

Eight Indicted By Grand Jury

By ROB DOLLAR
Staff Writer

The Rowan County Grand Jury met Thursday and returned nine true bills, indicting eight individuals on various charges, but failed to take any action this term in regard to two Kentucky State Police investigations.

Commonwealth Attorney Truman L. Dehner said the 12 jurors heard information in connection with the Kentucky State Police investigation of Morehead State University's admissions office that began in mid-January. However, he said the jurors wanted to hear more information about the case before taking any action, thus further discussions will be continued May 4 when the grand jury next convenes.

The state police investigation was launched upon the discovery that some international students at MSU apparently were being required to pay a monetary fee to receive financial responsibility in the United States, despite the absence of a formal policy at the university. The day the indictment was returned, William Bradford, associate director of admissions at MSU, resigned.

Dehner also said Thursday that the jurors did not hear information collected in a state police investigation regarding charges stemming from a party at a private residence in Rowan county, a 15-year-old male was allegedly encouraged to have sex with an adult woman.

He did say, however, that the grand jury was told the results of the state police investigation into the matter during the May 4 meeting.

Two state officers within the state police division of security and compliance were fired in February after information about the incident surfaced. The two officers were allegedly present when the boy was said to have engaged in intercourse with one or both of two women at a party at an east Morehead private mobile home last December.

Jerry Ravenscraft, a motor carrier officer, and M.D. "Bo" Crawford, a water enforcement officer, have until April 1 to appeal their terminations but have yet to do so.

State police investigated the incident to determine if six people thought to be at the party were guilty of any criminal act.

The identity of those six people have not been made public, but reliable sources indicate one of the persons is a member of the Morehead City Council.

Among those indicted by the grand jury were two county residents charged with drug offenses.

Gary Cecil, Nichols Branch Road, was indicted on four different counts of trafficking in controlled substances. Cecil was charged with trafficking in cocaine, a Schedule II narcotic drug; trafficking in Methaqualone, a Schedule I non-narcotic; trafficking in diazepam, a Schedule II non-narcotic; and trafficking in Lysergic Acid Diethylamide (LSD), a Schedule I non-narcotic.

The indictment against Cecil said that all of the trafficking in controlled substances charges are "based on the defendant's possession of said controlled substances with the intent to sell the same."

Cecil was arrested March 16 during a drug raid conducted by the state police and Rowan County Sheriff's Office on Nichols Branch Road residence premises west of Morehead on KY 1167.

Arrested with Cecil were Micah Merced, 20, Morehead, and Stanley Cecil, 27, Nichols Branch Road.

McKenzie was charged by authorities with two counts of trafficking in controlled substances and one count of trafficking in marijuana at the time of her arrest. However, the grand jury dismissed all charges against her on Thursday.

Stanley Cecil was charged by authorities with carrying a concealed deadly weapon. He is to appear in Rowan District Court sometime this week to answer the charge.

Gary Cecil will be arraigned formally for the four counts of trafficking in controlled substances in Rowan Circuit Court today at 1 p.m.

In another returned true bill, the jurors charged DeVaughn Dewitt with trafficking in controlled substances. The indictment claims that "on or about the second day of December, 1980, in Rowan County, Ky., the above-named defendant unlawfully sold to Rodney M. Salyer, two quales (Methaqualone), a Schedule II non-narcotic controlled substance for the sum of $8."

Salyer is a Morehead city policeman who was working in an undercover capacity at the time of the alleged offense.

The charge against Dewitt carries a possible sentence of one to five years in prison, a fine of $3,000 to $5,000 or both.

Dewitt is scheduled to be arraigned in Rowan County Circuit Court today in connection with the charge.

Meredith was also indicted by the grand jury Thursday and charged with the offense of arson in the second degree, a felony charge that can carry a sentence of from five to ten years in prison.

The indictment charges Meredith with intentionally damaging his residence on Feb. 4 by starting a fire.

Meredith is currently serving a five year prison sentence at the LaGrange Penitentiary for his conviction in the Aug. 14 second degree assault of Sonny Gains against Western Hills.

He was out on bond awaiting formal sentencing at the time he is alleged to

State Committee Meets To Hear Report About Maxey Flats Site

By ROB DOLLAR
Staff Writer

The state's Special Advisory Committee on Nuclear Issues met Friday in Morehead for a public hearing in regard to the work and future plans for the Maxey Flats low level nuclear waste disposal site in Fleming County.

Members of the committee held an afternoon meeting at the Carl Perkins Community Center where they were briefed on plans for the site by a recently formed management team employed by the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

The management team was created last December to work toward the eventual decommissioning of the Maxey Flats Nuclear Waste Disposal Site, located about 10 miles from Morehead.

The special state committee established by the 1980 General Assembly to investigate nuclear waste problems in the state and oversee the Maxey Flats site also heard testimony from several other sources during the day pertaining to Maxey Flats.

Officials from the Department of Human Resources presented to the committee test data obtained from monitoring studies on off-site migration of radioactive materials, as well as water supply checks.

Residents living near the site, as well as individuals involved in a local group known as "Citizens Concerned About Maxey Flats" also attended the meeting to voice their concerns on the Maxey Flats situation.

The 1:30 meeting of the committee, one of several held since it was formed, was preceded by a tour of the Maxey Flats site that morning by some committee members, Legislative Research Commission personnel, state officials and interested citizens.

The 250-acre site near the Rowan County-Fleming County line is where approximately 4.75 million cubic feet of waste containing 2.4 million curies of radioactive material was buried from 1963 until December 1977 when the state closed the site.

This material came from a wide variety of facilities located throughout the eastern part of the United States.

Disposal of nuclear wastes at Maxey Flats was halted in December 1977, several months after the site operator, Nuclear Engineering Co., reported the detection of radioactivity in a newly constructed trench, indicating migration of the wastes. The Natural Resources Department was given responsibility for the site in February 1979 and is now working with the Special Advisory Committee on Nuclear Issues in developing a long-range plan for Maxey Flats.

At the afternoon meeting, Jackie Swigart, secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, noted the importance of finding the right answers for the Maxey Flats problem so that the eventual "decommissioning" of the site can be realized.

"This issue has had a lot of focus," said Swigart, stressing the concern of many Kentucky residents about Maxey Flats.

Swigart then introduced to the committee the management team hired by her department to work on the problem. The members presented their report on the decommissioning of Maxey Flats, as well as the latest details in regard to the work going on at the site.

Members of the state management team include the project manager Birney Fish, Doyle Mills and Donnie Pollitt.

Fish, a professional engineer who has specialized in environmental and radiological health, noted that the first step in "decommissioning" the site, or bringing it to the condition where safety needs can be met through monitoring and minimal maintenance, is resolving the problems caused by rainwater.

He called the problem caused by the rainwater a "bathtub effect," in which water entered the numerous trenches where wastes were buried through the unprotected tops. If nothing was done to get this water out of the trenches, radioactive trench leachate would eventually overflow and then run off into area streams, he said.

Wreck Claims Infant

A 16-month-old girl died and three other people were injured Thursday evening in a three vehicle accident on KY 377, about six miles north of Morehead.

Shy Tackett, daughter of Terry and Mona Tackett, of Rt. 2, Morehead, died at the University of Kentucky Medical Center early Friday morning from injuries sustained in the accident.

The parents, Terry, 22, and Mona, 21, were both treated and released at St. Claire Medical Center in Morehead for injuries they suffered.

The lone occupant of another vehicle, Carolyn Plank, 20, was transferred to UK Medical Center with head injuries. She was listed in good condition at last report.

Three persons in a third vehicle were not injured in the accident, which was blamed on the icy road conditions brought on by a late March snow shower and freezing temperatures.

State police said Mrs. Plank was northbound on KY 377 about 7:50 p.m. when she lost control of her car on the slick road and slid into the path of the Tackett vehicle. The Plank car was struck in the side, police said.

The third auto, driven by Jerry D. Cox, 20, of Rt. 3, Olive Hill, swerved to avoid hitting the Tackett truck and struck the Plank car. The two passengers in the Cox auto, Rita Cox and William Cox, both of Olive Hill, were not injured.

The Tackett infant was taken to UK Medical Center after being treated in the emergency room at St. Claire. She died about 1:30 a.m., according to a spokesman at the Lexington hospital.

Food Prices In Morehead 10% Below State Average

Food prices moved higher by seven tenths of one percent in Kentucky supermarkets during March, according to the findings of the latest Kentucky Farm Bureau monthly marketbasket survey.

Shoppers in Morehead, however, faced prices that were considerably lower than those being paid during the last survey.

Statewide the selected group of 40 staple food items cost $58.46 in March, up from February's figure of $58.05. The March total was within a penny of the January price average, $58.47, but was 12.1 percent above the level of March 1980.

At the same time, prices for the items in Morehead declined over eight percent, going from $57.46 in February to $53.08 in March. The prices were about 10 percent below the state average.

Sharp increases in price tabs for fresh salad vegetables, potatoes and pickles combined with moderate hikes among dairy products, flour and meal more than offset declines for beef roast, bacon, eggs, breads and condiments.

Overall 24 food items in the March survey were higher in price than in February, 16 had declined.

Most noticeable among the individual gainers were fresh green peppers and tomatoes. Peppers averaged 62 cents each statewide, up 18 cents since last month, while tomatoes continued their price spiral of recent months, averaging $1.10 per pound. Since the first of the year, prices for the four salad vegetable items on the survey - tomatoes, peppers, iceberg lettuce and cucumbers - have climbed 28 percent. The four vegetables now cost a full 57 percent more than in March a year ago.

Morehead claimed the lowest local marketbasket average at $53.08, better than $5 below the statewide average. Hazard was highest at $64.98. In all, surveys were conducted by Kentucky Farm Bureau Women volunteers in 28 Kentucky communities.

Other local averages are Hopkinsville, $41.11; Salyersville, $44.43; Tompkinsville, $56.29; Greensburg, $46.18; Munfordville, $5.27; Glasgow, $7.12; Owensboro, $7.21; Covington, $7.59; Shelbyville, $7.65; Elizabethtown, $7.77; Cynthiana, $8.14; Louisville, $8.57.

Georgetown, $8.84; Lexington, $8.87; Edgewood, $9.24; Greentop, $9.25; Henderson, $9.56; Lone Oak, $9.42; London, $9.59; Shepherdsville, $9.81; Sebree, $9.11; Frankfort, $9.39; Murray, $9.79; Brandenburg, $9.81; Monticello, $11.22; and Stanton, $11.35.

Unlike retail food prices, farm product prices were generally stable during the most recent reporting period, says the Department of Agriculture. Hens and hogs showed a price increase during the month, but they were more than offset by declines in wheat, soybeans and beef cattle. On Fayette farm prices were down 4.1 percent nationally during the month, while higher fuel prices pushed farm costs up 3.0 percent. The farm price index posted a 1.9 percent advance a year ago, the same as farm costs.

Morehead's First Rodeo Had Its Disappointments

Keith Hermentit was saying Saturday afternoon during a matinee performance of Diamond World Championship Rodeo that he would have to fill the Morehead State University Farm Show Arena for the event's next two shows in order to break even on expenses for the first-ever rodeo in Morehead.

He didn't fill the arena and he didn't break even, but Hermentit may bring another rodeo to town next year, nonetheless.

Hermentit, owner of H-Brand Buildings Inc. of Winchester, sponsored the four performances of the rodeo over the weekend as a means of promoting his business, which is built around the cowboy-rodeo theme.

Even paying $7 per seat, the 1,600 people who turned out for the shows did not bring in enough money to meet the expenses of the rodeo, which Hermentit had to guarantee up front. Monday morning, Hermentit said those expenses totaled $34,870.

Despite the huge financial loss, Hermentit had some good things to say about the shows. "I thought the MSU complex was fantastic," he said of the MSU complex.

"The performances were top notch — a lot of action. We made some people happy."

The Saturday night and Sunday afternoon crowds were the most responsive and appreciative, said

Hermentit in response to a comment made by one of the rodeo cowboys who was displeased with the crowd reaction Saturday afternoon. The clown told Hermentit Saturday afternoon that the Friday night and Saturday afternoon audiences has been receptive.

If the earlier crowds were not appreciative of the performances, it may have been a result of not fully understanding the nature of the action.

The rodeo business is a dangerous one as demonstrated by some of the injuries that happened in Morehead.

Bob Alexander, the owner of Diamond Rodeo, for example, had his ankle broken in two places when he was pinned in a buck shoot by a bull. Another cowboy suffered a broken collar bone and still another had his face kicked by a horse as he was unloading the animal from a trailer. Hermentit said the man who was kicked returned to the rodeo after being treated for bruises to his face.

Another thing the audiences may not know is that the cowboys do not get paid for their performances unless they win their events. All the performers must be sanctioned by a rodeo association before they can perform, although anyone classified as local talent can compete without being sanctioned. And, those walkouts compete evenly with the rodeo cowboys.

Fleming Man Is Arrested For Arson

FLEMINGSBURG — An 18-year-old Fleming County man will be arraigned on charges of arson in the first degree pending the result of a psychiatric examination.

William Tubbs is charged with pouring diesel fuel on the steps of an apartment building and an automobile on Tuesday, March 17.

According to Patrolman Mike Purdon, Tubbs walked from his apartment at 310 Tracy Drive to the site of construction of the nearby Flemingsburg bypass, picked up a five-gallon can of diesel fuel and then walked back.

Purdon said Tubbs poured the fuel on the steps outside the building and along the ground to an automobile owned by Mrs. Haley Conley, then drenched the car with the fuel.

