More Money Available For Farm Loans

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has announced that an additional $35 million has been made available for farm operating loans.

At the same time, Secretary Freeman said USDA's Farmers Home Administration has been instructed to "review its regulations, and take every step within its authority to meet farm credit needs."

To the extent that farm loan policies and available funds can prevent it, no qualified family farmer will be required to give up farming because of his inability to finance his 1951 operations," the secretary said.

The volume of loans made by the FHA so far this year is running 20 per cent ahead of last year. As a result of the increased demand, the supply of funds for new borrowers is nearly exhausted in about 17 states.

The $35 million came from a contingency fund made available by Congress for the 1951 fiscal year. Previously, $197,100,000 had been made available for this type of credit for the 1950 fiscal year.

Of Feb. 10, approximately $150 million of the $197.1 million had been loaned and most of the remainder committed.

Outlines Procedure

In announcing measures being taken to meet credit needs, Secretary Freeman said "We expect that the expansion of agricultural credit services can be carried out without additional personnel, and with no increase in administrative expense. Additional loans will be made available to farmers, but this will not result in any actual increase in expenditures of the federal government since borrowers of the Farmers Home Administration have a superb record of repaying their loans."

Farm Income Off

"Over the past nine years the total real net income of farm families from farming has dropped approximately one-fourth. Farm prices have dropped to around four-fifths of the parity level. Faced with declining prices and income, many beginning and other farmers have been financially hard pressed. In many cases they have exhausted their regular line of credit and thus in 1951 are facing the threat of having to give up the struggle against adversity. They have suffered through no fault of their own."

Explains Aims

"It is the intention to reverse the downward trend in farm income and enable efficient family farmers to earn and get a parity of income. When the new farm program becomes effective, those efficient family farmers will again be made good commercial credit risks. It would be unthinkable to allow many efficient farm families to give up the struggle now because they are unable to obtain credit needed to finance 1951 operations."

Farm operating loans are made by the Farmers Home Administration to farmers who can get, obtain adequate credit elsewhere. The funds may be used to pay for equipment, livestock, feed, seed, fertilizer, tractor fuel and other farm and home operating needs and to refinance chattel mortgages.

"We in the South will feel the problem of increased enrollment and increased need for higher education with a special urgency. In the race for accomplishment, our region is starting from farther back than most of the other regions of the nation. And may I say to all of you in the South... we must spend in this region more money for education than we can afford." Former Governor Luther Hodges of North Carolina, U.S. Secretary of Commerce.

Eagles And Eastern Tie For OVC Lead

Packed houses are assured twice next week when the Eagles of Morehead square off with the Maroons of Eastern to decide the championship of the Ohio Valley Conference.

Following Morehead's hair-raising 100-94 victory over Western Tuesday, in which Grady Williams, the mighty mule from Dwarf, Ky., poured in 41 big points for Bob Laughlin, the Eagles and Maroons are deadlocked for the coveted title.

Their next match at Morehead Tuesday (Feb. 28) at 7:30 p. m. and in Richmond Saturday, Mar. 4.

Here's the tie as the race draws to the wire—

✓ If either wins both tilts next week the championship is theirs with a 10-2 skion.

✓ If they split, as most experts predict, the OVC race will likely end in a three-way tie as Western is expected to annex its "no remaining league titles at East Tennessee, Saturday and against Middle Tennessee in Bowling Green in the season's finale.

Morehead State College's business office—today—placed tickets for Tuesday's game on sale. Morehead has 5,000 seats in its Frickhouse and all are expected to be occupied.

The story is different in Richmond. The Maroon's gym seats only 3,000 and there was speculation today that only 50, or so, would be paraded to Morehead fans. Under OVC rules Eastern must provide Morehead with 25 tickets, but can put the others on sale at Richmond on a first-come, first-served basis.

Should the tie be tied a play-off on a neutral floor is necessary to determine the OVC representative in the NCAA tourney. However, generally reliable sources reveal that Morehead will receive an NIT bid to Madison Square Garden, and Bob Laughlin may accept that and let Western and Eastern battle it out for the NCAA spot.

The OVC standings

Eastern	8	2	.800
Western	7	3	.700

TOURIST BUYING CURB
President Kennedy asked Congress to cut the amount of foreign goods which American tourists can bring back to the U.S. without paying customs duties. Kennedy proposed that the present $200 maximum be cut to $100 to discourage tourists from buying costly souvenirs with dollars which foreigners could use to buy American goods.

Washington Arch, with NYU's Main Building in Background

"A Private University in the Public Service"—such is an impressive motto for New York University, one of the nation's most outstanding and famous institutions of higher learning.

Chartered in 1831, New York University is independent, non-sectarian, and receives no city or state tax aid. It is thus the largest private university in the country, with some 40,000 students at six separate centers in Manhattan and the Bronx. Within these six centers are 15 schools, colleges and divisions, utilizing a physical plant which has an estimated 1960 replacement value of $141,000,000. A development plan now in operation is expected to nearly double the value of the University's six centers by 1970.

More than half a million persons have attended classes at NYU and students come from all 50 states and from 99 foreign countries. But NYU educational activities are not limited to Manhattan and environs. In Puerto Rico, the School of Education offers graduate work to 250 teachers each summer and conducts a summer workshop for teachers from the United States. GI DEPENDENT CHANGE

Everyone in Washington seems to feel President Kennedy's letter of the order to cut down the number of military dependents abroad.

It is expected that the order for Kennedy's reversal of former President Eisenhower's controversial order to bring home overseas service families to cut down the outflow of U.S. dollars and gold.

