, Ruth on string bass and Beverly on banjo — in a spirited performance of traditional bluegrass numbers, including "Under The Double Eagle," "Big River Blues" and "I'm Blue and Lonesome Too."

A medley of creek songs, including "Cripple Creek," "Troublesome Creek" and "Baptism, On Beaver Creek" follows. The McLain's bluegrass version of "The Star And Stripes Forever" round out the half-hour of family entertainment and ends the first show of the series on a patriotic note. Upcoming programs in the series showcase such regionally and nationally known groups as Buck White and the Down Home Folks (Texas), The Goins Brothers (Ky.), the Country Gazette (Tenn.), as well as international performers as Applesed from Japan and Pesaci from Czechoslovakia.

In a finale on March 12, the cowboys take over with an hour-long concert of country-western tunes and popular bluegrass favorites. "It's Party Time: The Breeding's Bunch," featuring the Lexington-based group of singers and musicians, airs at 10 p.m.

Drug Charges On Harmon Dismissed

Drug-related charges against a Flemingsburg man were dismissed in Montgomery County District Court Thursday.

Charges against Ray A. Harmon, 22, of possession of Qualudes, 62, of possession of amphetamines were dismissed after a motion to suppress evidence was sustained. Court records reveal the motion to suppress was sustained because an illegal search was conducted to seize the evidence.

Harmon was one of six persons arrested on drug-related charges Jan. 15 by Kentucky State Police. His case was waived to action of a grand jury in District Court Jan. 18 and the suppression hearing was set Jan. 22.

Harmon has not been released from jail. He faces other charges in Flemingsburg.

State Preparing To Stripe Roads

As the weather improves, the state Transportation Department will be gearing up to paint stripes on Kentucky's roads and highways.

Six diesel striping trucks have been purchased to replace old trucks. The $95,000 trucks will be sent to district headquarters in Paducah, Madisonville, Covington, Lexington, Jackson and Pikeville.

Bob Flener, director of the department's traffic division, said the older trucks were being replaced with diesel trucks to cut fuel costs.

Maintenance crews attempt to stripe more than 20,000 miles of state-maintained roads each year. Last year, paint shortages prevented some districts from completing the year's striping, Flener said.

A striping crew can average 25 miles of striping a day.

Flener said 226,885 gallons of white paint and 414,280 gallons of yellow paint have been purchased to meet striping needs this year. About 2.7 million pounds of glass beads, which are to be mixed with the paint to give it a reflective quality, have been purchased.

A Sporting Debate

Rowan County School Superintendent John Brock and former basketball coach Dr. Bob Davis will square off in what is being called "The Sports Debate of the Century" on Friday, March 13, in the Craile Student Center at Georgetown College.

Brock will defend referees and Davis will uphold the integrity of coaches in the debate. "Resolved: All referees are blind—all coaches are stupid." The event is part of the Georgetown Chamber of Commerce banquet.

Davis is well known in Georgetown for his basketball coaching feats at Georgetown College from 1953 to 1973. He was also head basketball coach at Auburn University and currently serves as administrative assistant to Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins.

Brock is an ex-referee who called games when Davis was active in coaching. He was a scholarship guard at Lincoln Memorial University in Tennessee and played eight games against Davis-coached teams. He is a native of Pineville and played ball at Bell County, where he later taught and coached. He also coached and taught at Pineville High School. He has done graduate work both at Alabama College and the University of Kentucky. He has been an official for high school games, KMAC and OVC college events.

The chamber of commerce banquet will begin at 7 p.m., with an informal reception at 6:30. Ticket information is available from the chamber's office by phoning, 863-5424.

Registration Is Underway For Elderhostel Programs

Last year seven colleges and universities in Kentucky joined the ranks of 235 other campuses across the country in providing Elderhostel programs. Many classes for its second year are filling, and registration deadlines are only four to six weeks away.

In groups of no more than 45, Elderhostel brings together older men and women for a "week" on campus with dormitory living, daily study and extracurricular activities. Two or three courses (abbreviated but not diluted college-level classes) are offered senior citizens each day in subjects like What Makes Democracy Work, Appalachian History, All About Horses, Arts in Appalachia, Kentucky Tragedy, and Aquatic Biology.

