Four Crews Distributed Stockings To Needy Children In County

President Billy G. Brown said this week that members of Morehead's Junior Chamber of Commerce distributed more than 300 Christmas stockings to the needy of Rowan County.

Brown said, "the response of the people of Morehead was so wonderful, we were able to fill more than 90% of the stockings which we purchased for the project. Due to this fine response, many children of this area had a much brighter Christmas."

The stockings were distributed Thursday night in the various sections of the county.

Groups distributed stockings in the Hamilton, Cherry Creek, Clearfield-Lower Licking, and Clinton-Sharkey districts of the county.

Flanery, Kelly To Take Office Monday

The New Year will bring new representation in Kentucky's General Assembly from Rowan County.

Ed J. Kelly, Flemingsburg, Democrat, will represent the 27th district in the State Senate. He defeated incumbent William J. Sample in the August primary.

Kelly's district is the largest in area in the state being composed of six counties—Mason, Fleming, Rowan, Bath, Menifee and Wolfe.

Morehead automobile dealer W. J. (Juni) Flanery is the new State Representative from the 70th district, Rowan and Bath counties. Flanery, a Democrat, had no general election opposition, and beat Sam Green, Morehead, in the primary.

Flanery was elected for two years, Kelly for four.

Incumbent 70th district Representative, Walter J. Bailey, Prestonsburg, resigned in the general election by winning the 3rd district Railroad Commission seat over incumbent Bob Phillips, a Pease Mobley. The district is normally Republican, but Bailey won on the Democratic landslide. He has already been sworn in.

The General Assembly will convene Monday and go into full session Tuesday. Governor Chandler may call them into several special sessions as he did when he sat Chief Executive 29 years ago.

108 Arrested By State Police Over Holiday Week End

No traffic fatalities were recorded in Rowan County over the long Christmas holiday week-end, according to State Police officials.

Only three accidents, none of them serious, were recorded in Rowan County.

Traffic from the north and northern states began to pour into this section of Kentucky late Friday. State Police officials said 108 traffic arrests were made Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

About 60 arrests were for moving hazardous violations and the remainder were for drunken driving and other violations.

Post 8 of the Kentucky State Police serves Rowan and ten adjoining counties.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Caudill, College Boulevard, were declared winners of Morehead's home-estor Christmas decoration contest for the fifth time, by the Kiwanis Club committee that did the judging on Christmas Eve.

This is the fifth time Mr. and Mrs. Caudill have captured first place.

The winning decoration was conceived around two large candles at each end of the stone constructed home and the framing of a large reproduction of a Christmas card on the front door.

First prize carried with it an award for $15 and a cup.

Second award of $10 went to Mr. and Mrs. LeGrand Jayne, Tipton Avenue; third prize of $5 to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Allen Drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bradley of Meadowbrook Drive and Mr. and Mrs. Bob H. Brook, Elizabeth Avenue, won honorable mention.

Morehead Eagles Knocked From Unbeaten Ranks By Murray 106-97 In K. I. T.

By win any other game.

Morehead jumped off to a 13-0 lead, but was caught at 15-13 and 17-17. From there on, the Thoroughbreds began to lead the half by connecting on 19 of 38 field goal flings for a fifty 50 per cent record, Murray led by a bulging 18 points, 59-41.

They went scamparing off through to build this to 20 points, 80-60, with 11-28 remaining.

Then a freeze set in.

Within a space of some four minutes, the rallying Eagles flapped within six points at 84-78 with 7:24 remaining.

It was a fight, then, for several minutes, with 4-27 to go, Morehead, always dangerous at the firing line, still within six at 90-84.

But the battling Thoroughbreds wouldn't crack. They held.

For the game, then, the Thoroughbreds hit on 34 of 74 shots for a hefty 46 per cent and got 39 rebounds. Morehead outbounced Murray by 12, with 52, and had 18 more shots than the 'Breds with 92. But they struck connect on only a mediocre 23 of 92 shots for 25 per cent.

What generally is considered an upset—if the word can be applied to basketball these days—unseeded Murray conquered seeded Morehead 106-97 in the first round of the Kentucky Invitational Tournament Tuesday afternoon.

The loss was the first in seven seasons for the Eagles.