J. F. K. Asks Federal Aid For Education

President Kennedy has sent Congress a program asking for federal aid to education from first grade through college.

The President's proposal is the toughest a hot and heavy fight.

Opponents of federal aid insist it isn't really necessary, and that federal aid would lead inevitably to federal control of education.

Backers of federal aid say local school districts can no longer depend on the already heavy local property tax, and that any possible federal control can be avoided by letting the states handle the money.

Kennedy has made it clear he favors some form of federal grant to the states, for classroom construction and other raising teachers' salaries.

He also has suggested that federal money should be made available for college scholarships.

Congress never has passed a general aid-to-education bill.

A footbridge across a roaring stream, a cabin near it against the side of the hill—this might be a scene from earlier times. It isn't of course. It's not far from this picturesque spot to paved highways and all the other conveniences of modern civilization. This photo shows a footbridge across the Spokane River which permits picnickers at Riverside State Park to select a luncheon site on either side of the river. The view is a short distance upriver from the bridge and Pickett's Peak formation in Riverside State Park, miles northwest of Spokane, Washington.

Taxpayer Is Only One That Doesn't Benefit

By J. E. Stanford
(Ky. Farm Bureau Fed.)

Judging from the news out of Washington, just about everyone is scheduled to get a much larger slice of pie from Uncle Sam in the months ahead except the taxpayer. He must dig deeper in his pocket than ever to pay for the "tax eaters' carnival" that seems to be in the making.

Early in January we were told the prospects were good for a small federal surplus plus a probable moderate tax cut, but now comes the word that we must dig up several billion dollars more than was spent last year, or else hike our huge national debt to take care of the extra expenditures, unless Congress says "no." And the average taxpayer will not say "no" unless his people clearly indicate they want it.

A great part of the proposed increased government expenditure will go for a big increase in unemployment pay, aid to public schools, compulsory health insurance for the aged, relief program for depressed areas, and increased aid to foreign nations. Prospects are that these and some other measures, such as raising additional taxes will be warmly debated in Congress, but may be defeated in the form in which they reach Congress.

We are not opposed to increased taxation when it is a real need, but feel that every effort should be made to get 100 cents of service out of each tax dollar. If inefficiency, waste and graft were removed from expenditure of the tax dollar, it would mean a tremendous reduction each year in the nation's tax bill. One of our greatest needs in government at all levels is to get the "fat" out of all appropriations for whatever purpose.

At present, the average taxpayer shells out about 35 per cent of his income for federal, state and local taxes. Around 25 per cent of his income goes to the U.S. Government. That does not include special taxes in the form of sales tax, licenses, permits, etc. But there is still another source of taxation that hits everyone almost daily—the hidden tax.

When we fill our tank with gas, pay the phone bill, buy a tire, look at cigarettes, or a watch, Uncle Sam takes a big bite out of our money. On a loaf of bread there are 200 hidden taxes; on a can of milk, 100. And the above mentioned taxes are only a beginning.

It seems the above information should prompt you to write your Congressman and Senators to vote against all tax measures that can not be fully justified.

Those who violate the law should not object to the penalty.

Eagles Start Spring Grid Workouts

Morehead State College started spring football drills Monday as fair weather prevailed.

The Eagles' successful young coach, Guy Penix, announced this week that his schedule was in and from Monday for 20 days of an intense work.

"We will stress defense this year," said Penix, "and I'm going to be looking for replacement players at center, quarterback and fullback. If we find boys who really want to play at these positions, we could have an outstanding football team next year."

Penix will have only four seniors in spring drills, 12 juniors, 18 sophomores and two freshmen. "From this group," Penix said, "we expect to have two teams of equal ability."

Spring drills will be concluded on March 23, with the annual intra-mural game.

The roster for spring drills includes: Quarterbacks: junior Mike Brown;

Development Program Is Long Range

The first staff meeting of the group of specialists who will be responsible for helping carry out the long-range University of Kentucky sponsored Eastern Kentucky Resource Development Program was held at Quicksand, Feb. 15.

The purpose of the meeting was for the specialists to get acquainted with each other, to hear reports of preliminary findings of the group of the group who have already been working throughout the area, and to plan for a future course of action.

As Program Chairman Keith Kelley explained, the project, which is expected to assist in elevating the 30-county area to a higher social and economic level and consequently increase the overall standard of living, will require large amounts of imagination, initiative, and teamwork. "It is new and it is different," he said, "and it contains an unusual package of technical skills grouped for application to one program in one place."

Teamwork," Kelley continued, "may be an overworked word, but it is here." He added that it must be thought of as just the specialists working together as a team, but must include the people, leaders of the area, all other agencies and organizations, and the whole state.

"At all times," he said, "we must maintain contact with all departments of the University of Kentucky and draw upon their resources. Each specialist will be in close cooperation, not only with each other, but with related departments at UK and at Frankfort. He reiterated that the total resources of the University will be behind the project, and will be utilized if success was to be attained.

Kelley emphasized that two things are now being stressed in the area: the formation in each county of an organization composed of representatives of all state and federal agencies serving the county; and (2) if not already in existence, a countywide organization of citizens from each county, which would be concerned with planning and executing action programs for progress and development in the county. It would be expected that the specialists would work closely with these organizations, inquired as to how a county may take advantage of the educational services available through the program should be channeled to him, he said, through the local Extension office.

