Easter Was Observed Hundreds Of Years Before Time Of Christ

Easter, the principal ecclesiastical event of the year, gets its name from Eostre, a Teutonic goddess, whose festival was celebrated in the spring. The name was given to the Christian festival, as it was she, according to legend, who opened the portals of Valhalla to receive the White God and the Sun God, representing purity and light.

The history of Easter, which is a symbol of the Resurrection to us, is intertwined with many religious customs and observances dating back hundreds of years and before the time of Jesus Christ. However, Christians have utilized various customs and traditions to create and color this observance in the real spirit of Jesus' resurrection.

The Easter egg, for example came to be associated with Easter because eggs were forbidden to be eaten during Lent and on Easter Sunday they were traditionally served. The Easter egg, though, had dated back to the Egyptians and Persians, and also the Greeks and Romans, who ate eggs annually in their spring festivals. Eggs have long since been connected with new life, as was the rabbit, a most prolific animal.

Jesus arose from the dead on the first day of the week, and Gentile Christians have held ever since that Easter should be observed on Sunday. Jewish Christians for many years observed the day on the date of the Passover, regardless of whether it was Sunday or not.

In any event, it is appropriate that Easter comes in the spring, when the renewal life is so apparent about us all. Sunrise services in our church—an observance of recent origin in most churches—symbolizes the Resurrection of Jesus. Today this religious practice is observed in practically all of the churches as a symbol of hope, inspiration and faith.

Medical Aid Fight

The United States has now reached the stage when an overall, government-financed medical aid bill for everyone over 65 is being pushed hard by the administration in power and has a substantial chance to be enacted.

The point which is too often overlooked in the shuffle, and in this variety of arguments on this subject, is that we have a program inaugurated only in 1960, and this program certainly has not been given an adequate test. This program is the Kerr-Mills law, which provides federal support to all states which have the advantage of its terms.

The present law, the Kerr-Mills bill, allows the states to set the exact terms of the program but, basically, aid (most of it footed by the federal government, from 50% to 80%) is available to those couples with income under $2,800 a year. It is true that those receiving this aid must be unable to pay their costs themselves.

Proponents of the administration bill make a lot over this—and claim that their bill would not embarrass anyone and not affront anyone's dignity.

In short, this concept—to give medical aid to all whether they can afford it or not—and whether they really want government care or not, runs counter to the traditional American heritage, our spirit of individual responsibility, pride and thrift.

It is true, of course, that medical care is very expensive these days. Drugs and medicine in the United States are too high—in comparison to prices in other countries. But it would seem that the remedy, if the Kerr-Mills bill does not accomplish the task (and this is not proven) is to liberalize the terms of that medical care law—which is already on the books. As a matter of fact, the benefits provided under this law are wider than under the administration bill. It covers the cost of physicians' and dentists' bills, which the administration bill does not.

The administration bill would mean still another increase in social security taxes, which are already high. It would raise from 6% to 10% the tax, and also make it applicable to the first $3,000 dollars of everyone's income, rather than the first $4,800.

The Kerr-Mills bill has not had a fair chance to do the job yet, and the disadvantages of the new medical care plan should certainly be avoided. If time proves the Kerr-Mills bill inadequate, then it can be amended, and changed, to meet the needs of the aged. That is the sensible, economical way to accomplish the goal.

"The public's enthusiasm about building fallout shelters has cooled," says a federal official. It never was very warm, "having scarcely reached the lukewarm stage."

Another strange and frequent case of metamorphosis is that a surplus shown in a national budget at the beginning of the fiscal year turns into a deficit by the end of it.

In many a case it would be altogether unfair to censure a high military official for what he says in a speech, as it was written by a subordinate.

A few people are evidently trying to cut Col. Glenn down to much smaller than size. Reference is made to those who are suggesting he go into politics.

Although the cost of food advanced in January, there was no advance in the overall cost of living, except to those who live primarily to eat.

Magazines On The Run

The recent announcement by the Curtis Publishing Company that it was reducing from fifty-two to forty-five the number of editions of The Saturday Evening Post to be published each year, and of other costly steps, show clearly what television has meant to the magazine business.

Television has already brought death to Colliers, Woman's Home Companion and The American Magazine. In the first nine months of last year, the Post lost millions of dollars, and the recent announcement of a retrenchment is a result of this trend. Also being hurt by the impact of television are other magazines, Life reportedly among them.

The answer is not yet available. Television has been less than a success in the news field, and though recent documentaries give hope of future promise in this field, it is still early to say, generally speaking. Television has provided the cheap, trendy family show, with its phony laughter and so-called comedy.

The only disturbing thing about television, as a replacement for many of our magazines, is that there are only three major television networks. There have always been scores of magazines, and there is a certain scarcity in numbers.

And, sad to say, so far television has not replaced the mass magazines with something better—even something as good, morally and intellectually, though there are recent encouraging signs in the wind, if they bear fruit.

Four Minute Alert

The Washington Star, in a story by Richard Frykholm, reported that the SAC bombers were alerted and on the runways for takeoff at one time during the Berlin crisis. The statements were confirmed by the Public Relations Staff of the Strategic Air Command and in their statements said that the hydrogen bomb loaded planes rushed to the runways at SAC bases all over the world.

The Public Relations report of SAC confirmed that for several of approximately four minutes it appeared war was possible. The occurrence was a result of communications difficulties of the ballistic missile early warning system at Hato, Greenland. This part of the system is a radar station designed to detect an enemy missile crossing the Atlantic waste, and is one of a series of such stations.

It had been assumed in SAC headquarters that the communications difficulty could have been the result of an attack on the station by Russians previous to a full scale nuclear launching.

It is unfortunate that such an occurrence will make many Americans uneasy and renew their zeal and zest for "peace demonstration." The fact that, our forces were ready to respond to immediate attack should be of great comfort to most of us. SAC's presence means no one is deterring war by any other single source in America.

EASTER

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Easter Is The World's Most Widely Observed Celebration

The Editor:

On Sunday, April 22 millions of people in all parts of the world will help celebrate the positive proof of Christianity.

Humanity's happiness dates from the first Easter Day. Nothing like it is in any other belief. It means more to more people than any single event since the beginning of time.

Easter marks the start of every movement to make the world better. Christianity is the basis of society. It abolished slavery, started hospitals, brought about charity, honored womanhood, respected childhood, created kindness, is the parent of progress, made life worthwhile, gave humanity a rule to live by and then hope for eternity.

"Has anything else done that much for the world? In such great degree?"

Westward the course of Christ's army lies. It was the light of life in all enlightened nations and its benefits are felt every hour of every day everywhere. Without it we would soon revert to barbarism.

