Predicts Russian Satellites Will Achieve Freedom

Mrs. Jeanne Dixon, of Washington, has an impressive list of successful predictions to her credit. The real estate executive, of Washington, D. C., has aroused worldwide interest by her successful flashes of intuition.

As 1937 begins, it is interesting to note some of Mrs. Dixon's latest predictions. Among other things, she believes that Germany will become a democracy again, and that a strong third party will come about in the United States.

In addition, she says the Russian satellites will achieve freedom and that the United States will have more trouble with Red China than with any other country. And, looking at the domestic political scene, she believes that Vice-President Richard Nixon is the man of destiny in the United States.

It will take some years to determine the accuracy of Mrs. Dixon's latest predictions. At least she is willing to go out on a limb and put her prophesying powers on the line. To her credit in the past are successful predictions as to the 1948 election, a prediction that Carol Lombard would be killed if she boarded the plane on her last and fatal trip, a prediction of a heart attack a business associate would have, the prediction of a plane crash concerning the plane her husband was about to board, which crashed, a prediction about the rise of Russia's Premier Bulganin, and foreseeing a letter which arrived days after she had had a vision of it, and naming the exact score of a golf match between President Eisenhower and Bob Hope.

Therefore, Mrs. Dixon's latest predictions are well worth watching.

ARE YOU A 'WACKY WALKER'?

THE SORT WHO CROSSES A BUSY STREET BETWEEN INTERSECTIONS ESPECIALLY WHEN YOUR ARMS ARE FULL OF BUNDLES, AND IT IS A RAINY, SLIPPERY DAY — ?

We Have Made Progress Since Our Founding

With the thousands of refugees coming to our shores, we cannot help but wonder how the America they find compares with the America they dream. Will they be disappointed? Or will they find their dream of freedom has come true.

We are sometimes chary of expressing our feelings about this land of ours. We are afraid of being called sentimental, or of "showing off." But, deep down in our hearts, we love America. And we want to tell the world what it is to us. It is a nation in which we can be so many, the symbol of right, the torch of liberty, the center of truth, the fountain of justice, and the cradle of our Republic. We have progressed far. We have wiped out the sin of slavery as we have wiped out the plague of cholera. We have made great strides in seeing to it that all citizens have equal rights before the law and equal opportunities for advancing themselves.

We support a government that is of our own choosing—a government that because of our system of checks and balances can never be tyrannical. Our democracy is stronger than the will of the individuals who comprise it, and bigger than any group of individuals who try to oppress it. That is the way it is, and that is the way we want to keep it.

This is a nation in which each may have a part, for it is a government of the people, by the people, for the people. There is no one to say "work here" or "work there." We can work where we like to do, where we want to work. But it is up to us to work and do our share to help our country. Our aristocracy is one of individuals, not inherited wealth. All we, as Americans, ask, is opportunity to work for ourselves, our family, our nation. We do not ask for special privileges. We ask only for the right to be American.

It is not strange to those who come from countries held in bondage by an oppressor who dictates every thought and word. We hope they will understand our freedoms—often carelessly given.

As for us, we admit that we have still far to go before America is the land of free citizens—but in six, its citizens, live the way that America offers the world. We, the United States, will mean it to be, and to assure to the children of their children the children the advantages which can only accrue to a people trained in freedom and educated to use that freedom well.

YOUR HEALTH Dehydration Is New Treatment For Some Colds

What's your prescription for the common cold? Everyone seems to have his own, and each one seems to work—sometimes.

This is the peak of the cold season. Of course, no one can prevent the number of colds now plaguing the public. It's not a reportable disease, and it's not a factor in mortality statistics. But judging from the fact that deaths from pneumonia, bronchitis, influenza fever, and asthma, among others, are high, in January, we know it's a pretty tough month to get through.

It's two to one you have a package of cold viruses in your pocket this minute.

What is the best way to get rid of a cold? Science doesn't have a ready-answer, since evaluation of treatments for the common cold is difficult. Some colds seem to be self-limiting; that is, you get over them in five days or so no matter what treatment you use. Others hang on for weeks. Sometimes if you go to bed with the first symptom of a cold, you can lick it in a day. Other times it doesn't work.

The standard treatment for a cold is to force fluids—drink all the water and fruit juice you can get down. And now a new treatment has been announced that works on an opposite principle—dehydration. This method sounds heroic but, if your own doctor agrees, you might give it a try.

