

MSU's adult learning programs earns rewards

Morehead State University/Rowan County's Adult Learning Center and MSU at West Liberty's Adult Education and Career Center were among the adult education programs to share more than $1 million in incentive funds from Kentucky Adult Education for meeting or exceeding enrollment and performance goals in the 2006-07 fiscal year.

Only 70 Kentucky counties had adult education program to earn performance incentives. The MSU/Rowan County Adult Learning Center will receive $9,588 while MSU West Liberty's Adult Education and Career Center earned $7,752.

To qualify for incentive funds, local adult education programs must meet or exceed enrollment goals and at least 50 percent of their performance indicators. The indicators for 2006-07 included family literacy enrollment, GED attainment, transition of GED graduates to postsecondary education or training, and increase in academic skills.

Brad Cowgill, interim president of the Council on Postsecondary Education, recognized this as an important step toward Kentucky's goal of raising educational attainment to the national average by 2020.

"For Kentucky to double the number of college graduates by 2020, we must ensure more adults are earning GEDs and transitioning to college to earn their degree," said Cowgill.

In accordance with the state's 'Double the Numbers' goal, KYAE is working to increase the number of GEDs awarded annually to 15,000 and the college-going rate of GED graduates to 36 percent by 2020. In 2006, the state awarded 9,007 GEDs and had a GED college-going rate of 21 percent.

"In six years, nearly 70,000 Kentuckians earned a GED, ranking Kentucky 13th nationally in the percentage of non-high school completers earning a GED," said Sarah Hawker, vice president of Kentucky Adult Education at the Council. "This level of success in our local programs will ensure this kind of progress continues."

Performance incentive funding for each program is based on a percentage of the performance indicators achieved and is awarded as a percentage of their base funding. Programs can receive an award of up to 10 percent of their base funding for achieving 100 percent of their performance indicator goals.

Additional information is available by calling the MSU at West Liberty's Adult Education and Career Center at (606) 743-1599 or the MSU/Rowan County Adult Learning Center at (606) 783-2871.

Incubator advisory committee named for REC

Morehead State University President Wayne D. Andrews has appointed eight area citizens to serve on the newly created MSU Regional Enterprise Center's Incubator Advisory Committee.

MSU assumed operational responsibility from the University of Kentucky for the former Morgan County Regional Technology Center in West Liberty in July and manages the Center's Business Incubator to promote new business development.

"The presence of an Advisory Committee with successful private sector business people, educators and service providers to help formulate policy and provide guidance to the Center's incubating tenants will certainly elevate the University's mission to promote and support new economy innovations and business growth," said President Andrews.

Porter Dailey, director of the Regional Enterprise Center, said "the committee's primary function will be to assist the Center's staff in evaluating client applicants for occupancy in the incubator, advise on both general and specific incubator policies, assist in promoting the incubator, and identify and recruit new clients."

The Advisory Committee consists of Kay Boggs, entrepreneur, Sandy Hook; Jim Francis, patent attorney, Lexington; Hiten Somaia, CEO of My Simba Towel, Morehead; C.K. Stacy, president, Bank of the Mountains, West Liberty; John Ison, Ison Insurance, West Liberty; Mark Messer, ConnectKentucky and technology entrepreneur, Owingsville; and Dr. Ahmad Zargari, chair of MSU's Department of Industrial and Engineering Technology.

The MSU West Liberty Small Business Development Center consultant also will serve on the committee.

"The Advisory Committee is comprised of individuals who have been successful in business at the local, national and international level, understand the intricacies of intellectual property rights, financing, insurance and technologies," stated Johnathan Gay, committee facilitator and director of the West Liberty Innovation Center.

Information on the Business Incubator, the Innovation Center or other programs at the Regional Enterprise Center are available by calling (606) 743-4005.

Faculty exhibition now open

The main gallery in the Claypool-Young Art Building at Morehead State University will host the 2007 Annual MSU Art Faculty Exhibition, Nov. 14-Dec. 12.

This yearly exhibition showcases the artworks of faculty in the Department of Art. Reflecting the strength and diversity of the department's programs and instruction, the show features a wide range of media and techniques. Oil and acrylic paintings, drawings and prints, two- and three-dimensional textile works, traditional and digital photography, computer generated imagery, as well as sculpture and ceramic works, will be on display.

An opening reception will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 14, from 6-8 p.m. with complimentary refreshments along with live jazz music. The reception is free and open to the public.

In association with the exhibition, there will be an Art Faculty Forum on Thursday, Nov. 15 from 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Exhibiting art instructors will be on hand to discuss their work and field questions. There will be refreshments available.

The main gallery in the Claypool-Young Art Building features contemporary art for the MSU community as well as the University's service region of East Kentucky. Gallery programming, such as visiting artist lectures and workshops, are funded in part by MSU's Department of Art and Office of Communications and Marketing. The gallery is open weekdays, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. or by appointment. There is no charge for viewing. Parking is available on Main Street and Elizabeth Avenue, behind Claypool-Young. Additional information on the exhibit is available by calling Jennifer Reis, gallery director, at (606) 783-5446.

Tickets on sale for 'Ye Olde Madrigal Feaste'

Once a year, Morehead State University students, staff and faculty step back in time and place to medieval Europe to present "Ye Olde Madrigal Feaste."

The campus community is invited to spend an evening in the company of the lords and ladies, knights and naves, and jesters and jugglers. Preparations are now underway for the musical, visual and culinary celebration, scheduled to be held Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 29-Dec. 1.