In 1975, the University of New Hampshire began offering persons over 60 and their spouses on-campus classes, housing and meals at affordable prices. Recalling the hosting tradition of traveling and learning, they called the program "Elderhostel." According to Elderhostel organizer Marty Knowlton, "One of people's central myths is that as you age, your mental ability declines. It's a lot of claptrap; your ability to learn continues to grow."

Dr. Alice Brown, state coordinator for the Kentucky program, agrees with Knowlton about the "myth." "Our staff is stimulated by the interest generated in classes, and the Elderhostelers love it! Our classes at Eastern are filling up, and I feel most of that has come through word of mouth from last year's participants," she said. Registration opened Feb. 22 for late summer classes. According to Dr. Brown, very few Kentucky residents are registering for the Kentucky program. "This is somewhat unfortunate, especially since we offer scholarships only to students from Kentucky," she added.

The six Kentucky colleges and universities participating in this year's Elderhostel program are Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond, Union College, Barbourville; Georgetown College in Georgetown; Morehead State University, Morehead; Thomas More College, Covington; and Berea College in Berea. The schedules are set up for different weeks, so an Elderhosteler could spend the entire summer at different campuses taking courses. The first session is scheduled at Thomas More for the week of May 17. The last session is at Eastern the week of Aug. 2.

The cost for a week of classes, field trips and activities, housing, and meals in the college cafeteria is $140. For those who choose to commute, there is a $50 fee that covers everything except room and board. Special banquet costs are included in the commuter fees.

For more information about Elderhostel, interested persons can contact the college or university they might wish to attend or Dr. Alice Brown, Elderhostel, State Coordinating Office, Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, KY 40475, (606) 622-1444.

MSU Professor Fills Retirement With Work

Retirement doesn't seem to appear in the dictionary of Maurice W. Strider, professor emeritus of Morehead State University.

Strider recently received an art award for his accomplishments, has scheduled a speaking engagement at a Georgia college and teaches art classes two nights weekly at MSU.

Strider, who retired in December 1978 as associate professor art, was recently presented the Kentucky Art Education Association's Distinguished Service Award by its executive council at the Living Arts and Science Center in Lexington.

The award, the highest recognition given by the KAEA, states:

"In recognition of his 45 years of service, and commitment to art and education, the members of the KAEA, proudly and affectionately present this special service award to Maurice W. Strider."

Strider, the present secretary of KAEA, is chairman of the Lexington Citizens for Cultural Development, which is working to make the Morton House in Lexington's Duncan Park into a museum and culture center.

The MSU art instructor was the recent guest speaker at Valdosta State College in Georgia for Black History Month where his presentation was on Afro-American Art.

In his "more active" years, Strider was a member of the world famous Fish University (Tenn.) Jubilee Singers. He is presently one of the two surviving members of the third generation of the Singers. The group, which spans more than 100 years, has performed throughout the United States, Europe and the Caribbean.

The research project was designed by Drs. Stanley Murrell and Samuel Z. Himmelfarb, professors in U of L's Department of Psychology, and Paul Schulte, director of survey research at the Urban Studies Center.

The project will involve 4,000 Kentuckians, age 55 and older, in a study of the resources, stress and mental health of older persons.

Scientists Fear Blue Mold Outbreak

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — North Carolina State University scientists predict the "blue mold" fungus will attack the 1981 flue-cured tobacco crop because it has already appeared in seven countries to the south where planting has begun.

Furney A. Todd, an agricultural extension service pathologist, said farmers are strongly urged to participate "100 percent" in treating plant beds against blue mold and other diseases like anthracnose and "damping off."

Todd said blue mold, which causes poorly developed roots, deformed leaves and brittle stalks, reached epidemic proportions in 1979 and 1980. He said scientists believe Cuba was the source of the epidemic and blue mold has already appeared there this year.

He recommended the use of the chemical Ridomil just prior to or immediately after plant bed seeding. He said the chemical should be used at the rate of one ounce or two tablespoons in two gallons of water for each 150 square yards.

"Some growers are spraying their beds with Ridomil, raking and then seeding; others are preparing and seeding beds, then spraying with Ridomil followed by irrigation," Todd said in a statement released Wednesday.

To prevent other disease such as anthracnose, he said, the grower should make three applications of fungicides containing ferbam, zineb, maneb or metiram. The first treatment should be applied when plants are about the size of a dime to a quarter, the second two to three weeks later and the third near transplanting.