Don Swartz, the nation's third leading scorer, kept Morehead in the contest by matching his average per game—30 points.

Murray simply was too inspired, too sharpshooting, too aggressive for the Eagles.

Morehead scored enough points to normal-

Forecasters Think Advertising Will Boom; Liberal Credit To Average Citizen Will Continue

1. The hydrogen bomb and the guided missile will be the greatest international factors for diplomatic trading during 1956. This trading will hold down the price of big-city property.

2. The Republicans will turn slightly "New Dealish" during 1956 and this will bring in a lively and heated Presidential campaign.

3. Democrats are uncertain as to what their policy will be in 1956. Stevenson is a liberal, but more conservative than many Democrats. Kefauver appeals to the masses, while Hartman leans to the left.

4. However, some "dark horse" may run off with the Democratic nomination.

5. Some taxes will be reduced to favor all voters slightly but the largest benefit will go to low-income groups.

6. The farm problem—concerning higher price-participation by the farmer in the center of most political fights.

7. The cost of living will increase only slightly during 1956. We, however, must not forget what weather can do to production, prices, and even to the stock market.

8. All the above means that there is now in sight no reason for further inflation during 1956. Certainly, I look for no runaway price inflation.

Outlook For Commodities

1. It is not a very expert, but my associates' forecast for 1956 is as follows: (1) Further scarce commodity reductions that will be largely offset by soaring yields resulting from intensified cultivation (2) expanded farm subsidies that will mildly bolster crop prices and farm income (3) continued the 1955 average for 1956 I forecast moderately higher prices, for the major crops, based on increased subsidies to be voted by Congress.

2. Industrial price will be the center of a high plateau and should be well maintained to possibly firmer during the year of 1956. Labor, as usual, falters, look for selective (Continued On Page 6)

Business To Be Good, But Profits May Be Less

Babson Also Foresees That Ike Will Be Renominated By GOP And Relected In Coming Year

By Roger W. Babson

1. If no unforeseen event happens, President Eisenhower will be renominated and re-elected in 1956.

2. The Republican party has an excellent chance of winning in 1956 with President Eisenhower making a few key speeches and promoting to be an active part of the Administration. He is trained to take responsibility and enjoys it, but the President should be relieved of speech making, entertaining, and much of the detail work which goes with being President.

3. Competition will be very severe in 1956, and with few exceptions will cause business profits to be less in 1956 than in 1955. Too many manufacturers, not satisfied with their present good business, are starting to make price reductions and undercut standard prices.

4. Higher wages may also be expected in 1956, and these could reduce profits. These higher wages, however, will largely be spent and should increase retail sales.

5. Increased advertising appro-prations will be seen in 1956. In fact, advertising appropriations for newspapers, magazines, television, radio, and billboards have helped our prosperity, or it would not have lasted through 1955.

6. The recent policy of the money managers in the direction of "easing" will be shifted to "ease" sometime in 1956. This reversal could put a floor under any business decline that may start next year.

7. Liberal credits to the purchasers of houses, automobiles, washing machines, televisions, and various other things have bolstered property and will continue to be a strong support to many industries, through 1956.

8. If the Republicans are re-elected in 1956, great sums of money will be spent on research and new plant expansion. The effect could be another "turn up" in the Babschmidt Index of Business.

9. Despite the decline in family formations, the baby boom will roll merrily on through 1956. The reason: More parents are

10. All told, I look for 1956 to be the second best business year in history—just a shade off from 1955. Predicted declines in new auto and residential building industries will largely be offset by rising expenditures for sewers, schools, and by increased demand for electricity, natural gas, and food.

11. The main handicap to real business in 1956 will be intense competition of the parking industry, which is getting so terrible that a revolutionary solution may be required.

15. Duplex dwellings will probably continue in demand through the whole of 1956 if they are well located. The limiting of rents will probably be totally abolished during 1956.

16. With the trend of vacancies showing a downward movement, apartment buildings will find their profit margins squeezed harder in 1956 than at any time in recent years.

17. Commercial farms need not suffer during 1956. Increased efficiency and new machinery should offset price declines.

18. Owners of small scattered farms will suffer during 1956. They have not the volume or capital to cut losses to meet the reduced prices for their crops.