According to Dr. Guy T. Vise of Mississippi who had good results with 96 per cent of patients with this treatment, you must wrap up in a sheet and several blankets so that even head and face are covered for two hours daily in company with hot water bottles or an electric pad. Drink no water. Take only one cup of soup, pure tea or coffee every three hours. A laxative and sometimes other drugs such as aspirin, antihistamines, and antibiotics are given if necessary.

If you don't like this method, try to avoid getting a cold. It's amazing what plenty of rest and diet in a balanced diet, staying away from crowds, and wearing proper clothes will do to discourage infection. It's really worth trying.

Measles, Other Diseases Gain Last Year

The State Health Department has announced there was an increase in infectious diseases in Kentucky last year.

The department said 11 of the 19 common diseases on which records are kept showed increases in the number of cases over 1933.

One reason given for the increase was better reporting of illnesses by doctors and local health departments. Another reason offered was the tendency of many diseases to occur in cycles.

Measles cases soared from 2,276 reported in 1933 to 18,005 last year.

Cases of scarlet fever and "strep" rose from nearly double that reported in 1933 to 1,953 in 1934.

Other increases were shown for mumps, diphtheria, gonorrhea and syphilis, diarrheal diseases and hepatitis.

On the brighter side, records showed a sharp drop in polio from 1935 with 194 cases as compared with 414.

Tuberculosis also declined from 2,183 cases in 1933 to 1,713 last year.

Morehead To Be Area Focal Point For Highway Dept.

About this time last year the News carried a factual story stating that a policy plan was being developed by the Highway Department at Frankfort to make Morehead an engineering office in the state would be consolidated with the state's State Highway Department at Morehead office would go to Flemingsburg.

This brought some concern to many local civic-minded people because the zone engineering office is an asset to the community. This column commented that "we shouldn't protest too hastily—let's wait and see what develops."

We thought at the time that the move was in the right hands and Morehead might save the zone office. In fact, we commented that the plan to consolidate the engineering and district highway offices was not in accord with the recommendation of the broad study conducted by the state's Automotive Safety Council and the federal government.

Now comes the announcement from Frankfort that the zone engineering office at Morehead will not be kept out. In fact, the functions will be greatly expanded. Morehead will hereafter be the focal point of all construction engineering design and other phases.

Not to come the announcement from Frankfort that the zone engineering office at Morehead will not be kept out. In fact, the functions will be greatly expanded. Morehead will hereafter be the focal point of all construction engineering design and other phases.

The move, in simple terms, that Morehead will be the focal point of the highway department outside of the area of the floor space in the present building may be more than doubled, many desirable features in the higher income bracket will move to our town — every day a host of new people will come to Morehead about their highways. The designs and construction of the highway department will make Morehead their working point. All of which adds up to more business for our merchants.

We believe you will, within the year, read in this newspaper that a contract is being let for the long-sought but not yet authorized state police barracks east of Morehead.

Centralized Don't Help Business

Business in Morehead was rated the best in 1934 as the previous year. Merchants agree the centralization was fine, but that it was not the best thing for the city. They are protesting the cash drawer. . . . The cash drawer in Rowan County will probably decrease this year. Tight money plus the principal reasons . . . assets of the principal banks are at an all-time low. . . . If we know anything about the state of the economy, now being compiled, will, we are confident, show Morehead has been the best in the state. . . .

Lot Of Money

When Morehead's band was chosen as one of the two from Kentucky (Eastern at Louisville) to march in the inaugural parade at Washington, January 21, it was perhaps the most important honor that has ever been bestowed on this town. . . . The band members, band mothers and fathers, and all others who have worked so long and so successfully without a great deal of praise or acclaim. . . .

National Attention For Morehead

When you consider the hundreds of high school and other pupils from the nation that are flocking to Morehead to participate in the inauguration of a President, it is not surprising that the inauguration will be seen and heard by, perhaps a half-billion people wherever the world by television, radio, news reel etc. the scope of this honor is not only national, but international.

This brings to mind other national honors that are portrayed in practically every daily newspaper about Boy Scouts and his basketball players. . . . The national ranking system of Dick Daniel ranks Morehead 12th in the nation. . . . The Eagles, following their 119-88 victory over Ohio U. Saturday, are leading the nation in offense, with over 92 points a game. They wrestled the leadership from Ohio U. probably marking the first time that the nation's number one team in scoring, the Eagles, led the nation in scoring record in the NCAA. . . .

Want Their Share Tradition Broken In Australia

The songwriters of the country are now begging for a share of receipts from copyrighted phonographs which play their music. Already, radio broadcasters, hotels and other places of amusement, including dance-halls and most establishments which play musical numbers for profits, are compelled to share their income with composers.