Easter means more than anything that has gone before. It gathers the whole factual story of Bethlehem to Calvary. What has been a mere belief is now a positive fact, the full force of which dwells when we kneel at the Master's empty tomb.

Oh, there are a few people standing on the sidelines of humanity, trying to make themselves the center of the great truth. It But what have they to offer in its place? Nothing! Why not join with the rest of us and make the celebration unanimous?

Every Easter Sunday is another proof of the glorious sunrise of Christianity. Humanity, on its knees, in all lands regardless of dogma, creed, color or nation, unites in praying to God in thanksgiving for the Christ.

We hope that this Easter in all of the churches of our community this observance will again be a demonstration of the great truth that God is still in His heaven and that we follow His will all can be right with the world as we celebrate the joyous Resurrection event.

The Editor:

Teaching-Career Month as first observed in April, focuses the nation's attention on the importance of the teacher in the future. It has become one of the outstanding events in the education calendar.

Teaching-Career Month has six objectives:

1. To raise the prestige of teaching as a profession among students, teachers, parents and the entire community.

2. To encourage larger numbers of qualified young people to become teachers.

3. To influence more good teachers to remain in the profession.

4. To inspire teachers to speak up for their profession, and encourage them to become more active in their communities.

5. To educate parents on the tremendous opportunities and rewards of the teaching profession for their children.

6. To show that, for our country's survival, teaching must be the pre-eminent profession in American life.

varied. Each pupil is different; each has his own needs, interests, and capacities. The teacher adjusts class work to meet those needs, interests, and capacities.

Claig Sprout

Dear Mister Editor:

I see by the papers where President Kennedy and our law makers are engaged in the usual sports contest over the question of bills up for debate. I lean thinking for a long time we ought to call it our Capital and refer to it as our Bowling Alley On The Potomac. In ever administration a long back as I can recollect, the President has been setting "end up" one end and then Congress has been trying to knock "em down at the other.

Ed positive says the way the President and the Congress tries to speak up on each other with certain legislation reminds him of a girl getting ready to throw a brick at a cat. The feller makes like he don't see the cat, the cat makes like he don't see the feller, but the feller is watching the cat like a hawk watching a chicken, and the cat is watching the feller like Zeke Grub's preacher watching the collection plate.

With all this hauling and pulling going on it's no wonder the voters of this country has a hard time separating the statesmen from the politicians along the Potomac. Somebody said once the difference between a statesman and a politician was the statesman tries to make history and the politician tries to rewrite it. It seems to me what we been getting lately is nothing but a rewrite.

For instant, I was reading last week where one Senator told the congress taxes had gone as high in this country as it's safe for them to go. Now I'd call that a statesman's statement. If he was making history at any level, he has made history. But, for advocating such treason, he'll get thrown in the dog house by the politicians afore Congress adjourns.

We was discussing these matters at the country store Saturday night and the fellers was all agreed that television has spoiled our politicians. Glen Webster allowed as how when he was a boy, a politician would larger a lot of meeting and give you some old fashioned, long-tail oratory, put a spellbinding in two or three hours. Like the hoop skirt of them days, says Glen, his speech covered everything and touched nothing. But nowadays, he claims, they get up and give you two minutes of news soap commercials and the speech still don't touch nothing, says Glen.

Well, Mister Editor, I see where things has got so big in the Pentagon building that the Government Printing Office has had to put out a special telephone directory for that one building. The piece said

A teacher has to be prepared for a number of roles: (1) director of learning; (2) counselor; (3) member of the community; (4) member of the teaching profession; (5) link between school and community.

In all of these areas teaching is a profession that requires specialized preparation and demands experience in working with people.

Vice-President of the Future Teachers' Club of
Rowan County High School

New Fence Erected At Tower

By Joe J. Mauk

A new four-foot high chain link fence was erected last week along the cliff adjacent to the Forest Service picnic area at Triangle Tower for the protection of visitors. Work on construction of guard rails at the overlook on the south end of the picnic area is also underway. Development of areas suitable for recreation is one of the planned uses of National Forest land under the Forest Service's policy of multiple use land management.

Robert Tobiaszki of the Regional Forester's Office in Philadelphia and Carl Bergdorf of the Forest Supervisor's Office in Winchester, spent Monday on the Morehead District looking over some of the watersheds on rehabilitation work being done by the Forest Service.

Both Tobiaszki and Bergdorf were favorably impressed with the effective results of some of the check dams on the Martins Branch area during the recent heavy rains.

During the last two weeks Forester Richard Brewster of the Forest Supervisor's Office in Winchester spent considerable time on the Morehead District with Forester Bill Zedek on compartment examination work.

Should you wonder what we mean by compartment examination I will try to explain it to you. Each national forest district is laid out in compartments at five hundred acres or less in size to facilitate land use management purposes. Compartment examination consists of going on the area and making an inventory of the timber or other resources on the area. In addition to mapping the resources, soils, etc. for future management plans, the examination also includes a wide range of studies for fish stocking, and sites highly desirable for development as recreation areas will be included in recommendations for future land use plans for the area.

Callikers Are Tormenting Men At Night And Early Morning; Sound Like A Spauked Baby

By Glenn Mallon

"I see that me a suit up to the Ray Shaking nearly ten years ago. I thought I could wear it to one of them teacher meetings. I ain't wore it none since and ain't no use in it over me and I see how it looks on the Glen Eden meetings. I thought as to how this suit had drawn up a right smart, but I see I've been taking too much advantage of them commodities like beef and gravy, cheese, etc. I've grown a lot in the last ten years."

Convey Gabbard tells us that he has already got him about two of them suits which he wears on special occasions, if they ever are. Ben Creech ain't got no suit. He wear no suit at all. And the lot of us are scared he will be spluttering around there barfested among them important people what will be to this meeting. June is about the time Ben sheds his shoes and long hands. Actually most of the women folks around here have took advantage of the Ray Shaking and got their men a pretty suit for the occasions that might take place sometimes.

Williba will be all spruced up when they get them meetings started.

A bunch of preachers were up 'tother day a fixing a place to hold them some kind of a house to preach and sing in.

Since the educators and editors and things like that got us to sending our youngsters to school before daylight, it is sort of a keep lanterns in Williba. Lanterns and lantern, glides don't will worth nothing, until they learned fellers got the time changed. Till they could come around more before midnight.

Fred Bryant's youngsters had to make almost a week of school because one of the bigger youngsters started running thru 'the house with them youngsters getting ready to go to school. She fell down and she fell plumb blank on that lantern and that globe broke to pieces. It took Fred a week to get that lantern and globe fixed so the youngsters could commence to go to school again. This changing of the time sure is a wonderful thing for us pore people of the hills. A feller can't learn more early in the morning and can they around more before it gets mid-afternoon and then the evening. It still makes us think though that editors, mayors, educators, and politicians don't have no sense of sense hardly a fall.