The Feaste, the University's official holiday dinner, is a 21st century rendition of Renaissance feasts held in baronial halls throughout England, celebrating the 12 days of Christmas. The event will feature gourmet food, themed entertainment, vocal and instrumental music and roving performers.

It will be held in the Crager Room of the Adron Doran University Center at 7 p.m. each evening. The doors open at 6:30 p.m., with traditional holiday music.

The evening's activities will begin with the grand processional of the lords and ladies, minstrels and chanteuses and the "Lord of Misrule" - Dr. Bob Willenbrink, chair of the Department of Communication and Theatre and master of ceremonies for the feaste. Brass fanfare will introduce the madrigal singers, who will fill the "castle" with sounds of the season.

A meal "fit for a king" will be served, complete with wassail and topped off with festive flaming plum pudding. Those who attend are encouraged to come dressed in Renaissance festival costumes, or traditional holiday attire.

Sponsored by the MSU Arts & Humanities Council, Ye Olde Madrigal Feaste is presented by faculty, staff and students in the departments of art, music and communication and theatre. It is an annual fundraiser that supports educational opportunities for students enrolled in programs within the Caudill College of Humanities.

Several academic department and units collaborate for the celebration, including the Departments of English, Foreign Languages and Philosophy, the Department of Geography, Government and History, the Office of Communications and Marketing and Morehead State Public Radio.

Advance reservations are necessary by Nov. 27. Individual tickets are $30. Group tickets for tables of eight or more guests also are available.

Additional information on reservations or sponsoring this year's Madrigal Feaste is available by calling the communication and theatre office at (606) 783-2134 or (606) 783-2545, or by visiting the office at 111 Breckinridge Hall.

Council's funding request focuses on educational attainment and research

The Council on Postsecondary Education approved its 2008-10 budget request today, which recommends a funding increase of $174 million, or 16 percent, for Kentucky's postsecondary education institutions over the biennium. The funding request focuses on increasing access to postsecondary education and meeting state goals, including increasing the state's educational attainment by doubling the number of college graduates in the state and promoting research, economic and community development.

"Our new funding approach is designed to create a tighter contract with state policymakers to ensure they are clearly seeing the return on their investment in postsecondary education," said Brad Cowgill, interim president of the Council on Postsecondary Education. "This request seeks to achieve a new level of accountability and transparency in the way we do business in postsecondary education, while maintaining quality and ensuring access and affordability for Kentuckians to earn a college degree."

The Council's budget request comes as the result of months of discussions with university presidents, chief budget officers, chief academic officers, state policymakers and others.

The request includes funding for strategic statewide investments including:

- $25 million for a new incentive funding program called the Double the Numbers Degree Fund. This fund would reward public four-year universities for increasing bachelor's degree production and the Kentucky Community and Technical College System (KCTCS) for increasing the number of associate degrees and transfers to four-year institutions. Proposed additional incentive funds would encourage degrees awarded to minority students, developmental education students, transfer students and students earning degrees in science, technology, engineering and math fields.
- $22.5 million for the KCTCS Access Initiative to offset the costs of freezing tuition over the biennium at Kentucky's community and technical colleges.
- $200 million to fund the Bucks for Brains program, which matches private donations with state funds. The Council recently released a ten-year report for this program showing it has resulted in more than $282 million in private gifts to public universities and a 47 percent increase in annual giving at the University of Kentucky and the University of Louisville.
- $40 million to implement the recommendations from statewide task forces on developmental education and science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM) to accelerate improvements in each of these areas.

The budget request also includes a recommendation of $800 million for capital projects at Kentucky's public colleges and universities. These funds would begin to address the backlog of renovations and repairs identified by a 2007 statewide assessment of public university campus facilities as well as designate $497 million for new education and research building on public campuses.

Robotics team wins at NAIT

A robotics team from Morehead State University's Department of Industrial and Engineering Technology finished first at the recent collegiate Tele-Operated Robotic Manipulator Contest at the 40th Annual Convention of the National Association of Industrial Technology (NAIT) held in Panama City, Fla.

The competitors were from 11 other institutions including Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, Iowa State University, University of Northern Iowa, University of North Dakota, University of Wisconsin-Platteville, Eastern Kentucky University, Missouri State University, Central Connecticut State University, Millersville University, California Polytechnic State University, and Spoon River College.

The MSU robotics team took first place for its tele-operated robot dubbed "Scarabot" in a competition to find a magnet buried on the beach. The task for the robots in the contest was to locate a 150-pound pull magnet buried 4" beneath the sand in a 24' x 24' area of the beach and plant an 8" flag pole with a NAIT logo paper flag to indicate the magnet's location.

For their accomplishments, IET students Curtis Adkins, Florence senior; Joshua Bowes, Owingsvillesophomore; and Christiane Lutz, Vorarlberg, Austria, junior; were awarded prizes including high-end 3D software, Parallax robotics kits, a Lincoln MIG welder, various textbooks, a cash prize and the NAIT grand champion traveling trophy.

Along with these prizes, the robotics team and NAIT student chapter president, Jimmy Higdon, Springfield senior, are being awarded weeklong robotics training at Rixan Associates Inc. "Our robot's performance was outstanding. Curtis, Christiane and Josh spent many long nights in their lab building and improving the robot to make it a champion," said Dr. Yuqiu You, assistant professor of IET and the robotics team adviser. "Teamwork, patience and a collective knowledge yielded just that, a winning design."

Additional information is available by calling Dr. Ahmad Zargari, IET department chair, at (606) 783-2013.