Under a law passed in 1926, jukeboxes are exempt. Last year songwriters attempted to include juke-boxes but Congress failed to write a new law requiring operators of jukeboxes to share their profits with composers.

Although we agree that, in 1930, the copyrighted music-box was usually a penny-arcade phonograph, or a player-piano or some such device, we must admit that composers could receive a fair price for their work, based on records sold, and thus circumvent the necessity of following each record down to the end of the line and trying to get some of the money out of each playing of that record.

Tradition Broken In Australia

American athletes are usually goodwill ambassadors, but in the case of Althea Gibson, a U. S. Negro tennis star, the tradition was rudely broken by her capers in Australia recently.

Playing in the Victoria tournament in Melbourne, shortly after the Olympic Games, Althea lost the title in the finals to Shirley Fry, of St. Petersburg, Florida. Miss Gibson, who won the first of the three sets and was at match point in each of the last two, both of which she lost, was called by the service-line umpire for frequent "fool faults." In the entire match, she was called for fool faults twenty-one times.

All the officials agreed that she was guilty of these faults by jumping over the line a second before she hit the ball with her racket. In spite of the fact all of the officials agreed, Althea couldn't take it.

In fact, she grumbled at the umpire and, finally, as a culmination of bad manners, she angrily swatted a tennis ball into the stands after a fool-fault call. The ball she hit whistled past the ears of Australian Prime Minister Robert Menzies, and struck two feet from him.

This was a highly novel twist to the sportsmanship usually exhibited on tennis courts, and the exhibition by Althea makes one wonder why the U. S. Department spent its money in sending her on a trip overseas last summer as a "goodwill ambassador," if policies were not involved.

Although we realize that athletes can lose their tempers, and that sometimes happens, such exhibitions in foreign countries reflects little credit on the United States, or its athletes.

Already the music business in this country is terribly complicated, and highly involved in share-the-wealth procedure. We are not saying that composers have already received their fair share of profits, but it is to be hoped that they will be adequately compensated without adding to the complex power already wielded by ASCAP.

It would be nice if writers could receive a royalty for a reading of an article, or a book, or anything they composed—each time it was enjoyed by an individual. Articles are something like records. They can be bought and thoroughly read—many times, as one wishes to read them. Records can also be bought, but if purchasers of records must pay a royalty each time they are played, this would soon get to be a pretty complicated business, and we are not sure that it is the solution to the problems of the $50,000 composers of America.

Egg-Sucking Grins

Have you ever noticed that when diplomats get together, especially at the United Nations in New York, and photographers photograph them, they invariably have broad grins in their faces? That sounds simple enough as a statement, but, after thinking about it for a while, we cannot understand exactly why the diplomats always grin so delectably.

The smile is really not a smile, but a really broad egg-sucking grin. The diplomats are about as bad as movie stars in this respect.

We do not wish to elaborate on this, since it is of minor significance at best, but we did wish to get this lick in. Our suggestion to the diplomats is that they turn off those toothpaste smiles, which are very obviously turned on for the photographers, and be business-like—since the world is in a serious situation. We need not all be grim, but we have enough movie stars in Hollywood without having to contend with cookie-pauper glances.

A Race Of Tall People

We have come to a somewhat unimportant, and unsensational, conclusion concerning modern basketball players and modern modern female models, whose clothes merely hang off the bones, and after watching some of the tall-boned, lanky basketball players, who grow in height every year, we believe that two pursuits which demand such angulation might have possibilities.

Such combinations might produce some of the greatest pole-vaulters and Olympic basketball stars for the world of tomorrow. If the British ever run out of tall guards, who are required to be six or six-and-a-half feet tall, this could be the source of a new supply.

More seriously, we often wonder how seven-foot-tall basketball players get around in some of the more modern, compact homes. Actually, they are completely normal, except for their great height, and it would probably be unfair to wish any of today's skinny female models off on them. We take it all back.

Elvis Presley has ordered a million pictures of himself to supply to fans," reports a columnist. This quantity is most likely far more than he will need, as in increasingly large numbers his fans are coming to their senses.

As to Great Britain's snide remarks with reference to our stand in the Snow-Cap matter, it wouldn't be so bad if we only had a few more feet in order to restore harmony among allies, but we have to forgo and finance.

Many a woman not only throws away money during the Christmas season, but she also throws away the result of some 51 weeks of strict dieting.

Many girls get into the movies by lusting in.