19. Farmers within 10 or 15 miles of a big city will have increased prices which their land will bring for subdivisions. Many more well-located close-in farms will become subdivisions during 1956.

20. Taken all in all, the real estate situation should average only moderately below the good level of 1955. However, activity promises to be less and those who have been holding real estate for speculative profits must do well to consider selling.

International Outlook And Politics

21. Russia will keep out of war with us during 1956.

22. There will be one or more small wars during 1956. Both sides of the conflicts will try to secure help in the form of munitions from both Russia and the United States, but none of these will develop into serious conflicts.

23. The "cold war" new existing between Russia and the United States, will continue through

BURLEY REFERENDUM

Watkins Says New Medical School Wise

If Kentucky is to meet the challenge for additional medical service it must provide a state-supported medical school at once, J. Stephen Watkins, president of the Kentucky Medical Foundation, said this week.

Watkins cited studies which support the foundation's contention that hundreds of additional doctors are needed in Kentucky now and that the demand for medical services will increase steadily in the years ahead. The new state administration of Gov. A. B. Chandler intends to establish a medical school at the University of Kentucky and will ask the General Assembly, in January, to make the initial appropriation for that purpose.

"We will forthwith proceed (with the project) at the earliest possible moment," Gov. Chandler told members of the medical foundation Tuesday at a meeting in Lexington.

Watkins, in supporting the Chandler administration's action in behalf of the state-supported medical institution, challenged a statement by one of four doctors who were listed in a recent newspaper story as opponents of the medical-school movement. The "opponent" was said to have "quailed" at saving only 40 additional doctors were needed to bring the state's medical services up to standard.

"I am sure," Watkins said, "that the people in all small towns and in the rural sections of Kentucky who are in dire need for medical doctors will be inclined to go along with the more responsible report of the Legislative Research Commission which reported in 1953 there was a shortage of 1,490 physicians in the state."

New Trial Is Ordered In Row At Prestonsburg

The Court of Appeals held that Commonwealth Attorney Burns Martin, Prestonsburg, should not have prosecuted an action for assault and battery against John May, justice of the peace of Floyd County, for the state's program of activities which resulted in Kentucky becoming the leading Farm Bureau State in the South and the fourth largest in the nation.

The ruling set aside a $1,000 fine imposed against May and directed a new trial of the controversy. The Appellate Court held that one person should not

20 Year Olds May Get Polio Shots

The State Health Department said it expects a new ruling to make persons under 20 eligible for polio shots.

The present plan calls for children one through nine and certain women to get the shots.

Dr. U. Pontu-Kokko, director of the department's health services, said he had received unofficial confirmation that the U. S. Public Health Service will allow an age limit extension.

Any new program would first have to be approved by the State Polio Advisory Committee.

It's Often Wise To Make New Year's Resolutions

There was a time, not many years ago, when the people gave some thought to the resolutions that they would adopt for the New Year. Unfortunately, in this modern age of hurry, worry and hustle the habit has become somewhat rare but, nevertheless, there is much to be gained by following the age-old custom of our ancestors.

It always pays a man, or a woman, to take stock of themselves. Frankly, honestly and privately look yourself over, make an inventory of your assets and liabilities in connection with a world of other people. We know there are blame individuals who poke fun at all those who seek to improve themselves. There are likewise many people who worship money above all other accomplishments and therefore base their judgments of everything upon the basis of material wealth.

"Religion teaches us that life is more than material possessions and that men and women, who expect to live after death, must base their faith upon spiritual achievements. It is virtually impossible to make progress in this direction unless one is willing to establish, deliberately and intelligently, a set of values, for existence.

All Of Us Will Make Mistakes

Over in Birmingham, England, Mrs. Lily Patten has been awarded $7,000 in damages from a surgeon who made a mistake. Mrs. Patten was injured in a factory, where she worked, and was sent to the hospital for treatment. Her hand had been crushed in a press in the factory.

The surgeon, who was sued by Mrs. Patten, admitted in court that he had mistakenly amputated the little finger of the injured hand instead of the larger which should have been amputated. As a result, Mrs. Patten was awarded $7,000 in damages.

We call attention to this fact, not to discredit the medical profession, but to human beings and they sometimes make mistakes. Too often it is assumed that if a doctor or surgeon makes a mistake, there has been criminal negligence and the mistake is unforgivable. That is not the case.