Drs. Ernst, Baldwin to have booksigning at CoffeeTree Books

Morehead State University's Dr. John Ernst, professor of history, and Dr. Yvonne Baldwin, professor and chair of the Department of Geography, Government and History, will sign copies of "The War That Never Ends: New Perspectives on the Vietnam War" at CoffeeTree Books at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 17. The book is a new collection of essays that sheds light on the conflict. Dr. Ernst, a co-editor on the project, along with Dr. David L. Anderson, dean of the College of University Studies and Programs at California State University at Monterey Bay, unite America's leading Vietnam War scholars to reexamine old interpretations and offer new insights on the motives, execution, and aftermath of the conflict. Contributors tackle the issues of the relationship between America and Vietnam, the military experiences of U.S. soldiers, the delineation of allies and enemies, and examine the war's influence on Congress, the media, and the nation as a whole.

Dr. Baldwin co-wrote a chapter, "In the Valley: The Combat Infantryman and the Vietnam War."

Additional information is available by calling Dr. Ernst at (606) 783-2484 or CoffeeTree Books, 240 Morehead Plaza, at (606) 784-8364.

Baruth, Roseman joins music faculty

Two accomplished musicians have joined the woodwind faculty in the Department of Music at Morehead State University.

Lori Baruth, clarinet, and Dr. Jacob Roseman, flute, have been named assistant professors of music.

Baruth is active as a chamber musician and recitalist with several performances throughout the United States to her credit. She has performed with the Westerville Symphony Orchestra, the Central Ohio Symphony Orchestra, the Heisey Wind Ensemble and the Opera Theater and Music Festival of Lucca Orchestra of Lucca, Italy.

A clarinet faculty for festivals and academies, she has coached and adjudicated many clarinetists in Ohio and Kentucky. Additionally, she has been the director of The Ohio State University Clarinet Choir.

Baruth is a graduate of OSU, having earned Bachelor of Music and Bachelor of Music Education as well as Master of Music degrees. She currently is completing a Doctor of Musical Arts degree from the College-Conservatory of Music at the University of Cincinnati.

Currently, she is a member of the Baird Winds, MSU's woodwind quintet.

Dr. Roseman has performed in concerts throughout the United States and Europe, as well as Japan as a solo recitalist and as a chamber musician. His orchestra credits include: the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra, the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, Concerto Soloists of Philadelphia, the Tallahassee Symphony Orchestra and the Savannah Symphony Orchestra.

For 10 seasons, Dr. Roseman also served as principal flutist of the Green Bay Symphony Orchestra. Full fellowships to music festivals include the National Orchestral Institute, the New College Music Festival, and the Salzburg Festival. He also has taught at the Eastman School of Music, Florida State University and at numerous institutions in Wisconsin.

Dr. Roseman holds a Bachelor of Music degree from the Philadelphia College of the Arts, a Master of Music degree from Eastman, a Doctor of Music degree from FSU and a certificate from the Mozarteum International Summer Academy (Salzburg, Austria).

He also is a member of the Baird Winds, and performs with his wife, pianist Molly Roseman, as the Roseman Duo. He released his debut CD in 2006 to well-received acclaim and currently is planning future recordings.

Additional information is available by calling the department at (606) 783-2473.

Taylor presents lecture recital

Dr. Paul Taylor, associate professor of music at Morehead State University, will perform a lecture recital, "The Ideas Behind the Music," on Thursday, Nov. 15, at 8 p.m. in Duncan Recital Hall of Baird Music Hall.

Works by Ravel, Beethoven, Ginastera and Faure will be featured, all of which are based on extramusical ideas and emotions. Discussion and performances will demonstrate the relationship of how these extramusical ideas and emotions are expressed in the music.

A bachelor's degree graduate of the University of Texas at Austin, Dr. Taylor holds a master's degree from the University of Illinois and a doctoral degree from the University of Wisconsin.

At MSU, Dr. Taylor teaches piano, music history and various other courses. He has been published in numerous music education journals, and has performed at many festivals, recitals and workshops around the world.

He will be joined by George Eklund, associate professor of English, who will recite excerpts from Bertrands Gaspard de la nuit, the poetic basis of a piano piece that will be performed that evening.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Addition information is available by calling Dr. Taylor in the Department of Music at (606) 783-2473.

UCM helps Knott Countian become a teacher

A Knott County woman is able to fulfill her dream to become a teacher and continue a family tradition in education because of the University Center of the Mountains partnership and Morehead State University.

Christina Gibson, 23, of Hindman is enrolled in the MSU middle grades educational program offered in Hazard via the University Center of the Mountains (UCM). She completed her Associate of Arts degree (the first two years) at Hazard Community & Technical College prior to transferring to the MSU program.

"Having the Morehead State University degree program available close to home made all the difference in the world for me to continue my education," Gibson said. "Because of family illness I wanted to continue my education close to home. I have saved a lot of money as well as time having the degree program located here."

Despite having a family tradition in education, Gibson did not realize she wanted to be a teacher until she helped her mother, Knott County Central High School art instructor Carolyn Gibson, with an art camp in the summer 2006.

"I loved it and realized I wanted to work with middle grade students. My passion for teaching grew even more when I took my first classes in the MSU program in the spring," Gibson added.

Her father, Rhett Gibson, was a teacher and coach. Her aunt, Marcia Thompson, teaches chorus and music at KCCHS. Her grandfather, Ray Slone, taught for more than 30 years.