Hamilton Scored 51 Points In Leading Eagles To 119-88 Victory Over Ohio U. Bobcats

Steve Hamilton set a new Morehead scoring record Saturday night as the Eagles crushed Ohio University 119-88. Hamilton's 51 points surpassed the old mark of 44.

Morehead hit a blistering 47.6 per cent in getting 44 of 92 field goals in one of their best performances to date. Ohio University, badly provoked, began the leader in scoring this year.

The Eagles grabbed an early lead and were never headed by the Bobcats. Leading 63-41 at halftime, the Bobcats came within 12 points of the Eagles during the second half.

Harlan "Fat" Toile scored 19 and Bernie Shumfessel and J. Thompson gathered 13 points each. Fred Moore and Don Stiff led the Ohio U. scoring parade with 23 and 19 points respectively.

About 3,000 persons—the largest crowd to watch a game in Morehead's new fieldhouse—witnessed the high-scoring contest.

Hamilton's 51 points missed by one the state record of 52 set by Art Speckstra while playing at Western.

Guard Danny Pierce poured in 41 points to lead the Breckinridge Eagles to their fourth win of the season over Sharpsburg Friday evening in the MSC gym.

Pierce's 41 points is an all-time high for a high school player in the old gym.

The Eagles grabbed an early lead but Sharpsburg came back strong in the final minutes of the first period to tie the score 16-16.

However, the Eagles took command in the second period and held a 35-29 half-time margin. With Pierce doing most of the scoring, Breck still commanded a 45-42 third quarter margin.

During the fourth quarter the Eagles were never headed to clinch their victory. Breck hit 55% on their foul shots and scored 25 field goals.

By John D. Alexander Pond construction was the most popular conservation practice in Rowan County in 1956.

The Soil Conservation Service assisted Rowan County farmers in the construction of 61 ponds during the year, 46 of these ponds were constructed since the first of July. Farmers that constructed ponds in November and December were Lawrence Arnett, Jr., Ova Arnett, Earl Murray, Sam Litton, Jr., J. H. Kogley, Kenneth Robinson, Elzie Johnson, Simon Eldridge, Roy L. Scharte, James Roberts and J. W. Black.

More farmers are fencing their ponds and using stock water tanks. This protects the pond against livestock and enables them to have a better stock water supply.

VOTE WITH MINORITY Thronon B. Morton and John Sherman Co-oper, Kentucky's two Republican senators, Friday voted with the minority in the unsuccessful move to revise the Senate rules.

The first requirement of a law enforcement officer is that he always obeys the law. Those who founded the United States would probably be amazed at what it is today.

Many People In Louisville Had Sleeping Sickness

One out of every 16 or 17 Louisvillians may have had sleeping sickness last year without knowing it, a City-County Health Department survey showed this week.

There were 110 known cases in Louisville last summer. Twelve of these died.

But a projection of the health department's studies indicate up to 25,000 people may have had the disease, called encephalitis, in a mild form with no outward symptoms.

Dr. Maurice Kemp, city-county health director, said however that if a person did have the disease without knowing it, there is little or no chance he will ever get it again. He said the antibodies in the blood stream indicate a person against the disease.

A preliminary game will be played between the two "B" teams. The second game will begin at 7:30 p. m.

Want to get your New Year off to a rollicking start? Want to take the wheel of the car that's winning raves from Coast to Coast and back again? Then take the wheel of a 1957 Buick and try the sparkling-new performance team in all autodom.

We mean the team with the highest-powered V8 engine ever to ginger a Buick — and an advanced new Variable Pitch Dynaflow.*

Here, with just a judicious touch of foot to treadle, you get response so obediently instant, so liquid smooth, and so full range in "Drive" — that you've never in your life felt anything like it.

SAFETY REMINDER In fast-moving traffic on turnpikes, parkways and freeways, keep a good distance from the car in front — and a safe margin of good measure. That way you, and every driver behind you, get a bigger margin of safety for braking action.

County Agent Advises Rowan Farmers To Place Orders For Strawberry Plants Now

By Adrian M. Haver
County Ag. Extension Agent

Now is the time to place your orders for strawberry plants if you plan to set out berries in March of this year. The committee in charge of securing plants advised that, if we are to get good disease-free certified plants, it is highly important that one place orders immediately so that those plants can be reserved and placed in cold storage.

The variety recommended still is the Tennessee Beauty set at the rate of four thousand plants per acre. Another one that has shown promise is the Woodman and some folks are using it especially when they are planning to set to the greenhouse. The same number of this variety is used per acre.