Spring has come again and that dad-darned bunch of Callikers are out a tormenting fellers again at night and early morning. The Callikers can make the chills do the twist as them chills race back and forth up and down a feller's backbone. It's a sight what a spine tingling noise a Calliker can make when it is dark. Their noise sounds similar to a distressed woman's cry or scream or the sound of a young newly spanked baby's shrill and piercing and makes the spine on a feller's head stick right up.

The first Calliker ever reported in this area was high on tea years ago. The first Calliker scream was heard in the Rock creek section of Breathitt County more than a half a century ago. It was said that a Calliker was killed. A fella have been glimpsed and they appear to look like a sheep with a coyote head and a very long pointed nose. They're not a large animal and they forage at night and are especially fond of young spring born baby kittens. Mostly they just suck the blood from baby kittens and occasional-ly they will eat the head of some kittens if they are found. Mostly they won't eat baby pup dogs.

There has not been a report of any human damage done by a Calliker other than producing nervousness and fright in them. It causes women to milk later in the morning and earlier in the evening and in many cases the milking chores are turned entirely over to men folks.

The first report of the "Calliker" was made by Mr. Duane Ray. He was not familiar with Callikers since he came to Kentucky from Pennsylvania not so long ago. She and the youngsters were at home alone upon this particular night. She heard this distress sounding call from some place near the top of the Al Deaton Hill. It had been snowing and she thought maybe someone had wrecked on the hill and was hurt.

She called into Williba and made a report on what she had heard. But the distressing call had come from the darkness of the night upon three different occasions which were spaced about 15 minutes apart.

We intended to check the report to see if a wolf had occurred but since some more cars had passed a going and a couple about the Al Deaton Hill, it suddenly weren't no wreck. It suddenly dawned upon us that the distressing screams that Mr. Ray had heard were the familiar spring cries of the Calliker. We told her how the noise might have come from a hog owl or a wildcat but she didn't believe us. She said she had heard her because we were afraid it would excite her more.

Farm Bureau Endorses Tariff Cut

By Larry May

(Ky. Farm Bureau, Feb.)

In an effort to strengthen President Kennedy's trade expansion program, the Farm Bureau proposes an amendment that would make clear that the President's authority to cut tariff rates may not be used to benefit a country that has imposed trade restrictions against the United States.

"State monopolies, import licenses, and other devices break the spirit and the letter of existing trade regulations," testified Charles Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau, at a congressional hearing on the subject.

"He said the U.S. balance of payments deficit requires a tough policy at the bargaining table. He urged the Congressmen to equip the U.S. to deal effectively with regional groups such as the European Common Market."

Shuman asked the Ways and Means Committee to amend the tariff reduction bill to provide that any industry which can show that imports are injuring it can appeal to the tariff commission. And he called for the elimination of the bill's provisions for tariff reduction and adjustment assistance.

"Industries are put on notice that they must eventually meet the competition and that adjustment is necessary," Shuman said. "The federal government through increased import restrictions provides the most time adjustment but the decision to adjust and the manner in which adjustment is to be made is left to the industry."

In his testimony, Shuman said, "It is clear that the Farm Market will be primarily interested in expanding exports of industrial products. The United States on the other hand, must place far greater emphasis on agricultural trade."

The rising standard of living in Europe could create a large export market for our farm products, but we must convince the Europeans that agricultural self-sufficiency is not in the best interest of their dynamic growing economy and that they should not establish artificially high tariff prices for their grain products.

Pvt. Sizemore Completes Advanced Army Training

Sizemore received instruction in operating the 90-millimeter tank gun and driving the Army's medium tank. He was familiarized with the duties and responsibilities of each of the four tank crew members: the commander, driver, gunner and loader.

The 24-year-old soldier entered the Army in November 1941 and completed basic training at Fort Knox. He graduated from Fort Snelling High School in 1936.

Pastures Need Fertilizer For Top Production; Plant Beds Must Be Checked Often

By Adrian M. Rasser
County Agricultural Extension Agent

This is the time of year many of us may have trouble with our pastures. The grass is coming up and the soil is getting lighter. It is getting late in the season for spraying this pest.

To control onions or garlic, spray 2-4D. Follow directions on the container and use it at once since it is getting late in the season for spraying this pest.

Still Time To Control Pastures
Most of us do a good job fertilizing when we start our pasture and then forget them. Pastures need to be top-dressed with a suitable fertilizer every year, or every other year. Use a soil test as a guide.

Nearly every year during mid-summer when we usually have a rather dry spring, many of us run into a few weeks when we need additional pasture to take care of livestock. This need can be met by sowing what we call "emergency" pasture, one of the types which is Sudan grass.

Sudan grass may be sown a week or two after corn planting time and can be grazed within six weeks after sowing. It produces an amazing amount of forage if the seed is sown at the rate of 20 to 25 pounds per acre and should be well-fertilized for high yield. Sudan needs plenty of nitrogen to produce its maximum growth. There are some precautions that must be observed and these are spelled out in a leaflet we have. Stop by and pick up one.

Plant Beds Must Be Checked Often
We have said this before, but let us repeat. "Don't forget to check those tobacco plant beds frequently." If you see any trouble and don't recognize the source, please let us know and we will try to help you find what it is. Let's remember, too, that a treatment with black-line line will protect plants from angular leaf disease and other leaf diseases. Use three pounds of black-line line per four pounds of lime to 50 gallons of water and treat when the plants are up to the "square" stage. Repeat the treatment two weeks later, and again each time the plants are weeded. If you would like directions on mixing this material, we have a guide and can send you giving directions.

Advice To Gardeners And Wool Growers
April 30 is the deadline for signing up for wool payments with the U.S. Wool Growers' Association. If it is not too late to enroll in the garden center. Ask your local seed dealer for an entry card or stop by the office.

Widow Paid Student To Marry Her

The bizarre story of a 70-year-old widow who secretly paid a Yale student a fortune of more than $100,000 to marry her 32 years ago has been disclosed by the tax court of the United States in a ruling last week it cleared the bridegroom, Charles R. Goddard of Washington, now 74, of any fraud in filing his 1938, 1940 and 1950 income tax returns. He is a former Bureau of Internal Revenue employee.

This means that Goddard, whom the court opinion called "an eccentric man," will not have to pay income tax on the residue of the marriage settlement he received for more than 40 years.

The ruling by Judge John Worth Kern said Goddard had hidden the money because he was ashamed of the transaction.

Goddard, a native of Southwick, Mass., stated in his testimony the settlement was $200,000 at the time of the marriage and $100,000 late. This, the court said, "exceeds the limit of our credibility" and set the amount as a "reasonable sum (over $100,000)."