He then set fire to a newspaper and ignited the fuel at the steps.

Purdon said Tubbs then went upstairs to his apartment, woke up his wife and told her there was a fire, then went to the apartment of a neighbor and had him call the police.

He did it for kicks and to get some excitement started," Purdon said.

"Then he thought about his wife and baby and decided to call the police," he added.

Purdon received the call at 2:30 a.m. and arrested Tubbs at 1:27 a.m.

Others at the scene were Deputy Sheriff Jeter Purcell and the Flemingsburg Volunteer Fire Department.

Rowan Cheerleaders Seventh In State

Rowan County High School's boys varsity cheerleaders came in seventh place at the KAPOUS State Cheerleading Competition at Lexington last weekend. They competed with 32 other squads.

"I'm really pleased," said sponsor Lucy Conn. "The girls did a good job."

Conn said she noticed that Rowan was competing with schools who have reached the state tournament several years running. She concluded that the squad "can't expect to win the first year," but "now that we've got started, we hope to go back, and be right in contention."

Conn said the cheerleaders and girls basketball team, who will be playing in the state tournament Thursday night, are planning a pizza party together.

Morehead Police Report

Nancy B. Lane, 29, 306 Lyons Ave., Morehead, was backing her vehicle out of a parking space in the IGA West parking lot Sunday when her vehicle struck another car driven by Larry K. Johnson, 26, P.O. Box 173 Morgan Fork, Clearfield. According to city police, Johnson's vehicle was entering the parking lot at the time of the mishap from Main Street. Damages were minor and both vehicles remained in service.

Kenneth W. Johnson, 25, Rt. 5 Box 123, Morehead, was backing his vehicle out of a parking space at the Pine Ridge Apartments Sunday afternoon when he struck a parked car belonging to Peggy B. Gray, Apt. 15 Pine Ridge Apartments, Morehead. Damages were minimal.

Two drivers received minor leg injuries in a Sunday evening accident in front of the Red Hed Service Station on East Main. According to the city police report, a vehicle driven by Jane R.

Mabry, 32, Rt. 5 Box 828, Morehead pulled onto Main Street from the service station and struck an eastbound car driven by Gaylon L. Marshall, 32, Rt. 5 Tr. 42 Parkwood Terrace, Morehead. Major damages were done to both vehicles in the wreck. The Mabry car was removed to Gene's Ashland Service Station, while Marshall removed his own vehicle from the scene.

details were available. Two other burglaries were reported to state police on Sunday also. The Lewis County clerk's office in Vanceburg was broken into by unknown persons. Reported missing were four farm tags that expire April 1; seven 44,000 lbs. tags; 43 registration certificates (1980); and $61 in cash.

Thieves struck the Lonnie Gamble residence sometime over the weekend at Bonny in Morgan County taking several items. State police are investigating both incidents.

School Bids Are Within Estimate

Even with potential contractors separated into two groups meeting at the same time, it took two hours to open bids for the construction of a Rowan County senior high school Thursday afternoon.

Monday, Superintendent John Brock said it "looks like the bids are within estimate," which is a little more than $8 million.

Having just that morning received a computerized bid tabulation from construction management firm Elzinga and Volkers of Michigan, Brock said it appeared the total base bid on the project is $7.5 million without alternates and $8.75 million with alternates. However, he said these figures are "rough" and to be "further refined" later in the week.

Brock said he was attempting to set a Board of Education meeting for Tuesday tomorrow (Wednesday) so that bids could be further evaluated. He anticipates the meeting will be an all day affair that will include interviews with certain bidders.

By next week, Brock expects the total dollar figure for construction of the school on Old Flemingsburg Road will be "clearly in mind."

Dickerson Seeks Election As District 3 Magistrate

(Paid political announcement. Paid by candidate.)

John N. Dickerson has announced that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for election as Magistrate in District 3 in the May primary. Precincts included are: Hogtown 4, Clearfield 9, City Hall 13 and Dry Creek 18.

Dickerson, who is making his first bid for public office, came to Morehead in 1965 when he began attending Morehead State University. He graduated from MSU with an area of concentration in Social Studies.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Dickerson of Bruin in Elliott Co., he is married to Jeanette Brown Dickerson, daughter of the late Lowell Brown of Sandy Hook. They have two children — Natalie, 20, and Jimmy, 18, — both students at MSU.

Currently the owner and operator of John Dickerson Auto Sales in Clearfield since 1974, Dickerson has also worked for 11 years in sales with Rowan Motor Sales, the Ford dealership, and was employed in sales with Commonwealth Life Insurance for two years.

Dickerson served for two years in the United States Army in Germany and received his honorable discharge in 1954.

In making his announcement, Dickerson said, "I feel that it will be necessary to actually be in office to find out more about the issues and become involved in them before I can make any promises about what I will do when elected."

"But," he added, "I feel that with my past experience, I can make sensible judgments on the major issues before the citizens of this county."

"Your vote and support in the May primary will be greatly appreciated."

Grand Jury

have started the fire. On Thursday, Rowan Circuit Judge Caswell P. Lane read the indictment to Meredith who was brought to Morehead from LaGrange for the formal arraignment on the charge.

Meredith entered a not guilty plea to the charge and a trial date was set for five o'clock on Friday. He has since been returned to LaGrange.

The grand jury, in other indictments, charged three individuals with burglary offenses for a total of $1,000. Benson Lowe was indicted for burglary in the third degree, a charge that carries a possible sentence of one to five years in prison.

He is charged by the grand jury with the burglary of a building belonging to Homer Gregory in Clearfield March 3. He will be arraigned on the charge today in Rowan Circuit Court.

Kenneth Howard Showman and Norma Dean Showman were also indicted by the jurors for two different offenses.

They were charged for the March 13 burglary of an uninhabited house belonging to Doris Childress. Kenneth Howard Showman is charged in the first count of the indictment with burglary in the third degree, while his wife is charged with complicity to burglary in the third degree.

Both are also named in a second indictment charging them with theft by unlawful taking. The charge stems from the taking of movable personal property from an apartment owned by Wendell McClurg, Travis Cornett and Scott Gillock on Feb. 21, according to the indictment. The property in question was valued at over $100, thus making the possible sentence for the charge one to five years in prison.

Arraignments for the two in connection with the charges will take place today in Rowan Circuit Court.

Two indictments were also returned by the grand jury against Kathy Wakefield and one against Roger Griffith.

One of the indictments against Wakefield charges her with two counts of theft by failure to make required disposition of property and one count of theft by deception.

The indictment states that Wakefield failed to deposit receipts from the Trademore Shell Service Station into Citizens Bank in the amounts of $1,193.46 and $1,890.53 on Oct. 14 and 25 while in the employment of that company.

It further states that she committed the offense of theft by deception when she passed a cold check to Cumberland Lake Shell Inc. doing business as Trademore Gas in the amount of $40 on Sept. 11 of last year.

The second indictment against Wakefield returned by the grand jury charges her with theft by unlawful taking. The indictment states that "on or about the 20th day of January, 1981, in Rowan County, Ky., the above-named defendant unlawfully took or exercised control over movable personal property of Billy Lee Evans with intent to deprive him thereof to wit: a 1968 Chevrolet van vehicle, the value of which is in excess of $100."

Wakefield will be arraigned on the charges in the two indictments today at 1 p.m. in Rowan Circuit Court.

In the final indictment returned by the grand jury, the indictment was charged with three counts of burglary in the second degree and also with being a persistent/felony offender in the first degree.

The indictment charges him with the burglaries of the Opal Swin residence on Dec. 30; the Betty Johnson residence on Dec. 30; and the Buri Hogge home on Dec. 31.

He, too, will face arraignment proceedings today in Rowan Circuit Court.

In other actions, the jurors dismissed charges against several people.

Charges were dismissed against James Steven Dehart for defrauding secured creditors. Netherly for theft by deception of over $100 and theft by unlawful taking; Johnny Barnett for theft by unlawful taking; Emmerson Howard for possession of alcoholic beverages for the purpose of resale; and Vernon T. Barnett for theft by deception.

A charge against Dudley Perry for theft by unlawful taking was continued until the next session of the jurors on May 4.

Morgan, Carter Report Fires

Morgan County had two fires last week, the Kentucky Division of Forestry reports.

Saturday night, ten acres of woodland burned on Adel Hill, located on Ky. 191.

Tuesday afternoon, March 17, five acres on Upper Sand Lick were involved.

The Division was unable to give the origin of either blaze. Percy Price was forest ranger in charge at both incidents.

A fire at Smith's Branch burned 15 acres in Carter County Saturday at 10:30 p.m. Forest Ranger Keith Hill said he thought the blaze was caused by debris burning. The property is owned by Sam Suttles.

- I will work closely with organizations, which help counties obtain grants, and work toward only those grants which would not put our county government in a revenue bind, if the grant monies should stop.
- I will cut unnecessary expenditures and waste in county government.
- I will work and help other county officials with their problems, so that they may provide you with a better service.
- I will have an open door policy at all times in the County Judge/Executive's Office.

- I will introduce and work toward establishing a county prisoner work program. This program is used with low-risk prisoners who are unable to pay fines, which have been levied against them in District Court. These prisoners would be used to work on county roads, cleaning trash and litter. This should help our litter problem in Rowan county.

Perkins Receives Promotion At KU

Don Perkins, manager of the Kentucky Utilities office in Morehead for the past four years, has been promoted to district manager with the company in Paris, Ky.

Perkins, who has been with KU for 16 years, as a local manager in Carlisle, and in customer service at Winchester, will be responsible for a bigger area and for more planning in his new role with the company.

In addition to Paris, his responsibilities will include Cynthia and Carlisle.

Perkins, who spent his last day in the Morehead office Friday, said he has enjoyed his job in Morehead. "It's really been nice," he said, adding "The real good local employees have made my job easier."

Perkins said he will commute from Morehead for the next three months, before moving his family to Paris.

His family includes wife Carol, a former home economist with KU in Danville and Winchester, and children, Tonya, 6, and Chad, 10 months.

In Morehead, Perkins has been active with the Chamber of Commerce, is a member of the Optimist Club; and has Perkins worked with Gateway Community Services Organization. A new manager for the Morehead office of KU has yet to be appointed.

Philharmonic Faces Shortfall

The Board of Directors of the Lexington Philharmonic Society has announced a projected shortfall of $27,000 for the 1980-81 season, the result of a $32,000 shortfall in its fundraising effort.

The goal of the 1980-81 Lexington Philharmonic Society Membership Campaign was $114,600, an increase of $27,700 over the 1979-80 goal. At the end of February the campaign had received a total of $82,000 in corporate and individual membership contributions.

In reviewing the situation, the Board noted that earned income has increased 5 percent this year, that ticket sales and attendance at the subscription performances have reached their highest level since 1976, and that audience response to the new "Super-Pops" has been very enthusiastic. However, although the concert audience has increased in response it new programming, the base of support from contributing members has not broadened significantly.

Acting in response to the recommendations of its Finance Committee the Philharmonic Board adopted the following posture: the shortfall at the end of the current fiscal year will be carried forward into the budget for 1981-82; every effort will be made to maximize earned income; planning will begin immediately to seek new avenues of broader community support; and the 1981-82 concert series will be maintained at current levels of programming.

The Board of the Philharmonic Society has accepted a significant fiscal challenge in the face of increased salary requirements from the orchestra's musicians and rising production costs. If this challenge cannot be met in the 1981-82 season, the Lexington Philharmonic will face major cutbacks.

For more information, contact Linda G. Moore, manager, 233-4226; Herbert Siedd, president, 254-2712; Isabel Yates, vice president, 277-8051 or Charles Coyle, treasurer, 255-3366.

Most Lilies Like Moist Soil And Warm Sunlight

Because of its name, many tend to think of the Easter Lily as a spring bloomer. Actually, the beautiful lily arrangements we find decorating churches for the Easter observance usually are the result of forced blooming. Lilies — of the family Liliaceae — are normally mid to late summer bloomers.

Easter Lilies are grown from seed planted fairly deep (8 in.) in fertile soil. First popularized in Japan and China, Easter Lilies do best in warm, sunny locations.

Another popular member of the family is the Orange Lily or Madonna Lily. Sometimes called the White Lily, this pure white, bell-shaped flower has been around for thousands of years, although exact origin is not known. Unlike most lilies, the amount of sunlight received determining the deepness of the orange coloring. Like most lilies, it should be planted in moist soil and watered sparingly.

White and orange are but two of many colors found in the lily family. The leaves of the Regal Lily are dark and shallowly planted in moist green; the center spike of soil. Fragrance is delightful; the Voodoo Lily is bright frequently, oil from the Bourbon Lily is used in the head of the Black Calla Lily family of lilies. In fact, of course, glossy black.

Overbecks Have New Office For Shaklee Products

Cathy and Randy Overbeck, assistant supervisors and independent distributors of the Shaklee Corporation, have announced the opening of their new office. Their office will feature the full line of Shaklee products — natural vitamins and food supplements, natural and non-allegoric personal care products, and ecologically-safe cleaning products as well as nutritional information and books.

With the opening of the new office, the Overbecks say they are better prepared to provide products, service, and training for their distributors and customers as well as supplying the growing needs of area people interested in sound nutrition. As a new service, the Overbecks are offering to community, church, or social groups lecture on nutrition and health entitled, "Have You Thought About What You Put in Your Body Today?"