It was also brought out at this meeting that Eastern Kentucky Resource Development Program is not, in any sense of the word, a "give-away program" and all means should be used to keep it from being assumed as such. Rather, it is an educational program designed to furnish a variety of the best techniques, who will evaluate situations, locate "pockets of opportunity" and aid and encourage the people to take advantage of what they have and make the most of it. The program was entered into on the premise that people want to help themselves and will do it to give a reasonable chance.

The specialists were also advised to help dispel any idea that tangible results can be expected in a few weeks, or even months. The program is of necessity a long-range project because such a situation as exists in this area cannot be alleviated materially overnight. The social, economic and educational circumstances that exist have been building up over decades and cannot possibly be remedied in weeks.

Another conclusion reached at this meeting was that county Extension workers within the area will be key figures in the program within their individual counties.

In explaining the plan of work, Kelley advised the specialists to think constantly and search for new ideas of approach. "Don't discard any idea that may occur," he said, "until its merits can be found. Keep alert to pockets of opportunity and when one is found, report it to the specialist in whose particular field the opportunity happens to fall."

LESS INAUGURAL EXPENSE

Representative Gross (R-Iowa) suggested that there should be less local and expense for Presidential inaugurations. Gross, in a report to his district, and the gala staged in an effort to raise money for the Democrats "was scarcely designed to add to the seriousness and freedom that ought to attend the inaugural of a President."

It is pointed out that the cost of the inaugural will never be known because so many government agencies were called on to provide services.

FESTIVE ATMOSPHERE 100 YEARS AGO

Jefferson Davis Warned On Inauguration Day That War Between States Was Close

For the first time the band proudly played the soon-to-be immortal notes of "Dixie." Thousands cheered. But the thin, somber man who took the presidential oath, Jefferson Davis, seemed the only one to realize that gay day was a day for tears, not cheers.

By John T. Hamner (United Press International)

It was moments before noon, a hundred years ago Saturday, when the man came out of the Exchange Hotel in Montgomery, Ala., to go up the hill and meet the hour. The shouts that greeted Jefferson Davis as he entered his carriage to go to his inauguration as first president of the Confederate States of America set off a chain of noisy celebration that carried over into the early hours of the next day. Bands played, fireworks and cannon sounded, people shouted, crowds rushed about for a glimpse of the man who was to lead a new nation.

Davis himself was one of the very few in Montgomery, Alabama, that day who grasped the seriousness of the struggle that lay ahead. In his inaugural address he pointed at some of the clouds on the Confederate horizon. But all other recorded statements were confident, exuberant.

The thousands who crowded Market Street and the capital grounds were a testimony to the personal popularity of the Mississippi hero of the Mexican War and former U. S. congressman, senator and secretary of war.

Davis had been elected provisional president of the Confederacy by Congress on Feb. 9. His long-way around trip from his plantation home near Vicksburg ended late Saturday night, Feb. 16. Inauguration day had been selected only the day he arrived.

But despite the late announcement, a crowd generally estimated at 10,000, including a large press corps, was on hand.

It was a warm, sunny day. Men were used in top hats or their elaborate militia uniforms. Women were in their finest, and many had fancy bonnets or parasols "to protect their delicate viages from the rays of the sun." The Montgomery, Ala. said "the principal thoroughfares were crowded with equipages filled with beautiful women, and brave men, and a like commodity thronged the sidewalks."

Herman Arnold's Band led the parade, followed by the military escort of five Alabama and Georgia Militia units.

Next came the president-elect's carriage, drawn by six matched iron grey horses. With Davis was Vice President Alexander H. Stephens, who had taken his oath the week before.

Other carriages, in order, held the congressional committee, representatives of the State of Alabama, the City of Montgomery, non-Confederate Southern States, other Confederate States, judges of the state supreme courts, and clergymen. Finally there were "citizens generally in carriages" and "citizens generally afoot."

As Davis settled in his carriage, the ordinance squad of the Columbia Guards fired a salute, and the procession moved off. Arnold's band whipped up excitement to a frenzy with the first public playing of "Dixie" as a march. The people, "all on tip-toe to see the president-elect and the voluntary soldiery," roared a welcome. But no contemporary newspaper account tells of Davis' reaction to the cheers.

As the last carriage passed, the people fell in behind. Inside the capitol, the Confederate Congress had just approved the final printing of the provisional constitution, and ceremoniously signed it. One bill was introduced. The minutes show, "congress voted to go into secret session" for the formal presentation of the president-elect.

Davis was escorted into the capitol by Robert Barnwell Rhett, the fiery South Carolina secessionist who would not long contain his bitterness toward Davis. Inside the house chamber, Vice President Stephens, another impending enemy, flanked Davis for the walk down the aisle. After a brief speech of greeting,

Davis was escorted back to the West Portico of the capitol. Members of congress took seats before the inaugural stand, on which lay a wreath of red, white and blue flowers cradling a Bible.

The Episcopal Rev. Mr. Basil Manly bespoke divine guidance for the president and the Confederacy. Then Congress President Howell Cobb administered the oath as prescribed by the just-approved constitution.

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the Confederate States of America, and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the constitution thereof." On his own, Davis added, "So help me God."

Then the man who was to lead a new nation made his first formal and official pronouncement of policy.

His short message was well received. Even in the North the New York Herald termed its delivery "eloquent," its tone "temperate," its meaning "firm."

Davis sought to reassure the Union that "there can be but little rivalry between ours and any manufacturing or navigating community, such as the northeastern states of the American Union. It must follow, therefore, that mutual interests will invite to good will and kind offices on both parts."