The court's decision gives these details:

In 1909 Goddard, then 31, was working his way through Yale University Law School by selling ladies' hosiery, door to door. He met his bride-to-be, Lucinda M. Treat of Hartford, Conn. She didn't buy any hosiery but developed an amorous interest in him and offered him a fortune to marry her.

They were wed Sept. 1, 1909 with part of the bargain that the marriage settlement was to be kept secret.

Lucinda's son immediately thereafter asked Connecticut courts to appoint a conservator to protect her property, but was turned down. The Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors held that Goddard was "capable, industrious and prudent" and suited the couple were living happily to gether.

Goddard hid the fortune in his wife's home, finished his studies and in 1911, Lucinda died in 1912, leaving two-thirds of her remaining estate to her son and one-third, about $7,500 to Goddard.

Goddard moved to Washington in 1920, working first in the Department of Interior and then in the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The money was kept hidden until Nov. 30, 1951 when the Treasury Department, decided to make financial statements. Goddard listed his assets and stated where they came from. This led to an income tax investigation that ran through the courts and ended in the tax court ruling.

DeBose, State representative from Mason County. The illuminated panorama shows the park area as it is now and the routes taken by Daniel Boone, Simon Kenton and other pioneers to reach the salt licks. The entire story of Blue Licks is depicted in the Museum, starting with the first battle of the war, the famous battle of the Clouds, and the battle of the Clouds, then telling the story of Boone and Kenton and ending with displays of bones and tools used in pioneer life. The drawing is said to be an exact topography of the park. A new panorama is completed and a swimming pool 10 by 80 feet scheduled for construction this spring.

'Old Blue,' Never Say Die Hunter

By Jim Payton
I've been a coon hunter for me on to 30 years and an old hand at coon hunting to compare to the story I was told yesterday.

Seems as though Mr. Grice, who lives down the road here, to the next town or so, is a coon hunter like wise. Now he's been a coon hunter 1-2 years for some 20 years' tales and has some pretty good tales (lies) to tell.

Now I've seen big coons and Grice has a dog that knows what he's doing, to hear him tell it will off on grounds of stupidity he I've seed little ones. I've seen Grice tell it, not the dogs. All Grice has to do is get out a skinning board and the dog goes out into the woods and brings back a coon to let it. I suppose you all know what a skinning board is. If you don't it is the board a hunter stretches a skin over to under different the animal.

As though Old Blue, the dog, is a name, we lay out in front of the first place that we go one afternoon when Mrs. Grice brought out the famous board. Well you can imagine what happened. The dog jumped up and barked for the woods as fast as a cat. Grice said it has now been three years since the coon and the darn dog hasn't come back yet.

But that's not the end of the story. Grice goes to the front porch every evening after supper and calls the dog. He says it will return home.

Now I've seen big coons and Grice has a dog that knows what he's doing, to hear him tell it will off on grounds of stupidity he I've seed little ones. I've seen

'Litterbugs' Cost Citizens $14,000 Month

More than $14,000 a month is thrown out the window by litterbugs who throw their trash and refuse out of their pockets, efforts to keep the streets clean and green are costing the taxpayers. Henry Ward said.

The Highway Department, Ward said, is accelerating its spring cleanup program in anticipation of the approaching winter and vacation season.

Reports from the 12 district high entries show highway crews doubling their efforts to keep roadways clean by picking up litter, debris and refuse. Plans are made for "No Dumping" signs, preventing littered vehicles from right-of-way, and adding more litter barrels.

Other steps being taken by the Department include the planting of trees, erecting bare and eroded areas, resurfacing potholes and other equipment in roadside parks, and installing additional signs.

In addition, all district high entries are entering the support of organizations and public efforts to help with the project.

Under the program, citizens can win prizes for litter-free areas. A checker, greater rewards for the traveling public. Ward said.

During March, the North Highway District reported the following activities:

Chopped rights-of-way of trash, potholes, rocks and boulders to the dump twice weekly. No dumping signs, and other equipment and stumps along the roadways.

The district includes the counties of Bath, Boyd, Carter, Elbert, Harlan, Lincoln, Logan, Madison, Wayne, and Wayne.

Because the dog (litter bug) is a problem, the district board is shaped nearly the same.

State Medical Group Backs AMA Plan

A national program for all persons over 65, which avoids the compulsory aspects that are inherent in the proposed Kennedy Administration plan (H.R. 422) was endorsed Thursday by the governing body of the Kentucky State Medical Association at the Brown Hotel in Louisville.

The program, sponsored by the American Medical Association and the National Association of State Shield Plans, will provide full payment of $120 a month for a single person over 65 whose annual income is $2,500 or less and $80 for a couple whose combined income is under $4,000 a year.

If the subscriber's income exceeds these limits or he is eligible to receive additional benefits from some other source, the physician may make an additional charge.

Dr. G. L. Simpson, Greenville, KSMHA president, said the medical plan by his group "provides for free choice of physicians and hospital and does not force the less fortunate to pay taxes to support the plan."

All individuals over 65 may apply regardless of physical condition or income. Payments will cover surgery, anesthesia, hospital charges, doctor bills, x-ray, radiation therapy and laboratory and pathological services for 70 days per admission in a hospital or nursing home.

The association's action also encouraged other insurance firms to participate in the plan.

Climaxing the celebration of National FHA Week, nine members of the Morehead Chapter of Future Homemakers of America received chapter homemaker degrees at the regular monthly meeting Tuesday, April 10, at Breckenridge Training School.

Those awarded the degree (from left) are: Toni Allen, Carol Barber, Vanda Batts, Frances Justice, Anne Reynolds, Alma Caskey, Susan Bays, Pat Murphy and Jane Barber.

The chapter degree represents contributions made by the girl in her home, school and community as the plans and carries out goals of achievement.

The junior degree was awarded the girls in their first year of studying home economics when they joined FHA. Five of them are planning to work next year on the state homemaker degree, the highest awarded to the Kentucky and national associations.

Comments made by the girls in promotional material for the program in FHA to them are:

Carol Barber: "Working on my chapter degree has helped me make better decisions and given me an idea of what I want to do in the future."

Antoinette Allen: "This degree has helped me assume more responsibilities and given me a sense of independence."

Vanda Batts: "This degree has given me a sense of confidence and achievement."

Patty Murphy: "The degree has helped me grow so much that I have a real incentive to get my State Degree."

Anne Reynolds: "Obtaining my chapter degree has helped me become a more mature person, has helped me learn about people, has shown me the relationship between home economics and FHA and the importance of a good relationship at home by understanding my family."

Sharon Christman Is Vets Queens

Someone once said, beauty is the best substitute for brains" but this was not the case on the campus of Morehead State College last Saturday night when seven lovely ladies competing for the Veterans' Club honor of "Vets Queen."