Doctors and surgeons, just as are all the rest of us, are engaged in a profession in which perfection is never attained. There is not a medical man who has not made mistakes and who will not make them in the future. The best doctor or surgeon is the one who knows how to avoid mistakes, and is able to begin his positive approach on this basis.

Could Be Stride Against Cancer

A new antibiotic has been discovered, which a discoverer believes might be a promising agent in the war against cancer. A Japanese research worker has revealed that the use of this new material has brought promising results in the cancer cells of mice and monkeys.

Dr. Hamano Umetsawa, of the National Institute of Health, in Japan, says that cell changes began to appear in these animals five days after the cancer cells were treated with the new drug.

The new material is obtained from a soil fungus and is now to be tested on humans. Dr. Umetsawa believes that the new drug will play the role, for cancer that streptomycin played for tuberculosis.

Streptomycin, one of the earliest antibiotics brought out, has become a drug widely used in the treatment of tuberculosis. It is highly effective if used with other drugs, although it does not cure all cases of tuberculosis. It is, nevertheless, a major triumph of achievement in the battle against this dread disease.

Dr. Umetsawa does not claim he has found a cure for cancer, but he does think his antibiotic shows definite promise of curing some cancer. If he is correct in believing that it will be that streptomycin has been to tuberculosis patients, he has made a major discovery and the world will profit immeasurably as a result.

"The person who associates with younger people and joins in their activities will never grow old," says a psychologist. Of course he won't... he won't live that long.

After all, an automobile is merely a means for getting from one place to another... if you don't get killed enroute.

The latest small motor boat speed record is 216 m. p. h. There are many who don't believe anywhere is worth going to that fast in a small motor boat.

Solar Heating Is Forecast

Scientists estimate that solar heating plants for homes, which are now in the experimental stage, will be in widespread use in the United States within twenty years. Although these systems are expensive to install, their economical operational cost gives them a considerable attraction.

Two people realize how much energy the sun delivers to the earth every day. It is estimated, for example, that all the industry in the United States could operate off the power of sunlight shining on a section of the Arizona desert less than a hundred miles square.

The energy delivered by the sun to the earth each day totals about which would be released by the burning of 122 trillion tons of coal, according to the National Geographic Society. Moreover, every square foot of the surface of the United States receiving sunlight is receiving as much energy, each minute, as is found in half of a burning match.

It is estimated that the average house roof receives about five hundred times as much energy as a family normally uses in the form of electricity. One can readily see, then, that the sun's energy is a huge reservoir of untapped energy.

There are already some heating systems available which utilize solar heat, but they are several times more expensive as conventional fuel and heating systems. Eventually, it will almost certainly be possible for families building homes to install solar heating systems which will fill all their needs, even in cloudy weather, heat having been stored up during days of sunshine to care for such periods. Fuel costs should then be negligible.

Another Charge Against Fags

Four physicians reported recently in Boston that they believed there was some connection between cigarette smoking and a pulmonary ailment. The physicians said they believed unusual swelling and rupture of the tiny air sacs in the lungs, which has its own medical name, was connected with cigarette smoking.

The physicians made their report to the ninth clinical meeting of the American Medical Association. They said this illness, which is relatively common in the field of lung disease, causes a considerable amount of disability, proving fatal on some occasions. The doctors took the view that this was a serious report and that the evidence gleaned in research work indicates smoking might be more hazardous than had been realized.

The reporting physicians, Dr. Francis Lowell, Alvin Michelson, Irving Schiller and William Franklin, studied forty patients in cases of chronic pulmonary emphysema. All of these patients had been heavy cigarette smokers, ten of them had cases of peptic ulcer and two had lung cancer.

The physicians believe that the association of smoking with emphysema could not be a mere coincidence, since a survey of a similar population without the disease indicated that one hundred per cent incidence of smoking among the forty patients could not be dissipated.

In other words, the most interesting indication the doctors came up with, reduced the surprising discovery that, of all the forty patients with chronic pulmonary emphysema studied, all had been heavy smokers. This is not a final determination and is only an indication. But it should certainly be another indication to all those who would act wisely, and within the bounds of reason, to be moderate in their smoking habits, especially if they smoke.