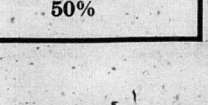

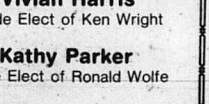

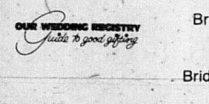

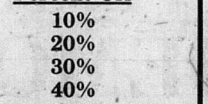

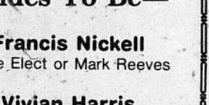

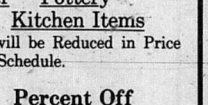

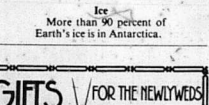

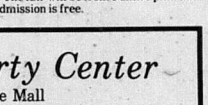

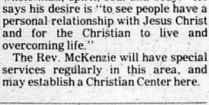

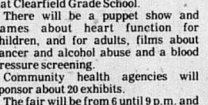

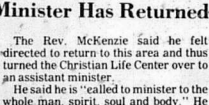

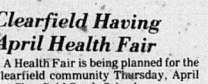

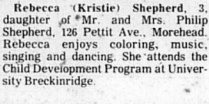

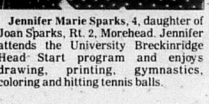

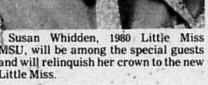

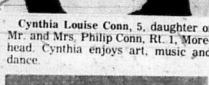

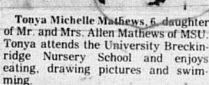

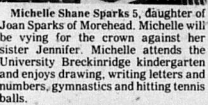

The Overbecks' new office is located in their home on Rouborn Hollow (Rt. 6, Box 1394) in Morehead and their office phone is 784-6786.

Hypothermia: Athletes Can Get It

With temperatures in the 40s but a wind chill making it feel colder, one of the last things officials expected in last fall's New York Marathon was that several hundred contestants would develop hypothermia.

"There was no problem with the faster runners but when the slower runners started to cross the finish line we began to see people who developed hypothermia — and these were healthy people," said Dr. Emil Pascarelli, an assistant professor of public health for Cornell University who also is executive director of emergency medical services for New York City. The example underscores the point that hypothermia can even strike robust people during relatively mild weather conditions. The elderly and the very young, however, remain the most susceptible.

Hypothermia is the condition, generally speaking, when body temperature goes below 94 or 95 degrees, at which point "uncontrollable" shivering begins, according to Pascarelli.

"The body as it cools further will continue to shiver until you get to 90 degrees and then you get to a danger area," he said. "When it gets below 90 you get into a life-threatening situation."

"Then the body is at risk. The shivering stops, muscles begin to tighten and you start to lose consciousness. You're lying there unable to protect yourself and that can lead to unconsciousness."

Pascarelli stressed that unlike frostbite, "You don't have to have freezing temperatures to get hypothermia."

"You can get hypothermia under a variety of circumstances," he said. Of athletes, slow-paced marathon runners and cross-country skiers are most apt to come down with it.

"We generally don't see it in organized sports," he said. Being outside in the cold for someone who has been drinking alcohol is another dangerous situation, particularly if that person happens to fall and stumble into snow and the body temperature "gradually cools to a dangerous point."

"A lot of people believe that alcohol warms you up. You may feel warmer but it doesn't act as anti-freeze."

"Drinking alcohol causes further loss of body heat."

Those who have to be most careful are the elderly.

Hypothermia can occur at temperatures as high as 65 degrees among older people, those with diseases of the veins and arteries and others unable to respond normally to the cold.

The reason the elderly are most sensitive is because they lack much fatty tissue and have less body mass for insulation, Pascarelli said. Others have poor circulation or diseases which lend themselves to hypothermia, such as diabetes and thyroid problems.

"The elderly can get hypothermia in apartments that aren't even that cold. If it's about 60 degrees for several days they might get hypothermia and lapse into unconsciousness," the doctor says.

For that reason, Pascarelli said the elderly must be closely watched. If people are aware of an older person living alone, that person should be checked at least every other day. "If it's severe, they should be taken to the hospital immediately and rewarmed under medical supervision," he said.

While waiting for medical care the victim should be taken to a warm place and any wet clothing removed.

Sometimes even unloading a horse from a trailer can be dangerous as one man discovered Saturday morning. One of the cowboys with the rodeo had his face kicked by his horse as he was unloading it.

Lady Vikings Are Working Hard To Continue Basketball Season

The Rowan County Lady Vikings meet the Lady Wolverines of Western Hills Thursday night in Richmond as the champions of the 16th and 11th regions each make their first appearance ever in the Sweet 16 tournament.

For Rowan County, "ever" has been a long time, but it's a different matter for Western Hills. WHHS opened this year as the Franklin County school system expanded from one to two high schools.

The Lady Vikings have been practicing twice daily preparing for the Lady Wolverines, who are at this point considered a favorite in the field.

Morehead News sports writer Kurt Pickering talked with Lady Viking coach Claudia Hicks between practice sessions over the weekend and here is his report.

MN: Your girls have never been to the Sweet 16 before, and all season long I've heard all of Lady Viking fandom talking about going to the state, but nobody has mentioned winning it.

CH: Right.

MN: There's an axiom in pro sports that a team that's never played in the big one—say the Super Bowl—only wants to get to the game, that once they get there they've accomplished their goal and sometimes they fold up. I was wondering if you think that might apply to your girls. Are they ready to play now that they've made it to the state?

CH: Oh, most definitely yes. I know we talked it over as soon as we won that last game in the first and one of the things that the kids said was definitely, "Now let's go down there and let's do a good job. We've played tough teams all season long. This isn't an accident. We won this region. People talked about going to the state and let's go down there and show them what type of material and what we've done this season long. It's really going to pay off for us."

MN: Are there any obvious differences in the way you're running your practices now that you're a regional finalist?

CH: Well, basically what we're going to try to do is go after Western Hills. We're going to have to play each other that we come up against one at a time and so what we're doing right now is trying to get a very complete scouting report on Western Hills. We find out that they're playing a 1-2-2 offense and it basically will sort of fold back into like a 1-3-1 offense. We know that they have two big front court girls on the inside. One of them is the all-stater, Connie Goins. Of course, we know they have a very limited bench strength, so what we're doing is trying to concentrate our offense more toward the inside. We're taking the ball actually away from the hands of the guards, going into the big and trying to concentrate, trying to get those people in foul trouble and hopefully we'll come out on top using that particular philosophy.

MN: Which brings me to another question I was going to ask you about Western Hills. The draw wasn't what I'd call especially kind to you. Of course, Franklin County was in the 1st game before losing last year and then became two high schools, Western Hills being the new one. Remember—I was working over there last year at that time—the general consensus among the media over there was that Western Hills got the better end of the talent split and that they were well favored by the fact that the Lady Wolverines won the 11th region. Add to that the fact that what's left of Franklin County beat you by 11 here in your opener and it just looks like the deck seems to be pretty well stacked up against you.

CH: Well, Western Hills does have an awful lot of experience, there's no doubt with Goins. Of course, Zimmerman, which I feel is every bit the player that Goins is, ended up at Franklin County. The game that we played against Franklin County was not really an indication of winning and losing. I really thought the teams pretty much came out at a draw at that particular time. They won by 11 points, but the difference was I think three or four points going into the last 30 or 40 seconds of that game and we had to put them on the foul line. We had to foul them in order to try to get the ball back and of course we came out short at that particular point. We lost Jelana Haney in that game, and she had to sit out during the Paris game with a broken finger.

Debbie Dehart received a blow to the eye very early in the game and she got a blood clot behind her eyelid which did cause her some problems in the next couple of games. She was able to go ahead and play, but she had to sit out quite a bit of game time during them.

Karla May got in very serious foul trouble. We started off the season knowing we were playing state runner-up, we were a little book and we did not play smooth ball. However, we opened up that game, jumped on top of them, had about an eight-point lead. The lead seceded back and forth and then finally we found ourselves down by five with about a minute and a half to go and then we had to go out and commit these fouls and get out of that game. Now, at the first part of the season, also, Franklin County beat Western Hills, and then I think here they lost to Western Hills in the district I think somewhere less than 10 and I believe it was one, actually. So we know we're facing a pretty talented club, but we don't think that they're that much better than we are, that we can't possibly get in there and play a little ball against them.

MN: In the 11th region title game, they beat Henry Clay by one point. It was a very low-scoring game. I don't know if somebody stalled or what, but it was 48-39. Then, of course, in your semifinal, you beat East Carter by only a point. I'm just wondering if there was a potential toward overconfidence for either team, would you say that those two games helped bring both of the respective teams back down to earth?

CH: Definitely because I think right now, we feel we have an uphill battle all the way, but we're not going into this thing thinking we're at a total short end of the stick or anything. I think Western Hills' case they possibly were overlooking Henry Clay. I think their game occurred in the district against Franklin County, there's no doubt about that, and then Henry Clay was the only other strong team left in their region. I believe Henry Clay, from all I can determine from all the other coaches that I've talked to about Western Hills, that they just slowed the game. They did not let them run the ball. They denied Goins the ball and they tried to take their basic offense away from them. It was more patience type game because they knew they didn't have quite the talent to run with them.

As far as our East Carter game was concerned, our team just flat didn't move. I don't know what the particular problem was. We never have been quite able to determine what was wrong with us during that game. We just were not playing our game, we were not moving. It could have been looking ahead, and it almost cost us this regional tournament if we had been doing that. But from this point on, I know as far as Western Hills is concerned, they're probably more at a disadvantage and there's probably more pressure being put on them because they're expected to win. As a matter of fact, they're considered one of the favorites in the tournament. We're not expected to win so we're more in a position where we can come in there and upset someone, but I think if we get past the first round, we'll be able to realize that we're really a very fine ball club.

MN: Speaking of pressure, having never been to the state before, you're probably about to see both on the crowd and your biggest arena at the same time. Your thoughts on that?

CH: Well, we came down in a very early season. I've seen some people there this year. We played Clark County. Clark County had a lot of media at that game. They had their gym just about filled. It was a Saturday afternoon, a lot of radio coverage, and at the present time they were ranked number one in the state, and our girls performed admirably. We moved, we were aggressive. As a matter of fact, we took the game away from them. I think Clark County was in a situation where they had just too much confidence and they were not ready to get out on the play ball. They expected us to stand back and let them win, and Russell beat them this year too, on that same account. We're going to be in the 16th region at the Laurel County tournament and then Russell came in there and caught them standing around and beat them also.

Western Hills, we know because they lack depth, if they're not playing well, they can be beat. However, they've got the big 6-10 Goins girl. We have Karla May out on the point, who's going to handle the ball outside, but we've got a awful lot of depth inside. We hit the boards better than they do, so it's going to be what we thought was a pretty well even type ball club. We're going to find out, however, that they're totally different in appearance.

MN: This will touch on something you mentioned earlier, but I wonder if you could crystallize this for me: are you planning to do anything differently in the state tournament, either in your first game against Western Hills or, then as far as you may go?

CH: Well, I'll tell you right now, we're kind of in a bad situation. We had everything worked out offensively and defensively and then (Saturday) afternoon Debbie Dehart strained her back. We're running two practices a day right now. She went home with one of the girls, and one of the player's brother grabbed her and wrenched her back and she has missed the last two practices and we don't know what type of shape she's going to be in. We're going to try to get her practicing (Sunday) afternoon. We're using one of our subs right now in her position. We're going ahead and running it just as if she's going to be there. Of course, we never know what's going to develop there, but we're having to do things differently a little bit. We're attacking the basket from a much higher percentage area. We're showing more patience. A lot of times, we'll come up, pop it in from 20 feet or something of this nature, use that talent that Cornett and May have, but what we're going to try to do is get those people on the inside developed and developed as much as possible this week so that we'll have more depth offensively.

We're also a very high percentage shooting ball club, and we're polishing up the rough edges. We're trying to make things that look a little rough at this particular time. Of course, it's a lot of pressure on the kids but I think right now they're coming to it with a tremendous amount of determination and I think that's going to really show up in the state tournament.

MN: Aside from Dehart, your health?

CH: The health is excellent as a team. As a matter of fact, all the girls are really putting themselves into practice. We're coming up and getting up early in the morning and practicing for two hours, taking about a four or five hour delay and then coming back and practicing another two hours. Our first day we practiced, however, I thought that anybody in the region was capable of beating us. I knew this was going to happen after the big win in the region. However, we've come back down to earth. We've talked it over. The substitutes are really giving the first squad a hard way to go and that's the way we want it, a tremendous amount of pressure being put on the girls who've graduated from our squad before who've come in there, added a little more talent against the first five, and, of course, the first five adjusting. They're seeing more depth and more height and things and I think they're going to be ready.

MN: Final question, from a game plan standpoint or a personal standpoint, what do you think you have to do to win it all?

CH: All right, we're going to have to take Goins' game away from her. That's one of the big things. Getting past Western Hills, or course, the main step is to get past Goins. Besides Goins, there's a 5-8 sophomore guard called Sullivan that does a tremendous job. However, she doesn't have the experience and she can be pressured. We win that first game, then every team that we play is going to have to be very cautious of us because whatever it takes to beat Western Hills, it's the same type of ingredients it's going to take to win the state tournament because no one in the state tournament is going to be that much better a ball club than Western Hills and then, if we take them, they're not going to be that much better than we are.

Debbie Dehart, one of the key Lady Viking inside players, recently injured her back, but she should still see lots of action this week when Rowan County travels to Richmond, Ky. for their first ever state tournament.