But there was nothing of softness in his remarks. "We have entered upon the career of independence and it must be indelibly pursued." And he pointed to the possibility of war. "If, however, passion or lust for domination should cloud the judgment or influence the ambition of those (Northern) states, we must prepare to meet the emergency and maintain, by the final arbitration of the sword, the position we have assumed among the nations of the earth."

If war should come, he added, the North must bear the blame, and the "suffering of millions will bear testimony to the folly and wickedness of our aggressors."

Not once did he mention slavery.

Welfare—Although considerable progress has been made, much remains to be accomplished. Kentucky probably now leads the nation in mental health, has, within the year, raised the food allowance in welfare institutions from 35 cents to 70 cents; the last Legislature increased operating appropriation from $8 million to $12 million.

New Industry—In the past year Kentucky has attracted new industry to the state under the leadership of 14 Governor Wilson Wyatt.

Morehead College President Adron Doran, in introducing the Governor, pointed out that the last Legislature, on Combs' recommendation, increased the appropriation for the institution by $202,480 for the 1960-61 fiscal year and $287,000 for 1961-62.

Governor Combs said: "Your President will attest that I have given all possible aid to Morehead College. . . and I predict the time is not far off when you will have here a great university—one of the best in the entire United States."

Rowan Democratic Women Making Plans For Year

Rowan County's Democratic Women's Club—started by election of a Democratic governor and president—will make plans Monday evening for coming general elections.

President May Williams has called a meeting, with all Democratic women invited, at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. Russell Brown.

Mrs. Williams said the group plans a potluck dinner to honor all candidates who have filed for county office. Announcements of the State Convention in Louisville in September will be made.

She emphasized the club will play no part in the primary election and that every candidate will be invited and given equal opportunity at the potluck affair. The club is active only in general elections.

The Rowan club has gained bravely in membership.

Morton Thinks Kennedy Will Be Partisan

Republican National Chairman Thorton B. Morton predicted Saturday President Kennedy is going to be "extremely partisan in his administration of our affairs."

Morton, a Kentucky senator, said the quality of Kennedy's appointment to second line jobs "hasn't held up" to the caliber of his Cabinet choices.

He believes these second level officials will be "much more political" than those of cabinet rank. Morton said on a television program taped with Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.) for New York stations.

Morton said some "persons with either very little background for the job in question or people who—as in the case of two of the designers that I understand will be sent up to the Federal Power Commission are completely oriented one way before going on a judicial body. I mean completely out-and-out public power advocates."

He did not name the two he said he expects to be nominated to the FTC. Nor did he identify others he meant.

Dry Weather Is Plant Bed Forecast

Kentucky tobacco farmers were warned this week that current winter weather is following the same pattern as in 1960.

Last year, at plant bed time ground was unusually dry. The spring also was dry and plant beds suffered considerably. At planting time in 1960, there was a tremendous shortage of good plants for setting out.

So, says Ira Massie, UK Cooperative Extension Service specialist, a similar situation could develop this year. That is, unless the date gets general rains in the near future.

Plant beds now are being prepared in many areas, he noted. Massie advised:

1. Present conditions will have much bearing on plant bed making and management.
2. If the desired rains have not come soon, plow the bed sites and use burning, steaming or chemicals to control weed seeds. But, if the ground is still dry, put the beds as soon as seed is planted if the weather continues dry, water the beds the day the seed are put in. Use water as needed thereafter to keep the surface moisture constant. This will help germination of seed, growth and development of young plants.
3. Use the recommended amounts of 13-6-4 fertilizer. Avoid heavy applications of such fertilizers as 5-10-5, 6-12-6 or ammonium nitrate.

Massie noted it is "essential" to avoid the plant shortages that marked the 1960 tobacco production year. Proper measures (as listed above) can prevent this, he said.

List Rowan County With Five Doctors

Are doctors in relatively short supply in Rowan County? How many people per doctor are there locally? How does this compare with the ratio in other counties in the United States?

A 20-page report by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, released recently, gives a picture of how the 24,823 active, non-Federal physicians in the nation are distributed geographically.

As would be expected, there is a great concentration of them in the large urban centers and a scarcity in the outlying areas. The report, based on 1959 data, shows that the supply of doctors, in proportion to population, is actually falling behind in most sections.

Rowan County is listed with five physicians, not counting those employed by the Federal government. All of them were available for the individual needs of the community.

Related to the population of the county, this amounts to one doctor in private practice for every 2,546 people. In the United States as a whole, there is one for each 830 people.

The medical distribution study shows each county in the nation in its appropriate group, such as "adjacent to metropolitan area," "isolated rural" and so forth to enable comparisons to be made among like types of counties.

In Rowan County's group, the average is 81 active doctors, exclusive of Federal doctors, per 100,000 population.

Locally, the ratio is smaller than that. 20 doctors per 100,000.

A Johns Hopkins University study reveals that American medical schools will have to increase their output by 50 per cent between now and 1975, just to keep abreast of the population growth. It means graduating 11,000 students a year instead of the present 7,400, it states.

Today, most parts of the country are well below the minimum standard set by the Surgeon General's office for adequate health protection, 122 doctors per 100,000 people.

Old Homes Prove Lure To Tourists

Kentucky's historic homes have long been a mirror of the political and social life of her pioneer forefathers. Two of the homes—Old Kentucky Home at Bardonia and William Whitley House near Stanford—have been perpetuated as official state shrines in memory of two legendary figures in Kentucky history, Colonel William Whitley and the immortal Stephen Collins Foster.