"I did not know I wanted to follow in my family's footsteps until I had obtained my associate degree at Hazard Community and Technical College. I am so thankful that we have bachelor's degrees locally so we do not have to leave home," Gibson said.

For more information about the 18 bachelor and seven master's degrees offered through the University Center of the Mountains, visit the UCM Web site at www.ucmky.org; call (606) 487-3158; or contact director Ron Daley at ron.daley@kctcs.edu. The UCM administrative offices are located on the Hazard Campus of HCTC. Additional information about MSU's educational degrees and programs is available by contacting Dr. Will Kayatin, director of MSU at Jackson, locally at (606) 666-2800 or toll free at (800) 729-5225.

SBDC helps Oil Springs resident open business

Robin Blanton entered into a new adventure in her life by opening her own business in October.

With assistance from Morehead State University's Small Business Development Center, Rustic Heirlooms by Robin Renee' took its first steps in the business world.

According to Phil Greene, director of Paintsville's SBDC office, Blanton is a gifted and talented sketch artist and professional photographer. She completes the "rustic" look of her sketches and pictures by designing and building her own wooden frames.

Each frame is like a snowflake as no two are exactly alike. She has done this type of work for the past several years, but the start-up of her business was a new twist. Blanton took woodworking classes at Big Sandy Community and Technical College's Mayo Campus in Paintsville. In those classes, she became determined to combine her passion for woodworking into a profitable business.

Blanton had received substantial photography credits for her work. Singer Manda Leigh and her producer, Magoffin County native Rebecca Lynn Howard, asked Blanton to photograph them in various settings. After the photographs were placed on the "My Space" Web site, several others requested the opportunity to have her photograph them.

Committed to providing a variety of designs, she wanted to provide the community with an alternative to the current locations where photography and framing are done. Blanton's ability to color-coordinate frames with current home furnishings and colorings has allowed customers a welcome addition to their homes.

Blanton opened her business, located at her home in Oil Springs, with a modest inventory of frames and sketches and a small loan from the Mountain Association for Community Economic Development (MACED).

"I came to the Kentucky Highlands Entrepreneur Center in hopes of starting my own business. I did not realize what was available until I stopped in," Blanton stated in a letter to the Center. "Kelli Hall, director of the center; Phil Greene, MSU's SBDC consultant; and Regina Becknell and Yvonne Burchett of MACED, laid out all the possibilities and made me realize my goals were obtainable.

"Everything I needed was there. Business information, a business plan and a financing option were all available under one roof. If they don't have the answers, they have the resources to point me in the right direction to find the answer. I am thankful for this opportunity and their knowledge and expertise has made all this possible for me," Blanton said.

Additional information on SBDC is available by calling Sabrina Jude at (606) 788-6022 or Greene at (606) 788-6008.

Johnson named admission counselor

A Morehead State University graduate will take the message of his alma mater to prospective students as an admissions counselor.

Patrick Johnson recently joined the staff of the Office of Enrollment Services where he will work as a recruiter. He will represent the University at high school visits, college fairs and other events, sharing information about degree programs, admissions procedures, financial aid and more with students and their families.

He previously was employed at the University of Kentucky and Sullivan University in the student services/admissions areas.

Johnson is a 2003 MSU graduate, earning a bachelor's degree in public relations. While an undergraduate, he was a member of the Eagles' football team and Kappa Sigma fraternity. Currently pursuing a master's degree in communications, he is an avid runner.

His wife Keri, a 2003 MSU graduate, is a science teacher at Bath County High School.

McWhorter named top cadet

Morehead State University's ROTC Cadet Robert McWhorter, Morehead senior, has ranked 22 out of 4,099 cadets from 272 universities across the nation. His ranking makes him the top ranked cadet in the Cadet Command's 7th Brigade, which includes all the universities in Kentucky and Ohio.

"His achievements have not only brought national recognition and honor to him as an individual, but are testimony of the training standards of our ROTC program and the quality of education provided at MSU," said Maj. Maxwell Ammons, professor of military science.

This makes the second year in a row that the top cadet in the state of Kentucky is from MSU. Last year, Shannon Niki Martin was the third ranked cadet in the nation and the top ranked in Kentucky.

The national ranking system, called the "order of merit" list, is a combination of accomplishments from the last three years. The top 20 percent nationally are awarded the title of Distinguished Military Graduate (DMG). This year, MSU has four of eight cadets in the 2008 senior class listed as DMG's for a rate of 50 percent, also the highest in Kentucky and Ohio.

Every cadet is rated on a point system based on activities completed during the last three years. A number of factors go into an accession packet and all 4,099 cadets nationwide are ranked according to the number of points they achieve.

Cadets are judged on grade point average (40 percent), McWhorter has a 4.0; Leadership and Military Skills Performance (45 percent), which includes his evaluations from Warrior Forge (summer training at Ft. Lewis, Wash.) and ranking among his platoon at Warrior Forge (he was first of 48 cadets in his platoon), physical fitness and extracurricular activities (15 percent).

McWhorter, a business administration major and military science minor, is Commander of the Scabbard and Blade National Military Honor Society at MSU. A member of Beta Gamma Sigma and National Scholars Honor Society, he is currently serving as the Eagle Battalion Operations Officer.

McWhorter is married to the former Heather Handshoe, a May 2007 graduate in business administration from MSU. He will be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant during the May 2008 Commencement ceremonies.

Vance promoted at Camden-Carroll Library

Jason Vance has been named assistant dean for research and instructional services at Morehead State University's Camden-Carroll Library. He began his new post Nov. 1.