Karla May, a junior guard on the 16th regional champion Rowan County Lady Viking basketball team, will direct the attack this Thursday when the team takes on Western Hills in the Sweet 16 state basketball tournament in Richmond, Ky.

Snow Interrupts MSU Baseball Schedule

By KURT PICKERING Sports Staff Writer

Last week's snow squall cost the Morehead State Eagles at least seven baseball games, six of them at home.

The snow, hit New Albany, Ind., earlier than it arrived in Morehead, preventing the Eagles from so much as complaining after the 3½ innings they managed to get in against Davis and Elkins. The wipeout of the game wiped out some damage to the MSU stat sheet as well. The Eagles were trailing 11-0 at the time.

Glenn Napier benefited most from the cancellation. He started the game on the mound and suffered the shellacking, none of which will show up on his statistical record. Napier surrendered one home run and pitched of other base hits along the way.

Glenn was sharp on some pitches," Hamilton noted. "He hadn't pitched enough, though. He got hit with some high ones."

"None of us are real sorry about it (the snow). They were just a better ball club than we were today."

Assuming the climate catches up with the calendar in time, Morehead State is to meet Kentucky in Lexington tomorrow if it's a 3 p.m. single game. The Eagles then return to Allen Field for a four-game weekend set with Purdue. A pair of doubleheaders will be played, one Friday and one Saturday. Both are scheduled to start at 1 p.m.

The home half of the semi-annual showdown with regional rival Marshall is Monday at 3 p.m.

Fitness Fever Causes Increase In Injuries

But Rewards Are Greater Than The Risk

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jimmy Carter's ski hits a rock and his afternoon of cross-country skiing at Camp David ends abruptly. His spill breaks a collarbone.

A few weeks later, the former president falls while jogging in Flinns, Ga., and reinjures that clavicle.

Former New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, jogging a dog in the park, tumbles off his bicycle and suffers the same injury as the former president.

A co-worker at the office, Karl Gude, taking up skiing for the first time, decides he's had enough of the beginner's slope and tackles an intermediate one. He takes a downhill spill, breaks a knee, and now is doing time in a cast from ankle to thigh.

All these victims of recreational sports will heal, or have healed (former President Carter has since been deep sea fishing in the Caribbean), as will millions of others who suffer fractures and/or strained ligament and tissue damage in any type leisure sport you can name from roller skating to running, from sledding to sandlot baseball.

"We estimate that between 17 million and 20 million persons are hurt each year in leisure time activity," said Dr. James A. Nicholas, an orthopedist leader in sports medicine and research. "And these do not include vehicular accidents."

Dr. Nicholas is founder and director of the Institute for Sports Medicine and Athletic Trauma at Lenox Hill Hospital, New York.

And with fitness contagion, the number of injuries will grow. "Today," said Nicholas, "we have more injuries associated with recreational play than ever before. This is due to many factors including a greater population, more recreational time, more affluence, early retirement, and the injudicious attempt to play sports to augment health. Most risk factors are not protected against."

Injuries cut across all age and economic groups and both sexes, as more and more Americans pursue recreational sports in what Nicholas calls "a fitness explosion."

The orthopedist predicted that new sports will develop, new facilities will be created, new health and medical problems will have to be solved. He estimated that curvy over $40 billion is spent yearly on recreational sports.

One other offshoot is the expanding field of sports medical specialists, both research and practice of new techniques in dealing with injuries. Specialty centers, such as Lenox Hill and the New York Hospital for Special Surgery, are springing up around the country, many of them affiliated with teaching hospitals. Specialists now have their own organization — American Orthopaedic Society for Sports Medicine.

I began looking into the "new" field when I was an outpatient of Dr. John Lyden at the Hospital for Special Surgery. I had a fractured humerus (household spill, not sports related) that kept me in a sling and bandaged collarbone to waistline for six weeks, followed by supervised therapy to get immobilized muscles going again.

Linden mentioned the sports medicine facility at H.S.S. that Dr. Russell F. Warren, director of the department specializing in the field said sports medicine is not new; it's just more in the spotlight as both amateur and professional sports boom.

"You might ask, is all this 'fitness explosion' worth the price we pay in injury?"

Every specialist to whom I talked said emphatically, "Yes."

"The accent on fitness may be causing more aches and pains than sitting around the house with aches and pains, but it is making the participants a healthier people," said Dr. Jack Hughston, of the Hughston Orthopedic Clinic in Columbus, Ga. Hughston is director of the monthly American Journal of Sports Medicine.

"You ask if fitness is worth it," said Dr. Nicholas. "Heart disease is down, cardiovascular disease is down, the morbidity rate is down, hypertension is down..."

"The rewards are greater than the risks," said Warren, a high school and college athlete who now jogs, plays rugby and tennis. "You're in better condition in every way... life seems easier if you're fit."

Even so, there are enough injuries — and sometimes deaths — to have physicians recommending caution in use of equipment and assuring that you are physically conditioned.

The National Safety Council said the biggest increase in accidents requiring hospitalization was in roller-skating, noting one sports reveal. There were 93,000 injuries in 1978, and 135,000 in 1979, the latest year a count is available.

A termed bicycling the most dangerous — 100 deaths last year, and 60,000 injuries.

Snow skiing accounted for 107,000 injuries, ice skating, 34,400, sledding 22,500, tobogganing 7,600. And watch for those snowmobiles. The council reported 100 snowmobile deaths for the 1979-80 season, plus 19,000 injuries requiring hospitalization.

Scuba diving caused 100 deaths, sky diving another 44, boating 1,321, 600 to 800 for hunting, and 2,600 deaths from accidents while swimming, not all of them drownings.

Football, basketball, baseball and the like around schools and the sapdolls accounted for 300,000 to 400,000 injuries.

The council had no statistics on tennis injuries, such as tennis elbow, nor for jogging but "there are a lot of unreported sprains and the like," said Peggy Brock, of the council's recreation division.

But whether it's a skinned shin, a broken clavicle (orthopedists call this one a common injury fairly easy to treat), or fear of any other injury, don't quit your fitness course.

"Train, don't strain. Use, but don't abuse." These are some of the cliches fitness experts sport, said Dr. Robert Larson, of Eugene, Ore., which he said calls itself "the jogging capital of the world."

"We're a big track city," said Larson, who skis, golfs, and jogs, and has among his professional duties, overseeing athletes at two universities — Oregon and Oregon State, the latter with a basketball team rated number one nationally by UPI's ratings. Eugene, Ore., also produced Alberto Salazar, who set the fastest time in last fall's marathon run in New York.

"Realistically, everyone can't run the marathon," said Dr. Barton Nisicoff, of the Lenox Hill center. "But fitness should know no age limits."

Dr. Hughston figured the most "dangerous" age probably is up through high school "when youngsters normally want to be active and athletically involved."

"But a considerable number of youngsters are not coordinating and not physically adapted to recreation. Generally they're weeded out by competition by the end of high school." Warren insisted that "most everyone is capable of some activity."

Here are some basic rules compiled from talks with orthopedists.

—Condition yourself before going out there gungho on any sport. Said Dr. William G. Clancy, of the University of Wisconsin, "There are lots of books on the market now. Pick up one. Develop flexibility. Never overdo. You can't set guidelines specifically because each individual is different."

—For the older person, Dr. Hughston emphasized stretching and limbering before more active participation. "Your professional athletes do these. And you can adapt these conditions to home and office."

—Whatever sport you take up or resume, prepare to participate on a steady basis, not as a weekend athlete. Participate at least four or five times a week.

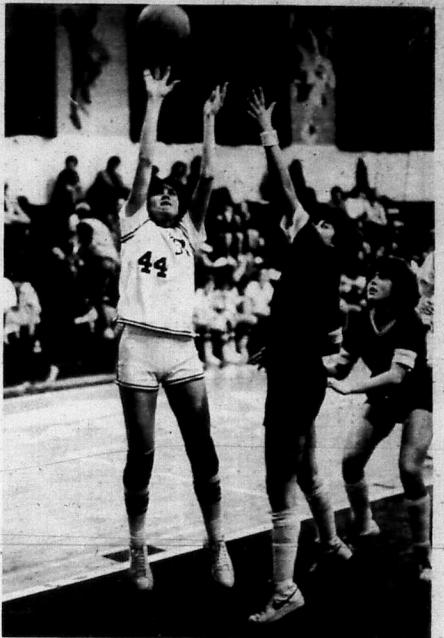

—Anyone over 40 who wants to get into a conditioning, then an active program, should have a check with his or her regular physician. A cardiac condition could develop by overloading the circulatory system too fast.

—Don't overuse the body. "We see a lot of running injuries where it's been a case of too much, too soon, too fast. Overuse of tissue, stresses for which the body is not geared," said Warren.

"When running, the entire weight of the body falls on one knee then the other... the knee joint is one of the most intricate of all in the body."

—There is no one sport considered the "perfect" one, but doctors frequently mentioned swimming, bicycling and swimming as among the best. Dr. Nicholas said the degenerative bone disease of osteoporosis often can be helped by walking and swimming.

—Whatever, don't just sit there. Get out and do, limited only by your capability and with a physician's advice.

Jelana Haney, 4 junior, is the Rowan County Lady Viking forward who is counted on for rebounding strength and inside scoring.

Sports Briefs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Former University of California golfer Kurt Posey rallied to a 9-and-8 victory over Gary Shemano in the finals of the San Francisco City Golf Tournament.

The 22-year-old Posey, who had an 11-and-10 win over 1979 champion Frank Marzoin in Saturday's semifinals, held a fourhole lead over Shemano after Sunday's morning round and continued the rout in the afternoon.

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI) — Upsets dominated the 23rd annual Monterey National Invitational Rugby Tournament, which wound up with two Southern California teams in the finals.

Santa Monica held off a late Newport beach surge to win 14-4. The top seeded Northern California teams, the Old Blues and the BATS squad both tied games Saturday, only to lose in post-game kick-offs. But the Old Blues beat Old Mission beach, 14-3, Sunday to take third place.

Four College Powers Vie For NCAA Title

Philadelphia's Liberty Bell will peal for only two of the Final Four Saturday when Virginia, Louisiana State, North Carolina and Indiana struggle to pursue the happiness that comes with being crowned NCAA champion.

Seventh-ranked Indiana has a Tiger by the tail and it will take a supreme effort by Bobby Knight's crew to tame No. 4 LSU, which looked ferocious in mauling unranked Wichita State 96-85 Sunday to capture the Midwest Regional final.

A few hours earlier, the Hoosiers used pinpoint shooting and pugnacious defense to embarrass St. Joseph's 78-46 in the Midwest Regional final.

In the other semifinal matchup, No. 3 Virginia, with Player of the Year Ralph Sampson, resumes its Atlantic Coast Conference rivalry, with sixhanded North Carolina, having already beaten the Tar Heels twice during the regular season.

Last Saturday, the Cavaliers won the East Regional by downing 17th-rated Brigham Young 74-60 and North Carolina earned a semifinal berth by taking the West Region with an 82-68 triumph over unranked Kansas State.

Knight takes pride in his team's grasp of the fundamentals, but the Big Ten champions are meeting their match in defense and rebounding: the SEC champion Tigers led their conference in defense during the regular season and never let Wichita State come close to fulfilling the promise of its nickname — the Shockers.

LSU's Durand Macklin, the SEC Player of the Year, missed the last 10 minutes with a dislocated and bleeding finger but he inflicted a season's worth of damage on the Shockers. Macklin scored 17 of his 21 points in the opening half and also grabbed 8 rebounds as the Tigers took a 48-33 lead and coasted to their first berth in the Final Four in 28 years.

St. Joseph's Coach Jim Lynam rated Indiana as strong as any team he has played this season — including DePaul and North Carolina.

Indiana All-America guard Isaiah Thomas scored only 8 points, but he dished out 12 assists and broke down the Hawk defense continually. Landon Turner hit 7-of-8 shots for Indiana, which hit 69 percent from the field compared to only 33 percent for St. Joseph's.

Virginia Coach Terry Holland, who is guiding the highest ranking team left in the tournament, is an ACC proponent down to his shoelaces and he has only one minor complaint.

"Of course, what I would have preferred," said Holland, "would be to play North Carolina in the finals because then the ACC would have been assured of winning the national championship."

Virginia beat North Carolina 63-57 at home and 80-79 at Chapel Hill, N.C., in the regular season.

Sampson held in check for the first 20 minutes by BYU, asserted himself in the second half, winding up with 22 points, 12 rebounds and 4 blocked shots — all game-high figures.

If any team in the nation is immune from the psych-out powers of the 7-4 sophomore, it's the Tar Heels — whose front line of freshman center Sam Perkins and forwards Al Wood and James Worthy did some terrorizing of their own against the Wildcats.

Wood, the tournament's MVP, scored 21 points and grabbed a game-high 17 rebounds, while Worthy, who holds all the freshman scoring and rebounding records for North Carolina, added 16 points and 11 rebounds; Worthy chipped in 15 points.

The victory sends a Dean Smith-coached UNC team into the Final Four for a sixth time, but Smith is still plagued by what he perceives as a loser's image.

"Maybe you shouldn't go to the Final Four at all," he said, "because only one team will win. If you lose, then they'll say you can't win the big ones."

The final will be played in Philadelphia March 30.

Sports Brief

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — A former East Tennessee State University football player has sued the school and Coach Jack Carlisle for more than $100,000, claiming they took away his scholarship when he was injured.