Todd also suggested applying Ridomil after tobacco is transplanted to prevent field damage. He said the chemical should be applied at a rate of one to two quarts per acre for flue-cured tobacco and two quart per acre for burley and other types.

A second plan allows the grower to wait to see if there is a chance of field damage. This method involves application of foliage spray once or twice a week. Fungicides containing maneb or streptomycin sulfate provide good control on a preventive basis, Todd said.

Fungicides, he said, should be mixed with water at the rate of one and a half pounds per 100 gallons of water and applied to give full plant coverage. Materials containing streptomycin sulfate are mixed at the rate of one pound per 100 gallons of water.

Managing Tobacco Plant Beds

Significant disease problems were observed in tobacco plant beds around Kentucky last year. A recent report indicated that plant bed diseases were worse than they normally are.

"There is no excuse for plant bed problems to cause the amount of damage observed last year," said Bill Nesmith, Extension plant pathologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. He added that most of the damage was due to poor plant bed management because at no place in the production of the tobacco crop does the grower have greater control over his crop than in the plant bed.

Nesmith believes that modern technology has made transplant production so easy, that too many producers are sowing the bed and then forgetting about it.

In view of the short tobacco crops that have been produced the last two years, Nesmith said that farmers should make every effort to improve their yield — starting with preventing disease in their plant beds.

Producers are being advised to follow a preventive spray program. "Some diseases can be checked if you start with the very first signs of a disease, but most can be controlled only by using a pesticide before the pathogen arrives," explained the pathologist.

Since the threat of blue mold is ever present in tobacco, Kentucky producers are being encouraged to use Ridomil in their plant beds this year.

"Tests show that Ridomil does an excellent job of controlling Pythium damping off and early season blue mold with a single application," said Nesmith. It must be applied at the time of seeding the bed.

Spraying for blue mold does not eliminate the need for later sprays for anthracnose and bacterial diseases in the bed, according to Nesmith. Ferbam, Mancozeb, Maneb, Polyram, Streptomycin and Zineb are labeled for disease control in the bed.

He suggested: When bacterial disease is suspected use streptomycin. For diseases such as anthracnose and other fungi, use one of the other sprays. Fumigation is necessary to insure good chemical penetration of the soil and kill of pests. Fumigate only when soil moisture, temperature and soil tillage are appropriate for the chemical used, Nesmith advised.

Producers should try to avoid recontamination of the bed with anything that may carry disease organisms, especially black shank.

It is essential to practice good weed control in and around the bed. Nesmi explained that many beds become contaminated with disease organisms when the pathogens are splashed from the weeds to the bed, especially when nearby weeds are taller than the bed.

If using straw to support the plant bed cover, use only a thin covering. "Excess straw allows the soil surface to remain too wet too long," Nesmith said. Fertilize the bed before seeding.

Fertilizer applied after seeding can easily injure young, tender plants and make them more susceptible to disease.

Watering the bed is important. Growers should water the bed before injury occurs. However, make sure that the water is free of disease organisms.

Water early enough in the day that bed covers and plants dry before dark. Nesmith advised to put on enough water to last several days instead of watering each day.

To avoid disease late in the plant bed growing period, remove the plant bed cover, especially during wet periods, to control humidity. "Many diseases develop late because humidity remains high among the crowded plants," warned Nesmith.

Marketing Practices

Affect Livestock Prices

How livestock producers "package" the cattle, hogs or sheep they are selling, with their aim on eye appeal and number of buyers, can get them higher price bids.

Marketing practices vary in how livestock are handled, uniformity of lot sizes, weight categories and marketing grades — all of which affect price," said Dr. Lee Meyer, Extension marketing specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Meyer said that if producers choose to sell direct, they can improve their market position by selling groups of cattle, hogs or sheep that are alike.

"Selling groups of livestock that are similar in weight and grade provides eye appeal to the buyer and will generally get you a higher price bid," Meyer said.

Sort livestock into groups of smaller lots. Individual pen selling can provide you with a better price for your animals.

Try to sell truckload size lots to reduce transportation costs and get a higher price. "UK research has shown that livestock sold in truckload size lots bring $2 to $3 more per cwt. than odd-size lots," stated Meyer.

The specialist reminded slaughter cattle producers to reduce shrinkage in their animals and to market them at a choice grade. Research has shown that most meatpackers discount livestock that are less than choice.

Meyer emphasized that producers should be aware of what livestock buyers are looking for. "Have the grade that buyers want so that you can sell on a competitive market. This will help you get a price equal to the true value."