From 2001-2007, Vance served as CCL's interlibrary loan and regional campus coordinator. He succeeds Carol Nutter, who retired in July.

"Jason Vance has the leadership ability and vision to continue building Camden-Carroll Library's reputation as an outstanding service-oriented academic library. We are fortunate to have someone with his capability at Morehead State University," said Elsie Pritchard, dean of library services.

Vance earned his bachelor's degree in English and allied language arts from Western Kentucky University and received his master's degree in library and information science from Simmons College in Boston, Mass.

"I'm happy to serve the University in this new role, and I look forward to continuing the tradition of providing quality research and instructional services to the MSU community," said Vance.

He is a graduate of the President's Leadership Academy.

Distinguished Teacher Award nominations wanted

Nominations are now being accepted for Morehead State University's 2007-08 Distinguished Teacher Award.

MSU's Professional Development Committee is soliciting nominations from MSU faculty, staff, students, alumni and the general public. The award, established in 1964 by the MSU Alumni Association, is given annually to recognize an outstanding teacher in the classroom.

The primary criteria for the award are that the recipient challenge and stimulate students in their academic pursuit and qualify as a full-time faculty member of tenured or special status.

Nominations should include the name, address and telephone number of the person making the nomination along with a one-page letter detailing how the nominee meets the criteria. Previous recipients of the award are not eligible.

All nominations should be submitted to Dr. Karla Hughes, provost, by 4:30 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 3. Her mailing address is Morehead State University, 205 Howell-McDowell Administration Building, 150 University Blvd., Morehead, KY 40351-1689.

Additional information and a detailed list of the criteria may be obtained in 205 Howell-McDowell or by calling (606) 783-2002.

CMAP students help Literacy Day activities

A group of Morehead State University students will support literacy efforts with two special events on Monday, Nov. 19.

Students enrolled in the CMAP 382, Principles of Public Relations, are working with community and campus leaders to sponsor Family Literacy Day in Morehead. The day's events will include Morehead Mayor Bradley Collins signing a proclamation declaring Nov. 19 "Morehead Family Literacy Day."

On Monday, the CMAP students also will be delivering more than 350 books to preschool pupils in Rowan County at these schools: Rowan County Pre-School; Rowan County Christian Academy; Lakeside Academy; Pre-School at Morehead United Methodist Church; and Gateway Head Start. The book giveaway is funded by a literacy grant from The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi.

The students are working under the supervision of Dr. Janet McCoy, assistant professor of advertising and public relations, who was awarded the $2,500 literacy grant from Phi Kappa Phi. She is one of 16 recipients nationwide to receive such an award.

"The public relations students are excited about these opportunities and have shown great initiative in planning and implementing these events," Dr. McCoy said. "They are gaining real-world experience in event planning and media relations."

In addition to the book giveaway, the grant money is being used to implement monthly parent and child enrichment activities for clients at the MSU Adult Learning Center. This programming is provided by students majoring in education and their professors, including: Dr. June Grice, assistant professor of music; Dr. Emma Perkins, associate professor of art; and Dr. Mattie Decker, assistant professor of education.

"I am grateful that my university colleagues and their students have decided to participate. Projects of this magnitude require specialized expertise across disciplines,"

Dr. McCoy said. "The public relations students are good at promotion and logistics but the educational content needs to be provided by experts in that field."

Additionally, the book distribution project and monthly enrichment activities have received support from Morehead State Public Radio, and Scholastic Books assisted with reduced book prices and free shipping for the program.

Additional information is available by calling Dr. McCoy at (606) 783-2603, or by e-mail at j.mccoy@moreheadstate.edu .

Shoney's Run revived

A local businessman hosted Morehead State University's ROTC cadets at a special Veteran's Day run on Monday, Nov. 12.

At dawn, approximately 50 cadets, escorted by a Morehead Police Department officer in a cruiser, began their run in formation along KY 32. The runners were surprised by a sudden stop at Shoney's, where they were greeted and treated to breakfast by Wally Ewers, who owns the restaurant in Morehead and one in Paintsville.

Once known as the "Shoney's Run," this traditional event was revived this year as a reward for the students who participate in ROTC, and as a reminder of the community's support for those who serve.

Ewers said he was happy to host the run, citing many influences in his life that were related to his father's serve in the military, as well as the serve of two of his uncles. One uncle, Sgt. Maj. (Retired) Bill Ewers, assisted in the establishment of the ROTC at MSU.

Cadet Maj. Lucy Bowen, Inez senior and MSU Eagle Battalion executive officer, coordinated the event with Ewers.

MSU ROTC faculty and staff who participated in the run included: Maj. Maxwell Ammons, professor of military science; Michael Campbell, supply technician; Sgt. 1st Class Stephen Flack, training NCO; and Master Sgt. Edward Eddins, chief instructor of military science. Additional information is available by calling the Department of Military Science at (606) 783-5225.

Americana Crossroads Live set for Nov. 30

Traditional and old-time fiddle group Kentucky

Memories, acoustic guitarist Russ Barenberg and country blues duo Paul Rishell and Annie Raines, will perform at the next edition of "Americana Crossroads Live."

Morehead State Public Radio (MSPR) and the Kentucky Center for Traditional Music will present the program on Friday, Nov. 30, at the Morehead Conference Center, located on First Street. Doors will open at 6:30 p.m. with the music to start at 7 p.m.