James C. Bakels of Palm Beach, Fla., claims in the Cancer3 Court suit that etsu recruiters promised he would receive a four-year scholarship, but the university withdrew his grant after a back injury ended his playing career at the school in 1977.

He said he had been verbally promised the grant-in-aid would be honored if he was injured at any time.

Bakels asks for compensation equal to the value of the scholarship plus $100,000 in punitive damages and a permanent injunction against the university from misrepresenting its scholarship policy.

Things Look Brighter For Police Athletic League

The sun is apparently shining again for the kids involved with the Morehead Police Athletic League, according to Morehead City Police Chief Fred Barnsdale.

The league's activities were terminated in late January because the group could not find a place to meet during the bad weather months large enough to accommodate the number of kids participating in the programs.

That problem has now been solved since Barnsdale was officially notified last week that the league will be able to use half of the multi-purpose room of the Morehead State University Laughlin Health Building.

Barnsdale said MSU President Morris Norfleet informed him late last week that the group can use the facility for the remainder of the bad weather months.

Once the weather warms up, Barnsdale said the league will probably begin meeting at the city park for its activities.

The university is also responsible for another ray of sunshine directed at the kids of the league. Barnsdale said that members of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity will play a fund-raising marathon basketball game April 8-12, hoping to set a world record of 100 consecutive hours played, which would get them into the Guinness Book of World Records.

He added that the fraternity will be asking for pledges to support the activity and all proceeds will be given to the Police Athletic League.

"Between Dr. Norfleet and the SAEs, the Police Athletic League is coming out on top again," commented Barnsdale.

The board of directors for the organization will meet tomorrow afternoon to determine when activities will resume, so the next meeting can be scheduled.

Barnsdale said he is hoping that activities may be able to start later in the week or possibly sometime next week.

March 25 Is Last Day To Drop Classes

Mike Mincey, coordinator of academic support services at Morehead State University, has announced that the final day for MSU students to drop classes without academic penalty is Wednesday, March 25.

Additional information is available from Mincey at 783-3347.

Menifee Man Hit By Truck

FRENCHBURG — State police are currently looking for the driver of a pick-up truck that was involved in a run and accident Saturday with a pedestrian seven miles east of Frenchburg on US 460.

According to state police, William Peck, 85, Ezel, was walking along US 460 at approximately 7:55 p.m. when he was struck by an unknown driver operating a late model Ford pick-up, orange in color. The truck was further identified as having the door handle and mirror on the passenger side missing.

The truck apparently kept going after the accident westbound on US 460.

Peck was taken to the Morgan County Hospital and treated for a broken left arm. He was later transferred to the VA Hospital in Lexington.

Woman Hurt In I-64 Wreck

A Thursday evening accident two miles west of Morehead on I-64 attributed partly to weather conditions sent a West Virginia woman to St. Claire Medical Center for treatment.

Injured in the mishap, according to state police, was Vida Colborn, 36, 1696 Edgewood Drive, Huntington, W. Va.

She was treated for minor injuries at the hospital and later released.

The accident occurred at about 7:05 p.m. when the Colborn vehicle attempted to pass two vehicles at the top of a hill. State police said she lost control of her car and struck the rear of a car being operated by Tony Brackman, 18, Ashland.

According to the police report, Brackman was stopping his vehicle at the time of the mishap to attempt to assist a stranded motorist at the side of the highway.

Corrections

Due to a reporting error, the age groups were incorrectly stated in Friday's edition for the Morehead State University's school of education, a summer program for especially gifted children. The program is to be open to fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade students.

In the same story, Don Russell was incorrectly identified as a former play-by-play announcer with the Bald Eagle Network for MSU. Russell still does play-by-play for the sports network.

Due to incorrect information supplied to the newspaper from state Democratic headquarters, the names of local residents who met recently with Tracy Farmer, state party chairman, were improperly listed. Those who met with him were: Wathan and Juanita Armstrong and Edward and Ottist Elam.

The name of Robert Burchett's son Jeff was inadvertently omitted in his political announcement in Friday's edition.

Former major league baseball pitcher and now state Senator James Bunning R-Fl. Thomas talks to Jackie Swigart, state secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection during a Friday morning tour of Maxey Flats. Bunning is a member of the Special Advisory Committee on Nuclear Issues that is overseeing the work at the Maxey Flats site along with Swigart's department. Responsibility for the site was transferred to Swigart's office from the state division of hazardous material and waste management last December. (Staff photo by Rob Dollar)

Rep. Pete Worthington D-Ewing (center) listens to a statement made by a fellow member of the Special Advisory Committee on Nuclear Issues at a meeting held in Morehead Friday to hear testimony about the Maxey Flats site in Fleming County. Worthington is the chairman of the special committee which was charged by the 1980 General Assembly to oversee the decommissioning of the Maxey Flats site, as well as develop recommendations for nuclear sites around the state. (Continued from page one)

Fish explained that this problem is presently being dealt with as contaminated water is being pumped from the trenches and evaporated to reduce the volume of radioactive waste. A "roof" has also been built over the remaining open trench, to prevent water from entering it, he added.

The evaporation process reduces a large volume of contaminated water into a smaller volume of radioactive sludge then stored in tanks to be buried. However, this process releases radioactive tritium into the air, since it cannot stabilize this particular element. The amounts being released are not above the levels of environmental and health safety, however.

About 1.6 million gallons of contaminated water are in two covered ponds at the site and another four million to five million gallons are estimated to be in the trenches. The amount of contaminated water is reportedly being reduced by a net amount of about one-half million gallons a year. Fish indicated that this back log of contaminated water would have to be eliminated before further steps toward decommissioning could proceed.

Once the present water problems are under control, the next objective will be to direct attention towards "turning the tap off" or preventing water from again entering the trenches where the wastes are buried, according to Fish.

A huge part of the contaminated water backlog may be resolved by June, commented Fish, while the presenting committee with a detailed guideline for future work plans and activities for the site during the next several years.

Fish told the committee that the present status of the site included trenches covering some 25 acres with a backlog of approximately five million gallons of water and annual additions of 700,000 gallons per year due to infiltration.

Concerning the cut-off of all water infiltration, into the trenches, Fish said the management team has come up with three alternatives which include asphalt paving of the trenches costing some $2 million; a four-layer seal at an estimated cost of $3 million; and a $5 million steel roof structure.

He added that the 4-layer seal was considered to be the best plan by preliminary reports in terms of financial feasibility and getting the job done.

However, he said the management team will have more details as to what its final recommendations will be at the June meeting of the special committee.

The special state advisory committee interested in the Maxey Flats situation is chaired by State Rep. Pete Worthington, D-Ewing, and has been charged with reporting to the 1982 General Assembly its recommendations for action in dealing with nuclear sites in the state.

Other members include Sen. James Bunning, R-Fl. Thomas; Sen. Helen Garrett, D-Franklin; Sen. John "Eck" Rose, D-Winchester; Rep. Hank List, D-Lexington, and Rep. George Plummer, R-Vanceburg.

The special committee membership also includes numerous citizens from across the state interested in the resolution of the Maxey Flats problem. One of those members is local attorney Allen Holbrook who also chairs the area organization "Citizens Concerned About Maxey Flats."

This is the evaporator that is being used at Maxey Flats to control contaminated rainwater pumped from the trenches containing nuclear wastes. Large volumes of the rainwater are boiled in the evaporator and converted into small volumes of radioactive sludge to later be buried in tanks. Asked Saturday about his plans for

Sawyer Says News Media, Government Both Must Work To Present News Fairly

Diane Sawyer, CBS-TV news correspondent at the U.S. State Department, told a Morehead State University Founders Day audience Thursday that it takes a great amount of homework by both groups to provide responsible information to the public.

She cited the news release by President Ronald Reagan's staff concerning evidence that El Salvador guerrillas were receiving arms from Communist supporting sources.

She stated that the evidence information was passed on to the news media without thinking about how the U.S. government was to react on the information or in what direction the U.S. would move.

When the questions arose as to what course the U.S. would follow, the government was not getting the "pat on the back" it expected.

She added that the government's reaction was that they had been treated unfairly by the news media and when the reaction to the arms supplying evidence didn't suit the government, then the news media received the blame.

Diane Sawyer

The Louisville native added that she thought what had actually happened was that the Reagan staff had not done its homework and prepared for this type of public relations situation.

Sawyer's remarks were kept brief during the appearance because she was about 20 minutes late in arriving in Morehead due to bad flying weather.

After arriving in Cincinnati she was picked up by private helicopter to be flown directly to campus, but the party ran into bad weather and had to change their course to Morehead.

In other activity Thursday, the 1981 Founders Day Award for University was presented posthumously to Dr. Warren C. Lappin who served the University for 48 years. He died in 1975. Accepting the award on behalf of her husband was Mrs. Ruth Lappin of Morehead.

The day-long event recognized MSU's 59th birthday.

Oil Shale Plant In Fleming County Could Add $85 Million To Economy

More than $85 million local income would be generated during construction of oil shale mining and processing plant in Fleming County, but the reality of such a plant is no less than six to eight years away, according to participants of a recent conference on oil shale at Morehead State University's Appalachian Development Center.

The conference was jointly sponsored by the Buffalo Trace Area Development District, the University of Kentucky's Institute of Mining and Minerals Research and MSU's Appalachian Development Center.

Conference participants, including businessmen, judges and political representatives from Fleming and surrounding counties, heard findings of a preliminary report compiled by the IMMR and the BTADD.

The research was directed at Fleming and Lewis Counties and had as its goal the feasibility study of mining and processing oil shale in the two counties. One phase of the study was the preliminary designing of an oil shale mining and processing plant at Plummers Landing in southern Fleming County.

Steve Miller, assistant director of BTADD, said the number employed during the estimated three and one-half year construction phase of the proposed oil shale plant would be nearly 2,700. That number would fall to about 900 employees during the plant's operating phase.

Miller said the number of jobs directly related to the plant was not the only positive factor of mining oil shale but local private businesses would benefit as well.

"We are probably looking at approximately 35 to 40 new retail establishments to serve the added income," Miller said.

Miller added that the total population change during construction would be about 6,000 while the operational phase of the proposed plant would bring about 3,200 residents to the southern Fleming County area.

Though there are an estimated one billion barrels of shale oil in the Plummers Landing area, the positive aspects of such a project should not hide the facts, according to Dr. Tom Robel, a geologist with IMMR.

"The mining and processing oil is now economically feasible," says Robel, "but there is much data still missing. For instance, there is no information on the stability of the shale oil and thus no proven method of transporting the liquid. There is also no information on the environmental impact on mining and processing the shale."

Mining and processing oil shale has been placed under moratorium by the Kentucky Legislature until the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection recommends procedures that are environmentally sound. But, safe procedures are difficult to determine without research money, according to Jim Hummelordt, representative of the Office of Special Projects at the DNRPE.

"It's just now that the (research) money is starting to roll in and it looks like the government is getting out and the private interests are getting in,"

OIL SHALE DISCUSSION — Montgomery County Judge-Executive Harry Hoffman II, left, and State Representative Adrian Arnold discuss the future of oil shale in Kentucky during a recent oil shale conference at Morehead State University's Appalachian Development Center. The conference was jointly sponsored by the Buffalo Trace Area Development District, the University of Kentucky's Institute of Mining and Minerals Research and the Appalachian Development Center.

Possible Lambert Indictment May Be Prosecution Ploy

By BRIAN MALLOY

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Government threats in the Stamper-Link trial to prosecute former state Deputy Finance Secretary Charles Lambert are not all they appear at the surface.

When federal prosecutor Joseph Lawless Thursday told U.S. District Court Judge Bernard T. Moynahan "prosecution will probably be sought" against Lambert, he may have been only protecting himself from the wrath of the federal judge.

Court documents of bench conferences conducted out of hearing of the jury reveal Moynahan has repeatedly expressed his impatience what he has called "wheeling and dealing" in the prosecution's treatment of Lambert.

"That may look all right on Perry Mason or some sort of television soap opera, but that's not the way things are done in federal court," Moynahan said.

Analysis

Lawless had called Lambert back from a Colorado vacation last week to testify again in the extortion, conspiracy and mail fraud trial of State Sen. Woodrow Stamper and Lexington realtor Robert P. Link.

Lambert, who witnesses said was a key figure in the state's land transaction in which Stamper and Link are charged, had already been in the witness box in the Lexington courtroom. He exercised his 5th amendment right against possible self-incrimination and refused to testify.

Lawless told Lambert's attorney Frank Haddad he would offer Lambert immunity "from prosecution and Lambert drove back to Kentucky to testify," Haddad says.

But after obtaining Lambert's answers to possible prosecution questions from Haddad, Lawless apparently changed his mind.

Lawless would not offer immunity to the former state official because his expected testimony "was lacking in forthrightness, candor and basic truthfulness," Lawless said. But Moynahan pointed out that the prosecution could prosecute Lambert for perjury if he lied.

Moynahan questioned Lawless' tactics. "Can you just hold the grant of immunity here in your hand and say 'if you will tell us what we think you ought to say, we are going to give you a grant of immunity?' I don't think you have a right to do that," Moynahan said.

Apparently sensing an opening,

Stamper defense attorney James Shuffett later asked Moynahan to inform the jury the government had refused to offer a grant of immunity to Lambert, "a witness favorable to the defense," and should consider the refusal when reviewing evidence.

It was when this defense attempt was made to the judge that Lawless said the government would probably seek prosecution of Lambert.