Corn Producers Warned Of Leaf Blight, Virus

Kentucky corn producers are being warned to be on the lookout for two diseases that have the potential to reduce corn yields.

"Northern corn leaf blight and corn virus complex are diseases that we are going to be concerned about this summer because of the damage they can inflict," said Dr. Dick Stuckey, Extension plant pathologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Northern corn leaf blight is not new to Kentucky corn producers. It has been found in the state for almost 20 years, but has caused only a small amount of damage to yields in recent years. Damage may increase, however, because of a new race of the disease that has been discovered.

"In the last two years, a new race of the disease has been identified in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio," explained Stuckey. The problems facing producers and researchers, at present, is that most commercial hybrids grown in Kentucky don't contain genes that are resistant to the new race of fungus.

Stuckey advises corn producers to look for large lesions on the lower leaves of the plant. If they are present, they will probably move up the plant and cause tassel and ear damage.

Late in the fall, the disease causes the plant to take on a grayish-green appearance - similar to the color produced after an early frost, Stuckey said.

Damage to the plant could be devastating. "If the disease is present early in the season, there's a possible 30 to 50 percent yield reduction," said Stuckey. "But if an infection occurs six weeks after silking time or later, the damage is minimal."

Control measures for the disease are few. "About all a producer can do is to look for the disease in his crop," Stuckey said. A resistant gene is on the market, but it has not yet been incorporated into the hybrids, and may not be for another two years, he added. Mancozeb fungicides are cleared for northern corn leaf blight control but are seldom used in commercial corn fields, Stuckey said, because using them does not bring economic returns when infection occurs late in the season.

Virus Is Problem

Corn virus complex also is causing problems for researchers. "The potential for the disease is always present—whenever johnsongrass is found," said Stuckey.

Damage caused by poor pollination of complex resembles poor pollination of corn plants, in that plants produce small ears with few kernels. Dwarf johnsongrass is yellow in color and characteristic of the virus disease.

Again, as is the case with northern corn leaf blight, tolerant hybrids are the primary way to control corn virus complex.

"Tolerant hybrids are present for corn virus complex, and I would recommend their use if a producer thinks his crop may be infected," said Stuckey. He added that a person should be fairly certain that he has the disease because in the absence of the disease, the resistant hybrids do not yield as well as susceptible hybrids.

Controlling johnsongrass will help control the virus, which is transmitted to corn by aphids and leafhoppers or infected johnsongrass.

Nutritionist Warns Against Fasting

Not eating sounds like an easy way to lose weight. Fasting—and modified fasting using liquid protein diets—have become popular.

However, such diets put an unnecessary strain on body functions, are not worth the health risks, and can be especially dangerous for some people.

Those high-risk people include individuals who are taking prescribed drugs; have high blood pressure or kidney, liver or heart disease; the elderly; preschool children and teenagers; pregnant women and nursing mothers.

The problem is that total fasting causes the body to lose muscle tissue and important minerals as well as fat.

Developed to avoid these problems, liquid protein diets fail because most are made from low-quality proteins that don't include a balanced mix of the essential amino acids. Some products also lack some necessary vitamins and minerals.

Total caloric intake can be a problem, too, when liquid diets are the only source of nourishment. Those who choose this method of losing weight often consume only 300 to 500 calories a day, and that's far below the amount needed.

A low-calorie, liquid protein diet can cause illness and even death. Reports indicate users can experience nausea, vomiting, faintness, muscle cramps, irritability, hair loss, dehydration and potassium imbalance, as well as heart irregularities have caused deaths.

The Food and Drug Administration reports in 16 of 58 deaths occurring early in 1978, none of the victims had a history of heart disease, but all died suddenly, without previous symptoms of heart irregularities—either while on the diet or shortly after going off it.

In a recent study by the University of Rochester Medical Center, findings agreed that these diets can cause dangerous heart irregularities, possibly due to deficient protein, trace elements, electrolytes and essential fatty acids.

In the end, there are no advantages to low-calorie, liquid protein diets. Weight loss achieved by them has not been greater than by other low-calorie diets. The best diet includes a good balance of protein, fat and carbohydrate, and the best way to lose weight is still by cutting down on how much you eat and by increasing physical activity.