Kentucky Memories represents old-time fiddle styles from East Kentucky. The group uses its music to honor many great notable fiddlers such as Buddy Thomas, George Hawkins, Bob Prater, Jimmy Wheeler, J.P. Fraley, Ed Haley, and Kenny Baker.

Members of the group include: Roger Cooper, fiddle; Michael Garvin, fiddle and guitar; Keith Garvin, jews harp and bass guitar; Phillip Litteral, rhythm guitar; and Billy Wright, guitar.

Barenberg is known as one of the most melodic instrumentalists in contemporary acoustic music, and his compositions are among the finest the genre has to offer. He got his start in 1970 with the groundbreaking bluegrass band Country Cooking. Since then, he has been a member of a variety of highly influential groups, most notably his collaboration from 1989 to 2001 in a trio with dobro master Jerry Douglas and bassist Edgar Meyer.

Barenberg has performed and recorded with many other top acoustic and country music artists including Randy Travis, Emmy Lou Harris, Ricky Skaggs, Tim O'Brien, Sam Bush, Paul Brady, Darryl Scott, Joan Osborne, Bryan Sutton, Aly Bain, Phil Cunningham, Eddi Reader, Natalie McMaster and Sharon Shannon.

While working on the CD, Swear to Tell the Truth, Rishell met Raines. Her work on the project heralded the beginning of a productive musical partnership as the two have become a steadfast touring and recording team, working as an acoustic and electric duo, as well as with a full band. Since 1992, they have gained an even greater following in the U.S. and overseas, performing and teaching at festivals, workshops, clubs and concert halls, and doing session work as well.

"Americana Crossroads Live" is supported by Toyota Motor Manufacturing of Kentucky, Morehead Conference Center, Morehead Tourism Commission and EAT Gallery. Community partners include the Kentucky Folk Art Center, Morehead State University's Caudill College of Humanities, Arts and Humanities Council, Office of Communications and Marketing, Root-A-Baker's Bakery, and Papa John's.

The series is now heard on 38 radio stations across the United States, Canada and in the Philippines.

Concessions and door prizes will be available. Admission is $5 per person, or $20 for a family pack of five.

Children, 12 and under, are admitted free.

Additional information on "Americana Crossroads Live" is available on MSPR's Web site at www.mspradio.com or by calling MSPR at (606) 783-2001 or (800) 286-9659.

Dr. Mattingly honored by KAS

Dr. Bruce Mattingly, associate provost for research and sponsored programs at Morehead State University, has been honored as the recipient of the Kentucky Academy of Science (KAS) 2007 Outstanding Academy Service Award.

The award was presented at the recent 93rd Annual Kentucky Academy of Science meeting co-hosted by Bellarmine University and the University of Louisville.

Dr. Mattingly has had a long standing association with the Academy and has served in various roles for KAS. One of his first presentations, as an undergraduate student, was at the Academy's annual meeting in 1973.

Since then he has presented numerous times at KAS meetings. He has served twice as chair of the Academy's Psychology Section and twice as secretary to that section. He has served on the Academy's Governing Board multiple times and he has chaired many of its sub-committees. He became vice-president in 2003, president-elect in 2004, president in 2005 and past president in 2006.

Known for renewing the spirit and mission of the Academy, he organized the KAS meeting in 2006 host by Morehead State. He has also been involved in many other activities for the state of Kentucky such as with the Kentucky Biomedical Infrastructure Network (KBRIN).

The Kentucky Academy of Science, www.kyscience.org, encourages scientific research and promotes the dissemination of the scientific interests of the Commonwealth of Kentucky. Established in 1914, the Academy is an Affiliate of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the National Association of Academies of Science .

Additional information is available by calling Dr. Mattingly at (606) 783-2010.

CRE to host forums

Morehead State University's Center for Regional Engagement (CRE) is hosting seven public forums throughout East Kentucky in search of ideas on how MSU can better serve the region.

The final two forums will be Thursday, Dec. 13, at 3:30 p.m. at MSU at Ashland in room 275; and Thursday, Dec. 13, at 7:30 p.m. at the Morehead Conference Center.

The CRE serves as a primary entrance point to the University for individuals and/or organizations seeking to access the public services and outreach programs of the institution. CRE is responsible for coordinating all of the University's regional engagement activities which enhance the quality of life in East Kentucky and the Commonwealth of Kentucky through assistance to P-12 schools, business and industry, community-based non-profit organizations, and local government.

The Center for Regional Engagement is a joint initiative between the Council for Postsecondary Education (CPE) and all state's public regional universities.

The goal for the initiative, as defined by CPE , seeks to:

"Promote regional and statewide economic development, livable communities, social inclusion, creative governance, and civic participation through public engagement activities initiated by comprehensive university faculty and staff. Its purpose is to link the resources and knowledge of our universities to the needs and challenges of their respective regions."

Forums will be hosted by President Wayne D. Andrews, Dr. Karla Hughes, provost, and Dr. David Rudy, associate provost for engagement.

Participants will be asked to share opinions on the challenges and opportunities in local communities and how MSU can help improve the quality of life for all East Kentuckians.

Additional information is available by calling Dr. Rudy at (606) 783-5419 or by visiting the CRE Web site at www.moreheadstate.edu/engagement/ .

Fall enrollment highest in three years

Morehead State University has achieved its largest enrollment in three years and the most full-time freshmen in four years, based on reports to the Kentucky Council on Postsecondary Education.

The final counts are 9,066 students - the most since 2004 - and 1,409 new freshmen - the highest since 2003. This year's freshmen also have the highest ACT composite score ever at 20.9.