Lawless said if such an instruction was read it should include "the opinion of the United States that (Lambert's) expected testimony is a lie and... that the reason immunity will not be granted is because prosecution will probably be sought," Moynahan said he will rule on the motion later.

Haddad says the government has "no case whatsoever" against his client and Lambert has done no wrong. He said he thinks the only reason Lawless did not seek a grant of immunity was because Lambert's testimony would damage his case against Stamper and Link.

He adds the only reason Lawless told Moynahan he would seek prosecution of Lambert was to cover up his own botching of the affair.

While an attorney would be expected to say things like that in protection of his client, it raises an interesting question. And even more interesting is Moynahan's own comments about notes taken of Lambert's possible testimony.

Moynahan said he found "nothing incriminatory of Mr. Lambert" in the notes.

While witnesses have testified Lambert was involved in the state land deal Stamper and Link allegedly profited from, why was Lambert not included in the state's original indictment of the pair last July?

said Hummelordt.

Though the Federal government recently refused a $3.2 million research request by his office, Hummelordt said he felt that needed allocations will likely start coming in by 1983 or 1984.

VA To Collect From Government Employees Soon

The Veterans Administration has sent letters to the heads of 50 federal agencies requesting their help in collecting almost $37 million from more than 66,000 of their employees who owe that amount to the VA.

The agencies, ranging from the largest to some of the smallest in the federal government, were asked to "appoint a senior agency official to coordinate the collection activity" with the VA.

One Farmer Puts Insects On His Corn

GENESE, III (UPI) — Farmers would shudder if they saw what Larry Hammond feeds to the corn and soybeans on his farm. He feeds them bugs.

The farm is where Dow Chemical Co. practices what it preaches on its insecticides, fungicides and herbicides.

"We are a research farm which exemplifies Midwest agriculture," said farm manager Hammond, 39. "We become an average Joe Blow Illinois farmer. We don't have white coats here. Our laboratory is 120 acres — that's where we work."

Hammond, another agronomist and two field technicians plant crops in the spring with conventional farm machinery — and test potential products and marketable products in the summer.

It is a staged war against the corn rootworm, the corn borer and the cutworm.

Researchers plant corn late and design the site to entice adult rootworm beetles — one of the Midwest's biggest farm pests — to migrate and lay eggs. Each plant attracts an average of about 45 worms.

"It's devastating," said Hammond, who was raised on a farm in Nebraska. "It's just left to the mercy of the worms. They take almost 100 percent of the roots at that level. That way we know how the chemical works under the worst of conditions."

Cutworms and corn borer egg masses are shipped in because they are not as common to the farm, Hammond said. About 20 cutworms are planted inside caged 6-by-6-foot plots while corn borer eggs are dropped in the corn stalks when they are ready to hatch.

Outworms are known for cutting through young corn just above the ground while corn borers are famous for eating their way to the center of corn stalks.

The treated and untreated plots are scattered throughout the farm to equalize variables such as terrain, soil and moisture. The tests are conducted several times throughout the season.

Test results, researchers hope, will show success in treated areas and destruction in others. For them, it is a problem-solving process.

The farm also tests weed control in a 1½-acre weed nursery where problem weeds are cultivated and sprayed with varying products and dosages. "Certified weed seeds" are purchased and the soil is fumigated so unwanted weeds do not appear.

Other crops — such as sugar beet, sweet corn, sunflowers, peas, wheat and sorghum — also are treated and sent to a laboratory for analysis.

White corn, one of six Dow chemical research centers across the nation, conducts about 50 research projects each year. Many deal with Environmental Protection Agency guidelines on residue — how much chemical is left in the soil, plant and end product.

"Research takes from 7 to 10 years and a minimum of $10 million to put a new chemical on the market," Hammond said. "That's why chemicals are so expensive."

He said a chemical company usually needs a worldwide product usage on 50 million acres before it can recover the cost of developing a new product.

Planting Intentions Noted

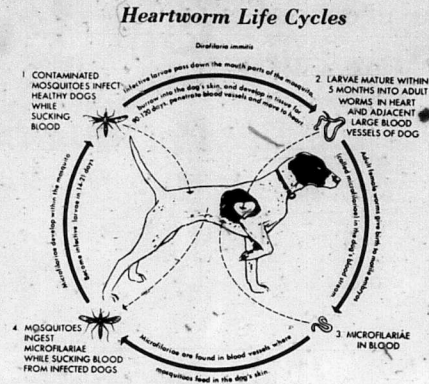

Kentucky farmers plan to set 216,000 acres of burley tobacco in 1981, according to the Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. This is 17 percent more than last year's harvested acres and 38 percent above 1979. Weather and disease reduced yield on both the 1979 and 1980 crops and burley use has been outstripping production. Because of the demand, government pools are virtually empty. The basic quota is up 7.5 percent from last year's 1980's undermarketing, totaled about 850 million pounds for the Burley Belt. Acreage intentions in the Burley Belt total 321,100 acres, up 16 percent from 1980.

White corn producers in Kentucky intend to plant 115,000 acres of white corn in 1981, unchanged from a year ago. Farmers are hesitant at present to expand their acreage due to the recent decline in prices received and the low contract price for 1981 white corn. White corn intentions in the U.S. (10 estimating states) at 487,000 acres are one percent above last year.

All corn acreage in Kentucky, including white corn, is expected to total 1,680,000 acres, up two percent from 1980. United States acreage of all corn is expected to total 84.0 million acres in 1981 compared with 84.1 million acres last year.

Soybean acreage in Kentucky is expected to total 1,700,000 planted acres, up three percent from the 1,650,000 acres planted a year ago. Soybean intentions in the United States is expected to total 69.8 million acres in 1981, down less than one percent from a year ago.

Dogs Should Be Tested Now For Heartworms

The spring months of March and April are the times to have dogs tested for heartworms, according to Mike MacDonald, a local veterinarian.

MacDonald said heartworm infection in dogs is a relatively new disease in this area of the United States. During the past decade, these worms have spread into Kentucky from the more heavily infested southern states that border the Atlantic Ocean or the Gulf of Mexico, he said.

The disease can now be found in most all areas of the country where mosquitoes are present. And the infection can only spread from one dog to another by a mosquito bite, he said.

Adult heartworms are about eight to 10 inches long and one-eighth inch wide. They live inside the right ventricle of the dog's heart, and an infected dog may carry anywhere from one to 100 adult worms.

The worms interfere with the circulation of blood through the heart, MacDonald said, and over a period of years will cause irreversible damage to the heart valves and major blood vessels.

The most typical symptoms of this damage are a persistent cough and a progressive lack of stamina, MacDonald said. These signs are most noticeable after the dog has exercised.

The adult worms produce microscopic larvae, which enter the bloodstream and circulate to all parts of the body. These larvae can block small blood vessels and produce additional damage to various organs, he said.

Mosquitoes ingest these larvae with the blood when biting an infected dog. Later, the mosquito inoculates another dog in the neighborhood and in so doing spreads the infection. Once in the new dog, the larvae will migrate to the heart and complete the life cycle.

"Dogs in this area that are exposed to mosquitoes during the warm months should be tested annually for heartworms," MacDonald said. "Testing is usually done during March or April."

Under the testing procedure, a small sample of blood is examined for the microscopic larvae. Most infections can be treated if detected early enough, says MacDonald, adding, "Dogs not infected can be placed on an oral preventative medication to keep them from getting this disease."

Conference On Pharmacy Is Set

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture will present the 1982 General Assembly with several recommendations to aid Kentucky's farmers, according to state Agriculture Commissioner Alben W. Barkley, II.

Barkley's statement came on the heels of the Reagan administration's proposed 25 percent cut in Farmers Home and Rural Electrification programs. Barkley said that such cuts mean that the low-interest loans available to farmers in the past appear to be drying up.

"First-time and first-time farmers will be most affected by the proposed budget cuts," Barkley said. "The people who need adequate funds for the equipment and lands they need to support their operations are the ones who will find it hardest to get financing."

Barkley said he believes Kentucky can aid the farm community through an incentive program for beginning farmers.

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture has already been studying beginning farmer incentive programs in other states, Barkley said. He said that several states, particularly North Dakota, have effective programs which provide tax breaks both to beginning farmers buying land and those who sell land to beginning farmers.

The Federal General Accounting Office justified the reduction in loan money partially because loans were being made to part-time farmers, Barkley said, but "it is extremely difficult for young people to enter farming on a full-time basis. Many young farmers hold outside jobs until they are able to support themselves by their farming operation."

"Any further restrictions or reductions in available financing would be particularly hard on young farmers and may keep them out of farming all together. We see how important this is when we realize that the average age of Kentucky farmers is over 50 years

Tobacco On Sod Ground Faces Wireworm Trouble

Farmers increasing their tobacco acreage or rotating the crop to fields that were in sod last year should be prepared to prevent wireworms from damaging their tobacco stands.

This soil pest can be a serious threat to tobacco after it is set in the field, warned Dr. Lee Townsend, Extension entomologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Wireworms occur naturally in sod ground where they feed on grass roots and other organic matter. When sod is turned under and the land prepared for tobacco, the food source for wireworms is removed but the pests are still there. They will feed on or bore into newly-set tobacco and stunt or kill the plants.

Since no chemical is labeled for application later over the top of the tobacco plants to control wireworms, Townsend said a preventive soil treatment should be considered. One of two methods may be used:

1. Broadcast and incorporate an insecticide into the soil a week or two before transplanting. Insecticides labeled for this use are Dazanit, Diazinon, Dyonate, Mocap and Di-Syston. Most of these are available in granular or liquid formulations.

2. Irrigate the seeder water. With this treatment, only an area around the tobacco transplant will receive the insecticide. Only the wettable powder formulation of Diazinon should be used in the seeder water to avoid injury to plant roots.

More information on tobacco pests, including 1981 insecticide recommendations, is available from your county Extension agent for agriculture.

old."

Barkley said his department has also taken a look at tax-free agricultural bonds, or Agri-Bonds. These bonds had been made available to farmers, at a cost to Kentucky taxpayers, at a lower interest rate than conventional loans, but they would be made in cooperation with the state's banking institutions, Barkley said.

Prior to 1976, the Department of Agriculture had the authority to institute such bond sales, Barkley said, pointing out that the authority now rests with the state's Economic Development Authority.

"In the long run, any proposals that benefit farmers will benefit the entire state," Barkley said. "Young farmers will have to be able to get started if we are to go on getting food and fiber at a reasonable cost, and they're going to need financing to get started. And when we realize that financing costs amount to 11 percent of the farmers' production costs, costs which get passed on to consumers, it's obvious why we all benefit when these costs can be offset."

Take A Strong Stand

Kentucky must take a strong stand on brucellosis that it intends to compete in other states in the cattle business, according to state Agriculture Commissioner Alben W. Barkley, II.

New federal regulations requiring tougher brucellosis testing and shipping restrictions will take effect Jan. 1, 1982, Barkley said.

"We don't want any tougher restrictions than are necessary for the free movement of Kentucky cattle," Barkley said, "but the new regulations make it very important that we eradicate brucellosis in this state."

Brucellosis, sometimes called Bang's disease, is an infectious, bacterial disease of cattle and other animals and can be transmitted to humans. The disease costs U.S. cattle owners about $45 million annually in reduced calf drops and lower milk yields brought up by abortions, weak calves and slow breeding. Eradication of the disease is a cooperative state/federal program.

A major difference between current and upcoming regulations is that shipping will be based on statewide classifications rather than on county classifications as it is now. Under the new regulations, beef animals from Class A states be shipped without pretesting.

Based on the number of known infected herds now in the state, Kentucky will be rated a Class B state, according to Dr. Tom Maddox, state veterinarian, Kentucky Department of Agriculture. That means that it will be much harder to move Kentucky cattle into a Class A state or even another Class A state or even another Class B state, Maddox said.

"Kentuckians may find the restrictions hard to live with," Maddox said. "Now there are eight or ten states with restrictions against us. In 1982 there will be 10 or 11 states against us."

Maddox said the state is just finishing an accelerated program begun in anticipation of the change in regulations. That program has reduced the number of known infected herds in Kentucky from about 475 to about 365. Maddox said the number should drop even more when testing is completed in September.

"Although brucellosis is being brought under control in Kentucky, it will probably take a couple of years to eradicate it," he said.

He said there is one way producers can avoid the new restrictions. "If a producer has the herd certified, then the new classification doesn't matter," Maddox said. "Those cattle can be shipped without pretesting."

Are Your Cows Nervous? Could Be Stray Voltage

Stray electrical voltage is giving cows annoying shocks in milking parlors. Nobody knows for sure how widespread the problem is, but it probably exists on 20 percent or more of the dairy farms in Kentucky.

"Some experts estimate one in five dairy farms have stray voltage and, whether they are right or wrong, we know that the problem is serious enough for dairymen to check their facilities," said William L. Crist, Extension dairy specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Signs of the problem are cows reluctant to enter the milking parlor, cows extremely nervous while in the parlor, uneven milkout, increased mastitis and less milk production than normally expected, according to the specialist. He said, however, that these symptoms could be caused by something else, and that dairy farmers should make sure by checking for stray voltage.

A high quality voltmeter is needed, said Crist. It must be equipped with an AC voltage scale reading 2 volts, with the capability of measuring current at the one-tenth volt level. The voltmeter also should have a relatively high resistance of above 5,000 ohms, and be battery operated so it does not require connection to electrical service.

"Crist" Drive that several digital read-out AC voltmeters priced at about $50 will do a good job of detecting stray voltage. He added that a voltmeter that reads DC voltage on the AC scale should be used.