Safe Deposit Boxes

Many couples hold safe-deposit boxes in both names. However, because joint registration does not mean joint ownership of the property inside, whether it's jewelry, stocks, bonds or insurance policies. This creates a problem on the death of a joint owner because the bank must seal the box until local tax authorities inventory the contents.

In most cases, particularly in smaller communities, this delay may not be very long. However, if some vital information needed by the family is kept in the safe-deposit box and the death occurs at a time the bank is closed, the information will not be available.

Safe deposit boxes are held Wednesday, March 18.

Owners Of Coal And Wood Stoves

During the last five years, more and more people have been purchasing coal- and wood-burning stoves to help save on their home heating bill.

With the increase in the number of stoves, owners need to be aware of guidelines that will allow them proper use of their stove, said Sandy Holland, Extension energy specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"Regardless of the type of stove to be used, it needs to be properly installed and managed to avoid hazards such as fire or asphyxiation," emphasized Holland.

When using a coal stove, Holland warns owners against adding fresh coal to coal embers because there is a possibility of a mild-explosion occurring. "Instead of using fresh coal, use wood kindling to get the fire going again."

She said that coal needs to be stored in a cool, dry place. "Don't store wet and dry coal together because this too can cause gases to build up and could result in a mild explosion."

If you have a wood-burning stove, Holland advised using dry, seasoned wood. She also said that it's important to keep the fire burning regularly to keep your chimney from-cooling down.

There may be times when you've got a smoky fire in your stove. If so, Holland said that this could be caused by wet wood, too small or too large a fire, obstructions such as trees or a bird nest, or down drafts caused by varying wind patterns.

To prevent injury and damage in the event of a fire, the specialist says that it's a necessity to have a fire extinguisher on hand and to have smoke alarms throughout the home. "The smoke alarms will allow us to get out of the house before gases build up," Holland said.

Committee Will Study Loss Of Ag Land

FRANKFORT — Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. has established a committee to study the steady loss of agricultural land and recommend ways to preserve it.

The committee will consist of 16 members, most from state agencies, and four ex-officio members.

In his order establishing the committee, Brown said the Agricultural Land Study and Policy Committee will first study the matter and then report recommendations to him that deal with the retention of the agricultural land base in Kentucky. "He said the recommendations shall include an analysis of the impact of state government actions on agricultural land conversion and detailed measures that can be implemented to mitigate conversion to the maximum extent practicable."

He also said the committee will submit proposals and recommendations on ways "to preserve the agricultural land resource base" in Kentucky.

The recommendations will be submitted no later than next February. The secretary of the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection will chair the committee. The dean of the University of Kentucky's College of Agriculture will be vice chairperson.

011 In Memoriam

3/7/1979 - 3/7/1981
In Loving Memory of The Late Harshal Moore
The Lord your God hath given you rest. Joshua 1:13
Each day of my life I thank God he gave me a Christian father like you, I miss you so much dad.
Your daughter, Virginia, and family
Andy, Patty, Michael, and Sharon Lake

In Memory of My Precious Son - Who Passed Away March 6, 1979 - Eight years ago today our Darling passed away. There is no other can fill his place. I miss his laugh, his smiling face. I listen for his footsteps on the floor, but in my heart I know I'll hear that noise no more.
But when this life is over and life on earth is done, when I get up to Heaven I will meet my darling son.
He will say "Hi Mom. I've been waiting for you. I knew you would be here when life on earth was through." And then we will take a walk together upon that Golden Shore and then I will be so happy my heart will ache no more, because I will be with Jesus and friends and loved-ones that are gone. That is why I am homesick to go to that great beyond.
We all miss you and love you very much. My life is lonely without you. Written by Mom, Helen Riddle. Missed by his children: Jerry Riddle, Jimmy Riddle, Mike Riddle, Lisa Riddle and Wife Wanda.

Stamp collecting probably began as soon as stamps were issued. In 1841 a young lady advertised in a newspaper for used stamps. She had about 18,000, but needed more to complete the project of papering her room with stamps.

Tax Tips

By Anne Pratt

An employee not covered by a qualified retirement plan can set up his own retirement plan and get a tax deduction for the amount he puts into his retirement savings, up to a maximum amount of $1,500 per year. The deduction is permitted whether or not he has deductions because it is a direct deduction from gross income. The savings account, which is called an IRA (Individual Retirement Account) will earn taxfree interest until it is taken out of the account, usually upon retirement after the age of 59½ or earlier because of disability. A taxpayer eligible to establish an IRA who has a spouse with no earned income may contribute to a spousal IRA on behalf of himself and his spouse. The maximum deduction for contributions to spousal IRA's is $1,750. The maximum is allowed for qualified contributions of $750 for each spouse. An individual who contributes to a spousal IRA may not contribute to a regular IRA for the same year.