RUTH HUNTER OBSERVES

We Conjecture What The New Year Will Bring

We are on the threshold of a new year. Some may welcome it with mirth and festivity. Some may greet it with prayer and the solemn ringing of church bells. However you choose to usher in the New Year, there will be at some time a sense of wonderment, a desire to know what the year will bring. Will it be marked for good or evil? What will happen to us?

We cannot change the course of history at will. We cannot turn back the clock, nor re-conform to the past. We have all had a hand in the making of today. Now it is up to us to face the future.

Year will bring will depend on just that—on how we face up to action, how we handle the situation before us, how we prepare ourselves and our lives to meet the challenges of the future.

As individuals we have not the power to make decisions on matters of foreign policy, which may result in shooting war, cold war, stalemate or peace. But as individuals we have the power to elect the men who will make the decisions. We must be the outcome of this year will depend on how carefully we do this task.

As individuals we have not the power to fight the Communist attacks upon our ancient liberties. But as individuals we can and must—see to it that their clever propaganda bears no fruit, that their insidious appeals to hate and prejudice make no headway among us, that their attempts to sow dissensions among groups fizzle out in our neighborhood. We can learn the facts—and use them.

As individuals we have not the power to determine our defense program. But as individuals we can keep ourselves physically fit, mentally alert, and actively cooperative with the authorized agencies for defense in our community. We can know what we have to do in case of emergency—and how we can help others.

Above all we can keep our faith and our spirits firm so that we may—to paraphrase Stevenson's prayer—be happy if happiness is to be our portion, and if the year be marked for sorrow, strong to endure it.

YOUR HEALTH

Which-The Carrot Or The Stick?

Since the world began, getting people to do what's good for them has been a major problem. This has always been particularly true, and especially important, in the field of medicine.

Persuading a child to take some bad-tasting medicine because "it's good for him" is a problem every parent has. When we grow up we presume that we are sensible enough to do what's

As Senator Clements Sees It

A Nation Is Only So Great As Her Rank And File Of Ordinary Citizens

By Senator Earle C. Clements

Morganfield, Ky.—This Holy Season is, throughout our land, and in the hearts and minds of all our people, a time of spiritual renewal, a time of re-affirmation to the principles enunciated by Him who came into the world as the "Prince of Peace."

It is also a time when His lessons are remembered anew... and vows taken to apply them. One of these is especially meaningful just now, when, once again—the world is chilled with fear, when the "Cold War" hands ever close to their bolsters.

All remember the Beatitudes: "Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the children of God."

In the course of her history, the United States has been blessed with many who have served the cause of peace. Because of this, we have the 28th day of December marks the good for us, particularly where our health is concerned. But are we? Take a look at tuberculosis, for example. Tuberculosis is a disease whose power to kill and cripple has been reduced as a result of recent medical advances. Today its victims have an excellent chance to overcome their disease and lead useful lives if they find the disease early and listen to their doctors after they give prompt treatment. But often medical science is hindered by the fact that people themselves haven't changed very much!

If all victims of tuberculosis followed the medical advice carefully, much greater progress against the disease could be made. But tuberculosis is a disease that often requires much self-discipline during a long period of treatment, a disease that may bring in its wake heavy financial and personal problems. Because tuberculosis patients are people they find it hard to "take their medicine."

Sometimes patients walk out of hospitals or sanatoriums before their doctor says "You are discharged." They are permitted to return home and continue their lives. One might say, "What's the difference—they're only hurting themselves!"

But that's not always the case. Many persons who leave hospitals "against medical advice" endanger their communities because they are not taking TB pills. What to do about these people who don't know what's good for them is a problem.

There are two schools of thought on what to do. The one is against compulsion, believing that proper education of the patient will make him obey his doctor. The "stick" wielders feel that anyone who is a danger to his community should be forced by law to remain under treatment.

Some states, subscribing to the "stick" theory, have passed laws making hospitalization compulsory for certain tuberculosis patients. Until all patients learn what's really good for them, the question of "the carrot or the stick" will be an important public health problem.

1955 KENTUCKY CROP REPORT

Farm Production During Past 12 Months Is Off By Two Percent In State

Harvested acreage of the principal crops grown on Kentucky farms in 1953 totaled 4,626,000 acres—two per cent less than last year and eight per cent less than the 1943-44 average. Decreases from last year occurred in the harvested acreage of corn, meat and milk animals and tobacco, while hay and soybean acreages showed increases.