MSU enrolled 9,025 students last year on its six campuses and through the Internet.

"The overall increase is modest but we believe it signals a growing awareness that Morehead State is a high quality institution with outstanding academic programs and a top-to-bottom commitment to student success," said MSU President Wayne D. Andrews.

He continued:

"Our growth in student quality and quantity show that we are serious about meeting our state mandate to enroll, retain and graduate more students than ever before in our 120-year history."

For the fourth consecutive year, MSU was recognized earlier this fall as a top tier regional public university in the South in the "America's Best Colleges" rankings of U.S. News & World Report.

Kentucky's public colleges and universities have been charged to double the number of four-year college graduates by 2020.

Students help with Madrigal Feaste

Morehead State University's annual celebration, Ye Olde Madrigal Feaste, highlights the combined creative efforts of faculty, staff and students to make it a successful production.

This year, 47 MSU students will lend their talents to the Feaste as musicians or vocalists. The University's official holiday dinner is a 21st century rendition of Renaissance feasts held in baronial halls throughout England, celebrating the 12 days of Christmas. The event will feature gourmet food, themed entertainment, vocal and instrumental music and roving performers.

The experience is slated for Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 30-Dec. 1, in the Crager Room of the Adron Doran University Center at 7 p.m. each evening. The doors open at 6:30 p.m. with traditional holiday music.

Those who attend are encouraged to add to the festive atmosphere by dressing in Renaissance festival costumes, or if they prefer, in traditional holiday attire.

Sponsored by the MSU Arts & Humanities Council, the fundraiser supports educational opportunities for students enrolled in programs within the Caudill College of Humanities.

Tickets are still available for the Feaste. Advance reservations are necessary by Tuesday, Nov. 27. Individual tickets are $30. Group tickets may be purchased for tables of eight or more guests.

Kappa Delta Pi inducts students into international honor society

Morehead State University's Kappa Delta Pi recently inducted 27 education honor students into the international honor society.

Students were recognized for their academic achievement and leadership in the field of education. The inductees represented several program areas in the College of Education such as elementary, middle grades education, secondary education, special education, and health and physical education.

The ceremony was held in the Commonwealth Room of the Adron Doran University Center. In attendance were: Dr. April Miller, assistant dean of the college; Angel Elliott, MSU and KDP alumnus and a teacher at McNabb Middle School; Dr. Kimberlee Sharp, assistant professor of education and adviser of MSU's Epsilon Theta Chapter; along with KDP officers, members, inductees and their families.

Kappa Delta Pi's mission is to foster service, scholarship and professional growth among its members. The Epsilon Theta Chapter of the KDP of Morehead State achieves this by involving its members in community service, fund raising and professional development activities.

CCL requesting for U.S. Training School artifacts

Morehead State University is searching for remembrances about 4,500 sailors who trained here during World War II to become shipboard electricians.

Being sought are photographs, official documents, uniform insignia and any other memorabilia from the U.S. Naval Training School (Electrical) at MSU between June 1942 and July 1944.

The artifacts will be retained on a permanent basis in the University's archives and used for future special exhibits. Donna J. Baker, coordinator of special collections at MSU's Camden-Carroll Library, said of the search for artifacts from Navy's presence at MSU:

"We hope to greatly expand our collection on the Naval Training School through the gift or loan of memorabilia from the former sailors or their families. We are aware that a few of those veterans returned to this area to live out their lives. We are especially interested in their stories."

An MSU historical marker about the Navy school is located in front of Thompson Hall, one of the housing facilities used by the sailors.

Special Collections and Archives also is interested in historical materials relating to Morehead State University's experience during the war in general. Items of particular interest would be letters sent between soldiers and MSU students, faculty, staff or librarians.

"We have a very small collection of letters from servicemen who responded to letters from our librarians," said Baker. "We would like to see the other side of this correspondence if it survived the war. We would like to have more materials that help tell the story of the Morehead (University) community during World War II, but the letters are always interesting."

Anyone with information regarding the naval school or Morehead during the war may contact Baker at (606) 783-5122 or via e-mail at dj.baker@moreheadstate.edu.

OperaWorks to salute Menotti

A tribute to American composer Gian Carlo Menotti, who died earlier this year, will be presented by Morehead State University OperaWorks on Dec. 6, 7, and 8 at 8 p.m. in Duncan Recital Hall in the Baird Music Building on campus.

The featured operas are Menotti's comic work, The Telephone, and one of the most famous and beloved works for the Christmas season, Amahl and the Night Visitors, the first opera commissioned especially for television. Amahl premiered as a Hallmark Special by the NBC Television Opera Theatre, conducted by Thomas Schippers, in New York City on Dec. 24, 1951. Both operas have remained staples in the repertory, and both are popular with all kinds of audiences, even those who are not particularly fond of opera.

The evening will open with Menotti's 1947 work, The Telephone. Appearing as Lucy will be Amy Painter, a senior psychology major from Louisa. The role of Ben will be double-cast, featuring Dustin Stevens, a sophomore vocal performance major from Morehead, and William Murphy, a sophomore vocal performance major from Hawesville. Matthew Leonard, Cherry Hill, Ohio, graduate student, will be the student director for the work.

Amahl and the Night Visitors reflects Menotti's childhood in Italy, where the Three Kings visit the homes of children on Christmas Eve. The role of Amahl will be double-cast. Appearing on Thursday, Dec. 6 is Lori Patterson, Harrodsburg freshman. On Dec. 7 and 8, Christian Lewis, the son of Tom and Lesley Lewis, a student at Clearfield Elementary School, will perform the role.