Clean out your medicine cabinet periodically. Get rid of old medicines by flushing them down the drain, rinsing the container with water, and then discarding the container.

Lydia Porter Doesn't Eat Much Candy, But, By Gum(drop), She Can Make It!

By ALICE AKIN
Staff Writer

Grouse Hunter

Richard T. Hunter of Rt. 3, CCC Trail, has killed 54 grouse this season. He is the son of Willard and Treva Hunter of Morehead.

Two Mt. Sterling Men Are Injured

Two Mt. Sterling men were injured in separate accidents on U.S. 60 (Winchester-Mt. Sterling Road) in Clark County at 1:40 a.m. Feb. 28. Trooper Jasper White reported that vehicles driven by Jeffery Goodpaster and David Scarborough ran off the road and the two men were injured. They were treated and released at the Clark County Hospital emergency room.

BRUIN — If Elliott County's Lydia Porter sampled just a small amount of all the candy she makes, chances are she's be as broad as the 27-year-old General Electric range in her kitchen basement where she conducts classes in candy making.

"I really don't particularly like to eat candy," smiled Mrs. Porter, "but I sure do have fun making it."

And sharing with others her expertise in the art is especially satisfying to the 56-year-old mother of seven.

Every other Saturday, Mrs. Porter conducts a five-hour crash course in candy making, teaching her students the basic techniques of making 20 different kinds of candy ranging from bonz bonz to coconut logs.

In addition to learning how to turn out the delicacies, her students also benefit from the creative flair that has made their instructor well-known throughout the area.

Lydia Porter can make candy in just about any form or shape, selecting from 100 different molds she uses varying from Volkswagen cars to Easter baskets and bunnies.

Her finished products resemble colorful "ceramic" — an effect she achieves by skillfully painting her creations with different colors of chocolate and other ingredients.

"Most people think of chocolate as brown only but it comes in all colors," Mrs. Porter said.

"The thin chocolates are milk and semi-sweet and the colors include white, red, green, blue, yellow and lilac," she continued, adding that she often blends the colors together to arrive at a certain hue.

Mrs. Porter says she buys an average of 300 pounds of chocolate every two weeks for her classes.

Her supplier for the ingredients as well as the accessories she uses is Loretta's Cake and Candy Supplies in Greenvale.

"That's where I took the course in candy making," Mrs. Porter added, stressing that the basic five-hour instruction is sufficient for anyone interested in launching the hobby of creative candy making.

"That's all you need," she said. "I've never had a student fail although some do take the course three or four times just to learn more and practice," she added.

Mrs. Porter's students represent a wide area of the region. In addition to Elliott County her classes are composed of people from Grayson, Olive Hill and Morehead and other neighboring counties.

Began Seven Years Ago

Mrs. Porter began her candy classes seven years ago in a building across the road from her residence where she and a cousin, Kathy Dickerson, operated the P&D Bakery and Restaurant for 13 months.

Her candy making venture was preceded by baking and decorating cakes, an activity she began 21 years ago.

"I began baking cakes to entertain myself after my children had grown up and were in school," Mrs. Porter explained.

"I never was one to sit still, so I started baking cakes and giving them away to neighbors and then I started selling them."

Mrs. Porter said she learned cake decorating from a cousin, Emma Jean McDavid, of Loraine, Ohio, who had taken a course in cake decorating.

"I did the one wedding cake that went as far as Washington state," she recalled.

The daughter of the late Lige and Gracie Keaton, Mrs. Porter grew up in Elliott County and during her high school years excelled in her favorite subject — home economics.

"I made good grades in home ec and the first dress I made won a blue ribbon at the county fair," Mrs. Porter said, adding that she credited her interest in the subject to her home ec teacher, Mrs. Fessie Atkins.

"I've been a homemaker all my life and I enjoy it," Mrs. Porter said.

Plays Guitar At Church

Lydia Porter seems to have a bountiful supply of energy that she vents into other activities outside the kitchen such as gardening.

