RIOT IN ROWAN.

The Practical Joke of a Rowan Man, Upset Arms and Harsh Trees.

ROWAN, Ky., April 1.—John C. Day, a young man, was the leading spirit in a practical joke pulled on his neighbors here the other night. The affair took place in one of the wealthiest parts of the county.

Mr. Day and some of his friends, who were taking part in a meeting of a secret society, decided to pull a practical joke on the neighbors. They went to the home of one of the neighbors and broke in, taking all the money and jewelry they could find. They then left the house, scattering the money and jewelry in different directions.

Aided by a local constable, Mr. Day and his friends were arrested and taken to jail. The neighbors were shocked and appalled by the incident, and the constable was praised for his quick thinking and action.

Another account.

Mr. Fullerton, April 1.—The clouds of suspicion and mystery are still hanging over the Rowan incident, and the mystery of the affair is not yet solved. The police are still searching for clues and the guilty parties.

The police have been busy throughout the day, following up leads and questioning witnesses. The investigation is still in its early stages, and the police are hoping to make some progress soon.

The incident has created a great deal of excitement and concern among the residents of Rowan. The police are being praised for their efforts, and there is a general belief that justice will be done.

And still another.

Lexington, Ky., April 1.—A bloody battle took place in Rowan county tonight, and the police are still searching for the guilty parties.

Last night a group of men, including some of the local constables, got into a bar and began a spree. They were drinking heavily and became rowdy, causing a disturbance. The police were called, but they were unable to control the men.

The men then started a fight, and a bloody battle ensued. Several men were injured, and the police were called to the scene.

The police were able to control the situation, and the men were arrested. The incident is still under investigation, and the police are hoping to make some progress soon.