"My Old Kentucky Home, symbol of Kentucky hospitality and gracious southern living, is one of the most popular historical shrines in America. Since the days before the Civil War, the estate of Federal Hill has been known as My Old Kentucky Home. It was here that Judge John Rowan opened his doors to a talented but unknown cousin, Stephen Collins Foster, where he received inspiration to write My Old Kentucky Home and other immortal southern folk songs.

There are to many human beings under the impression that they have to live somebody else's life for them.

The new club was approved January of this year. During this semester they will accept new pledges for next fall.

Colonel William Whitley built the first brick house west of the Alleghenies between 1787 and 1794. Colonel Whitley's name became legendary in the West as a pioneer scout and Indian fighter.

"The historic home was named 'Sportsman's Hill,' because it overlooked the site of the first race in America. Its use as a protective fort against Indian raids won the home the popular title of 'Guardian of the Wilderness Road.' Theodore Roosevelt, in his book, 'The Winning of the West,' described the house as the center of re-

Calling the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation the "voice of agriculture" in the state, Gov. Bert Combs has proclaimed Feb. 20-26 Farm Bureau Week in Kentucky. Agriculture, the Governor pointed out, is the number one industry in Kentucky, and its organized spokesman, the Farm Bureau, represents more than 75,000 rural and farm families in 115 county farm bureaus. In the Governor's office for the signing of the proclamation are (left to right) E. W. Kesler, assistant executive secretary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau; E. S. Wood, Farm Bureau director of field services; Governor Combs and John W. Koon, executive secretary of the Farm Bureau.

23 Farm Ponds Are Planned In Rowan

By Billy K. Benson

The spring sign for ACP assistance has ended and Rowan County farmers requested stock water ponds more than any other practice. They plan to build 23 ponds between now and May 30. Soil waterways were second in number of requests, with 16 planned before May 30. Four farmers have signed up for open ditch drainage and three plan diversion channels. One the drainage job is already staked and ready to be constructed.

One terrace system is scheduled also. Rowan County needs more diversion channels, open ditches, and terraces than it is building. Tree orders are coming along nicely. With a few more orders, the Rowan County Soil Conservation District goal of 150,000 will be met. Plan to weed track plant your corn this spring. Planting time will be here before you know it.

The art of cooking does not end with the preparation of plain food.

Rugs, Carpets Should Receive Best Of Care

Rugs and carpets are expensive investments that need the best of care to give good performance and beauty for years. Marian Bartlett, UK Extension specialist in home furnishings, lists these care tips from the National Rug Institute.

Use a rug cushion which makes your rug or carpet firmer to the eye and more pleasing to the step. It saves wear on the floor covering, too; a cushion is very important on rough or uneven floors. The edges of stairs also take heavy blows; a cushion will help protect carpeting here, too.

Miss Bartlett gives another suggestion for protecting carpet wear on stair edges. Lay the carpeting with an extra foot of length folded under against one or two risers at the top of the stairs. Then shift the carpet down an inch or two when you feel the carpet on the stair edges needs a rest—before, not after, it shows wear. You can make several shifts before new stair carpeting is needed. As shifts are made, the excess carpet at the foot of the stairs can be folded under, against the lowest riser.

If the carpet pile gets crushed because of furniture pressure or walking, try a steam iron or a hot iron over a damp cloth on the spots. Be sure not to press down on the iron, she warns. This helps correct corners that curl, too; after the treatment, brush up the spots gently.

Does your rug show an apparent change of color over here and there? This is called shading and results from feet pressing the tufts in different directions; light reflects in varying degrees from these tufts. Solid color carpets and those with wide expanses of color show shading more than patterned styles; sometimes, shading is desirable, as it gives an interesting lagging effect on a solid color carpet.

The better you keep tufts in order—going in the same direction of the pile—the less shading will appear. Run the sweeper or vacuum cleaner with the direction of the pile, she recommends. Professional cleaning often will help shading, too.

Save your carpeting labels, Miss Bartlett recommends. The labels will tell you how to replace tufts or repair tape bindings. The pattern number and grade name of your floor covering will be valuable if you must check with the manufacturer for help or advice on your rug.

Practically any girl who knows how to cook can find a man who knows how to eat.

The way to get business is to get out and get it; not sit down and wait for it to come in.

$50 Million Available For Farm Loans

An additional $50 million has been made available to the Farmers Home Administration for farm housing loans, R. Gay Blair, the agency's Rowan County supervisor, announced this week.

He said that the new loan funds assure an adequate supply of this type of credit for eligible farm families during the balance of the fiscal year. Loans made so far this year plus those being processed had practically exhausted the funds previously available.

Farm Housing loans are made throughout the rural areas of the United States. The loans provide farm families with an opportunity to acquire an adequate home and efficient service buildings.

Applications for farm housing loans may be made at the local office of the Farmers Home Administration, Blair said. The loans bear a 4 per cent interest and are repayable over periods up to 30 years.

The major demands in the county for new construction are for modernization of farm homes, and most of the funds are for new construction. Improvements financed with the loans include the installation of central heating, pressure water supply systems, the addition of bathrooms and the modernization of kitchens.

Many local farmers also use the loans to adjust their service buildings to the changing requirements of agriculture. A frequent example in this area, Blair said, is the conversion of obsolete dairy facilities by the construction of a modern milking parlor and loafing barn.

To be eligible a farmer must own a farm that will annually produce for sale or home use at least $400 worth of commodities, based on 1944 prices and be of sufficient value to adequately secure the loan. In addition, he must lack the resources needed to obtain credit elsewhere and have sufficient income to pay farm operating and family living expenses and meet payments when due on his debts.