Academically minded, all seven struck an imposing view as they very well illustrated that the much speculated question as to whether "beauty and brains" go together is unquestionably true.

Sharon Christman, a beautiful coed with a popular charm, reigned over six other beauties of her court. Upon winning the title "Vets Queen," Sharon could only say, "I'm delighted" with a lump in her throat and a brightness in her face which made one anticipate tears.

Use Of Mental Health Films Is Increasing

The circulation of mental health films from the film library of the Kentucky Department of Mental Health has increased 600 per cent during the past 10 years, Mrs. Helen Walcott, film librarian, has reported.

The number of films available has grown 300 per cent since 1952 from 46 to 181, a gain of 138, she said.

The film library is maintained by the Division of Community Services of the Department of Mental Health. Films are loaned upon request to individuals or groups throughout the state, with return postage as the only charge.

The greatest number of films available deal with adolescent developmental problems. These are used largely by public and parochial schools, colleges, and private and public hospitals.

Professional and general mental health films have been added to meet the demands for training nurses, nurses aides and other professional persons who deal with the mentally ill.

"Because many of the films are booked months, and in some cases a year, in advance it is necessary to give the library three weeks advance notice," Mrs. Miller pointed out.

Films may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Miller at the Kentucky Department of Mental Health, 600 West Cedar Street, Louisville 3.

Federal Recruiter Will Be At MSC Campus Monday

Thomas B. Thompson, newly appointed manager of the Ashland District Office of the Social Security Administration and a recruiting representative for the Civil Service Commission, will be on campus at Morehead State College, Monday, April 23, to accept applications for the Federal Service Entrance Examination.

This is the civil service examination through which over 25 federal agencies recruit for hundreds of job vacancies in a wide variety of career fields.

Saturday, May 12, is the last date the Federal Service Entrance Examination will be given during the current school year. All Morehead State graduates, as well as students expecting to complete their studies by summer or early fall, are invited to meet with Thompson Monday to obtain further information, or for assistance in filing application for the examination.

District PTA Conference Held At RCHS

The annual Spring Conference of District 12, Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers, held Thursday in Morehead, was highlighted by an address given by Mrs. M. F. Pennington of Ashland, Registered Parliamentarian.

Mrs. Pennington said there are five reasons for parliamentary procedure: courtesy to all; justice to all; one thing at a time; rule of the majority; and right of the minority.

The call to order was given by Mrs. M. F. Hatole of Ashland, District 12 president, and the pledge of allegiance was led by Morehead Boy Scout Troop 142. Mrs. Robert Wilcox, district chairman of Character and Spiritual Education, gave the devotional.

The conference delegates were welcomed by Rowan County School Superintendent Clifford R. Cossady, Rowan County High School Principal Russell Boyd and Billy W. Calhoun, Morehead Grade School principal.

Mrs. P. G. Brothers, Mayville, was re-elected vice president and installed for a three-year term in the district. Norman Gramms, Proctorville, and Bylaws chairman, was the installing officer.

The afternoon session, following luncheon served by the home economics department under the direction of Mrs. Margie Roberts, consisted of a report by Mrs. Joyce Hall, the first grade of Morehead Grade School, assisted by Miss Grace Lewis, also participated in the program.

Reports were given by local unit presidents and district chairmen Mrs. Philip Smith of Mayville, district publicity chairman, announced winners of the publicity book judging. Paul Newman of Morehead, district member, gave the courtesy report.

Mrs. Leo Jamison, president of the Morehead Grade PTA, reported on credentials, stating there were 150 delegates representing 15 schools. Mrs. Brothers presented attendance gavel to Betty Rock School (Carter County) for having the largest percentage and Flemingsburg High School, the largest number present at the conference.

Art exhibits, signs and name tags for the meeting were prepared by the RCHS art department, under the direction of Mrs. Betty Laker.

Exchanges Suggested

"Our behavior is almost totally conditioned by our culture and society," said Martha Sexton, Jenkins High School, Jenkins.

The students also had some ideas on how to overcome the roadblocks to brotherhood.

Culture exchanges between high school students were urged by one teen-ager. Others said high schools should promote international relations, clubs, human relations courts, open extra-curricular activities to all races and religions, and hold brotherhood conferences.

The scene of the conference was set earlier by Morton Walker, representative of the Louisville chapter of the National Conference of Christian and Jews.

possibility for changing ourselves because we can't change others, until we do change ourselves," Walker said.

He also called upon students to overcome their unwillingness to recognize bigotry and racial prejudice in themselves and their friends.

Mrs. Virginia Coffey of the Mayor's Friendly Relations Committee, Cincinnati, said in a separate address that while the United States excels throughout the world in technical know-how we have lagged in the area of human relationships.

"We emphasize the Judeo-Christian principles," Mrs. Coffey said, "but we are very remiss at carrying them out."

Aerial Photographs Show State Forest Inventory

Aerial photography and mathematics are playing a big role in the Kentucky forest inventory recently launched by the State Division of Forestry.

From now until January 1964, when the inventory will be completed, the state and federal foresters working on the project will be in a whirl of dot counts, sample dots, probable sampling error, and numerous other mathematical procedures necessary to the survey.

Gene L. Butcher, director of the Division of Forestry, pointed out that it is only through the use of the latest technical advances in the field of forest measurement that the huge task can be completed in two years. He also pointed out that it is the most intensive survey ever undertaken of Kentucky forest lands.

The survey will provide data to assess the full economic potentialities of Kentucky's forest resources.

In light of the changes in marketing and utilization of forest products since the last Kentucky forest survey in 1949, Butcher said. He pointed out that changes in Kentucky's rural population patterns have also been rapid since 1949 and that the shift of population to the cities has resulted in larger tracts of forested areas coming under single ownership. This, in turn, has generated greater interest among owners in the economic value of forest lands, he said.

The forest inventory project leader, Thomas Jordan, research forester with the U.S. Forest Service, has set up headquarters for Lexington. He will be assisted there by S. Ronald Singer, forester with the State Division of Forestry, who will concentrate on interpreting data obtained from aer-

AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHS are an important tool in conducting the Kentucky forest inventory now under way with completion scheduled for January 1964. Thomas Jordan (right), research forester with the U. S. Forest Service, explains methods of interpretation of aerial photographs to S. Ronald Singer, forester with the Kentucky Division of Forestry. Jordan, inventory project leader, will be assisted by Singer in the photographic interpretation work. The use of aerial photographs shortens the time required for the field survey while maintaining the accuracy of the survey. The 16 State and Federal foresters who will begin the survey in July will use the latest advances in the science of forest measurement.