The role of the Mother also will be double-cast, featuring Kristen Brown, a junior vocal performance major from Richmond, and Merritt McElroy, graduate student in vocal performance, from Knoxville, Tenn. King Kaspar will be played by Leonard Clark Walker, a Vinton, Ohio, senior, will appear as King Melchior. Performing the role of King Balthazar will be Henry McGuire, graduate student in vocal performance from Uniontown. Murphy will play the Kings' Page.

Chia-Ling Hsieh, instructor of music, is the pianist for OperaWorks. Amanda Wells, a Rowan County music educator, is the choreographer for the shepherd dances and the repetiteur for Lewis, preparing him for the singing role.

Dr. Roma Prindle, associate professor of music, founded and directs OperaWorks. It was established in 1993 to provide much needed stage experience for voice majors at MSU. The ensemble has been an ambassador for the Department of Music throughout Kentucky, southern Ohio and Indiana.

Following the example set by the late Beverly Sills, OperaWorks seeks to bring opera to the people. They also work to recruit students in vocal performance as well as music education. They have undertaken two international performance tours. OperaWorks presented several performances of A Kentucky Mummer's Play in Ireland in 2000. In 2004, Wild Mountain Thyme was performed throughout England and Wales.

Admission is $5 for adults, and $2 for students and senior citizens. Children under the age of 12 will be admitted without charge. Tickets may be purchased at the door or by calling (606) 783-9464.

MSU at Ashland student enjoys practicum with CARES

A Morehead State University senior found that a collegiate academic requirement brought her not only invaluable experience, but also landed her a job in her field.

This fall, Larin Crawford-Barham of South Point , Ohio , completed a practicum with Leslie Moore, director of CARES (Community Assistance and Referral Services) in Ashland, and Greg Rice, director of planning and community development for the City of Ashland.

CARES is a non-profit organization funded by a coalition of 54 regional churches and the city.

During her 500-hour assignment, Crawford-Barham helped provide services for the homeless in the region. She was assigned to CARES through her practicum as part of her degree program for a Bachelor of Social Work degree at MSU.

According to Crawford-Barham, CARES assists individuals and families with food, shelter and other basic needs.

"It was a great learning experience working with everyone at CARES, and the staff was amazing," she said. "I grew up watching my entire family helping others in need, and doing case management with the homeless population was a good opportunity for me to help."

Her work with CARES was part of the city of Ashland's official 10-Year Plan to Minimize Homelessness, an initiative launched in September that focuses on helping lift the homeless out of poverty and into housing. The plan is the result of collaborative efforts of agencies to include the Kentucky Housing Corporation, the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development and more than 20 local stakeholders.

Rice's office is coordinating the services of CARES in support of the plan with the goal of avoiding duplication of services and enhancing efficient delivery of help to those in need.

"CARES serves as a single point of entry for people who need assistance," he said.

"Using the Homeless Management Information System, created by HUD, we're starting to track the people who ask for services. Once we have them in the system, we plan to add long-term case management services."

The case management component of the program will help to determine the root cause of the problem a homeless individual or family has, and what can be done to help them move toward becoming self-sufficient.

Rice said Crawford-Barham's practicum work came at a perfect time for the plan's implementation, and she will officially begin employment with the CARES in January, doing case management.

"She worked to transition and prepare the agency for the new case managers," he said. "Her six months of experience with CARES helped her prepare for her new case management position. With her degree and the practicum, she's a perfect fit for us."

Crawford-Barham's practicum supervisor was Dr. Judith Stafford, associate professor of social work. Her academic adviser was Nancy Preston, social work facilitator. At the conclusion of her practicum, she made a presentation to the MSU at Ashland advisory board, and met with MSU President Wayne D. Andrews about her experience.

MSU "absolutely" prepared Crawford-Barham well for her work with the city and with CARES, according to Rice. He said he has been talking with Joel Pace, director of MSU at Ashland, about increasing the number of MSU practicum students working with his and other departments in the city.

"This is a really nice thing to be able to keep a bright new graduate in town, and we need more like her."

Additional information about social work careers is available by calling Morehead State's Department of Sociology, Social Work and Criminology at (606) 783-2656; or MSU at Ashland at (606) 327-1777 or (800) 648-5370

Theatre students present 'Language of Angels'

Morehead State University theatre students are currently staging the play "Language of Angels" in the Lucille Little Theatre within Breckinridge Hall.

The drama, written by noted playwright Naomi Iizuka, is an eerie cycle of ghost stories, set in the cave country of North Carolina. After a young girl is lost in a cave on the edge of town, there is a Rashomon-like investigation of her disappearance and the fate of those who survive her.

Cast members include:

Joel Bentley, Campton junior, as Billy.

Jolene Brewer, Falmouth sophomore, as Danielle.

Allie Cain, California , Ky ., junior, as Allison.

Karen Figlestahler, Lawrenceburg freshman, as Celie.

Carl Gibson, Elizabethtown junior, as J.B.

Terrill Kucera, Austin , Texas , sophomore, as Seth.

Kasi Orr, Butler junior, as Kendra.

Nathan Wellman, Catlettsburg freshman, as Michael.

Performances will continue Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 29-Dec. 1, at 7:30 p.m., and on Sunday, Dec. 2, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $8 for adults, $4 for non-MSU students and senior citizens, and free to MSU students with a valid EagleCard ID.

Additional information is available by visiting the MSU Theatre Box Office, or by calling (606) 783-2170.