Crist outlined this procedure for measuring stray voltage in a milking parlor. "First, ground rod into the ground at least 25 feet from the milking parlor and other buildings. Attach one end of the voltmeter to the isolated ground rod and the other lead to the bare ground wire connecting the electrical entrance box and the ground rod at the parlor. The voltage at this location generally will be the highest expected between any two locations in the milking parlor, unless there are flaws in the electrical system.

"An AC voltage reading of 1 volt or higher is cause for concern," Crist said. A reading of less than 0.5 volt is considered normal. A reading between 0.5 and 1 volt should be monitored.

"Stray voltage often is a transient problem, here today and gone tomorrow," Crist said. "Recheck at different times of the day if the voltmeter shows 0.5 to 1 volt."

Stray voltage can come from faulty electrical systems on the farm, or it can come from off the farm, through the power company's neutral system, according to Crist. He advised calling in a licensed electrician or a power company representative to help solve the mystery of a stray voltage problem.

If stray voltage is detected, Crist recommended a quick way to temporarily reduce its effect on cows until the basic cause can be determined and corrected: Tie together with copper wire all metal pieces of equipment such as feeders, stalls, gates, drains and stainless steel milk pipe, and then connect it to a good ground.

Crist advised installing an equipotential plane when building a new milking parlor. This involves imbedding a 2x2 inch, 9 or 10 gauge, galvanized welded wire mesh in the concrete floor over the entire parlor. The mesh should be welded or clamped to all other conductors such as stalls, gates and feeders. A stainless steel clamp should be used when connecting to stainless steel milk lines.

"The complete interior of the parlor should be electrically connected," Crist said. He added that the risk of stray voltage is great enough to justify the cost of installing an equipotential grounding mat in all new milking parlors.

Farm Receipts Set Record

Kentucky cash receipts from farm marketings reached a record high of $2,232.5 million in 1980 up eight percent from 1979. Cash receipts have exceeded $2 billion in Kentucky for the past three years and have more than doubled in the past 10 years.

Cash receipts have steadily increased during the past decade, except during 1975 and 1979 when short crops, especially tobacco, caused them to decline. Production costs throughout the period have also increased significantly.

The increase in the total was caused by a 17 percent increase in crop cash receipts, which more than offset the two percent decline in livestock receipts. The increase in crop receipts was mainly due to a larger tobacco crop and higher prices for Kentucky's major crops. The decrease in livestock receipts was primarily due to lower prices received for cattle and hogs.

U.S. cash receipts from farm marketings rose to $138 billion in 1980, up four percent from 1979. Crop receipts at $68.9 billion increased eight percent and account for 49.9 percent of total receipts. Livestock receipts increased only eight-tenths of one percent.

Hog Inventory Down

Hogs and pigs on Kentucky farms on March 1 number one million head, according to the Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

This is a 25-percent decrease from March 1980 and an 18 percent drop from the Dec. 1 inventory of 1.22 million head. The estimated 15 lowest March 1 inventory since 1976 and the lowest number for any quarter since June 1978. The March 1 breeding stock inventory of 150,000 head, down 31 percent from last year. The market hog inventory of 850,000 head was 24 percent below the year earlier level.

The inventory for the 14 major producing states (including Kentucky) totaled 50.1 million head, compared with 54.8 million head last year, a decrease of nine percent. March 1 breeding stock inventory at 7.2 million head was down 11 percent from a year ago. The market hog inventory of 42.9 million head was down eight percent from 1980.

An estimated 49,000 sows and gilts farrowed on Kentucky farms during December 1980, January and February 1981. This is 24,000 head (32 percent) fewer than in the same period last year and 9,000 head less than producer intentions on Dec. 1. Pigs saved per litter averaged 6.90, up 20 from a year earlier. The December-February pig crop totaled 338,000, down 31 percent from the same quarter in 1980. The September-February pig crop decline 25 percent from 1980 to 807,000 head.

Packing Firm Faces Charges

Bluegrass Packing Co., Danville, Ky., has been charged by the U.S. Department of Agriculture with violating bonding requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

The firm buys livestock for slaughter from Michigan, Indiana and Kentucky. In an administrative complaint, USDA charged the firm with failing to maintain a reasonable bond despite being notified that, under federal law, an adequate bond is required to secure its livestock obligations.

James L. Smith, USDA official at Washington, D.C., said the firm has the right to a hearing. If the charges are proven, the firm would be placed under a cease and desist order and could be assessed a civil penalty.

The Packers and Stockyards Act is a fair trade practices law administered by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

Wildlife Survivors Depicted On 1981 Stamps

Don't panic if you discover a great white shark in your mailbox this spring. It won't mean that "Jaws" has found a new home, but that the National Wildlife Federation has issued its 1981 conservation stamps.

This year's sheet of stamps depicts 36 different animal species, all of which are "wildlife survivors." From the leopard frog to the big brown bear, all these animals have special abilities and traits which help them survive in the wild.

NWF's stamps, familiar to millions of Americans since their first appearance in 1958, are frequently used to decorate letters and packages. In addition, they may be collected in stamp albums available from the Federation. Each album contains descriptions and biological data on the 36 species of mammals, birds, fish, insects, and plants depicted on the 1981 stamp sheets.

NWF, the nation's largest nonprofit conservation organization, began its stamp program 43 years ago during its third year of operation to raise the funds necessary for its survival. NWF's first president, Jay Norwood (Ding) Darling, painted the first 16 stamps himself. President Franklin D. Roosevelt became the first collector of conservation stamps when he received the brand new sheet of stamps at the White House on March 20, 1938.

Since then NWF has distributed more than seven billion stamps to wildlife enthusiasts and stamp collectors across the country. The colorful, educational stamps are reproduced in full-color miniature from the paintings of such well-known wildlife artists as Chuck Ripper, Maynard Reece, Arthur Singer, and Dan Eckelberry.

Contributions for stamps are used to help fund NWF's conservation education program, which last year distributed over 1.4 million free books and pamphlets on environmental and wildlife subjects. Donations are also used to acquire and protect wildlife habitat.

Among the wildlife survivors pictured on the 1981

conservation stamps are:

- The great white shark. This meat-eater is the largest and most powerful of the predatory sharks, roaming both tropical temperate seas. This voracious eater is equipped with razor sharp, triangular-shaped teeth which are immediately replaced by new teeth when lost or broken. The great white may go through many complete sets of these formidable weapons during its lifetime.

- The redhead duck. Although it was once an abundant species, the redhead duck is now considered among the least common of all North American ducks. Decline of the redhead's number is attributed to habitat loss and excessive hunting practices. This colorful water fowl spends its summers in freshwater wetlands from Canada to the central and western U.S., and its winters in the saltwater bays of America, Mexico, and the West Indies.

- The eastern fox squirrel. This coarsely-furred mammal is one of the largest species of squirrels in North America, often weighing up to three pounds. The fox squirrel nests in trees, bearing two to four offspring in early spring, early summer, and sometimes again in autumn. A nut-lover, it is found near nut trees throughout the southeastern U.S. Unfortunately, the fox squirrel is nearly extinct in the northeastern areas of its range.

- The saw-whet owl. These tiny raptors are skillful nocturnal hunters, feeding on small rodents and insects on their nightly flights. Saw-whets lay their eggs and rear their young (usually five or six) in abandoned woodpecker holes in natural tree crevices. Saw-whets breed throughout the northeastern U.S., migrating to warmer southern ranges in hard winters.

Those interested in receiving a sheet of the 1981 conservation stamps or the stamps album, which is available for $2.50, should write to the National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Buck White, Rosemary McLain To Be On KET

Buck White and the Down Home Folk display the musical talents that have made them one of the most popular Bluegrass and country-western performing groups in the country on the next edition of KET's new series, "Kentucky Bluegrass: The McLain Family Festival."

The half-hour program, taped in front of a live audience at last summer's McLain Family Festival held near Berea, airs Thursday, March 26 at 9:30 p.m.

Hosted by the McLain Family, the show is the third in a series of 13 programs that "explores popular musical forms indigenous to this area, including Bluegrass, country and western, western swing and gospel.

The group, fresh from a tour with vocal artist Emmy Lou Harris, opens the program with "Abilene Gal," a song written by White and inspired by his wife Pat, a native of that town. White's multi-talented daughters, Cheryl on bass and Sharon on rhythm guitar, join in the harmony. Rounding out the group are Jerry Douglas on dobro and Ricky Skaggs on fiddle, widely known and respected musicians in their own right.

The two men are former members of JD, Crowe and the New South band and Boone Creek, Kentucky based groups that have achieved national popularity and success. In their next number, White and the Down Home Folk — always a crowd favorite at the festival — enlist the help of the audience as they sing "I Believe In Music." "Cattish John," a haunting ballad about a former slave who spends his remaining years on the river, follows. Mandolin player White moves to the keyboard to introduce the title song from the group's new album "More Pretty Girls Than One," followed by the western swing standard "San Antonio Rose."

In one of the more memorable portions of the program, Skaggs sings the lead in the presentation of the old-time Bluegrass favorite "Could You Love Me One More Time" written by the Stanley Brothers.

State Plans To Crackdown On Unlicensed Pest Controllers

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture is beginning a crackdown on fly-by-night and unlicensed pest control operators, according to state Agriculture Commissioner Alben W. Barkley, II.

The crackdown is aimed primarily at operators in termite extermination, said Don Lamar of the Department's pesticides division.

The problem with operators is greater now because spring is the time of termite swarms, Lamar said. "Also, economic times like these bring such operators out of the woodwork."

These operators often offer a free inspection and then carry a piece of rotten wood under the house with them. Then, when they have "proven" there are termites, they offer to exterminate them at a special price.

This special price is often not so special, Lamar said, especially since there may not have been any termites at all. Sometimes termites are there, but unlicensed operators do a job below standards.

People can protect themselves from fraud by insisting on seeing an identification card before the person inspects the house or does any work. "If they don't have a card, don't let them do anything," Lamar said. The homeowner should write down the person's name and company as listed on the card, Lamar said. Then, while the operator is checking the house, the homeowner should call the company to make sure the person listed on the card really works there.

"I don't want hard times made any harder by these unlicensed operators," Barkley said.

Anyone who needs more information or assistance can call our pesticides division at (502) 564-7274.

UL To Dedicate Education School

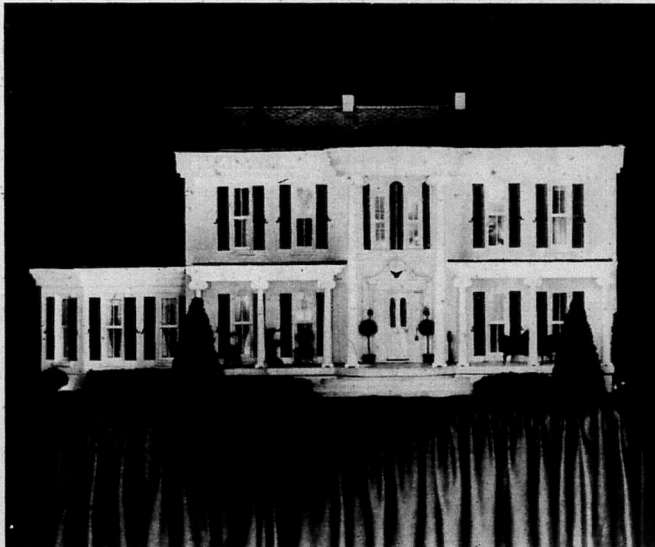

The new University of Louisville School of Education (Social Science Complex I) building will be dedicated March 24 at 3:30 p.m. The facility is located on the north end of Belknap Campus at the corner of Brook and Aversy Streets.

Whitney Dollhouses To Be Displayed Publicly In Their Original Farm Home

LEXINGTON — The Cornelia Vanderbilt Whitney Dollhouses will go on display to the public April 24, 25 and 26 in their original home at the C.V. Whitney Farm, Bryan Station Road.

Four dollhouses make up the famous collection, each one an exact replica of a real building, on the C.V. Whitney thoroughbred horse farm on the Paris Pike in Lexington. Included are the main house, guest house, Roman atrium and art studio.

The dollhouses were the project of Mrs. C.V. Whitney, her daughter Correlia, and a group of workmen at the farm who meticulously handcrafted the buildings and many items of miniature furnishings. They were constructed over a seven-year period.

Caretaker Joett Redmon, also a talented artist, was in charge of the dollhouse workers.

The main house is a reproduction of Maple Hill, the 200-year-old farmhouse that was saved from an advanced state of destruction by Mrs. Whitney, who oversaw its restoration.

The Maple Hill dollhouse is faithful to the smallest detail. There are miniature books in the library, oil paintings done by hand on linen, parquet flooring, and hand-made sterling silver mint julep cups on a silver tray.

The facade of the house can be lifted automatically to give viewers a close look at room interiors.

All four structures were built on a scale of one inch equals one foot. This makes the main house approximately six by eight feet, and over three feet high.

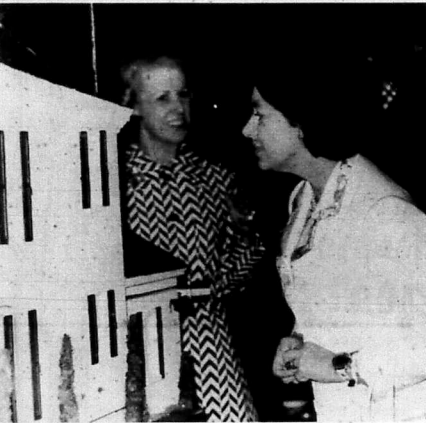

The dollhouses will be viewed in the building in which they were originally assembled.