State Highway Appraisers To Be Better Trained

Appraisers helping secure rights of way for Kentucky Interstate Highway System will be better informed and better trained under the newly-established Appraisal Research and Training Section in the Highway Department.

Creation of the section was announced by Highway Commissioner Henry Ward. It will function in the Department's Division of Right-of-Way which is headed by Carl Bradley.

Basically, the section will analyze and prepare data on properties that have been affected by the construction of roads through or adjacent to them.

"This information will be published in pamphlet form and distributed to appraisers so they will have a better basis for dealing with property owners on proposed highways," Bradley said.

"This will help insure that the Highway Department is fair to both the taxpayer and the property owner in acquiring land for Kentucky's expanding Interstate System," he said.

Home Gardens Can Help Family Diet If Properly Planned And Cared For

Home gardens, properly planned and handled, are a big help to the family diet and the family budget, according to Hubert Davis, UK Extension vegetable specialist. But, if not properly planned and handled, a dollar-waster, and of little benefit to the diet.

He gives these suggestions for a garden—that will be a benefit rather than a burden.

First, plan what, where, when, and how much to plant. A well planned garden not only looks neat but is easier to care for and furnishes more of the vegetables you want and need than a garden without a plan.

Most gardens are too large for the family, and these over-size gardens waste time and money, he points out. Many gardeners try to plant enough to offset losses from diseases, insects, droughts, floods, etc. They wind up with so much to handle that they can't do the work—and the garden goes to weeds.

Why not prevent the losses by good care instead of trying to make up for them with more plants? If you plant only enough to provide for daily table use, canning and freezing, the garden will be easy to care for, expense will be less, too, and in general, quality of the vegetables will be better.

Sluggish plantings so that the harvest season will last the entire summer, he suggests. For instance, many gardeners have a huge supply of sweet corn for three weeks—then none at all for the rest of the growing season, so making several plantings.

Observations Of Travelers

In Kentucky

1750-1850

By Sam E. Allen

RELIGION

Religion was a vital part of Kentucky life many years prior to statehood. Given thanks at the table was a common Kentucky custom by 1814, when the Rev. Samuel J. Mills and Daniel Smith performed a missionary tour through Kentucky for the Presbyterian societies in the East. They left a record which showed that the Bible was possessed by comparatively few families in the state. Kentuckians liked to build churches, for in 1787, they had sixteen churches established, besides several congregations where churches were not constituted. And they were supplied with upwards of thirty ministers or teachers. Toldman noted that the Presbyterians were much in evidence in the larger settlements, and there was a few people of the other denominations.

Some of the various denominations of churches have been mentioned in the stories about the larger towns, but visitors were more interested in the camp meetings than the church buildings and their congregations. It goes without saying that such meetings were the largest crowds in the West, and they have been the subject of many studies by students of history and religion. The people who came to Kentucky and wrote of their visits were amazed by the size of the crowds and by the dramatic spectacles. "The Western Gazetteer," published in 1817, has a personal description by Samuel R. Brown which is both interesting and self-inspiring.

"Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians and Seceders, are the prevailing sects; they manifest a spirit of harmony and liberality towards each other, and whatever may have been said to the contrary, it is a solemn truth, that religion is nowhere more respected, than in Kentucky. I last summer traversed the whole state (1816), and I have previously passed from its southern to its northern frontiers; and from my own observation can speak with confidence. In many places the inhabitants are not satisfied to attend a single Sunday school alone, but meet in conference three times a week. In May 1816, five miles north of Harrodsburg, I saw the largest religious assembly I ever witnessed. Our camp meeting was so crowded that I could not find room in it in point of numbers. The day was favorable; the minister stood upon a scaffolding erected for the occasion, in the center of a handsome grove, from which he addressed the hearers to the number, as I judged, of at least 10,000, stood in concentric circles around the orator. The number of horses and carriages was absolutely incredible; and do not enlarge, when I say that they literally covered twenty acres of ground."

Flint believed most of these camp meetings were sponsored by the Methodists prior to 1815 and were on the decline when he visited the state. A group of the Yellowstone Expedition detained at Mayfield, Ky., on their way up the Ohio in 1821, visited a camp meeting on the hills back of the town, and the account of that meeting is almost identical with that of Capt. James E. Alexander of England, who visited the same place either Brown or Flint had witnessed in central Kentucky. He was shocked when he saw hundreds of persons heaving and crying at the same time. All the outskirts of the great gathering was a scene of drinking and debauchery which lived in his memory for many years.

The Rev. Robert Davidson read before the Society of Adolphus at Transylvania University on January 16, 1820, a rather caustic description of a different sect and had made his tour with the idea of writing on the Mammoth Cave. The town was described by Davidson as midway between Russellville and Bowling Green. He called the villagers infidels and believed few were followers of Ann Lee. The village was not so large as the one near the Kentucky River in central Kentucky, but he admitted that the establishment was neat, orderly and quiet. There is a mention of dancing in the evening. The Rev. Robert Davidson was positive that membership was on the decline.

FIGHTING

Travelers were often privileged to view fights between two or more persons in the towns on election days and at the numerous celebrations which Kentuckians enjoyed. Coming was in the small village of Nicholasville, on the morning of an election day in 1820. He was scared away from the polls because he was sure of being challenged to a rough-and-tumble fight or to run a race with a backwoodsman for the prize within an hour near the polls, where the people accepted them to fight during the three-day period of elections in the state. Ten years later, Flint was in Louisville during election time, and he saw three fights within an hour near the polls, where the people accepted them to fight during the three-day period of elections in the state. Ten years later, Flint was in Louisville during election time, and he saw three fights within an hour near the polls, where the people accepted them to fight during the three-day period of elections in the state. Ten years later, Flint was in Louisville during election time, and he saw three fights within an hour near the polls, where the people accepted them to fight during the three-day period of elections in the state.

The duel was not mentioned as the chief means of fighting although many historical love to dwell upon the drama of the duel. At least, few travelers ever made notes on duels, whether because they did not see any or were not told of such happenings. O'Ferrall penned a good story about Kentuckians and their fights in his "Ramble of Six Thousand Miles Through the United States," and part of his account follows:

"The Kentuckians all carry large pocket knives, which they never fail to use in a scuffle; and you may see a gentleman seated at the tavern or balanced on two legs of a chair, picking his teeth with a knife, the blade of which is full six inches long, or cutting the benches, posts or anything of which he wishes his reach. Notwithstanding this, the people of the western states, and they are vastly less so than our people of Ireland. But when they do commence hostilities they fight with great bitterness, as do most Americans, biting, gouging, and cutting unrelentingly."

While in Lexington, Flint watched a young blade buy a drink in a jewelry store and commented that it was the thing for a man about town and one of the chief items in all jewelry stores in Kentucky. The drink has a pointed blade, four or five inches long, with a handle, and was worn beneath the coat in a special pocket of the vest. His description of fights is more rough-and-tumble than O'Ferrall's but does not include the use of pistols and knives.