Kentucky farmers experienced the best all around crop season in four years. Rainfall for the growing season (April through September) totaled 33.33 inches for the state—just 44 inches below the long-time average. Only August was below average for the state as a whole. Some local dry spells developed but showers brought relief before serious damage was done. A freak cold snap late March almost wiped out the Kentucky fruit crop and gave winter grain and hay crops a severe setback. The small grain and hay crops made a rapid comeback under almost ideal growing conditions. Except for late spring rains hindered corn and soybean planting and damaged early hay crops. A hot and dry period in August cut yields on these late planted acreages but bushels of corn production marked 1935 as one of the better years.

Kentucky corn crop set a record for high yield of 41.0 bushels per acre. Farmers were unable to plant all the intended corn acreage due to the heavy rains in late May and early June and yields were reduced on some late planted acreage. Nevertheless, the total production of bushels of corn in 1953 was 81,912,000 bushels, an eight per cent above average and 23 per cent above last year.

Soybean production faced about the same problems as corn. The soybean yield of 18.0 bushels per acre was above average but did not set a record. The total production of 2,376,000 bushels was eight per cent above average and 16 per cent above a year ago.

Small grain crops made a good recovery from the freeze in late March but yields were reduced. Compared to the export year of 1952, the 1953 wheat crop was disappointing, but yields were still above average and 26 per cent above the 1943-44 average. Wheat production in 1953 was 21 per cent below average and 26 per cent below the long-time average.

While the reduction from last year was mainly a result of lower yields, total 1953 wheat production amounted to 4,522,000 bushels. The crop of 4,920,000 bushels harvested from 164,000 acres was 94 per cent above average and 19 per cent above the very large 1954 crop. The 1953 bushel per acre yield compares with 32.5 for 1954 and 24.3 for 1943-44 average. Barley production showed greater effects of the March freeze than other grain crops. The yield per acre of 23.0 bushels was 1.5 bushels below average and 8.0 bushels under a year ago. The acreage of rye harvested for grain was sharply reduced in 1953. Farmers made more use of rye for pasture and green manure. Production of rye for grain amounted to only 270,000 bushels—33 per cent below average and 50 per cent of last year.

Hay production this year was in the bumper crop class for most all hay crops. Alfalfa, alone and mixtures has been expanding in acreage as it has proved itself during the dry years. The 1953 hay crop was 18 per cent above average and 20 per cent above a year ago. A record high, as farmers were able to make three and even four cuttings. With the larger acreage and record yield, alfalfa hay production totaled 648,000 tons—41 per cent above average and 34 per cent above 1952. Clover and clover mixed hay production totaled 547,000 tons in 1953. The average yield of 1.08 tons. Total production of lespedeza hay was 625,000 tons—seven per cent above average and 35 per cent above last year. More lespedeza would have been cut had there not been adverse weather supplies of early hays. Grain hay production totaled 86,000 tons compared to 102,000 tons a year ago, when more grains were cut to supplement the short hay crop. The production of other hay (fescue, reedtop, orchardgrass, etc.) also declined from the 234,000 tons in 1952 to 229,000 tons this year.

Potato production at 1,749,000 bushels was 21 per cent above last year. The average yield of 1.08 tons was 24 per cent above last year with a 1953 total of 15,400,000 bushels. The average yield of 154,000 was 3,000 acres below 1954. However, the reduced acreage was more than offset by higher yields and the total production of 15,400,000 bushels in 1953 was 23 per cent above a year ago.

Tobacco made rapid growth early in the season but by the hot dry August, Western and southern Kentucky areas had had little tobacco crop. But the yield prospects were reduced somewhat in the northern areas. Dark fire cured tobacco was 45 pounds below the record high of last year. The record high yield of last year for dark fire cured tobacco was 21 and dark air-cured tobacco was 25. Dark fire cured tobacco set a new record high of 36 equalled the record high of last year.

Production of all types of tobacco in Kentucky totaled 663,000 pounds compared to 502,272,000 pounds produced last year and the ten-year average of 494,531 of 422,676,000 pounds. The reduced production in 1953 was due chiefly to lower acreage allocations.