She also plays the guitar and sings gospel music with her daughter, Brenda Mays, and her son-in-law, the Brum Regular Baptist Church.

"I've been playing the guitar since I was fourteen years old," Mrs. Porter said.

Lydia Porter applies her talented brush to color the ears of a chocolate Easter bunny she has made. Mrs. Porter conducts classes in candy making in the basement kitchen of her home at Bruin in Elliott County. (Staff photo by Alice Akin)

Her enthusiasm for music is shared by her husband, Charles, president of the Bruin Trucking Company, a 29-truck enterprise which hauls coal from Eastern Kentucky to Ashland Oil Company.

"He plays the harmonica," Mrs. Porter said. "He learned it in a fox hole during World War II when he served three years overseas with the Army."

"The Porter family has a reputation in Elliott County as being a resourceful clan and working together in their endeavors."

Prior to going into the trucking business six years ago, the family tended to 28,000 chickens and sold eggs. "We gathered 900 dozen eggs a day," Mrs. Porter grinned, emphasizing that all her children helped with the chores.

The Porter family includes: Jeanette Fannin, Morehead, a teacher at Rowan County High School; Joann Fraley, Ashland, a beauty operator; Charlene Pennington, Morehead, a cashier at Kroger's; Christine Thornbury, Bruin, a beauty operator; Melinda Wolfenbarger, Bruin, secretary of the trucking company; Brenda Mays, Bruin, homemaker; and Johnny Porter, Bruin, who also works at his father's trucking firm.

Johnny and Brenda are twins.

Mrs. Porter says that her family is supportive of her candy and cake making.

"But none of them make candy or cakes," she concluded. "They just love to eat it."

Work From The Outside To Loosen Stuck Windows

It seems that every spring the windows of this old house, locked and caulked during the winter, are tightly stuck. I can loosen them by working a screwdriver around the edge of the window, but it is a long, tiring process, and usually results in some damage to the woodwork. Is there an easier way?

If windows cannot be raised, by hand, from the inside, it's best to work from the outside. A flat chisel or pry bar may do the job. If not, use a hammer and sharp hatchet. Slip the blade of the hatchet under the edge of the sash, rap lightly with hammer to force the blade under the window. Continue until window is raised enough to allow you to use the pry bar.

I have been told by my neighbor that the shellec I had saved from one of last year's projects is outdated and should be discarded. Is he right?

He could be. Shellec has a short shelf life and should only be used when relatively fresh. Storage in glass jars rather than cans will prolong life, but hardly more than six months, never a year.

What is the problem with a faucet that seems determined to drip? I have replaced the washer several times. For a while, everything is fine, then comes the drip, drip, drip process again.

The washer is probably not the problem. Instead, the seat against which the washer presses may have been damaged. Replace or grind the seat and dripping should cease. Your hardware store or plumbing supply house should stock tools and kits for this purpose.

Kentucky Briefs

False Directory Advertising Cited

The Mt. Sterling-Montgomery County Chamber of Commerce has received notice from Johnson Publishing Co., that prints a Mt. Sterling directory every two years, that a firm using the name National Director of Publishers has billed firms in communities where Johnson does the directory.

The notice to the chamber from Johnson, whose representatives were here recently selling advertising for the directory planned in December, 1981, emphasized that National Directory is not connected with Johnson and has nothing to do with the local directory.

Perkins Urges ARC Continuation

Congressman Carl D. Perkins has written Rep. Tom Bevill, chairman of the U.S. House subcommittee on Energy and Water Development Committee on Appropriations, urging that the Appalachian Regional Commission be continued.

He pointed out 12 projects that would be in jeopardy if ARC is discontinued, including a proposal for a $169,000 grant to the Montgomery County Water District No. 1.

Perkins said in his letter "I stand ready to demonstrate to your subcommittee the crying need for each and every one" of these projects.

Hearing Set For Robbery Suspect

A March 12 hearing has been set for a Jeffersonville man charged with robbing Rayburn's Market on Richmond Avenue Tuesday, Feb. 24.

Willie R. Ginter, of Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, faced the charge in Montgomery County District Court Thursday. He is suspected of taking $480 from the market's cash register.

According to Mt. Sterling city police, the clerk left the store to attend to the gasoline pumps, and the money was missing when she returned. Ginter was reportedly the only customer in the store when she left it, and was leaving as she returned.

Pt. Chalmra Kennedy and Sgt. Tom David investigated.