Fights are characterized by the most savage ferocity. Gouging or putting out the antagonists' eyes, by thrusting the thumb into the sockets, is a part of the modus operandi. An extension of the rock nerve occasions great pain to the sufferer. Kicking and biting are also ordinary means used in combat. I have seen several fights that have been mutilated by this canine mode of fighting."

It must be remembered that many Kentuckians from the first days of statehood would fight at the drop of a hat, and some were willing to drop a hat in order to start a fight. The half-horse and half-alligator characters, who manned the boats on the Ohio in the early days of the West, were the most ferocious fighters of all. These men were rough-and-ready rowdies that lived on boats and never made any port their home. They often looked and acted like their nichesmen but were used by many persons to denote willingness to fight at the drop of a hat. Captain Alexander penned an excellent example when Louisville in 1821:

"A friend was one day standing at the door of a tavern in Kentucky and whistling an air to himself. A fellow with his hair in an elk-horn coming past, cried, 'I say, mister, you whistle very well, I reckon, do it again.' My good friend good-naturedly complied, 'Come,' said he, 'slap chops, eyed Kentucky, and sprang into the middle of the road. 'Hell, I'm your man for a fair fight, or rough-and-tumble,' and he swung his sides with a regular snorter, half-horse, half-alligator, and a bit of the snapping turtle, and cared for no man."

Seventh District Receives $10.5 Million Yearly From U.S. Expanding Export Trade

Kentucky's Seventh Congressional District receives at least $10.5 million a year from the United States' expanding export-trade which creates jobs and income for industrial and farm workers throughout the area. Of the total, about 40 per cent is in manufactures. These estimates of the impact of world trade on the Seventh District appear in a recent Export Origin Study, one of a series of state and district analyses prepared from various government sources by the U.S. Department of Commerce. This district survey follows distribution of the study on Kentucky and is now being sent by the Committee for a National Trade Policy, a voluntary, bipartisan organization supported by business, labor, farm and consumer groups.

Manufactured products totaling an estimated $6.1 million were exported by six Seventh District firms in 1960. These companies employed about 5,000 workers, or approximately two-thirds the manufacturing employees in the district. Their exports represented more than 2 per cent of their total value of shipments. The district's exports were undoubtedly higher than indicated, since some companies did not report in the survey. Nearly 60 per cent of Kentucky's manufactured exports were reported.

Primary metals, refractory products and petroleum products are the district's chief exports. Among the area's principal exporting manufacturers are Armco Steel Corporation's A.R.M. Co. Division plant in Ashland, making sheet steel; Harbison-Walker Refractories Company's establishment at Olive Hill, manufacturing refractories used in lining high-temperature industrial furnaces; and Ashland Oil and Refining Company, producers of refined oil, gasoline, kerosene, asphalt, fuel oil and lubricants.

The Seventh District's agricultural exports in 1960 were valued at $4.4 million, with tobacco the chief export commodity. This, too, is a principal export commodity, made up of a field-crop export total of $4.1 million. The balance of the district's share of farm exports included $225,000 in livestock and livestock products and $71,000 for fruits, nuts and vegetables.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, 11.6 per cent of Kentucky's farm workers owe their jobs to exports. Applying this proportion to the Seventh District indicates that about 2,000 of the area's 20,260 agricultural workers are needed to produce these foreign shipments of farm commodities.

Nationally, U.S. exports are running at a near record rate of more than $20 billion a year. About 75 percent of this total is in manufactured or semi-manufactured goods, and about $5 billion represents agricultural products. Like every other part of America, the Seventh District imports commodities from other countries, but most of these are non-compulsory products. They include special metals and other materials for primary metals manufacturers, kyanite mulite for refractories, and other items needed by industry. Agricultural products imported consist largely of coffee, tea, spices, flavors and similar commodities not grown in the United States. Actually, this country sells $5 billion a year more than it buys, with about two-thirds of our imports being non-competitive.

Greater Buying Power For Poor Seen Way To Boost Economy

Greater buying power for this nation's poor and deprived could be the key to a more rapid development of export trade, an economics group reported this week.

The conference on economic progress in a lengthy study of income distribution reported two-fifths of the population live in poverty or deprivation that makes them "sad, underdeveloped markets within this country."

The report booklet was prepared by a team of researchers led by Leon H. Keyserling, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors in the administration of Harry S. Truman.

The conference is a private, bipartisan group made up of labor leaders and business and professional men, many of whom are identified with liberal political causes.

individual and $4,000 or less for the head of a family. An additional 10 million were counted on the basis of family income, defined as individuals with incomes between $2,000 and $3,000.

comes between $1,000 and $2,000. The report said that a seventh of the population lived in poverty or deprivation that makes them "sad, underdeveloped markets within this country."

In the process, the report said, the 1961 level of consumption of goods and services would be increased by $100 billion by 1965 and by $200 billion by 1970.

Among suggestions were: "An increase of $16.5 billion in the federal budget by 1965 with expenditure for education, housing and community development, and those for health service and research increased 250 per cent."

Increased payments under Social Security program, reaching a point $17 billion above the 1961 level by 1965.

Reduction of income taxes on lower-income groups.

Liberalization of credit.

A special attack on farm poverty.

As the increases consistent with reasonable price stability.

The report said the rate of reduction in those living in poverty dropped from an average 2.7 a year between 1947 and 1953 to an average of only 1.1 per cent in the years 1954 through 1960, the latter being the latest year for which figures are available.

How Income Divided
In 1960, the report said, the 43 per cent of the population living in poverty or deprivation received a little over 22 per cent of national personal income. At the other end of the scale, 7 per cent of the population received 23 per cent of total personal income.

The report took cognizance of social factors contributing to low income, noting that in the South 68 per cent of families lived in poverty or deprivation in 1960 while among non-whites 80 per cent were in these income classifications.

Of families headed by persons 65 and over, nearly two-thirds were in the poverty classification while among unmarried individuals over 65 nearly four-fifths were in the poverty bracket.

Among families whose heads had fewer than eight years of schooling, 75 per cent of the seven-eighths were at the poverty or deprivation levels.

The report made clear that it approves expansion of foreign markets but held that these are relatively unimportant compared with the domestic potential among those now able to afford a modestly comfortable living.

Members Of 100th Division Looking Forward To August; Attitude Of Men Is Good

It was a normal work day for the 100th Division (Training), with one exception.

There was more banter, more whistling, all of it brought on by the announcement that the 2,000 members of the Kentucky outfit would be exchanging their uniforms for civilian clothing next August.