Segregation In Kentucky Parks Is Near End

The Court of Appeals held that segregation of the races in public park systems no longer could be tolerated from a legal standpoint in following a United States Supreme Court decision which outlawed the "separate but equal" doctrine.

Suit was filed by a Louisville woman challenging validity of the order of the City of Louisville's Director of Parks setting aside separate parks for negroes and whites.

The Jefferson Circuit Court denied the woman—Hoburn Moorean—the relief and an appeal was taken. Following the appeal, the Supreme Court ruled specifically on the question of segregation of the races in public recreational facilities.

"It is obvious that racial segregation in recreational facilities can no longer be sustained as a proper exercise of the police power of the State."

Veterans Are Eligible For Farm Training

Applications Are To Be Filed Soon

Veterans who have served in the Armed Forces since 1951 and who have been discharged less than three years, are still eligible for educational benefits under the Korean G. I. Bill. These benefits cover all phases of educational training including academic and vocational training.

Veterans who are farming or who plan to farm during the 1956 crop year may make application for vocational training in agriculture at the Vocational Agriculture Department at Pritchard High School, Grayson, by contacting one of the agricultural teachers who are working in the department. The teachers who are operating the program are Walter E. Parsons, Grayson; Cyrus Richardson, Carter; and Thomas Parsons, Hinchins.

Application should be made as soon as possible. The next entry date is Feb. 1, 1956; however, it will be necessary to apply some time in advance of entry date.

Parsons states that first year benefits were increased considerably by the last Congress and that veterans who have a suitable farming situation have a good opportunity to become established in farming through this program.

34. Steel in 1955 will average higher in price than for all of this year. Do not look for any great cut in this key metal, even if business slackens.

35. Nonferrous metals in 1956 should move with the Babson chart line. High prices in early weeks may be followed by selective weakness. Zinc and lead may be the first to give a tip-off on the coming downturn, but copper eventually is riding for the greatest fall.

36. Processed and frozen foods should advance only slightly in price as increased labor costs are offset by new machinery and equipment intensifies. Early firmness in textiles should be followed by some late-year weakness.

37. There will probably be more leisure time during 1956. This should help the entertainment group, including sports, travel—and possibly the petroleum industry.

38. During 1957 it hopes that school teachers will be paid more money. But, in order not to have increased municipal taxes, school committees must develop some method of either improving the efficiency of the schools, or reducing the time necessary for completing studies.

39. More people will continue during 1956 to return to the fold of religion. However, statistics on church membership unfortunately cannot be entirely depended upon.

Stocks And Bonds
40. The year 1956 will start the year at high levels, but later I look for some easing to help the building industry. The present Administration will not allow high money costs to bring about unemployment.

41. Seasoned dividend-paying stocks will do better in 1956 than the more speculative issues. Stocks will follow individual prospects, more closely, rather than the course of business generally.

42. There will be one or two years of age. There is no minimum age limit.

Complete information about the examination requirements and instructions for filing applications may be obtained at the Clearfield Post Office. Application forms must be filed with the U. S. 43. If the rallies continue to be as impressive than the decline in the stock market, I feel that the money managers will reduce stock margins before long.

44. Bank, insurance company, and certain investment trust stocks should continue to be a refuge for the uncertain investor and for those who seek security and income without reference to prices or market-ability.

45. Aircraft stocks in 1956 may suffer from increased government regulation. This will be a serious threat if the Democrats win next autumn.

46. Soundly financed natural gas stocks should continue to enjoy good growth during the year ahead.

47. We will hear much more about new industries and new inventions during 1956. Many very important developments are on drawing boards and in test tubes.

48. Canadian stocks have reached their peaks for this cycle. This includes the uranium craze. On the other hand, the time is coming when the greatest stock market profits will be in connection with Canadian stocks.

49. Economic education will continue more and more a factor throughout 1956. The advertising which the New York Stock Exchange is now scheduling will continue. This will be followed by labor-union and educational programs. The growth of colleges and institutes of business administration will continue. I now see no depression ahead for 1956, but of course, stock prices will not "grow to the skies" and there must be a sad readjustment some day. Investors are already beginning to switch from common to preferred stocks, and especially to non-taxable bonds.