Folks desiring to order plants should see H. B. Lacy at the Peoples Bank or Alpha Hutchison at the Citizens Bank. They are in charge of taking orders for delivery by March. Cost of plants set will largely determine the yield of the crop.

SOCIAL SECURITY LAW

There have been some changes in the Social Security laws which affect Rowan County farmers.

Farmers whose gross income from farming is not more than $1,800 can report as net income from self-employment, the actual net earnings of two-thirds of their gross income, provided the net income is either method amounts to $400 or more. Farmers who gross more than $1,800 but have net earnings of less than $1,200 may use either their actual net earnings or $1,200 in figuring their Social Security tax.

Farm owners who cashrent or share-rent their farm land to others are now covered by Social Security, provided the owners "participate materially" in the management of the farm business in the annual work and expense of crop and livestock production.

Soil bank payments generally are to be considered as farm income in payment of Social Security taxes. However, if a land owner does not participate materially in the farm business, management or work on the farm, the soil bank payments would not be included as self-employment income in figuring Social Security tax payments.

Change effective after January 1, 1957 are:

Widows age 62, whether eligible for Social Security benefits from self-employment, as a wife, or as a survivor of a self-employed person, may now qualify for benefit payments at age 62 instead of age 65.

Benefits from disability insurance will be payable to insured persons between the ages of 50 and 65, who are totally disabled and who meet the other requirements for such payment, effective July 1, 1957.

The Social Security tax rate has been increased to two and one-fourth percent each for em-

TOBACCO STALKS

Don't forget to spread those tobacco stalks on a growing crop of corn. If unable to do so now, keep them in the dry so as to save the plant food which they contain since the plant food is very soluble in water and leeches very fast when exposed to rain and snow.

SOIL TESTS

Take soil samples now from fields that you plan to fertilize for crop this year. Don't guess or guess what you will crop and fertilize accordingly until you get your tests.

FARM AND HOME WICK

As in past years, the Wick and Home Wick will begin in the latter part of this month and continue through February. Exact dates are January 29-30 and 31 and February 1. Keep these dates open and as seed programs are available, pick out the date that you want to go and make plans to attend.

FARM RECORD BOOKS

Farm Record Books are now available at the Extension Office for those who need them. This provides a very good means for farmers to keep a detailed record of their farm business, why they stop by the office and get one as you can know from your business is progressing.

January is also a very good time to make plans for additional land during the coming year. As early as possible, information for farm commodities for 1957 is available. If you need any of this information in making these adjustments, stop by the Extension Office.

68 New Plants Located In Kentucky

Kentucky obtained 68 new industrial plants in 1956 and "this new record should be equally prosperous," Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield said.

The governor made the statement in announcing plans to construct an $18 million plant at Somerset. The project is subject to final approval of the company's board of directors.

The 85,000 square-foot building will be used for the manufacture of glass reflectors and lenses for automobile sealed-beam headlights. The plant probably will employ about 130 persons at capacity.

Farm And Home Week
 Make your plans now to attend Farm and Home Week in Lexington, Jan. 28-Feb. 1. The program has been announced and will be of interest to everyone. Some of the special attractions to all are on Tuesday—all teachers and leaders of children from 9-12 are to be told of ways to improve their teaching. Sunday grandparents are urged to attend.

Wednesday include a health program and a music program. The master homemaker will be recognized. Thursday—the electronic oven will be demonstrated. There will also be a county fair workshop, rural church leaders, 4-H council workshop. If you are interested in attending these days, contact your extension agents for transportation.

Meat Needed
 Winter Foods
 High on the list of much needed foods for this winter are raw strawberries, cabbage, raw salad greens, raw green peppers. All of these foods contain vitamin C or ascorbic acid. Many families have colds during the winter months that could be prevented by a few simple changes in the diet. Dieting is often thought of as being unattractive but this is not true. Vitamin C, one vitamin that helps us prevent colds, and resist other infections. The foods containing this vitamin are strawberries, raspberries (raw and frozen), grapefruit, tomatoes, and juice, cantaloupe, broccoli, cabbage, raw green peppers and raw salad greens. The citrus fruits, cantaloupe and strawberries contain the most vitamin C. Your body does not store this vitamin which means we need some of these foods each day.

One way to plan plenty of vitamin C for your family is to set out strawberries which you can freeze for year around use. This is a very easy way to get such an important vitamin.

Our agricultural leaders tell us that there is about the same amount of work and more money in strawberry production than in corn. From one-half to one acre of strawberries a family can net enough money to buy that new freezer that will protect vitamin C.