Attitudes of the men, who have been on active duty since last October, ranged from "I'll stay as long as I'm ready to go" to "I'm ready to leave now."

Like S. Sgt. Donald E. Bland of Hardinsburg, had hoped for an earlier release date. But Bland said he was happy that President Kennedy finally had set the time.

Kennedy said last week that, barring any "serious deterioration" in the world situation, the 155,000 reservists and National Guardsmen called to duty in the last year would go home in August. The 100th was the only full division called up.

Bland will be looking for work when he returns home. "I was deputy county clerk before the call-up," he explained. "The opposition party won last fall's election, so I got out of a job."

He isn't covered by the law at long released reservists to take back their old jobs or comparable ones with the same organization.

First Sgt. John A. Lewis Jr., of Hyden, commented, "If my job takes a year or five years, I'll stay. I moved to Arkansas with my family, and now this is just as much home as where I came from."

Lewis and others pointed out the release date hinges upon world conditions in August.

"I just can't believe that Kuchelhoe is going to sit back and let nothing happen," said Sgt. Henry Altman, Louisville.

The division's commanding general, Maj. Gen. Dillman A. Rash, called the announcement "splendid news for everyone in the 100th."

"It means that individuals will now have a reasonably definite date to plan their personal affairs with a good deal of assurance."

Motorcycle Patrolman William V. Vazarello of the Buffalo, N. Y., Police Department's champion rider of stolen cars, he nailed his last one of the year recently while driving home from work in his own automobile.

Last year he found 127. The year before he located 167. "I have a knack for remembering license plate numbers," he said.

Nonpartisan Group To Support Senator Morton

A nonpartisan Kentuckians for Morton Committee was organized recently to support Sen. Thurston B. Morton (R-Ky.) in his bid for re-election.

Mr. Earl W. Koles, Prospector, a Republican, and James S. Shropshire, Fayette County, a Democrat, are co-chairmen.

Headquarters of the group will be in Louisville and a statewide campaign for members is planned. The co-chairmen said.

Morton seeks the GOP nomination against Thurman Hamlin in the Kentucky Senate race. Marion Vance and James L. Deik of Frankfort.

Eminent Watercolorist Gives Art Lectures At Morehead

Miss Nell Storer, musician, watercolorist and "woman of the year" in Central City gave lectures and exhibited some of her watercolor paintings at Morehead State College April 9.

Along with her own paintings, Miss Storer also displayed some works of other famous watercolorists. Among these were Indian Artist Terry Saul from Bartlesville, Okla., Elton O'Hara, N. A.

Started Through Requests The gallery was started by Miss

Storer when several of her friends in Central City requested that she give art lessons. While looking for another teacher she contacted Selie Pearson, a fellow artist, and she simply stated "Why don't you open a gallery?"

Therefore, with this motivation, Miss Storer began her work in the gallery. In doing so, she fulfilled an obligation to her own community of 4,000 people and brought culture to the little town of Central City.

Succeeding in this rare experiment, Miss Storer was awarded the "woman of the year" award in recognition of her contribution to the cultural life of her home town.

Since the gallery was started in 1930, over 1,500 people have visit-

Camp Kysoc Built For Crippled Children

A camp with a difference—where crippled children can "do where other kids do"—is now a reality.

Camp Kysoc, built and developed by the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children, provides nearly normal camping opportunities for children in wheelchairs and braces, on crutches, or without sight. Its paved trails make hiking easier for physically handicapped children. Braille signs throughout help blind youngsters keep their bearings.

Last summer 86 Kentucky boys and girls participated in three-day sessions at Camp Kysoc. As development of the camp progresses, more and more crippled and blind children will be able to benefit from camping experiences.

Fishing and boating on the 20-acre lake, nature study, hikes through the woods, cook-outs at a site made by the campers, and crafts were among the activities enjoyed by the youngsters. They also helped with chores such as setting tables and helping keep buildings clean.

As important as the fun, according to the camp's director, is the opportunity crippled children have of helping others, of learning to accept limitations and make the most of abilities, of gaining self-confidence and a degree of independence, to enable them to grow into self-reliant adults.

Operation of Camp Kysoc, as well as other facilities of the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children, is financed through contributions to the annual Easter Seal Appeal, which began March 22 and will continue through Easter Sunday, April 22.

509 Rowan Countians Receive Aid Payments

Rowan County's public assistance recipients received $22,145 in aid last month through the State Department of Economic Security, Commissioner Earle V. Powell has announced.

The newly aged received a total of $12,528 in March, families receiving aid to dependent children were paid a total of $7,734, the newly blind $764 and the totally and permanently disabled $1,139.

A total of 469 persons in the county received public assistance payments during March. Statewide payments totaled more than $2.5 million during the month—Commissioner Powell added, and went to 145,920 needy Kentuckians.

FUN IN THE SUN—At Camp Kysoc, physically handicapped and blind youngsters have the opportunity "to do where other kids do." It's their first sessions last summer, with 86 boys and girls attending. Camp Kysoc, operated by the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children, is supported largely through contributions to the Easter Seal Campaign now in progress.

ed it, and several famous artists have held exhibits there. Art students and artists from various parts of the world have come to see the exhibits on display—and last month three Japanese from Tokyo came to see the gallery. Besides running the gallery, Storer is a part-time teacher. Miss Storer teaches an art class every other Tuesday night, and continues her studies under famous artists across the nation. All of this work with other successful artists is simply "invigorating," said Miss Storer.

Concerning her work in the small communities and in smaller schools such as Morehead, Miss Storer said such work was needed all over the United States today to help bring culture to the more remote communities, who do not have the opportunity to see good arts as the larger metropolitan areas do.

"Also," said Miss Storer, "I feel that it is a definite obligation for artists to help the small communities in their struggle for culture, and they need this help as much as the larger cities and towns."

Annual Fix-Up, Paint-Up

Clean-Up Month

In Morehead

April 16 THROUGH May 11

The mayor, and council, of Morehead, have officially proclaimed the period from Monday, April 16 through Friday, May 11 as annual Clean-Up Week. Every citizen is urged to cooperate for a beautiful community is impressive to visitors and is conducive to growth, prosperity, well-being and happiness.

Rural Citizens Urged to Participate

It is important to have a clean county seat. But, it is equally important that our farm and rural homes be clean, beautiful and attractive.

It's said that a farmer is known by how he keeps his mail box. Nothing is more attractive than a well kept farm and farm house. Sometimes a little paint and some cooperative family work makes a great difference.

Garbage Trucks Will Operate 4 Days Each Week

During these four Clean-Up weeks city garbage trucks will operate each Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. They have been instructed to pick up all refuse, etc., if placed at curbside. However, whenever possible, this should be placed in boxes, or receptacles, to expedite work of the Sanitation Department.