The dollhouses have been on display in such cities as New York, Chicago, Nashville, Louisville, Jacksonsville, Palm Beach, Saratoga Springs, and Lexington, raising over one-half million dollars for charity.

Though the C.V. Whitney Farm will be their permanent home, the dollhouses will be put on special display on April 24, 25 and 26 for the benefit of the Ephraim McDowell Cancer Center.

For Mrs. Whitney, the dollhouse project was the stimulus for a book she wrote which traces the history of the families who lived at Maple Hill. Entitled "Cornelia Vanderbilt Whitney's Dollhouse," the book also describes in considerable detail the furnishings of the various rooms of the dollhouse. It is now in its third printing.

The Whitney dollhouses have attracted international attention. Here Mrs. C.V. Whitney, left, shows the main dollhouse to Princess Margaret.

'Muskie Joe' His Legend Lives On

If he'd lived a week and a half longer, Muskie Joe Stamper of Commsville would have added up a grand total of 94 years in this world.

THE MAN AND THE FISH — Muskie Joe Stamper created a legend on the Kinniconick. With his passing, the legend lives on.

MUSKIE JOE — For more than 40 years the name has been synonymous with muskie fishing in northeastern Kentucky. The 94-year-old muskie angler died the first week of March.

WHERE IT ALL STARTED — The old Head of Grassy post office marks the location where Joe was introduced to the fish of the Kinniconick.

Most of those years would have been on the banks of the Kinniconick, a stream that he loved as a child and the stream that he chose to make his home on for the last several decades of his life.

As his nickname implies, Joe Stamper was a muskie fisherman who was known far and wide as an expert on the Kinniconick muskie.

Muskie Joe died the first week of March, failing to make it to his birthday which would have occurred on March 13th. A date that has seen cause for celebration each year as Joe made it through another winter with hopes and expectations high for the coming fishing season on his beloved stream.

"You know it's the winters that get us old folks. If we can make it through March, an old fisherman can usually survive the summer and fall," were his prophetic remarks about the subject of living and dying.

Muskie Joe was born on a farm at the Head of Grassy in 1887 and claimed he could remember bass in the clear shaded waters of the Laurel fork of Kinny that were as big as a "ham of meat."

Even in the early days along Grassy and Laurel, Joe recalled the thrill of seeing the big "pike" lying in the still waters of the deep pools. "Everyone was trying to get a pitch fork in those beauties and a lot of folks would lay on a big, over-hanging tree limb waiting to get a shot of a "floater" with a 22. The floaters Joe referred to were muskies that came up near the surface and lay for periods of time, apparently basking in the sun.

Joe was alive and kickin' — a teenager — when the last great cross-tie float was made out of Kinny. As a cook, tie jam breaker and general handyman hired on for the six-week float, Joe recalls seeing multitudes of muskellunge that were spawning during the voyage that lasted from mid March into the early part of May. Joe couldn't recall the exact year the float was made, but recollects it was around 1905.

"I know one thing," Joe told me a few years back, "coffee was a dime a pound and a pound of good bacon cost the same when we floated those ties down Kinny that spring."

Back in those days when Joe was a "barefoot boy," as he always referred to himself when he talked about his childhood, Kinniconick was one of the purest streams in Kentucky. "Old Doc Rose had the stream tested because a lot of families used water straight from the creek for drinking. Came back 97% pure," Joe recalled.

Joe's first experience with the muskies of Kinny occurred when he was still a youngster gigging in small tributaries off Kinny. It was about that time when he heard of the largest muskie ever taken on the stream, which was reputed to weigh 57 pounds. The man who had the fish said he caught it on a trotline, but Joe always claimed the big fish was more than likely shot by a tree sniper.

Joe's reputation as a muskie fisherman actually started about 42 years ago, when he and his brother, Commodore Perry, came to the banks of Kinny and built a small cabin from where they operated a sawmill.

It was in June of '39 or '40 that Joe caught his first muskie on an artificial lure. "She weighed about 11 pounds and measured 34 inches. I caught it on a double plug, which is a rig that I kept secret for many years," Joe said.

The double plug he talked about was a two-lure hookup he perfected where he tied a small lure on his line, dropped a 12-inch leader and tied on a larger plug. The effect he created was of a larger fish chasing a smaller one.

That trick and hundreds more must have worked over the years, because Joe stopped counting the legal size muskies he'd caught when he reached 100 and that was a long time back.

Joe's favorite fishing companion for many years on Kinny was the late Charles Rose. The two old timers fished almost daily for a number of years. "Old Charley was a pheasant hunter, but I taught him how to muskie fish. Turned out to be almost as good as his teacher," Joe chuckled in an interview conducted last year.

Joe recalled the first sport fishing tackle to show up on Kinny some 86 years ago. His uncle, the late G.W. Stamper, brought a casting reel and a steel rod to the creek and Joe claimed he promptly hooked and lost a "five footer."

The best catch that Muskie Joe remembers ever taking form Kinny was caught, not by himself, but by Old Doc Bertam of Vanceburg, who brought in some new tackle and a big spoon he'd purchased in Cincinnati and caught eight muskies running from 12 to 19 pounds in a day, fishing both Pine Eddy and the Beaver Pond.

Joe was one of the few who still remembers the names of all the holes on Kinny. All the holes were named by log and tie runners who associated certain events or characteristics with each location.

"Starting from the head of Kinny, they named the first hole Beaver Pond, then came Pine Eddy, Sunday Lick, Pipe Lick, Puchin Eddy, Buckeye Liddy (Buckeye Spring is located behind Joe's cabin at Commsville), Goodman Eddy, Basin Hole (which was measured at 84 feet deep when Joe was a young man), Tannery, Three Island, More's Dam, Ting Coopers, Spy Run, Buck Run and Cooley's Twist, which is the last large pool in the stream.

Muskie Joe, who is also known as "Fiddlin Joe," because of his prowess with the fiddle, was proud of his First World War service. "they called me a sharp shooter," Joe recalls. He was assigned to the 145th Infantry and saw heavy action in Belgium and France. Like the snipers along the Kinniconick, Joe's training as a Kentucky back woodsman and squirrel hunter prepared him for the role as sniper or sharp shooter during his service years.

Joe was billed the world's oldest muskie fisherman by the press in his later years. Indeed, it is highly unique to find an angler beyond his 90's still wanting to do battle with the fighting muskellunge. According to family comments, Joe had even made an appointment to fish with one of his doctors a few days before he died.

Just how good a muskie fisherman Joe was for many years has been subject for conversation among gatherers of muskie clans across the state. According to Elmer Claxton, head honcho of the famed Lost Creek Muskie Clan, Joe was the best muskie fisherman ever on the Kinniconick.

While he was known far and wide as a muskie fisherman, Joe was equally well known for his musical talents. As a youngster, Joe learned to play guitar, then graduated to banjo which he played for a number of years. Later he would take up the fiddle and become known as "Fiddlin Joe Stamper."

Joe played in square dance bands all around this part of the state and later had regular radio programs in Vanceburg. He also was fond of his relationship with famed country music performer, Tom T. Hall of Olive Hill. Joe and Tom T. were regularly paired on radio performances in Morehead.

Over the years, Joe won a number of awards for his fiddlin', but his greatest prize was one he acquired when he was the ripe old age of 92. Accompanying local folk artist, Barbara Edwards, of Ashland, Joe was acclaimed the grand old man of fiddlin' at a huge gathering of fiddlers at Fiddlin Hill, N.C. "Shoot, besides me, the oldest fiddler they had wasn't much over 75 or 80," Joe claimed.

Joe was happy with his long stay on the banks of the Kinniconick. "I've got everything a man could ask for," he was famed for saying. "Got a sweetwater spring that runs year 'round in my front yard, got some good fishing tackle and plenty of muskies in my back yard. What else could a person want?"

Joe Stamper has now passed on to another plane, but the legend of Muskie Joe, will linger above the cool, clear waters of Kinniconick for many years to come. As muskie men float the long eddies they'll remember the fabled six-footers that Joe claimed were still to be found in the deep pools of his favorite stream.

"They're there alright," Joe told me last fall. "Why me and a woman were fishin the Basin Hole a few years back when we came up on one of the biggest muskies I've ever seen. I ain't braggin' none when I tell you that fish was as long as a boat oar. He was floatin and I had plenty of time to judge its size. Yes, sir, I'll tell you that fish was a good six footer if not longer!"

Yep, the legend of Muskie Joe will stay alive for as long as anglers go after the prize fish of the Kinniconick.

BIGGEST EVER — Joe was proud of the 32-pound muskie he caught several years ago. At 32-pounds, it was the largest muskie ever taken on an artificial lure from the stream. "Fed 19 people with two skillets left over. A couple of preachers from Vanceburg finished off what was left," he once said.

CHAMPION FIDDLER — Joe Stamper was not only famed for muskie fishing talents, he was also considered one of the finest mountain fiddlers to ever draw a bow.

Letters To Editor

The Editor:
The Cancer Hopeline telephone lines are staffed by trained counselors from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday. The hours were extended into the evening about a year ago to accommodate people who are working during the day.

In July 1979, the Hopeline was designated Kentucky's Cancer Information Service (CIS) by the National Cancer Institute in Washington. This means that the Hopeline can provide the latest cancer information to callers free. At this time, the Hopeline has in stock about 150 different brochures on cancer, its treatment, prevention, support services, and environment and risk factors. The public, cancer patients, their families, and health professionals are invited to call for these publications.

When cancer strikes, families are frequently left with many questions about where to get a second opinion, where they can secure medical supplies, and where they can find out if they are eligible for financial assistance. The Cancer Hopeline has these kinds of answers. Because of contacts in every county and in state government, Hopeline counselors often are able to save worried callers much time and frustration.

The third service provided by the Cancer Hopeline is counseling support for individuals and families. Counselors understand the burdens cancer places on families when they are least able to cope with them. They care, and they frequently are able to offer practical assistance which may result in improved communication and allow family members to gain strength from each other.

The assistance offered by the Hopeline is in the form of a compassionate, competent, and thoroughly confidential helping hand.

Hopeline services are tax-supported and offered to the public at no cost. The Hopeline is staffed for 55 hours each week. If a person should call after closing times listed above, there is a recorder available for messages. Counselors return messages the next working day. Call 1-800-432-9321. In Lexington the Hopeline number is 233-6333.

Sincerely,
Judith L. Klamon
Information Systems Coordinator

Your... Social Security

Household Workers Covered By Social Security
Do you hire someone to clean house, cook, care for the yard, or babysit? If you pay this person $50 or more cash wages in a 3-month calendar quarter, don't forget you must deduct social security taxes and report the wages.

You or your employee may question how to report? Retirement may be years away and the individual may need every dollar now to live on. Also it may be difficult to hire and keep an employee who knows you will be reporting. However, keep these points in mind:

1. Social security does more than pay retirement checks and provide Medicare protection for older people. It also pays monthly benefits if a worker becomes severely disabled for at least a year or dies. But a worker first needs a certain amount of social security credit (called quarters of coverage) before benefits can be reported. That credit is based on reported earnings. Also the amount of the benefit is related to total reported earnings. So if you do not report wages, the individual may not have enough credit to get payments or could receive a smaller benefit.

2. Even though you and your employee may agree not to report wages, this could come back to haunt you years later when the employee applies for benefits. When it is discovered the employee does not have enough credits, you may have to pay back taxes as well as a penalty. The statute of limitations does not apply if no tax return was filed. If you or your employee have any questions about social security benefits, the people in the Ashland Social Security Office will be glad to help you. Several free leaflets are available including one entitled "Social Security and Your Household Employee." If you have questions about reporting wages, call any Internal Revenue Service Office.

Professor Develops Solar Energy System

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — A University of Kentucky architecture professor has received an award for developing a solar energy system for a building under construction in New York State.

Richard Levine, associate professor in the UK College of Architecture, served as energy consultant on the corporate headquarters of the Hooker Chemical Corp. in Niagara Falls.

The 10-story building has been named a winning design in the ninth annual Energy Awards Program. Levine says the building will use a fraction of the energy of buildings of comparable size and occupancy.

As energy consultant to the architects, Levine suggested a design that took advantage of the "greenhouse effect" to heat and cool the building.

Now the Peoples Bank of Olive Hill can put your “Idle Assets” to work!

Your IDLE ASSETS can now work for you at your full service bank. Most of us have a valuable asset which we pay little attention to. The cash value of our life insurance contracts is available at a low rate of interest, usually 5 or 6%.

The IDLE ASSETS Program evaluates the cash you have available and shows you how this money can earn interest for you in an IDLE ASSETS Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation protected Certificate of Deposit for 30 months.

Example: If you have $5,000 of cash value in your life insurance contracts that is available at a 5% loan rate from your insurance company, you deposit that amount in an IDLE ASSET Certificate of Deposit at a current rate* of 11% for 2½ years. This represents a gain of 6% or $300 per year. Over the span of 2½ years you will have realized a gain of $750. You will also be provided with life insurance for the full 2½ year term in the amount of your certificate. If death should occur during this term, your beneficiary will receive the full face amount of insurance, plus the proceeds from the Certificate of Deposit from your bank. Certificates are available in amounts of $1,000 to $10,000. Your full service bank has set up a special department to help you earn more with your IDLE ASSETS.

*Subject to change.