Wolfe Becomes Assistant To Road Commissioner

Thomas H. Wolfe, Louisville, a former Assistant Director of Purchases in the Kentucky Department of Finance, has been named as Executive Assistant to Highway Commissioner Henry Ward.

In announcing Wolfe's appointment, Ward said, "His first specific assignment will be to make a study of the department's purchasing policies and procedures and, in particular, to represent me in re-organizational studies of the functions which are now carried out through the Division of Equipment. He has full authority to represent me in making any inquiries or taking any other action necessary to carry forward this assignment."

"As Assistant Director of the Division of Purchases in the Department of Finance, Wolfe had major responsibility for procuring materials, supplies and equipment for the Department of Highways," said Ward. "Wolfe was with the Department of Finance from 1931 through most of 1935."

For the past four years Wolfe has served as Louisville branch manager for an equipment distribution firm.

Wolfe worked part time as an engineering aide in the Highway Research Laboratory in Lexington while a student at the University of Kentucky. He earned his BS degree in Commerce in 1948.

A naval aviator during World War II, Wolfe is married and has three children. He resides at 360 Ridgeway Ave., Louisville.

SAYS . . .

Dear Mister Editor:
It's a great pity some of them Washington column writers don't cover our season at the country store. They'd get more horse sense than they get from a whole session of the Congress.

Saturday night, for instance, Ed Doublet unveiled a plan that would help a heap of folks out of debt. He called to mind how them Federal income tax officials come out several year ago with colored stripes on envelopes to let the public know how much income tax a feller was paying. If he was reporting $10,000 a year, for instance, he got a envelope with a yellow large on it, so's the folks in the post office, the mail man and all his neighbors would know about it. The politicians made the tax folks cut it out, but Ed allows as how the idea is sound as a 1960 dollar.

Take the merchants, for instance. If a feller is a couple months behind on his bill, let the merchant send him an envelope with two big red stripes on it. If he's behind three months, send him one with three red stripes. And when he gets a whole year behind, send him one printed red all over with his name in black. Ed allowed as how people could tell just exactly by how everily else was getting along and that folks would start paying their bills a heap better.

Zeke Grubb allowed that the system was good, would cover about everything except a woman's age. Clem Webster said they ain't no system to cover this situation, that about the only way you can find out a woman's age for shore is to ask her mother-in-law.

Bug Hookum was lamenting that while Ed's system might help a heap, they ain't no cure for debt in this country unless we do away with automobiles. Bug claims we need millions of people in this country that ain't doing nothing but supporting their automobile. Out the way, for instance, Bug says most folks keep up the payments on their car and if they is anything left, they pay their taxes and get some groceries. Got any of them kind over in town, Mister Editor?

Well, I see by the papers where President Kennedy aims to get a team of folks and train 'em in the field of promoting peace and disarmament. Up to now, allows Kennedy, them that's been handling that department ain't had no more training in it than a hotted dog has pointing a covey of quail. But the Prime Minister of England says he ain't going to follow suit, he's going to stick to the one-man system. I reckon he figures that he can handle about all the peace and disarmament we got at present.

Yours truly,
Claig Sprout

THE WORLD OUTDOORS

If you are a boating enthusiast, you won't find a better time than night about now to inspect that boat of yours that has been in storage. Whether it's a skiff or a cabin cruiser, it will require some attention before it is ready for the water this spring. Maybe you are one of the wise ones who made periodic checkups during the storage period, but just to be on the safe side, give it another thorough inspection when you have some spare time on your hands. It might save you trouble later on.

If you are planning to take up boating for the first time this coming season, you might well spend some time talking to experienced boaters and learning something about safety on the waterways.

Deep water enthusiasts should know all about buoy. Small stream boaters should learn the rules, too, about such things as overtaking or passing another boat, who has the right-of-way, the capacity of different size boats and motors. But we can only scratch the surface in this column space. Get yourself a bluebook and study—no you will be ready when crocuses herald the return of boating weather.

Some 40 scientists met recently at Rutgers University to talk about blackbirds. The session was called a "blackbird degradation conference" but the spokesmen said, "We're not trying to control blackbirds, but to control their degradations."

The problem of blackbirds and starlings has gone past the nuisance stage. The birds have been responsible for everything from ruinage of a cornfield to jet plane accidents.

One scientist theorized that starlings may not just happen to be in the path of a jet. It's possible, he suggested, that they make the jet for a hook and attack it.

Postmaster General J. Edward Day said he intended to remove many of the high-salaried postal executives named to regional offices created by the last Administration. He charged that the Republic had filled the jobs "on the purely political basis" but "we are concerned with persons responsive to and a part of this Administration."

THIS WEEK AT . . . NOREHEAD STATE COLLEGE

By Ray Herneback
(Public Relations Director)

The January issue of the Kentucky School Journal ran a seven-page interpretive article on Morehead State College entitled, "Break Through at Morehead State College." One section of the article dealt with the recent reorganization of the academic programs and I wish to share it with you this week.

The article said, "As a means of dealing, academically, with soaring enrollments, the Morehead staff has reorganized itself completely during the past two years. Seven divisions have been created, enabling the administration to release secondaries, responsibilities, provide for more coordination of work in related areas, and thereby strengthen the various study areas."

The areas encompassed in these divisions are: Applied Arts; Fine Arts; Health, Physical and Recreation; Education and Athletics; Languages and Literature; Science and Mathematics; Social Studies; and Professional Education.

The Division of Applied Arts was formed by a consolidation of all the vocational areas: agriculture, commerce, home economics and industrial arts.

The departments concerned with art, drama, music and speech, have been combined to form the Division of Fine Arts.

The Department of Health Education has been added to the major area of physical education, resulting in the organization of the Division of Health, Physical and Recreation Education and Athletics.

Special foreign language study, with majors in French, Spanish and Latin, has been added to the traditional English major in the Division of Languages and Literature.

The area of biology, chemistry, physics, and mathematics, make up the Division of Science and Mathematics.

Economics and sociology, together with geography, history, political science and philosophy, are the departmental areas combined to form the new Division of Social Studies.

The training of teachers is the primary responsibility of the newly-formed Division of Professional Education. This division includes the 12-grade Breckinridge Training School.

In addition to the reorganization program which resulted in the formation of divisions, several other forward-looking steps have been taken to insure a stronger academic program.

Pre-professional programs have been established in the fields of medicine, nursing, law, dentistry, forestry, pharmacy, engineering, medical technology and veterinary medicine.

A step forward, taken at the beginning of the current semester, involved the establishment of an honors program. This program provides gifted students with special opportunities for experiences, challenges, and intellectual stimulation. It may take additional classes, or work at an accelerated pace.

Research has become an integral part of the total program. For example, a study has been carried on by one instructor on the effects of atomic radiation on plants, while the staff of the Department of Agriculture has several applied research projects under way. Working in cooperation with the Kentucky Department of Economic Development, other projects aim at helping the farmers of the State increase annual income through the raising of sheep and pigs.

A different type of activity which has brought acclaim to Morehead is in the area of music. Currently, more than 100 students are enrolled in Morehead than at any other state institution of higher education in the state. The campus band has been extended an invitation to play at the Linco International Convention at Nice, France, in 1962.

Foster Story Gets Response From Nation

Announcement of the coming auditions for the 1961 season of "The Stephen Foster Story" has brought inquiries from as far away as Texas and California.

The first of three scheduled auditions will be held at the J. Dan Talbott Amphitheatre in Bardonia, on Saturday, March 4, beginning at 9 a. m. All applicants should report to the Amphitheatre for instructions.

Further auditions will be held on March 15 in New York and will be attended by Paul Green, author, and Isaac Van Grove, musical arranger. Green will leave for Spain at the conclusion of the auditions to do research for an other symphonic drama which he has been commissioned to write for St. Augustine, Fla.

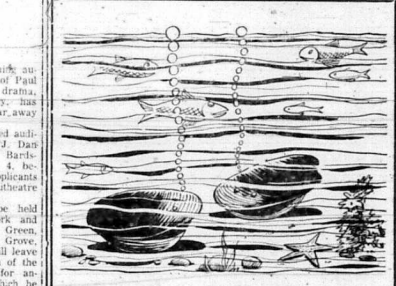

The final audition will be held in Miami, Fla. at the concluding session of the South Eastern Theatre Conference convention and it is anticipated that all roles will be filled following this audition.

The Stephen Foster Story tells of one year in the life of America's most beloved troubador, and requires singers, actors and dancers or any combination thereof.

Interested applicants should write The Stephen Foster Story, Box 567, Bardonia, N. Y., and those in that area should plan to attend the auditions there on March 4.

The 1961 season for the Foster Story begins on Friday, June 23, with a three week rehearsal period in advance of that date. A ten week season follows with the final performance on Labor Day, Sept. 4.

There are a number of smart people in the world but very few students.

If Them Federal And State Politicians Are Truthful We're All Okay

By Cleve Hellen

I tell you things are a going to be mighty good around and among us pore people if'n the government can just get itself fixed out good. We're lucky that we got them fellers in Washington and in our state governments that we did.

But seems like I ain't never been lucky for nothing. Evertime the government comes up with something else to help us pore folks with, I can't find enough credit to satisfy the government. Me and the Lord knows ere I ain't got nothing but a woman and three youngsters and this government, but proving it has been awful hard for me to do. I've tried my best to get on the Com-mo-sist Relief but them fellers down at the County Seat are the most selfish fellers ever was I reckon. They just won't let me on a tall. I have to depend on getting me a few commo-sists from my friendly neighbors who are forced to take more powdered eggs and powdered milk than they can use. I nearly know I won't be lucky enough to get on the relief and get me a few cans of that good pork and gravy. We 'low as to how all them fellers right down there to the County Seat will get all that pork and gravy to eat and just let us pore fellers have a double ration of them powdered eggs and powdered milk. I reckon shorely they will let all of us have one of them little Kennedy pigs to feed our surplus commo-sists to. Yet it is a looking like I won't even get one of them Kennedy pig. I just ain't been born at the right time.

I see where our good government is going to extend the rocking chair unemployment benefits. Well, I thought that maybe I could get some of them unemployed benefits. But I can't. I can't prove that I were ever employed and if you can't prove that you have ever been employed; then it's a definite fact that you ain't unemployed. You see I've never held a job of employment in my life. I ain't got a lick of work to do right now and never did have yet. I ain't unemployed because I ain't never been employed. It's a sight how complicated things can get, ain't it? I can't draw none of them extended unemployment benefits.

If any of us will work, the government is a going to make the employer pay us a $1.25 an hour and no less. The trouble with everything around here is that they ain't no employers. Ain't nobody got nothing to do and if he did have something to do, he couldn't get nobody to help him because he ain't got no $1.25 per hour to pay unless he is on the draw or getting Social Maturity or getting them unemployment benefits or getting him a big retirement pension of some kind. If'n he is a getting all this money from the government; then he ain't a going to waste no $1.25 a hour a employing some of us pore people. He would stand a chance of getting cut off the government roll if he showed any improvements in his working standards. So they ain't a chance of me a getting me no job at $1.25 a hour.

Now, I guess they is somekind of a malady what has attacked every part of my body. At least, my body has got a awful lot of pains and aches in it. But everytime I end up at the Welfare Department to try to get me a draw check; they tell me I ain't got the specific pain or ache what will qualify me for the draw check. If I had been born a woman instead of a good looking man, I could have got me a bunch

Float Fishing Is Popular In Kentucky

Fishermen who dislike the busy boating traffic or large lakes are taking to Kentucky's many miles of streams for float fishing—the new and popular phase of fishing.

Float fishing is an idyllic fishing vacation. The fisherman launches his boat on his favorite river, goes where the current will take him and enjoys exciting hours of catching game fish.

The requisites of float fishing are a small boat that may be carried over or around riffles, a light weight motor, light tackle, an axe and lantern.

A river buggy recommended for bass fishing and floating is the Kentucky River. This famous river can be fished from the Ohio at Carrollton, or from launching spots in most cities on the river.

The Green River empties into the Ohio near Henderson and boaters will respond to its native beauty, especially in the vicinity of Mammoth Cave National Park. A float trip along the Green River may be started at Liberty, or any number of spots along the upper reaches.

Streams which appeal primarily to boaters include the Licking River which enters the Ohio River near Cincinnati; the Salt River which enters the Ohio near West Point; the Red River which flows into the Kentucky; upper sections of the Cumberland and the Clark Rivers which flow into the Ohio near Paducah.

Another floating adventure is to enter the Tennessee River near Paducah, lock through Kentucky Dam and continue up the river. This trip may also begin at Kentucky Dam Village State Park on Kentucky Lake.

JOB BENEFIT COSTS

The cost of the emergency extra unemployment benefits proposed by President Kennedy could climb to $61,000,000. The total would depend on how high unemployment remains, and on the number of states voluntarily subscribing to the plan once it may be authorized by Congress. The plan is set for early consideration by the House.

Robinson To Launch New Welfare Plan

Arnold Robinson, Louisville, the state's first juvenile court consultant, reported in Frankfort this week to begin a new program for the Department of Child Welfare, according to Commissioner Richard J. Clendenen.

Robinson will be operating on a statewide basis, traveling to the various juvenile courts throughout the Commonwealth. His primary duties, said Clendenen, are to strengthen and improve relations between the courts and the central offices of the Child Welfare Department. Very little work of this type has been done by the department in the past.

Clendenen said Robinson will also be able to offer various services to the courts and improve the care now being provided to children by the department.

"We are happy to be able to fill this important position with someone who has had concrete experience with Kentucky juvenile courts," Clendenen said. "We are certain the experience and training Robinson brings to this department will be of great benefit to us and to the children of Kentucky."

Robinson has been a probation officer for the Jefferson County Juvenile Court for the past five years. Prior to that, he taught school and coached in the Florida school system.

He is a graduate of Ma High School in Louisville, and holds the AB from Western Kentucky State College and a law degree from the University of Louisville.

More Roadside Parks Planned In Commonwealth

Spring, summer and fall visitors to Kentucky can sigh with relief while motoring through Kentucky where the famed hospitality of that state has been extended along its roadways.

Soon to be available in increasing numbers will be roadside parks and restrooms, roadside overlooks and special tabbies. There are presently 40 roadside parks and restrooms with complete or nearly complete facilities. Eight roadside rest areas are under construction.

The aim of these steps is to make travel more pleasant for the everyday motorist and the increasing number of tourists visiting Kentucky's famous recreational and historic attractions.

Roadside park facilities, all approved by the Kentucky Health Department, have piped-in water, restrooms, grills, tables, and trash cans. Adequate parking is also provided.

If you have the money to buy, and a good salesman is on your trail, you might as well take to the hills.

What About Being 'Chubby'?

By C. D. Smith

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I haven't always read your articles in the paper, but one of your recent columns set me to thinking. I am what people call 'chubby.' I'm not really fat, but I do have troubles in trying to learn just how to handle my difficulty. Believe it or not, I like boys, and yet they seem as though I don't exist. I've tried a diet, but it never worked. Someone is always laughing at me. It gets very tiresome, of course, but just what can I do to get boys to like me?"

OUR ANSWER: A "chubby" girl has two choices; neither is easy, but things worth having seldom come without effort. She can (1) lose the extra poundage or (2) learn to live with it.

In the matter of going on a diet, it is wise to consult the family doctor. He can set up an eating and exercise regimen that will bring about weight reduction in a safe and healthy manner.

Some "dieters" cut out sweets and eliminate starches and consider themselves on a diet. They are not, at all; they are just padding up foods which they consider fattening. A good self-prescribed diet is the one which follows the rule about "leaving the table hungry." The theory here is that, if you eat until you don't want another bite, you have actually eaten more than enough to meet your body's requirements. But, in the opinion of this corner, a person should never undertake any kind of a diet without first consulting a physician.

Learning to live with "chubbiness" is the tough way—but it can be done. The individual has to remember it and forget it at the same time. Confusing! Sure. But, simply stated, it means the individual must adopt this attitude, "O.K., so I'm chubby. I'm not going to worry about it at all. I'm going to develop my personality and make new friends just the same."
